Accident takes 5 lives

ORLANDO (AP) — The fatality toll from a high speed crash of two cars on Interstate 95 on Labor Day has grown to five with the deaths of three people in two hospitals.

A 4-year-old boy and a teen-ager died at the scene of the crash south of Titusville. The Florida Highway Patrol said a car full of teen-agers was weaving north through traffic at 90 to 100 mph when the driver lost control, crossed into the southbound lanes and struck a car carrying a Miami family.

Killed outright was Brandon Asbury, 4, sitting next to his mother, April Asbury, who was driving a 1994 Honda sedan.

Also killed was Kacey Lipary, 17, of Deltona, one of four youths in the Pontiac Sunbird who had spent the day at a Cocoa Beach surfing festival.

Bobby Asbury, 35, of Miami, the father of the 4-year-old, died at Wueathoff Hospital in Rockledge on Tuesday. His wife, April, 36, was one of only two survivors. She was reported in serious condition at Parrish Medical Center.

Tiffany Accardi, 18, of DeBary, who was driving the Pontiac, died Tuesday at Orlando Regional Medical Center. Joseph Gallucci, 20, of Apopka, a passenger in the Accardi car, also died at ORMC on Tuesday.

The only survivor in the Accardi car, Aaron Mazz, 15, of Deltona was in serious but stable condition.

No-rain ordinance?

LAKE MARY — Rain water has become a serious problem in Lake Mary's Liberty Park. Parks and Recreation Director John Holland said the rain caused so much flooding that at least for one day last week, Liberty Park, on north Country Club Road, had to be closed. "The rain flooded out almost the entire parking lot," he said.

Holland said that when the city purchased the land, it was known that it was in a relatively low area, but use as a park seemed appropriate for the property.

As late as Monday of this week, parts of the parking area were still partially flooded by high water from retention ponds and nearby Lake Crystal.

Yesterday, Holland commented that the problem was getting so bad, he was considering asking the City Commission to enact an emergency ordinance banning rainfall in the park.

While the comment was made in jest, Holland expressed concern over the problem. "If we have any more heavy rains," he said, "it may be necessary to close the park once again."

LAKE MARY — Eating lunch at school used to be decidedly "uncool."

Sliding one's tray down the cafeteria line picking this and that seemed too much like something you might do with your grandina not your friends at school.

But things are about to change at Lake Mary High School.

A renovation project will turn the traditional cafeteria into a mall-like food court with a variety of food choices from vegetarian to the more traditional.

While the fare will remain basically the same as in traditional cafeteria, though the presentation will be a little different.

"We're wanting it to look like a food court at the mall," Linda Daniels, assistant director for the district's food service department, said. "We want it to be appealing to

Condemned killer proclaims innocence

By RON WORD

STARKE, Fla. — Outlaws motorcycle gang member Joseph "Crazy Joe" Spaziano has shaved his head and taken to pacing his cell as he awaits his impending execution for the 1973 rape and murder of a hospital clerk.

"They are trying to murder me," Spaziano said Wednesday during an interview at Florida State Prison only two weeks before his scheduled Sept. 21 death in the electric chair. "I get afraid."

"The tell me it will be fast. How do they know it will be fast?" he asked.

Spaziano claims he was framed and continues to proclaim his innocence in the rape, torture, mutilation and murder of Laura Lynn Harberts, an 18-year-old Orlando woman.

"I'm not guilty of no murder. I'm not guilty of no rape," Spaziano said. "I don't know the girl. I know nothing about it."

Spaziano, 49, who wears a skull and crossbones ring and has the same emblem with the name of Outlaws tattooed on the inner side of his right arm, believes he was framed because of his membership in the gang.

"I never took the stand. Who would believe an Outlaw?" he said. "There were so many lies. I

Sanford public housing board debars director

Probe of alleged deceptive practices

SANFORD — The executive director of the Sanford Public Housing Authority was suspended with pay Tuesday night pending an investigation of alleged deceptive practices. Authority finance director Tim Hudson was appointed acting executive director.

Phyllis D. Richardson, who has been executive director of the local housing authority for about four years, was removed from the post during a special meeting of the housing authority board.

Richardson has an unpublished telephone number and could not be reached for comment this morning. In an interview in July, Richardson denied any wrongdoing when the allegations surfaced. Hudson referred questions to housing authority attorney Clayton Simmons.

Young and ruthless?

Editor's note: Sanford Herald reporters are completing an in-depth study of juvenile crime in Seminole County. Are our kids "the young and the ruthless?" Reports will detail the problem from vantage points to include the judicial system, police, schools and the kids themselves. Don't miss our local coverage, coming Sunday, in the Sanford Herald.

Justice Department report: Kids are more violent, more victim

By LAURA MYERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — America's children are turning to crime at such an alarming rate that juvenile arrests may double by 2010, the Justice Department said today.

They're also more likely to be victims of crime, especially at the hands of their peers and with guns, according to the report. "Juvenile Offenders and Victims: A National Report."

A noted criminologist who tracks juvenile homicides called today's violence-wracked generation "the young and the ruthless." And Attorney General Janet Reno worried that if government doesn't increase its efforts to fight youth crime, citizens will face an increasingly lawless society.

"This report is a road map to the next generation of crime — unless we do something now," Reno said in remarks accompanying the report.

The 188-page document is the first comprehensive compilation of data on juvenile crime and victimization from more than 50 sources, according to the Justice Department.

Howard Snyder, one of the Philadelphia-based authors at the National Center for Juvenile Justice, said two things are pushing the juvenile crime rate up: a growing number of children and a growing intensity of violence as teen-agers use more weapons, especially handguns.

"The Baby Boomers' kids are moving into the years when they're doing crime," Snyder said in a telephone interview.

"The children are poorer. There are more minorities. And they have more guns. ... It's dangerous to be a kid," Snyder said.

James Alan Fox, a criminal justice professor at Northeastern University in Boston, attributes the increasing lawlessness to children who aren't supervised, especially after school. Statistics show that crime by and against juveniles peaks at 3 p.m. and again at 6 p.m., he said, and the Justice Department report confirms that.

"This generation is the young and the ruthless," Fox said in a telephone interview. "This generation has more deadly weapons in their hands, more dangerous drugs in their bodies and a much more casual attitude about violence. In addition, too many kids are undersocialized and undersupervised."

Service set for missing rafters

THOMASTON, Ga. — A memorial service will be held Sunday afternoon for a Thomaston man and his 9-year-old daughter who disappeared on a raft hours before a hurricane hit Florida's Gulf Coast last month.

Frank and Meagan Stadler vanished Aug. 2 while playing in the surf near their vacation rental home at Cape San Blas. Their raft was found near Fort Walton Beach days later.

The memorial will be at 3 p.m. at the First Baptist Church of Thomaston.

"I think this will bring some closure for the family and the community," said Gail Lawson, a friend of the Stadlers. "There will always be an element of hope that they are out there. We needed to do something. This seemed like the best option."

Days after the disappearance, yellow ribbons popped up around this west central Georgia town of 15,000 as residents prayed for a miracle.

Hopes for finding the Stadlers rose with news of a radio message allegedly from a Mexican vessel saying it had picked up the pair. The Coast Guard conducted searches but eventually decided the call was probably a hoax.

