Judge Sentences Burglar, Then Changes His Mind

By Charles Cobb Herald Staff Writer

A Longwood youth who authorities claim was involved in a burglary ring which netted nearly $100,000 in stolen loot, was sentenced to a year in the Seminole County fail Wednesday - but then the judge withdrew the sentence, saying he needed more information about the case.

Kevin Stuhrke, 17, of Longwood, was also sentenced to 10 years probation and ordered to pay $548 in restitution to one of his victims.

But a few minutes later, Seminole Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. decided to withdraw the sentence following a state proposal that Stuhrke also be ordered to repay another member of the ring who has already been ordered to make $8,100 in restitution to several burglary victims.

Davis continued the sentencing until Sept. 14. requesting that the prosecution and the Department of counts of burglary.

Seminole County property owners who aren't happy with the values of their land for tax purposes as determined by County Property Appraiser Bill Suber's office have until Sept. 8 to file appeals.

But this year it will cost them $15 fee for each appeal filed.

Prepare Yourself Now For The Next One

Jane Casselberry Herald Staff Writer

It has been quite a while since Central Florida has experienced a major hurricane and many new residents from other parts of the country may not be aware of the basics of hurricane preparedness and the precautions to take in the event one should

Death and destruction in Texas caused by the first hurricane of the season. dubbed Alicia, and once-tropical storm Barry which was drifting toward Central Florida from the Atlantic early today, should serve as reminders of the need for being prepared to weather a serious storm.

The time to gather the necessary information and supplies is before a hurricane strikes. And there may be more coming. Hurricane season doesn't end until Nov. 30.

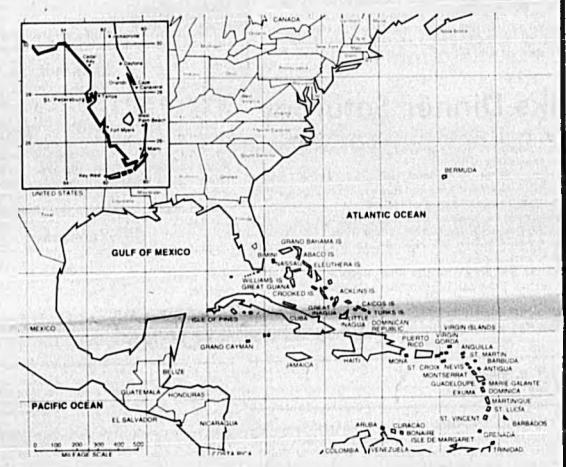

If you live in a zone that might be ordered to evacuate, such as a flood-prone area, or in a mobile home or travel trailer. you should be prepared to leave. You should decide whether you would go to the home of a friend or relative, a motel in a safe area, or a local Red Cross shelter. Know your designated Red Cross shelter and route you are assigned to get there.

The order to open shelters will come from the County Director of Public Safety Cary Kaiser and the Red Cross will manage and administer them, according to Al Landgraf, Red Cross disaster coordinator for Seminole County. There are six primary shelters accommodating 18,652 persons and another four secondary shelters which have a capacity of 4.282 persons.

Primary shelters include Lyman High School, 1141 County Road 427. Landgraf advises you to bring with you the proper supplies such as any necessary medications, special dietary foods, a flashlight with extra batteries, transistor radio with extra batteries, blankets or sleeping bag, change of clothes and snack foods. If you have small children bring formula, baby food and disposable diapers. small games or coloring book, and a small ice chest.

When and if evacuation is advised for your area, keep calm and shut off main gasvaives and pull the main power switch before leaving your home.

Physically handicapped or bedridden persons who need assistance in reaching a shelter should call the local Red Cross.

If you live in a structurally-sound home in a safe area of the county, you will not need to evacuate. You should be prepared to stay in your home and listen to the radio or television for weather reports. When a hurricane watch is announced, it means hurricane conditions are a real possibility and may threaten the region and you should purchase the necessary supplies and secure your home. Fill your car with gas and check the battery, water

A hurricane warning is issued when winds of at least 74 miles per hour, highwater and storm surge are expected in a specific area within a period of 24 hours.

Board up garage and porch doors. In case of flooding put valuables on upper floors or on top shelves. Use household bleach to sanitize your bathtub and sink, then rinse well and fill with clean waters.

Turn up the refrigerator to maximum cold and don't open unless necessary. Use the phone only for emergencies. Stay indoors on the downwind side of the house away from windows.

Tropical Storm Barry Downgraded To Depression

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) -Tropical storm Barry fell apart today and was downgraded to a depression as it carried thunderstorms across the Florida coast toward the nation's spaceport where the shuttle Challenger is poised for next week's launch. Forecasters said the remnants of Barry would bring heavy rains and winds to central and south Florida, but the storm could no longer be considered dangerous.

At 8 a.m., the center of the depression was located on the coast at latitude 27.9 north longitude 80.5 west, or about 15 miles south of Melbourne.

forecasters said the weather system would weaken further. At its height, tropical storm

Barry packed sustained winds of 55 mph, but forecasters said unfavorable conditions in the Atlantic prevented it from strengthening into the 1983 season's second hurricane.

Winds were near 35 mph and Alicia, which ravaged the Texas coast last week killing 18 people, was the first.

> Forecasters said the remnants of Barry would probably dump as much as 6 inches on the Kennedy Space Center and would bring thunderstorms throughout the southern half of the Florida peninsula.

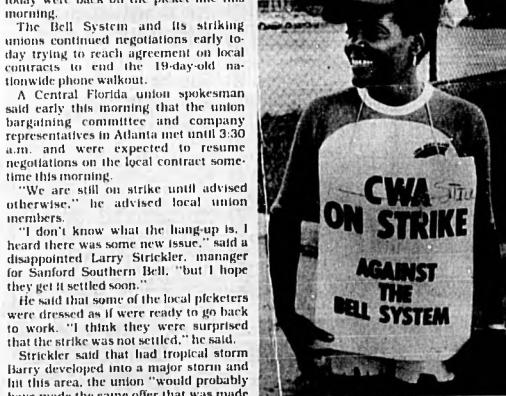

"We are still on strike until advised otherwise." he advised local union "I don't know what the hang-up is, I heard there was some new issue," said a disappointed Larry Strickler, manager for Sanford Southern Bell, "but I hope they get it settled soon." He said that some of the local picketers were dressed as if were ready to go back to work. "I think they were surprised that the strike was not settled," he said. Strickler said that had tropical storm

Barry developed into a major storm and hit this area, the union "would probably have made the same offer that was made in Texas following Hurricane Alicia. Employees would have probably been asked to voluntarily come back on an emergency basis to get the damage

Congress To Probe Filipino Spies In U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The activities of Philippine government agents in the United States are due for congressional scrutiny in light of charges the agents spy on and harass political opponents living in this country.

