Teen still in coma

An Orange County youth hospitalized at HCA Central Florida Regional Hospital after spending hours locked in the trunk of his car last week remains in a coma in critical condition.

Philip Chandler, 16, was admitted to the hospital July 17 with hyperthermia, a marked elevation of body temperature, 108 degrees. He also was hypotensive, low blood pressure, resulting from hyperthermia and was unresponsive.

Chandler was abducted from a Pine Hills barber shop parking lot last week and forced into the trunk of his car by two teen-agers. Police estimated Chandler was in the trunk at least five hours. When he was found in a Volusia County parking lot, Chandler was comatose and barely breathing. He was taken to the Sanford hospital. The two teen-agers are in police custody.

Chandler is on life support including a respirator in the intensive care unit. Medically, he is stabilized and is experiencing some low level brain activity, according to a hospital press release.

Traffic blocked this week

WINTER SPRINGS - Temporary traffic blocks will occur this week at the Seminole County Expressway bridge construction site at Winter Springs Boulevard as 120-foot beams are delivered to the site. The five-minute disruptions will occur from 3 a.m. to 6 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. each day of the week beginning Monday. On July 31 traffic will stopped for up to 30-minute intervals between 3 a.m. and 4 to p.m. while the beams are lifted into place.

Register to vote

SANFORD - A voter registration will be held at the Seminole Volunteer Enterprises food assistance office at Zayre Plaza this Tuesday and Thursday.

The registration opportunities will be held from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. each day.

Correction

In a report on the Sanford Main Street program Thursday, July 22, the source of one financial donation was incorrectly given. The Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association, SHDWA, donated $1,000 to the Main Street program, not the First Street Gallery as reported. The gallery's donation was $50.

Kids: Armed, ready

Teens say they have easy access to guns

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Seminole County middle- and high school students agree with a new national poll showing youngsters have ready access to handguns but would like to eliminate guns from their violence-threatened lives.

"Sure, I could get my brother's gun if I needed it," one 14-year-old boy said. "He has a gun for protection, but he tells us that me and my sister can use it too if we need it."

He said his parents are unaware that the youngsters have the gun and that they would not approve of having the weapon in the house.

He noted also that he would prefer that it not be necessary to have access to a gun, but because so many others had armed themselves it had become necessary to do so to be on equal footing in case of controversy.

The national survey, released this past week of 2,008 students at 96 middle schools and high schools around the country, which was conducted by pollster Lewis Harris for Harvard University, shows that the impact of guns is nothing short of pervasive on the youngest children.

The poll shows that students feel increasingly threatened by gun violence and crime in general, said Harris.

Everyone out there has a gun, said a 17-year-old girl, who said her father bought her a gun for her.

From a well of deep emotion

Judi Molazani will present First Lady Hillary Clinton with one of her award-winning paintings inspired by emotional pain and by a woman's ability to heal and regenerate life.

Art celebrates life for survivor of childhood sexual abuse

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

ALAMONTE SPRINGS - The paintings Judi Molazani has created over the last two years have moved from a painful darkness to a more exuberant, bright celebration of life.

"I think my paintings have mirrored my recovery," Molazani said.

A survivor of childhood sexual abuse, Molazani said that she has come a long way on the road to recovery.

Next week one of her paintings will be presented to First Lady Hillary Clinton, Molazani said she wanted Clinton to have one of her paintings because the first lady has dedicated much of her life to serving the needs of women, children and minorities.

"I just wanted her to have one of my paintings," Molazani said.

The artist said she had painted many years ago, but the subjects were still life studies of flowers, fruit and other things found around the house. She said there was something in her paintings.

After some time in therapy, she said she found herself painting again.

But it was from the heart. It was my emotions," she said.

A watercolor painting of a young girl in pain was the first of more than 300 paintings she has done since mid 1991. Her work has chronicled her journey back from the great pain she has suffered.

She said that she has sold about 200 of her watercolor and acrylic paintings, especially to other survivors of abuse.

SANFORD - Planning for the 19th Annual Golden Age Games in Sanford is underway but the loss of major sponsorship money is causing some concern.

According to Chris Lisy, who is co-chairman for this year's games, "The economy has been so tough this year that we lost some very important sponsorship dollars. We have made many new contacts, but there has been no commitments for this year."

Lisy is proud of the response received by local businesses who have purchased an ad in the handbook for $25. "We had so much success with this," Lisy said, "we ended up having a waiting list. All donors will be listed in the SANFORD - The web of legal problems facing a Tampa-based company entangled two Seminole County businesses Tuesday as officials began a search for business records of people involved with Premier Benefit Capital Trust.

Charles Suits, who was appointed the receiver for Premier July 16 by the Federal District Court in Tampa, led investigators from the state comptroller's office to businesses in Lake Mary and Sanford last week.

The investigators first visited the Lake Mary office of chiropractor Dr. Lois Somerville and then the 413 West First Street office

Discovery stuck on pad again

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — For the second Saturday in a row, space shuttle Discovery stayed stuck on the launch pad, this time grounded by a fault in a rocket booster 19 seconds before scheduled liftoff.

The satellite-delivery mission to test rocket-speed communications and study extremely hot stars was already one week overdue. It was expected to be delayed another 1 1/2 weeks.

"Thanks for the effort," commander Frank Culbertson Jr. told launch officials before following his four crewmen out of Discovery's hatch. "We'll be ready to come back when you tell us."

It was the third time in four months that a shuttle countdown was halted in the final seconds before liftoff.

leased to First Financial Foundation, Inc. Sanford had issued a six-month occupational license to a David Rose at the West First Street address for estate planning.

Investigators claimed both the Lake Mary chiropractor's office and recently opened estate planning office in Sanford had received mail for Premier Benefit Capital Trust, or its trustees, Theodore Navilio and Harry W. Marrero.

Terrance McElroy, public information spokesman for the comptroller's office said, "I've heard that this apparently was a mailing address or had some connection to the Premier operation. Are you familiar with Premier Benefit?"

"Premier Benefit Capital Trust is a company that is Tampa-based that we became suspicious about possibly selling unregistered securities. We'd ask for them to turn over records to us because they weren't licensed or later, he was found shot to death in the Georgia town of Kingsland just across the state line from Jacksonville. He was buried Saturday.

The Georgia Bureau of Investigation is investigating the death. Investigators from GBI did not return phone calls.

Comer was charged with aggravated assault for allegedly chasing a Sanford man with a stick. A woman told police Comer said she owed him money and threatened her and her children with harm on July 7 at the corner of Eighth Street and Maple Avenue. The victims who filed the complaints against Comer lived at the same address.

When Comer was arrested July 13 at 77 Seminole Gardens, he listed his occupation as a farm worker. In his obituary, his job was listed as car detailer. He posted a $2,000 bond through a bail bondsman. An August arraignment date was set in the case.

Sanford Police Department Commander Dennis Whitmire said although he knew who Comer was because he had been arrested on numerous criminal charges over the years, the local department has not been contacted about his death. According to court records, criminal cases over the years against Comer involved drug possessions, aggravated assault, battery, firearms possession.

"Really about the only thing I can tell you about Adolph is I don't know any more than what I read in the obit in the Herald, other than somebody told us 'did you hear he was shot in Georgia?' We don't know any of the details," Whitmire said.

Seminole County Sheriff's spokesman George Proechel said all he knew about the shooting was Comer, "got a bullet in the brain."

handbook for this year's events," she added.

The major sponsor financially supporting the games for a number of years has been Olive Garden. Uary said Olive Garden officials informed her that they could no longer be a donor because of the state of the economy. The Olive Garden's annual contribution of $1,000, along with donations from several other companies, has helped defray the cost of operating the games.

"The money helps us to keep the entry fees for the games as low as possible," she said, "but the way it looks, we will have to make a change in the fee structure for the 1994 games. With this lack of corporate sponsorship, we just can't continue at this level."

As an example, she commented on the T-shirts which are given to each senior entered in the games. "A T-shirt costs us more than the $3 per game we charge, and that certainly isn't economically right," she said.

In the meantime, no changes are expected in the games this year, and a few new events are being planned including a museum reception, twilight cruise on the St. Johns River, and Historic Fun Walk.

Last year saw 1,500 people registered. In individual participation in events, the number was 2,400. "What surprised me," Uary said, "was that out of 1,500 people from 24 different states who participated, only 151 were from Sanford."

Games in the past have also seen participants from a number of foreign countries. Uary hoped the number of people entered, especially local entries, will increase this year.

The 19th annual Golden Age Games will be held November 7 through 13, beginning with the official opening ceremonies, complete with pomp and circumstance, at 1 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 7th.

For information on sponsorships or entry packets for this year's games, Uary can be contacted at the Senior Center adjacent to the Sanford Civic Center, 330-5699.

County ends budget talks

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners ended their trimming and whittling Friday afternoon and directed County Manager Ron Rabun to reduce his proposed property tax rate to the "roll back" rate.

But the net effect of new, tentatively-accepted taxes will increase out-of-pocket payments for most residents.

Residents will now have their say about the spending proposal in public hearings Sept. 14 and 28. Next Tuesday, commissioners will set the tentative tax rate used in property tax estimates mailed from the Property Appraiser's Office to property owners later this summer. The rate can be lowered, but not increased without the costly renotification of property owners.

Although commissioners agreed to set the tax rate at the "rollback" rate, few said they were content with it. The rollback rate is the rate which produces the same tax income for the county from existing properties as last November.

"I would expect the county manager to find more cuts," said Commissioner Pat Warren.

"The size of the increases are too big," said Commissioner Larry Furlong.

But Rabun's chief budget officer warned commissioners not to lull taxpayers into contentment with their cuts.

"We try to have a fairly constant rate and avoid large swings," said Jean Kassab, chief

I would expect the county manager to find more cuts.

-Commissioner Pat Warren

budget officer for the county. "That's what upsets people."

Kassab said if commissioners cut their budget beyond the rollback rate to reflect the entire $3 million in trims, the tax rate would automatically increase by nearly $1 per $1,000 in two years.

The proposed countywide rate would save $2.25 next year for owners of $100,000 homes and $1.50 for owners of $75,000 homes. Rabun had proposed keeping the same $5.42 per $1,000 of taxable property tax rate as last year and adding an 88 percent increase to the unincorporated utility taxes, raising the gas tax by a penny and increase garbage fees.

The new taxes will add $45.54 to the annual taxes paid to the county by unincorporated residents who will pay $33 more in utility taxes during the year, about $5 more in garbage fees and about $8 more in gasoline taxes.

The net result is unincorporated residents with $75,000 homes will pay $42 more in county taxes and fees. City residents with $75,000 homes, who pay only the countywide tax and gasoline taxes, will pay $6 more in taxes.

Tuesday, most commissioners said they wanted the property tax trimmed to compensate for the increases in the other taxes and went about cutting $3.4 million from Rabun's $275.8 million budget proposal. By Friday, the savings to had been reduced to about $3 million for a final budget proposal of $274.2 million.

Commissioners Pat Warren, Bob Sturm and Daryl McLain had added $200,000 for the Orlando Science Center, funding not recommended by Rabun nor accepted by commissioners Larry Furlong and Dick Van Der Weide. Commissioners also agreed to improve bus service in southern areas of the county for another $117,000, again, not recommended by Rabun.

Friday, Sheriff Don Eslinger announced he had cut another $238,000 from his $28.8 million budget requested by commissioners Tuesday. Eslinger said the cuts came from proposed equipment purchases and reserves and would not affect his proposed increase in staffing by 31 positions.

"I hope that you would look at our budget not just as another line item and look at it as a public safety issue," said Eslinger.

A short time later, Commissioner Daryl McLain recommended cutting Rabun's proposed merit salary increase program from 4 percent to 3 percent to save another $182,161 and asked Eslinger to do the same. He asked for some flexibility and commissioners cut his salary budget line by another $160,000.

Third teen to be sentenced for school arson

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The third teen charged with arson in the 1991 Tuskawilla Middle School fire will be sentenced to four years in a prison for youthful offenders under a negotiated plea.

George Tye Smith, 18, pleaded no contest Friday to arson and burglary before Seminole Circuit Court Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. Two other youths, Leon Micah Conway, 18, and Jason Best, 16, were charged along with Smith in the fire which caused over $4 million damage to the school. They have already been sentenced.

Under the plea agreement, Smith will be sentenced to prison. Mize has recommended Smith serve time in the state's boot camp which includes physical and behavior training. If he completes the boot camp program, the remainder of his prison time could be served on probation. Although boot camp is recommended for many young offenders throughout the state, not all get in due to limited space.

In May, Conway pleaded no contest to arson and burglary and was also sentenced to four years in prison and recommended for boot camp. He was also placed on probation after he gets out of prison or the boot camp.

Best pleaded guilty to arson and burglary in March and is under house arrest until he is 19. Both Conway and Best were expected to testify against Smith.

Smith will be sentenced in September.

Auto thefts arrest

A man suspected of committing several recent Sanford-area auto thefts was arrested Wednesday afternoon, charged with the theft of a truck earlier this month.

Timothy Neighbors, 30, 2539 Park Drive, Sanford, was arrested on burglary and auto theft charges by Sanford police at his home. According to the arrest report, Neighbors offered to sell a 1986 Nissan truck, reported stolen from a Hidden Lake Drive driveway, to a Sanford man for $20. The man contacted Sanford police who arrested Neighbors. The truck's keys were in Neighbors' pocket at the time of his arrest, according to the report.

Police Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire said investigators suspect Neighbors is responsible for several recent auto thefts.

Watermelons stolen

A Sanford man was arrested Wednesday evening, charged with the theft of 23 watermelons from a Rand Yard Road field. Willia Henry Alston, 50, 1621 Strawberry Ave., was held on a petit theft charge by Sanford police. A DeBary man who owns the field, reported seeing Alston and two other men loading watermelons into his vehicle shortly after 6 p.m. Wednesday. Two of the suspects fled when police arrived, according to reports. The watermelons, valued at $48, were recovered at the scene.

Driving charges filed

Stephen Adolph Doroszkiewicz, 39, 308 Rachel St., Sanford, was arrested on a drunken driving charge by Seminole County deputies Wednesday evening. A deputy reported seeing Doroszkiewicz speeding across a parking lot in Fern Park and skidding into a grassy area. Doroszkiewicz was also held on charges of driving with a suspended license and resisting arrest.

