Charles Schultes, 82, earned his GED high school equivalency diploma at last evening's adult education graduation ceremonies at Seminole Community College. He is congratulated by Marilyn Brisson, the director of adult education at the college.

Police check possible kidnapping

SANFORD — No response has been received in connection with a possible kidnapping. Anyone knowing of a missing person is asked to contact Sanford police.

An employee of Food Lion, in the Kmart plaza shopping center on South Orlando Drive, originally told police he had seen a woman being forced into a black van, possibly with an Illinois license plate, in the parking lot of the shopping center on Wednesday night.

The woman was described as white, five-feet, six inches tall with shoulder-length blond hair. She was wearing a white midriff tank-top.

The two men were described as either black or hispanic. One was said to be about six feet tall, 235 pounds, with a muscular build. He was reportedly wearing a white shirt and black pants.

Whitmire said anyone who may have witnessed the event or have information regarding this possible kidnapping, should call Investigator Carlos Monti at the Sanford Police Department, 323-3030.

Four structures condemned

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners unanimously voted to condemn four structures Tuesday, granting their owners until June 4 to remove the eyesores or face county liens for removal. The structures were declared public nuisances in January.

Among the structures condemned were buildings located at 2220 Center St. in Midway, owned by E.W. and Henry Oliver; and 2850 Hawkins Ave. in Lockhart's subdivision, owned by Rufus L. McLain. Commissioners told McLain if the structure was substantially demolished by June 4, they would consider an extension. Commissioners also condemned a structure in Black Hammock near Oviedo and one near Altamonte Springs.

Commissioners also declared a Black Hammock structure at 2366 Florida Avenue a public nuisance, the first step to condemnation.

End of free pick-ups

LAKE MARY — The time for yard clearing following the weekend storm last month has ended. Citizens of Lake Mary, who have been given one free yard waste pickup each week for the past four weeks, will return to the normal schedule beginning next week.

Finance Director Randy Knight announced that the original requirement of $1 per bag or $2.20 per month will go back into operation. "Tags for the yard waste bags, at $1 each, can be purchased at City Hall," he said, "or people can sign up for the regular monthly pickups." For further information call 324-3048.

14 'johns' nabbed

Sanford cops continue prostitution crackdown

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — In the first reverse-sting operation of the year last night, Sanford police arrested 14 men for soliciting prostitutes.

Police said all of the arrests made at the intersection of 5th Street and Sanford Avenue in slightly over six hours.

"We could have easily made more," said police Sgt. Ray Bronson, "but around 11 o'clock we called it a night to save on overtime."

"We could have easily made more, but around 11 o'clock we called it a night to save on overtime."

-Sgt. Ray Bronson

A reverse-sting is when female officers pose undercover as prostitutes, and arrest men who solicit sex.

Lt. Dennis Whitmire explained, "We started last night's run at about 4:30, and had very little difficulty making the arrests. The 'johns' just kept pulling up and making offers."

He added, "One man was charged with resisting arrest in addition to the solicitation charges, but most of them were strictly connected with the sex charges."

The arrests last night tripled the number of prostitution related arrests made so far this year in the city. As of April 15, seven prostitution

AIDS tests for students?

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — At this point, any Seminole County student who wants to be tested for HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, must go either to a personal physician or to the Seminole County health department. That could change next year.

"It's not something that any of our schools have the facilities to do," Supt. Paul Hagerly said.

Hagerly said that when the Full Service Schools clinics are built next year at Seminole High School, the Crooms School of Choice, Midway Elementary School and Geneva Elementary School, health department officials will have the opportunity to offer such tests to students on those school campuses.

"It's not something that has been discussed or planned yet," Hagerly said. "I don't understand why there would be any objections to it."

Full service schools are designed to offer social, medical and other services to the community served by the school for those who do not have the ability to travel great distances to receive those services.

"I know that they will not be offering some controversial things in the birth control area, but I see no problem with offering AIDS testing."

LAKE MARY — The Greater Lake Mary/Heathrow Chamber of Commerce is moving rapidly toward finalizing plans for the fourth annual "Taste of Lake Mary" event on May 3.

Last year, approximately 1,300 persons attended the food-tasting spectacular. An even larger crowd is expected this year, with plans being made for better entrance and circulation routes. Tents and separate areas are also planned for the patio area of Timacuan Country Club, host of the event.

Over 30 restaurants are expected. See Taste, Page 5A

Kaplan back in jail; bond hiked

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Eric Adam Kaplan remained in Seminole County jail this morning after Circuit Judge Alan A. Dickey increased bail from $100,000 to $200,000 Thursday afternoon and ordered him back to jail for moving without notifying the court.

Dickey found that Kaplan, a former Florida House candidate accused of attempting to murder his opponent Bob Starks, had violated a bail release condition. Although Kaplan notified Dickey in March he had moved, he listed a post office box in Eatonville, not a residence. His attorney filed a statement Thursday that Kaplan now lives in Casselberry.

Prosecutor Tom Hastings said he learned of the violation from Kaplan's father, Bernard Kaplan. Hastings said Bernard Kaplan stated his son had moved and he did not know where he was living. Kaplan had been ordered to live with his parents in their Altamonte Springs home.

Burglary or hate crime?

COOPER CITY — Burglars ransacked and defaced the inside of a home with dozens of swastikas while the owners were on vacation, police said.

"I've been working burglary for three years and I've seen over 100 burglaries — and this is one of the worst I've ever seen," Cooper City police detective Robert Cates said.

Swastikas of varying sizes were painted throughout the three-bedroom Cooper City home owned by Jerome Roedel and his wife. Cooper City is in the southwest corner of Broward County.

The inside of the house was heavily damaged, he said, and some household items, including a stereo, a television set and some jewelry, were stolen.

Police said they were investigating the incident as both a burglary and a hate crime.

Man gets life for rape, torture

WEST PALM BEACH — A Palm Beach County jury convicted Charles Zenobia Jr. of kidnapping an exotic dancer and then raping and torturing her for 18 days last year.

Zenobia, 40, the son of a former commissioner in the Broward County town of Dania, closed his eyes Wednesday as the court clerk read the verdicts.

He faces a life sentence with the guilty verdicts for armed kidnapping, armed sexual battery and 17 counts of sexual battery by physical force.

The dancer, Catrina Harper, 23, learned of the verdicts on the television evening news, she said in a telephone interview. Harper has agreed through her attorneys to be identified.

"Right now, I'm shaking all over. I'm so happy that he can never hurt another person and can never hurt me again," said Harper, who has returned to school to become a registered nurse.

Harper, who used drugs before she met Zenobia, is now a recovering cocaine addict and attends Narcotics Anonymous meetings.

4 in running for top UCF academic job

ORLANDO — A search committee has chosen four candidates for the top academic job at the University of Central Florida, a post to be filled next month.

The panel earlier chose six male finalists for provost, but was criticized by Chancellor Charles Reed of the state university system for not selecting any women.

The latest list includes two women.

Nancy Smith Barrett, provost of Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, and Janice McKenna Reynolds, vice chancellor for academic affairs at the University of Alaska/Fairbanks, join two of the original male candidates.

They are Gary Whitehouse, dean of UCF's College of Engineering, and Dalmas Taylor, provost of the University of Vermont in Burlington.

UCF President John Hitt will make the final selection after a second round of interviews in May, school officials said. The provost is the school's second-ranking official and responsible for developing all academic programs.

Habitual offender turns self in JACKSONVILLE — A man convicted of drunken driving three separate times has turned himself in after he was involved in an accident that killed a South Carolina woman.

James Martin Benson, 48, of Jacksonville, turned himself in Tuesday. He was charged with manslaughter and driving with a suspended license.

Ethel Roberts, 29, of Winnsboro, S.C., died Wednesday of chest injuries suffered in a traffic collision Monday night.

She and her husband, Cleveland, 31, were pulling out from a restaurant parking lot when police said a pickup driven by Benson darted across several lanes of traffic and slammed into their car.

Benson has three previous drunken-driving convictions, police said, in 1973, 1975 and 1980. In the 1980 crash, he caused an accident that injured another driver. He was also charged with DUI on Feb. 16 of this year, authorities said.

Shaq's dad accused of abuse to writer

ORLANDO — Police are investigating a complaint the father of Orlando Magic center Shaquille O'Neal abused and threatened a freelance writer at the Orlando Arena.

Bruce Hunter of Baton Rouge, La., who is writing a book about the basketball star, complained to police Philip Harrison had shoved him against a desk, smashed his tape recorder and threatened him over the book.

The confrontation took place at the Magic's office complex after the team played its final game of the season last Saturday night, Hunter said.

Orlando police said an investigator was interviewing the two men and would submit a report to the state attorney's office for possible charges.

Chiles signs health care law

Law creates 11 alliances open to small businesses

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Floridians will get together to buy health care, encouraging market competition and benefiting from volume purchasing under a bill signed by Gov. Lawton Chiles.

"By joining with others in their areas, they're going to have the purchasing clout to get the best care at the lowest price," Chiles said Thursday.

The law creates 11 alliances open to small businesses and state government, which buys some $8 billion of health care services annually for its workers and welfare recipients.

The provision creating the alliances takes effect July 1, and Chiles has said he thinks it will take the next six months to get them up and running.

Florida lawmakers were the first in the nation to approve a statewide "managed competition" plan, Chiles said. That concept is at the forefront of the debate on national health care reform. Since Florida passed its bill earlier this month, Maryland and Washington have also passed managed competition health plans.

