Nixon Seeks Veep After Agnew Resigns

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon sought the counsel of Republicans and top Democrats today on a vice-presidential successor to Spiro T. Agnew, who resigned admitting federal income tax evasion.

Nixon has told the political leaders he wants tonight suggestions or advice they have on naming a nominee to succeed Agnew.

After talking with the President Wednesday evening, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Nixon expected to nominate a successor later this week or early next week.

Mansfield and House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., met with Nixon after a meeting of the Republican congressional leaders.

Agnew resigned Wednesday afternoon shortly before he faced U.S. District Court Judge Walter E. Hoffman in a Baltimore courtroom.

Agnew pleaded no contest to a criminal tax evasion charge that he filed a false joint income tax statement for 1967 that reported income of $28,000 and taxes of $6,416, when in fact his income was $55,509 and he owed taxes of $19,967.

Hoffman said he regarded Agnew's no contest plea as an admission of guilt.

Hoffman sentenced Agnew to three years unsupervised probation and fined him $10,000.

Agnew's resignation and plea were his part of an agreement reached with Justice Department officials who agreed not to pursue charges of bribery, extortion and conspiracy against him. Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson had personally directed the federal investigation of Agnew and described the evidence as "damaging."

In an unusual move, the Justice Department released through the court a 40-page document detailing the evidence amassed against Agnew on all charges, including those that were dropped.

The document charged that for 10 years Agnew sought and accepted thousands of dollars in cash kickbacks from consulting engineers in Maryland.

Agnew said he was innocent of all the charges except the one on which he entered his plea.

After outlining the federal case against Agnew, Richardson made an official plea for leniency for the former vice president.

"...Out of compassion for the man, out of respect for the office he has held, and out of respect for the fact that by his resignation he has spared the nation the prolonged agony that would have attended upon his trial, I urge that the sentence imposed on the defendant by this court not include confinement," Richardson said.

RICHARD NIXON... Spiro Agnew... Gets probation

Hoffman responded that he usually imposed short jail terms in cases like these as a possible deterrent for others, but in this matter would accept the agreement made between the Justice Department and Agnew.

Apparently Agnew's scenario was agreed upon Tuesday night in a 40-minute meeting between Nixon and Agnew in the Oval Office.

Agnew's formal resignation was given to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and was delivered by an Agnew attorney at 2:16 p.m. EDT, Wednesday. It read, starkly: "I hereby resign the office of the vice president of the United States, effective immediately."

In a longer letter to Nixon, Agnew said he was resigning in the best interests of the nation.

"It has been a privilege to serve with you," Agnew wrote. "May I express to you, my deep gratitude for their confidence in twice electing me to be vice president."

In a "Dear Ted" letter of reply, Nixon said Agnew's resignation "leaves me with a great sense of personal loss. You have been a valued associate."

However, Nixon agreed the move was necessary "in order to prevent a protracted period of national division and uncertainty."

AROUND THE CLOCK
By John A. Spolaki

You are wrong Mr. Agnew! Your resignation, although distasteful to all Americans, was the only proper action which could be taken by a person in your position and circumstances.

Hopefully, it will cause others in public office to also take into consideration that placing "country interest before personal ambition."

Mr. Agnew admitted that "I did receive payments during the year 1967 which were not expended for political purposes, and that therefore, these payments were income taxable to me in that year and that I so knew."

That was a wrong. And when we violate the laws of the land, then we have to pay the penalty, regardless of station of life!

You were partially wrong in suggesting that "the accusations against me cannot be resolved without a long, divisive and debilitating struggle in the Congress and in the courts."

As a matter of fact, there will be those who will now think more highly of you as a result of your unrepentant move.

You had a chance to prove that they were "damned lies" and instead elected to remove yourself from office.

Perhaps now Mr. Nixon will also "side that the charges made against him during Watergate are "lies," or else agree to reveal the only source which can forever remove the seeds of suspicion on this infamous act, and permit the contents of the White House tapes to be heard.

Your actions, Mr. Agnew will hopefully trigger a nationwide reaction of political reforms, or as you had stated, "divisive and debilitating struggles" will certainly envelope this great land of ours.

Only by our most prestigious national leaders demonstrating a true sense of loyalty and incorruptibility, transcending to the city level of politics (if you will, to the very core of your country right in our own homes), can we hope to again gain the respect of the world.

Finally, I am hoping that all Americans will base their thoughts and dedication that what has happened cannot be permitted to continue because "it's always been that way in the past."

We have a golden opportunity to return to righteousness and once again be proud Americans.

Agnew Court Text

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is the written version of the statement by Spiro T. Agnew, who resigned as vice president and entered a plea of no contest to charges against him in a Baltimore courtroom.

Rests on my firm belief that the public interest requires swift disposition of the problems which are facing me. I am advised that a full legal defense of the probable charges against me could consume several years. I am concerned that intense media interest in the case would distract public attention from important national problems to the country's detriment.

I am aware that witnesses are prepared to testify to that preferential treatment was accorded to the paying companies pursuant to an understanding with me when I was the governor.

I stress, however, that no contracts were awarded to contractors who were not competent to perform the work and in most instances state contracts were awarded without any arrangement for the payment of money by the contractor.

I deny that the payments in any way influenced my official actions. I am confident, moreover, that testimony presented in my behalf would make it clear that I at no time conducted my duties as county executive or governor of Maryland in a manner harmful to the interests of the state, or my duties as vice president of the United States in a manner harmful to the nation, and, further, assert that my acceptance of contributions was part of a long-established pattern of political fund-raising in the state. At no time have I enriched myself at the expense of the public trust.

In all the circumstances, I have concluded that protracted proceedings before the grand jury, the Congress and the courts, with the speculation and controversy surrounding them, would seriously prejudice the national interest.

These, briefly stated, are the reasons I am entering a plea of no contest to the charge that I did receive payments in 1967 which I failed to report for the purposes of income taxation.

Casselberry School Probe Is Underway

By MARK WEINTZ
Herald Staff Writer

County school authorities are investigating parents' complaints that new procedures at Casselberry Elementary School are detrimental to the education of students.

School Supt. William Layer confirmed the probe is underway after parents and Casselberry PTA officers brought the complaints to the school board Wednesday night.

Ken Fischer, PTA president, told school board members, the elementary school's administration should be investigated and called the school "terrible."

Right handed children are separated from left handed children, boys are separated from girls, and there are situations at the school which are not conducive to education, Fischer said.

"The investigation is already under way," Layer told Fischer.

Investigation of a school is standard procedure when parents complain about any aspect of operation, Layer said.

"The investigation was called to determine if any of the procedures at the school are of real detriment to educational process," Layer said.

C.M. Harp, principal at Casselberry Elementary, said today, "Any time there is controversy the school board will investigate and let you know the results."

"Boys and girls are separated in kindergarten through second grade in an attempt to determine if there is a difference in learning ability between the sexes," Harp said.

"Both programs are new this year and the only reason behind the installation of these programs is to find ways to help the children," Harp said.

The drivers' pay raise received final approval at the meeting but they complained saying the non-retroactive pay raise is not fair.

The drivers indicated they may not be able to show up for work if the pay raise was not made retroactive.

School Supt. William P. Layer said, "Florida law prohibits public employees from striking, and if you fail to show up for work, terminate your employment."

The bus drivers left the meeting after the decision and were huddling noisily in the hall when their supervisors, Woodrow Burness and Fred Taylor, left the meeting to convince them to come to work in the morning.

The talk between the drivers and their superiors must have succeeded because Roy Wright, transport manager of Transpotation, reported this morning, "There are no more

Miami Stations Close

MIAMI (AP) — Hundreds of Dade County gasoline stations were reported closed today as dealers protested government price controls but the shutdowns gave no sign of spreading out of Florida's most populous county.

"We might have as many as 500 stations closed," said William Scherer of the Florida Allied Gasoline Retailers Association.

"These are all individual actions and are not sponsored by us or any group," he said. "Each dealer has his own reasons for closing down but it all boils down to the squeeze stations operators are in now."

Scherer said dealers were protesting against price controls slapped on them by the federal government, which coupled with increased wholesale prices handed down by major oil companies, has dug deep into service station profits.

"The picture doesn't look very rosy," Scherer said.

Bruce O'Quinn, president of the retailers association in Dade, said this morning that his organization would hold a 6 p.m. meeting for all county gasoline dealers.

"We want them to have a chance to say what they want to say," he said.

Both Scherer and O'Quinn said they knew of no protests outside of Dade County.

Resignation Letters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following are the texts of Spiro T. Agnew's formal letter of resignation as vice president and Secretary of State Henry A. Seminole County school bus drivers showed up at work today despite the unhappiness they expressed at the school board meeting Wednesday night because their pay raise is not retroactive to the beginning of the academic year.

Drummond Mum On Permit

By J. H. CHAMBERS

Commissioner Greg Drummond today declined to comment on a building permit for a private residence on Hibson Street, in Longwood, the subject of a blistering report from the recent Grand Jury investigation of building practices in Seminole County.

GREG DRUMMOND
...No comment

The report refers to actions by a county commissioner "bordering on criminality" for ordering a work stop without notifying the contractor and then not bringing up the matter before the commission for almost a full month.

CALNO Mayors Declare War On Mooney's Local Annex Law

LAKE MARY—CALNO Council of Local Governments mayors Wednesday night declared all out war on the Rep. Eugene Mooney-sponsored state law for Seminole County requiring notification of adjacent property owners of lands to be annexed and rezoned.

However, during the May 22 commission meeting, Drummond reversed his role and moved to rescind the permit refusal. The motion passed, after being seconded by Williams.

It wasn't until then that the contractor, Larry Ballinger, who appeared before the grand jury during its weeklong look at county building practices, was notified of any move by the commission.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Fla., a 1972 presidential contender, will be keynote speaker at the University of Florida Homecoming banquet Nov. 16.

What Is Your Reaction To Vice President Agnew's Resignation?

(Herald Photos by Jean Patteson)

JOE GRANDEL
I didn't like him as vice president anyway. I think he did a good thing resigning to do the all the hassle. If he wasn't guilty, he wouldn't resign.

FRANK DALEY
It's too bad. My impression of Agnew is he's a great American—too great an American to put Congress through the ordeal of impeaching him.

CHERYL HUGHES
I'm surprised. I expected him to fight. I'm also sorry for him.

CLIFF MCKIBBIN
I hope as a civilian he turns up other rotten eggs I'm sure are under some rocks.

ANDY BRACKEN
I'm surprised because he's given every indication he had nothing to hide. I was surprised he pleaded no contest. I hate to see it happen, but if it's going to clean up politics, I'M ALL FOR IT.

PETE KNOWLES
It's surprise the heck out of me. When a vice-president resigns, where do you get another vice-president?

BUD LAYER
I'm flabbergasted a person in his position of trust could plead no contest to such a charge.

A Sad Day For America

Agnew Quitting Latest Of The Shocks

Spiro Agnew's conviction for income tax evasion Wednesday and his resignation from the vice presidency of the United States is the latest startling event in a series of shocking happenings the American people have suffered over the past few years.

Only in a democracy do elected officials come under the constant scrutiny of a free press and thus have their activities revealed in detail to the people.

Too often, however, with information readily available the American people are led to paint all public servants with the same brush of dishonesty and corruption. America is blessed with many dedicated men in public office.

It is unfortunate that this crisis came at a time when the nation was already deeply concerned with the Watergate scandal and the Middle East war.