Copies of a secret Defense Intelligence Agency report on five agents assigned to the Philippine Embassy were released by Rep. Fortney Stark, D.-Calif. and Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., who said his House Judiciary subcommittee probably will hold hearings on the matter.

The July 1982 DIA report said the five agents are "expected to monitor Philippine dissident activity in the United States. The attaches will undoubtedly report on, and possibly operate against," opponents of Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, the report said.

Stark and Edwards released the DIA report four days after Philippine opposition leader Benigno Aquino was killed in Manila as he returned from self-exile in the United States.

Sex Tapes Don't Exist?

BEVERLY HILLS. Calif. (UPI) - Attorney Robert Steinberg was indicted by a grand jury because the panel believes the Vicki Morgan "sex tapes" never existed, the prosecutor said after unscaling of the Indictment.

'The peoples' theory is that the tapes never existed," Deputy District Attorney Marsha Revel said Wednesday, when the misdemeanor charge of filing a false police report was made public.

Steinberg, who is free on his own recognizance, was not in Municipal Court when the indictment was unsealed. He will be arraigned Sept. 16, and if convicted, faces up to six months in Jail and $500 fine.

Steinberg said he saw videotapes of the slain model, top Reagan Administration aides and late presidential confidante Alfred Bloomingdale performing sex acts. When asked to produce the tapes, he said they were stolen.

There will be a cocktail party for special invited dignitaries from 5-6 p.m. and dinner will begin at 7 p.m.

Death Prevents Namesakes From Meeting Frank said the mixups began when he emergency medical technician course at By Charles Cobb

Herald Staff Writer

The two young men had the same unusual name, they both lived in Altamonte Springs and when they both enrolled in medical courses at the same time at Seminole Community College, people sometimes confused one for the other.

But somehow the two men never actually met.

The final act in a string of odd coincidences occurred when the two were confused again Monday when one of them was critically injured and died

But it all began to end shortly after 3 a. m. Monday when Francisco H. Matias, 31, of 104 Birch St., was brought to the emergency room at Orlando Regional Medical Hospital while Francisco Mathias Jr., 24, was on duty as a medical therapist in another section of the hospital.

. The older Matias had been mortally injured when he collided head-on with a car while riding a skateboard.

A secretary in the respiratory therapy department saw records indicating that a Francisco Mathias had been brought in and became alarmed that it was her co-worker, who is called "Frank" by friends. But Frank didn't learn of the incident until the next day.

The injured man died at the hospital shortly after midnight Tuesday and the confusion continued. When Frank learned that a Francisco Matias had died. he thought it might be his father, who is also named Francisco Matias, and he hurriedly called his father's home in Orlando to find out.

was studying respiratory therapy at Seminole Community College in 1981-82. When he was introduced to a school counselor, the counselor thought he had met Matias before. Both were puzzled becaue Francisco Matias is not a common name among the SCC student

Later, when Frank asked for a copy of his file at the SCC student record office. he was given the other Matias' file by mistake and for the first time he learned that another Francisco Matias was attending SCC.

"Obviously, the counselor had met the other Matias. I tried to locate him on the campus to see if we were related, but I never found him," said Frank.

Frank's counterpart was taking an

He also was a skateboard enthusiasi and had competed in skateboard contests all over the world. He died as the result of a freak accident when he apparently lost control of his skateboard as he was riding down a hill near the Royal Plaza hotel in Lake Buena Vista and struck a car early Monday.

Frank said he rode a skateboard some when he was 18 or 19 years old, but suffered nothing worse than minor bruises when he fell off a few times. Wednesday morning, an Evening Herald reporter who was trying to reach Francisco H. Matias' home telephoned Frank's home by mistake.

"It's a scary coincidence," said Frank. "I would like to have met him to see if he was family. Now I never will."

Shannon Elizabeth Barnes, a former cosmetology instructor, was accused of kidnapping a convenience store clerk and the theft of $1,118.18 in store receipts.

The 26-year-old victim, Kim Reynolds, who now lives in Sanford, said she had stopped her car at a traffic light at the intersection of U.S. Highway 17-92 and Lake of the Woods Boulevard March 21 when two women forced their way into the car.

Reynolds told investigators that the woman in the front seat, identified as Barnes, pulled a knife seat threatened her with a gun. The women ordered Reynolds to drive to an undeveloped area, forced her to the floor of the car, tied her up with nylon hosiery and then Barnes drove the car to an orange grove near State Road 426 and Tuskawilla Road, reports said.

Reynolds was left under a tree in the grove and the two women drove off with her car which contained two deposit bags from the Cumberland Farms store on U.S. Highway 17-92 about a mile south of State Road 436 in Fern Park. The bags contained $1,118.78.

A few hours later, the car was found abandoned in a shopping center near Tuskawilla and Red Bug roads with the bank bags missing. Reynolds identified Barnes about a week later from a photograph file and Barnes was arrested.

Barnes is the mother of two teenagers and an 8-year-old boy.

She pleaded guilty Wednesday to the robbery and burglary charges after Seminole Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor agreed to a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison, which could be followed by probation. Normally the charges carry a maximum life sentence. Assistant Public Defender Don West said. The prosecution agreed to drop a kidnapping charge.

Barnes will be sentenced Oct. 31. Barnes' companion in the robbery has not been apprehended.

Health Insurance Available For The Chronically III

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Flordians unable to buy health insurance because of past health problems will be able to obtain major medical coverage under a new state program going into effect Sept. 1.

An act passed by the Legislature two years ago creates a special insurance association which will operate a health insurance pool similar to the automotive insurance pool for high-risk drivers.

Premiums for the medical coverage will be higher than standard premiums and applicants must meet certain conditions to qualify. Policies will be available through all Florida-licensed insurance agents who handle health insurance.

To be eligible, applicants much have been rejected for similar major medical coverage by at least two carriers or been offered insurance only at rates higher than those set by the

DeLorean Investors Sue

MIAMI (UPI) - Investors who include entertainers Sammy Davis Jr. and Roy Clark are suing sports car maker John De Lorean for $400 million, claiming he defrauded them.

The 132 investers formed a limited partnership that raised $18.7 million to fund research and development of De Lorean's DMC-12 sports car in 1978, according to the suit filed Wednesday in federal court.