Golden Girdle or terminal tackiness?

DELTONA — For some, the new town of Deltona is one more gem in an area of Central Florida called the Golden Girdle. For others, it is another step toward the terminal tackiness of urban sprawl in Florida.

Deltona, about 25 miles north of Orlando, will become the state's newest city Dec. 31. Residents approved incorporation in a vote Tuesday.

Deltona was nothing more than limestone sinkholes, scrub brush and wild critters when two brothers bought the land and started subdividing it 33 years ago to lure retirees from up north who were looking for cheap land.

Today, it has 55,000 people and is growing at a rate of about 1,300 residents a year.

Deltona is in an area proudly referred to by developers as the Golden Girdle because they envision that someday there will be solid suburbia from Daytona Beach to Tampa.

"Very few places in the nation have had such a sustained growth," Morton Winsberg, a Florida State geography professor, said of that area of Central Florida.

"What we are seeing is creation of a megalopolis" as a result of retirees and tourism creating service jobs, Winsberg said Wednesday.

"The real issue — like all over the country — is that we are not creating good jobs, just low-paying service jobs," Winsberg said.

He said Florida is rapidly creating another megalopolis, which someday will be continuous suburbia along Florida's Atlantic coast all the way from Jacksonville to Miami.

Michael Gannon, a history professor at the University of Florida, warns that cities are not a reason to celebrate.

"Rapid growth is leading to our running out of sewage capacity, exhausting our water supply, poisoning the aquifer," Gannon said. "Probably when Florida is completely paved over we will say there should be some restraint."

He noted that the Tampa Bay area already is trying to bring in water from the Suwannee River 250 miles to the north.

Judge weeds out corruption allegations

TAMPA — A judge dealt a blow to a federal corruption case against a former Lee County commissioner Vicki Lopez-Lukia by throwing out some evidence of bribery and extortion against her and her husband.

Federal prosecutors alleged Lopez-Lukia, 36, received about $85,000 from then-boyfriend Sylvester Lukia, a Washington-based lobbyist, in exchange for her votes to help steer $235 million in county contracts to his clients.

But U.S. District Judge Ralph Nimmons Jr. ruled Tuesday the prosecution could go forward only with charges Lopez-Lukia received about $5,000 from Lukia while in office and another $10,000 after she resigned in January 1992.

The judge threw out evidence related to allegations the couple used a secretly recorded videotape in an attempt to force Susan Anthony to abandon her 1992 county commission bid. Nimmons said that information was irrelevant to the federal prosecution.

The 11 criminal charges against the two remain. A 12-member jury was selected Tuesday, but the case was delayed Wednesday while prosecutors considered whether to appeal the judge's rulings.

"All in all, a good day for the defense," said Thomas Green, the lead attorney for the Lukias. "If the government is without a lot of the evidence they are now without. I think it's certainly going to impact the case substantially."

Managing Assistant U.S. Attorney Doug Molloy declined to comment on how the judge's rulings affected his case.

"I respect Judge Nimmons very much, we just disagree on this particular point," Molloy said. "I will say this justice takes time."

Former execs sued for moonlighting on the job

BY ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Four executives ousted from a company that handles claims for the state-created "insurer of last resort" have been accused of moonlighting while on the job with their former employer.

A lawsuit filed in Manatee County claimed the officials were organizing an insurance consulting business at the same time they were running Shared Market Insurance Services Inc. in Sarasota.

Insurance Commissioner Bill Nelson fired the four executives last month and ordered the company abolished after he questioned its business practices and spending policyholder dollars on pricey furniture, parties and moving expenses.

Shared Market Insurance was formed in December 1993 to handle claims processing for the state-created residential Joint Underwriting Association, which provides coverage to more than 781,000 policyholders.

The claims company filed a lawsuit last month to void employment contracts with the executives.

In an amended lawsuit Wednesday, it claimed former president, John Kummer, a former deputy commissioner under former Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher, and three other executives were organizing an insurance consulting business when they were supposed to be doing their claims processing jobs.

The company, Hemisphere Services Group Inc., was supposed to provide customers with "assistance in complying with insurance regulations and in working with the Department of Insurance in obtaining departmental approval for insurance rates," the lawsuit claims.

Kummer declined to comment Wednesday. Phil Sheeche, a Miami lawyer representing another fired executive, Joseph Cooper, who worked as director of information technology, said the allegations were fabricated.

"The statements are absolutely false," said Sheeche, adding that he planned to file a countersuit for more than $300,000 in wages and benefits for Cooper.

Hospital bosses ousted

By JACQUE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The top two administrators are being replaced at a state mental hospital where three patient deaths and two near-deaths have been blamed on management and staff failings.

"We need some new people there to deal with the ongoing management issues," Ed Feaver, acting secretary of the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, told reporters Wednesday.

He made the announcement two weeks after appointing temporary managers to run the G. Pierce Wood Memorial Hospital in Arcadia, one of four state mental hospitals.

The temporary team was sent in after an investigation by the HRS inspector general into 10 deaths and five near-deaths in the last three years.

Dick Bradley, hospital administrator, and George Woodley, assistant administrator, were put on paid leave when the temporary team took over.

Bradley, administrator since 1989, has been terminated and Woodley has been offered a voluntary demotion, Feaver said Wednesday.

Feaver praised Bradley as a caring and creative administrator who took a hospital that was in shambles and turned it around when resident abuse was a serious problem.

But, Feaver said, now the facility needs a manager who is good at keeping on top of day-to-day quality rather than big changes.

"We're at a different stage in that hospital's history and there's a different kind of management style necessary," Feaver said.

Directory assistance listed several Richard Bradleys in Fort Myers and messages left on answering machines were not returned. Woodley's phone number is unpublished.

Replacing Bradley will be Myers Kurtz, who was superintendent of a 1,900-bed mental hospital in Georgia from 1983 through 1993.

G. Pierce Wood Memorial has nearly 1,300 staffers and 428 patients.

As well as Bradley and Woodley, three staffers directly responsible for the care of a patient who choked to death in July were identified for discipline. One resigned, one retired and disciplinary action against the third is pending.

The investigation by the HRS inspector general came in the wake of eight other federal, state and local probes. It was prompted by allegations of a whistleblower, whose charges were not fully addressed in any of the other investigations.

The latest fatal accident at G. Pierce Wood Memorial occurred a month ago when a patient fell and was paralyzed. He died in a Port Charlotte nursing home recently.

Vehicle theft

Tuesday, a sheriff's deputy stopped to investigate when he reported seeing Edinson Padilla sitting on a curb in Altamonte Springs, holding a "club" security bar in his hand. Padilla reportedly told the deputy he had traded his 1985 Dodge van.

Deputies searched for the vehicle, and located it in the 500 block of Peachtree Street in Altamonte Springs, where they said it left the road, then drove back onto the pavement, hitting a BMW head on. The driver then fled on foot, but was apprehended.

The driver of the van, identified as Tavon B. Toase, 18, of 220 Orlando Drive, Sanford, was charged with fleeing and attempting to elude an officer, resisting an officer without violence, operating a motor vehicle with no driver's license, and reckless driving.