Traffic stop leads to arrest

Tracey V. Mitchell, 22, 216 Tuskegee St., Sanford, was arrested on a suspended license charge by a Longwood policeman Wednesday evening following a traffic stop. The policeman reported seeing Mitchell driving away from a parking lot with an infant standing in her lap. When she was spotted, the policeman reported Mitchell returned to a parking space and placed the child in an infant seat. Mitchell was also cited for a violation of the state child-restraint law.

Retail theft charged

Yolanda Anita Canada, 18, 2450 Church St., Sanford, was charged with retail theft by Sanford Police on Thursday.

Police said security personnel at the WalMart on U.S. Highway 17-92 saw her put two shirts and two pairs of shorts, valued at about $54 in her purse.

They said she then left the store without paying for the items.

She was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $100 bond.

Burglary charged

Charles Leon Boykins, 24, 3395 O'Neal St., Sanford, was charged with burglary by Seminole County sheriff's officers on Thursday.

Deputies said he entered a residence in the 2100 block of Sipes Ave., Sanford by breaking a window. They said he then took $225 from the residence without the owner's permission.

He was identified by witnesses and arrested during the investigative process at the sheriff's office.

He was held at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility without bond as he is on parole.

Domestic violence charged

Jeffrey Earl Veigel, 33, 153 Bider Ave., Sanford, was charged with domestic violence/battery by Seminole County sheriff's officers on Thursday.

Deputies said his wife told them that she had come home and her husband was trying to sell a stereo to an "unknown black male."

She said she told the man to leave and that after he did, her husband grabbed her by the arm and pushed her backward.

She said he ordered her into the house and she refused and that her daughter came out and told him not to push her mother around.

The child was reportedly also pushed by her arm and told to go back into the house, but she ran to the neighbor's home and called the police.

Veigel was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $1,000 bond.

Pot possession

Gary A. Gang, 27, 90 Hidden Lake Dr., Apt. 175, Sanford was charged with possession of less than 20 grams of cannabis and possession of drug paraphernalia by Longwood Police on Thursday.

Telemarketing firm convicted

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

A firm operating from two locations in Seminole County has been convicted on all counts involving fraudulent telemarketing, by the U.S. District Court. A fine of $5 million is expected to be imposed.

The firm is Advanced Interactive Communication, Inc. (AICI), doing business as Infonet Financial Services, 1495 Seminole Blvd., Casselberry, and 258 E. Altamonte Drive, Altamonte Springs.

AICI was found guilty of three counts of mail fraud and 17 counts of money laundering during a six day trial before U.S. District Judge Anne C. Conway in Orlando.

AICI, a Florida corporation, is owned in part by Bruce Grossman. He had been previously found guilty of mail fraud. The court said the company, "provided telemarketers in its employment with a fraudulent sales pitch which was designed to mislead customers."

The ruling said the message was: "... if a customer called a 1-900 telephone number and incurred a $50 charge, the customer would either receive a Visa or Mastercard credit card in the mail, or the identity of banks that were prepared to issue them such a credit card."

The ruling said AICI targeted individuals whose recent applications for major credit cards had been denied.

Neither Grossman nor AICI had any affiliation with banks.

According to a press release from the U.S. Attorney, Middle District, "AICI also sold business opportunities to persons throughout the United States, giving those persons the ability to open telemarketing rooms to conduct fraudulent telemarketing businesses using the same fraudulent sales pitch used at AICI."

The indictment described 26 separate telemarketing businesses operating in Florida, in addition to businesses in seven other states.

"As a result of the operations of AICI and its affiliates," the court said, "approximately 257,532 customers were persuaded by the use of the fraudulent sales pitch to call the 1-900 numbers and incur a $50 charge." As a result, the customers were billed a total of approximately $12,459,384.

The jury also determined that a number of items owned by the company should be forfeited to the U.S. They included telephones, computer equipment, 1991 BMW and Porsche automobiles, and $390,809.

AICI is exposed to a fine of $5 million. Sentencing is scheduled for Sept. 28.

Commissioner suspended from job with sheriff's office

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Longwood City Commissioner Rex Anderson was suspended for two weeks without pay from his job with the Seminole County Sheriff's Department Friday for using his position in order to get information about his estranged wife.

Although a discipline review board recommended Anderson be given a written reprimand and mandatory counseling for conduct unbecoming a member of the office, Sheriff Don Eslinger suspended him without pay instead. The discipline review board cited Anderson's conduct, "was most likely the result of emotional stress."

"While this condition may mitigate the situation," Eslinger said, in the suspension memorandum, "it does not absolve you from compliance with Sheriff's Office General Orders. As a member of the Seminole County Sheriff's Office, you are required to observe the highest degree of professionalism in both your on duty and off duty affairs. The behavior you displayed during this incident falls far below the standards set for members of the sheriff's office."

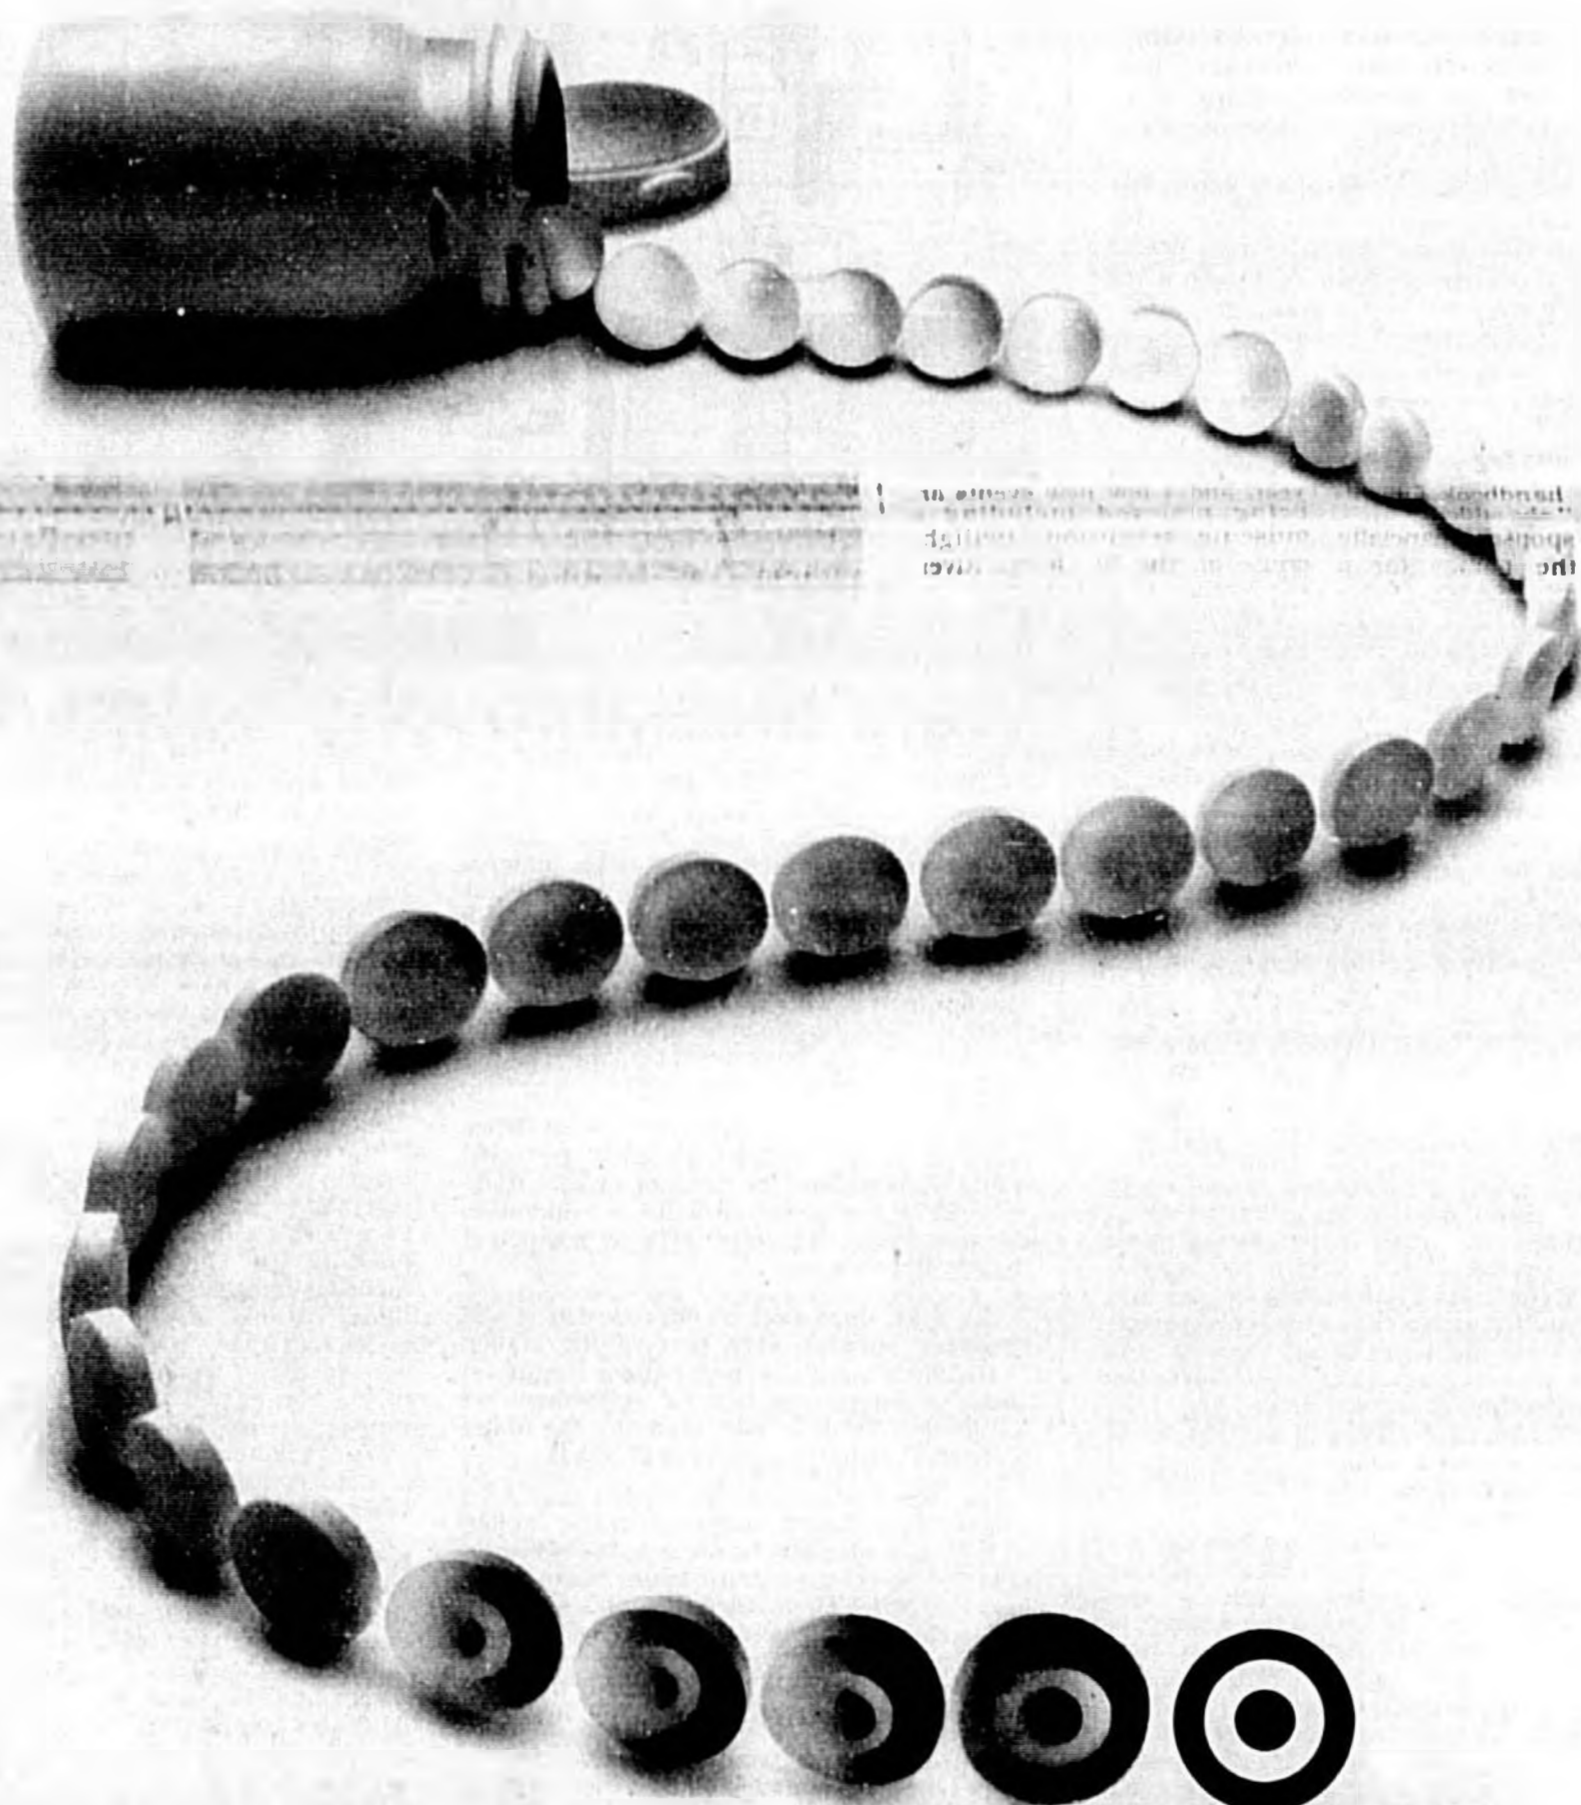

Anderson is a non-sworn field service officer for the sheriff's department.

According to several individuals questioned in the case, Anderson displayed a seven-pointed star shaped badge when trying to obtain information about his wife. He later told the review board, the badge was from the Longwood Police Department for use in his duties as a City Commissioner. The allegations against Anderson were filed by his estranged wife, Ethel and her roommate. She claimed Anderson had used his badge to try and get information about her living arrangements in May and June, after the couple separated.

The review board did not substantiate a claim that Anderson prepared to strike his estranged wife's male roommate on June 7.

Anderson plans to seek reelection to his commission seat in November. He could not be reached for comment.

Time to observe budget hearings

Government meetings between now and the end of September should be closely watched. It's fiscal year 1993/94 budget preparation time.