The group was led to believe it would receive substantial royalty payments plus sizable research and development tax deductions, said attorney Murray Sams Jr., who filed the suit.

The investors have collected less than $1,100 each in royalties, and their federal income tax returns are being audited because their money was not spent on research and development, the sult charges.

Graham: Keep Phone Rates From Going Up

Graham wants Florida's congressmen to get behind a bill to keep local telephone rates from going up because of the federal government's breakup of AT&T.

Graham asked the delegation's help Wednesday in a letter to its chairman. U.S. Rep. Charles Bennett of Jacksonville. He said he was acting because of "the deep concern expressed by the Public Service Commission."

"Having examined the issues raised by the commission. I strongly concur with the need for Congress to act this session to prevent drastic increases in local telephone rates," Graham said.

The PSC is upset over a $2 a month special telephone charge approved by the Federal Communications Commission recently and other decisions by the FCC, the U.S. Justice Deprtment and the federal courts.

The $2 fee is designed to enable AT&T subsidiaries like Southern Bell Telephone, which serves Florida, to replace long distance revenues they are losing because of the anti-trust breakup of their parent corporation.

The bill before Congress would require Southern Bell, for special charges in TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Gov. Bob that the $2 fee be included in long distance charges rather than be tacked onto the rate for basic local service.

> State regulatory agencies are being 'preempted" by the FCC and other federal agencies, Graham said, so Florida's only choice is to turn to

Unless Congress intervenes, the statewide average cost for basic residential telephone service could double and the increase in some areas of the state might be substantially higher than 100

"The proposed legislation would undo some of the actions of federal agencies that affect telephone rates and set new ground rules for future actions, honoring the goal that universal telephone service - basic telephone service considered a necessity to all Americans - will be affordable to everyone," the governor

Graham called on Congress to approve the proposal before Jan. 1 to keep the special $2 charge from going into effect.

The PSC is reviewing requests from Florida telephone companies, including

He said the governor or HRS then could make recommendations to the Legislature.

When Graham asked for the HRS answer to the complaints by Ferry's family, he said one thing he wanted checked was whether information about mental patients should be shared among different state agencies.

Pingree made public a letter to Graham in which he said a mental health professional would be alerted to the existence of a previous clinical record and could seek the consent of the patient to obtain the record under the existing system.

But he questioned whether there should be open sharing of patient-client information.

"Persons in need of mental health services who aren't guaranteed confidentiality may not voluntarily seek the help they need," he said.

Let The Justice Department Do It

Computerized reservation systems became indispensable for many travel agents after 1978 alrilne deregulation ushered in an era of numerous changes in service and fares.

But the systems now used by most travel agents are more than a technological covenience. They are valuable marketing tools for the airlines that seil them, primarily United and American. When a travel agent flips on the office computer. United or American flights are listed first on the screen.

In receiving top billing, the two airlines are profiting from their acumen in developing software packages for travel agents

Competing airlines, however, are crying foul. And, they may have more to complain about than listing bias.

For example, the fees charged other airlines for listings are unequal. There are accusations that direct competitors of United and American face the stiffest fees in an attempt to keep them out of the reservation systems, or force them to increase their fares.

Moreover, there are serious questions about the use of market data recorded by the computer systems. The data show which airlines are preferred by travel agents.

There are complaints the information is used to pressure agents to book clients on United and

The two airlines deny their systems violate antitrust laws by unlawfully restraining trade.

Nevertheless, the Civil Aeronautics Board has initiated procedures to regulate the listings.

The CAB is scheduled to go out of business at the end of next year. So why should it pursue new regulatory activity? One reason may be that CAB chairman Dan McKinnon is under pressure from some members of Congress to act.

Airline deregulation will be best served if the CAB abandons its effort to undertake new responsibility and concentrates, instead, on closing down. But computerized reservation systems should not be immune from government scrutiny.

The Justice Department is the appropriate agency to determine whether antitrust laws are violated.

Indeed, it already has initiated an investigation. il violations are lound, several remedies are possible. Modifications in the listings might be in order, or the Justice Department might seek to remove the airlines from the reservation business altogether.

In the meantime, wise travelers will find out what reservation systems are used by their travel agents and ask that all available flight information be checked.

Barbie: No More

The conspiracy of U.S. agents who concealed Nazi Gestapo officer Klaus Barbie from French authorities and smuggled him to safety in South America is one of the most shameful episodes in American esplonage. It has resulted in a formal U.S. apology to the French government.

It is mot easy for a country to apologize. We commend the U.S. government for doing so.

Barble is now on trial in France for sending thousands of Jewish children and adults to Nazi death camps and torturing French resistance fighters.

France tried to bring Barble to justice after the war. It asked U.S. High Commissioner in Germany John J. McCloy If he knew of Barble's whereabouts. McCloy said he didn't.

He was fooled by U.S. intelligence officials. According to a report recently released by the Justice Department, Barbie was then being hidden and protected in a safe house by U.S. agents.

Barbie had been in the employ of the United States since 1947, giving secret information on the French Communist Party. American agents not only duped McCloy. They helped Barble escape first to Italy and later helped him to set up a new life in Bolivia.

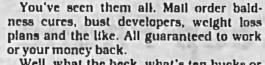

Intelligence agents thought the end justified the means in using agents such as Barble. But the ends do not justify the means. The Nazis were supported in the 1930s as a means to fight communism. Hitler not only killed millions of people; his attempt to conquer Europe led inexorably to the rise of power by the Soviet Union.

Our apologies go to France and to the Jewish people. In fighting one enemy, we must not embrace another.

Well, what the heck, what's ten bucks or so if there's a chance it will really fill in that shiny spot atop your head? You know in your heart the stuff won't work in a million years, but vanity spurs farfetched hopes. So you send in a check.

You wouldn't be so guilible?

Perhaps not. But according to the states' Division of Consumer Services thousands of Floridians are - regularly.

device he obtained through the mail was guaranteed to keep away mosquitoes, flies, gnats, bees and wasps by creating a 12 to 15-foot "bug-free comfort zone" with an inaudible shield that protects "without sprays, chemicals or poisons".

The consumer wrote that the company promised the "amazing bug chaser" that "clips neatly to your shirt pocket" would send insects retreating in horror but it wouldn't bother people or pets.

"Well, they were right on one count. It didn't bother my pets," he wrote. "The problem is, it also didn't bother the

Reid tested the device and, albeit unscientifically, discovered it didn't bother

"With the exception of my companion," Reld said, "who was embarrassed to be seen with me wearing the thing."