Following an investigation, it was discovered that Padilla had apparently taken the van from a roommate at his residence at 182 E. Lake Avenue, in Longwood. The owner of the van is said to have told deputies Padilla had not been given authority to operate the vehicle.

Padilla was subsequently charged with grand theft, auto.

Teacher arrested on sex counts

By VICKI BOGGS

SANFORD — A Seminole County teacher was arrested Wednesday morning on a warrant charging him with 11 counts of engaging in sexual activity with a child and one count of promoting sexual performance by a child.

George Sellers, 48, was taken into custody at his home at 428 Wild Fox Drive in Caseberry, at about 10 a.m. Wednesday.

He was a civics teacher at Lake Howell High School.

According to John Reichert, the district's director of personnel, Sellers is presently on suspension without pay from his position.

"Pending our termination hearing," he said, "we cannot say anything else about this."

Reichert noted that Sellers' arrest does not remove his right to a termination hearing. The school district is conducting its own investigation into the matter and Sellers will be allowed to defend his job during the hearing.

Meanwhile, he made his first appearance in court Wednesday afternoon and was released that evening after posting $10,000 bond.

According to investigators at the Seminole County sheriff's department, an 18-year-old student told them she and Sellers had a consensual sexual relationship while she was still a student at Lake Howell High. She was 17 at the time.

The relationship allegedly occurred between July and September 1994, the summer following her junior year. She has since graduated from the school.

According to investigators, the young woman was not a student in any of Sellers' classes.

She told sheriff's investigators they had had sex at his home near the school and at a motel in the area.

She added that on one occasional, Sellers had used a camcorder to videotape their sexual activity.

Sellers has refused comment both to investigators and to the Sanford Herald in the past.

Engaging in sexual activity with a child carries a maximum penalty of 25 years in prison. It is a first degree felony. Promoting a sexual performance by a child is a second degree felony that carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in jail.

Sellers is scheduled for arraignment on the charges at 1:30 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 5 in the courtroom at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, Sanford.

It's official

Although the JC Penney store at Seminole Towne Center has been open since Sept. 2nd, the official ribbon cutting ceremony was held Wednesday. Store Manager Phil Wach, at podium, officiated at the event, with store employees, customers, and members of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce on hand. The store occupies 124,000 square feet of space at two levels of the mall. It has a staff of 180 associates, including at least 100 new positions.

Political season opens in Lake Mary

By NICK PFENAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Political season is now underway in Lake Mary. One candidate has already announced her intention to seek re-election.

The official qualifying time for two City Commission seats began at noon Tuesday of this week, and will end at noon on Sept. 29.

The Seat 4 position, presently held by Sheila Sawyer will be on the ballot in November. Sawyer is completing the term originally won in 1991 by the late A.R. "Doc" Jore. Jore, first elected to the commission in 1991 passed away in early 1994. To fill the vacancy, an election was held that year, at which time voters elected Sawyer over three other candidates.

While she has not officially qualified, Sawyer has told the Sanford Herald she intends to seek re-election to the post. She has already obtained necessary qualifying papers from the city clerk's office.

The Seat 2 position will also be on the ballot. The position is currently held by George Duryea. The last time Duryea's term expired, four years ago, he sought re-election and ran unopposed.

Duryea has not publicly announced his intention to seek re-election.

Lake Mary voters make their selection on a city-wide basis. Commissioner's salaries are $4,600 per year, while the mayor receives $8,000 per year.

The only requirement is that candidates must reside in the area from which they are elected. A candidate for mayor may reside anywhere within the city limits.

The Lake Mary commission election is scheduled to take place on Tuesday, November 7.

Storms are a small price to pay to keep Luis away

By NICOLE WINFIELD
Associated Press Writer

Forecasters want the swath of storms hovering over Florida to stick around since they seem to be keeping Hurricane Luis away from the United States.

"As long as it stays, (Luis) will not have any strange ideas about coming over Florida," Fiona Horsfall, a meteorologist with the National Hurricane Center, said Wednesday.

But tell that to the Gulf Coast residents of Bonita Springs. In the last 10 days, 1,200 of them have been evacuated because their homes were flooded by the remnants of Tropical Storm Jerry and a new disturbance that moved south from Georgia.

Or tell it to Jeannie Oster, a counter clerk at Anastasia Bowling Lanes on Anastasia Island off St. Augustine, flooded by 7 inches of rain on Tuesday.

"Everything around us is flooded," she said. "There are branches and water everywhere."

Doug Kuhn, of Bonita Springs, has been evacuated twice since Aug. 22 and is cooped up with his six kids in his second shelter. He helps dish out breakfast burritos to keep the boredom at bay.

Kuhn brought his wife and children to his father-in-law's nearby mobile home Aug. 22 after his well and septic tank sank under 2 feet of water. They were evacuated again 10 days later when the mobile home park flooded.

Nearly two weeks later, Kuhn's patience is wearing thin. "I went over to my house yesterday and the water, it hasn't gone down any," he said from a shelter in Naples. "It's still about 6 inches in my living room. It's a complete loss in there." The rain continued to fall across the state Wednesday, prompting flood warnings as far north as St. Johns County and flood watches in much of west-central and southwest Florida. Bonita Springs was expecting another 4-6 inches.

But the disturbance responsible for the wet weather, coupled with another system directly north of Luis, was helping push the hurricane north and away from the Caribbean on Wednesday.

"If that's doing it, I'd rather be affected by this rain now, just a little more rain, than a Category 4 hurricane," said David Santer, Lee County's emergency management coordinator.

Damage was extensive in the array of Caribbean resort islands thrashed by the hurricane, and the death toll was up to 13. Puerto Rico, however, escaped with only minor damage — a few blown-off roofs, downed power lines and some flooding.

Winds from the system over Florida, a low-pressure trough, were circulating counterclockwise, while a high-pressure system north of Luis swirled clockwise.

The two systems, working like gears in a watch on either side of Luis, were expected to begin pulling the hurricane north, away from the United States, within the next day, said the hurricane center's Horsfall.

"Although it's wet, it's a blessing in disguise," said meteorologist Alan Albanese.

But heavy rainfall, coupled with an unusual high tide, flooded out downtown St. Augustine, said police Sgt. Bill Creech.

"There was just nowhere for the water to go," Creech said.

Plan now to vote

It was election day Tuesday in Oviedo. Regardless of where you live, are you aware of the results? It isn't that the election produced a new mayor and council member and approved a $6.1 million dollar bond program, it's that only 11.5 percent of the registered voters bothered to make their voices heard.

For newly elected Oviedo Mayor Miriam "Mimi" Bruce and Councilman George Vele, we wish them great success in their new positions, and congratulate them on their victories.

But one election doesn't mark the end of the political season. Various city and county elections are coming up within two months. Will that low voter turnout experienced by Oviedo be carried over to other areas?

People depend on their governmental leaders to handle many jobs. Commissions and councils are expected to approve citizen requests, and often act as an appeal board when requests to other agencies have been denied.

People seek approval for this or that. They request financial support for improvements. They want zoning and code policies enforced.

Yet when it comes to selecting the persons to handle these enormous tasks, the people are content to sit at home and let someone else decide.

Those who don't vote, unfortunately, are often those who complain most about the way their local government organizations are being operated.