Lawmakers, and representatives of business, doctors and insurance companies were all at the signing to praise the plan.

Traditionally, health care providers have been the decision-makers, according to state Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher. But the alliances will change that, he said.

"When you have the people with the money making informed decisions, that's when you go back to the free-enterprise system," he said.

The alliances will give health care consumers enough power to "negotiate toe-to-toe with the multi-billion health care industry," said Charles Liphart Jr., a Jacksonville businessman representing the National Federation of Independent Businesses.

"The small-business owners and the consumers — those who pay the bills — will direct the course of health care in Florida," Liphart said.

Nearly 20 percent of Floridians have no insurance, meaning many have to wait until they become sick enough to warrant a trip to the emergency room to seek care.

Health care in emergency rooms is four times more expensive than services from a family doctor, Chiles said.

Most of the uninsured have jobs or are the dependents of workers but don't get benefits on the job, can't afford private insurance and don't qualify for government aid.

Despite the gaps in the current system, Florida's health care spending last year reached $38 billion and is expected to reach $80 billion by the turn of the century if left unchecked.

The bill also changes the way insurers can set rates for small-group policies and requires that insurance be issued to everyone.

Insurance companies now base rates on claims history and deny coverage to some based on their health.

Under the new law, rates could be based on only five factors: age, gender, location, smoking history and family size. The result will be that people in each community have similar premiums, regardless of health.

Students getting facts of life from never reviewed program

By Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — A new version of the controversial Teen-Aid sex education program is being used in Duval County Schools through the School Board hasn't reviewed the revised curriculum which it will have to defend in court.

"Every curriculum gets revised as more knowledge becomes available," said School Board Chairman Don Buckley. He said there was no reason to review the new curriculum, which started a few months ago.

Cheryl Donelan, elected to the School Board last year, said she has not seen the new edition.

Board member Nancy Corwin, a supporter of Teen-Aid, said she has asked for a copy of the revised edition so she can read it.

The Teen-Aid program is the subject of a lawsuit filed last year by Planned Parenthood of Northeast Florida and several families against the School Board. The lawsuit claims the curriculum was inaccurate and incomplete.

The program, published by a firm in Spokane, Wash., teaches abstinence from sex and does not teach birth control.

In the past week, Planned Parenthood and the parents have amended their lawsuit to challenge the accuracy of the revised version of Teen-Aid.

Combat excites women pilots

By Associated Press

WHITING FIELD — When Lt. Rhonda Buckner joined the Navy in 1974 as one of the first women aviation electricians, the prospect of becoming a pilot wasn't an option.

"I didn't think about it," she recalled.

But now she's an instructor pilot, and as a result of a policy change announced Wednesday by Defense Secretary Les Aspin, some of her female students may have a chance to fly in combat.

"I wish I was their age. I get goose bumps just thinking about it," said Buckner, who plans to retire next year.

Lt. Liz Steinacker agreed that women used to accept there were certain things they would never do when they joined the Navy.

"Now, all of a sudden, they open it up and say you can do what you want," she said. "I kind of met my glass ceiling. Women coming in now won't have that problem."

Steinacker, fifth most senior among the Navy's 36 women jet pilots, said she hopes soon to be flying FA-18 Hornet fighters off aircraft carriers.

However, congressional action would have to be taken before women are allowed to serve on combat ships such as carriers.

She also is an instructor at this flight training base in the Florida Panhandle. About 80 percent of primary Navy flight training is conducted here and all of the service's basic helicopter training.

The women pilots said they do not want special treatment, just a chance to compete equally with men for combat jobs.

POLICE

Additional burglary charges

Two more burglary charges have been brought against a 16-year-old Sanford youth, already in custody for a previous burglary arrest.

A charge of burglary was added Thursday against the youth. Charges of burglary and grand theft were entered Wednesday by Seminole County deputies against the youth. Police reports indicate the Wednesday charges stemmed from an April 5 burglary of a Brown Drive residence where nearly $8,400 in jewelry and stereo equipment was reported taken.

Sign leads to arrest

A Seminole County deputy took a dim view of a Longwood man's street-sign peace offering to his girlfriend and arrested him on a criminal mischief charge Wednesday.

Daniel Michael Greene Jr., 24, 206 Jonesbury Court, was arrested at the intersection of Anchor Road and Amanda Street near Altamonte Springs at about 2:15 a.m. A policeman reported to the deputy he encountered Greene standing on his truck shaking the sign, bending it. Greene told the deputy he had been arguing with his girlfriend as they drove along. When he saw the sign, the man said he wanted to retrieve it for her.

Domestic violence charged

An 86-year-old Longwood man was arrested Wednesday morning after he struck his wife, saying he couldn't take her "big mouth" anymore.

Edward A. Koacke, 100 Bears Drive, was arrested at 9 a.m. morning on a charge of domestic violence battery. When a Seminole County deputy arrived at the home on a disturbance complaint, he reported finding Koacke preparing to drive away in a van. Koacke began yelling at his wife, who in turn, began yelling back.

The deputy reported finding the woman's forehead cut and her glasses on the floor of their home. The woman reported her husband had struck her after she began vacuuming.

When asked about the incident, Koacke told the deputy "Yeah, I hit her, she has a big mouth. After 30 years of her mouth, I just couldn't take it anymore," according to reports.

Wife reports domestic violence

Charles Gatlin, 38, 127 Myrtle Drive, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police on a domestic violence battery charge Wednesday night.

Gatlin's wife reported he had slapped her face several times, twisted her arm and shoved her.

Assault was verbal

Melvin Walker, 49, Seminole Gardens, Apt. 79, Sanford, was arrested on a verbal assault charge Wednesday night.

Walker's ex-wife reported he threatened to "bash her head in" and burn her residence, according to reports.

Prostitution charged

Claudia Darden, 31, 84 Redding Gardens, Sanford, was arrested on a prostitution charge near the corner of Sanford Avenue and Seminole Boulevard Wednesday night.

A Sanford police Special Investigations Unit agent reported she offered to perform a sexual act for $20.

Arrests made on cocaine charges

Two Sanford residents were arrested on cocaine sales charges by Sanford police Special Investigations Unit agents Wednesday night near the corner of 11th Street and Maple Avenue.

Tomika Camille Thomas, 24, 11 Higgins Terrace, was arrested on a sale and delivery of cocaine charge after a "cooperating individual" reported buying a piece of "crack" cocaine from Thomas for $20.

Tony Lambert Harris, 26, 1110 E. 11th St., was arrested on a sale and delivery of cocaine charge after an "undercover operative" reported buying crack from Harris for $10.

Warrant arrests made

The following wanted persons have been taken into custody:

Stephen Michael Beckner, 30, Florida Hotel, Sanford, was arrested Wednesday near Altamonte Springs by a Seminole County deputy. The deputy reported finding Beckner was wanted on a charge of failure to appear in court to answer to a battery charge.

Emery Garnette Johnson, 26, 2616 McCarthy Ave., Sanford, was served with a warrant Wednesday at the Seminole County jail after he was delivered there by Volusia County deputies. Johnson was wanted on a charge of failure to appear in court on a theft charge.

Alfredo Shawn Stimac, 19, 2415 Laurel Ave., Sanford, was arrested at the state probation office Wednesday by a deputy. Stimac was wanted on a probation violation charge for a burglary and grand theft conviction.

Jimmie Lee Daniels, 21, 1706 W. 14th St., Sanford, was arrested by a deputy in Sanford Wednesday. Daniels was wanted in St. Johns County on concealed firearm and resisting arrest charges.

Bert Andrew Dickens, 22, 120 Tree Oaks Lane, Sanford, was arrested by a Sanford policeman early Thursday morning. Dickens was wanted on a charge of failure to appear in court to answer to a battery charge.

Joseph William Huebner, 45, 733 Rosecliff Circle, Sanford, turned himself in to deputies at the county jail Wednesday. Huebner was wanted on a worthless check charge.

Crimes reported to authorities

The following crimes have been reported to Seminole County deputies and Sanford police Wednesday:

A television and other possessions valued at more than $700 were reported taken from a residence in the 1400 block of Dixie Way in Midway sometime Sunday between 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m.

A woman residing in a home in the 3000 block of East State Road 46 in Midway reported a man kicked in her door at 9:10 a.m. Wednesday, took $400 in jewelry and verbally threatened her before leaving.

A woman living in the 1100 block of Cedar Creek Circle, Sanford, reported someone took a $795 television from her home sometime Wednesday between 6:15 a.m. and 5:15 p.m.

A woman living in the 1200 block of Sanford Avenue, Sanford, reported an identified suspect broke into her home at about 4 p.m. Saturday and took several possessions. The woman reported the suspect has used her video tape rental card since the burglary.

Three firearms, jewelry and other possessions totaling nearly $5,000 in value were reported taken sometime Wednesday between 6 a.m. and 10 a.m. from a residence in the 1900 block of Summerlin Avenue, Sanford.

Two gold chains and a television were reported taken from a residence in the 2500 block of George Avenue, Sanford, sometime Wednesday between 12:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m.

A Bridgewater Apartments resident reported she was robbed at gunpoint of $13 Wednesday night in the apartments' parking lot. The woman said the man tried to force her to drive him away in her car. The man ran away when another car passed. The incident occurred at 9:40 p.m., the woman reported.

Senate panel told tourist crimes stem from increased violence in Florida

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Crimes against tourists make big headlines and jeopardize Florida's biggest industry, but violence is no stranger to people who live in the Sunshine State, a Senate panel was told.

