Game To Be Played In Memorial Stadium, Seminoles Meet Winner

Group I baseball tournament gets underway today with the Seabreeze Sandcrabs going against the DeLand Bulldogs. The winner of this game will meet the fighting Seminoles in a contest tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Also, on tomorrow's slate will be a game between New Smyrna and Pierson.

All these events will take place at Memorial Stadium. It will be the second time within two weeks that the stadium has been used for tournament games. The first tourney held here was last week, when the Seminoles won the East Florida Conference baseball championship.

Sanford has defeated every team in the tournament at least twice this year with the exception of Pierson. The Seminoles have handed DeLand three straight losses by scores of 3-2, 13-6, and 3-2. The Seabreeze team has defeated New Smyrna three times by scores of 17-0, 15-3, and 18-7. Seabreeze felt the taste of defeat twice against the Seentons.

If the tournament goes on as it is predicted by the experts, Pete Peterson, on the mound, while Seabreeze will throw its latest flash in pitching. Bob Nelson, against the Bulldogs, DeLand has fallen before the Sandcrabs twice in regular season play. In one of those games, Nelson pitched a no hit 2-0 shut out over them. So far, the Bulldogs have compiled a 6-7 record, while Seabreeze has a 7-6 record.

DeLand was edged out of the East Florida Conference tourney by dropping an extra inning 3-2 game to the Seminoles. Also Seabreeze was eliminated from the tourney very early. The Sandcrabs fell victim to one of the biggest upsets of the year, when they were defeated by the New Smyrna team 6-1.

The winner of the Group I tourney will play the winner of either the Group II, III, or IV. All the winners of the Groups will get together and play at the district tournament. The winner of that tourney will go to the state baseball tournament.

Melbourne, Cocoa, Oviedo, and Titusville teams make up the Group II tourney. Winter Garden, Kissimmee, St. Cloud, Apopka, Winter Park, and Lyman make up the third Group. The fourth group consists of Kissimmee, Mt. Dora, Groveland, Clermont, and Titusville.

We also have a good selection of Admiral and GE sets, with prices starting at $179.95 for a 21 inch table model.

If you have wanted air conditioning for your home but have hesitated because of case-tent windows, there is no need to wait. We now have an air conditioner that will fit your casement windows, and it is available in 1/4, 1/2 and 1 H. P. units.

BEN SOBIEKAJ
Atlantic Fleet Singles Champion

Ben Sobieraj Wants To Become Champion

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—Twice in the last two years has Ben Sobieraj (pronounced "sober-eye") captured the Atlantic Fleet singles tennis championships and set his sights on the All-Navy title.

But due to the exigencies of the Korean Campaign and the quirks of Navy planning as a result, an All-Navy tournament between the Atlantic and Pacific Fleet winners has not been held since 1950.

Sobieraj, a diminutive, dark-haired, airman storekeeper from St. Louis, is attached to Composite Squadron FIVE of Sanford, and is a member of the Jacksonville Navy-Marine tennis team.

This far this season, playing Number One on the Navy team, he is undefeated in college competition, beating the Number One players in team matches against the best of Southeastern United States Universities.

Recently he defeated Al Haram of the University of Miami, 1953 National Junior Indoor singles champion and conqueror of Denmark's Kurt Nielson. Sobieraj also won the Jacksonville Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce Invitational recently.

How To Play The Outfield

By JOE DIMAGGIO
(Written for AP Newsfeatures)

A good outfielder must be able to do four things—hit, run, throw and catch a fly ball.

The center fielder has the most territory to cover. He must cover his own position, part of left field, part of right field and ground behind second base. He need not be the fastest outfielder but should have a good arm. He must be an alert fellow who is able to get the jump on all balls hit his way.

Because most batters are right handed and hit a number of balls to left field, the left fielder is considered the second best outfielder on the team.

Right Field Has Changed

When I was a kid, right field was the place where the less capable outfielder would play, but that's changed today. The right fielder is one who should be able to play the ball off the wall pretty well because in most parks right field is shallow. He must have a fair arm to make long throws to third or home plate.

