Many Sections Of Nation Are Hit By Snow, Sleet, Floods

Winter Takes Walloping At Country While Spring Is Being Officially Inaugurated

Winter took its last official wallop at the nation today and provided a settling of snow, ice, sleet, slush and floods for the inauguration of spring.

A glance at the weather map of the nation was like a review of the season instead of the happenings of the day.

While residents of the Ohio valley in Ohio and Kentucky were fleeing their homes in boats in face of the greatest flood since 1913, residents in parts of the Middle West and the West were digging out of a foot-deep snow.

At least seven persons were dead as a result of the floods.

Shipping was impeded on the Atlantic and Pacific god vessels in distress and assistance. The Great Lakes were also storm tossed.

The worst flood since 1913 raged today through the Ohio River valley all the way from West Virginia to Indiana, accompanied by four deaths and property damage as thousands of acres of land were inundated.

The city of Portsmouth was threatened as the swollen waters beat against a wall protecting the city an Ohio mayor issued a proclamation warning the residents to be ready to flee. All highways leading into the city were inundated.

Thirty five cities blocks in New York were under water and the Ohio River, eight feet above flood stage, was still rising.

Adams, Pike, Jackson and Scioto counties, Ohio, were virtually cut off from the outside, and the residents of nearby Glenview, Ky., were abandoning their homes.

Hundreds of families in the Ohio valley were driven from their homes, and many were marooned. Rescuers in boats worked feverishly to carry them to safety.

The water poured down the main street of Manchester, N. H., sweeping into business houses and homes. Hardin, Youngs and Otway in Scioto county were under several inches of water.

Three men drowned in Covington, Ky., when a wall of water swept their automobile into a creek. At Lawrenceburg, Ind., the death of 14 year old Charles Stephens was attributed indirectly to the flood conditions. He found a bottle of pills, drank from it, suffered convulsions and died.

At California, Ky., Gale Thurgill, 18, was killed when a bluff which he and three other boys were climbing overturned near a water-logged power transformer.

The lowest part of Cincinnati was threatened with great damage as the waters of the Little Miami River lashed at a protecting levee. Flooded men were put to work chopping the embankment away to permit the water to come in slowly. Distress was caused by high waters in numerous other suburbs of Cincinnati. The municipal board of Cincinnati.

PEACE PLAN OF MUSSOLINI TO INCLUDE MANY

Scheme Will Not Be Limited To Major Countries But Will Embrace All Europe

ROME, Mar. 20.—(AP)—Mussolini's new peace plan will not be limited to Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy but will embrace the whole continent even the United States, to a certain extent Premier Ramsay MacDonald said in an interview today.

MacDonald refused to divulge any details but said "our whole idea is to open up the possibility of a complete agreement not between two, three, four, five or six powers but all nations concerned."

An official Italian pronouncement yesterday said the "reconciliation of the four powers" was proposed in Premier Macdonald's plan but no details were made public.

The "Mussolini plan" is based on collaboration of the four European powers, France, Germany, England, and Italy, described as founded on the spirit of the Kellogg treaty and an international agreement to outlaw war.

The communique said the British statesman would leave Rome today, going home by way of Paris, where they will submit the project to the French government.

The official statement said: "After a full and exhaustive exchange of ideas on the general situation, the ministers examined in these conversations one project after another, on a large or political questions put forward by the head of the Italian government, with the object of the four western powers in an effort to promote, in the spirit of the Kellogg pact and a 'no force' declaration, a long period of peace for Europe and the world."

The "no force" agreement mentioned in the text refers to a declaration signed at Geneva, by Great Britain, Germany, France, and Italy last Dec. 11 endorsing a principle of simultaneous equality of status for Germany and France for France. The United States signed a part of the agreement.

It was this agreement which induced Germany to return to the world disarmament conference after she had withdrawn.

Italian officials said the French and German governments have been kept fully informed of the conversations and have received copies of Mussolini's project, which they now were studying.

No indication was given as to the contents of the project, but it was officially stated that it had been prepared before Macdonald arrived.