Of major importance are considerations of millage rates and general fund expenditures. The millage rate will determine how big a property owners tax bill will be. The spending, based on expected income, will determine how the tax money will be distributed.

Millage rates are generally one number, followed by a decimal point and three to four additional numbers. The numbers are important.

For a home appraised at $100,000, with a $25,000 homestead exemption, an increase of millage by only point-one percent will increase taxes by $7.50. An increase in millage by one percent will raise taxes by $75.

For a home valued at $50,000, with the same exemption, a point-one percent increase will raise taxes by $2.50 and a one percent increase will make taxes climb by $25.

With what some believe is a slow economy, it is natural for home owners to insist that their taxes not be increased. Many may demand the millage should be lowered from last year's level.

These same people however, are often the leading forces in drives to improve city operations such as more parks, a larger police force or fire department. They may also want more streets paved and better drainage.

In order to continue providing these services, governments must make the best judgement calls they can, in the distribution of revenues.

On the other hand, citizens may find items which they believe should be cut from the budget. Objections should be made on these items by members of the public, but based on an understanding of the situation, and not taken on mere face-value.

People elect government officials to serve as representatives, with the purpose of doing what is best for the entire community. For the majority of citizens who don't have the opportunity or interest in closely examining each line item in the budget, this trust in government is necessary.

We urge citizens to attend public hearings on the budgets. Listen to what is said and observe what action is taken.

Becoming involved in budget hearings is a good way to assure government is working in the best interest of the people it serves.

Display house numbers

A bucket of breadcrumbs please! A few weeks ago after talking on the telephone with a person in the county planning, I thought they would have this problem resolved. They gave their "word." They stated they knew it was against the law and they just kept forgetting about it. This person cannot come from the South because our word is precious as we do not give it lightly just to pass the buck. What goes around comes around.

What would happen if an emergency happened at their home, no house number or street signs? I guess they would put out breadcrumbs for the emergency crew to get there.

I can hear the 911 person ask, "how to get there," and a voice come back, "Go down the third street from the 7-11 store, turn right, go two blocks, turn right and we live in the third house on the left. I'll put some breadcrumbs out so you can find the house."

Well, why aren't house numbers put out and displayed so you can see from the road? And the street signs large enough to read? Businesses should have them in big print and old empty lots should have a sign on the property with the number in plain view. Look around your own neighborhood and see how many do not have house numbers, then call it in to Planning.

Programs for inmates aid crime fight

Our highly mobile society seems to be a catalyst for crime. Citizens are concerned about crime and our penal system. Recently a group of citizens assembled with Sheriff Don Ealinger and were given a tour of the Seminole County Jail. State Representative Marvin Couch was a member of the tour group and was impressed by the conditions in the jail.

He contrasted Seminole County's penal system with Orange County. Representative Couch acknowledged that Orange County has more money to spend but there was a distinct difference. When one walks through the Seminole County jail one does not encounter prisoners screaming and hollering as they do in Orange County. No doubt the large number housed in Orange County adds to this problem.

Seminole County's jail houses an average population of approximately 600 inmates, the capacity is 700. The penal system relegates persons convicted of minor crimes and short terms to county jails. More serious long term offenders are generally placed in state or federal institutions.

Seminole County's jail population is under capacity. The federal government helped finance the construction of the jail thus the county does house some federal prisoners. They are paid $39 per day for federal prisoners. The state Legislature also expects the county to house state prisoners. The county would be reimbursed $32 per day for state prisoners.

SEMINOLE OPINION

LURLENE SWEETING

Sheriff Don Ealinger is concerned about the state and federal government utilizing space in the county jail. If the jail reaches capacity this might work adversely if the county needed the space.

The jails in Orange County and Seminole County have programs for inmates. The programs are targeted for the inmates charged with less serious crimes. The programs are geared to increase inmates employability skills.

Orange County has a myriad of programs. The Genesis and Phoenix programs provide courses for inmates. Mechanics and carpentry classes are included. Persons participating in these programs are under direct supervision. Direct supervision provides for the guard being housed inside with prisoners.

Both Orange County and Seminole County have General Education Degree (GED) programs. The Seminole County jail population is exposed to some educational programs from Seminole Community College. The proximity of the college to the jail is a plus. The college encourages inmates to take classes while incarcerated. Once they are released many continue their education at Seminole Community College.

Education is a viable vehicle for equipping persons charged with offenses to make a positive change. Preparing themselves for a career fosters hope and self-esteem. Lack of employability skills is a prime factor in recidivism.

Representative Couch believes that Sheriff Don Ealinger and his staff are doing a noteworthy job. The sheriff and his staff show great vision in working for change. One of the changes that has taken place is the computerization of the intake process. This has upgraded and streamlined the system.

Programs that provide a constructive outlet for inmates in planning a different lifestyle bring hope and help facilitate inmates making a change.

Were breakthroughs cosmetic?

WASHINGTON — The star of the recent economic summit in Tokyo turned out to be Japan's outgoing Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa, a lame duck leaving office under a cloud of political corruption in his Liberal Democratic Party. In quick succession he agreed to compromises in two sets of trade talks, both of which resulted in agreements. The question is whether these agreements are cosmetic, as most Japanese analysts claim, or whether they are major breakthroughs, as the Clinton administration claims.

The answer may not be clear for years. What is certain is that, had the talks failed, the world would have been on the brink of a major trade war. While the agreements did not eliminate this possibility, they have certainly postponed the day of reckoning.

The most important trade talks tied to the economic summit were part of the stalled "Uruguay Round" of negotiations begun in 1988 to modify the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, a pact made by the major industrialized nations after World War II.

The talks had stalled over myriad questions; it was hoped that the logjam could be broken in a Tokyo meeting to precede the summit. GATT's director-general, Peter Sutherland, said that if this effort failed, the talks would be suspended for at least a year, and it was likely that the United States, Japan and the European Community would become embroiled in a major trade war.

The latest talks were going nowhere, as usual, until Miyazawa blinked. After years of insisting that Japan could impose import tariffs on a host of goods, the Japanese suddenly capitulated on the subject of hard liquor. This quickly led to a series of compromises on 18 other manufactured products.

This was a breakthrough all sides had been trying to achieve for almost two years. However, there are some sobering realities. For instance, the newly proposed tariff reductions are "subject to appropriate contributions by other major producers and satisfactory resolution of non-tariff issues." Translated, that means years more work even on issues that were supposedly put to rest.

More importantly, all concerned agreed to simply continue ignoring the two most serious tariff issues: agriculture and service industries, especially financial services. Both Japan and the European Community continue to insist on the right to protect their farmers from imports. Japan especially wishes to protect its financial services industries — banking and insurance.

Japan's sudden willingness to go along with further multilateral trade liberalization also spilled over into the equally stalled bilateral negotiations between the United States and Japan.

These talks broke off on June 29 when a U.S. delegation returned empty-handed from Tokyo. Almost immediately the Japanese asked the American negotiating team to return. After two weeks of frantic bargaining, Clinton and Miyazawa appeared at a joint press conference at the end of the summit to hall a 10-page "framework" agreement that both had just initialed.

The document was clearly cobbled together in haste by two sides both needing an agreement for internal political reasons. It is essentially an agreement to agree in the future on a range of issues. Both sides are hailing it as a victory; this obviously means that its intentionally less-than-precise language is open to widely divergent interpretation.

The talks between Japan and the United States had stalled on the issue of setting specific industry-by-industry goals — "benchmarks" as the U.S. negotiators call them — for increasing U.S. imports to Japan. This question is still left open in the "framework," which speaks only of Japan's willingness to reduce its current $130 billion worldwide trade surplus without setting specific targets.

But Japan did move significantly toward the U.S. position on opening its markets in sectors like auto parts, high technology and medical equipment. More importantly, it agreed to accept objective criteria in determining whether a market segment is open or closed.

But the agreement might not survive Japan's upcoming election. It was the result of Miyazawa's willingness to side with Japan's Foreign Ministry — which wants to make trade concessions — against the objections of the powerful Ministry of International Trade and Industry. The schism between the two ministries grows deeper, and a new Japanese prime minister could side with the trade ministry, which could make the "framework" all but meaningless.

What is certain is that, had the talks failed, the world would have been on the brink of a major trade war.

Clinton, Dole do dinner

WASHINGTON — In the weeks leading up to his recent dinner diplomacy with President Bill Clinton, Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., was getting a generous helping of political advice from friends cheering him on for the presidency in 1996.

"You're having the best time of your life, and you're head and shoulders above your Republican competition," one confidant told him. "But you paid a price and people are beginning to see what they call the 'old Bob Dole' and they don't like that side of you."

Having galvanized the GOP, which was presumed dead just seven months ago, Dole has emerged as the party's titular leader. But flashes of the "old Bob Dole" resurface. The "old" Dole is the hatchet man, the vice presidential candidate who referred to "Democrat wars" in a 1976 debate and the presidential candidate who threw a tantrum at George Bush during the 1988 primaries.

It's the pugnacious side of Dole who beat the war drums lays after the election, declaring that Clinton had "no mandate, no coattails, no majority." He vowed to "represent" the electoral majority of Americans who didn't vote for Clinton. Since then, Dole at times has been borderline demagogic about deficit reduction, and blatant in the way he's attempted to stoke the dying embers of "travelgate."

Unfortunately, when the "old" Dole rears his head, the more charming and compelling side of the Senate minority leader becomes submerged: the prairie populist; the son of a cream-and-egg salesman from Russell, Kan., who connects with small-town America; the gritty war hero who persevered during four years recovering in hospital wards, nearly given up for dead.

Part of the problem, says a Dole spokesman, is that, in judging Dole, some critics "put too much emphasis on the political arena, and (politics is) not a job for people who are afraid of a little physical contact once in a while."

Dole needed a respite as much as Clinton did from the "physical contact," and that's why they recently repaired to Duke Ziebert's, a restaurant that serves as the unofficial epicenter of the Washington establishment. Though Dole may reap the biggest dividends from their dinner, it was Clinton who took the initiative. He began by approaching Democratic power-broker Robert Strauss, who most recently was President Bush's ambassador to Russia, at a White House ceremony last month.

"I understand that you're a good friend of Bob Dole's," Clinton inquired, indicating he wanted to improve relations with his nemesis. Strauss later told friends that Clinton's statement was a sign of poor staff work: Someone should have known about his friendship with Dole, and sought him out earlier.

White House officials say that Strauss phoned Clinton back after obtaining Dole's approval. "How about (dinner) here at the White House," Clinton suggested.

"Mr. President, that doesn't do what you need done. You need something public and visible," Strauss said. Dole wanted to show there is civility despite political differences.

"He needs to show civility, and he needs to soften," said one source close to Dole. "He needs to show there is something there besides the harshness. They see the highly partisan, slashing Bob Dole. It's good for the country to (see) that leaders who disagree still maintain civility."

Dole has emerged as the party's titular leader.

birthday. "It's scary."

She said her father purchased the weapon after three of her friends were shot during the last year. Though none of them was seriously injured and none lived in the Seminole County area, she said she is still afraid, because so many people are armed.

Thirty-five percent of the students in the Harris survey reported feeling it was either "somewhat likely" or "very likely" they would not survive to old age because their lives would be "wiped out by guns."

"Hell, if I live to graduate from high school I'll be doing pretty good," a middle school boy said. "We don't go a day without hearing about someone getting shot at. It ain't good."

His friend, another middle schooler, was more optimistic about his life expectancy, but said he would probably lose more friends and family to guns than to any other cause of death.

"I might live another 50 years, but I'm gonna know a lot of people who get shot in an argument or just out on the street," he said. "It happens every day."

Both boys said they had fairly easy access to firearms through family or friends and would use them "if necessary."

"It's really sh--- that we have to do this," one of the young men said. "I don't want to have to have a gun, but what the hell am I supposed to do when everyone else has a gun?"

Harris' survey found that 59 percent of the students, who filled out questionnaires in their classrooms nationwide, said they could get a handgun if they wanted one.

Of that same group, 62 percent believed they could get a handgun in 24 hours.

Fifty-six percent of the students said they favored elimination of handguns from society, while 27 percent said they "would be missing something without guns."

Nationally, among city residents, 63 percent said they had ready access to guns. But 58 percent of suburban students and 56 percent of those in small towns or rural areas said they could easily get guns.

None of the locals felt they would need to go far beyond their own neighborhood to gain access to a gun.

The latest Justice Department figures for teen-age shooting victims covers a period from 85-88, 3 out of 1,000 children between ages 12 and 15 and nine out of 1,000 teenagers between 16 and 19 had reported being the victims of a violent crime involving a gun.

where kids see and get guns so readily," Harris told a news conference recently. He rejected the notion that students might exaggerate their answers to show bravado.

The poll found that 39 percent of the students reported they knew someone who had been killed or wounded by a gun.

This figure did not reflect the frequency of such incidents, rather it showed that many students knew about the same shooting, said Jacqueline Cohen, a criminology expert at Carnegie-Mellon University.

The latest Justice Department figures for teenage shooting victims covers a period from 1985 through 1988, when three out of 1,000 children between ages 12 and 15 and nine out of 1,000 teenagers between 16 and 19 had reported being the victims of a violent crime involving a gun.

"I would have no doubt at all that those rates have gone up since 1988; there has been a rise in gun violence, especially gun violence among kids," Cohen said.

The national survey said that 9 percent said they had "shot a gun at somebody" while 13 percent reported having "been seriously threatened" in the last year with being shot.

Fifteen percent of children reported they had carried a handgun in the last 30 days.

During the last school year in Seminole County, seven middle and high school students were expelled from school for bringing guns onto school property. Officials say more guns were probably brought to school, but were never discovered.

School officials report, however, that students are beginning to take the initiative more often to report other students who have armed themselves on campus.

Harris said his poll showed that "young people feel very lonely and feel beset by an array of problems" — from sexual violence, parental abuse, teenage suicide and drug and alcohol abuse.

Harris declined to release the names of the schools where students were surveyed, saying this would undermine his pledge of confidentiality.

The survey, conducted between April 19 and May 21, had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percent.

will get you a cup of coffee."

Ed especially associated himself with my Palm Sunday and Easter Sunday story about Douglas Jobe. Ed's father was a patient at the Atlantic Coast Line Hospital in Waycross, Ga., when Jobe was electrocuted atop that water tower in Zellwood. About the same time, June 8, 1950, Tison's father died.