He said insects, particularly files, seemed to find the device very useful as a perch from which to swoop down on piente supplies. "They didn't even appear to suffer from headaches," he said.

The consumer in this case was helped by the states' Consumer Services Complaint Section to get a refund of his $6. But Reid said the case was worth sharing because thousands of Floridians a year fall for "too good to be true" mall order advertising and wind up with nothing but a cancelled check for their trouble.

The reason so many are gullible? Reid says the convenience of shopping by mail makes it very popular. Although many complaints involve non-delivery, he said often mail order houses just play the odds. Here's how that works.

Say the company knows the device doesn't repel insects, but promotes it anyway and 500 people or so buy one. Odds are only a few of the 500 will bother to ask for a refund or file a formal complaint. 'Most people who get stuck with a trinket that doesn't work but costs under $10 will just pitch it in the trash." Reid

Those who do complain usually get prompt refunds. The company still makes a large profit on the majority who remain

The moral of the story, Reid says: If you see something in a mail order catalog that sounds miraculous...beware. It may be available elsewhere for less money, it may never be delivered or it may be worthless. Antipathy Puzzles Reagan

By Helen Thomas Uited Press International White House Reporter

President Reagan is running into obstacles in his quest for the women's

He and his aides are puzzled at the negative reaction to what they view as generous efforts to increase opportunies for women in the federal government.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the president's record of female appointees to high-ranking federal jobs is unmatched in history. The administration's showcases are two Cabinet women - Transportation Sec-retary Elizabeth Dole and HHS Secretary Margaret Heckler.

He also named Sandra Day O'Connor as the first woman justice of the Supreme Court and Jeanne Kirkpatrick as the first woman to head the U.S. delegation to the United Nations.

But the White House is learning that the problem is much broader, and that Reagan's oppostion to the Equal Rights Amendment hurt his image with the modern-day American woman who believes there is still discrimination in

More than a year ago, Reagan ordered a review of all federal statutes that might include discrminatory language.

The Justice Department has conducted the intensive search, calling on all agencies to point out laws that discriminate against women. So far. three quarterly reports have been made to the White House, but no action has been taken and the reports have not been made public.

Barbara Honegger, a Justice Department special assistant, delivered a blow to the administration when she described as a "sham" Reagan's efforts to eliminate discrimination in the law. She wrote in The Washington Post that Reagan had backed off on the Republican Party's 40-year commitment "to the broadest constitutional protection for the civil rights of American women - support of the ERA."

If anything, she said, the administration has narrowed the interpretation of existing statutes forbidding sex discrimination. Moreover, she said no action has been taken to eliminate sex discrimination in federal regulations.

White House officials were stung by her attack, and so were Justice Department officials. At the Justice Department, Ms. Honegger, who has since resigned, was described as a "disgruntled job seeker" and dismissed as a "low-level" staffer who hardly anyone had heard of.

In the conclusion she wrote, "I don't think Ronald Reagan gives a damn."

The president went out of his way two weeks ago to apologize to the Federation of Business and Professional Women after they were turned away from the White House gates when their scheduled tour was abruptly canceled.

Reagan sought to make amends by putting in a personal appearance, but his remarks offended some of the

Teaching The Sun Belt

This 215-year-old town on the northern have sustained that boom." Chapman edge of Massachusetts' Pioneer Valley notes that the scarcity of water inappears to be hardly a sultable model for development of the booming Sun Belt communities thousands of miles to the south and west.

The Deersteld River which meanders through the town and the mountains which tower above it provide Shelburne Falls with the picturesque charm for which New England is famous - but there's not much evidence of the high-technology "post industrial" society of the 21st century.

Indeed, manufacturing in the area is limited to prosale and traditional items such as cutlery, hand tools and lamps. Many of Shelburne Falls's 2,000 residents are descendants of the pioneers who founded the town in 1768.

Yet this and hundreds of similar communities throughout New England can make a crucial contribution to the future of the Sun Belt precisely because they are part of what author Christina Tree aptly described in a 1976 book as "the first finished corner of the United

Although it's fashionable in other regions of the country to view with disdain the static economy of the Northeast and Midwest, one especially thoughtful analyst argues that the rest of the nation can learn a great deal from New England, whose "boom" years were in the distant 18th and 19th centuries but which now is experiencing an economic renaissance.

"Today's boom regions will become tomorrow's mature regions," says M. Perry Chapman, a professional planner from Watertown, Mass. "Conditions in the industrial states of the Northeast and Midwest are now analogous to conditions that the entire country will face over the next 20 to 40 years."

To support his contention that "devclopment in the Sun Belt is on a

> Moreover, New England's climate and geography always have presented special problems. Almost three-fourths of its energy supply and four-fifths of its food must be imported from outside the

But New England's ability to overcome adversity is illustrated by its 4.2 percent population growth during the 1970s - a rate far below that experienced in the South and West but significantly higher than that recorded in the Mid-Atlantic and Great Lakes

Catching Up With Marxists

By Edward J. Walsh

(Editor's Note: Edward J. Walsh is a staff writer for the USBIC Writer's Group. His column is published in a variety of newspapers throughout the United States.)

Now that President Reagan's 20member Commission on Central American has been sworn in, it will absorb some of the barrage of criticism aimed at the President's policy for the region.

Syndicated columnist Mary McGrory, who expresses typically the liberal opposition to an anti-communist approach in Central America, or anywhere, wonders why, with the economic recovery coming along so nicely. Mr. Reagan is willing to risk his political capital with a less than popular exercise in gunboat diplomacy - the point being that overt American efforts to oppose the powerful tide of Marxist subversion Central America, which emanates from Nicaragua and thence from Cuba. is a step towards a new Vietnam.

As events have developed in Central America, the only similarity with Victnam is the U.S. liberal public relations campaign against American involvement, which in the case of Central America is early rather than

The reason for Mr. Reagan's position is that the situation in Central America is genuinely scary. That is also the biggest difference with Vietnam. American allies in the region are facing not little bunches of Soviet-armed guerrillas, but a regional, even hemispheric military power in Nicaragua. Last March, the Nicaraguan ruling Frente (FMLN) announced that it would increase the size of its army to 200,000 men, larger than the forces of El Salvador, Honduras, Costa Rica, and Guatemala combined. Brazil, with a population 50 times larger than Nicaragua's, has an army of 182,000.