There are two ways to approach what might be perceived as poor government operation: run for office yourself, or at least support a candidate then get out and vote.

Lake Mary has commission seats to be filled this November. Sanford will have the mayor's race and two commission seats up for election in 1996. Are they going to be faced with the same apathy that voters apparently displayed in Oviedo?

Agreed, it was a small ballot. The Oviedo election fell on the day after a long holiday weekend. Yet it was an important ballot as are all of those presented to the citizens. As such, it should demand that each of us take advantage of the opportunity to vote.

For Lake Mary residents, political filing time is already underway. The city election will be held November 7. It's time to start thinking and eventually take action.

Not everyone may be equipped to enter the political ring, but everyone should vote. It's the only way our cities, counties, states and nation will succeed.

Capital punishment: A proposal

Scarcely a week goes by, now, without the papers reporting that there has been another execution somewhere in the country. Often the state is Texas, but not always: Florida, Alabama, Oklahoma and several other states - even (improbably) Washington and California - have made news of this sort in recent months or years.

Whether this has anything to do with the recent reported downturn in the national murder rate is hard to say, but I certainly don't consider it out of the question. Certitude of punishment, it has been demonstrated statistically, is a far greater deterrent than the drastic nature of some penalty threatened but seldom, if ever, actually imposed.

But the battle for capital punishment is far from over, and probably never will be over unless its opponents win it. They will keep on fighting - stalling on every conceivable ground, inventing ever more ingenious arguments (fetal alcohol syndrome, abuse as a child, mental incapacity, incompetent prior counsel, newly discovered evidence, sudden recantations or abrupt new confessions by third parties, born-again conversion by the defendant to a new life of service to God, etc., etc.), until even some of their clients grow weary and beg to be allowed to die.

One of the most striking and ingenious recent proposals of death penalty opponents is that executions be televised and broadcast. Their crafty assumption is that the roughly 80 percent of the public that favors the death penalty would blanch and change its mind under the impact of such undeniably grim and gripping scenes.

Whether this is true is debatable. A few might change their minds, but many others certainly wouldn't. A more likely result would be that death penalty foes who have never actually witnessed an execution would be confirmed in their opposition - a desirable result, to be sure, from the standpoint of opponents.

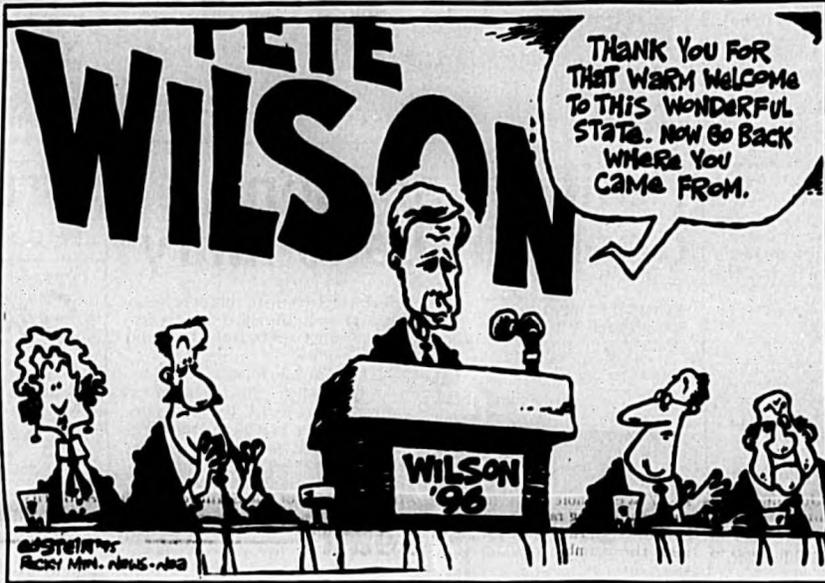

But the battle for capital punishment is far from over, and probably never will be over unless its opponents win it.

It is interesting to contrast this staunch readiness to confront the ghastliest aspects of capital punishment with the extreme reluctance of abortion advocates to permit a public look at the at least equally ghastly aspects of that procedure.

In the last congressional elections, a pro-life candidate whose TV commercials including graphic scenes of abortions in progress was refused permission to air them. An abortion foe who wanted to confront candidate Clinton with an aborted fetus in a sidewalk encounter in New York City during the 1992 Democratic convention was summarily sent to jail. How often have you seen a photograph of an aborted fetus? Do you think it's because they're rare? There are less than a hundred executions a year in the United States. There are millions of abortions.

I have a proposal. Let's urge death penalty opponents and abortion foes to reach an agreement to televise both events regularly. We pro-life types won't even insist on a ratio proportional to the number of events actually occurring.

Each side would be able to choose the events it wished to broadcast.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Picture due for enlargement

BOSTON - For weeks, you might have assumed the entire conference hinged on one woman's travel plans. The itinerary of Hillary Clinton - would she or wouldn't she go to Beijing? - dominated the early news about the U.N.'s Fourth World Conference on Women.

You might have thought the only real issue was the relationship between China and the United States. The China question - should we or shouldn't we "reward" them with our presence? - dominated the Sunday talk shows.

For that matter you might have believed that the gathering of 30,000 women from some 180 countries was of importance only for its effect on American presidential politics. Journeying ever-rightward, Bob Dole said the whole event was about inflicting a "left-wing ideological agenda" on the world.

It wasn't until the activist women finally arrived into the chaos of China, until the opening of the Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs) Forum, that the relationship between the world and its women became more than a political footnote.

The People's Republic of China is as awkward a backdrop for a women's conference as the exploding city of Cairo was for last year's population conference. Geraldine Ferraro, vice-chair of the American delegation, says that when China volunteered to host the meeting, "they thought it would be like the Olympic Games. We'd go in, run our races, and leave."

Instead, for all their ham-handed acts to stifle activists, the Chinese have learned how hard it is to control the message when you have democratic "guests." While the government released a thousand doves in welcome, a thousand stories soared across the world about female infanticide, forced abortions and work in equality in a country that holds one-fifth of the world's women.

Nevertheless, the dirty little secret is that China ranks smack in the middle of the U.N.'s Index of gender equality, just between Guyana and Syria, well below Sweden and well above Afghanistan. On this list, are countries where women can't vote, where wife-murder is barely a misdemeanor, where rape is a booty of war and girls are ritually mutilated.

Across the globe, women make up 70 percent of the poor and two-thirds of the illiterate. There are few enough nations where women are equally educated, none where the political structure is made up of equal numbers of men and women. In the U.N. itself, Madeleine Albright is one of only five women ambassadors.

So the "left-wing, ideological agenda" of this two-part conference of grassroots activists and governments is to try and push this man's world another revolution or two on its axis, making it a fairer, safer, place for women.

Officially, the U.N. goal will be to produce a document signed by government delegates that affirms universal rights and goals for all women - no small thing for nations where gender equality is still a dangerous, modern notion. This process of change through consensus can seem agonizingly slow and cumbersome. Yet over time the interaction between activists and governments can make a difference.