The 197-year history of this great democracy has shown the United States will survive this crisis as it has many others in the past and become stronger for the experience. Now is the time for Americans to place confidence in the Democratic processes and to have faith that a universally recognized, respected and eminently qualified statesman will be chosen to fill the second most important office in the land.

The president is urged to seek a man for vice president who can receive bi-partisan support. A man of the calibre of Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Washington) or Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Arizona) or former Secretary of State William Rogers.

It is important to the nation that the chosen nominee does not use this office as a stepping stone to the presidency.

This would only create further dissension and investigation.

He must be a man, however, who could carry on the duties of the presidency if called upon to do so.

This entire episode will leave an unremovable blot on American history.

SPIRO T. AGNEW

Agnew 'Triumph' is A Disaster

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was to have been a term of triumph, but the first of President Nixon's four more years has instead been a time of disaster.

And while the resignation of Spiro T. Agnew as vice president was greeted with relief, another crisis, it also presents him an opportunity to rebuild and perhaps restore shaken confidence in his administration.

Amid the disclosures that Watergate and its cover-up reached top echelons in the White House, Nixon could only maintain his personal innocence and urge that the nation turn its attention to other business.

In the case of Agnew, who admitted income tax evasion while denying government accusations of other wrongdoing, Nixon can act.

Within hours of Agnew's resignation, the President was doing so, consulting congressional leaders about the selection of a new vice president. He advised them he would make his nomination within days. Then it will be up to Congress. The situation is not without political peril. The man Nixon chooses must be confirmed by both houses of a Democratic Congress. That process will in effect amount to a vote of confidence on the Republican side.

He must be a man, however, who could carry on the duties of the presidency if called upon to do so.

This entire episode will leave an unremovable blot on American history.

It has a built-in "speeding machine."

She's Enslaved To The Coffee Pot

By JOAN COLBY
Copy News Service

The other day I picked up an instructive publication of Consumers' Union titled "Licit and Illicit Drugs."

Imagine my horror, on glancing through the volume, to discover that I, who have always considered myself a free spirit, am, in fact, addicted to a potent mood-changer, and possible chromosome damager.

Not only am I enslaved by this vice, I will bet a nickel you are, too. The agent in question is not LSD, opium, barbiturates, amphetamines, alcohol, or even nicotine. No, it's the ordinary cup of coffee.

Why, it is flirting with the grim reaper to consume as much as 50 or 60 cups per morning.

Not that many people actually do imbibe that heavily; but then, you never know, as the Demon Caffeine gets a grip on your system, insidiously you might be drinking more. And more. And enjoying it less.

Calculatingly developing a short-term energy crisis in order to get what it wants out of Washington.

I'm hooked on the dread drug caffeine.

I used to think I had that tasty zozning cup to start my day bright-eyed and bushy-tailed. Now I'm dimly aware that I'm experiencing withdrawal symptoms, and I've begun regarding my perky coffee pot as the Dealer.

Furthermore, I am informed that an overdose of this drug causes jitteriness, sleeplessness and stomach upset, symptoms I used to casually dismiss as "coffee nerves."

Whereas 70 to 100 cups of java quickly consumed constitutes a lethal dose—and no lethal dose has been determined for LSD or marijuana—the implication is clear. It's a dangerous drug, friends.

Why, it is flirting with the grim reaper to consume as much as 50 or 60 cups per morning.

Not that many people actually do imbibe that heavily; but then, you never know, as the Demon Caffeine gets a grip on your system, insidiously you might be drinking more. And more. And enjoying it less.

Calculatingly developing a short-term energy crisis in order to get what it wants out of Washington.

Ten cups today. Twenty tomorrow. You're enveloped by terror that someone might find out. Your neighbor might drop in and find five pots perking simultaneously, while you flutter about in the clutches of shifty-eyed Mr. Coffee Nerves.

And to think that your uniformed mother merely told you that it would stunt your growth rather than revealing your future lifelong enslavement to the Coffee Bean.

Don't think you can escape by switching to tea, cocoa, cola drinks or NoDoz pills. All of these supposedly innocuous substances also are filled with the perils of caffeine.

As for substituting an unrelated habit such as dipping snuff, this is like giving up whisky to smoke opium.

Pursuing this logically, there is practically no experience that could not be described as addictive; at least psychologically. Look at all those weak-willed slaves devoted to eating three squares per day. Or the compulsive readers, TV watchers, tennis players and stamp collectors.

Don Nixon's Dominican Trip

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — F. Donald Nixon, the President's irrepressible brother, showed up in the Dominican Republic in October, 1969, to talk business with President Joaquin Balaguer.

In the back room of the presidential palace, they discussed what Donald could do for the Dominican Republic and what the Dominicans could do for Donald.

Out of the powwow came mining concessions for Donald and an opportunity to build a luxury apartment complex on government-owned ocean frontage in Santo Domingo.

In return, Balaguer wanted Donald to use his influence with the White House. Recalls businessman John Meier, who accompanied Donald Nixon to Santo Domingo.

BACK ROOM GAMBIT

"Balaguer was talking in front of a group of people, and he was blunt about it. He said he needed White House help in his election, and he said he needed a bigger share of the sugar quota."

"Later on, when everybody was outside, Balaguer said something to his interpreter, and the interpreter came over and whispered to Don. Balaguer and Don then went to the back room and closed the door."

The following year, the Dominican sugar quota was increased from 450,000 to 515,000 tons. And two veteran Republican campaigners, Clinton White and ex-Rep. Donald "But" Lukens, went to Santo Domingo during Balaguer's election campaign.

Three witnesses have sworn to us in affidavits that they heard Donald say he never embarked on his business adventures without first checking with the President.

NIXON'S CONCERN

But White House sources tell us the President was so concerned about Donald's activities and fearing that he asked side jobs to keep an eye on Donald and, finally, ordered a tap on Donald's telephone.

Ehrlichman became particularly suspicious of Donald's dealings with Meier, formerly a business aide of billionaire Howard Hughes.

Once, Ehrlichman asked the President's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, to fly to Las Vegas to check on Meier. Another time, the President's friend, Bebe Rebozo, telephoned Hughes' headquarters in Las Vegas and demanded that Meier be kept away from Donald.

Subsequently, Rebozo made another call to Hughes' headquarters and angrily reported that his informants had just told him Meier and Donald were together at that moment at the Orange County airport.

MEIER'S PROBLEMS

Meier was subsequently sued by Hughes who charged his former associate with skimming off profits from mining claims. Meier is also under indictment in Nevada on tax evasion charges. He claims the charges are politically motivated and are an outgrowth of the White House phone taps on Donald.

My associate George Clifford flew to Vancouver, British Columbia, to talk to Meier about the Dominican deal. "We were in the Dominican Republic looking at deals," confirmed Meier. "Donald toured the property we were offered for the apartments. He did all the talking with Balaguer."

Clifford also flew to New York City to see businessman Thomas E. Murray Jr., who made the arrangements for the Dominican trip.

"They took us on a helicopter tour of properties that were possible sites for real estate development," recalled Murray. "But our main purpose was to have the minister of mining come up with an area for exploration for us."

Club Sends Prayers Cabinet Gets Report

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Syrian-Lebanese-American Club of Orlando has called on United States officials to take the lead in securing peace in the Middle East. "We are not calling for war or revenge," said Father John Hames of the St. George Eastern Orthodox Church in Winter Park at a rally of about 100 persons Wednesday night. "We are not sending money. All we are sending is a prayer."

Dental License Restored

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The precept of immunity from prosecution for persons compelled to testify against their will applies not only to criminal cases but administrative sanctions as well, the Florida Supreme court has ruled.

In a 4-3 opinion which reversed a previous decision, the high court Wednesday ordered the state Board of Dentistry to restore the license of Dr. Jack Lurie.

The board revoked Lurie's license in September, 1971, after charging him with misconduct for allegedly receiving stolen automobiles. The administrative action followed Lurie's appearance before Brevard County solicitor in which he was granted immunity for his testimony in 1967 about a car theft ring.

Immunity from prosecution is used to force testimony from persons who refuse to give evidence in their Fifth Amendment protection against self incrimination.

The agency's proposal includes 573,440 acres for the planned Big Cypress fresh water preserve and 255,440 acres for a buffer zone around the swamp.

Police Records Ruling

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Police records may be introduced as evidence in criminal cases if they are critical to the defense, the state Supreme Court has ruled. The court said in a 4-1 opinion Wednesday that the trial judge should view the records first to be sure they are essential and to protect them from unwarranted invasion.

A new trial was ordered for Marvin Edwin Johnson who was denied the right to introduce arrest records during his trial in Duval County criminal court of record. He was charged with first degree murder in a store in January, 1970, and was sentenced to 15 years in prison.

Garrett Claims Coverup Tried By Turner Aides

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A former executive in Glenn W. Turner's mink oil cosmetics business says Turner aides tried to cover up evidence of wrongdoing by two defendants in the Turner mail fraud trial.

Roy Lynn Garrett, 34, of Dallas, Ore., testified Wednesday in the federal trial of Turner, Boston attorney F. Lee Bailey and seven executives of Turner companies.

The government charged nine of defrauding buyers of distributors in Turner's

Tampan May Ask For Own Death

TAMPA (AP) — Raymond Alwyn McMahon has pleaded guilty to two counts of murder in the July hit-and-run deaths of two young sisters in exchange for a life term and the right to later ask for his own execution. "It's his life and that's what he has asked," said Rick Edwards, McMahon's appointed attorney, following Wednesday's unusual plea agreement. "I don't advocate it," Edwards added.

McMahon, 31 and a former Bible student, made the surprise plea before Hillsborough Circuit Judge Herobert S. Ryder. Ryder accepted the guilty plea but reserved sentencing until Oct. 19.

Another of McMahon's public defenders, Thomas Meyer, asked that McMahon be examined to determine if he is a sexual psychopath.

McMahon was charged in a July 14 hit-and-run incident in northwest Tampa that fatally injured sisters Rabya, 5, and Roxanne Caton, 13, and slightly injured their brother, Curtis, 12.

Police said the three were walking single-file along a residential street toward their home just after dark when McMahon drove past with his lights out.

McMahon made several other lights-out passes before suddenly switching on his headlights and veering into the three children, police said. He stopped, picked up the limp form of Roxanne, put her in the car and sped away, police said.

Don Oakley

Nader, the villain; Nader, the hero

It's news of some kind when a businessman has nice words to say about Ralph Nader. No less than the president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has done just that. The consumer advocate has been described in some quarters as "an enemy of the system." But if businessmen "look with fresh eyes at Ralph Nader and the kind of consumerism he represents," they would realize that "his commitment is to make the system work," says Edward B. Rust, who is also president of the six companies in the State Farm insurance group.

The whole point of Nader, says Rust, "—as obvious that it is often overlooked— is his single-minded dedication to making the free enterprise system work as it's supposed to — to make marketplace realities out of the very virtues that businessmen ascribe to the system."