In addition, Nicaragua is now the proud owner of 25 Soviet M-54 tanks. Two airfields have been modernized to handle Soviet M-25 jet fighters, which are on station in Cuba. Some 2,000 Cuban military advisers, and about 6,000 Cuban civilians are working in Nicaragua. U.S. intelligence sources have also reported seeing East German, Bulgarian, North Korean, and Soviet advisers around the country.

Opposing this second-rate military colossus are four bands of anti-Marxist guerrillas, three headquartered in Costa Rica, one in Honduras. These tiny outfits, the largest of which numbers about 2,500 men, are composed of anti-communist Nicaraguans, who mostly squabble among themselves over arms and money.

Unfortunately, despite the good intentions of U.S. allies in El Salvador. Honduras, and Guatemala, there is no serious obstacle to a pro-Soviet military roll across Central America, which would be helped out by the thousands of Marxist guerrillas now operating in those countries - except the United

U.S. Losing High-Tech Lead To Japan

WASHINGTON - The United States, of the world high-tech market has once the colossus of high technology now finds its pre-eminence threatened on all sides, especially by the Japanese.

As I've already reported, U.S. officials are convinced that a Japanese computer company, Hitachi, is behind a covert effort to wring high-tech secrets out of IBM. These officials also believe that the Japanese are determined to become No. I in the vital area of semiconductors.

Some experts predict that semiconductors - the "building blocks" for a variety of sophisticated electronic equipment — will be as important to the world economy over the next few years as crude oil was in the 1970s. The country that takes the lead in semiconductors will have an important advantage in computers, telecommunications, robotics, aerospace and other high-tech

But the United States is losing its lead in this international competition, while Japan is coming on fast. The U.S. share the computer race, if for no other reason declined by 15 percent in recent years - while Japan's share has increased 25 percent.

An important reason for this slippage can be found in a comparison of expenditures for research and development over the past 20 years. While U.S. R&D investment has declined by onefifth, Japan's has jumped by one-third.

Another reason for America's increasingly beleaguered position in high-tech competition is the different attitude taken by the U.S. and Japanese governments on antitrust enforcement. Japan encourages its industries to pool their efforts in joint R&D ventures. But American companies risk government prosecution - often instigated by rivals who are left out of a joint venture.

How important is the erosion of U.S. dominance in the high-tech area? Trade Representative Bill Brock told my associate Michael Binstein: "There would be very serious fallout if we lost than national security. You bet your life we better be concerned about it and start busting our rear doing something."

Upgrading the quality of U.S. technological education and relaxing antitrust enforcement are two of Brock's highest priorities. He explained that current antitrust laws do not explicitly rule out cooperative research efforts, but the laws are fuzzy, so it's the better part of discretion for U.S. companies to avoid such joint ventures entirely.

Besides computers and semiconductors, the U.S. lead is being challenged in other high-tech areas - again, mainly by the aggressive Japanese. For example: - Aircraft: Just a few years ago. American manufacturers had 95 percent of commercial aircraft orders. By 1981, Airbus Industrics, a European consortium, had claimed 25 percent of the world market for jet aircraft, and half of the new orders for wide-body

- Space: The United States is slipping fast. The Japanese are putting up satellites and developing their owne launch vehicles. France, working with other European countries, is rapidly. developing a launch capability that will challenge the U.S. monopoly in communications satellites.

- Fiber optics: Japan has moved into this potentially lucrative field and has already taken a clear lead in light-source technology.

- Robotics: The United States still has the lead in research and design, but the Japanese are far ahead in production and use, with about 3.5 times as many robots in use as we have.

 Pharmaceuticals: Up to 1960, American companies dominated research in this area and produced more than half of all new products. Japanese firms have now taken the lead in new antiblotic compounds. Seven of 11 new antibioties in one recent year were Japanese.

Track Team Gets Egg On Its Face

CARACAS. Venezuela (UPI) - America's track and field team sought to wipe the embarrassment from its iace at the Pan American Games Wednesday — and ended up with egg on it instead.

Stunned by the pullout of 12 athletes from the track and field competition in the wake of the largest drug scandal in the history of international athletics, the U.S. squad was hopeful of collecting several gold medals on the second day of competition.

Pan Am Games

But two of the gold medal favorites. Jackie Washington in the women's 100-meters and James King in the men's 400-meter hurdles, were upset and two other women athletes were forced to withdraw from their events because of injury.

To add to the United States' embarrassment, the U.S. Olympic Committee admitted it had erred in announcing that decathlete Gary Bastien of Auburn, Ala., was on the list of athletes that flew home Tuesday. It seems Bastien is still at the Games and, although suffering from an injured left thigh muscle, hopes to compete in his event beginning Friday.

Eleven weightlifters, including Jeff Michels of Chicago, from nine countries have already been stripped of their medals or reprimanded by the Pan American Sports Organization for using anabolic steroids, an illicit muscle-building drug-

Despite the loss of seven athletes in the weight events. the U.S. was confident it could pick up some gold medals in the track portion of the program.

Another American, Sharrielfa Barksdale of Harriman, Tenn., was able to grab the silver medal in 56.09 when Gwen Wall of Canada hit the last hurdle hard and had to settle for the bronze in 56.93

It was a sorry day for Washington and King, however. Washington, of Houston, was shocked in the women's 100-meter final by Esmeralda Garcia of Brazil, who trailed Washington with 10 meters to go but had a better dip at the tape to snatch the gold in 11.31. Washington was second in 11.33 and Lisa Ferrer of Cuba was third Lisa Hopkins of Los Angeles was forced to withdraw from the final after aggravating a groin pull injury following her semifinal race Tuesday.

In the men's 400-meter hurdles, King of San Diego could only manage the bronze medal in a disappointing 50.31. Frank Monthie of Cuba was first in 50.02, barely beating the 50.08 by Antonio Diaz Ferreira of Brazil.

A pair of Cubans, Leandro Penalver and Jamie Jefferson, added further to U.S. insults at the Olympic Stadium by taking the men's 100-moter race and long jump, respectively.

Penalver set the first Pan Am record of the two-day meet with a time of 10.06 in the men's 100. That clocking improved on the mark of 10.12 set by Harvey Glance of the U.S. in Puerto Rico in 1979.

. The best the U.S. could do in the event was a bronze medal finish by Sam Graddy of Atlanta. Warren Nunez of the Dominican Republic, the leader until Penalver's burst in the last 40 meters, took the silver in 10.14.