Ed probably doesn't know that my family had very close ties with the ACL hospital in Waycross. My father worked for the ACL when he was injured in a switch engine accident at Rands Siding. After being treated in Sanford he was sent to the company hospital in Waycross where he met my mother who was a registered nurse there.

Tison still considers Sanford his home away from home, at least according to Billy Higgins who heads up Seminole High School's alumni group called COMSAC. Ed's family moved to Sanford in 1942. While climbing a tree with later Sanford attorney Mac Cleveland, Ed's brother broke his arm. Ed and Henry McLaulin III were second graders at Southside Primary and taught by the late Mrs. Velma Mitchell.

After graduating from Seminole High School, Ed attended the Newport News (Va.) Apprentice School and took a job as a staff artist for the Newport News Daily Press. He even started his own sign company and finally got into commercial real estate. He married Nancy Lee Carr of Hampton, N.J. They reared sons Randy and Ed Jr. Both are now associated with dad in the real estate business.

Ed says he greatly enjoys this weekly column. I'm flattered, particularly when I see the quality of Tison's artistic ability — a sample of which appears with this article.

A sample of Ed Tison's artistry

A couple weeks ago a caller inquired about what happened to the two daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Lake. Their names were Sarita and Maude and were a part of the 11-chapter "Lakegate" yarn I spun for you last fall.

The best we can tell you about the two girls is that both became schoolteachers. I never did know Maude but when I was in the fifth grade I was taught by Miss Ethel Riser and Sarita taught another fifth grade class. Consequently I did know Sarita but only on a teacher-student relationship and I wasn't even in her class.

Sarita died May 24, 1980 and Maude passed away September 29, 1982. Both are buried in the same Evergreen cemetery plot with their parents.

Did Sarita ever get married?

We haven't been able to find out for sure. But we do know that at one time she was engaged to a Monroe Hutton and was to become Mayor Lake's son-in-law. But Hutton got involved in some "kickback" rumors that shook Sanford when he was either rightly or wrongly accused of getting paving contracts from the city, doing sub-standard jobs and "kicking back" some of his profits to Mayor Lake. None of this, however, was ever proved.

But if you will visit the Lake plot at the cemetery there is a double marker for Mayor and Mrs. Lake but two small markers for the daughters. Only their first names appear on the markers. There is no indication that either was ever married. If any of you readers can share some light on this, please call me at 322-2860.

"When I show my paintings, people come up to me and say 'I've never said this to anyone before, but I saw your painting...' and they start themselves on the road to recovery," she said.

Mofazzal said she is "fascinated" by the transformation of her own work.

She had planned, at first, for the artwork she did to remain private, but when she showed some of it to other members of her therapy group and they suggested she pursue it as a form of therapy.

"It sounded too painful," she said. "It kinda made me panic."

Though a series of "wonderful coincidences," she said, she has moved rapidly through the art world and has been recognized state-wide and nationally for her work. She will show in the Lake Mary-Heathrow Festival of the Arts in October.

"But it's when people come up to me and say they have been moved by my work is when it is a huge thing to me," she said. "It's wonderful."

The painting "The Gathering" shows three women close up and studies their faces. It represents the group experience of therapy and also that of the professionals who come to the aid of people in need.

Mofazzal said her husband Al has been very supportive of her throughout her recovery.

"He has been wonderful," she said.

registered with us and wanted to determine what they were selling was a security and had to be registered. They refused to give us the records. We went into court and obtained an injunction ordering them to turn over records to us and prohibiting them from doing any selling until we got the records," he explained.

"They never complied with that order. Meanwhile the SEC (Security and Exchange Commission) took an action against them also freezing the company's assets," McElroy said.

The initial injunction seeking records from Premier Benefit Capital Trust was issued in Hillsborough Circuit Court at the request of the Comptroller's office. The SEC went into Federal District Court in Tampa and got the order freezing company assets. The federal court order dated July 16 appointed Charles Stutz as the receiver for the company.

Navolio said Saturday PBCT was a business which sold contracts to members and within a specified period of time, the investors were repaid their initial investment plus interest. The trust had about 1,500 members. The minimum contract was $10,000 up to a maximum of $25,000 per contract. Navolio estimated the trust had $2½ to $3 million in contracts and the investors received about 12 percent interest. Members paid a $25 fee to join and were not charged commissions or front end or back end load fees. Group health insurance, discount travel and a monthly newsletter was included in the memberships. Navolio added.

On Monday, Marrero filed a bankruptcy petition which was dismissed Wednesday. Stutz said in a written statement.

"It appears that the failed bankruptcy filing was an attempt by Mr. Marrero to frustrate the purpose of the receivership which is to secure all monies and assets of Premier Trust for orderly and fair distribution to investors and creditors and to prevent further violations of the federal securities laws. Mr. Marrero's action was in direct contravention of the order which directs each of the former trustees to take no action in the name of and on behalf of the Trust. Because of the trustees' failure to comply with the order, I have instructed counsel to file an appropriate motion for sanctions before Judge (J.D.) Merryday."

"Apparently some of the principles in Premier Benefit had used the company you are interested in (First Financial Foundation, Inc.) as a mailing address.

The receiver Stutz went to the 413 West First Street address. When they refused to let him in, he got a locksmith to open the door. Stutz and investigators from the comptroller's office went inside to inspect records.

Theodore (Ted) Navolio was inside the locked office. He exited the building a short time later. Asked if he was leaving the office, he responded, "They told me either to leave or go to jail."

Prior to the brief stand-off at the Sanford office, the agents went into the office of Lake Mary chiropractor Dr. Lois Somerville.

Somerville claims a number of uniformed police officers and several individuals entered her office on Lake Mary Boulevard without identifying themselves or stating who or what they were looking for. She claims they went through office files and accosted a patient, David Rose. Rose claims a Lake Mary police officer pushed him against a wall, told him he was under arrest and searched him. Rose filed a complaint with the police department threatening to sue for violations of his constitutional rights. Somerville placed a 911 emergency call at 9:53 a.m. She said no police responded to her call for help.

Comptroller's officials may have assisted the receiver, McElroy said.

The court appointed receiver was looking for records of the Premier Benefit company at Somerville's office. Attorneys for PBCT, including Theodore Navolio, had worked for a time or shared office space with Dr. Somerville, McElroy claimed. "So they went over there looking for him (Navolio)."

The receiver and comptroller's investigator, Michael Brown, were escorted by Lake Mary police, and sheriff's deputies. Holland and Knight, the law firm Stutz works for, also had two investigators of their own on behalf of the receiver.

"They determined, I am told, that neither of the lawyers for Premier were there. They left Dr. Somerville's office and went to First Financial where they believed Navolio and others associated with the company might be. In fact, Theodore Navolio, was there. Stutz was escorted by a Florida Department of Law Enforcement agent," McElroy said. "They determined that Navolio was in the building. He would not let them in. He locked it up. They told him they had a valid court order to come in a seize the company. When he wouldn't let them in, they obtained the services of a locksmith who opened the building. They told Navolio to vacate the premises or risk being arrested for contempt of court."

Stutz took records from the building occupied by Rose's company, First Financial Foundation Inc. The locks were changed on the building. Rose said he broke a window Saturday to enter the building. All the papers and files in the office were missing along with office equipment down to the telephones on the walls.

"I just paid $1,500 for the phone system two months ago," Rose said. The receipts for all the improvements he had made to the office were also taken. He said he plans to file a federal lawsuit over the incident. He said except for some trash in the waste baskets, the only other items left after the raid were a framed copy of the U.S. Constitution and a Bible.

"They left those because they probably didn't know what they were!" Rose said.

Sanford may revise borrow pit regulations

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford City Commission is scheduled to consider revisions to its Land Development Regulations Monday night. The changes deal with borrow pit/mining regulations.

During a meeting on July 15th, the city's Planning and Zoning Commission came up with several recommended changes to be adopted by the commission regarding mining and wellfield protection requirements.

In a presentation submitted to the commission in preparation for the discussion, Director of Planning and Development Jay Marder, explained, "The proposed revisions provide that mining be permitted solely through the PD, Planned Development rezoning process, which would involve a recommendation by the P&Z, with ultimate approval/denial authority by the City Commission."

He suggested by removing the conditional use permitting authority, changes will provide that all mining activities will be approved as a PD, which requires commission approval.

The mining and excavation section presently says an "Administrative Official" will be responsible for approval of mining and extraction requests. The changes suggested replacing the official with, "City Commission pursuant to procedures for PD rezonings."

Three complete pages of criteria and standards are suggested to be included in the document. They deal with setbacks, stockpiling, property corners, warning signs, side slopes, traffic controls, revegetation plantings, effluent water, and bonding requirements.

Extensive changes have also been recommended for other pages and paragraphs of the original borrow pit and mining regulations section.

The changes are being presented in ordinance form for first reading and public hearing during Monday night's commission meeting.

Second reading and public hearing would be held on August 9 in the next regular commission meeting.

City Manager Bill Simmons is recommending the commission approve the first reading of the ordinance.

The Sanford City Commission will meet in a workshop session beginning at 5 p.m. Monday, in the city manager's conference room. It will be followed at 7 p.m. by the regular meeting of the commission, in the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue, Sanford.

Rap

Let's

DEAR TEENA: My parents are too strict.

They expect me to be home by midnight and they won't let me hang out with some of my coolest friends, because they don't "approve" of them.

They don't allow me to go to R-rated movies and they won't let me listen to some of the music I like.

They won't even get cable because they're afraid I'll see something they don't like.

They also make me go to church.

I think they are overprotective and nuts.

What can I do to get them off my back and let me lead my own life? I'm 14 so I'm too young to move out on my own, but I'm old enough to make these decisions on my own.

TREATED LIKE A BABY, LAKE MARY
DEAR BABY: While it is impossible for you to see it right now, your parents are looking after your own best interests. They really are.

Your parents are not being unreasonable, but if you think they should loosen up a little, you should talk to them about it.

Pick one rule that you find particularly difficult to live with and see if you can find some sort of a compromise.

Maybe you can go to R-rated movies if they've seen it first and approved it or if you go with them and discuss what they find objectionable and why you aren't offended by it.

Like you said, you're too young to move out on your own, so you have to learn to live by their rules. It's not so bad once you get used to it.

DEAR TEENA: My mother embarrasses me all the time.

She always volunteers to do stuff at school and she talks to my friends and my teachers.

She's mostly embarrassing because she's a mom and is really geeky.

What can I do to get her to stay away from school and my friends and stuff without hurting her feelings?

I really love my mom, but moms don't belong at school.

What should I do?

EMBARRASSED, SANFORD

DEAR EMBARRASSED: We're all embarrassed by our parents from time to time... that's only natural.

But you should be pleased that your mom is taking an interest in all that you do, especially in your education.

She wants to make sure that you have the best education you can get and volunteering at the school is one way that she can do that.

All moms seem geeky, especially to teens, but don't worry... she'll "outgrow" that as you get older.

DEAR TEENA: I can't wait to get back to school. My father is driving me crazy.

All summer he has been after me to get a job.

I'm only 18. I have my whole life to get a job. Right now I have the right to enjoy my summers at the beach or at the mall without having to worry about working.

Right?

JOBLESS AND HAPPY, SANFORD

DEAR JOBLESS: Your father is trying to teach you some responsibility through work.

Maybe the two of you can reach a compromise. Maybe you can get a part time job so that you still have some time to spend at the beach and at the mall.

Think of it this way, you'll be earning money for those hours worked and you'll have money to spend at the beach and the mall.

Maybe you could combine your interests with a job you might look for a job as a lifeguard or in a beachfront store or you could look for a job in one of the stores at the mall.

DEAR TEENA: I have ugly, crooked, teeth and my parents can't afford to get me braces, they say.

Isn't it my parents responsibility to provide me with those things I need to have regardless of the cost.

I don't want to go through life looking like this and I think they should have to pay for braces.

CROOKED TEETH, SANFORD

DEAR CROOKED: Your parents have a responsibility to provide you with food, clothing and shelter. Beyond that, they can only do so much.

Most parents want to provide the best for their children and I'm sure your folks are the same. Sometimes, however, they can not afford to do everything they would like to do.

While the braces may seem important to you, think about all the things they do give you.

Also, you can get braces on your teeth when you get older and can afford to pay for them yourself so you don't have to go through the rest of your life with crooked teeth.

DEAR TEENA: My sister is starting to get on my nerves.

She goes out just about every night on dates and then comes home and finds it necessary to come home and tell me in great detail about her date.

I have never had a date and she knows that it bothers me to hear about all the fun that she's having when I don't get to have any fun of my own.

Should I keep listening to her or should I tell her to go away when she comes into my room to tell me all her stories.

FRUSTRATED, LAKE MARY

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You said your sister knows that it bothers you when she comes in to tell you her stories. Have you told her, specifically, that it bothers you.

If you keep listening to the stories, she might infer that you are, at least a little, interested in hearing them.

If you don't want to hear something, you can tell her to stop telling you about it.

The next time she comes in to tell you about her date, tell her that you aren't interested in the details, though you hope she had a good time. Tell her that she is welcome to come in and talk, but that hearing all the details of her dates is not a subject that interests you.

A graduate looks at the future with anticipation, some anxiety

The future...

It stares me in the face. Exciting, terrifying, generous, but non-caring, one way or another for myself and thousands of the graduating seniors this year.

The future is coming with the speed and force of a runaway freight train... and there's nothing we can do about it.

Myself and three others will enter life this summer, torn from the womb of 12 long years.

We no longer have the protection we need, but now must go to enter the race and conquer brave new worlds.

Family, friends, lovers, anyone that ever helped us, are gone. We are left alone to decide what's to become of our own sentence. We alone must choose a path, a course, something to take us to the other side...

something that will support us and harness us. And, when all is said and done, something that will take us to the extreme.

The future presents us with thousands of opportunities that are ours for the taking.

Some will enter or continue in the work force, while others may decide to further their educations.

Either way, by being responsible and hard-working, we will excel, because in the end, it comes down to this: there is nothing we can't do and, as some may already know, the future is limitless.

The future... it haunts my sleep, invades my dreams.

When I look around I see the past and the future. I see fear, joy, responsibility, limitless expectations, strife, work, dreams, hope and work rolled into one great being, embodied in the newest group of young adults entering society. As I said before, there is nothing that can't be done.