An outfielder should be ready to take charge of a ball almost as soon as it is hit. He must get off. He must be on his toes with every pitch. It is unwise to play the outfield in a flat-footed position.

On ground balls hit to the outfield I always believe in charging the ball. That gave me full momentum and made it easier to make a throw. I used to get hit on the arm while charging some ground balls but at least I'd try to have the ball in front of me. It's important to stop a ground ball as soon as possible with men on base. A speedy recovery of a batted ball may prevent one or more important runners from making an extra base.

When trying to catch a fly ball hit in front of you it might be necessary to leave your feet. If so, do it while running at full speed. You can take the ball on your shoulder and roll over. However, I never went in for circus catches. I tried not to fall down or dive for the ball. I always made an effort to bend down to my shoe tops to catch fly balls hit in front of me.

Fellows who have trouble going back for a fly ball should have someone hit long fannies in practice. In the spring I also believed in having the coaches and pitchers hit ground balls to the outfield. I used to charge them. It helps leg muscles, gets you to the ball sooner and helps your timing in fielding the ball.

Call for the Ball

Always call for the ball when it can be caught by more than one man. The first one calling for the ball usually has the preference. However, this wasn't always the case in Yankee Stadium during parts of 1950 and 1951 when Gene Woodling was playing left field and Hank Bauer right. On days when the Yankees drew big crowds we often had difficulty hearing the outfield calls due to the crowd din.

I also recall a game in Detroit in 1957 when Myril Hoag and yours truly were running at full speed for a ball hit into the right center field hole by Goose Goslin. We both called but neither heard the other with some 40,000 people shouting. It had to be a running catch. Neither of us caught the ball. We collided head on and Hoag went to the hospital. My head must be hard. I stayed in the game. But there we were, practically unconscious on the ground while Goslin circled the bases behind two runners for an inside-the-park home run.

The outfielder closest to the man making the play should call out where the throw should be made. This often is a big help to the man whose first move is to catch the ball.

Playing the Sun Field

Watch the sunfield. You must get accustomed to the ball pattern before you put sun glasses over your eyes. In Yankee Stadium the ball seemed to play tricks on the outfielders. We never flicked the glasses down until we were sure of the flight of the ball. We waited because of the high upper stands.

I believe that's what happened in the first two games of the 1947 World Series with the Dodgers. Pete Reiser started out as Dodger center fielder and he had a lot of trouble with balls hit to the outfield. My guess is that Pete, a fine ball player, was flicking his glasses over his eyes too soon. It caused him to lose the flight of the ball because of darkness around home plate. Once you put glasses down and try to look into the stands everything seems black.

Throws and Cutoffs

Throwing the ball back to the infield is one of the big things in baseball. Always throw ahead of the runner. Of course, there are times when you can throw behind the runner when you think he has over-run the base. But this takes split second thinking and accurate timing.

Always try to throw the ball on a hop to the base. You can get more accuracy that way and it gives the infielder a better chance to see the ball.

Some fellows believe the short-stop should signal the outfielders on the type of pitch to be made to each batter. I think that is unnecessary. The Yankees never had ## part-by-part proof... Plymouth is your "best buy" in the lowest-price field!

Recently a 1954 Plymouth and current models of the other two best-known low-price cars were taken apart by Plymouth engineers and compared, part by part. Standard "stock" models were used. We've listed some typical findings below.

Plymouth is "best buy" in many ways. Here are just a few!

- Front Wheel Brakes
Plymouth engineers provide two hydraulic brake cylinders in each front wheel to ensure steady stops without "grabbing." The other two low-price cars have only one.
- Seat Springs
Plymouth uses coil seat springs for longer lasting support. The "other two" have a zigzag platform type. Also, Plymouth's "springs-on-springs" design adds more comfort.
- Piston Rings
Plymouth has four rings on each piston; the "other two" have three. Result: decreased carbon deposit, more consistent power output, increased oil economy, too!
- Micronic Oil Filter
Standard on most Plymouth models. Keeps straws dirt out of the engine, reducing wear and achieving greater oil economy. Extra cost on the other two low-price cars.