In the men's 400-meters. Stanley Redwine of Fayetteville, Ark., was upstaged by Brazil's Alberto Guimares and Jose Barbosa and managed only a bronze

Beating The Heat Stressed In Prep Football Practice

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer

Since the tragic death of Auburn University fullback Greg Pratt, college and high school football coaches across the country are looking for ways to beat the heat. Pratt died of an apparent cardiac arrest after running through his fourth timed 440-yard run in the sweltering heat of preseason training. He had been hospitalized for heat exhaustion after the same set of sprints last Pratt's death has made football coaches even more cautious than ever now. In Seminole County, high school coaches were especially careful not to overwork their players in the first week of practice, when teams worked out two times a day.

"We try to give them as many liquid breaks as possible, especially on the hottest days," Seminole High assistant coach Emory Blake said. "We haven't had any kids get heat exhaustion."

After one week of two-a day practices, the high schools are now working out once a day, usually in the late afternoon when the scorching heat begins to let up a bit. "We work out two hours in the afternoon," Blake said. "And we don't run the players through a whole lot of strenuous practice."

"We try to keep an eye out for kids who look like they are getting dizzy." Seminole assistant Roger Beathard said. "And, if we see somebody, we make them get some water and then sit in the shade for a while. We shortened practice yesterday (Tuesday) by 20 minutes

Although the coaches take as many precautions as possible, the heat still has an effect on the players. We're really having to take it easy because of the heat." Oviedo assistant coach Ken Kroog said. "The heat got to one kid (in Wednesday's practice) and he had to be sent home. We're being real cautious about it."

At Oviedo High, practice sessions begin at 4 p.m. and end at 7. The team practices for an hour and a half, takes a half hour break, and then practices another

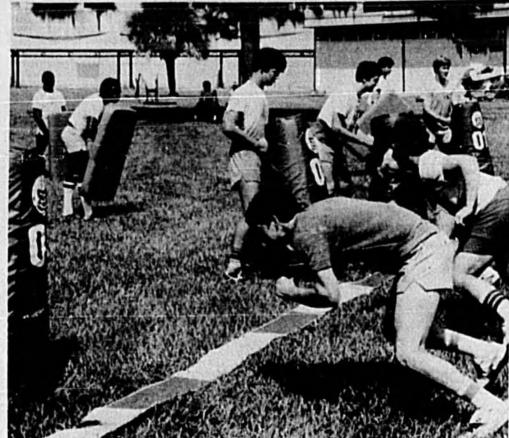

The problem with heat exhaustion seems to be more prevalent in college football this year than in high school. The high school season doens't begin until September 10 (some teams have jamborees on Sept. 2 or 3) while the first college game, between Penn State and television audience. A lot of college coaches have questioned the early start and heat exhaustion may affect more players since the teams will have to work harder to prepare for an earlier start to the season.

"I've always thought we've moved the season up too much," said Georgia Tech coach Bill Curry, "I remember reporting for practice at Georgia Tech on Sept. 1 in the 60's.

Florida State coach Bobby Bowden agreed, but noted its "just as hot in September."

"I don't know if two weeks would make a difference," said Bowden. "But I wish we didn't start as early, I am concerned every day. That thing (Pratt's death) scares us to death and always has."

Pratt, a 5-8, 211-pound juntor, died Saturday after running the 440-yard sprints on the first day of drills at

Rainey One-Hits Reds; Sakata's Blast Lifts O's

Chuck Rainey hated being right.

Rainey came one out away from pitching the Chicago Cubs' first no-hitter in nearly 11 years Wednesday, but had to settle for a one-hit, 3-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds at Wrigley Field.

"I never thought I was going to get the no-hitter, not even with two outs in the ninth," said Rainey, 13-10. "I wouldn't have thought I'd had it until I had it."

Eddle Milner singled with two out in the ninth inning to frustrate Rainey and a cheering crowd of 17,552.

Rainey was helped in his no-hit bid by two good fielding plays, one by himself. Alan Knicely, pinch-hitting for loser Mario Soto, 14-10, lined one back at Rainey who scrambled off the mound and threw to first to beat the runner. In the fourth, center fielder Mel Hall made a diving catch of Duane Walker's sinking liner to keep the bid for baseball immortality alive.

Hall also doubled home two runs in the seventh inning.

The last Cubs' no-hitter was pitched by Milt Pappas Sept. 2, 1972 in a 8-0 victory over San diego.

Glants 5, Phillics 3 At San Francisco, Joel Youngblood's two-run homer off Steve Carlton with one out in the bottom of the ninth lifted the Giants. Carlton, 12-13, walked Johnny LeMaster with one out and Youngblood blasted his 11th homer. Dodgers 3, Expos 2

At Los Angeles, Ken Landreaux hit a solo homer with two out in the eighth inning to break a 2.2 tie and give the Dodgers their eighth straight victory. Astros 10, Pirates 4

At Pittsburgh, pitcher Mike Madden produced his first major-league hit and drove in two runs to help Houston extend the Pirates' losing streak to four

Braves 11, Cardinals 3

At St. Louis, Randy Johnson had three hits, drove in two runs and scored three times to help the Braves snap the Cardinals' six-game winning streak. Johnson, playing third in place of the injured Bob Horner, delivered an RBI single and scored in the Braves' four-run third inning. Padres 3, Mets 2

At San Diego, Tim Lollar scattered eight hits over 8 2.3 innings and contributed an RBI triple in the second Inning to lead the Padres.

BALTIMORE (UPI) - You get the feeling that the next move was to bring the groundskeeper in to play shortstop. With Gary Roenicke at third, John Lowenstein at second, and Lenn Sakata behind the plate Wednesday night, the Orloles still managed a 10-inning, 7-4 decision over the Blue Jays.

"I finally found out how these guys want to play ... out of position." Baltimore manager Joe Altobelli said after Sakata's three-run homer with two out in the bottom of the 10th capped a dramatic comeback and left the Orioles a half-game behind Milwaukee in the American League East.

After Cliff Johnson hit Tim Stoddard's first pitch in the top of the 10th for his 20th homer, giving Toronto a 4-3 advantage, the Orioles tied the score in the bottom of the inning when leadoff batter Cal Ripken reached Joey McLaughlin for his 18th homer.

Eddle Murray walked on four pitches and moved to second on Lowenstein's grounder. John Shelby was walked intentionally and Randy Mossitt replaced McLaughlin, 7-3. Roenicke struck out but Sakata hit a 1-1 pitch just into the left-field stands for his second homer of the year.