"When our largest and most viable industry is threatened, we're moved to action," Gov. Lawton Chiles told the Senate Select Committee on Tourist-Related Crime.

"We need to all make sure we show the same concern to our smallest business. Violent crime is a common denominator in Florida," the governor said Thursday.

Tim Moore, commissioner of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, said violent crime has risen 60 percent over the past decade — and 98 percent of the victims are residents of the state.

"The problem we ought to be speaking of here is the disease of violent crime that is afflicting the people of this state," Moore said. "This time it's tourists. Next time it might be liquor store owners."

The committee, appointed following the April 2 murder of German tourist Barbara Meller Jensen after she got lost in Miami, is investigating how the Legislature can assure tourists that Florida remains a desirable destination and help them avoid becoming victims.

Six foreign tourists have died violently in the Sunshine State since December, leading to screaming headlines in Great Britain and elsewhere about crime in Florida. That influenced some people to cancel vacations, jeopardizing an industry that generates $30 billion in taxable sales a year.

"This special type of crime goes to the very heart of the economy of our state," said the panel's chairman, Sen. Gary Siegel, R-Altamonte Springs.

A projected 42 million tourists will visit Florida this year, about 3.4 million from foreign countries.

Klaus Sommer, the West German government's consul general to Florida, said an estimated 171,000 Germans will visit the state this year, but they'll take more precautions.

"If things don't change, we cannot keep telling people this is a great place to come," Sommer said. "Everybody knows now there are risks involved."

Dade County and state tourism officials have begun improvements for foreign tourists, such as more information centers, multi-lingual maps and safety tips. The state also is removing tollable lease tags and special license plates from rental cars used by criminals to target visitors.

But to tackle the long-term problem, Chiles and Moore said more prison beds are needed to keep criminals off the streets.

Chiles plans a special legislative session in late May to seek a five-year, 21,000-bed prison construction program paid for with a 25-cents-a-pack increase in the cigarette tax.

"The best message that the state of Florida can send to people around the state and around the world is that we will do the crime in Florida will do the time," Chiles said.

89 inmates released early to be arrested

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Law enforcement officials said they would attempt to round up 89 prison inmates released before their sentences were up following a state Supreme Court ruling.

Prosecutors began seeking warrants Thursday and some inmates may be returned to custody by the weekend, Corrections Secretary Harry Singletary said.

"It just depends on how fortunate we are in catching them at their jobs and at their homes," he said.

The court ruled in the case of Jeffrey Ipnar, 28, of Bradenton, that lawmakers had the authority to cancel provisional credits that had automatically shortened prisoners' sentences.

He had challenged an opinion by Attorney General Bob Butterworth that said the Department of Corrections had granted early release to inmates who weren't entitled to it.

Butterworth ruled after public criticism in December of the near-release of Seminole County child-killer Donald McDougall, who would have served 10 years of a 34-year sentence. Butterworth's decision added at least five years to McDougall's term.

"This ruling echoes what we've been saying, that violent criminals should not win early release through provisional credits they never should have been granted in the first place," said Gov. Lawton Chiles.

Earlier, Chiles released a Corrections Department study showing violent criminals who are released from prison early are twice as likely to commit a new crime as inmates who serve their entire sentences.

"These figures show unmistakably that early release perpetuate a cycle of crime," the governor said.

Release of the study comes as state economists reduced their projections for the number of inmates expected in the prison system over the next five years.

Despite the brightening picture, a legislative economist said Wednesday the prison system will remain overcrowded.

"We're still in a position of needing more beds," said Ed Montanaro, director of the Legislature's Economic and Demographic Research Division. "It doesn't substantially alter the situation."

Chiles said the new early release study highlights the need for his 21,000-bed, five-year prison construction program financed by a 25-cents-a-pack cigarette tax increase. The governor will call a special session of the Legislature in late May on the issue.

The Corrections Department analysis shows 27.9 percent of the violent inmates released early between January 1987 and October 1991 were arrested for a new crime within 18 months of release.

Only 15.8 percent of violent offenders who served their full sentences during the same period committed another crime within a year and a half.

Overall, 34 percent of all inmates released early are arrested again, compared to 20.9 percent of those who serve the full term.

Montanaro said the falling crime rate led the Criminal Justice Estimating Conference to reduce the projected 1997-98 prison population from 104,181 to 98,875 — still about twice the current number of prison beds.

Keep code enforcement strong

Earlier this month, Seminole County officials made a change to their condemnation program which sends mixed signals.

Without previous approval of commissioners, the deadline for owners of condemned structures to remove their dilapidated buildings was shifted from seven days to 30 days. The condemnation period follows an owner notification process that probably began six months before. Often, the owner is notified of the nuisance more than a year before the condemnation occurs.

The change went unnoticed by commissioners until Tuesday, when it was questioned by commissioner Larry Furlong. The response from the county's attorneys was seven days was not long enough for a property owner to tear down a building or hire someone to do it.

Apparently satisfied, commissioners went on to other matters.

Is there really a problem here? Commissioners routinely granted extensions to the seven-day limitation when a property owner showed a real interest in remedying or removing the problem.

Complicating the situation, the county's only condemnation inspector Albert Flores will leave for another job next week. Without Flores' dedication, county attention to the program will undoubtedly waver at least until a replacement is hired.

Compassionate accommodation is always an admirable quality, but we hope these changes do not herald a waning interest in one of the most fundamentally positive programs initiated by the county in a long time.

Siege in Waco

Re: the siege in Waco —
 Regardless of the "investigation" now being conducted, the ultimate responsibility for the deaths of the men, women and children lies with the federal government!

Several of the constitutional rights of the Davidians which we all, liberal or conservative, profess to hold dear, were trampled on by the agents of the United States.

First is the guaranteed right to freedom of religion. If these people want to worship dirt, a rock or a nut, then under the Constitution they have that right.

Second is the right of assembly. Regardless of what any Waco local feels, the Davidians had the right to gather near Waco.

Third, the right to free speech. If the Davidians only spoke of Armageddon, sedition or any other subject while being eavesdropped on by the government or its informants, there is no crime until the act is committed.

Fourth, the Bill of Rights states that the right to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed upon. It does not say only weapons approved by the government are allowed to be possessed. To the contrary. This amendment was added as a means to protect private citizens from an unjust government. "Not" to protect the government from the people!

On the TV, the newscasters without exception have called the Davidians cultists, criminals, and worse. But anyone watching the news could see the news being manipulated by the government. Even if there had been a reporter who did not go along with the government version of this drama/tragedy as it was played out, he or she was not allowed near enough to actually see what was happening. (News people have almost always been allowed to be on the front lines during combat, but were kept back in Waco at least two miles according to news reports.)

The citizens of this great country should remember the story that ends "and when they came for me, there was no one left to protest" or words to that effect.

CHUCK STONE Koresh and other hostage takers

This is the week that President Clinton celebrates the 100th day of his presidency. But overriding this chronological moment is an interlude of widespread hostage-taking.

Savagely hubristic David Koresh held his followers hostage, then caused their deaths. Ohio prison inmates held their guards hostage. Some of the media seemed to hold the public hostage with questionable second-guessing. And Republicans are still holding Clinton's economic stimulus plan hostage.

I don't come into court with clean hands on the subject of violent hostage-taking. On five different occasions, I negotiated the release of hostages who were being held at gunpoint or knife-point.

There was nothing heroic about what I did. "You idiot," my loving wife jocularly chided me, and she had a point.

The situations involved an attempted prison break, an attempted bank robbery, a motel disagreement and two private-family knock-down, drag-out rows. In each instance, the hostage takers refused to talk with anybody but me, because several of my past columns had documented miscarriages of justice.

I certainly don't qualify as an expert, but those five traumatic events did teach me three things about hostage negotiation.

First, the experiences from one hostage-taking are not necessarily transferable to another. Inexhaustible patience and empathetic listening skills help. But what you learn from facing a double-barrel shotgun, a single-barrel shotgun, a .38 and a .22 in a narrow, dark prison corridor where four convicted murderers are holding six hostages isn't applicable to facing a double-barrel shotgun in a bank with an unarmed policeman and one hostage or facing a man in a motel who has already serrated the face of a woman cashier and is threatening to kill her.

"I certainly don't qualify as an expert, but those traumatic events did teach me three things about hostage negotiation."