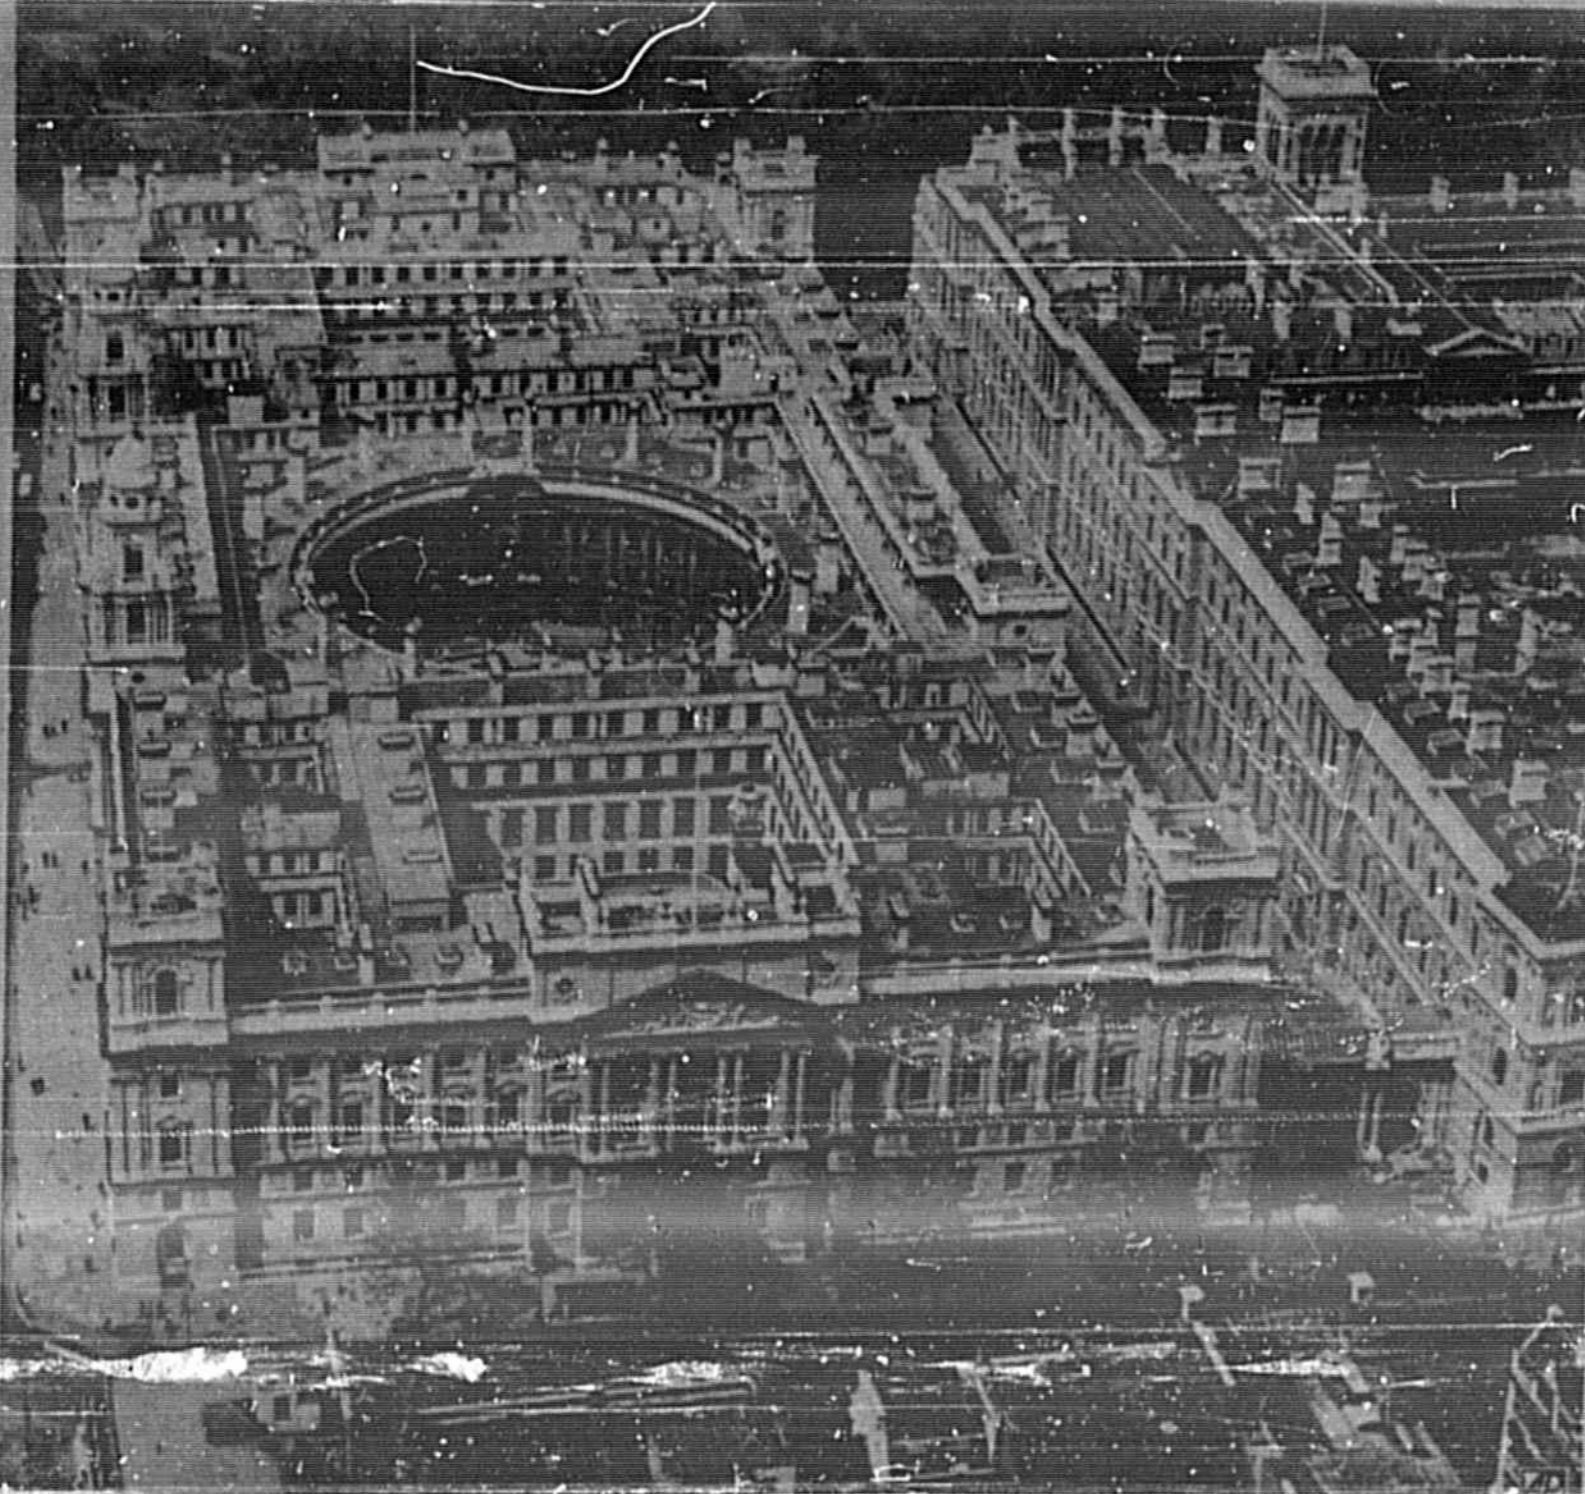

That, he says, "suggests a considerable degree of faith in the system and contrasts sharply with the revolutionary who would tear it down."

Well, you win some and you lose some. At about the same time that Rust was praising the Caesar of the consumerism movement, another source was challenging him to put his convictions where his mouth is.

The point of contention was Nader's recent charge that "there's no question that the oil industry has been calculatingly developing a short-term energy crisis in order to get what it wants out of Washington. The claim is "nonsense — and stale nonsense, at that," counters the American Petroleum Institute.

"If Mr. Nader has facts to back up his charge," the API says, "as a citizen he should present the information to a grand jury. If he has no such proof, he is doing the public disservice by adding to the confusion surrounding the energy issue."

1967 War Recalled By Reporters

Editor's Note: Today is the sixth day in the fourth Arab-Israeli war. At that point in the last one, in 1967, the Israelis were on the brink of triumph. This time victory is in sight for neither side. In the following dispatches, Associated Press correspondents compare the situation then and now as it appears from the Israeli and Arab sides of the fighting.

TEL AVIV (AP) — The new Middle East war enters its sixth day today, but unlike 1967, when the Israeli military machine at this juncture had decimated its Arab foes, the fighting is far from over.

"It is not going to be a short war," Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv, the deputy chief of staff, told newsmen Tuesday night. "The people of Israel can expect no easy and elegant victories. We will have to do a lot of fighting."

It was a different story six years ago on the dawn of the sixth day of battle. The armies of Egypt and Jordan were defeated. Only Syria, staggering under punishing Israeli attacks, still held out along the Golan Heights. By nightfall it, too, fell.

In the span of six June days, Israel in a lightning series of attacks had destroyed more than 400 Arab planes, many of them still on the ground, set ablaze or captured 500 tanks, killed more than 20,000 soldiers, and captured thousands more. The Sinai Desert was a tank graveyard as Egyptian soldiers abandoned their vehicles and fled across the Suez Canal.

This time Israeli forces find themselves entangled in a savage struggle against a stubborn Egyptian army in the Sinai desert and a determined Syrian force on the Golan Heights.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Arabs are not shattered on the sixth day of the new Middle East war, and that in itself has almost wiped out the shameful traumas of the last war in 1967.

Whatever the eventual outcome of the new fighting, just the fact that the Egyptian and Syrian armies are still shooting today is a source of cautious Arab pride after six years of living with the taste of humiliation.

On the last day of the six-day war in 1967, the Arab armies lay prostrate, their weapons destroyed, their men dead or penned behind the barbed wire of Israeli prison camps.

Israel had made a mockery of the boasts of threats uttered only a week before by the leaders of Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Jordan and other countries.

Nixon Aides Talk Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Los Angeles police reports dispute the testimony of top administration aides that President Nixon's campaign headquarters in Hollywood, Calif., was bombed last year and that the President was denied the right to speak by a "near-violent" demonstration. The reports were introduced at the Senate Watergate hearings Wednesday. Proceedings were to resume today with testimony from Richard Stearns and Frank Mankiewicz, two of Sen. George McGovern's lieutenants in last year's Democratic presidential campaign.

U.S. Is Preparing To Supply Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States appears to be laying the groundwork for a major resupply effort for Israel should that nation suffer continuing heavy losses in its war with Syria and Egypt. But officials stress that no decision has been made. They say the United States is concentrating on a diplomatic drive to find a consensus with the Soviet Union and other powers for at least a ceasefire to end the fighting, and more preferably for a framework for a lasting negotiated settlement. Robert J. McCloskey, a State Department spokesman, said a massive airlift of Soviet supplies to Egypt and Syria, reportedly under way, "would tend to put a new face on the situation" both for Israeli forces in the field and for the United States.

Cuban Diplomats Try Chile Assault

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Cuba's foreign minister and his aides tried to storm the General Assembly rostrum Wednesday night to attack the Chilean ambassador. U.N. guards and delegates from other nations including Nicaragua, Paraguay, Uruguay, Bolivia and Chile stopped Foreign Minister Raul Roa a few yards from the podium. Later Roa told the assembly he rushed to Chilean Ambassador Raul Bazan "solely and exclusively to give him the slap that he required."

Bazan had called Prime Minister Fidel Castro "an impotent leader with expansionist goals" and Roa "a man who chews the cud of hatred and knows nothing of dignity." Bazan said Castro "used to watch executions and invited diplomats from other countries to watch." At that point, Roa and his aides rushed down a side aisle toward the front of the chamber shouting "son of a bitch" and "fag" in Spanish. Nicaraguan delegates rose from their seats and shouted the same words back at the Cubans. The chief U.N. security officer, Lt. Col. Harold A. Trimble of Canada, said the incident was "potentially the most serious" moment in his five years at the United Nations.