Yankees 6, Mariners 3

At New York, Omar Moreno drove in four runs, three with his first AL home run, and Ron Guidry, 15-8, tossed a nine-hitter for the Yankees. Moreno. acquired Aug. 4 from the Houston Astros, connected off Ed Vande Berg, who had just relieved starter Bryan Clark. 5-6.

Twins 8, Red Sox 7

At Minneapolis, John Castino's sacrifice fly drove in Tom Brunansky with the tie-breaking run in the eighth for the Twins.

Tigers 5, Rangers 2

At Arlington, Texas, Lou Whitaker hit a three-run, inside-the-park homer with two out in the top of the ninth for the Tigers.

White Sox 4, Royals 3

At Kansas City, Rudy Law scored on a flelder's choice with two out in the 10th to give the White Sox a nine-game lead In the AL West.

Indians 1-4, A's 0-2

At Cleveland, Ron Hassey doubled home Julio Franco with the go-ahead run in the fifth inning to give the Indians a sweep. In the first game, rookie Neal Heaton tossed a five-hitter for his second major-league shutout, helping Cleveland snap a three-game losing streak. Brewers 1, Angels 0

At Milwaukee. Robin Yount's basesloaded single delivered Jim Gantner in the 14th, helping the Brewers snap a 22-Inning scoreless streak.

Stadler Defends WS Of Golf Title

stands No. 13 going into the WSG. Watson, who beat Floyd by two shots for the 1980 title, is 10th on the money winning list, but the closest he has come to victory is a couple of seconds in the U.S. and Western opens.

Nicklaus, who has pocketed more prize money at Firestone than any other golfer - $537,896 to $229,269 for runnerup Watson -- came close to his 18th professional and 20th overall "major" title earlier this month when his comeback fell one shot short of tying Hal Sutton in the PGA.

Sutton, who held a 6-shot lead over Nicklaus at one time during the final round, held on to nip the Golden Bear by a single stroke.

Sutton, the year's leading money winner with $401,000, got his first look at Firestone this week, having to pass up the 1980 World Series because of a conflict with the Walker Cup Matches. He qualified that year as the U.S. Amateur champion.

"They didn't lie to me," said Sutton, referring to information he had gathered on Firestone. "It's long and hard. It's is a driving golf course. The greens are large and you can hit them. But that doesn't mean you're going to have an easy putt.

"You hit the driver a lot here," he said. "In today's architecture, they're trying to take the driving away from you. But, driving is part of the game."

Don't buy into "The Energy Loser Blues." Finding a home with the right number of bedrooms and baths is fairly easy. But finding one with the right energy-saving features can be more difficult. And if you're not careful, you'll buy right into "The Energy Loser Blues."

So how do you make sure your new home, condo or manufactured home is an energy winner? The easiest way is to make certain it qualifies for our Energy Saver Award.

To win the Award, a home must top state code standards for energy-efficient heating, cooling and water heating. This means you start saving energy and money from the day you move in. So don't settle for less.

Insist that your new home

IN BRIEF

Parliamentary Group Demands Cabinet Resign

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - The government faced a new challenge today from a powerful parliamentary group demanding the resignation of President Amin Gemayel's Cabinet, which it said was "no longer representative of the people."

The government did not comment on the demand, the second in less than a month, which came as Lebanese army units prepared to replace Israeli patrols in the volatile Shoul Mountain region southeast of Belrut.

U.S. envoy Robert McFarlane held talks Wednesday with Foreign Minister Elic Salem and Gemayel's national security adviser, Wadi Haddad, on how to avert more strife between Druze Moslems and their Christian rivals in the Shouf.

A 28-member independent parliamentary bloc, the largest in the 99-member parliament, Wednesday demanded the Cabinet be dissolved. the private Central News Agency said.

Led by speaker Kamel Assad, the bloc said in a statement that Gemayel's decision to send a Cabinet committee to meet with opposition Druze leaders was an admission that his government did not include all key factions.

The Druze are demanding more rights and a greater voice in Lebanon's Christian-dominated government and have repeatedly launched artillery and rocket attacks on Christian areas around Beirut.

Rebels Closing In

NDJAMENA. Chad (UPI) - Rebel forces supported by Libyan tanks were rolling south toward two desert settlements defended by Chadian troops and French soldiers, the government said.

Information Minister Soumalla Mahamat said at a daily press briefing Wednesday that two columns of tanks and infantry were driving in a pincer movement toward Oum-Chalouba in the east and Koro Toro in the west.

Oum Chalouba is less than 150 miles from the main French and government base at Abeche. Koro Toro, little more than a crossroads in the desert, is located some 200 miles from a Franco-Chadian garrison at Salal, just 250 miles north of the capital. Ndjamena.

Aquino Procession Turns Into Protest

Ferdinand Marcos ...orders creation of special commission of judges to probe murder of popular political opposition leader Benigno Aquino

MANILA. Philippines (UPI) - More than 500,000 mourners flooded streets today for an emotion-packed procession behind the casket of slain opposition leader Benigno Aquino, turning it into the biggest antigovernment protest in Manila's history.

"Fight, fight, fight" chanted thousands of university students as the body of Aquino, who was gunned down last Sunday, was carried from his family's home in suburban Quezon City to the nearby Santo Domingo Roman Catholic church.

Crowds massed in the streets for the 212-hour procession, which became the widest outpouring of anti-regime anger ever seen in the Philippine capital.

Police would only confirm 500,000 marchers, but the ranks were swelled by several hundred thousand spectators and it appeared the total turnout might near

Police were on alert for disorder, but there were no incidents and the huge throng dispersed peacefully following a mass at the church.

The demonstration came as authorities intensified the investigation into the murder at Manila International including the FBI's crime laboratory facilities.

Police have not been able to identify the alleged gimman. Who was shot down moments after the attack by members of the security forces escorting Aquino off his plane. The only clue so far has been the nickname "Rolly" embroidered on the man's underwear.

President Ferdinand Marcos Wednesday ordered the creation of a special commission of five past and present supreme court justices to investigate the assassination and offered a $45,000 reward for anyone identifying the

The government today announced that another 37 airport employees who may have seen the assatlant before the attack on Aquino were being questioned. Among theories being pursued was the possibility that the assailant may have worked with an accomplice also present at the airport, authorities said.

American authorities are aiding the investigation.

cleared up and service restored. If there was still no agreement then they would have gone back on strike."

"Since Barry is not all he was cracked up to be, that's a mute question," he

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. spokesman Charles Dynes said early today the talks were "proceeding very slowly." He said final agreement by the 34 local Communications Workers of America bargaining units and the Bell System was not expected until later in

Some local bargaining units of some unions had resolved their differences and sent members back to work. But the CWA, which represents 525,000 of the 675,000 strikers, said members would be on strike until all local agreements were completed.