Ten years ago, when the last woman's conference met in Nairobi, the issues of domestic abuse and female genital mutilation were barely on the world's agenda. Two years ago in Vienna, the U.N. recognized women's rights as human rights for the first time and violence against women was defined a violation of human rights. Just last year, the world agreed that a plan to control population depended on educating women.

Now in Beijing, amid the wrestling over diplomatic words, the subjects range across women's lives. The talk is about violence, about human rights abuses, about access to education and credit and medical care, about legally recognizing women as equals to men before the law, even in divorce and child custody.

No document can overhaul a culture where the right of inheritance is regarded as an assault on religious teaching or where genital mutilation is defended as a tradition. But it becomes a lever for change, a signed flag to wave before a recalcitrant government. The activists return to their grass roots carrying proof of the world's support in their suitcases like a combustible souvenir. So do the 7,000 Chinese "observers."

"This conference," says Ambassador Albright, head of the American delegation, "Deals with a woman as an actor in her own life... It's about having the education she wants and marrying whom she wants and planning her family and her work.... It's about the whole picture of women and what we can do in the world when our talents are freed up."

Today in China, a baby girl may still be a cause for disappointment or infanticide. Meanwhile, even in America, the most high-profile woman in political life is still the wife of a president. Everywhere you look, the "whole picture" of women is due for enlargement.

While the government released a thousand doves in welcome, a thousand stories soared.

JACK ANDERSON

Kantor focused on workers' rights

WASHINGTON - When federal authorities freed 74 Thai immigrants recently from a virtual slave camp in Southern California - replete with razor-wire, attack dogs and armed guards - most of the country was shocked.

One exception was U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor.

"You would think this would be impossible," he told us. "I'm surprised, but I'm not shocked. People will take advantage of workers if they are allowed to do so. If it can happen here, is there any doubt in anyone's mind that in less vigilant democracies and less developed economies this is taking place?"

During this Labor Day week, the California case and many more such examples of deplorable working conditions around the world stand as the unfinished business of the labor movement. In the late 1960s, Kantor - who was then a young attorney - fought to end child slavery in the citrus fields of South Florida. Children as young as 7 were living behind barbed wire in shacks with dirt floors and no electricity.

How much progress has really been made? Consider these examples from around the world:

- In China, where first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton will soon arrive for a women's conference, 12-year-olds work 15-hour shifts in textile plants for as little as $10 per month. Children even younger work in fireworks factories, which are set-up to produce exports for the United States.

- India is perhaps the world's most notorious nation for child labor abuses. An estimated 85 million children work under extremely exploitive conditions. Children working in the carpet industry often earn less than a dollar a day. When they make mistakes they are punished by beatings and torture.

When a child cuts a finger during weaving, some employers scrape sulfur into the wounds and set the wounds on fire to prevent the child from bleeding on prized carpet fibers, according to Senate testimony last year.

- In Thailand, an estimated 150,000 children under the age of 13 work as prostitutes. Those who work in the leather industry there have been fed amphetamines so they can stay revved up and endure longer hours - sometimes going days without sleep.

- In Peru, 12-year-olds can work 12-hour shifts in the mines for $3 dollars a day.

- In the Ivory Coast, the average age of a child laborer is 7.

"I talk about it in almost every speech I make, and I will continue to talk about it," Kantor says. "I think 10 years from now no one will doubt you should negotiate workers' standards, environmental rights and anti-corruption agreements."

But now it's a completely different situation for Kantor. His message is often jammed by an array of odd bedfellows ranging from Cabinet colleagues to businessmen to prominent Republican congressional leaders.

"Our trick is staying on the rolling log," said one administration source referring to Kantor's need to balance the conflicting agendas of the departments of State, Agriculture and Commerce. "We get shot down all the time for being too hard on Japan and China.... You also have tremendous pressure from the business community that says, 'Leave us alone.'"

Kantor is scornful of the alliance between conservative politicians and business leaders, and believes it is guilty of a double standard.

How much progress has really been made - Consider these examples from around the world.

"We've had no reduction in our service," she said. "It's just been a little hectic." According to Daniels, the majority of food sales are currently at the outside pizza concession. While it is healthy, she noted, the food service department would like to lure more of the students inside to have "real meals." She said the school district had hoped to have the food court operational when classes began Aug. 7, but the project turned out to be more complicated than they had anticipated. The building, constructed in 1983, had smaller available spaces than buildings constructed by today's standards.

she explained. Standard counters and facilities would not work with the existing building so they had to be custom-made. "So it's taking a little longer than we anticipated," she said. "But we are on schedule for opening in two weeks." The food service department is hoping to increase their share of the student lunch market by establishing a more appealing dining environment for the kids but she said the more important reason is nutrition. "We want to be sure the students get good meals at lunch," she said. "It's very important that they get the nutrition they need."

The report estimates that if the juvenile population increases by 20 percent over the 1990 base, and arrest rates continue to climb as they have in the past decade, the number of juveniles arrested for violent crimes will double to 10 - to more than 200,000. The report also says: Between 1983 and 1992, the rate of juvenile arrests for violent crime increased by 100 percent, compared with a 60 percent increase for adults. Juveniles are now responsible for one in five violent crimes. Between 1983 and 1992, the juvenile weapons laws violations more than doubled for each racial group - an increase of 187 percent for blacks, 128 percent for other races and 108 percent for whites. 40 percent of juvenile crime occurs after midnight, whereas for adults the crime rate is highest before and after midnight. Only 22 percent of the attackers of juveniles were strangers, compared with 42 percent for adults. Between 1984 and 1993, the number of gun-related murders of juveniles increased five-fold. Guns were used in eight of 10 homicides committed by juveniles. One-quarter of juvenile victims are killed by other children. In 1992 alone, 2,595 children were murdered, seven every day. One of every five child fatalities was attributed to homicide, the No. 2 cause of death behind motor vehicle accidents. Juveniles ages 12-17 were more likely to be victims of violent crimes including rape, robbery and simple assault, than adults 25 and older. From 1980 to 1992, the number of children who were subjects of child abuse and neglect reports nearly tripled, from 1 million to 2.9 million. That section of the report concludes, "Today's abused and neglected children are likely to be tomorrow's violent offenders."

the same level adopted during the past seven years, but over the recommended roll-back rate determined by the Seminole County property appraiser. The roll-back rate is that percentage which would raise the same amount of ad valorem taxes this year as received during the previous year. The roll-back rate was determined to be 3.6754. According to City Manager John Litton, the millage approved by the commission will bring an additional amount of revenue without increasing property taxes from the city's standpoint. Litton said a mill, for the city of Lake Mary, will be equal to $328,079 in 1996, as compared to a mill producing $506,578 during this past year. If the proposed millage rate, approved last night, is finalized at the next meeting, a Lake Mary resident with a home assessed at $75,000, with the $25,000 homestead exemption, would pay $188.24 in taxes this coming year. A home assessed at $100,000, with the same exemption, would have taxes of $282.36, while a $150,000 home, also with homestead exemption, would have $470.60 in taxes. It is expected the total income through ad valorem taxes to Lake Mary this coming year will be $2,040,432. With other revenues from various sources such as state funds, fees, franchisees and licenses, the city is projecting a revenue budget of $5,628,925. With the budget balanced, the expenditures proposed are at the same amount. Broken down into specific areas, General Government expenses are estimated at $1,032,090. Police, the largest amount on the budget, is listed as $1,828,726. Parks and Recreation expenses are listed as slightly over $663,000, and the Fire Department expenses is listed as $715,257. In summarizing the proposed 1996/97 budget earlier, Litton said, "A basis for this budget is an anticipated 300 new residential units in fiscal year 1996, along with 150,000 square feet of commercial construction. While those are estimates, we certainly did not pull the numbers out of the air and feel that short of a collapse in the national economy, these projections will be a reality." As if to accentuate Litton's projections, two ordinances presented during last night's city commission meeting, both approved on second reading, dealt with proposed new residential communities within the city. The developments would be the Early/Stenstrom land off Rinehart Road, and Pulte Homes, off Emma Oaks Trail. The total number of residential units for both is approximately 340.