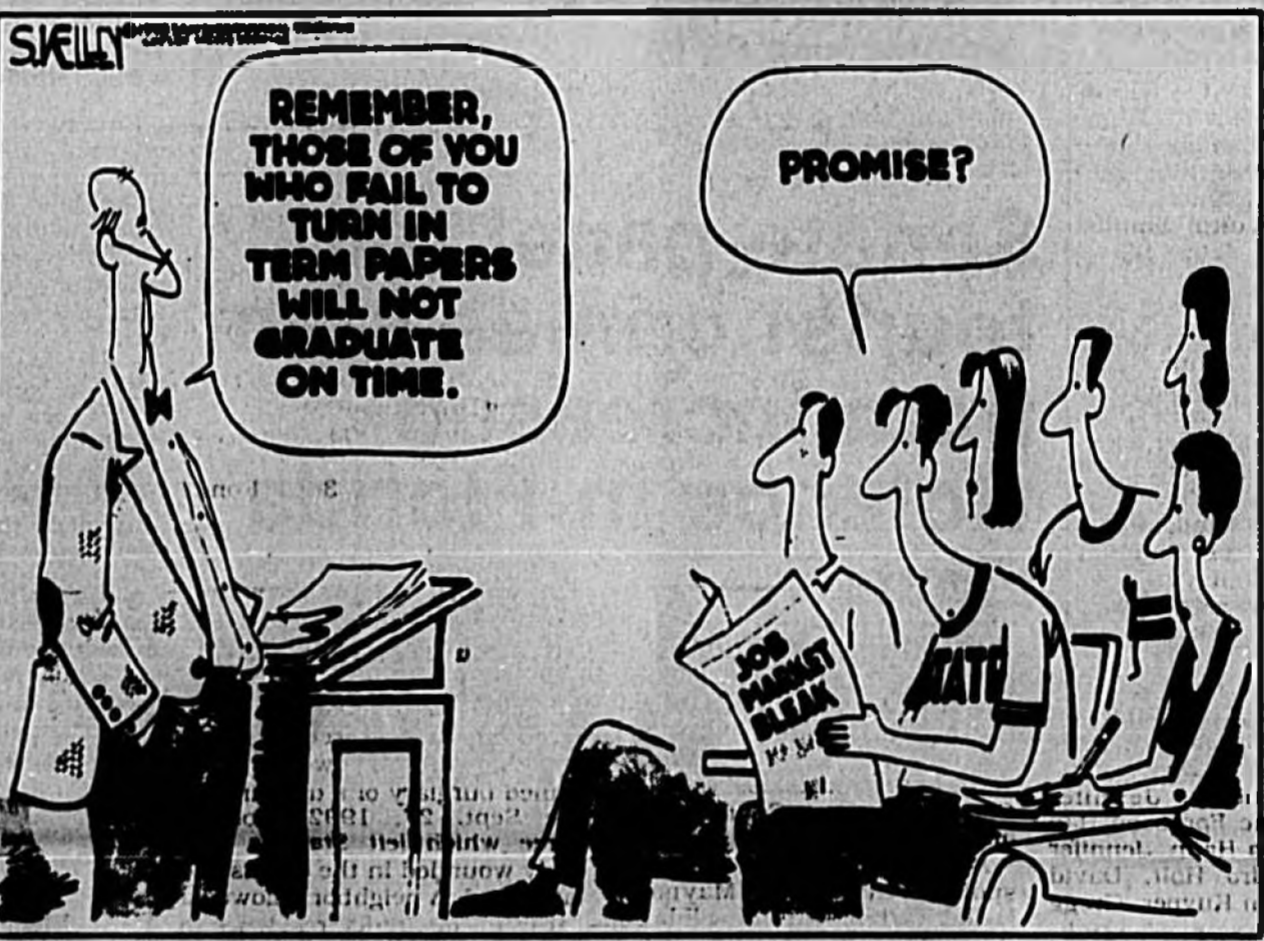

Second, the hostage negotiator must have credibility with the hostage takers. The most distinguished reputation among others is meaningless if hostage takers don't respect the negotiator.

Third, although I have been a First Amendment absolutist for almost a half century, I still believe that the media must be kept out of the negotiating loop as much as possible.

I personally came close to being killed during the prison negotiations when confidential information about the hostages that the hostage takers' leader wanted kept secret was published. "I will execute them tonight," an infuriated Joe-Joe Bowen shouted at me.

The day after David Koresh engineered the death of his followers, I was stunned to hear a morning National Public Radio interviewer ask an "expert" if Attorney General Janet Reno was in trouble. That evening, on ABC's "Nightline," predictability followed idiocy when the question was posed: Should Janet Reno resign?

Strangely, nobody focused on whether the male heads of the FBI and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms — or any of the people who fed faulty information and questionable psychological data to the decision makers — ought to resign.

ROBERT WAGMAN VAT may help fund reform

WASHINGTON — Candidate Bill Clinton promised the only way he would ever consider implementing a value-added tax would be as part of a fundamental overhaul of the entire tax system. Now President Clinton needs to find a massive new revenue source to fund universal health-care reform. So the task force headed by Hillary Rodham Clinton is considering recommending some kind of VAT.

VAT has been a staple of taxation in Europe for decades. It operates much like a sales tax, depending on how it is applied.

A modified VAT is really a national sales tax: It is charged to consumers at the final point of sale. A true VAT, however, as it exists in most European countries, is a tax applied against goods or services at every step of the production and distribution chain.

To use an automobile as an example: The iron ore would be taxed when sold to the smelter; the resulting sheet steel would be taxed when sold to the auto-parts manufacturer; the finished part would be taxed when sold to the carmaker; the car itself would be taxed when sold to the dealer; it would be taxed again when sold to the consumer. In each case, the tax would be on the "added value" of the material at each step of production and distribution.

The proposal is nothing new. VAT has been debated in Congress, off and on, for more than 30 years. It was sharply debated, and rejected, in the early 1970s. Then it came up again, briefly, as part of the tax-reform debate in the mid-1980s.

Actually, a kind of VAT does exist in this country already. The so-called "Superfund" toxic-waste cleanup program was financed by an excise tax on crude oil, imported petroleum products, petrochemicals and inorganic chemicals. However, this meant that 90 percent of the funds were coming from just 78 corporations. When the Superfund was reauthorized in the early 1980s, it was decided that all manufacturing companies with sales in excess of $5 million annually would pay a .08 percent VAT.

Opponents of VAT come from both ends of the political spectrum. Many conservatives oppose it because it is a "hidden tax" that would be added on top of the present tax system, resulting in a tax increase. Other conservatives oppose it on the grounds that it is "anti-family." They reason that a man with a wife and children, no matter what his income level, has to spend more of his earned income each year than a single man earning the same amount. Thus, under a value-added tax system, he would pay higher taxes because he has a family.

Liberals oppose it as a highly regressive tax, taking more on a percentage basis from those who must spend more of their incomes to live. Therefore it is opposed by unions, organizations representing minorities and the poor, and, for the most part, Democratic tax experts.

In European countries the regressiveness is held down by exempting certain necessities from the tax. In almost all VAT countries this means exempting food and health care. In some it also means exempting housing and clothing below a certain price.

In the past, experts in this country, when talking about VAT, have cautioned against exempting any good or service. The theory is that the system becomes corrupt when you begin carving out exemptions, and that you can make up for a VAT's regressiveness by issuing credits for the poor, and by increasing various forms of public assistance.

The argument also is that a VAT applied at every level would be partially absorbed by various producers at the intermediate levels, before the final product reaches the consumer. The entire amount would not be passed along to consumers.

In recent years two new arguments have been added in favor of a VAT. In this country a major economic problem is how little Americans save relative to their counterparts around the world, particularly in Asia. A VAT acts as a disincentive to spend, and thus promotes savings.

It is also argued that a VAT here would help our balance of trade problems by driving up the price of foreign goods here relative to the price of our goods being sold abroad.

In Germany, for instance, a German car carried with it a 9 percent VAT. When that car leaves Germany and is exported to the United States, the VAT comes off, and the car is cheaper here. But when an American product goes into Germany, VAT is added, and the price goes up. The reasoning goes that if a VAT were added here to that German car, it would no longer be as cheap and the competing American product would be more competitive.

"A modified VAT is really a national sales tax."

JACK ANDERSON Fed Reserve moves in expensive ways

WASHINGTON — Internal Federal Reserve Board documents reveal that the Fed has dispersed more than $2 million in moving expenses to just 17 officials over the last three years — or more than half of the $3.5 million budgeted for Bill Clinton's entire presidential transition and move from Little Rock, Ark., to Washington.

The 17 officials averaged approximately $118,387 per move. By comparison, a 1989 General Services Administration survey of several Cabinet departments showed that relocation costs for federal employees averaged slightly more than $14,000.

In one of the biggest cases we examined, a new vice president at the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland received $181,908 to relocate from North Carolina.

Fed records show that this official received $4,950 for house-hunting in Cleveland; $16,148 for the move and temporary living arrangements; and $85,225 to pay a relocation agency. Once the employee's old house had been sold, the Fed shelled out $74,323 for the cost of the sale, which included losses sustained on the old home due to the depressed real-estate market.

These reimbursements are taxable. But the Fed chipped in $40,281 to cover the official's IRS liability. The Cleveland Fed acknowledged that the move was extraordinary, but refused to comment further.

The Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco and its four branches spent more than $1 million to move nine employees during this period. In 1990, one employee received $121,455 to move from San Francisco to Los Angeles. Another employee who moved from Kansas City, Mo., to Los Angeles in 1991 received more than $227,000 from the Fed including $69,230 in tax assistance.

Ron Supinski, a spokesman at the San Francisco Federal Reserve, said the bank was forced to pay more to induce Fed employees to move to an area known for its high cost of living. "You have to dangle something out there to get what you want when housing costs are that high," he argued.

Asked to comment on these cases, House Banking Committee Chairman Henry B. Gonzalez told our associate Dean Boyd: "As an independent agency, the Federal Reserve enjoys the privilege of setting its own pay scales."

"If the Federal Reserve wastes money, the taxpayers bear the costs, because these higher costs translate into less income for the Treasury. ... Ironically, these lavish expenses are being incurred by the agency that is the high priest of sacrifice and belt tightening."