It is based on a speech by the Italian premier at Turin last Oct. 23, in which he said collaboration of the four western powers furnished the only means for securing permanent peace in Europe.

The communique did not mention Macdonald's disarmament plan.

Spring Ushered In With Indications Pointing To Abnormal Temperatures

WASHINGTON, Mar. 20.—(AP)—The sun today began six months of shining more strongly on the northern half of the world than on the southern—in other words, Spring is here.

Mar. 20, at 8:43 P. M. Eastern Standard Time, is the moment of the "vernal equinox," the word, used by experts as meaning the advent of Spring.

Weather prophets report that just as this moment ended an abnormally warm winter, so will the coming days have higher temperatures than the average for years past.

In expert terms, the "vernal equinox" comes when the earth's orbiting around the sun, moves in such a position that the part north of the equator receives more heat and has longer days than the southern hemisphere.

The winter of 1932-33, says the U. S. Weather Bureau, continued the trend of abnormally warm winters that has been going on since 1905 east of the Rocky Mountains. Average temperatures during the official weather bureau winter (December, January and February) ranged from one to nine degrees above the normal of 35 degrees in various sections. The trend so far in March has been similar.

Spring weather, observers say, also gives indications of being warmer than normal, judging from the trend of Spring temperatures during recent years. This, however, is not an official forecast. Temperatures of all four seasons, during the last 25 years, have tended above normal.

The winter just ended bore out unofficial prophecies of abnormal warmth based on the weather bureau's discovery that "apparently there are 'cycles' of abnormally warm and cold weather lasting over periods of years.

Temperatures during the official weather bureau winter averaged one to five degrees above normal in the Southern states, three to six in the Central valley and Middle Atlantic area, and five to nine in the Northeast.

GOLD HOARDERS GRANTED MORE DAYS OF 'GRACE'

WASHINGTON, Mar. 20.—(AP)—The Federal Reserve Board has granted gold hoarders more days of "grace" to continue for another week or more.

Without explanation word was sent out by the board yesterday to each of its 12 districts that the deadline for sending to Washington the names of those who are believed to have hoarded gold had been moved back to Mar. 27.

The original time limit for sending in the names of those who drew out large sums of the metal during the last two years, without repositing it, expired last Friday at 3:00 P. M.

A steady stream of the presidential medals has poured into the Federal Reserve banks since the passage of the anti-hoarding act and the announcement that the names of the hoarders were being called for.

The treasury here has been trying to keep check on the volume, but officials have declined to go beyond their first and only official statement that on Mar. 15, a total of $27,000,000 had been received.

At that time, all of the Federal Reserve districts had shown a marked increase in the gold reserves with the exception of Dallas, and in recent days that district, too, has reported an increase.

An announcement still is awaited from the treasury as to just what constitutes hoarding and what regulations will be put into effect under the anti-hoarding (Continued On Page Two)

PASSAGE OF FARM BILL IS SEEN NEARING

Prediction Made That Measure Will Meet With House Favor By Wednesday Night

WASHINGTON, Mar. 20.—(AP)—Passage of the administration's emergency farm bill in the House by Wednesday night was predicted by Representative Lyons, of Tennessee, Democratic leader. He said the bill will be ready for consideration on the floor tomorrow.

A wide variance of views by conservative farmers on farm legislation, however, virtually has shut out the prospect of quick and unanimous agreement such as that afforded other emergency proposals put forward by Mr. Roosevelt.

The best that friends of the program hoped for was that the measure would be in the hands of a conference committee, selected from the two branches by the end of the week. There were, however, forces which would tend to promote speed, including the early approach of planting of the crops affected by the measure, the united support of farm organizations and the President's frank assumption of responsibility for the measure, along with his pledge to be the first to acknowledge failure in event it does not succeed.

Formal introduction last week of the measure, submitted last week with the President's special message recommending emergency action, was the first step scheduled today in the House. Its agriculture committee was reported prepared to act quickly upon it. Chairman Jones indicated that he hopes to simplify it but does not contemplate rewriting it to the extent of changing its fundamentals.