Gambling Is Suicidal

By SHAUNA LINDSAY Copley News Service Compulsive gambling can be fatal. June knows. As the wife of a compulsive gambler, she has attempted suicide several times. "Last October, I took two bottles of tranquilizers," June (not her real name) said. "If my son hadn't tried to wake me during the night, I would have been dead. For three days after that, it wasn't certain I'd live." June, recently out of the hospital after another suicide attempt, told her story at a meeting of Gam-Anon, a fellowship of the family members of compulsive gamblers. "After my most recent overdose, I found it hard to regain trust and faith in my husband," she related. "I made excuses to friends and our three children when he wasn't at home. I thought there was something wrong with me if he was a compulsive gambler." Ellen, whose husband has been with Gamblers Anonymous for nine years, approaches the problem differently. "I felt marriage was for better or for worse," she said. "I guess the compulsive gambling was the worse." She said she somehow had felt her husband's gambling problem was her fault. "I would do anything to cover up his gambling," she recalled. "He drinks after gambling," she remarked. "I really pitted myself for a lot of things." She told the group she was because of her husband spending the family income on gambling while she struggled to make ends meet for their five children. "I resented his actions, but I didn't hate him," June explained. "I was always glad to see him come back home." She said she almost hated her husband for all the lying he did when he was gambling. "Compulsive gamblers are normal, decent, honest people but they have to cover up with stories about where the money went. The lying pattern was repeated for years," she said. The children were nearly grown when Ellen's husband quit gambling.

Ellen said she now knows she is only responsible for herself. "I couldn't understand it. I thought here I am, a good wife and mother, yet my husband

Griselda Boler Bride Of David H. Forbes

Miss Griselda Adela Boler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Boler, 4642 10th Ave. N. St. Petersburg, became the bride of David H. Forbes, son of Dr. and Mrs. Richard B. Forbes, 153 Pinecrest Drive, Sanford, Saturday, Sept. 15, 1973, at 1 p.m. in St. Luke's United Methodist Church, St. Petersburg.

Officiating clergyman at the double ring ceremony was Rev. Alva Brock, a former Sanford resident. Umpson, Dr. Paul Langston, Deland, and uncle of the groom, presented an appropriate nuptial music program. Dr. Langston is Dean of the School of Music at Stetson University.

The long veil and blusher were secured by a matching head-piece. She carried a single long stemmed red rose with white streamers and a lace trimmed handkerchief, a gift from an elderly friend. Maid of honor was Miss Ivette Boler, St. Petersburg, sister of the bride. She was attired in a formal length mint green entire gown with lace bodice and full length sheer organza sleeves and lace cuffs. She carried a single long stemmed yellow rose with ribbon streamers.

The bride's mother chose a formal-length gown of yellow crepe with white accessories and a yellow rose corsage. The groom's mother wore a formal-length gown of blue polyester crepe with matching accessories and a pink rose corsage.

their final summer picnic at their lovely home at 405 Lake Blvd.

Following the delicious hamburgers grilled by "Chef Jerry" was a very entertaining program on "Traffic Safety."

Mrs. Mary Boone, safety committee chairman, introduced guest speaker, Dr. Benjamin Newman, of Altamonte Springs. He said "He would like to see Seminole County have an emergency mobile medical vehicle, possibly a van but a four wheel drive would be most essential in this area, manned by licensed physicians on a rotation plan equipped to give immediate medical on-the-spot help."

The reception site was the Admiral's Room at the Fogcutter Restaurant, St. Petersburg. The bride's table held an arrangement of multi-color roses and greenery. A three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with red roses and topped with an arrangement of fresh red roses. Fruit punch was served from two crystal bowls surrounded with ferns.

Deputy Beau Taylor, Safety Officer with the Seminole County Sheriff Dept. showed two films, "No Accident Driving" and "Freeway Tactics."

He also stated "a good driver should be able to drive at least ten years without any traffic violations." He suggests using the five point Smith system as recommended by the Ford Motor Company: Aim high, using the center of the lane as your target; set the "Picture"—get in the habit of seeing a big picture of the road; keep your eyes moving all the time; the picture around you is constantly changing in front of you as well as in the rear; always have an "exit" don't get yourself in a position where you are in a "tight place" such as changing lanes too quickly; reduce speed when visibility ahead is poor and always signal when changing lanes.

Out-of-town guests came from Sanford, Deland, Tampa, Plant City, Tallahassee, Jacksonville, Orlando and Lakeland, Fla. and Atlanta, Ga.

Lynn Pruden Honored At Pre-Nuptial Fete

Miss Lynn Pruden, bride-elect of Michael Galletta, was complimented with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Darrell F. Kirkpatrick, 30 East Crystal Drive, Loch Arbor. Co-hostess was Mrs. William Malliczowski.

The party area was decorated with assorted arrangements and white wedding bells. Highlighting the floral arrangements was one on the stereo in various shades of green in a white milk glass container, flanked by white doves. The stereo was flanked by two floor length brass candlesticks with large burning tapers surrounded by tiny flowers.

The refreshment table was overlaid with white lace, covered peach tulle and each corner held a nosegay of white roses and peach tulle (the bride's chosen color). The centerpiece was composed of peach and white Fuji mums, baby's breath, fern and a large white heart with two circles.

Lynn was attired in a long gown of pink and white floral print with a corsage of white sweetheart roses, a gift from the hostesses. They also presented white carnation corsages to Mrs. Neil Pruden, mother of the bride-elect and Mrs. Bart Galletta, mother of the future bridegroom to complement their ensembles. The hostess gift to Lynn was a meat platter in her chosen pattern of china.

Other invited guests included Mrs. Louis Limekugel, of Altamonte Springs; Mrs. Joe Goodson, New Smyrna Beach; Mrs. Ernest Bellizio, Orlando; Mrs. R. W. Arnds, Deland; Mrs. T. E. Williams, Maitland; Mrs. L. W. Jones, Osteen and Mrs. Robert Dorn, Lake Monroe.

Mets Take Reds For NL Flag

NEW YORK (AP) — It's two miracles down and one to go for the New York Mets.

They were able to win the big ones and with a lineup that wasn't supposed to hit that well.

Then, critics have derided Seaver for losing crucial games, calling him a "choke" pitcher.

Next stop is the World Series, an illogical thought through most of the summer when the Mets were far behind the leaders in the NL East.

The Mets, 12 1/2 games behind at one stage during the season and in last place starting September's final month, won 19 of their last 27 games—seven crucial ones in a row—climbed over the backs of five rivals for the division crown and then beat the powerful Reds, three games to two, for the pennant.

The Cincinnati Reds were tired, frustrated and angry—at losing the National League playoff to the New York Mets, but more so at the unruly conditions which surrounded the decisive fifth game.

'We Won For Yogi' Fans Disgust Reds

NEW YORK (AP) — There were laurel wreaths for all today on the team of the new National League champions, but the shiniest had to be reserved for the stubby little guy who sits and suffers—largely unappreciated—in the dugout.

Yogi Berra is the magic of the New York Mets. "We won for Yogi," said the peppery field leader, shortstop Bud Harrelson, after Wednesday's 7-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds at Shea Stadium.

Anderson referred to the behavior of New York fans during—and especially after—the Mets' 7-2 victory, Wednesday over the Reds in the final game of the National League playoffs.

The Mets will go into the American League playoffs Wednesday night at Shea Stadium.

Fans surged toward the field during the ninth inning and play was halted as wives of some Reds players ad members of the Cincinnati official family were escorted from the stands to the safety of the dugout.

Anderson referred to the behavior of New York fans during—and especially after—the Mets' 7-2 victory, Wednesday over the Reds in the final game of the National League playoffs.

Baby Seminoles Try To Get Back On Track

The Sanford JV field squad will be on the winning side of the ledger tonight as they host the Baby Hounds of Lyman.

The Seminoles opened with a 3-0 loss to Jones but rebounded to bump off Mainland by a 1-0 score.

One problem that has plagued the JV club this campaign is eligibility hassles. The squad has just recently acquired the services of all their ball players to some things may change.

Bill McDaniels will start for the JV's at the fullback position and the signals will be called by sophomore John Spolzi who has "looked good in practice" according to Reichart.

Sports Spotlight

It is very likely that the championship of the Big Eight prep conference will be decided this Friday night down in Laveland.

The folks from Polk will be visited by the Gainesville Purple Hurricanes. The Canes will be in town for the purpose of dismantling the Kathleen passing attack that is averaging an average 40 points per contest.

Kathleen passer Rick Platz has been fantastic in the first three outings. He tossed for six scores in the opener against Barlow, four TD's versus Mainland and another four at Seminole Memorial last Friday.

Plank has hit on 28 of 43 tosses for a .651 percentage and has been picked off twice. He aerials have covered 582 yards for an average gain of over thirteen yards per throw; not bad.

The Canes can contain him only one way. All-American Mel Flournoy will attempt to conduct research on how many passes Plank can hit while in the sitting position.

Flournoy looked impressive against the locals. He blocked one kick and always seemed to be at the bottom of pileups all right long. If he can get through enough the fans may get to see just how good Plank really is.

SEMINOLE BAND members display fanny fiddle as they depart the field after halftime activities. The band members put on quite a show during intermission at the Kathleen-Seminole game last Friday night.

Greyhound JV's Travel To Sanford

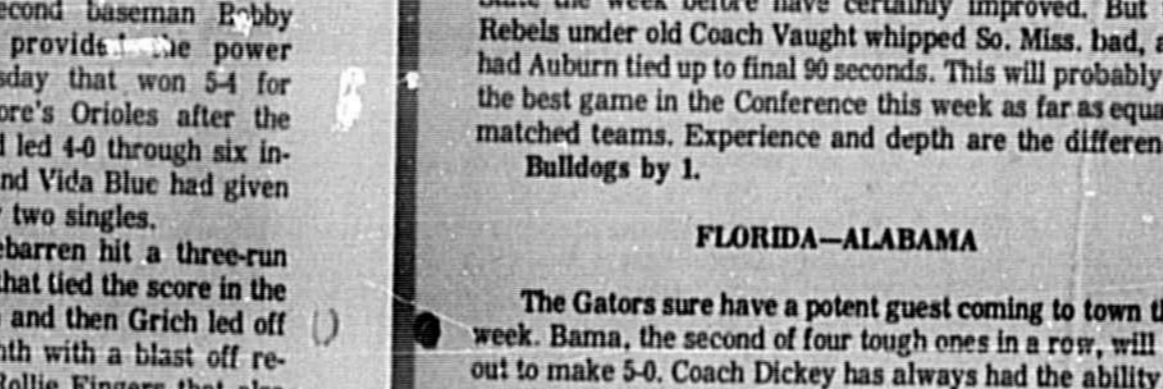

With two games behind them the Lyman junior varsity looks for its first victory of the season in an intra-county rivalry tonight against Sanford.

Warriors The Calamity Jane Of NBA

The Golden State Warriors have established themselves early in the season as the "Calamity Jane" team of the National Basketball Association.

Catcher Andy Etchebarren and baseman R. Byby Grich provide the power Wednesday that won 5-4 for Baltimore's Orioles after the A's had led 4-0 through six innings and Vida Blue had given up only two singles.