I look around only to look at the people I'll never see again, to look at the future of society, to

Michael Bowne helps out the Verdonck family, Anne, from Belgium, as he works as a stock clerk at the Winn Dixie in Sanford. Herald Photo by Jim Haggard Mountains are waiting to be moved, goals waiting to be achieved, worlds waiting to be conquered and the warriors, now in line to do these things and are waiting to experience a new life of something greater and bigger and than they've ever imagined or dreamed. We can't be kept from the waiting world and they can't be chained to the past.

I look around only to look at the people I'll never see again, to look at the future of society, to look at the people who were my friends, enemies, confidants and acquaintances, but now will go their separate ways.

They will go on to lead a life away from the rest, but as we dissipate, we know that we'll always remember each other in clear thoughts or in hazed dreams.

We now go on to face the unknown with our dreams in our eyes and our lives in our hands.

The people we've loved are no more and we will miss them dearly.

So, when the commencements are over, the caps have been thrown and we all start to file out, I stop to look around for a moment, because I know that I am seeing the future and I'm looking at tomorrow's leaders... today.

Gone are the days of five identical days of six 60-minute classes.

Instead, on Mondays and Tuesdays, students will attend classes in three two-hour blocs. Wednesday will remain a short day with six 45-minute classes and a 20 minute CONTACT (teachers as advisors) period. Thursday and Friday will follow the traditional six 60-minute periods that now make up the schedule at most high schools in the district.

Lyman High School in Longwood made the transition to the two-hour bloc classes last year.

"We believe this is an educationally sound method," said Verna Jackson, administrator at Seminole High.

"It's beneficial to both the students and the teachers," Jackson said the teachers worked closely with the administration in the formation of the new schedule.

Consideration had been given to dividing every day into the two-hour blocs, but the teachers suggested that would be "too much of a change at one time," Jackson said.

Students will attend their first, third and fifth period classes on Monday and the second, fourth and sixth period classes on Tuesdays.

Jackson said the teachers and administrators at the school believe the longer classes are advantageous, especially in science laboratory and art classes. They are also helpful in classes that require more than an hour. For example, English teachers will be able to show a film and still have time for follow-up discussions during the longer blocs of time.

Lunch will remain a 45-minute bloc that will be carved from non-laboratory classes, Jackson explained.

Jackson said that the shorter Wednesday classes will be an ideal "connect" day where teachers will have an opportunity to review items learned during the two-hour classes and set the stage for the rest of the week.

Jackson said that the idea of the two-hour blocs has been used successfully at other schools, but the teachers at Seminole "took the idea and made it work" for them. The customized schedule, she believes will be popular with all members of the Seminole community, though it will take a little getting used to.

"The teachers are already starting to think about what they have to do in a different way," she said. "It is a new way of approaching the educational process."

IN BRIEF

Meeting planned to help Willis

Members of the Central Florida community are being invited to attend a strategic planning meeting on Thursday, July 29 at 8 p.m. in Pine Castle United Methodist Church's parlor to discuss fundraising efforts for Kristie Willis.

Featured presenter at this meeting is David Cain, founder of Children's Organ Transplant Association (C.O.T.A.) based in Bloomington, Ind.

Kristie Willis, 20, has cystic fibrosis and is choking to death. Breathing capacity for Willis is now at 30 percent and decreasing daily. Willis is in need of a double-lung transplant and in order to qualify for the waiting list for lungs, must have a minimum of $150,000. Full cost for the surgery can run into $300,000. To date, $30,000 has been raised for this surgery.

Kristie is a member of Pine Castle UMC and frequently an in-patient at Arnold Palmer Hospital for Children & Women's Pulmonary Function Lab.

All Central Floridians are invited to attend this meeting on July 29 to assist with various skills and needs (writing thank you notes, making phone calls, picking up items).

More female athletic injuries

Women athletes, welcome to fitness sports achievement, college scholarships, possible careers — and the doctor's office.

"We are now seeing the same type of sports-related injuries which have been prevalent in the male population in the female population — especially in teen-age girls," says Dr. Michale A. Kelly, director of the Insaill Scott Kelly Institute for Orthopedics and Sports Medicine at Beth Israel Medical Center North in New York City.

"It has been assumed for many years that the majority of acute injuries of the knee have been confined to the male athlete; that is no longer the case," he says.

Exercise for arthritis

One of the best ways to manage arthritis is through exercise, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

"People with arthritis should exercise their joints daily to ensure proper joint mobility and muscle strength," says Dr. Arthur Grayzel, the foundation's senior vice president of medical affairs. "An exercise program that is properly designed and tailored to the individual can help keep joints movable, help maintain muscle strength and help build overall stamina."

Exercise also can improve mental outlook, breaking a negative cycle of pain, inactivity and depression that can be caused by the disease, he says.

The foundation offers a brochure, "Exercise and Your Arthritis," through its local chapters or its toll-free information line: 1 (800) 283-7800.

Portrait auction planned

Would Arnold Palmer or Jose Maria Olazabal hang up their golf clubs for a career as a sketch artist? Hardly, unless it happens to be for their favorite charity and a little encouragement from Golf Digest magazine. Golfers and celebrities were approached and were asked to sketch their self portrait, all in the name of fun and charity.

Palmer and Olazabal not only sketched self-portraits for auctioning, but they designated the Arnold Palmer Hospital for Children & Women as the charity for their artistic endeavors. Palmer's self-portrait is a sketch of "Arnold's umbrella putting." Olazabal's rendition is a caricature of his golf swing.

The rules for Golf Digest's Self-Portrait Auction are as follows:

1. Submit all bids by mail, enclosing name, address and daytime phone number, and indicate on the outside of the envelope the name(s) of the person(s) on whom you are bidding.
 2. Minimum bid is $100 (U.S.); higher bids should be made in $10 increments.
 3. Bids must be postmarked by August 2, 1993. In the case of ties, the winner will be determined by the earliest postmark.
 4. Do not send cash or checks. If you make the highest bid, Golf Digest will contact you on or before August 5, 1993, and at that time you will have 10 days to return a check or money order. All monies will be contributed to the charities designated by artist (golfer).
 5. The auction is open only to those age 18 and older.
- All bids are submitted to: Celebrity Self-Portraits, c/o Golf Digest, 5520 Park Avenue, Box 395, Trumbull, Conn. 06811-0395. Some of the self-portraits (including Arnold Palmer) appear in the June issue of Golf Digest.

Protect skin from overexposure

As the summer months are upon us, it is the perfect time to remind ourselves and family about the sun, and what it can do.

More than 500,000 newly diagnosed cases of skin cancer are found in the United States each year. That is an increase of 15 percent over the last decade. Sunlight (ultraviolet rays) has a major role in causing skin cancer. It is the cumulative (additive) effort of sun exposure that causes the development of skin cancer.

Other factors which play a prominent factor, in whether or not you are at higher risk for developing skin cancer, are: exposure history (how long and how often you've tanned or burned), complexion (fair, blue eyed, red-haired, poor tanning ability, easily burned).

There are three groups of cancer (cancer which develops in the skin). These are: basal cell carcinoma, squamous cell carcinoma (there are squamous cell carcinomas which develop in other organs not related to the skin) and the most dangerous of skin cancer — melanoma.

Basal cell carcinoma (BCC): Of the 500,000 newly diagnosed skin cancers, 85 percent of these are basal cell cancer, 85% of these are found on the head and neck. There are several different types of BCC. The most common appearance on the face is a waxy, pearly elevation with small blood vessels visible in it, and sometimes a small ulcer or depression in the center. The treatment of BCC is primarily surgical and destructive. In most cases, this curative (no recurrence). However, once you developed skin cancer your chances of having more over time is increased. That is why you will need to be followed carefully. BCC's rarely metastasize (spread to other parts of the body, lymph nodes, other organs) unless they are allowed to grow to very large sizes.

Squamous cell carcinoma (SCC): Is the second most common type of skin cancer. Approximately 100,000 new cases are diagnosed in the state each year. SCC rarely appears in normal skin, usually appearing on sun damaged skin (actinic keratoses). As with BCC, chronic exposure to sunlight (ultraviolet rays) are major causes. The appearance of SCC is usually a poorly defined firm nodule elevation, flesh colored to red with an ulcer (sore), crusting and bleeds easily when wiped. They sometimes develop a warty type of appearance or a "horn". SCC tends to grow much quicker than BCC, they can invade deeply. Large SCC on the ears, forehead, temples, hands, lips, have a fairly high risk of metastasis (spreading to other parts of the body).

Actinic keratosis (Sun damaged skin): May be a precursor to skin cancer. Some studies show that 20 to 25 percent of people with actinic keratosis will develop at least one SCC.

As with BCC, the primary mode of treatment of SCC is surgical and destructive. Actinic keratosis may be treated with cryotherapy (liquid nitrogen) or "Efudex" cream.

Much morbidity from BCC, SCC and actinic keratoses, may be preventable. Daily use of sunscreens and wide brim hats, minimizing sun exposure between 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., long sleeve shirts, long pants, are ways to cut down on ultraviolet ray exposure. Here in Florida, we recommend and SPF-15 (sun protection factor) sunscreen daily. There are currently numerous moisturizing creams as well as makeup, that are not greasy and fragrance free, which contains SPF-15. You must re-apply the sunscreen every two hours as long as the outdoor activities continue. There is significant ultraviolet ray exposure even with brief exposures on cloudy days.

In addition, exposure to artificial sources of ultraviolet radiation, such as tanning booths should be strictly avoided.

Preventive actions are the key to protecting ourselves from ultraviolet radiation. Because there is a trend toward ozone depletion there will be greater intensity of ultraviolet radiation shining down on us. It has been calculated that if sunscreen with SPF-15 were used daily for the first 18 years of life, there would be a reduced lifetime incidence of BCC and SCC by 78 percent.

Malignant melanoma: Is a common and sometimes lethal skin cancer. In 1989, there was an estimated 27,000 melanomas diagnosed in the states, which results in 6,000 deaths. Malignant melanoma was the second greatest killer among 15 through 34 year old males, and accounted for 1 percent of all deaths from cancer. Currently, 1 in 250 Americans will be diagnosed with malignant melanoma in his/her lifetime. Despite such bad statistics, the five year survival has improved from 60 percent in the 1960's to 80 percent from 1979 to 1984. Much of this improvement is probably because of earlier detection and increased public awareness.

Non-invasive glucose sensor offers hope to diabetics

By KATHERINE SMELLEY
Associated Press Writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — John DeMoss is used to losing blood.

In fact, the University of New Mexico technician loses some blood at least three times a day.

DeMoss is a diabetic, so measuring his blood sugar level — a process that requires a sample of blood — is a regular part of his daily routine.

And he says he's as interested as any diabetic would be in a device that could test his blood sugar level without drawing blood to do it.

As a technician in the physics and astronomy department at the university, DeMoss is assisting researchers at Sandia National Laboratories and the University of New Mexico School of Medicine in developing a noninvasive glucose sensor.

"I've been doing diabetic research studies for 20 years now. ... In fact, I was the first person to try the New Mexico version of the insulin pump," DeMoss says.

That insulin pump was developed in the 1970s by a Sandia-UNM research team. The small device supplies the insulin that diabetics lack and is planted in a person's body. It currently is being tested in about 700 patients around the world.

Now researchers have come up with a blood sugar monitor that uses infrared spectroscopy, a technique used to study the properties and chemical composition of a substance — in this case, body tissue.

The device uses near-infrared light to provide a look inside the human body. Near-infrared light has slightly longer wavelengths than visible light, enabling it to penetrate tissue.

A finger is inserted into a hole in the device's monitor, and portions of the light at each of the various wavelengths is absorbed by the tissue and the blood. The light is then dispersed into a spectrum and glucose concentrations can be determined.

DeMoss and his boss, technician Jim Hontas, have been working with researchers for several years in developing the device that enables the light to pass through the finger. They have just completed different finger holders for it, Hontas says.

An estimated 14 million Americans have diabetes, a disease in which the body does not produce or properly respond to the hormone insulin. It can result in high blood sugar that can damage the heart, blood vessels, kidneys, eyes and nerves.

Many diabetics test their blood sugar levels before each meal and before bedtime. Using current technology, a hand-held instrument called a glucometer, diabetics prick one of their fingers with a needle and draw the blood. The blood sugar level is measured by the glucometer.

A normal blood sugar reading is between 50 to 150.

If a diabetic has a level below 50, DeMoss says, he or she must eat or drink something with sugar in it or be in danger of experiencing insulin shock. If the level is above 150, a diabetic needs an insulin injection to bring the level down.

The glucose sensor now is the size of a large microwave oven and not nearly as perfect as the researchers would like it to be, says Dave Haaland, an infrared spectroscopist at Sandia who has worked on the project for nearly five years.

"It's been a slow process but quite challenging," Haaland says. "I first thought there was just a small chance for success, but we've made breakthroughs that have improved it."

A New Breakthrough In Hernia Repair

Hernia repair is no longer major surgery. Recent advances like the mesh technique have made it as simple as a one-day "walk-in, walk-out" procedure.

A new laparoscopic technique now available at The Hernia Center of Central Florida has simplified things even further. Because this procedure requires only small incisions, it lessens pain and further shortens recovery time.

The Hernia Center is operated by Surgical Associates, an established team of skilled surgeons who have practiced in Central Florida since 1973 and have performed literally thousands of hernia operations.

If you're suffering from a new or recurrent hernia, we can help. For an appointment, call.

NABF tourney down to Bucks, Dodgers, Marlins

By TONY DeSORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

LAKE MARY — In a baseball version of the Iliad, the Bates Team Sports survived an afternoon doubleheader Saturday to advance to this afternoon's semifinal of the National Amateur Baseball Federation high school tournament at Lake Mary High School.

The Bates Bucks, Lake Howell High School's summer team, eliminated the host Lake Mary Mudcats 11-6, then turned around to beat the College Park Angels (Bishop Moore), 9-5.

After three consecutive days of rainouts, play resumed Saturday with the Angels beating the Seminole Animal Supply Bullets (Lyman) 7-3.

In the nightcap, the defending champion Altamonte Springs Dodgers (Lake Brantley) defeated the top-seeded Oviedo Marlins, 7-2.

Mark Desabrais led the Bucks to this afternoon's losers' bracket final, collecting two doubles and a home run in the win over the Mudcats and pitching a complete game in the victory over the Angels.

Chris Tolliver also doubled for the Bucks against Lake Mary. Mike Hernandez and Brad Butterfield each hit two singles. For Lake Mary, Scot Bryan homered and Brent Wehmeyer doubled. Rich Alexander pitched a complete game for the Mudcats.