The Fed has long been one of the most gilded government bureaucracies. For years, employees at the Federal Reserve Board in Washington have enjoyed cash awards, a private tennis court and a full-time art curator who regularly rotates the extensive art exhibits in the halls. Top officials of the 12 Federal Reserve banks are provided Fed-owned sedans for use at home and at work. Some are radio-equipped while others come with armed chauffeurs. Fed employees are also reimbursed for membership dues in certain private clubs. Between 1990 and 1991, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York alone paid out over $67,000 in club membership dues.

Freed by law from executive branch control, the Federal Reserve has essentially run itself as an independent entity since its creation in 1913. Because the Fed draws its operating money from its interest on Treasury holdings, as opposed to other agencies whose funds are annually appropriated, Congress has been locked in a decade-long struggle with the central bank over independence and oversight.

"The Fed has dispersed more than $2 million in moving expenses to just 17 officials."

Hagerty Lee County AIDS Task Force. "By and large, the people of Lee County are very much aware of this disease, and of the price we pay for putting our heads in the sand," Geisler told The Miami Herald for a story today.

The decision to allow the tests followed long debates and opposition from parents who said the procedures violated state confidentiality laws covering minors because children could get tested without having to seek their permission.

Lee County officials said they know of some schools across the country which assist students in private testing, but they believe theirs is the first school district to sponsor the tests.

Riverdale was the only school which could participate. The board's move came late in the school year, after the other six schools had held their health fairs.

Geisler's group proposed the high school tests and provides counselors for the schools. He said AIDS among teens in the county corresponds to figures nationwide — about 22 percent of Lee's 631 AIDS patients are teens.

Angela Gangemi, 17, a senior and secretary of the student body, said adults make much more ado of AIDS than teenagers.

"To us, it's part of health care,"

Dr. Jorge Deju, director of the Seminole County health department was unavailable for comment this morning.

Elsewhere in Florida, schools are also addressing AIDS testing for students.

In what officials said was the first-of-a-kind program for the state — and likely for the nation — juniors and seniors at Riverdale High School in Lee County could get tested Thursday for HIV.

Hagerty said he believes that Seminole County students should not be denied access to such testing when it is available.

Riverdale principal, Robert Durham, said 170 students were eligible to take the test, but did not say how many did. The results will be available next week.

"The tests should be available to anyone who wants one," said student council President Steve McIntyre, 17. "It's something people my age need to have access to."

School board officials agree.

After a hotly contested pilot AIDS testing program at the school last year, the Lee County School Board voted to make AIDS tests available at the seven high schools in the county during their annual health fairs.

"It's a very forward-thinking school board," said Mark Geisler, executive director of the undercover officer had said, "We hope it will discourage the customers."

Local Nutri/System franchise remains open

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Nutri/System Weight-Loss Center in Lake Mary will be open Saturday as usual. It is a franchise operation and is not affected by the closing of the company owned operations nationwide.

Although the store was closed today, telephone calls were forwarded to another Nutri/System store. An employee, who declined to identify herself or comment further, said the Lake Mary office would be open tomorrow. The store is in The Oaks Shopping Center on Lake Mary Boulevard.

A statement released by a Nutri/System media hotline this morning stated:

"The financial problems announced this week by Nutri/System, Inc., which operates 283 weight loss centers, are corporate matters only. The 557 U.S. franchised Nutri/System centers have stayed open and will continue to be open for clients. The negotiation process between Nutri/System, Inc. and a new owner is nearing an end. The announcement regarding a new investor for Nutri/System, Inc. could be released as soon as May 1. It is expected that Nutri/System, Inc. will be returning to normal operations early next week."

Nutri/System Inc.'s nearly 300 company-owned diet centers were closed and employees told not to come to work after a bank seized the troubled company's cash during restructuring talks.

About 1,800 employees were affected when Nutri/System said late Wednesday that it was closing its 283 company-owned centers in the United States. Its 857 franchised centers and its Canadian operations will stay open.

"This is a sad day for employees who have dedicated their lives to helping people lose and manage their weight through our program," the company, based in this Philadelphia suburb, said in a statement.

Nutri/System said Fidelity Bank, the agent for a seven-member consortium of banks, "had seized all of the company's cash and had taken control of all of the company's bank accounts."

Saying it was "appalled" by the bank action, Nutri/System said the company "negotiated in good faith for several months with several viable investors in an attempt to restructure the company."

to be involved in this year's evening of food and entertainment. Among Lake Mary restaurants are Doros, Chill's, Orient IV, Christos, Galleria, Carveli Timacuan Country Club, and many others.

According to chamber spokesperson Sam Maynard-Hall, "Each restaurant will bring three different sampling dishes of their specialties, and people will have the opportunity to taste any or all of them."

"We are also offering corporate tables," she said, "in special tents where they will have assured seating, VIP parking, and even their own personal entertainment."

She continued, "The food will consist of just about everything you could imagine, from steak and gator, to foods from around the world."

Timacuan is also providing some decorative ice sculptures for the event.

Maynard-Hall said several bands will be on hand to provide entertainment.

Tickets, which will enable holders to visit all of the restaurant displays during the event, are $15 in advance, and $20 at the door. They may be purchased at the chamber office located in Lake Mary Centre, off Lake Mary Blvd.

The "Taste of Lake Mary" will be held Monday, May 3, from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m., at Timacuan Golf & Country Club, in Lake Mary.

For further information, phone the chamber office at 333-4748.

Kaplan

Kaplan faces charges of attempted first-degree murder, shooting into a dwelling and armed burglary of a dwelling for the Sept. 27, 1992 shooting spree which left Starks' wife Judy wounded in the calf as she lay in bed. A neighbor followed a car from the Starks' residence to an apartment complex where Kaplan lived. Seminole County deputies found the car was registered to a business owned by Kaplan's father.

A subsequent search of Kaplan's apartment revealed a notepad with Starks' address and a five-shot revolver with five spent shell casings.

Kaplan was represented by Orlando lawyer James Russ Thursday, although Kaplan has filed letters with the court dismissing Russ and filed a complaint against Russ with The Florida Bar. Kaplan accused Russ of abusive behavior and reckless temper and claimed Russ threatened him.

Russ filed a motion Thursday seeking to be removed as Kaplan's counsel, saying the accusations have created an adversarial relationship between attorney and client.

In a separate motion, Russ asked the court to order a psychological examination of Kaplan, saying his competency to stand trial was in doubt. Russ made the accusation based on personal and professional contacts with his client and his "bizarre relationships" with others.

LET US REPLENISH THE SEED OF FAITH THROUGH ... Regular Church Attendance

Quite contrary to the ageless adage, it seems that someone dared "put all their eggs in one basket."
It is sometimes difficult to put our trust in others. We are often discouraged by misleading information and broken promises. Is it possible for a basically self-protective society to sanctify the unseen . . . to heed the unheard?
Yes, indeed it is possible. Each time we read God's Holy Word, believe it, and fashion our lives accordingly, the possibility becomes reality. God does not break His promises. His advice is straightforward and sure.
Discover more about our Heavenly Father as you worship each Sabbath. You can put all of your faith in God.

America...United In Prayer

Residents asked to take time out for prayer

Churches throughout the community and nation will ring their bells and come together for prayer at noon on Thursday in observance of The Annual National Day of Prayer.

Local pastors will open their doors to welcome residents to a moment of concentrated worship with the theme "America...United In Prayer."

In light of racial unrest, rioting, earthquakes, hurricanes and other disasters that have wreaked havoc on the nation, America needs prayer now more than ever before, according to the day of prayer organizers.

Praying is easy. There's no formula or magic words to memorize. Still, it's one of the most positive efforts put forth on the nation's behalf.

Congress declared Thursday, May 6, as the day for the annual celebration. It's an opportunity for Americans of all faiths to join in united prayer. Together they will acknowledge their dependence on God, giving thanks for the blessings received. Participants of the event can also request healing for the wounds received and ask God to guide leaders and bring wholeness to the United States and its citizens.

Ninety-eight percent of Americans say they believe in God. So, despite its diversity, the nation should be able to come together in an attitude of prayer. This can give a new spirit of unity as a people and draw the population closer to the Creator.

Prayer is part of the nation's heritage. Ever since the Founding Fathers and Continental Congress began the tradition, leaders have maintained it.

In 1787, George Washington addressed the Constitutional Convention with these words: "How has it happened, Sir, that we have not hitherto once thought of humbly appealing to the Father of lights to illuminate our understandings? In the beginning of the contest with Great Britain, when we were sensible to danger, we had daily prayers in this room for Divine protection. Our prayers, Sir, were heard and they were graciously answered...I have lived, Sir, a long time and the longer I live, the more convincing proofs I see of this truth, that God governs in the affairs of men...And if a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without His notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without His aid? We have been assured, Sir, in the sacred writings that 'except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it'... I firmly believe this..."

Take five minutes out of a busy schedule on Thursday to join millions of other Americans on their knees in prayer.

Five minutes for America is time well spent.

Youth group dinner and auction set

CASSELBERRY — The Community United Methodist Youth Fellowship, 4921 S. Hwy. 17/92, is sponsoring its 9th Annual Dinner and Auction on Saturday.

The event is held each year to raise funds for the group to go into the country and repair or build new churches.

The groups of youth, ages 7-12, have rebuilt, built and remodeled churches from Arkansas, Georgia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Massachusetts, and Florida. This year's group of 41 youth and adults will be working in Mount Hermon, Ala., building a new building for a small group of rural people whose building has been condemned. The youth pay for all expenses for the group and building supplies.

Last year the auction, which is the main fundraiser, attracted some 350 people and raised $12,000.