And dozens of other part-by-part comparisons prove Plymouth is your "best buy"! See us today... and get the facts!

Ask us for the big illustrated booklet that shows how Plymouth leads in frame construction... engine design... performance... economy... comfort... safety.

Go for a drive in America's "best-buy" low-price car!

Market Was Good For Sale Several Houses Buyers Of Bonds

The City commission last night sold $1,175,000 worth of revenue bonds to a group of financial houses, receiving a net amount of $1,177,740. According to City Mgr. W. E. Knowles, the City netted approximately $11,000 more than it expected in the transaction. There were two other groups bidding for the bonds. Money from the sale is to be used by the City in financing the extensive program of rehabilitating and expanding the water and sewerage facilities. The interest rate of the winning bid has an average of 3.4933 per cent. The average of the past year was 4.64 per cent. The total money to be raised by the City since 1951 is $11,000,000. Interest on financial bonds sold last night was $1,175,000. The group of financial houses included: McLeary & Co., Inc., St. Petersburg; Biggs, Shultz and Co., New York City; Townsend, Dalbey and Tyson, Boston; Fox, Benish and Co., Inc., Cincinnati; Allen Blair and Co., Chicago; and McDonald Moore and Co., Detroit. Eminent Doctor Is Flown By French To Dien Bien Phu

HANOI, Indochina (AP) - The French flew one of Indochina's most eminent doctors to Dien Bien Phu today to arrange for speedy release of French Union troops seriously wounded in the long defense of the fallen fortress. French officials hoped the mass airlift of casualties from the Viet Minh-held valley 175 miles west of Hanoi would start tomorrow. They anticipated it would bring out about 700 men - half of the 1,400 estimated wounded. The Communists agreed at the Geneva conference to release only casualties in the "serious" category. Dr. Pierre Huard, 62-year-old dean of medicine at the University of Hanoi, headed the group going to Dien Bien Phu by helicopter. The French anticipated Huard's mission would be quickly successful. French air force observers reported hundreds of coolies already were readying Dien Bien Phu's airstrip to receive the big French transports, filling in the trenches and shell holes which wrecked it during the 56 days of rebel attack. Huard's party took off from Luang Prabang, the royal Laotian capital 115 miles southwest of Dien Bien Phu. Accompanying him were two French army medical (Continued On Page Four)

WASHINGTON (AP) - Army counsel...

WASHINGTON (AP) - Army counsel John G. Adams insisted today the Army had no desire to stop the McCarthy subcommittee's investigation of Ft. Monmouth, although he conceded it was pleased when the prospect of a suspension came last fall. Adams denied the Army had ever engaged in "trading favors" for the McCarthy subcommittee's action to investigate Ft. Monmouth, although he conceded it was pleased when the prospect of a suspension came last fall. Adams said any special consideration for the Army comes from the McCarthy subcommittee's placing him as essential to its work and that any special deference for McCarthy was a matter of timing to avoid "open hostility." Adams was back in the witness chair at the McCarthy Army hearing for the second day - this time for a cross-examination. At the outset, he swore Secretary Stevens never instructed him to halt the McCarthy inquiry into alleged security risks at Ft. Monmouth and that he never attempted to stop it. But he said, as Stevens did earlier, that he wanted the "type of security" needed. Stevens had earlier testified the Army on the head. For the rest of the forenoon session (Continued On Page Four)

Johns Doesn't Take Advice Collins Pledges Sound Programs

MIAMI (AP) - Charley Johns overruled his campaign in the first round of the Florida primary today when he decided to meet Lottio Collins face-to-face tonight on a television question and answer program. Johns last night told a dinner meeting with a group of former supporters of Bradley Otham, who was eliminated in the first Democratic gubernatorial primary May 4. "I wanted to get on TV with Collins and Bradley during the first primary campaign because I like a good argument. But my friends didn't want me to. "I overruled my friends this time and will appear with the senator from Leon County." Johns said he wanted to appear on the television station at Hallandale with Collins "but he didn't." "I wanted to appear on radio but he didn't." "I hope he isn't sick tomorrow (Thursday) night. Don't you worry about Charley Johns talking early in himself. "I know we're going to whip him. We're going to whip him so bad that two years from now we won't have to put up with him running for office." Earlier in the day Johns had accepted an invitation to appear with Collins on a Miami radio station (WIOD), saying he would be glad to appear anywhere with Sen. Collins. Resurfacing Work Started In County