Against the Angels, Rich DeTore tripled and singled to lead the Bucks' 12 hit attack. Brian Lowe added three singles for the Bucks. Larry Richardt homered for the Angels.

In Saturday's first game, Jeremy Moore survived a three-run third inning by Longwood to throw a complete game for the Angels in their win over the Bullets. He gave up three runs (one earned) on five hits, striking out three.

For the Bucks, Jason Shipley and Kiley Calapa each hit a double.

Saturday night's winners' bracket final showcased some unusual plays, highlighted by Marlin catcher Andy Hynes lining into a triple play in the bottom of the second inning.

Mark Metcalf opened the second with a double for Oviedo. Todd Bellhorn then was intentionally walked to bring up Hynes, who hit a sinking line drive that Dodger right fielder Brian Krot managed to catch on the fly and quickly returned to the infield to double off Metcalf, then triple up Bellhorn.

Conversely, Altamonte Springs parlayed nine hits and four Oviedo errors into a three-run third inning and a four-run sixth inning. Leading the Dodgers were Mickey Bono (double and a single), Brad Vanderweide (two singles and an RBI) and Joey Harmer (two singles and an RBI).

Also contributing to the Dodger offense were Heath Rittenour (two runs scored as the courtesy runner for Vanderweide), Jeff Shaw (single run RBI), Keith Walsh and J.B. Cartmill (both with a single and an RBI), Jeff Butler (RBI), and James Clark and Krot (each with a run scored).

Dodger starting pitcher Scott Connor and reliever Chris Tibbets limited the Marlins to two runs (one earned) on four hits, an RBI triple by Tim Slavik in the sixth inning, Metcalf's double, and singles by Mike Bergman and Mike Rugenius. Metcalf and Bergman each scored a run. John Sabas had an RBI walk.

This afternoon, the Bucks play the Marlin at 1 p.m. The survivor of that game plays Altamonte Springs at 3 p.m. The "if necessary" game is scheduled for 5 p.m.

The tournament champion advances to the regional tournament which will be played at Apopka High School later this week.

Hook removal easy if done right

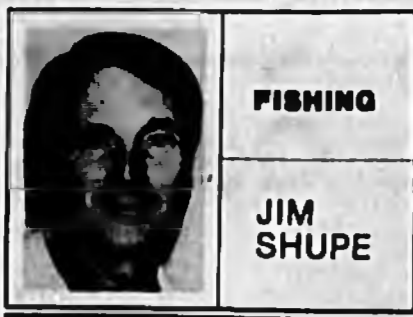

Last Sunday's trout fishing trip was cut short at 2 p.m., when an unhappy trout flipped out of my grasp and rammed one of the treble hooks on the Johnny Rattler lure through my thumb.

The first order of business was to remove the thrashing fish from the lure, then we had to carefully take off the offending hook.

I was fortunate in that the barb had exited the other side, unfortunate in that we had no cutting pliers in the canoe to cut off the barb and push the hook back through. After an hour's paddle back to the truck, I drove to Captain Jack's at Port Canaveral, where he cut off the hook with a pair of snips. I received immediate relief from the pain as soon as I backed the barbless portion out of my thumb.

Most anglers, sooner or later, will have to deal with a fish hook imbedded in either their flesh or someone else's. Many times, hooks can be effectively removed without a trip to the emergency room. The easiest type of hook removal is accomplished when the barb exits the wound. The barb can either be cut off with a pair of cutters, or it can be mashed down with a pair of pliers. It is then a simple matter to back the hook out.

The most difficult type of hook removal is encountered when the barb is buried in the flesh. Option one is not for the faint of heart. This involves pushing the hook through until the barb finally exits. Having done this a number of times, I can testify to the toughness of skin and to the effort required to actually push the hook through. It is sort of like pushing a sewing needle through leather, except the point of the hook widens downward toward the barb, making the removal even more difficult and painful.

Option number two is far more humane and scientific, and is by far the more preferable method for hook removal. This approach involves lining up the hook exactly the way that it entered, and then pressing down on the eye of the hook against the flesh. This, in effect, causes the barb to be depressed down below the point of entry. The next step is to place a length of heavy line (30 pound or stronger) around the bend of the hook. Once this is accomplished, jerk the hook sharply backwards, and it will exit cleanly and with very little pain. I have used this method on others, and have had it performed on myself. I can personally testify that it is almost painless, and the relief is immediate. It is important to flush hook wounds with hydrogen peroxide, and then treat the area with an antibiotic ointment to prevent infection. A tetanus shot is in order if one is due.

FISHING FORECAST
Bass fishing is extremely slow due to intense heat. Die-hard bass anglers would be well advised to fish at night, or in cooler waters such as the Wekiva River.

Sebastian Inlet is red hot! Swarms of snook (season closed), tarpon, ladyfish, redfish, flounder, and jack crevalle are feeding heavily on the outgoing tide. Live bait such as shrimp or finger mullet work best in the daytime, lures will produce at night.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports slow offshore action. Hoards of barracuda have taken over all reefs and wrecks, and it is hard getting a bait or lure past them to the "good" fish. Some big grouper and snapper are coming from 240 feet of water. Captain Mike Kaln of the "Whitewater" has been making some tremendous catches on both bait and heavy jigs. Inside the Port, it's mainly sheephead, flounder, and jack crevalle. Guide Troy Perez reports plenty of redfish on the flats of the Banana and Indian rivers.

Ponce Inlet is providing good action with panfish such as sheephead, small drum, whiting, and medium-sized flounder. Live or dead shrimp is the bait of choice.

Rich Moreland leads the Bambooslers and the rest of the circuit with an average of 45, which includes 14 wins, 13 assists, and four bulls, all league bests.

Tied for second with averages of 38 are Vic DiBartolo of Da Bassholes and Steve Ross from The Alternates. Jay Norris has a 35 average for Da Bassholes while Paul Long leads the Pub Pounders with his 34 mark.

MIXED A LEAGUE

It's no surprise that the Bamboo Bullets of the Bamboo Cafe enjoy the largest advantage of any league leader, sitting on a six-game edge over runner-up Ron's Kids from Uncle Nick's (51-45).

The Bamboo Bullets are led by Jolynn Moreland, the circuit's top-rated player, male or female, with an average of 50. Teammate Rick Marcello is tied for the top men's average in the loop with a 43 while Mike Marcello compiled an average of 40 (third best in the league) in one week of action.

Well back of the top two teams are The Bud Team from M.T. Muggs (33 wins); Lee's Sluggers from Lee's Halftime Pub and Lake Mary Pub's In't That Nice? (both with 29 wins); Bamboo Cafe's Team No. 2 (26 wins); Lake Mary Pub's Playmates (24 wins); and The Under Team from the Bamboo Cafe (21 wins).

Trailing Moreland among the league's women is Kristin Meeks of Ron's Kids with an average of 36. The Bud Team's Leesa Rhodes and Debbie Howard of Lee's Sluggers each have a 32 average.

Joining Rick Marcello with an average of 43 is Ron Picotte of Ron's Kids. Rick Barineau, also of Ron's Kids, has the circuit's fourth-best men's average, a 39.

MIXED B LEAGUE

With three of their four players posting some of the league's top averages, Lake Mary Pub's Knuckleheads continue to lead the circuit with 43 wins, five games ahead of Sir Walter's Bushwackers (38 wins).

Completing the standings are Lake Mary Pub's Family Feud (34 wins); Mom's Muggers from the M.T. Muggs (33 wins); Bamboo Cafe's Ace of Aces (29 wins); and the Legends In Our Own Minds from the Lake Mary Pub and Crazy Wings' Wingers (28 wins each).

For the Knuckleheads, Ron Schultz has the second-best men's average (43) while teammates Fam Clark and Barb Borginis are tied for second among the league's women with averages of 29.

Bushwackers teammates Bobby Pilgrim and Michelle Kenney have the loop's best marks. Pilgrim pacing the men with his 57 average while Kenney has compiled a 31 to lead the women.

Gene Posadni of Mom's Muggers and John Dunn from the Legends In Our Own Minds are tied for third among the men with averages of 35.

Among the women, Janice Watts of Mom's Muggers is fourth with her one-week average of 28.

Summers also picked up a 10 split to highlight his play.

Moss did even better in the Women's Division, posting a series score 112 pins higher than her nearest competitor. Moss' series score was a 539, while Sherri Fortenberry put up a 427 series score.

Moss also bested Fortenberry for the best individual high game of the week, but it was by the narrowest of margins, 194-193.

In the ABB Power Distribution League on Wednesday, July 14th, George Fulcher rolled a 615 to easily post the High Series for the week in the Men's Division.

Pete Clark was second with a 570 series, but that was 45 pins behind Fulcher.

Fulcher also had the highest individual game of the week, rolling a very impressive 225 game during his series, which was 24 pins better than Clark's second high game of 201.

The Women's Division was dominated by Mary Avis, who came up with a 194 high individual game during a high series of 540.

The Saturday Seniors Fun League that was played on July 17th also featured some outstanding individual performances.

In the Men's Division, Buck Benton continued to shine as he rolled a 580 series to better Charley Lukins' 523 by 57 pins.

Benton and Lukins had more of a dogfight for high individual game with Benton's 213 nipping Lukins' 211 by just two pins.

The Women's Division played a pair of series with Molly Noll and Barbara Richards coming out on top.

Noll won the first series by 14 pins, 518-504, over Richards, but Richards posted the high game of the series, rolling a 205 to Noll's high individual game of 179.

The second series found Richards crushing all comers, rolling a 539 high series to win by a phenomenal 176 pins, 539-363, over Eve Rogero.

The individual game honors also went to Richards by an 81 pin margin. Richards' 221 topped Ester Lansing's 140.

event and first in more than a year. "But the better we do, we do for Davey," Gordon said. "We're definitely not replacing him. He's an awesome Winston Cup driver. He'll be in these guys' hearts forever."

"He's more than just a driver at Yates Racing. He's been there many years, and it's like a family over there. That's why it's such a great race team. They stick together and help each other out through the tough times."

Yates' team skipped last week's race at Pocono to give everyone a chance to mourn the devastating loss of their friend and associate.

"But now it's time to get on with it," Yates said. "Davey was a racer and he'd want us to race. Now we have to start thinking about what's ahead, what we can do with the rest of this year and what we're going to do for the future."

Sunday's lineup also includes Neil Bonnett, like Allison a member of the renowned Alabama Gang, who will drive in his first race since being badly injured in April 1990 at Darlington, S.C.

Bonnett, who will start 20th, had tears in his eyes after qualifying, his emotions torn between the happiness of making the field and the still strong memories of Allison, his longtime friend.

Now, however, it is time to race, and Bonnett, who has 12 Winston Cup victories, remembers what that takes.

"I've run this car at least 500 miles in testing, so I know that if I can get it in the right place maybe we can do some business," he said.

As usual, Talladega will present some highspeed problems for the drivers, who are somewhat handicapped by the carburetor restrictor plates that NASCAR requires at Talladega and Daytona, its two fastest tracks.

The plates restrict horsepower and slows throttle response, making it tough to get out of line and pass and keeping the cars bunched in long drafts that can suddenly turn into very big accidents.

"The thing about it Sunday is we've got these restrictor plates and we get three-wide and 10-12 deep," said Rick Mast, who will start sixth. "If you're stuck at the front, it's a little bit better than being stuck at the back."

Kmart 'Re-Grand Opening' today

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Leave it to the Kmart Corporation to set up a grand opening for a store which has not been closed. They call it a "Re-Grand Opening," and it is being held today at the Sanford Kmart store, 3101 S. Orlando Drive.

The Sanford Kmart has been undergoing extensive renovation during the past months, which increased the amount of retail space, moved several departments, and enlarged the overall building.

During this entire time, the store continued in daily operation, and was never required to be closed for the reconstruction.

The store's new look is part of the retail giant's $3 billion renewal and expansion program.

Sanford's updated Kmart boasts fresh surroundings, wider aisles, modern displays and quality merchandise for the home and entire family. The store, at 85,318 square feet, is approximately double its previous size. It features popular fashion apparel, automotive and electronic departments, a pharmacy, and a Reader's Market.

According to John Valenti, vice president of Kmart's southern region, "In every department, Kmart shoppers will discover popular quality merchandise presented in exciting, dynamic surroundings."

"From private label collections for the home and entire family to name brand products, shoppers will find outstanding value and quality at the Sanford Kmart," he continued.

Currently, there are 161 stores and approximately 16,000 employees in Florida, including the updated Sanford store.

Nationwide, Kmart has over 4,000 retail outlets in all 50 states as well as foreign countries.

By 1995, every Kmart store nationwide will be modernized or expanded resembling many features of the updated Sanford store.

The Re-Grand Opening event is being held today at 3101 S. Orlando Drive.

Seminole Sporting Goods closing

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

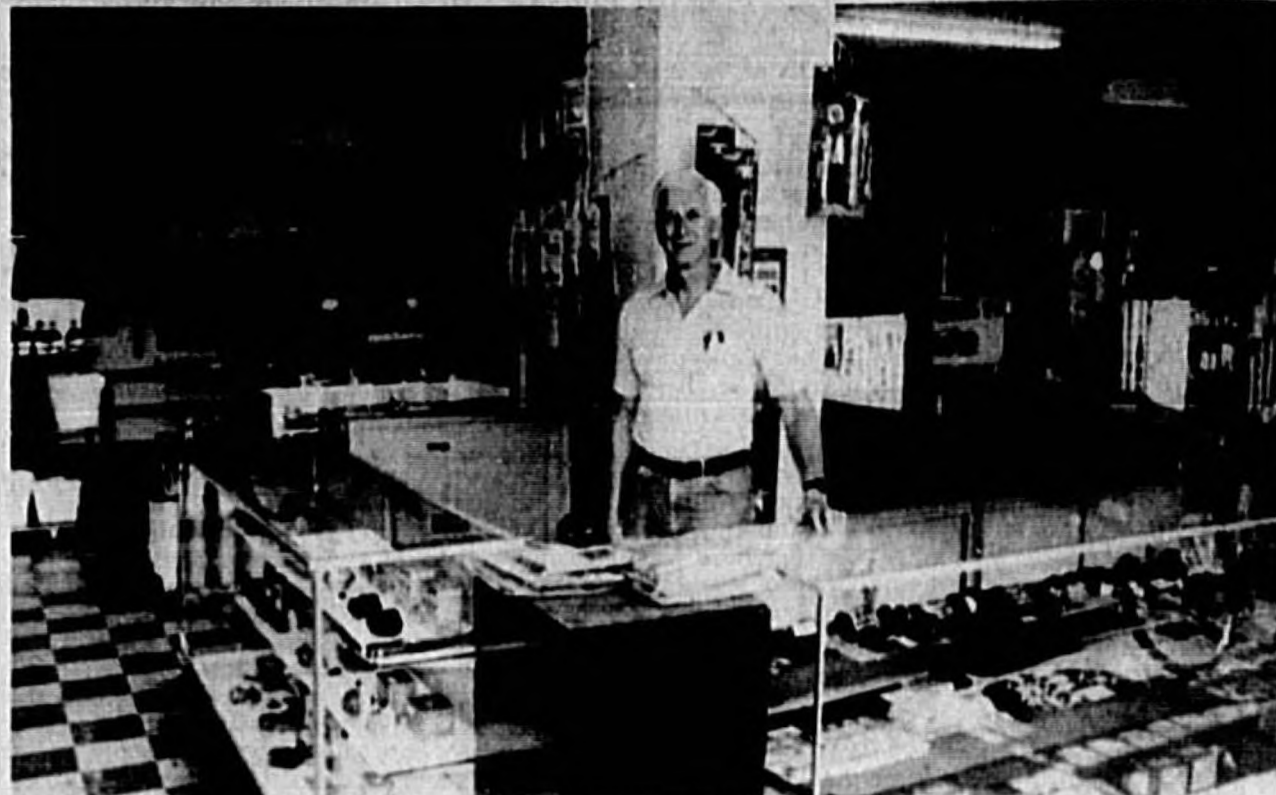

SANFORD — Seminole Sporting Goods, 2484 S. Sanford Avenue, is going out of business. The official closing is expected within a few weeks.