This year's auction includes trips to Chicago, Atlanta, Washington D.C., Disney Motels, beach weekends, whitewater rafting trips, restaurants galore, items for the home and office, area sports events and camps.

A barbecue dinner will be served from 4-8:15 p.m. and the auction will begin at 8:15 p.m. You do not need a ticket to attend.

Believers sometimes prefer dying to submission

By GEORGE W. CONNELL
AP Religion Writer

Religious passions can run strong and can be unbendable, even to the point of death. That's the evidence of history. And it's reflected in a seemingly warped way in the fiery end of the Branch Davidians outside Waco, Texas.

No matter how wrong, "they apparently were willing to die for what they believed to be God's will," says Bible scholar James E. Efrid of Duke University Divinity School. "Martyrdom is very much a part of the apocalyptic mindset."

While the group's beliefs and practices may have seemed absurd or illegal to society and the government, this reaction is typical to religious groups that resist or take desperate measures against official authority.

The groups can be considered by officials as fanatic, lawless and dangerous.

Such cases have dotted the centuries since ancient times in persecutions of those judged "heretics" and other nonconformists or deviants, often leading them to accept death rather than yield, but rarely causing them to take their own lives.

The FBI and arson investigators said this suicide occurred in the flames enveloping the Davidian compound after it was assaulted with tear gas, but is disputed by surviving cult members. Eighty-six adults and children died.

"You can say David Koresh was wrong, that he misled people, abused them and misinterpreted the Bible, but his followers so believed his message, they apparently were willing to die for it," said theologian James Leo Barrett of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth.

That is the powerful grip of religious belief, however distorted. Strong believers equate it with their own being. Such convictions, right or wrong, have been motivating factors in upheavals and wars, past and present, and many have died in upholding faith against pressures to abandon it.

Of that quality, Catholic theologian-psychologist Richard Age of Baltimore cited this observation by Mark Twain about religion: "It's a very dangerous thing unless you get it right."

"The thing about religion is it can be so all-consuming it convinces a person it's so right, even though that internal conviction is not necessarily a genuine perception, but a projection of one's own omnipotence," Sipe said. "That's when it becomes dangerous," he added, noting that such persons insist theirs is the "only way," beyond any argued reasoning about it.

Catholic psychologist Eugene Kennedy of Chicago said "there's a big difference between lives that are fundamentally sound and who die out of principle and people crazy enough to die for a deluded leader such as David Koresh."

In any case, if Branch Davidians set the deadly fire, followers of Koresh would "not call it suicide, but dying for the faith," Efrid said.

"They would see it as keeping themselves from falling into the hands of evil, the only thing left they could do to fight it," he said.

He said they were taught the world was ending in a "great battle between good and evil" and that they were "attacked by the power of evil" and could "not succumb or compromise."

"No matter how crazy you may think it is, somebody dedicated to a particular religious belief will hold on to it even if thrown to the lions, impaled or burned at the stake or nailed on the cross," he said.

"My feeling is that the government probably did not reckon with the power of religious commitment of these folks."

A similar case occurred in 1978 when more than 900 followers of self-proclaimed messiah Jim Jones fatally imbibed poison as congressional investigators closed in on their retreat in Guyana.

An honored and dramatic ancient instance of self-inflicted death by believers occurred in olden Israel in 73 A.D. when 960 members of a militant Jewish group and their families took their lives in the mountain fortress Masada just before Roman troops captured it.

Vowing "no ruler but God," the last-ditch armed resisters to pagan rule had come under a prolonged Roman siege, and before being overrun, decided to set fire and take their own lives rather than submit to Roman degradations.

When Roman troops broke inside, they encountered a "terrible solitude on every side, with fire within the place," says an ancient account.

Clinton set to unveil plan to revamp college loan program

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's program to make higher education more affordable calls for a $25 billion take-over of the college loan system and a "national service" plan that would allow students to repay some loans with community work.

According to a White House outline of the program obtained by The Associated Press, Clinton's proposal calls for the government to begin borrowing money and lending it to students directly, with colleges and universities acting as agents. Currently, students borrow directly from banks.

Under the five-year, $25 billion proposal, students would pay an interest rate as much as a half percent lower with the direct approach, administration aides said Thursday.

A less controversial proposal is the national service concept: Students who perform community service could work off up to $15,000 in college tuition, get a modest stipend and qualify for health care and day care benefits.

Students over age 16 could put in the work before college or during college and earn "tuition credits." Or they could put in the time after graduation.

The program would start small, with 1,000 students qualifying for the help the first year, growing to 150,000 students by 1997. The program would cost an estimated $9.5 billion over the next five years.

Clinton was unveiling his proposals — a major campaign promise — on the campus of the University of New Orleans today.

Although the administration views the program as one that could attract wide bipartisan support — and get through Congress more easily than its contentions economic measures — it still represented a major new-spending initiative.

And it was drawing criticism in advance from several groups.

"There are a lot of concepts that aren't fleshed out yet," said Daniel S. Cheever, president of American Student Assistance, a Massachusetts-based financial organization that underwrites student loans.

For Clinton, today was his 101st day in office — and aides sighed with relief that the 100-day assessments finally were over.

What was Clinton going to do in his second 100 days? "He's not going to count the days — in the first place," a smiling George Stephanopoulos, Clinton's chief spokesman, said Thursday.

Clinton spent Day 100 of his presidency dashing between meetings on the economy, health care and Bosnia.

Despite the mix, Clinton insisted he hadn't lost his focus, saying he spends two-thirds of his time these days on economic and health-care matters.

"We're going to turn this economy around," the president said during an Oval Office photo session. "I wish we could've done it faster ... but I think we just keep going. We'll make the progress we can and go on."

"That is the issue — the economy," he said. On the "national service" proposal, the $13,000 is substantially less than the average cost of tuition.

AROUND THE STATE

Bucs sign quarterback

TAMPA — Free agent quarterback Mark Vlasic, who spent the last two seasons with the Kansas City Chiefs, agreed to a two-year contract with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Vlasic, 29, was a fourth-round draft pick of the San Diego Chargers and has started four games in five NFL seasons.

The Bucs also signed Colorado State offensive lineman Jason Basso, East Texas State defensive back Curtis Buckley, Virginia kicker Michael Husted, North Carolina linebacker Jon Perry and Pacific defensive lineman Shawn Price as free agents.

Dolphins sign dozen

MIAMI — The Miami Dolphins signed 12 free agents Thursday, including former University of Miami players Coleman Bell and Mark Caesar.

The Dolphins also signed Elijah Austin, cornerback Lavaras Barber, linebacker Daniel Boyd, wide receiver Bo Campbell, tight end Rob Coons, defensive tackle Tim Cromartie, kicker Jay Kirchoff, tackle Brandon Moore, cornerback Eric Turner and running back David Walker.

AROUND THE NATION

Marlins sweep Braves

ATLANTA — Dave Magadan's first homer since last July, a two-run shot in the seventh inning Thursday night, snapped a tie and helped give the Florida Marlins a 6-5 victory over the struggling Atlanta Braves and a sweep of the two-game series.

The Braves, who fell two games below .500 at 11-13, have dropped five in a row.

It was the Marlins' third straight victory and fifth in six games, and the expansion club's first series sweep in its brief history.

Varitek stars again

ATLANTA — Former Lake Brantley star Jason Varitek's homer and double paced a 16-hit Georgia Tech attack as the Yellow Jackets beat Wake Forest 13-8 in Atlantic Coast Conference play Thursday.

Varitek's homer, his 14th, came in Tech's five-run second inning off Demon Deacon starter Ross Atkins (5-5). Tech improved to 37-8, 12-5.

Taking a victory walk

Spires' free pass puts Lake Mary in title game

From Staff Reports

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — J.R. Spires took a walk Thursday night and led the Lake Mary Rams to the 4A-District 5 softball tournament championship game.

With two out and the score tied 7-7 in the bottom of the seventh inning, Spires took a 3-and-2 pitch for ball four, forcing in Angela Snow with the winning run to give the Rams an 8-7 come-from-behind win over Lyman.

Second-seeded Lake Mary (24-6) advances to face top-seeded Spruce Creek (which eliminated tournament host Lake Brantley 11-1) in this evening's 7 p.m. title game at Lake Brantley.

Lyman took a five-run lead in the top of the first inning, then watched Lake Mary score a run in the second and two in the third to cut the gap to 5-3. The Rams took their first lead, 7-5, with a four-run outburst in the bottom of the sixth.

The Greyhounds tied the score in the top of the seventh. With one out, Jodie Beland walked before Jennifer Forston and Jamie Beland both reached on errors to load the bases. After Carolyn Crager singled to score Jodie Beland, Gina Bazler hit a sacrifice fly to plate Forston. Lake Mary right fielder Cori Bilinski then came up with the defensive play of the game, killing the Lyman rally with a diving catch of Stacey Ritter's fly ball down the right field line.

Diane Duber began the Rams' winning rally in the bottom of the seventh with a walk. An out later, Snow walked and Robyn Dazey singled to load the bases. After Jennie Longstaff hit into a fielder's choice, forcing Duber at the plate, Spires walked to the plate, then walked to first base.

In all, Forston, the Lyman pitcher, walked eight Lake Mary batters. Dazey led Lake Mary by going 3-for-3 with a run. Kelly Woodall contributed a double, single, one run scored, and two RBI. Snow finished 2-for-3 with three runs scored. Michelle Allen was 2-for-3 with an RBI while winning pitcher Tiffany Deeb went 2-for-3 with a run scored.