Representative Lyons, House majority leader, said he expected approval of the measure without substantial change in the House by Tuesday night.

Chairman Smith of the Senate agricultural committee, who has postponed consideration because of the revenue provisions which require that the bill originate in the House, said his committee, which has studied the program, informally, is ready to act speedily once House action is completed.

Arrival of the measure in the Senate floor, however, is expected to be the signal for a storm of amendments.

One group of amendments contemplated would seek to add various commodities to those already in the bill—wheat, cotton, corn, rice, tobacco, hops, rattle, sheep, milk and its products.

Others would attempt to reduce the number of products for which special efforts would be made to protect production and to control prices. Because of the measure, some members favor limiting the bill to commodities now strictly on an export basis. This definitely would eliminate milk, sheep and cattle.

Corbin of the emergency authority bill would extend to Secretary Wallace also will be sought by some legislators who are especially opposed to the delegation of broad powers to regulate, market, and process of the farm products named in the bill.

Zangara Is Defiant To End, Dying With No Display Of Fear

RAIFORD, STATE PRISON, Mar. 20.—(A.P.)—While a heavy rainstorm beat upon the flat tops of the state prison Giuseppe Zangara, assassin of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, paid for his crime in the electric chair today.

Defiant and vain to the end, Zangara harled invective at "capitalists" and wanted his picture taken in the death chamber.

Shaking off his guards with the assertion "don't mind me I'm from that chair," Zangara walked unaided to his death. Before taking his seat in the chair he glanced about the death chamber to see if any photographers were on hand. Told there would be none, Zangara shouted "no picture—bunch—crooks."

After the straps were adjusted an attendant stepped back saying "all ready Joe." Zangara replied "well why don't you throw the switch."

Four physicians who examined his brain and stomach reported they found Zangara's brain "normal" on a gross examination. An microscopic examination will be made later.

The doctors' report said: "We found he had a chronically diseased gallbladder which caused chronic indigestion but he was a healthy, well nourished individual. In our opinion this man was regarded as sane and also regarded medically as criminally responsible for the crime for which he was executed."

Before the execution Zangara told Commissioner Mayo he was not sorry he killed Cermak and shot Mrs. Gill and the others. He said he would try to kill President Roosevelt at once if he had his liberty.

Shortly before the death march began a minister was sent to the death cell but Zangara shouted he wanted no minister and told the prison chaplain "get out of here."

Reflections have been made on a comprehensive scale.

"Provisions for certain state activities have been reduced in anticipation of curtailment in certain scope of those activities; certain activities are contemplated to be dispensed with during the period of this budget where same are not of an essential nature as viewed from the standpoint of the state's existing economic condition.

Certain departments, through non-avoidable increase in essential work, do not show a reduction in the total, though the item costs making up the total have been decreased."

The budget commission recommends that the state ad valorem tax levy be increased from 4.7-8 to 5.1-8 mills. This levy is not to support the state government proper but to finance or assist in financing certain activities, such as pensions, fire eradication, free school books, state prison, the schools and the board of health.

The commission claims low millage rates in 1931 and 1932 and substantial dropping off in tax payments caused certain funds supported by ad valorem taxes to show a deficit and necessitate an increase in the state millage.

English Company Denies Charges Of Russian Officials

LONDON, Mar. 20.—(AP)—The Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical Company denied yesterday it had supplied turbines, generators or materials for the giant Dniepropetrol dam in Russia, the alleged damaging of which is understood to be connected with the arrest of employees of the British firm.

In a statement, officials of the company declared that turbines at the dam had been supplied from America. Russian authorities said blades of the turbines have been corroded by sand or acid poured, with malicious intent, into them.

"The idea of damaging these huge water turbines by pouring in sand or acid is manifestly absurd," the company's statement asserted.

"Each blade used in these machines weighs about five tons, and millions of gallons of water pass through them daily," it added. "This would prevent any acid or sand from remaining in them."

A newspaper report from Kiev, Ukraine, said that six Englishmen and 34 Russian employees of Metropolitan-Vickers who were arrested during raids by Soviet secret police a week ago, were taken into custody in connection with the alleged damaging of the $100,000,000 electrical project, which was announced completed months ago.