The building is owned by Don Smith, who started the sporting equipment business with Don "Boote" Howard, in August, 1956. Smith leased the business to Tony Guerre and his daughter Elizabeth Suchsland of Kissimmee, in August, 1989.

"Guerre came to me several weeks ago," Smith explained, "and told me he could no longer continue to operate the business. He gave me the keys and control of all merchandise which I took over on July 12th."

Two months ago, Smith left his most recent position at Ace Hardware, with an intention of retiring. "I had no idea at that time that I'd be back in this business in such a short time," he commented.

Smith said he has reduced the prices on all of the store's merchandise by 30 percent for the present time. "Probably, as most of the preferred merchandise is sold," he said, "we'll be cutting the prices on the re-maintaining items even more, but I hope we can have the inventory out by the end of the month, and look into offering the building for lease to someone else."

Much of the merchandise at the store is fishing equipment, boat and boat trailer parts, several bows, some ammunition, and some sports type clothing.

The building was reportedly built in the 1930's, and started as an A&P grocery store. It eventually became Prices Grocery, then V&J Auto Repair shop before Smith and Howard bought it in 1956.

"The building is in exceptionally good condition," Smith said. "There is about 2,000 square feet, air conditioned, in the retail area. We also have three large storage rooms at the back of the building."

Cox joins Sanford Heilig-Meyers as manager

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Heilig-Meyers Furniture Company, 1100 S. French Avenue, has a new manager. Johnnie Cox took over the local store on June 14.

Previously, he has served as store managers in Goldsboro, NC and Nashville, Tenn. Cox has been associated with Heilig-Meyers for the past 14 years.

"The growth in the company is really amazing," he commented. "When I first joined them, there were 67 stores in the chain. Today, we have 450 across the nation."

The latest addition has been the acquisition of L.Fish Furniture Stores in Chicago, which have now become Heilig-Meyers stores.

"I am really pleased to be in Sanford," he said. "It's a great location, and our store will be here for a long time to come."

He suggested that future plans for store expansion may be announced at a later date.

Heilig-Meyers has been at the Sanford location since 1986. "In the meantime," Cox said, "as the manager, I plan to be at the store, and available to meet the people. I'm going to be an in-house person because I believe that's one of the best ways to serve our customers."

Property headed for auction is valued at over $50 million

Thirteen prime Florida commercial properties estimated at over $50 million, will be offered for sale by the Resolution Trust Corporation, at a public auction on Sept. 21 in Orlando. The auction, believed to be one of the largest multi-property commercial real estate sales in Florida's history, will be open to the general public, and will be conducted in Orlando by Sheldon Good & Company on behalf of the RTC. Many of the properties will be sold "absolute," regardless of the price, to the highest bidder.

According to Stephen Good, president of the auction company, "The immediate future of Florida's commercial real estate market will be determined by the prices that winning bidders set at this auction."

He continued, "We are honored to be the auction firm chosen by RTC to conduct this very special sale event for real estate investors and retail and officer owner/users."

Good indicated that during the past two years, his company has offered 144 RTC properties worth in excess of $120 million, with 142 having closed successfully.

Properties in this area of Central Florida include the following: Spanish Trace Apartments, 445 Wymore Road, Altamonte Springs. An absolute sale, with suggested opening bid of $1.4 million; Volusia Shoppes, 1448 International Speedway Blvd. W. Daytona Beach. Absolute with suggested opening bid $450,000. Dow Business Park, 4155 Dow Road, Melbourne, suggested opening bid, $150,000.

Other parcels include Mayport

Trace Apartments in Jacksonville, La Mirada Shopping Center near Kissimmee, and shopping centers and/or apartment complexes in Fort Lauderdale, Tampa, Winter Haven, and Ocala.

The auction will be conducted at 1 p.m., Tuesday Sept. 21, at the Hyatt Regency Orlando International Airport.

A cashier's check equivalent to 10 percent of the suggested opening bid will be required to bid at the auction. RTC seller financing will be available to qualified purchasers.

For information on the offerings, phone Sheldon Good & Company Auction Information Center, 800-374-4881. Property will be available for inspection by appointment beginning July 27.

Sanford police officer Bill Wixon with award winning K-9 dog Jammer

Canine cop to retire

The Sanford City Commission will consider a request to retire Police K-9 Jammer. The dog has been suffering from a degenerative joint disease in the left elbow.

The K-9 has been operating for a number of years, as the partner of officer Bill Wixon, and has obtained many trophies and awards in K-9 competition, which have been on display in the lobby of the Sanford Police station.

The problems were first reported by former Chief Steve Harriett on Oct. 20, 1992. Since that time, Jammer's condition has become worse.

In a request for the retirement, submitted by Police Chief Ralph Russell, he described the current situation.

"In a recent burglary in the Wal-Mart Center, officer (Bill) Wixon went in pursuit of a suspect and apprehended the subject," he wrote. "While attempting to handcuff the individual, he broke loose from the officer and again the suspect was pursued."

Russell continues, "K-9 Jammer was utilized in an attempt to apprehend the subject, however the subject went over a fence into the Carriage Cove area. Because of K-9 Jammer's condition, he was not able to continue the pursuit."

The chief reported that Jammer's condition has failed to improve since that time, and has been taken to a veterinarian for evaluation.

The medical report indicated the dog is suffering from a form of arthritis. Debra Shelt, DVM, observed, "This condition cannot be cured."

"It is my feeling," Russell said, "that we need to retire K-9 Jammer as soon as possible."

He also recommended that "Jammer be declared surplus and sold to his current handler, officer Wixon for $1."

Wixon has agreed to continue to care for Jammer as a personal pet under this arrangement.

The Sanford City Commission has scheduled the request on the agenda for the regular commission meeting Monday night, beginning at 7 p.m. Approval of the request is expected.

Walk on the wild side

Wildlife refuge home to endangered species

Editor's note: This is one part in a series focusing on day trips from Seminole County you and your family can take this summer.

"Lions and tigers and bears, oh my! Lions and tigers and bears, oh my!" — Dorothy, Tin Man and Straw Man, "The Wizard of Oz"

None of the above named creatures will be found there, but if you'd like to see some honest-to-goodness wild animals beyond the confines of the local zoo, consider a drive over to the Merritt Island National Wildlife Refuge. The refuge, lying just north of the Kennedy Space Center, contains 92,000 acres of undeveloped land and water. The vast majority of this area teems with wildlife.

Visitors to the refuge can expect to see such wading birds as herons, egrets, ibis, the spectacular roseate spoonbill, even the endangered wood stork. Other birds commonly seen during summer months include brown pelicans, ospreys, bald eagles and various types of marsh and shore birds. For many people, the variety of bird life alone is worth the trip.

Birds are not the only occupants of the refuge. Various species of mammals live here, too. I've seen white-tailed deer, feral hogs, raccoons, armadillos, marsh rabbits, bobcats, and on two very special mornings, river otters while out on the refuge.

If you've always wanted to see an alligator, this is a good place to find one. Endangered West Indian manatees can usually be seen in the boat ramp turning basin at the Haulover Canal. In all, 19 endangered or threatened species of animals make their homes in the refuge.

For those who prefer to view the animals from the comfort and safety of a car, see Wildlife, Page 6B

How to get there

Take S.R. 46 east to U.S. 1. Take a right and head south for between 23 miles. A traffic light will help you find S.R. 406. Take a left on 406. Take a left on 406 (heading east) and cross over the Max Brewer Causeway. After crossing the bridge, you are on the refuge.

When you come to a fork in the road, going to the right will take you to the Oak Hammock and Palm Hammock Trails, as well as the Visitors Center. Turning to the left will bring you to the Black Point Wildlife Drive.

Have a memorable trip!

There's no business like show business!

SANFORD — Jack Philpot of Sanford has spent almost a lifetime performing in front of many different audiences. From his early start in music and then to theater, films, television and commercials. It all began when as a youngster growing up in Augusta, Ga., he pleaded with his folks to buy him a saxophone.

His cousin had a group that was playing locally but needed a saxophone player. When he got his sax he began to teach himself how to play the horn. It wasn't long before he was able to join the group and become a regular player. Leon Austin and the Buicks became the first professional band Philpot played in. It wasn't the last as he continued to work his way up the show business ladder.

His group did stints with James Brown before he broke away and started playing for a group called the "Exciters." The most exciting time of his life was when he played with Otis Redding, recorded a number of albums with the Isley Brothers and toured with Wilson Pickett. At the height of his musical career he was a master artist playing the saxophone, flute, bass, piano and drums. Not only did he play the instruments, he was one of the vocalists in many of the groups.

Philpot claims to have been doing theater from the time he was a child. Even though music became his payroll check, theater was in his roots. He continued to go back to his roots whenever he had a chance. He Imagine a birthday bash for 500 relatives and friends. Further, try to picture guests being so important that the guest of honor sends his private plane to Sanford to transport them to this gala celebration.

The guest of honor? It was entrepreneur Jenò Paulucci born 75 years ago as a poor little Italian boy whose rags to riches story and unlimited philanthropic endeavors have tugged at the heart strings of thousands across the globe.

Oh yes, it was Jenò's diamond jubilee, all right, but he did not share the honors alone. His lovely wife, Lois, a genuine jewel, stood by his side at the dual celebration on July 9 when she turned 71. Jenò's actual birthday was July 7 according to studied and worked in the theater in New York while he was staying there. When he moved to Los Angeles he became more involved and studied commercial acting under Al Fann.

While he worked in many films as an extra his first big break came in a television series called "Palmerstown, U.S.A." The series was a take-off from the giant hit "Roots." It brought "Roots" into the early twentieth century. Philpot said, "I was Jimbo in the series and one of the principal stars was Michael J. Fox. He was about eight years old at that time."

Some of the popular television series he had good parts in were "The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo," "Mondo Beyondo," and HBO special with Bette Midler and the "Jeffersons." His flair for the dramatics was tested in the series "Chips," "Law and Order" and "The Cosby Show."

"Elvis," the made-for-TV film starring Kurt Russell was a great thrill for Philpot. His role in the movie was that of a piano player and friend of Elvis. His scrapbook carries many stills of the location shooting and of Kurt Russell.

Philpot explained it was a little bit harder getting into films. He explained, "I was one of the fortunate ones when I was in Los Angeles. Once you have an actor's card and you work for a year you become eligible for membership in the Screen Actors Guild. The Screen Actors Guild is not easy to get into. It happens that I had worked in the "Jeffersons" for a year and I had

Families gather for annual reunions

The family spirit is still present in the city of Sanford with families gathering for their annual reunions of feasting, fun and plain-old togetherness.

The Hawkins family gathered the week of July 9-11 with over 300 family members. Hosting the reunion were Nellie Mae Hawkins Smith and her sister, Emily Hawkins Williams.

The family weekend began with four generations gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Williams for that old-fashioned Friday night fish fry.

On Saturday at 1 p.m. the family gathered at the Sanford Civic Center for a full afternoon of food, fun and entertainment. The fashion show in the afternoon was put on by seamstress and designer Alford Rawls and was coordinated by Vincent Smith. After enjoying the show the family was treated to a delicious meal with the blessing being offered by Minister Marlow Smith of Jacksonville.

Sunday morning the family came together for worship services at the Mt. Zion Missionary Baptist Church, in Midway, where the Hawkins and Jenkins families have worshiped together for many years. They are related by marriage.

The Hawkins and Jenkins families worshipping together brought back old memories of their growing up in Mt. Zion. The Abraham Jenkins family and Garrison Hawkins family were longtime members of Mt. Zion.

The message of the morning was delivered by the Rev. W. Frank Williams, pastor of Mt. Zion with the theme "Together We Stand, Together We Can."

The after dinner meal was served at the home of Nellie Hawkins Smith, then the family members departed for their various hometowns of Winter Haven, Tampa, Gainesville, Lamont, Tallahassee, Jacksonville, Albany, Ga.; Athens and Columbus, Ga.; and Rochester, N.Y.

The Saturday day of activities included picnicking at Fort Mellon Park where the Jenkins gathered to spend another day of chatting and just visiting and enjoying the old-fashioned home-cooked foods.

Sunday morning saw the Jenkins and Hawkins gather at Mt. Zion for their spiritual awakening and to bask in the memories of growing up in Mt. Zion Church.

A family that has fellowship can share many memories of life after they reach maturity.

After the worship service the Jenkins family gathered at Stancy's Restaurant for a meal of friendship and fellowship.

Bush celebrates 80 years

A celebration and tribute to Sarah Detreville Bush for her 80th birthday was held on July 3.

As the honoree sat smiling, her children, family and friends gathered from near and far to join in the celebration. The praise and worship service was led by her children Nathaniel, Rollis and Harriett Bush. The toastmistress of the afternoon was her daughter Ernestine Bush Griffin and Pastor Barbara Gainey. Musical selections were given by LaQuanda Smith, Sally Ann Saunders, Joli Byrd, the Bush sisters, and Darryl Bruten.