Baltimore Evens AL Playoffs

By JACK STEVENSON Associated Press Sports Writer OAKLAND (AP) — The game that got away from the Oakland A's forced the American League playoffs into the finale today of a series where the unusual outlanded the expected and home run hitters haven't been the sluggers.

Etchebarren hit a three-run homer that tied the score in the seventh and then Grich led off the eighth with a blast off reliever Hollie Fingers that also cleared the field fence in the Oakland Coliseum.

All Around The SEC With Bill Baker

Depth—that's the name of the game in this Conference. Tennessee proved it beating Kansas, Alabama proved it beating Georgia and Ole Miss and Florida proved it getting beat.

Florida had no one to replace injured Nat Moore and very little help when Bowden went out in the first quarter and LSU's Moore, hurt and not scheduled to play, had to replace Froh Larry Brizson when he dislocated his wrist.

Meanwhile, up in Memphis, the Kansas Jayhawks put on the best show in this town since Tennessee beat UCLA here in 1953. A total of 75 passes were thrown with Kansas tossing 60 in them.

Ole Miss and Auburn played a typical SEC game in Cliff Harte Stadium Saturday. Tied 7-7 with only 90 seconds left, Rebels. Ole Miss came right back with a first down on the Tiger 8 with 11 seconds to go.

Chamberlain, the stellar 16-year veteran who jumped from the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association, started his coaching career on a winning note.

Indiana trailed 91-45 with seven minutes left to play, but McGinnis tallied 14 points in the final period and the Pacers handcuffed the Nets with a solid defensive effort.

It was a good night all around for the Esposito family as Phil's brother Tony posted the 27th shutout of his career in Chicago's 3-0 victory over the Los Angeles Kings.

As SD Head Coach Wilt Opens On Winning Note

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Wilt Chamberlain, a familiar fixture on the basketball court, remained on the sidelines and admitted he felt like a rookie as he made his successful debut as coach of the San Diego Conquistadors.

Simpson Leads The Pack In NFL Rushing

NEW YORK (AP) — In case nobody's noticed, Calvin Hill of the Dallas Cowboys is leading the National Conference in rushing with 388 yards and Essex Johnson of the Cincinnati Bengals is No. 2 in the American Conference with 394.

Like Henry Aaron of baseball's Atlanta Braves, Simpson of the Buffalo Bills is pursuing what was once believed to be an unattainable record.

Game Getting Popular Hounds Compete In Metro Chess

Chess stars are united under a club rather than a team. Of course this has its advantages too. There are no problems with eligibility or at least the kind that bogles the athletic director's mind.

Ever since Bobby Fischer defeated Boris Spassky for the world chess title there has been a tremendous upswing in the popularity of this "intellectual" game.

During the famed match in Reykjavik, Iceland Fischer not only caused a stir in the chess world but managed to split the United States. The last time the U.S. was divided was during the Civil War.

Chamberlain, the stellar 16-year veteran who jumped from the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association, started his coaching career on a winning note.

Indiana trailed 91-45 with seven minutes left to play, but McGinnis tallied 14 points in the final period and the Pacers handcuffed the Nets with a solid defensive effort.

It was a good night all around for the Esposito family as Phil's brother Tony posted the 27th shutout of his career in Chicago's 3-0 victory over the Los Angeles Kings.

Like Henry Aaron of baseball's Atlanta Braves, Simpson of the Buffalo Bills is pursuing what was once believed to be an unattainable record.

DeLand Bank Joins United Group

Wendell Jarrard, Chairman of the DeLand State Bank of DeLand, Fla., and Frank Smathers Jr., President and Chief Executive Officer of United First Florida Banks, Inc. today announced a merger agreement that the DeLand bank will become affiliated with United, a 32-member registered Florida bank holding company, subject to regulatory approval.

The DeLand State Bank is located in Volusia County and would be United First Florida's second entry into the state's 11th largest county. The bank was organized in 1963 and had $28.9 million in deposits as of June 30, 1973.

The terms of the agreement call for an exchange of stock that would result in DeLand's stockholders receiving, at current market values, approximately $6.7 million of United First Florida Banks, Inc. common stock.

United First Florida Banks currently consists of 32 member banks located in 16 counties with total deposits at June 30, 1973 of $1.2 billion. The Miami and Tampa based holding company currently has an additional 13 banks in various stages of regulatory completion that could raise the total of member banks in the holding company with the addition of the DeLand bank to 45, if all are successfully consummated.

Sterchi's Sets Record

C. A. Terrell, President, Sterchi Bros. Stores, Inc., discloses that net sales for the first half of the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1973, were $15,687,892, reflecting a gain of 10.91 per cent over the corresponding period last year, thus establishing an all-time record for the 63-year old home furnishing company.

Net sales for August were $2,661,989, up 3.15 per cent over the same period last year. August marked the 32nd consecutive monthly sales increase over months of the previous years.

Sterchi's will open their 66th store later this month in Maitland, Florida, a suburb of Orlando. The new store will be a modern one-level structure of approximately 20,000 square feet with convenient parking. With the opening of the new Maitland unit, Sterchi's will have six stores in the fast-growing Central Florida area.

Sterchi Bros. Stores, Inc., is based in Knoxville, Tennessee and operates retail furniture and appliance stores in eight southeastern states. Its stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

United First Florida Grows

The Marine Bank of Punta Gorda became the 32nd member of United First Florida Banks, Inc., when it opened its doors for business on Sept. 26. The new bank is the multi-bank holding company's first member bank in Charlotte County and is United First Florida's second entry into the rapidly growing lower west coast region of the state.

Andrey B. Campbell is the President of the new Bank, Kenneth W. Kemmerly is Vice President and Edward E. Phinney is the cashier. All three men have had considerable banking experience and look forward to the challenge of establishing a financial institution that will meet the needs of the expanding population of Punta Gorda and surrounding communities. The bank was capitalized at $1 million and is located in its own building that was built specifically to meet the needs of the bank at 314 Taylor Street, Punta Gorda, Florida.

Frank Smathers Jr., President and Chief Executive Officer of United First Florida Banks, Inc. stated that the new Marine Bank was an important addition that provides the holding company with access to another one of Florida's growth markets that previously had not been serviced by the group.

OJ Sales High

LAKELAND — Total sales of frozen concentrated orange juice in the June-July period amounted to 69,000,000 reconstituted gallons, the third highest volume ever reported to the Florida Department of Citrus by the A. C. Nielsen Co. This was 14 per cent greater than in the same period last year and represented the strongest increase in two years.

The strong trend also was noted in dollar sales, which soared 12 per cent ahead of last year, with the total of $4,700,000 also listed as the third highest volume reported by Nielsen. Price for six ounces of frozen concentrated orange juice has remained virtually unchanged for almost two years, with the current figure of 23 cents down fractionally in recent months.

The popularity of the 16-ounce container was reflected in the report that the 35 per cent gain in volume over last year represented the strongest increase for any size. Additionally, the 16-ounce container claimed 14.1 per cent of the total share of frozen concentrated orange juice sales.

Poe Income Up

Poe & Associates, Inc. (OTC) reported a 25 per cent increase in net income for the 9 months ended Sept. 30, 1973. Revenues rose 22 per cent to $1,552,408 for the period as compared with $1,276,789 for the first 9 months of 1972. Net income was $278,419 or $1.38 per share as compared with $223,282 or $1.22 per share for the same period in 1972.

Poe & Associates is a Tampa-based firm engaged in the marketing of property and casualty insurance with emphasis on commercial customers and offers specialized coverages to members of various state and national associations.

Wide Premium Array Displayed At American Bankers Annual Meet

CHICAGO (AP) — You might see your banking future in the displays at the McCormick Place convention center here. The American Bankers Association is holding its annual meeting, and what do you suppose they've attracted? Racks of dishes and silverware, displays of stuffed dolls, trays of jewelry. There are Bibb's salesmen and salesmen of hand-lettered scrolls, and a manufacturer of chimes and carillons who wants banks to ring in the nation's bicentennial.

The Christmas display companies are demonstrating how, with holly and wreaths and candy canes and trees, a bank can transform itself into the spirit of Santa Claus. Christmas is a time for spending, they say.

A grass seed company is urging bankers to offer "horticultural premiums," the suggestion being that the depositor's grass will grow even if his savings might not.

Need it be said that the banks want your money these days, even if they are reluctant to part with theirs in the form of a home mortgage? And they are willing to try almost any enticement, including high interest rates, to get it.

The assortment of premiums on display seems to suggest that if competition by interest rate falls — and to some extent it might have — the banks will be fighting furiously with premiums.

More weeks ago some banks thought they had a great thing in their "wild card" CDs — certificates of deposit unrestricted by rate limitations. But then they found a good deal of the money came not from the outside sources but from the passbooks of their own depositors.

The future of retail banking, and to some extent of society too, is demonstrated by the large number of automated, self-service devices that might reduce the bank's overhead, the customer's wait in line — and provide personal service.

One device, designed to operate from the bank's outer wall, is activated by the customer's bank card. Insert the card and a sign appears on the television screen: "Welcome to — bank, where our customers like the way we work for them."

The customer then raps out his request on a device similar to a touch-tone telephone. He might want to make a loan or pay a utility bill or add to his checking account. The TV screen displays the instructions, but if the customer bungles the job a live teller appears on the screen.

At the end of the transaction, assuming the customer performed an act deemed by the card to be legitimate, out comes his receipt or, in the case of a loan, the money. Inside, the transaction is automatically recorded in the bookkeeping system.

The safe companies are here, too, and they have diversified their products to counter the sophistication of those who would do the bank in.

The thief today doesn't necessarily use a gun, although a bullet resistant glass maker is peddling his products. He might try to pass counterfeit bills though, and so the electronic devices are prominent.

Attitudes Of Bankers Relaxed

CHICAGO (AP) — In the preliminary hours of the 98th annual convention of the American Bankers Association, the atmosphere was deceptively relaxed. Most of the 12,000 attendees were at receptions, parties, dinners — or before their TV sets.

But whether they accomplished anything except meet friends and otherwise enjoy themselves in the festooned ballrooms — and some critics maintain that conventions aren't meant to accomplish much more — their attitude didn't reflect the condition of the industry.

The issues are urgent, and few Americans realize how involved they are. Banking is, in its own peculiar financial way, as important to ordinary citizens as the oil company upon which they depend for heating.

Mortgages? Don't talk about them to commercial bankers. A home mortgage is to them a somewhat worthless investment today. Why buy money at 10 per cent and then lend it out at only 8 per cent — and for 30 years — just because state usury laws say you can't go higher?

That's an immediate, and for thousands of families, a very frustrating experience. But say the bankers here, "What can we do about it? We have the money, but we have to lend it to 10 per cent, and we'll have money to lend to you."

The banks are up against what they consider unfair restrictions. Some of them would just as soon let interest rates find their true market price, instead of seeing them held under control by the Federal Reserve or the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

But if restrictive regulations were to be entirely removed you may be sure that a battle would be joined. The savings and loan associations, which want to preserve their higher interest rate advantage, would howl and attack. For years they have tried with what they consider even more severe limitations.

The S&Ls have this fractional percentage point advantage because they are a segment of the thrift business, which means that their existence is predicated on the assumption they will attract money and pass it on to homebuyers. Even bankers will agree the S&Ls have done their job well.

But the area between S&Ls and commercial banks is blurring. Some savings and loan associations and mutual savings banks want the right to make consumer loans and issue checks, which they are denied doing now. They must, they say, in order to survive.