August after an unsigned staff memorandum alleged several deceptive practices by Richardson, including trading in a $21,000 truck which was subsequently purchased by Richardson's son. There are also allegations of Richardson giving preferential treatment to friends and family for placement and housing assistance. Payments of housing authority funds for work not performed were also uncovered. Allegations against Richardson surfaced in June when a letter signed "concerned citizen" was sent to the Jacksonville area office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). Simmons said Wednesday the case is being investigated by the HUD office of Inspector General in Tampa. Based on Simmons' interim investigative report, the attorney said there is probable cause to conclude: 1. The Executive Director has used her position to place her son and daughter-in-law in Section 8 housing when they are neither eligible nor in line for such housing. 2. The Executive Director has used her position to sell her son a Sanford Housing Authority vehicle at a price at least $4,500 below fair market value in violation of Sanford Housing Authority procurement policies. 3. The Executive Director has diverted Sanford Housing Authority funds to her daughter-in-law for work not performed. 4. The Executive Director has diverted other monies under suspicious circumstances without appropriate contemporaneous justification. 5. The Executive Director has falsified the official records of the Sanford Housing Authority and caused records to be destroyed or altered. 6. The Executive Director has tampered with the Section 8 and Public Housing waiting lists. It appears Richardson personally directed that in at least five instances, people be placed on Section 8 status or in public housing, when they were not in line on the waiting list. In one of these instances, the individual was related to the Executive Director, the attorney's investigation report states. 7. The Executive Director has misappropriated Sanford Housing Authority personnel services for private purposes. The letter alleged PHA Maintenance Personnel on PHA time worked on the director's Peratmon Avenue home and her son's home using housing authority equipment and supplies. In July, Richardson denied the allegation stating that a housing authority employee did work on her home, after regular work hours on his own time. She also said she has the receipts for materials and labor she purchased for the work. The director issued a memo to all Sanford Public Housing Authority employees on July 31 concerning alleged deceptive practices which read: "Please note, it has been alleged there were numerous deceptive practices used by the management of the housing authority. If you are aware of any such practices, please inform me. Your identification will be kept in strictest confidence!" On Aug. 3, Richardson received an unsigned response alleging improprieties. Copies were forwarded to the Board of Commissioners Sanford Housing Authority.

figured a higher court would see that." Spaziano, dressed in the orange prison garb of death row inmates, has shaved his head, something he said he has done after all five of his death warrants. He doesn't want it to be done by prison guards in preparation for his electrocution. "So they don't have to touch my head, I don't like people to touch me," he said. Spaziano had been scheduled to die in June, but Gov. Lawton Chiles delayed the execution after Spaziano's attorney Michael Mello raised questions about Spaziano's guilt. Oral arguments in his appeal are scheduled Thursday afternoon before the Florida Supreme Court. Anthony Dilliso, the star witness against Spaziano, has said he lied when he testified Spaziano showed him the bodies of Ms. Harberts and another woman at a Seminole County dump. Dilliso, 38 and living in Pensacola, now says the information came from police, who had him hypnotized to help his memory. "He finally tells the truth and they don't believe him," Spaziano said. After interviewing Dilliso and conducting an investigation, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement issued a secret report to Chiles that convinced him to sign a new death warrant. "I really thought the governor was looking at my case," Spaziano complains. Several witnesses linked Spaziano to Ms. Harberts and the dump where the decayed bodies were found on Aug. 22, 1973. But Dilliso, who has a long history of alcohol and drug abuse, was the only one who could directly connect Spaziano to the bodies. The governor has refused to release the secret report, saying he didn't want to reveal the names of confidential witnesses. The report reportedly contains allegations that a witness tied Spaziano to two murders and another rape. "I don't know what they are talking about. I never killed nobody," Spaziano said. "The only thing I'm guilty of is smoking a few reefers." Spaziano has had 18 appeals rejected by everyone from circuit judges to the U.S. Supreme Court. Three Florida governors have signed death warrants for Spaziano, and the Florida Cabinet has denied him clemency. During much of the interview, Spaziano mugged for a photographer and even proposed marriage to her. The condemned inmate said he doesn't mind the nickname "Crazy Joe." "I'm a goof off. I make people laugh," he said. Spaziano, who got a life sentence in an unrelated 1975 rape conviction, has spent much of his 19 years on death row drawing and painting cartoon characters. He is especially fond of Mickey Mouse and other Disney characters. He also likes to paint pictures of motorcycles and their riders. Since being placed in a cell just steps from Florida's electric chair, "Old Sparky," Spaziano said he has been realistic. "Every day is hard. I've got to get ready for it," he said. "I'm just waiting to die. I do a lot of walking back and forth. I don't sleep much."

Sen. Packwood condemns panel decision to seek his expulsion

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — With a Senate vote looming on whether to expel him for sexual and official misconduct, Sen. Bob Packwood says the way he's been treated "makes the inquisition look like a study in fairness." He declared today: "I have no intention of resigning."

In a dramatic turnaround in the 33-month-old scandal involving the veteran lawmaker, the Senate Ethics Committee voted 6-0 Wednesday to recommend the Oregon Republican's expulsion. It is the harshest penalty Congress can impose on one of its own.

A defiant Packwood appeared on the network talk show this morning to press his case. "I don't think it's fair to me or anyone else to take away their lifetime job and say you're never going to get a chance to face your accusers, you'll never get a chance to tell the public your side of the story..." he said.

"That is absolutely unfair, and when you start going that road, that's a sorry day for America," he said.

Declaring that "I have no intention of resigning," Packwood said, "I want the public to at least see the charges and see my responses."

The panel's chairman, Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., and ranking Democrat Sen. Richard Bryan of Nevada scheduled a news conference today to discuss the decision. They planned to release documents gathered in the investigation.

The committee's three Republicans and three Democrats said Packwood's actions were "a crime against the Senate" and "bring discredit and dishonor" on the institution. Bryan said he hoped the chamber would take up the matter next week.

The committee's recommendation caught some senators by surprise.

"I haven't talked to all of our colleagues, but the ones I have talked to also echoed surprise at the severity of the recommendation," Sen. John Breaux, D-La., said on "Fox Morning News." "But they hasten to add they don't know the information or facts that the Ethics Committee had before them in making this recommendation."

The problems have churned around Packwood since days after he was elected to a fifth six-year term in 1992. The Washington Post reported that he had made unwanted sexual advances to numerous women — including former staff aides — over two decades. The lawmaker, who turns 63 on Monday, was married for most of the period.