The Powder Keg

The immediate action of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in seeking to draw the powerful nations of Western Europe into an amicable understanding, whereby profuse peace was might be averted, has already met with unexpected success.

The concern of Europe over the possibility of war is well justified by the delicateness of any number of situations, as exist in the Polish corridor, the Balkan alliance with France, the Balkan antagonism of Italy, and the fear of another Central European alliance of Germany, Austria, and Italy; but perhaps no more menacing condition exists than recent developments in Germany, which, as the New York Herald-Tribune sees it, may be blamed for no inconsiderable contribution to the present uneasiness.

Europe is in a state of tension that makes some of the most anxious, for which the German Chancellor, must accept responsibility as party chief, dangerously foolish. The use of but provocative performance which bodies of armed militaries have been staging in Baden, and which has drawn a formal protest from France, is a case in point. At this long range the maneuvers, initiated with appropriate secrecy, carried out at night and advertised by sporadic rifle fire within hearing of the French frontier, are easily recognizable as nothing but a form of political exhibition. The men involved were not soldiers; their numbers were not large, and they were equipped with nothing but rifles. It would be absurd to think of them as a serious menace to the peace of France. But they have served Nazi propaganda purposes because their doing could be construed as a technical violation of the Versailles treaty and because they made the Alsatian population sufficiently uneasy to elicit from the French press and government expressions of annoyance.

These reactions are meant to redound greatly to Chancellor Hitler's reputation with big but not too intelligent elements of the German people as a bolder of France and of France's allies. If all the rest of Europe were now full of a sense of wellbeing, mutual confidence and security, such exploitation of misguided chauvinism, for domestic political purposes only, might be viewed abroad with amusement. Under existing conditions, however, this is playing with fire. In Germany and in some neighboring countries, as well, an atmosphere favorable to and conducive to 'incidents' and everyone knows to what incidents can lead. Such an official German attitude as this might be construed as a technical violation of the Versailles treaty and because they made the Alsatian population sufficiently uneasy to elicit from the French press and government expressions of annoyance.

Wise To Advertise Now

Business executives everywhere are feeling optimistic over the prospect of improved conditions and are making their plans for getting their share of this improvement by active and abundant advertising. According to the Times-Union, Kenneth Collins, assistant to the president of a great department store of New York, said recently: "Business firms which do not start advertising within the next few weeks are not alert to their opportunities. Retail stores should not alter business aggressively and immediately."

Quoting the Times-Union further: "Mr. Collins, who told of a personal survey of more than a hundred manufacturers, declared that there is a revival in advertising and an increase in both wholesale and retail prices are on the immediate horizon. The people will be ready to spend the money, after having been cautious to a degree, and they will be looking ahead a little, buying more than they need for the day because everyone seems to know that prices cannot remain at present low levels. The advance has already begun. According to this expert, however, there is evidence of people buying more things in quantities of dozen lots and greater. Shoes, hosiery and various items of intimate apparel and foodstuffs," he said, "are being bought in this way. Some of the early buyers in large lots are due to activities of foreigners now in this country who have witnessed the operation of inflation in other countries, and believe that it will mean greatly increased prices here. Falling of the tone of the market and the attitude of the manufacturers Mr. Collins said that the present and future business conditions. Fifty per cent of the business men consulted had lost money during the last few years, but they are expecting to do better this year."

"Despite the moratorium and the unusual banking situation," he said, "a spirit of hope and confidence pervades the manufacturing field. Business men have adapted themselves to the present situation and are ready to go ahead. They have shaken down items of overhead, have reduced staffs to a sensible business basis, curtailed expenses of luxurious offices and lavish entertainment and have cleared the decks for action."

Robinson Hails Recent Steps By New President

"More important still," he added, "is the fact that the President by his actions has made possible the reformation and reconstruction of our banking system. Intelligent and comprehensive banking reform is the need of the hour. The President has proposed, and the Congress has approved, the initial steps. Legislation must be adopted which will assure safety to every depositor against the waste of his funds in speculation, and at the same time enable our banks to operate without threat of public panic as incident to trade and commerce. It is my conviction and belief that such legislation will be in the early future enacted. In that fulfillment we have hope of a sound banking system."