The reason, they maintain, is that the banks have moved into their territory with "flying car" rates, or rates free of limitation on funds lent for four years or more. The institutions are fighting for turf.

Those aren't the only industries in which bankers are considered intruders. Stock brokers think the bank is intentionally eroding the terms of the Glass-Steagall Act, which since the mid-1930s has separated investment from commercial banking.

The brokers and investment bankers maintain that the commercial bankers are not only selling stock these days, but are promoting their activities. They are right, and the commercial bankers can't very well deny it. They are advertising their services.

Say the brokers: What will be left for us if these giants move in on our function, while to educate and promote and sell shares in American industry? How can we compete with these monstrosities let loose by regulations that permit bank holding companies to diversify into other areas?

And that brings up still another situation that concerns everyone. The charters of those holding companies permit banks to do a lot more than banking. They are into leasing and insurance and data processing and factoring and management consulting.

And they are into mergers too. In recent years fewer and fewer banks have come to control more and more assets. There are 14,000 commercial banks. Some 1,600 holding companies control 2,700 of them. Moreover, they control two-thirds of the $600 billion in deposits in U.S. banks.

That same holding company regulation that permits commercial banks to enter investment banking can be exercised in other related fields. Some insurers, big as they are, howl about unfair competition.

"The ones making all the noise are the ones who do not want to compete," said Eugene Adams, American Bankers Association president. "It's as simple as that."

A study committee, for example, is studying the vigorous invasion of the American domestic market by foreign banks, and the domestic bank's are worried about it. They have formed a study committee, and there's a feeling here they might seek restrictions on this "unfair competition."

Market Watchers Are 'Confused'

By DONALD C. BAUDER
Copley News Service

Casual watchers of the market are no doubt confused. All the economic signals point to a downturn in the final quarter of 1973 and well into 1974.

Yet the market sports up the last two days and more and more analysts are seeing a long bull market ahead.

It is not an anomaly. Many analysts consider a downturn or even mild recession as a bullish signal. The slowdown would have the effect of pulling down interest rates and cooling inflation.

The lowering of interest rates would mean that less money would pour into high-paying certificates of deposits, bonds and Treasury bills, and back into the market.

The stock market is seldom a good judge of the state of the economy.

Consider right now: the economy is booming and the market, until the last two days, has been in a slump. This is because the market generally moves up in anticipation of a good economy two or three quarters ahead, or down in anticipation of future bad news.

The big question is: is this latest rally just an intermediate rally in a bear market, or is it a signal of a prolonged bull market?

Surveying market watchers, we get some strong evidence of optimism.

Said Larry Wachtel, vice president-research, Bache & Co., "The over-all market bottomed out in May and June. The Dow hit a low Aug. 2, but I'm talking about broader averages, where there was real carnage. But the market has been in a building phase for six months. I have to believe we're in a new bull trend."

"Money managers are waiting for the peaking of interest rates and I think the 10 per cent prime is a significant peak. Certificate of deposit rates are going down. The economy is slowing down and the market would like it to slow down."

New X-Rays Are Aiding Medicos

WASHINGTON (AP) — tumors, hemorrhages, blood clots, trauma (injuries), cysts, strokes, and improperly healed bones — without risk to the patient. The technique, employing a special "scanning" device, is called "X-ray" for medical diagnosis, designed to produce cross-sectional X-ray views of any part of the body and display them on a television screen.

The method was described as "precisely defining and offering special powers for locating such disorders as diagnosing brain disorders."

Sanford Lions Set Spaghetti Dinner

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
County Editor

The Sanford Lions Club will hold a spaghetti dinner in the Sanford Civic Center on Oct. 20 from 4-8 p.m. to benefit sight conservation activities of the club.

Cooks for the spaghetti dinner will be George DeMatteo, Lions Club president; and Carlos Raines, immediate past president. Both are well-known for their delicious spaghetti, having cooked it for many years for dinners at All Souls Church.

Ticket chairman for the dinner is Don Barker, manager of the Sanford Sears store. Tickets are available from any Lion or at the door.

Other fund raising projects of the club include sale of Halloween candy for Trick or Treat and the year round light bulbs.

The light bulbs come six to a package and are available from Jack Morrison at Semolee 1700 at any time.

Both candy and light bulbs will also be available at the spaghetti dinner for those who want them.

Sight conservation is the main endeavor of the Lions Club, which raises funds through it projects to help about 100 local school children each year to have a professional eye examination and glasses. Local optometrists participate by extending a reduced fee to the club, thus enabling the Lions to help more children.

It takes about $2,000 or more a year to finance the sight program. The club has also pledged $5,000 to the Salvation Army's building fund, and recently paid its second $1,000 payment.

This year through the statewide foundation, Florida Lions Foundation for the Blind, the club arranged for major surgery for one Sanford boy. He needs complete restorative surgery on one eye as he was born without any tear ducts in that eye. In this case the surgery and hospital bill will be picked up by the Lions.

The Sanford club aids school children in all schools north of the Big Tree Road (who are in need of vision care and whose parents can not afford it. Help is given without regard to race, color, or creed based on financial need and the number of children in the family.

Observers Say Market Is Ready For Bull Time

COPLLEY NEWS SERVICE

Are we in the initial stages of a bull market? Smart Money, the Yale Hirsch publication out of Old Tappan, N.J., categorizes some bull market characteristics: (1) During early phases, blue chips will be outperformed by speculative glamor stocks, but will continue their ultimate rise longer; (2) high-grade growth stocks will perform very well, offering exciting profit potential during early bull moves; (3) secondary stocks in the $20 to $40 range will slightly lag the glamor in market action, but almost always join as their group develops strength; (4) low-priced issues lag the others a bit, but in general show a greater percentage of price appreciation than higher-priced securities; (5) Deeply discounted convertible bonds will move slowly at first in proportion to underlying common shares; and (6) high-volatility mutual funds will be stellar performers during the initial stages of bull markets.

Proponents of easier money centered on the Fed's placement of a stable order for Treasury bills, thus adding funds to the banking system. The maneuver, which was a complete about-face from previous attempts to take funds out of the system, prompted a very sharp rally in the money market and a noncommittal decline in interest rates. S&S comments: "With stays of light money apparently loosened a bit, the stock market was able to breathe easier and take in stride IBM's two-session plunge of more than 39 points following its first antitrust defeat."

Expansion of Martin-Brower's role as supplier to the fast-food industry should help Chlorox Co., researchers for Ridder, Peabody & Co. say. Also, Chlorox is said to be benefiting from technological advances in the mushroom production area and from a new institutional food service product line.

A soak-the-poor market scheme?

By Carlton Smith
 Brokerage commissions are up again. With what effect on the small investor or "little guy," as they like to call him on Wall Street?
 At first blush it sounds as if the little guy is getting a break for a change. In the lower ranges (the dollar amount of a purchase or sale), present commissions will be increased by 10 per cent. When the amount involved is above $5,000, the increase is 15 per cent.
 If that sounds like a soak-the-rich plan, though, you need only get out your pocket calculator, and work out what actually happens in terms of the percentage of your profits going to brokerage fees under the new schedules.
 (And don't ask "what for?" That is not considered good taste in today's market.)
 The small investor, as it turns out, is required to fork over a larger percentage of his investment, in commissions, than his more affluent colleague. Cost is calculated on the basis of a "round trip" — that is, buying the stock, and eventually selling it, since one has to sell to realize a profit.

 Those who buy and sell "odd lots" — less than 100 shares at a clip — have always paid relatively high commissions. Buying 20 shares of a stock priced at $10 a share, for example, under the former fee schedule you paid $21.80. Now it's $23.98 — a big enough slice of the $200 investment, no doubt, to make many a little guy wonder if he shouldn't just keep his money in the bank.
 More interesting is the contrast between the size of the bite on the little guy, and that on the more affluent investor who gives his broker a $50,000 order, for a round lot of $50 stock.
 The little guy's fee has been increased by 11 percentage points, while the $5,000 customer pays only one-quarter of a point more than he previously did.
 Commissions for the round trip will be 3.33 per cent, or 12 per cent of the odd-lotter's $200.
 With fees taking that much,

Increasing Prices Meeting Resistance

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumer resistance to rising prices is beginning to stiffen. One widely known business consultant on economic matters is forecasting a poor Christmas — for retailers.
 The growing cautiousness of buyers hasn't demonstrated itself sharply to date, but attitudinal surveys show that many Americans have had their fill of spending for the time being and are now prepared to save.
 Such forecasts in the past sometimes have had an uncanny accuracy rating, and few businesses are willing to ignore the findings. The first signs of weakness already are showing up in clothing, furniture and appliance sales.
 Higher prices are listed as only one of the reasons. Among the others are:
 —A growing burden of debt. The rate of inflation of the after-tax income has risen to about 15.5 per cent. While this figure isn't unusual, it is considered somewhat high when combined with other factors.
 —Perhaps the most important of these other factors is the inability of many workers to maintain their buying power. Goldman Sachs, the investment banking firm, notes that while disposable income rose at an annual rate of nearly 9 per cent during the second quarter of the year, inflation reduced it to an effective rate of 1.5 per cent.
 Earnings of production workers in August rose 7 per cent over a year earlier, to $1.92 an hour, making weekly earnings of $145.43, about $9.27 higher than in August 1972. But higher prices resulted in a 2 per cent decline in spending power.
 A further erosion of buying power can be expected in the final quarter of the year, according to Chase Manhattan Bank, which comments:
 "For this reason, plus a host of others — ranging from new about the American dollar to interest rates, the rock market and Watergate — the public has turned decidedly pessimistic about economic conditions."
 As consumers retreat from the market place they are expected to tidy up their personal financial conditions. Expected to be most noticeable is a tendency to repay debt and build savings.
 The present savings rate is about 6 per cent of income and is variously forecast to rise between one and two percentage points. In 1974 it reached a percentage between 8 and 9.

U.S. Survival Diet Offered By Disabled Senior Citizen

By ELAINE COLONNELLI
 Copley News Service
 With the rising cost of food making things difficult for a middle-class family, how does a person living on Social Security keep body and soul together?
 For these people it is no longer a matter of cutting out luxuries. Those were cut from their budgets before inflation shriveled their meager fixed income even more.
 The formula for a "survival diet" was given by Mary Leonard, a disabled senior citizen testifying recently at the Senate Commerce Committee's Consumer Redress Hearings in Los Angeles.
 Mary said that for a month's food she buys 25 pounds of rice, vitamin pills, saccharine tablets, bouillon cubes, two dozen eggs, dry milk, peanut butter, beans, cornmeal, oatmeal and macaroni.

 After those staple purchases, which insure that she will have something to eat if a purse snatching or unexpected expense drains her monthly funds, she is left with 60 cents a day to buy meat, bread, vegetables and fruit.
 "You don't buy luxuries like coffee, tea. They are expensive and don't have any nutritional value. You are careful preparing your food, because if you burn something you have to eat it anyway," she said. "And you learn to utilize everything. You don't have any garbage."
 In what is claimed to be the richest nation in the world, Mary's plight seems incongruous. But she is only one of millions of the nation's poor for whom the pinch of rising food prices has become a crushing blow.
 And she is better off than many. Widows for senior citizens' groups testified that some of the elderly poor are forced to eat dog food because they cannot afford meat. There are those who are reduced to stealing the food they cannot afford to buy.
 Most tragically, there are those who die of malnutrition or diseases related to it. Dr. Edward Lenock of the USC-LSA County Medical Center testified that about one-fourth of the geriatric patients in the average hospital are there as a result of malnutrition.