Extensive resurfacing of 40 miles of highway, between Dixie and Five Points on the old Sanford Orlando Highway, which began Monday is proceeding full blast today. Work on the resurfacing of two and one-half miles of State Road 66, west from the Sanford city limits to Monroe Corner is also progressing rapidly, but contract on the project can give a date of completion. These two projects are only two of a year-long drive by the county commissioners to "get our road in shape." Work will begin soon on the resurfacing of SR 16, V from west Sanford to Paola. Approximately 15 miles of this road will be resurfaced, according to the commission. Extensive work on four streets in Temple Terrace, a subdivision north of Winter Park, has been completed and turned over to the County for maintenance by the developers Carrigan and Holland. Books Of Last Century

Generations in the same family are apt to differ most over whether the world is better than it used to be, or, as the old folks would have it, worse. This is a large question, but all must admit that the American literature of the last four or five years does not show up well beside that in the five years between 1850 and 1855.

What present day novel is comparable in quality to Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter," published in 1850, or to his next year's product, "The House of the Seven Gables"?

Herman Melville's "Moby Dick," which appeared in 1852, is one of the masterpieces of fiction in English. Emerson's "Representative Men" and Thoreau's "Walden," which saw the light of day within this same five-year period, are American classics. Less remarkable but probably more popular are two other contemporary works, Longfellow's "Hiawatha" and Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Some important books have been written since 1850, but how many stand on an equality with these titles of 100 years ago?

Two Nations Become One: The map of the Middle East may soon see a startling change. The young nation of Pakistan is reported to be planning a merger with its long established neighbor Afghanistan.

What form the merger will take is not certain. Pakistan, with over 76,000,000 inhabitants and a well-trained army, is the more powerful Afghanistan has only 12,000,000 people, with a badly equipped army, though its soldiers are among the bravest fighters in the world. They would certainly have a common foreign policy and probably a commercial pact.

India will not take kindly to the union. She is already afraid of Pakistani aggression, and may regard this addition to Pakistan as an unfriendly gesture directed against her. Both India and Pakistan will have to exercise great patience toward each other if the merger goes through.

JAMES MARLOW: Indochina Poses Big Problem

WASHINGTON, May 13 (AP)—The United States is in a jam in Indochina. Part of it, or all of it, may fall to the Communists. Unless the Western world can find a way to prevent it, all Southeast Asia may go the same way.

This country now is talking of forming a military alliance in the rest of the area. In planning for this, the United States must consider a question about the three states of Indochina—Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia—which were brought into the alliance.

Asked about it at his news conference yesterday, President Eisenhower said: "No nation can be saved to the free world unless it wants to be saved. Freedom by its very definition cannot be imposed by some one who doesn't want freedom."

Fund Drive Problem

The American people are generous by habit. They frequently however, this generosity is misdirected into financing, criminate contributions to causes which they have failed to investigate. This encourages unscrupulous people to make a racket of charity and substantially reduces the amount of money available for donations to really worthy causes and organizations.

The Chamber of Commerce of Cleveland, Ohio, recently sponsored the National Conference on Solicitations at which the problem of fund-raising drives was discussed from several points of view. Before it adjourned the delegates to the conference voted to continue the work of exploring workable controls over fund-raising drives to protect worthy causes and expose and punish frauds.

A great many of the organizations which depend on public contributions for the money to carry on their work are entirely worthy. Trust in the merit and integrity of the good organizations, however, can be undermined by the work of those who stoop to improper means to raise funds for causes which are unworthy. It is to be hoped that the conference on solicitations held in Cleveland will mark the beginning of a national movement to deal with this very important problem.