Spires had a single, one run, and an RBI. Jenni Longstaff chipped in with a single and two RBI. Duber singled and scored a run. Lindy Longstaff singled and drove in a run.

Crager was 2-for-4 with a triple, a run and four RBI. Bazler went 2-for-3 with two RBI. Jill Mendelsohn was 3-for-3. Michelle Bishop and Jamie Beland both singled and scored a run. Forston singled and scored two runs. Jodie Beland scored two runs. Ritter had a single.

In the first game of the semifinal doubleheader, Lake Brantley took a 1-0 lead over the Spruce Creek Hawks on a home run by Rachel Poppe.

Spruce Creek came back to score three runs in the bottom half of the second inning. That's the way the score stood until the Hawks exploded for eight runs with two out in the bottom of the fifth to end the game by the mercy rule.

Julie Helmers was 2-for-2 for the Lake Brantley Patriots (14-12). Tracey Brown, Anita Acevedo, and Tiffany Poppe each hit a single.

Andre Scott won both the long jump and triple jump for Seminole at the 3A-District 5 meet Thursday.

Tribe track teams extend streaks

By TONY DeSORMIER
 Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — It was business as usual Thursday night for the Seminole High School girls and boys track teams at the 3A-District 5 track meet.

Led by Nicole Banks, Carolyn Hubbard, and Belinda Morgan, the Seminole girls won their 15th consecutive district title while Andre Scott and Bernard Sparrow led the Tribe boys to their 10th straight district crown.

More importantly, the Seminoles qualified everyone they think they'll need for the 4A-Region II meet next Thursday night at Titusville. The next stop from there is the Class 3A state meet in Gainesville on Friday, May 14.

The first four finisher in each event qualify for the regional meet.

"We just wanted to make sure we got everybody through to the regional meet next week," said Seminole girls coach Nate Perkins. "We're right where we want to be."

Seminole's girls outscored the next two teams combined, totalling 149 team points to finish well ahead of Daytona Beach-Seabreeze (75½) and New Smyrna Beach (64½). They were followed by Jones (34), Leesburg (17), Cypress Creek (3) and Edgewater (1).

Banks, Hubbard, and Morgan accounted for six of the Seminoles girls' 10 event victories, notching two wins each.

Banks won the 110-yard high hurdles (16.0 seconds) and the 330-yard low hurdles (47.9 seconds) as well as finishing second in the long jump (15 feet, 8 inches). Hubbard finished first in the mile (5:40.9) and 880-yard (2:32.7) runs. Morgan won the triple jump (38 feet, 3 inches) and long jump (16 feet, 3¼ inches).

Katrina Perry won the district title in the shot put (37 feet, ½ inch) and was second in the discus (109 feet). Kanika Whitehead won the 100-meter dash (12.7 seconds), finished third in the triple jump (32 feet, 11¼ inches), and fourth in the 220-yard dash (26.9 seconds).

Mindee Hampton was first in the 220-yard dash (25.8 seconds) and combined with Banks, Whitehead, and Shawna Montgomery to win the 4 x 110-yard relay in 50.2 seconds. Montgomery, Morgan, Daphne Brown, and Hampton won the 4 x 440-yard relay in 4:11.2.

Qualifying in two events were Kischia Lawrence

Tillis makes most of first start

From Staff Reports

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Making his first start of the season, senior pitcher Terry Tillis gave the Seminole Fighting Seminoles a boost Thursday night, tossing a complete game in a 10-7 win over the Colonial Grenadiers in the Lake Brantley Diamond Classic.

Tillis gave up seven runs on nine hits, striking out three and walking two.

"We were trying to save guys for the district tournament next week," said Seminole coach Mike Powers. "Terry pitched well. He kept the ball down low until he got tired in the seventh (when Colonial scored three runs)."

"He did a great job out there for us. We're real proud of him. He showed us that we can count on him when we need him. He did an outstanding job against a pretty good hitting team in Colonial."

Tillis' efforts were eased considerably as his teammates gave him a 2-0 lead in the top of the first inning and added two more runs in each of the second, third, fifth, and seventh innings.

Phillip "Duke" King, recently moved to the leadoff spot in the batting order, led Seminole's attack by going 2-for-3 with two RBI, one run, and two stolen bases. Cory Gochee contributed two singles, three runs, and an RBI. David Eckstein doubled, scored a run, stole a base, and had an RBI.

Jeremy Chunut added two singles, an RBI, and a run. Matt Freeman also hit two singles. Matt Diemer had a single, a stolen base.

Algae growth on roofs

Use caution when fighting algae with chlorine bleach

With spring emerging people are more likely to leave their homes and look at the outside of the house, the lawn and yes, the roof. You don't remember it looking that green last year, do you?

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

When light colored roofs turn green, brown or black during warm, humid weather, people seek help. What is this "stuff"? How can they get rid of it? How can they keep it away?

First, what is this discoloration that appears on houses, especially roofs? Algae spores will grow wherever they find minerals, moisture, warmth and light. It is a plant and it likes the summer climate in southern Florida and other southern coastal areas. It does not grow directly on any specific material such as asphalt, concrete or clay tiles, fiberglass or aluminum, but as soon as light accumulation of dust and other organic materials settle on a roof and enough heat, moisture and a little light are available, algae-type spores, ever present in Florida, make the roof their home and start to grow.

Can you fight back to remove algae growth on roofs?

Yes, you can. Chlorine bleach kills and the force of a scrub brush or a strong spray will remove the soil and stop the growth — at least for a while. But read on. There are precautions. Working on a roof can be dangerous. It is not good for your roof to walk on it. Using a brush can remove the fine granules that reflect the sun and protect the surface of asphalt and fiberglass roofing. Very high pressure sprays can do the same thing. Additionally, chlorine bleach can damage plantings, vinyl windows and other construction materials if used in a solution too strong. The force of a spray from a garden hose may not be strong enough to remove an accumulation of dirt on a roof. You may need to check the warranty that came with your roof before cleaning. Some roofing warranties become invalid if you walk on them. All-in-all the very difficult job of cleaning algae from a roof may be better to turn over to a professional.

In choosing a professional cleaning service you might want to ask what precautions are taken to protect plantings and house materials. A good procedure would be to wet down the roof and plantings with plain water before using a cleaning solution. Next use a cleaning solution with a safe concentration of chlorine and moderate pressure. (One part chlorine to 10 parts water. Spray pressure as high as 1,000 psi may be too strong.) Finally, rinse the roof, plantings with clear water. Does the service check the condition of the roof before and after cleaning? Talk to others in your neighborhood who have used a cleaning service and talk to several services before you choose one.

For cleaning small areas that you can easily reach here are some suggestions:

- Wear rubber soled shoes that are both skid resistant and secure.
- Rinse roof and plantings with clear water before and after using a cleaning solution.

• Use a mild chlorine solution (1 part chlorine to 10 parts water). Remember that chlorine is caustic, protect yourself when using chlorine by wearing rubber gloves and avoiding splatters.

• Use a safe ladder placed so it is secure at both the top and bottom.

• Heavy accumulation of dirt and algae may require scrubbing with a brush but this may damage asphalt roofing.

Can you keep algae problems on your roof from returning? Unfortunately, whenever the conditions are right (minerals and organic material for algae, moisture, warmth, and a little light), algae-type growth will return and treatment must be repeated. Yearly treatment may suffice in most areas. New roofing materials resistant to algae growth are now available. They will retard algae discoloration for longer periods of time.

Welcome mat wears thin for frequent houseguests

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have friends who moved away from our neighborhood a year and a half ago. They have children who are exactly the same ages as ours, 3 and 5 years old.

The problem is this: In the last year and a half, these neighbors have returned "home" 18 times, and they have stayed with us. Their visits last anywhere from two days to a week.

I am tired of running a motel. I think two visits a year is sufficient hospitality on my part, and I do not want them staying any more than that.

My wife thinks I am being unreasonable; that other husbands would not object to having houseguests that often.

This is coming between my wife and me, and we are arguing about it constantly. Sign me...

WANTS OUT OF BED AND BREAKFAST BUSINESS

DEAR WANTS OUT: I agree with you — 18 visits in a year and a half are about 14 or 15 visits too many — depending on how long the visits are. It's your home, too. Three three-day visits a year would be very generous on your part. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: As a police officer, I am constantly surprised by what some people say and do.

Just last week, while en route to a call, I stopped at a traffic light in rush-hour traffic, when the driver of the car next to me signaled to get my attention. As I turned to see what he wanted, the first thought that crossed my mind was that he wanted to complain about the traffic, tell me that someone had cut him off, or make some negative comment.

Instead, he told me that he had seen a Memphis, Tenn., officer on the TV show "COPS" who said it would be nice to get an occasional "thank-you" and all he wanted to say was, "Thank you!"

Catching me completely off guard, the only response I could come up with was — "Thank you."

He and his family continued on in the rush-hour traffic journey, and I went to my call.

We both left with smiles on our faces and feeling good inside. Police stories like this will never make "COPS," but it certainly made my day a better one.

A PHOENIX COP

DEAR PHOENIX COP: I hope this letter will put many more smiles on the faces of cops — and their families. They deserve it.

DEAR ABBY: I do not feel that "Vacillating in California," who cared for her alcoholic husband alone, should leave her two daughters out of her will because endowment for their children? Surely, some of the estate should stay in the family.

A.C.A. IN L.A.