"Two factors—confidence and leadership—are paramount in any discussion of what hope the country may have in the Democratic program," Robinson asserted. "The Democratic Party shares the first attribute with the nation as a whole as the result of the positive action of the past two weeks, and the steps which have restored confidence have demonstrated leadership such as this country has not experienced since the Wilson administration."

Gold Hoarders Granted More Days Of "Grace"

Unofficially, experts there have pointed out that with a list of the supposed gold-hoarders in hand the treasury would be in a position either to publish the names or to turn them over to the Department of Justice for possible prosecution under the anti-hoarding act. Although there was an absence of official comment upon the changing of the deadline for coming in the names of hoarders, it was said in one reliable quarter that the action had been taken in response to many requests for more time in compiling the list. The telegrams sent out to the various reserve districts read as follows: "The Federal Reserve Board has extended until Mar. 27 the final date in regards to gold. It is requested that you prepare and forward to the board after Mar. 27 as complete as can be made from banks in your district a list of all persons who have withdrawn gold from those banks since Feb. 1, 1933, and who have not redeposited it in those banks by Mar. 27, 1933."

"Matters" was the subject of the Lenten-Sermon in all churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Mar. 19. The Golden Text read: "O Lord our God, other lords beside thee have had dominion over us: but by thee only will we make mention of thy name." Among the citations which commended the sermon were: "The sermon was well given and was a most timely and helpful one. It was a most timely and helpful one. It was a most timely and helpful one."

Business Trends Suspected Florida Towards Week-End Slayer Killed By Distinctly Upward Louisiana Officers

NEW YORK, Mar. 20.—(AP)—Business trends showed distinct signs of turning up again toward the end of this week, on the wave of high hopes set in motion by restoration of banking facilities and confidence. Statistics appeared during the week, mostly covering the preceding week, fell in the nation-wide banking holiday and naturally showed sharp recessions in such items as freight car loadings. While there was little statistical evidence toward the close of the week that any important part of the ground lost since mid-February had been regained, dealers in both raw materials and finished goods widely reported a revival of business interest.

Steel output production, having risen in the earlier weeks of the year to above 20 percent of capacity, fell back below 15 percent this week, according to Iron Age, but the survey by the publication "Steel" appearing at the ground level in the week ended Mar. 11 had been regained. Manufactured in a number of places, having curtailed operations during the banking holiday, were reported returning, or planning to start up production in the coming week. Such reports came particularly from automotive centers.

The ending of the bank holiday brought a pickup in retail trade in many localities, and wholesalers went forward with preparations for the pre-Easter shopping season with renewed hopes. An uplift in commodity prices, particularly with the reaction of trading in futures markets, also had a stimulating effect upon sentiment. The rise in the commodity futures markets was interrupted toward the end of the week, in part by uncertainty, or actual meetings in some quarters, over the proposed farm relief measure, although it was felt that a clearer understanding of the farm aid plans would shortly be afforded.

OKLAHOMA CITY—An appeal filed in the court of Oklahoma appeared in a newspaper advertisement of an insurance firm today. It stated that the firm had no plans to offer any more life insurance policies.

The Chesterfield FORMULA what is it?

The formulas and processes which make Chesterfield a milder and better-tasting cigarette are secret—to prevent others from copying them. If every person knew the method and processes of tanning leather, it would be of interest; but what people want to know is: Is it a good shoe? Is it comfortable? Will it wear longer? Is the price right? So it is with Chesterfield Cigarettes. If smokers, men and women, knew all of the formulas and processes of manufacture, it would be of interest to them; but what smokers really want is the result: Everything that goes into Chesterfield Cigarettes is as good as money can buy. Every process has in it all that science knows about cigarette manufacture. The formulas are secret to prevent others from copying them. The mildness and the better taste you may prove for yourself. May we ask you to try Chesterfield?