The charges against him gradually expanded, and he said that heavy drinking — for which he still receives treatment — contributed to his problem.

On May 16, the committee found "substantial credible evidence" that Packwood made unwanted sexual advances to 17 women on 18 occasions from 1989 to 1990. The panel also found that he tried to get jobs for his estranged wife from lobbyists and businessmen with legislative interests, and altered his diaries when he learned the committee might subpoena them.

The investigation of Packwood took an uncertain turn after he reversed himself Aug. 25 and sought public hearings, which he previously had opposed. A number of Republicans were known to be upset with Packwood over that reversal.

The three Republicans on the six-member committee had earlier voted against hearings — supporting Packwood's prior position — and most Republicans in the Senate upheld the committee in a Senate vote.

Following the committee vote Wednesday, which ensured there would be no public sessions, the lawmaker attacked his colleagues for denying him the chance to confront his accusers.

"The committee has been the judge, jury and prosecution," he said. "This process makes the inquisition look like a study in fairness."

It would take the votes of 67 senators — two-thirds of the chamber's members — to make Packwood the first senator expelled since the Civil War.

"The committee strenuously urges, and fully expects, that its recommendation of expulsion shall be approved by the full Senate," the panel said in a statement.

MIAMI — Greg Colbrunn capped a two-run first inning with an RBI single and extended his hitting streak to 17 games, leading the Florida Marlins past the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1.

Colbrunn's streak is the longest current streak in the National League and a club record. Catcher Charles Johnson blocked the plate to make an inning-ending putout in the seventh and protect the Marlins' lead. They've won three in a row.

Willie Banks (2-5) allowed six hits and one run in seven innings for the victory, his second since June 1994. Robb Nen pitched a scoreless ninth for his 19th save.

Florida took a 2-0 lead in the first. Quilvio Vera walked, took third on Chuck Carr's double and scored on Conine's sacrifice fly. Colbrunn then delivered a two-out RBI single.

ZEBULON, N.C. — Ramon Espinosa scored two runs and drove in the game-winning RBI with two outs in the bottom of the 10th inning as the Carolina Mudcats defeated Orlando 5-4 Wednesday in the first game of the Southern League's Eastern Division playoffs.

In the seventh Espinosa started a rally with a double. Jeff Conger was intentionally walked and Omer Munoz hit a two-run pinch single to give the Mudcats a 2-0 lead.

The Cubs scored four runs in the eighth. After the first two batters reached on errors, Pedro Valdes singled home one run, followed by Brett Brown's three-run homer.

The Mudcats rallied in the ninth inning, which began with Jay Cranford getting hit by a pitch. Espinosa hit a ball to the pitcher, Jason Hart, who threw the ball into center field trying to get Cranford out on a force. Conger reached first on an infield bunt, loading the bases.

A passed ball allowed Cranford to score to make it 4-3. Tony Womack's sacrifice fly to right field scored Espinosa, tying the game.

Rams drop tough three-game match to Boone

By GARY COATMAN
 Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary's Sarah McWeeney won 17 service points Wednesday night in a hard fought 15-9, 16-18, 15-10 loss to Boone. Traci Woodall added seven service points for the Rams. Traci Tombras added four, while Monica Camandese and Angi Woodall added three each.

"I'm pleased," said Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry. "This is a young team with no experience to speak of because this is their first match. They're going to be all right. I saw some good things out there."

McWeeney staked the Rams to a 9-6 lead in the first game with five straight service points. She combined with Tombras and the Woodall sisters to keep Lake Mary within 6-4 before the run. The Braves then collected nine points to rally and close out the game.

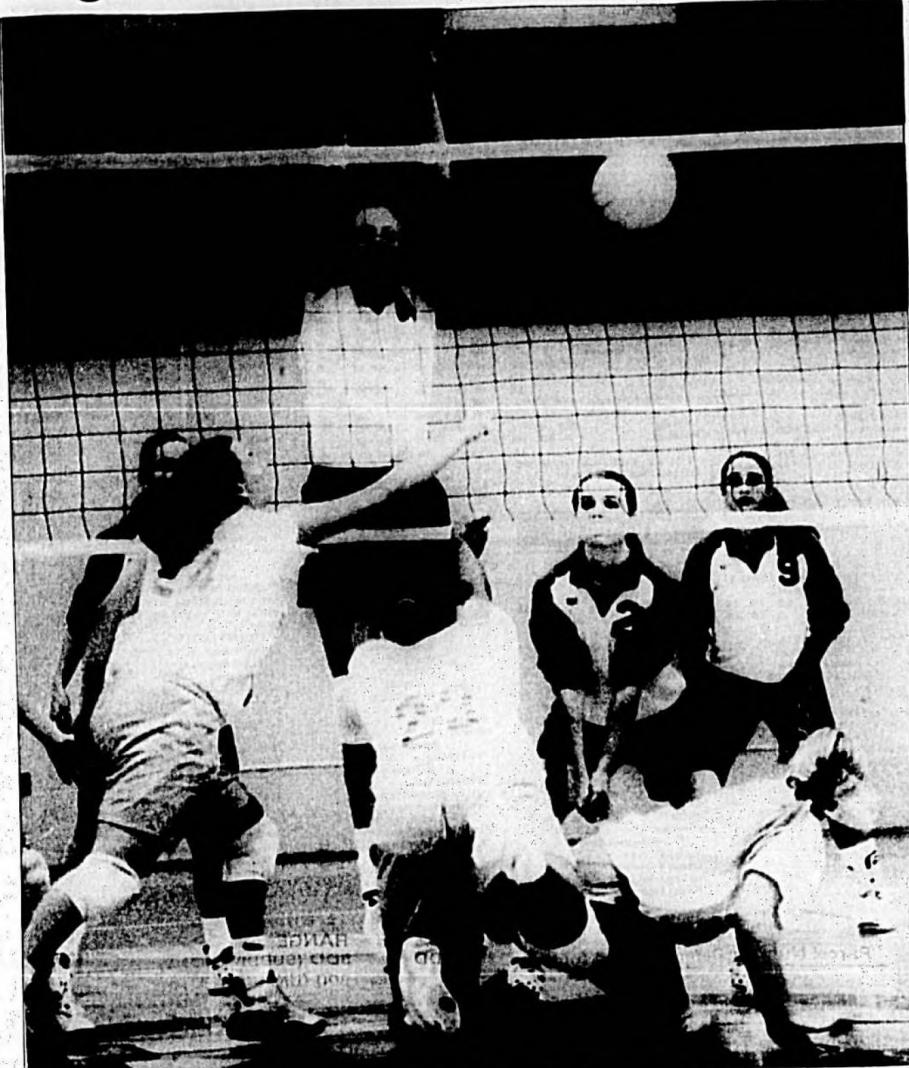

Boone raced out to a 7-1 lead in the second game before McWeeney served Lake Mary back into the lead. The junior won 9 straight service points to put the Rams back on top. Camandese extended Lake Mary's lead to 12-7 before Boone rallied back for a 14-12 advantage.