As tribute to Mrs. Bush, an ardent church worker of Snow Hill Missionary Baptist Church, her former pastor, the Rev. G.W. Chappell, spoke of her dedication and work during his years as her pastor.

Helen Bush Chappell then gave a brief autobiographical synopsis of her mother, Sarah D. Bush. A dedication and inspirational reading to the honoree was given by Joli and Noel Byrd, and Guinevere Bush. A tribute was also given by Valerie Eason.

Presentation and memories were by Johnny Griffin, Rollis Bush, Thomas Bush. The message of the occasion was delivered by the Rev. Billy Jackson with gifts of love presented by Billy Bush, Dwayne Eason, and Ginette Jackson.

This dedicated Christian who has touched many lives in her Christian journey was saluted for the many years she worked as a member of the missionary department, Congress No. 1, First South Florida Missionary Baptist Association.

Attending this day of joy with their mother, Sarah, were her children Rollis of Geneva, Thomas, Deland, Billy, Jersey City, N.J., Harriett, San Jose, Calif., Helen, Winter Haven, and Ernestine, Eatonville. Mrs. Bush is the proud grandmother of 35 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren.

Jeno enthusiastically "barking his wares" when he was a young lad.

Several of Lois' handmade quilts were on display to the visual delight of the guests. Another touch of humility came through the copy of a letter written years ago by Jeno to borrow $2,000 to start Chun King.

Everybody in the circulation range of the Duluth News Tribune was well aware that Jeno and Lois were celebrating birthdays. The paper carried their photograph in a full-page and eye-catching "Happy Birthday" ad paid for by friends and associates.

The guests were treated to a lavish hospitality hour, an authentic Italian dinner, a sumptuous dessert buffet, a huge birthday cake and dancing. What a night! "It was absolutely fabulous," Liz said.

There was also a video taped by friends throughout the United States. Among those appearing on the video were Dr. Robert Rosemond of Sanford and Liz.

Dr. Norman A. Helfrich, Liz's husband, led the group in singing "Happy Birthday," accompanied by the band.

Also, a number of stirring tributes were given to the honored guests. The Pauluccis' only son, Mick, said the event was a celebration of the good life and a family who cares for each other.

In Kay Shoemaker's commentary he mentioned that Jeno is a great friend who would fight for a nickel over a business deal and turn around and give a million to charity.

"The tributes given to both were lovely," Liz said. She also mentioned that she and her brother had not seen some of the guests since the 1930s and that the celebration was quite emotional.

Flying from the Sanford airport to Duluth in Jeno's private plane were the Helfrichs, Sophie and Kay Shoemaker and Mr. and Mrs. Mario Castellani of Rome, a business associate of Jeno's who lives at Heathrow part time. It is reported that other private planes also flew to the event from the Sanford airport.

All of the Paulucci children attended including Mick, Cindy, and Gina. Grandchildren attending were: Jeno Michael Paulucci, Angela Noelle Paulucci, Tiffany Soderstrom and Brittany Soderstrom. Also attending was Lois' brother, Leo Trepanier of Lake Mary.

Others attending from the area were: Barbara and Jack Hutchings, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Hutchings, Betty and Don Rathel, Larry Vershei, Donna Brooks, Jeff Cotter, Evert Forsberg (first Chun King supervisor of trucking), Michael Goldfine and Mr. and Mrs. William Nassal Jr.

Others attending from the area were: Peter Cahall, Don Van-neste, Beth Ryan and Mary Kay Persha.

Bride-elect honored

Bride-elect Jacqueline (Jackie) Nye is being entertained at a series of pre-nuptial parties. She will become the bride of Mike Morgan, son of Jane Williams Morgan, on Aug. 14, at Westview Baptist Church. The bride-elect is the daughter of Ann Giblin of Sanford.

On July 1, Mary Beth Donaldson and Linda Terwilliger, maternal aunts of the bridegroom-to-be, entertained at a bridal luncheon at the Donaldson home in Idyllwilde.

their automobiles, the Black Point Wildlife Drive showcases many of the creatures living here. The seven mile long road provides views of many of the animals which live in the vast marshes and impoundments of the refuge.

Another must place to visit is the Refuge's Visitor Center. Excellent displays inside the building explain the relationships between man, habitat, and wildlife. A small pond behind the building offers an opportunity to see various species of fishes, turtles, and birds from the safety of a boardwalk.

For those who like walking, three footpaths offer the possibility. The Oak Hammock Trail winds through a sub-tropical forest. Its half mile length requires 30 minutes of walking. The Palm Hammock Trail's two miles lead the hiker on an hour's walk through hardwood forest, cabbage palm hammocks, and open marshland. These two trails share a common parking lot along S.R. 402.

The Crotekshank Trail, five miles long, circles a shallow marsh. This trail is located along the Black Point Wildlife Drive.

Bald eagles join wading birds and others at home in the refuge.

An observation tower and a photographer's blind are found along the trail a short distance from the parking lot. For any of these walks, bring some water and insect repellent too. Salt marsh mosquitos largely prevented development of this property in the first place!

For some serious viewing of wildlife in its natural habitat this summer, visit the Merritt Island

National Wildlife Refuge. Bring a camera and maybe some binoculars, a sense of adventure, and be prepared to see what central Florida was like before Disney. Keep your eyes peeled!

Adopted adult will never search for 'real' mother

DEAR ABBY: I was adopted when I was 3 weeks old. My parents told me that I was adopted - I've always known it.

You hear so much these days about adopted adults who want to find their "real" mothers. I may be unusual because I've never had any desire to find mine. My mother gave me up at birth for my own good - and hers. I am grateful to her because the parents who raised me have given me a wonderful home.

I believe that most adopted adults who start searching for their birth mothers must be unhappy with their parents, or their lives. I feel sorry for parents who have adopted children and given them a good home only to have them start searching for their "real" mothers. I would never do that.

So to all you adopted people, appreciate your good fortune, and don't go poking around trying to find your "real" mother. The one you have couldn't be any more real. Please believe me.

LUCKY IN KANSAS CITY
DEAR LUCKY: Many adopted adults desperately need to know about their roots regardless of how wonderful their adoptive parents are. However, I have heard from many adopted adults

(and have known some personally) who share your feelings. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: May I comment on the letter from the woman who raised three children whom she adopted at birth and is now a grandmother? None of her children wanted to locate their birth mothers and she asked if her children were unusual. I can answer that. They are not necessarily unusual - but they are lucky. I am adopted and have always known it. I am now 40 years old, and have no desire to find my birth parents. When you told the mother that it was a wonderful compliment to her and her husband, you couldn't have given a better answer.

P.M.C. IN WICHITA, KAN.
DEAR P.M.C.: Not all my readers agreed with me. I can understand that. And some birth mothers prefer NOT to be found.

which is their right. However, in every adoption, the medical histories of both birth parents - and their ancestors - are enormously valuable.

DEAR ABBY: What is it with people who cannot close a car door, refrigerator door, cabinet door, or any other door without slamming it?

Two of my close friends are door slammers. I don't know if they are aware of their noisy, obnoxious habit, but when they are in my home, I jump a foot when they close doors.

I would like to ask them to close the doors more gently, but I don't want to offend them.

Any advice would be appreciated.

GEORGE IN SHELTON, WASH.
DEAR GEORGE: Asking a close friend to please close doors more gently should not offend a habitual door slammer - but you know your friends better than I, so, simply show them this column and say, "I cannot tell a lie. I am the George who wrote that letter."

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 25, 1993

Instead of making a career change in the year ahead, strive to derive all the benefits you can from the field in which you're presently involved. Exciting surprises could be in the offing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're capable of handling difficult developments today, provided there is an absence of outside interference. When others butt in, they could throw you off course. Leo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today if you have to make a presentation to promote an issue you're trying to advance, don't confuse facts with fantasy. Your listeners won't be interested in supposition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Objective and realistic tactics should work well in commercial dealings you have with strangers today. Warmth must be added, however, when negotiating with friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Good plans and ideas will count for nil today if you fail to execute them as outlined. Be sure your actions do not deviate from your blueprint.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you must be extremely selective regarding persons to whom you reveal confidential information. If you make a wrong choice, what you say might be twisted and used against you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful in endeavors with friends today where shared expenses is an issue. If this isn't handled correctly, someone might be charged too much.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Where your personal ambitions are concerned today, allies might support you only up to a given point. If you overstep this boundary, you'll be on your own.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Competitive games you play with friends today should merely be played for the fun of it and not used as a form of measurement as to who is the better person.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In order to be successful today and have gratifying experiences, you must be one thing without trying to be another. If it is business, stick to business; if it's pleasure, stick to pleasure.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're apt to be an enthusiastic starter today, but an uninspired finisher. In order to be productive, you must be consistent and tenacious.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Getting along with business associates or persons with whom you have commercial dealings shouldn't be problematical today. However, handling social involvements could be sticky.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Managing your own resources might not come easy for you today, so it's best not to attempt to direct the financial affairs of others. They could be the straws that break the camel's back.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 26, 1993

Keep the lines of communication open and functional in the year ahead with friends who now live in distant places. Something beneficial could result with a pal who was lucky for you previously.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Doing nice things for persons who require your assistance is likely to be a knee-jerk reaction today. What makes your deeds impressive is the fact they'll be done without any fanfare.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to spend time today with friends who talk about topics or issues you find mentally stimulating. A brisk exchange of ideas could prove extremely productive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Do not sit on any ideas or developments today you feel could be meaningful to you materially. You're in a good cycle for personal acquisition, so make the most of it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

One of your best assets today is your ability to grasp and retain knowledge regarding endeavors or situations in which you're presently involved. Use what you acquire.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In your commercial dealings today be especially cognizant of little details. It could be a combination of small things that'll enable you to turn a tidy profit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't feel you have to do big things in order to win the respect of others today. Actually, their admiration will be aroused when you effectively use the little you have at your disposal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be content with nominal progress today where achieving an important objective is concerned. These small steps that are moving in the right direction are of enormous importance.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could do a bit better than usual today in situations that have small elements of chance.

A calculated risk could be in order if you really know what you're doing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If there are no threads left dangling or loose ends to be tied down, you'll know you've handled your tasks and assignments satisfactory today. Completion signifies success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be willing to make small concessions today if you're personally negotiating an important matter with another. In order to get what you want, you must first prime the pump.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Saving money on what you buy today in actuality will be the same as making money. Do lots of comparison shopping and look for bargains wherever you go.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not suppress your creative inclinations today, even when performing mundane chores. Use these urges effectively in everything you do.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

There are times (the Senior Life Master explained to his Saturday morning class) when you have a crucial guess to make in a suit. Perhaps you are faced with a two-way finesse. It is best to delay the decision for as long as possible. Find out as much as you can about the other suits before committing yourself in the critical suit.

This deal is a relatively simple example of the genre.

The SLM put the North-South cards on the board and then continued.

South's bidding was aggressive. Opposite a single raise, he was thin for his jump to game. But the vulnerable game bonus is a powerful lure. And the opponents' silence suggested favorable suit breaks.

West led the spade king. East signaling with the queen to show the Q-J. West continued with two more rounds of the suit.

South ruffed, drew trumps and paused to assess the prospects. Clearly he had to find the diamond queen to make his game. But who held the key queen? Not having the powers of Mr. P. Hal Sims, an expert in the early days of contract bridge, who reputedly never misguessed a two-way finesse, South led the club king.

When West won with the ace, the final piece of the jigsaw puzzle had fallen into place. West had shown up with 11 points: the A-K of spades and the club ace. How could he have the diamond queen as well, when he couldn't open the bidding?

South won the club return in the dummy, cashed the diamond ace, finessed in diamonds through East and claimed his contract.

MOLE, RAY VALDES as Tax Collector of Seminole County, Florida, and the unknown spouses of the above, if any, their heirs, devisees, assignees, grantees, creditors, lessees, executors, administrators, mortgagees, judgment creditors, trustees, lienholders, persons in possession and any and all other persons having or claiming to have any right, title or interest by, through, under or against the above named Defendants, or otherwise claiming any right, title, or interest in the real property described in this action.

TO THOSE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS AND TO ALL PARTIES CLAIMING INTEREST BY, THROUGH, UNDER OR AGAINST THE NAMED DEFENDANTS; AND TO ALL PARTIES HAVING OR CLAIMING TO HAVE ANY RIGHT, TITLE OR INTEREST IN THE PROPERTY DESCRIBED BELOW. An Eminent Domain Petition, together with its Declaration of Taking has been filed in the above styled court to acquire certain property interests in Seminole County, Florida, described as follows:

THE PARCEL JOHNSON HILL AREA (LOTS 37 AND 38) STORMWATER DRAINAGE PROJECT Lot 37, LONE PINES, according to the Plat thereof as recorded in Plat Book 12, Page 21, of the Public Records of Seminole County, Florida. Garage Sale Guidelines. 1. Advertise what people want! Children's clothing, dishes, collectibles, tools, books and antiques are the most popular items. 2. Make it convenient to shop at your garage sale! Be sure there is adequate parking space. Post signs with directions to parking areas. Make arrangements with neighbors. 3. Make it easy to pay! Have plenty of change and a system for handling. Make sure one person is on duty at all times at a centralized location preferably with a calculator or adding machine. 4. Provide prices. Do not make every person ask, "How much is this?" Prices make for quick, effective sales or a good place for customers to start bargaining. 5. Get an early start. Set up displays the evening before, if possible. 6. Departmentalize. Separate the inexpensive items from the more costly areas. Group furniture, clothing, toys, lawn equipment and other items with similar merchandise. 7. Specialize. Establish one area for "Under $5", another for "Under $1". Consider having a batch of items that are "FREE with purchase of $3". Remember the youngsters, too. Encourage this with small, low priced items that are appropriate for this purpose. 8. Time your sale carefully! Have it at a time when most people are at home and unconcerned with special events. 9. Combine your effort! Incorporate your sale with a neighbor for more variety and greater impact. 10. Be specific! When advertising your sale in the newspaper, list individual items. Don't simply say, "several things available." Each time you list an item, you are broadening the list of potential customers. 11. Be generous! If you have items left over, give them to a charitable organization. If you see that some items are not moving well during the sale, mark them down during the last hours. Remember, the prime reason for holding the sale is to turn your unwanted items into cash!