 "Inflation is the killer disease of the aged," said Robert Forest, legislative director of the National League of Senior Citizens.
 Not only is inflation a killer of the elderly in a physical sense, but the economic hardship it has brought them has been a killer of their hope and idealism, witnesses testified.
 For many of the senior citizens, this is their second time around with the struggle for survival. Frances Akerson, a representative for several senior citizens groups, said:
 "This is the generation that bore the brunt of the depression. They know what deprivation means."

Bracelets Can Speed Treatment

PROTECT YOURSELF Wear a Medic Alert bracelet or necklace

By EDNA CHLOVEY
 Copley News Service
 LOS ANGELES — No one knows what brings on an epileptic seizure.
 But if the victim wears a Medic Alert bracelet it would help the paramedic team and the physician know what to do.
 It also would protect the public as well as the victim.
 When a man suffered an epileptic seizure recently in the suburban Torrance courtroom, he had nothing on his person saying he was an epileptic.
 The paramedics rushed to the hospital where, as he regained consciousness, he admitted to the doctor that this was his second seizure.
 "An epileptic has to relinquish his driving license," said the paramedic. "That is probably the reason he was not wearing a bracelet or necklace."
 There are about 40 million Americans who suffer from some sort of hidden disease such as diabetes, epilepsy, heart condition and allergies produced by penicillin and other drugs.
 If these persons become ill and are treated with the wrong medicine, they could die.
 Many persons with hidden diseases or special medical problems have a fear of suffering an attack while away from home.
 Their fears are eased and their proper care insured by Medic Alert, an organization with headquarters in Turlock, Calif.
 Medic Alert is a nonprofit group, started in 1956, to warn physicians giving emergency certain diseases, particularly treatment of the special needs of the patient.
 "We would like to see a wider use of this program," says one doctor working the emergency ward of a hospital here. "People with rare blood types always should wear a warning signal. So should persons with hidden diseases."
 "I would like to see the program publicized, especially in the ghetto areas, where people don't seem to know about the bracelets. When they arrive at the hospital emergency room, they can present a real problem."
 The foundation provides a central directory of medical problems of its more than 400,000 members, who wear special identification bracelets or necklaces.
 Engraved on the back is a brief summary of the wearer's disease and medication as well as an emergency telephone number physicians can call collect for additional information.
 An identification number of each piece of jewelry corresponds to the number of a file containing the wearer's medical history, which is kept at Medic Alert headquarters.
 The foundation has a staff of 40 with emergency personnel working throughout the day. It operates on an annual budget of $700,000, with 80 per cent of the funds coming from the 47 membership fee. The remaining funds come from donations by civic groups, says Alfred Hodder, executive director.
 The funds are used mainly for educational programs.
 Persons 18 to 22 years old use Medic Alert more than any other age group. The second largest group of users are in their mid-50s.
 Hodder says the preponderance of young persons is an indication social "awareness" of certain diseases, particularly epilepsy, is diminishing.
 This summer at least 400,000 persons, who have harbored a fear of traveling alone or too far away from home, can hang doctor working the emergency ward of a hospital here.
 "People with rare blood types always should wear a warning go they are protected."

Energy Stocks Gain In Investor Interest

COPLEY NEWS SERVICE
 "The recent broadening of investor interest has been pretty much across the board, focusing on groups benefiting from capacity shortages in some commodities businesses, the capital spending boom, the high demand for energy and the recent and prospective and pattern of interest rates," Argus Research Corp. states.
 "Many stocks in these categories are very well situated and are likely to continue to outperform the broad averages over the intermediate term." Among suggestions are Joy Manufacturing, with its underground coal mining equipment and oil well equipment division; Lone Star Industries, a cement producer; American Motors Corp., which could be the only auto company to report higher earnings in 1974 than in 1973; and Manufacturers Hanover Corp., a money-center bank whose borrowing costs and lending rates should move into a more favorable balance.

From Hornblower & Weeks-Hemphill, Noyes comes this advisory on gold stocks: "Gold shares could drift somewhat lower over the short period, but would be expected to rise again, possibly to new highs, in the next currency crisis. Therefore, those investors holding gold shares should continue to retain them and begin to purchase more for longer-term appreciation." ASA L.L. holds about 75 per cent of net assets in South African gold mining shares and 12 per cent in diamonds.
 Research Institute of America sees the International Monetary Fund meeting in Nairobi resulting in a stark RIA explains: "Europeans are anxious to find more use for their unwanted dollars. Since they have given up on gold, they want more precise guidelines as to what the dollar is worth in the world's money and goods market. The U.S. goal of a system with built-in adjustments reflects a fear of chronic deficits."

Real Life Figures Often Play Major Role In 'Fiction' Works

By NICK COLE
Copley News Service

Whenever an author or scriptwriter tells you he's made everything up out of his head—because consciously or unconsciously, he's often quite wrong. He has to include an "escape" clause at the start of every film or novel—stating that any resemblance between his cast of characters and actual people is purely coincidental—to avoid being sued for libel.

But the fact is, most writers draw heavily on real-life figures to provide their fictional heroes and heroines.

Consider that amazing popular TV series "The Forsyte Saga" which has been broadcast in 17 million in Britain and was later sold to the states; it could have been called "The Galsworthy Saga" because John Galsworthy, author of the books on which it was based, built one of the main themes around his own experience.

Irene, who divorced her taciturn, aristocratic husband Soames to marry the gentle Jolyon, was modeled on Galsworthy's own wife, Ada. Originally used to Galsworthy's cousin Arthur, she and the novelist became lovers in 1894 and were married 11 years later. They enjoyed an idyllically happy life together, and the similarities between their marriage and that of Irene and Jo in the story are irrefutable.

Few authors, from 18th Century Jane Austen to present-day Harold Robbins, can resist using real-life "originals," it seems. Perhaps the most celebrated case concerns Sherlock Holmes. When Conan Doyle, an impetuous English doctor, took to writing fiction to boost his income, he conceived the notion of an educated detective who would use intuitive skills to solve crimes, as much as routine police methods.

As his first show, Holmes was shaped from two distinct sources—first, Doyle's mentor, an Edinburgh surgeon named Joseph Bell, and second, a bowler named Sherrinford, off whom Doyle once scored 20 runs in a cricket match.

Doyle recalled Bell's fantastic skill and diagnosing a patient's ailments; merely by looking at a person, observing his facial features, the state of his physique and clothes, he could pinpoint not only the illness behind his symptoms, but also the person's occupation.

Bell took drugs to relieve depression, he was a bachelor and he played the violin—three there could ever have been a real person so mean and miserably as Ebenezer Scrooge; there was, and in fact, Scrooge was a "compositer"—distilled from the antics of two brothers who ran a dry store in Cambridge, England, two centuries ago. They were so mean they slept on sacks, never bought meat and took turns guarding their hidden hoard of cash.

Many people often wonder if there could ever have been a real person so mean and miserably as Ebenezer Scrooge; there was, and in fact, Scrooge was a "compositer"—distilled from the antics of two brothers who ran a dry store in Cambridge, England, two centuries ago. They were so mean they slept on sacks, never bought meat and took turns guarding their hidden hoard of cash.

The fact is, most writers draw heavily on real-life figures.

Another Edinburgh notable, Deacon Brodie, provided the "original" for the central character in a macabre story, which a century after its publication still has a spine-chilling power; for Brodie became, in Robert Louis Stevenson's "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," dual so well illustrates man's dual capacity for good and evil.

By day, Brodie was a highly respected Edinburgh cabinetmaker, a pillar of the local church, and a member of the City Council; by night, he donned dark cloak and muffled and assumed the role of a gambler, hell-raiser, housebreaker and thief.

He was eventually trapped after an abortive raid on the Edinburgh General House, and hanged.

To this day, his motivations remain a mystery. But it's certain that his audacity in flouting convention and courting death—there was a capital offense then—appealed strongly to Stevenson, who also threatening to turn something off. But the public utilities aren't the only nonunderstanding creditors. Other computerized and micro-controlled firms really do make life difficult.

A silly device, such as "Did you forget?" is written beneath the drawing. I toss it aside.

Then, sometime between the 1st and the 10th, I whip out my checkbook and pay all bills. However, before my check reaches the utility company, the bookkeepers and computers spew out a message, threatening to turn something off.

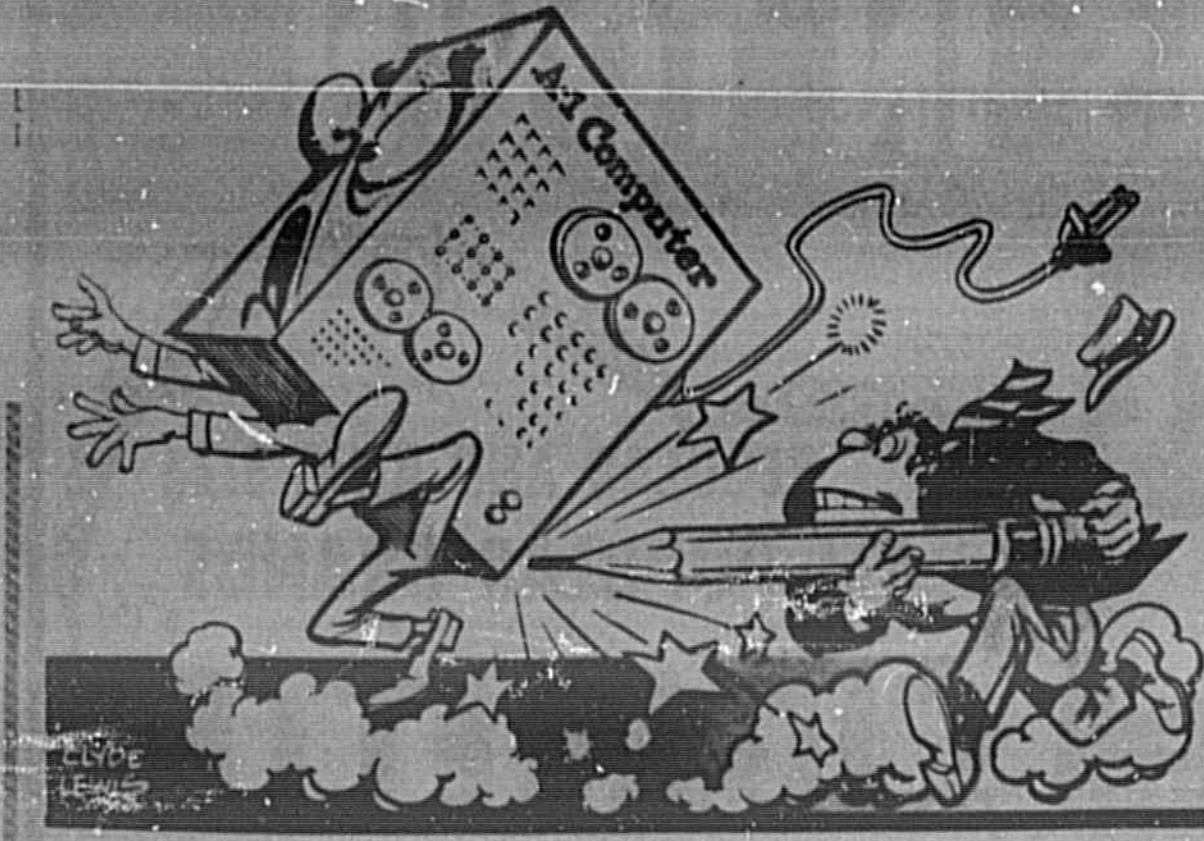

My wife, though, beats the system. She waits until the very last day and appears in person at a branch store to make the payment in cash.