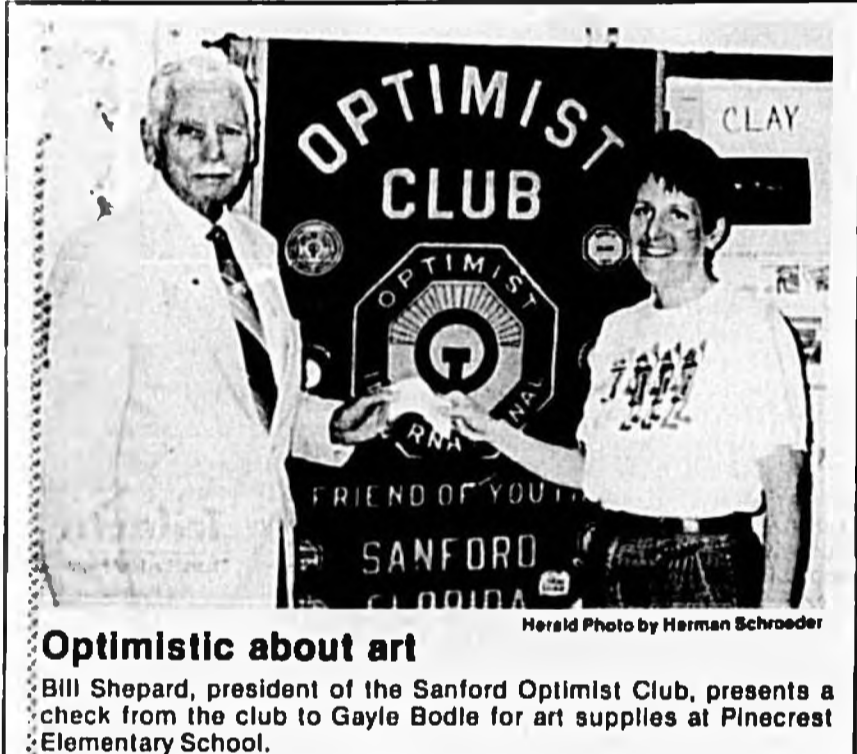

DEAR A.C.A.: Your answer was much better than mine.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Outraged Mother," whose child came home from school with wet pants because his teacher wouldn't let him go to the restroom, brought back some memories my husband had 65 years ago.

He said when he was in first grade, he held up his hand, made faces and squirmed in his seat, but his teacher ignored him. He had a bad stomachache and couldn't hold it any longer, so he let go right in his seat. He made a terrible mess, so the teacher drove him home in her new car; in those days cars had running boards, so she made him stand on the running board.

When he got home, his mother soaked him in a tub of water for an hour. My husband said he has held a grudge against that teacher all his life.

Recovering alcoholic unsure of staying sober

DEAR MARY: I'm a recovering alcoholic but I don't know how much longer I can stay on the wagon. I've been sober for a year and a half, but instead of getting easier, it seems to be getting harder. I'm really having trouble on Friday nights.

DRUG COUNSELOR

MARY BALK

My habit for 15 years was to get my paycheck cashed after work, go to the bar where my drinking buddies and I always hung out, and have a good time all evening. I haven't been back to that bar since I got sober because I know I'd have to have a drink if I got in there.

I really miss my friends and the good times we had, and some Fridays I get so lonesome to go back that I have to just force myself not to drop by. I've never heard anybody say that recovery gets harder as time goes on. All I've heard is about how great it feels to be free and sober. I used to say that too, but any more, it's getting harder. What's wrong with me?

BACKSLIDING IN RECOVERY

DEAR RECOVERING:

There's been no backsliding, just an honest and healthy acknowledgment of your feelings, fears, and struggles. Be proud of yourself for being able to notice and read your feelings well enough to know when you may be heading for trouble.

What you're experiencing is really quite normal on the path to ongoing recovery. After the euphoria of beating the physical pain of the addiction is over, many people expect it to get easy. But in many cases the psychological and behavioral patterns are harder to deal with.

(Mary Balk holds a master's degree in counseling and is a certified Addiction Prevention professional and counselor with the Drug Prevention Office of the Seminole County School District. Write to her in care of the Herald at 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, 32771.)

WELCOME TO THE BOMB SQUAD TRAINING INSTITUTE. IN THIS COURSE WE'LL EXAMINE ALL ASPECTS OF MODERN BOMB DEFUSING. AND IN OUR LAST CLASS WE'LL ASK THE QUESTION, "THE RED WIRE OR THE GREEN WIRE?" ... AND WE'LL GO OVER SOME THEORIES ON BOTH SIDES OF THE DEBATE.

How to play it safe with X-ray exposure

DEAR DR. GOTT: How many X-rays can a person undergo without suffering side effects? I find doctors never ask how much exposure I've had; they just continue to X-ray me as though a potential problem might not exist.

DEAR READER: There's no definitive answer to how much X-ray exposure an average person can absorb without damage. Some X-ray technicians, who are exposed to radiation "scatter" far above what a non-medical person would experience, suffer no untoward consequences, such as leukemia.

On the other hand, repeated X-ray examinations do have a cumulative effect, which appears to affect some people and not others. In my experience, however, the health hazards of routine repeated medical or dental X-rays are slight.

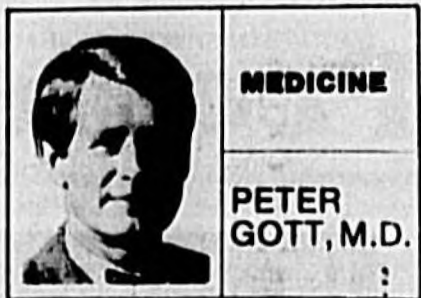

If you can believe the preliminary reports, we seem to be at higher risk from living near high-tension electrical wires or using cellular phones.

Therefore, while I share your concern about the small chance of potential problems from excessive X-ray tests, I believe your fears are unfounded.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I once thought my problem was that of an old woman because of lack of bathing, yet I find a bath per day doesn't take care of my situation. I have an embarrassing vaginal odor that I can't seem to control. I'm clean and neat and am at a loss to explain or deal with it.

DEAR READER: Older women frequently suffer from a menopause-related condition called atrophic vaginitis. Caused by a deficiency of female hormone, the affliction causes painful intercourse and a pungent vaginal discharge that can be quite embarrassing. Atrophic vaginitis is not caused by infection or poor personal hygiene.

Treatment consists of supplemental estrogen in pill, patch or cream form. The latter is preferable because the cream is applied directly to the vagina and does not affect the body as a whole. (Some women experience a higher risk of uterine cancer

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Tonight is Walpurgis Night, named after St. Walpurga, the abbess of Heidenheim, who died about 778. According to German legend, on this eve witches ride around on broomsticks and he-goats revel with the devil, especially on the Brocken in the Harz Mountains.

Well, there is certainly something bewitching about today's deal. North, feeling very lightheaded, uttered the words "Seven no-trump." He couldn't explain what made him do it. But the next thing he knew, West had led and his cards were on the table. It was too late to change the bid to three no-trump, which he had wanted to say.

South, a strange-looking fellow with horns and a spiked tail, didn't utter a word when he saw the sparse dummy. Instead, he settled down to the job of winning all 13 tricks.

It looked as though West had led away from the diamond queen, but the finesse could wait for one round. Declarer called for the diamond king and grunted contentedly when the queen appeared. South, fished his club jack and cashed the club ace, dropping East's king.

Declarer continued with the club eight to dummy's queen. A low spade to the 10 won trick five. The club three was led to dummy's six; a second successful spade finesse followed. Now it was simple for South to cash the A-K of hearts, dropping the doubleton queen, and to take the rest of the tricks.

As the 13th winner was cashed, North came out of his reverie, realizing he was bathed in sweat. It had all been a dream. But he smiled; the devilish declarer had known how to finesse — and not to finesse — on Walpurgis Night. (C)1993, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Osol

YOUR BIRTHDAY

May 1, 1993

In the year ahead, you might have several opportunities to put some of your bigger ideas into action. This could be due to the fact that obstacles which previously hampered you will be non-existent.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're extremely charismatic today, and your high-profile personality draws people to you like a magnet. If you're not going to an event, plan something impromptu yourself. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In your own quiet way you'll have a strong influence over people whom you have compassionate bonds with today. You may even be responsible for subtly steering them in a more positive direction.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

ANNIE

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're in a good achievement cycle both today and tomorrow, so try to focus your efforts and energies on meaningful objectives. Attainment will be a gratifying experience.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't think only of today. Instead, start planning for your future expectations. What you conceive will be doable and within the realm of possibility.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Others are inclined to treat you favorably today, and they are likely to grant you material assistance if this is your need. Whatever the case, don't hesitate to ask.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Special advantages might be derived today from people whom you're involved with socially. You mix well with people, both in a group and on a one-to-one basis.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Anything you do today where you put forth your very best efforts is not likely to go unrecognized or unrewarded. Don't be afraid to push yourself a bit harder than usual.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to spend some time today with people whom you feel are expansive thinkers. Their thoughts could stimulate your mental processes and help you conceive of several good ideas.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not discount your intuitive perceptions in your commercial dealings today. You have an excellent and innate sense of timing, and your good instincts could help you turn a profit.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you might have an opportunity to shore up a valued relationship that has become a bit frayed recently. Your efforts will be welcomed, because this person wants it as much as you do.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A strong desire to derive rewards and to be of real service to others is a combination that could prime you for accumulation today. You'll expect to earn what you get.