By C. R. DAWSON, BSA, MSA. CORN BREEDING—No commercial variety of sweet corn possesses resistance to both northern and southern leaf blights. A line somewhat resistant to southern leaf blight may be quite susceptible to northern leaf blight. It is possible to breed more resistant varieties. Work toward this goal is in progress at the Florida Agricultural Experiment Station but it may require many years to accomplish the desired results.

PORK CHOPS—Rough handling results in thousands of animals in this country arriving at packing plants or markets dead, crippled or bruised each year. In the United States as a whole, this loss amounts to 70 million pounds of meat. That's enough hog meat to feed a city of half a million for a year. It represents a national loss of $50 million.

Syngman Rhee, The Man Behind The Myth. By Robert T. Oliver, Dodd, Mead. Dr. Oliver's biography of Syngman Rhee is a song of praise for the President of the Republic of Korea and a criticism of United States policies and officials in Korea over the last 50 years. Asia wouldn't be the political powder keg it is today, Dr. Oliver says, if major statesmen only had heeded the counsel of Rhee and given thought and effectiveness to his political programs. The biographer will find support for this attitude, and opposition as well.

The Portsmouth Treaty of 1905, in which the United States persuaded Russia to recognize rights of Japan in Korea, is listed by Dr. Oliver as the first U. S. mistake. In sharper memory, he continues, the U. S. occupation of Korea, after World War II, U. S. conduct of the Korean War and U. S. negotiations for the armistice, all were poorly managed by Rhee, the occupation was mediocre, the way settled nothing and the armistice was a booby trap.

Time will tell, says Dr. Oliver, who was right. Before the biography takes a political turn, Dr. Oliver engagingly presents some new material on the early life of Rhee, and gives a glimpse of a self-effacing but important woman, Mrs. Rhee. But since the liberation from Japan in 1945, the Rhee story has been reported in detail by Western newsmen, and Dr. Oliver adds little to their record.

The book's complicated Korean domestic politics, as much a part of Rhee's life as his dealings in international diplomacy, will be hard reading for anyone but a student of Korea, even though Dr. Oliver cuts out the cast of characters to the minimum. Roy Roberts

Hoover Director Of FBI 30 Years

By IRON WHITEHEAD (Copyright 1951 by The Associated Press). WASHINGTON (AP)—Thirty years ago on May 10, 1924—U. S. Atty. Gen. Harlan Fiske Stone summoned a dark-haired young lawyer in to his office, peered at him over his glasses and said gruffly: "Young man, I want you to be acting director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

Thus began the remarkable partnership between J. Edgar Hoover and the FBI, a partnership that has endured through and into the administrations of five presidents and 11 attorneys general. A partnership that has brought recognition and fame, bricksbats and attacks—but no sign of interruption.

The graying chief looked back over those 30 years the other day as he sat still long enough for a rare and surprisingly long interview in his office tucked away in the gravelstone Department of Justice building on Pennsylvania Avenue.

It's a quiet, comfortable office. Outside the main door are two American flags and above the entrance is the department seal. A small flag, flanked by vases of flowers, stands on his desk. On a radio cabinet is a bronze head of Dante, the philosopher and poet. On the walls are framed landscapes of mountains and deserts. The only portrait is an oil painting of Stone, who left the department to become a Supreme Court justice. You sense that Stone was a man who meant much to Hoover.

A mounted sailfish adorns one wall, a 60-pound prize from a 45-minute fight with rod and reel off Miami Beach 18 years ago. As for the desk, it might be the desk of any business executive who keeps a tidy workshop.

Except for an intercommunications box, there is nothing to indicate that from this room J. Edgar Hoover controls and directs a huge law enforcement agency touching the safety, the freedoms and the security of a nation.

Hoover recalls the 1924 Stone interview and grinned. "Mr. Stone was scowling when I came in. He always scowled. He was a rugged, gruff, but fair man. The scowl was a mannerism and not something in his personality. "I told him I would take the job only on two conditions.

"He said: 'What are they?' "I said the bureau had to be divorced from politics, with appointments made solely on merit. Second, promotions would be made on proved ability. The FBI would set up a catch-all for political hacks, and would be responsible only to the attorney general.