CWA spokesman Duayne Trecker said today, "As of 12:30 a.m. EDT, we are unable to get satisfactory local agreements in all our local bargaining units. The AT&T apparently has no control of the operating companies and the strike continues. ... At latest report, talks are continuing into the morning at the local bargaining tables."

Representatives of AT&T and the three unions - the CWA, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. which represents about 100,000 workers, and the Telecommunications International Union, which represents 50,000 - reached a tentative agreement last Sunday on major national contract

But regional negotiations continued in an effort to resolve local contract dis-

Some union locals, including those representing strikers at Southern New England Telephone Co. in Connecticut and Mountain Bell in Montana, reached tentative agreements with regional Bell companies as early as Tuesday and sent their members back to work.

Other union locals also reached tentative agreements Tuesday; but in many cases, their members stayed off the job Wednesday rather than cross CWA picket lines still in place.

Once all employees are back at work, Dynes said, the backlog of telephone installation and repair orders that piled up during the strike will be taken care of

"I think a few days of overtime and we'll be all caught up." he said.

will be refunded, according to state law: Those who appeal the assessments have usually exhausted their option of review by Suber's office.

"Not a great number of assessments" once set by Suber's office are overturned by the special masters, said Terry Goembei. Suber's chief assistant property appraiser.

The county commission and the school board have not yet said whether they will hire special masters to handle the task again this year. If special masters are hired the pay for three of them will come from the county commission and the pay for the other two from the school board.

So far, seven Seminole Countlans have submitted bids for the jobs. The bids range from $40 per day to $360 per day.

The least expensive $40 per day includes the provision that this bid will hold true only as long as no other special master is paid a higher rate.

Beckwith said today that the property appraisal adjustment board hearings are tremendously expensive with the cost of notices sent out on each appeal as well as recording the meetings and keeping those records in addition to the costs of the special masters.

The revenues from the $15 application fee will not near cover the costs, he said,

Tetenbaum-Sayfan Vows Exchanged

Susan Ellen Tetenbaum and Michael Meir Sayfan were married July 30, at 8 p.m., in a double ring ceremony performed by Rabbi Andrew Hilman.

The bride is the daughter of Charles and Arlene Tetenbaum, 288 Spring Run Circle, Longwood. The bridegroom is the son of Jacob and Yohevet Yossifon, Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose for her vows a candlelight satin gown, off-the-shoulder styled, with a dropped waistline. Her cathedral-length veil of illusion, edged in reembroidered lace, was secured to a crown worn by the bride's mother and her sister at their weddings. She carried a cascade of orchids, white roses ands stephanotis.

Terri Siegel was her sister's only attendant. She wore a champagne colored tea-length silk organza gown and carried a bouquet of orchids, stephanotis and baby's Joe Yossifon served his brother as best man. Chupa holders were Ron Tetenbaum, the bride's brother; Mark Siegel, the bride's brother-in-law; and Mottie Seifan and Rami Yossifon, brothers of the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the Marriott, International Drive, Orlando.

Treading Troubled Waters Faces Swimming Pool Owner

DEAR ABBY: I have four children ranging in age from 5 months to 10 years. With school out, I've had my hands full taking care of them. We are one of the few families who have a swimming pool. How do I deal with all the kids who come over have a part to offer Burt, nomention of it. wanting to swim? I don't contact his agent. lifeguard and recreation director, either. Some days I can handle a couple of extra kids, and some days

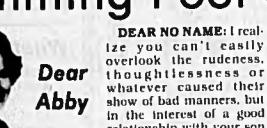

I can't. Also, they want to help themselves to snacks, and I can't afford to feed the whole neighborhood. Every day I have kids coming to my door or climbing over the fence if we are in the pool. If I let them swim once, they think they have a standing invitation to come every

Is there a tactful way to handle this?

DEAR SUSAN: Putting "tactful" aside for a mo-ment, let's talk "legal." Your pool is what the law would call "an attractive nuisance," and it is your responsibility to have a fence that will keep kids out. (Talk to a lawyer about this, and your insurance agent, too.) Then have a clear understanding with the children and their parents about when they may swim in your pool. Adult neighbors whose children enjoy your pool should be willing to alternate as lifeguards. DEAR ABBY: I read in July's Reader's Digest that Burt Reynolds gets $4,807.69 an hour. How can I get in touch with him? I have the money and I think he's worth it.

remove them. Before the operation they were referred to as tumors. After the operation with the benefits of biopsies, they were referred to as "polyps" and non-malignant. What is the likelihood of recurrence of these? If there is a recurrence what is the danger of cancer?

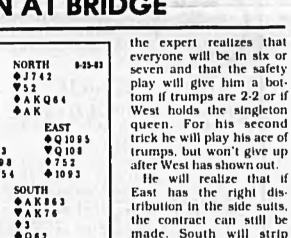

DEAR READER -Polyps are circumscribed areas of tissue that project above the surface of various linings. So polyps in the colon are projections of tissue above the surface of the colon lining. Some are wart-like projections, others are flatter.

You can tell a certain amount about a polyp from its physical size and characteristics, but the best and final evidence is being able to look at the tissues under a microscope. There are several types of polyps but the common hyperplastic polyp is a piling up of normal tissues. Possibly this occurs because the lining is constantly being shed and a new lining is always being formed.

Some polyps do have a relatively marked tendency to become malignant but others, such as the hyperplastic ones, are quite common and do not become malignant.

You may develop new polyps, rather than having a recurrence of the ones removed, Just as other people develop polyps. But because your recent polyps have been labeled benign, I would not think you have to worry any more about developing a

An assumable mortgage loan, far less available in recent months, can be a bargain to a buyer because it usually carries a lower interest rate.

Freddie Mac has established a Washington telephone number that homeowners can call to request a kit that allows them to claim refunds. The number is (202) 789-2200 between 10 a.m. EDT and 4 p.m. EDT.

The six companies said Wednesday they sold a combined 161,104 cars, up 22.1 percent from 131,855 last year. The performance for the period was the best since 1980.

But the annual selling rate of 6.2 million cars was down significantly from the 7.9 million rate recorded in the first 10 days of the month. Sales in July ran at a 7.5 million annual rate.

Analysts were expecting an increase of around 35 percent to 40 percent for the 10-day period. Sales have been up by about that much for most of the summer.