That causes the clerk to call the main headquarters to head off the late charge assessment. That store and its clerks show a definite hostility to my wife.

It is one of those department stores that enjoys sending a bill, then a reminder that a bill was sent, then a warning that a warning has been sent—all before I get to sit down to pay my monthly bills between the 1st and 10th.

But other department stores are just as bad. They all send out return envelopes for payments. But they put in a horrible flap with anything all over it. It has to be torn off, somehow, usually ripping the envelope. I usually weed it up, after I have scribbled a nasty note on it, and chuck it into the envelope with my check.

But sweet revenge is missing. I get that sweet revenge sometimes.

Creditors Break Billing Tradition

By JOHN MOON

My creditors don't understand and love me. They want to become pen pals, and their computers are really fun to use.

For example, public utilities like to bill me in the middle of the month.

And they wonder why I am not standing with checkbook akimbo to pay them immediately.

I pay my bills between the 1st and 10th of each month, according to tradition and the good old American way.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: After 20 years of marriage (and five children) my husband and I decided on a trial separation. I begged him to go to our minister or a marriage counselor, but he refused.

Even tho' I loved him, after a year's separation, I filed for divorce, thinking that would bring him to his senses. I was amazed and heartbroken when he let me go ahead with the divorce. After the divorce was final, he informed me that he was getting married again in two weeks!

Abby, this brought forth such a feeling of love for him as I had never known before. I made a complete fool of myself by telling him how much I loved him, and begging him to marry me again. He said, no, his mind was made up. My whole world fell apart.

The night before he was to be married, he phoned me and said he would always love me, but was going ahead with his marriage anyway. This really tore my heart out.

With the help of tranquilizers and my friends and family, I'm slowly getting my head together, but I can't stop loving this man. Don't tell me to keep busy. I am employed full-time and have a 10-room house to take care of, plus three children still living at home.

If I could only hate him, it would be so much easier, but I love him. Please help me. I am 43, which is a terrible time to be left alone. Sign me.

CRYING OVER SPILT MILK
DEAR CRYING: The milk is not only "spilt"—it's curdled, so quit feeling sorry for yourself. There is a valuable lesson to be learned here. A woman should never "file for divorce," hoping a man she loves will come to his senses. You "ex" has a mean streak in him a mile wide. Why else would he call you the night before his marriage to tell you he would always "love" you, but he's marrying another? You may need a therapist to help you "get over" him. But get over him, you must!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HONEYBEE" IN NEWTON, MASS.: His motives are questionable. Tell him if he's trying to pull the wool over your eyes, he's using the wrong yarn.

Better Batteries Are Sought To Ease Energy Crisis

By FRANK MACOMBER
Copley News Service

It used to be that the man who built a better mousetrap had to install a traffic light at his front door. Today the man who can build a better battery will have the world on his doorstep.

Now two highly respected industrial firms have come up with claims that they have developed better batteries to help solve the nation's approaching energy crisis and run its electrical appliances.

Scientists at Rockwell International Corp.'s Atomic International Division (AI) say they have solved a basic problem which has blocked development of a powerful new superbattery.

This key, they insist, opens the way to development of an advanced, lithium-sulfur-type battery. It was discovered at AI, then used during work on a project supported by the Edison Electric Institute, the Tennessee Valley Authority and Rockwell.

One of the projects is a commercial storage battery with a prolonged life to be used to store electricity generated during slack consumption periods for use later when power demands reach their peaks. Today's commercial batteries either lack the ability to store energy for the task or are too costly to be practical.

The problem is that elemental sulfur in one electrode constantly is being lost. AI scientists solved it by substituting a metal sulfide compound for the sulfur. While the substitute reduced electrical energy slightly, the new battery still could be several times more powerful than the conventional lead-acid battery, AI scientists claim.

"Although much work remains to be done, we have now cleared a fundamental hurdle in the development of an advanced battery that promises to be more economical and efficient than present systems, in addition to being noiseless and clean," says Dr. Laszlo A. Heredy, project development engineer.

At the General Telephone & Electronics Laboratories in Stamford, Conn., scientists say they have developed an experimental battery which produces 10 times more electrical energy than a conventional flashlight dry cell and lasts more than twice as long.

Mideast Warfare Resumes At Dawn, Israelis Penetrate Syria And Hit Egypt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli tanks and warplanes resumed their offensive inside Syria at dawn today after an overnight lull in ground fighting. Israeli and Syrian missile boats battled off the Syrian coast for the second night in succession.

Israel reported a quiet night also along the Suez Canal but said artillery duels between the Israeli and Egyptian forces there resumed at dawn.

Israel claimed Thursday that its tanks had crossed the Golan Heights cease-fire line with Syria and moved six miles down the road to Damascus.

Israel said nothing about the dawn position of its armored force, resistance by the Syrians or how far the Israelis planned to push toward the Syrian capital, which is 40 miles north of the 1967 cease-fire line.

Syrian communiques ignored the claims of Israeli advances, saying only that ground fighting resumed at the "front line" while its jet fighters and anti-aircraft batteries shot down six Israeli planes between 6:30 and 7:10 a.m.

Gen. Haim Herzog, the Israeli state radio's authoritative military commentator, said Thursday night that there remained between the Israelis and Damascus two Syrian defense lines and a "bristling" military complex around Qatana, 16 miles southeast of the city.

As the fourth Arab-Israeli war went into its seventh day, Israel claimed that its missile boats sank two Syrian boats in a battle at the approaches to Tartus, on the Syrian coast. The Israelis said all their boats returned safely.

Syria claimed that its boats sank three Israeli boats and its air defenses brought down an Israeli helicopter.

At the United Nations, the Security Council resumed its Middle East debate Thursday night after Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim urged the deadlocked body to do something to end the fighting. Another council session was scheduled this afternoon, but neither the United States, supporting Israel, nor the Arabs' Soviet and Chinese backers were expected to give ground.

Egypt and Syria claimed they brought down a record 112 Israeli planes on Thursday, bringing their total claimed kills in the first six days of the war to 409 planes. The Israeli air force is estimated to have a total of 488 planes, 367 of them combat aircraft.

AROUND THE CLOCK

By John A. Spolski

A Look In The Mirror Type Interview — while shaving this morning:

Q — Are you happy with the results of the Agnew situation, fines, etc.?

A — You gotta be kidding. Q — Why? What's really bugging you?

A — I've heard that only one of many charges revolves around $100,000... and yet he gets only a $10,000 fine; which makes him a felon, and yet he doesn't lose the one basic freedom which we always try to exert our young to take into the armed forces and die fighting to protect it... the right to vote.

Unfortunately there are too many who have an indifferent attitude on this most precious commodity and I resent our government being hypocritical about it.

Q — Anything else in your crew?

A — What's the big deal about all "the good Agnew has done for his country, etc.?" How about all the little guys walking the street... holding down two jobs (and his wife probably working, too) trying to make ends meet, and going deeper and deeper into debt... If this little guy pulled a bear like Agnew's, do you think he wouldn't be thrown into the puke? And not have to pay interest on his delinquent taxes, too?

Q — I see what you mean... A — The heck you mean! I see what you've had to personally appear before the Internal Revenue Service and pay the assessments for an honest (the key word, please) item on your return, then and only then you have a better idea of why I think it's a shabby indictment and penalty to a man who admits that he's a shade the other side of the law.

Q — Anything else?

A — Let me finish shaving, O.K.? Before I cut my Adam's Apple. And then there's more acidity waiting for me in my glass of orange juice... Q — See you around... A — I hope so... I want to see if the Maryland investigators have any more intestinal fortitude than the Federal brothers. Act 3 should be a doozy...

United Fund Collects $16,802 First Week

United Fund of Seminole campaign chairman Len Unitas reported Oct. 4 a total of $16,802 collected towards its $100,000 goal after one week of campaigning, and hopes to announce a substantial advance on this total today, after the latest reports are made at a United Fund luncheon hosted by the Oviedo Women's Club.

Among the contributors to make reports at today's luncheon is vice-president and general manager of Orlando General Motors, who will report $1,500 pledged by employees in his organization. Last year Jim Rasa, Montgomery Ward made a partial report of $2,676 pledged, and 25 employees at Zayre's in Sanford had pledged $816 after the first week of campaigning. Beth Glazer and Amanda Sheppard were responsible for gathering the Zayre pledges.

When Hulbert learned the Fund had upped its goal, he added an additional $200. Highlights during the first week of the campaign were generous pledges from Southern Bell and Water Bonnet, and $365 from employees of the Boy Scouts, Red Cross, and Children's Home Society which are 3 of the 11 agencies supported by the United Fund of Seminole.

Condominiums, Shop Mall Gets Okay In Altamonte

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS—Plans for two projects with a combined value of $11.5 million to be located at the northeast and southeast quadrants of Interstate 4 and SR 436 were reviewed by the city council in workshop Thursday night.

A $7 million Interstate Mall will be built at the southeast corner of the two highways while a 12-story $4.5 million Golden Arms Tower condominium project is set for the northeast quadrant.

The Interstate Mall will contain 400,000 square feet of floor space in a Montgomery Ward store, an A & P, a movie theatre, a Pan-Am Bank and other shopping facilities, the plans show.

The developers, Mayor Lawrence Swofford said, plan to begin construction soon even though no sanitary sewer service will be available for some time. Construction time was estimated at 12 to 18 months. The land is already properly zoned for the proposed development, Swofford said.

The Golden Arms Tower will be built by the Dario Icardi-Johnny Untero group, Swofford said.

they will view favorably a rezoning request. Both projects will be considered at Tuesday's regular 4:30 council meeting. The shopping mall has requested a variance on parking space size from 10 feet by 22 feet to nine by 18.

Mayor Lawrence Swofford said it appears impossible to fund another employ at this time, that lighting will have to wait until next year and possibly one more tennis court could be built.

Boston reported that SJG under state funding can conduct various courses for senior citizens and other classroom space is provided in the city. He asked the board to modify its policy on civic center use fees to permit the classes and square dance to be planned.

Currently fees for use of the facility are several hundred dollars with the exact amount dependent upon the length of time and the section to be used. Boston also recommended arrangements be made with a private enterprise for the concession stand can be leased annually for a 30 per cent return on profits.

He said he is having difficulty getting grass to grow because of the sugar fine sand. The council indicated support for construction of an additional tennis court if funds can be found and said an expert will be called in about the grass.

Mayor Lawrence Swofford said the city will have to look into the concession stand issue to determine the best way to handle it.

Altamonte Moving To 'Culture'

Dorfman offered to direct the project... council took no action.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Councilman Dan Dorfman Thursday night urged the city council to pursue federal funding to turn the city's new civic center into a cultural spot with regularly scheduled ballet, theatre and concert orchestras.

Dorfman offered to direct the project, handling all planning and pursuit of federal funding. The council meeting in workshop took no action on the recommendation, but it is to discuss it later.

Recreation Director Jim Boston requested an amendment to the one-month old budget to provide salary for a new men's athletic director, three new tennis courts and lighting on another of the ball fields.

Mayor Lawrence Swofford said it appears impossible to fund another employ at this time, that lighting will have to wait until next year and possibly one more tennis court could be built.