"Mr. Stone scowled again and said: 'I wouldn't give it to you under any other conditions. That's all. Good day.' "Then Hoover added: "I never thought in those days the bureau would be the size it is today—that I would be sitting in this chair as director.

"At the time, I was thinking of going into private practice of law and I considered the job as a temporary responsibility. "The other day I gave one of our agents his 30 year key, something that always gives me a thrill. He said: 'Mr. Hoover, I'll start my next 20 years with the FBI if you'll start your next 30.' And that made me realize I have been around here a long time. Now I'm beginning to see the sons and grandsons of FBI men apply for jobs with the FBI. That gives me a lot of satisfaction.

In the course of the talk, I put to Hoover a question that has cropped up intermittently from the day the FBI was first formed in 1896.

"Is there a danger of the FBI becoming a gattopato? What is to prevent the FBI from using police state methods?" Hoover's reply was quick and emphatic.

"No, there is no danger of the FBI becoming a gattopato—not if we have men of character in the organization and an alert public opinion. "We must continue to have men of good moral character such as we have today. We may make some mistakes in our choices, but if we get the right type of men they will refuse to stoop to gattopato-type methods. I couldn't order my men to ignore fairness, make false promises, use brutality, or engage in third-degree methods. They simply wouldn't do it because they're not that kind.

"Public opinion is a great force. The inquiring attitude of the American press is a magnificent factor in keeping an organization honorable and clean. We couldn't get the approval of the press with unethical and improper methods. "Then, too, there are the checks and balances under which we operate, and properly so. The FBI is not an independent entity. It's under the attorney general, and he is the first check against us. We must go before the bureau of the budget and justify the funds to carry on our work.

"Then there is the greatest check of all—Congress. I must give report on the funds I request, and report on our stewardship. The questions fired at me in congressional committees are without regard to partisan politics. They are incisive and searching. We must have the support of Congress to exist, and the FBI could not become a gattopato so long as there is a searching attitude by Congress.

"Finally, there are the courts with their check against our procedures. The courts soon would expose the use of improper searches and seizures—and so would public opinion.

"I must explain every item in our budget and how the money is used. I never want any secret fund, any lump sum appropriation for which I don't have to account. I want to account for every cent, because an unexplained fund can lead to abuses.

"As it stands, we don't have to apologize for being in the FBI. This standard we live by has paid off. There never has been a scandal involving the FBI in the past 30 years. We are fair and we are hard. But that's the way it should be.

I asked about reports and insinuations that FBI files are open to some congressional investigators—and that the FBI files are full of cases where its own agents can't get evidence for a court case.

Hoover snapped: "I can say unequivocally that is an absolute lie. "I'm pretty sensitive to the matter of our files. There's nothing more important than the sanctity and integrity of our files. I've consistently resisted every attempt by the press to make available. Dark FBI files have leaked out through other agencies. People like to throw the name of the FBI around. They wave a report and say 'This is from the FBI'—but the report was not furnished by the FBI.

"Some ex-FBI agents are on congressional committee staffs. People think an ex-agent has an open pipeline to the FBI but it isn't true. If anything we'd lean over backward in order to give no reason for such a suspicion. We can't be responsible for ex-agents. Many fine men have left the organization. But we can't speak for all of them.

"If people ever get the idea that our files are a sieve—then there will be a loss of confidence in us. We must be sure the country's security will be in peril."

Hoover's sense of what is right and what is wrong leaves few gray areas in his own standards of conduct. There is a strong religious streak in Hoover's character and to him God, home and country are sacred things which must be protected from evil forces.

"I find my own rules of conduct laid down in the 6th chapter, 18th verse of which he said: "This says: 'and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?'"

Be Sure of a Better Future in a Free Florida: All Florida citizens have much to gain by making the right selection of a Governor on May 25 and much to lose if they don't. Fortunately the problem of selecting right isn't difficult.

Along with machine politics always goes the typical campaign promising of everything to everybody. What is hidden from your view are the selfish interests, the sectionalism, the disappointments, the wastes, the failures that do not show up until after the shackles are set and it is too late to throw them off.

History of other states shows that it takes years and years for people to free themselves. If they ever do, from the bondage of plundering, wasteful, economy-sapping machine politics once they start. You cannot let this happen in Florida! LeRoy Collins will not let this happen in Florida! He pledges himself to sound the warning and to call all citizens, regardless of whom they voted for in the first primary, to join the cause and help your own future by keeping Florida FREE!

Minister's Funeral Wishes Fulfilled

FLORENCE, N. C.—The Rev. Dr. P. Frank Price's funeral request was fulfilled yesterday, thanks to interdenominational teamwork.

The former moderator of the Southern Presbyterian Church, who died Monday, had asked that his funeral be at Central Methodist Church here. That was for convenience of the staff of nearby Melrose Infirmary, which he had served as chaplain.

A state-wide women's convention was scheduled for the Methodist church at the hour of the services, so the First Baptist Church stepped in with an offer accepted by the Methodist women to meet there.

Soviet Union Has Problem With its Wayward Youth

MOSCOW — It is becoming increasingly apparent that the Soviet Union has a problem in what to do about its wayward youth.

The evidence is a steadily mounting Communist Party and press campaign to curb delinquent youngsters who do too much drinking and work drinking or generally go astray and tangle with the police.

There is juvenile crime in the Soviet Union ranging from hawking and petty thievery to murder. The Communist press complains there is a sharp lack of discipline in some homes and schools. There even are some so-called "killed youths" whose parents gave them too much money and freedom.

The increasingly critical press campaign features reports about juveniles who stole into black-market ticket scalping and other shady activities and computers about teenage girls and young party girls and boys.

Soviet youth is involved in one of the great tasks confronting the nation: the cultivation of a new generation of labor and technicians to increase crop production. The project calls for the training of more than 100,000 youths from the cities to farm the country.

The party press and the Communist Youth League call for discipline within the youth league and by the parents. Parents are told to stop trying to shift the blame on the schools. Teachers are urged to be more responsible.

The press also calls for strong action against parents who allow their children to be influenced by bad habits of vice.

In Western countries one would also call on the churches to help. But here youth is told to stay out of the churches and instead devote itself diligently to Marx-Leninist lectures. Young Communists who join the church are expelled. And local government and party officials are being reminded that they should set a good example by not going to church.

Typical of the press reports is a recent article in Izvestia, the trade union newspaper, relating a Saturday night's events in a militia police station near Gorki Street, Moscow's main drag.

The first group to be brought into the station, the reporter related, was some young athletes who had been in a fight in a restaurant. When remanded and told to go to their rooms, the athletes had to be escorted in a taxi to their homes because they displayed not the slightest shame for their actions.

Next to be brought in was a young girl just past 20 with dyed hair, a "harsh" look, a cigarette, and with black streams of mascara streaming from her point of eyelids.

She was picked up near the Moscow Hotel with some youth who had been in a fight in a restaurant. She had a look of a little girl and she was going to her room.

Then came a group of three out of whom two were 15- and one had just got into a brawl. The first thing they said was: "My father is an army officer and my father is a colonel and my uncle is also a responsible official."

One father did come down to the station. He showed no concern about his son but wanted to know what was the matter with the boy. The mother of one of the boys, a Communist, had to be taken to the station because she had no money to pay the fine.

The father of another Communist delinquent parent who had children, panicked them and gave them tremendous outbursts.

Stoddery is another instance, especially among those children whose fathers have good jobs in the government or the arts or professions.

The father of a party told of a boy who was caught by his parents in a fight with friends from his school. The only children of government or party ministers, members of the Academy of Sciences, directors of trust or central banks, if the child of a mere official or lawyer came in to pay a fine.

The father of a boy who is to follow in his father's footsteps and become a scientist, but who became a delinquent, said: "I am a scientist and I am a scientist."

Communism, Pravda holds, is a positive example for the youth of the world. Young Red workers let drunken "hooligans" break up their party although the hall was filled with weight lifters, boxers and other athletes and went timidly yelling for police instead of taking direct action.