"They came here to try to do the best they could," Henry said. "They're anxious to play. They have been practicing so hard, it doesn't matter who they are playing. They are just learning the game and feeling good when they do smart things. I'm not pleased by the loss, but there are some positive things coming up."

The lead would briefly see-saw before the Rams evened the match. Traci Woodall gave Lake Mary a 15-14 lead. Boone took a brief 16-15 edge, and Tombras then knotted the game 16-16. McWeeney then closed out the game with two points.

"Sarah has a nice serve," Henry said. "She and Tracy Tombras have a power serve, so if it's working, it's an advantage."

The third and decisive game was tied 5-5 before Boone ran off eight unanswered points for a 13-5 lead. The Woodall sisters and Debbie Duber cut the Boone lead to 13-10 before the Braves closed out the match with two straight points.

Lake Mary junior Debbie Duber goes high to block an attempt by the Boone Braves Wednesday night. But Duber's effort was not enough as the Braves survived in a hard-fought three-game match 15-9, 16-18, 15-10.

Dilmore's dominate

From Staff Reports

KISSIMMEE — Jeremy Dilmore had eight kills and three blocks Wednesday night to lead Lake Mary to its second straight victory over the Osceola Kowboys, 15-6, 15-9, in a boys' volleyball match at Osceola High School. Darrell Dilmore added seven kills and four blocks for the Rams, while Erik Larsen had seven kills and two blocks.

Sean Whitman served Lake Mary to an 11-3 first game lead with five straight service points. On the match, he finished with nine service points and two kills. Darrell Dilmore added five service points in the win. "Everybody in the lineup collected some points serving," said Lake Mary coach Bill Whalen. "Our serve was consistent throughout the match."

Jason Hawkins helped the Rams with two kills and five blocks. The junior varsity team improved to 2-0 on the season with a 15-9, 15-10 over Osceola.

Lake Mary will host University today, with jayvee action beginning at 6 p.m. and varsity to follow. Friday, the Rams play host to Dr. Phillips. Jayvee action starts at 5 p.m. with varsity action to follow.

Preston wins celebrity race at Speedworld

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
 Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — From his last place starting position, Robert Preston III, director of radio programming at WMFE-FM, charged through the field to win the Third Annual Celebrity Challenge Race Friday night at Orlando Speedworld.

With two laps to the checkered flag, Peterson drove to the inside of race leader Elvis Gorbachev of Cool 105.9, who lead the first eight laps of the event, to regain the lead. Peterson held on for the victory.

"Firstly, I want to thank Steve Darrow for letting me use his car." It's quite a feeling of accomplishment to win the first race you participate in. I've not lapped cars before, but never raced," Peterson said. "It was a good event for a good cause. I'm pleased I was able to be part of it."

The event benefits the Children's Hospital Wish Foundation and the Shriner's Burn Hospital. Local media persons, sports figures and others usually compete in the event. Marc Middleton, WESH sports director and two time defending champion of the race, was unable to defend his title due to other commitments.

Chasing the lead duo to victory lane were WDBO's Kirk Healy, Cool 105.9's Johnny Law, Orlando Magic's David Oliver, Real Radio 104.1's Jay Clark, WCPX TV Channel 6's Wayne Haverly, Real Radio 104.1's Bo Rhodes, the Orlando Sentinel's Mike Zizzo, and the Orlando Magic's Otis Smith and Michael Stevens.

Ripken breaks 'unbreakable' record

By DAVID GINSBURG
 AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE — Lou Gehrig's seemingly unbreakable record didn't even make it out of the century. Cal Ripken is now baseball's Iron Man, and once again the men who play the game say the feat will never be equalled.

Ripken played in his 2,131st consecutive game Wednesday night, and there's no sign that the amazing streak will end any time soon. Somehow, some way, the seemingly invincible shortstop has gone more than 13 seasons without suffering an injury serious enough to put him on the Baltimore Orioles' bench.

It was business as usual Wednesday. Ripken went 2-for-4 with a homer and played flawlessly in the field as the Orioles beat the California Angels 4-2.

It takes more than simply avoiding injuries to compile such a streak. In Ripken's case, he's been lucky and good.

Ripken has gone through several batting slumps during the streak. He tried several different stances in 1992, few of which worked. But manager Johnny Oates kept Ripken in the lineup anyway, in part because he still was a threat at the plate and because he was the best infielder on the team.

play he did, game after game after game. "It's untouchable. I don't think there's anyone who has the gall to approach a record like this," Baltimore outfielder Jeffrey Hammonds said. "This is Cal Ripken's record, and it will always be Cal Ripken's record."

Haven't we heard this before? That's what they were

Search on for Mrs. Seminole County

Mrs. Florida International officials are looking for the next Mrs. Seminole County. The women selected will receive her title and banner and will have the opportunity to represent Seminole County at the 1996 Mrs. Florida International Pageant which will be held in Orlando on May 9, 10 and 11, 1996. Married women between the ages of 24 and 56 who have been married for a minimum of two years by July 1, 1996 qualify to compete for the title.

The Mrs. Florida International pageant is an official preliminary of the Mrs. International Pageant, a system which recognizes the virtues of professional, family and community involvement among married women. "Contestants compete in three categories," says president, John Lugo. "Fifty percent of the score is given in the interview category. Twenty five percent is awarded in the physical fitness category and 25 percent is awarded in the evening gown category. Contestants wear aerobic wear for the physical fitness competition and there is no swimsuit competition in our pageant."

To receive an application for the Mrs. Seminole County Competition, call the state office at (407) 837-2680, or write to Mrs. Florida Pageant, at P.O. Box 1080, Loxahatchee, FL 33470-1080.

Ask Jerry

Is there anything to being cursed?

DEAR MR. STEWART: I recently have seen several, so-called psychics in our area and I'm wondering if they haven't gotten together and researched just who I am? They all go by the name of Madame "this" or Madame "that" and all of them come across the same way as to what my problems are and just how much money it will take to cure my problems. I'm either being scammed or "joint scammed" by a group of people.

So far, I've been smart enough not to comply with their requests for "money to get rid of the evil in my life." Each one seems to think that I have had a curse put on me by my ex-wife and that she's the source of my, or should I say, all of my problems. Is there anything to being cursed or should I go with one of these "psychics"?

ALBERT LAKE MARY

DEAR ALBERT: The smartest thing you have done is to write to me. First of all there are no curses. Secondly, your inquiry falls right into an investigation that I have been doing for some time now of certain individuals in Seminole, Volusia, Orange and Osceola counties. Why, there are even ramifications that extend to all other parts of Florida as well.

'88Poolerby'

I don't want to go into all of just what I am doing right now for when the story breaks it just might be something that involves far more than just "psychics, palm readers, and fortune tellers." I'm probably the only "investigative reporting psychic" in the entire United States right now; especially having the courage to come forward and speak to and about the abuses in my own chosen field.

As for your own problems right now, you are merely going through a phase of recalculation of your own needs and ambitions. I see a time period that begins with February of '95 that begins to put you more at ease and more in control of your own future. I also see a new relationship for you by next summer with another marriage in. Keep watching this column for additional information on my investigation. Who knows, maybe it will be worthy of a Pulitzer Prize? (I'd like that!)

DEAR MR. JERRY: Do you see me changing my luck? It seems that everything has gone wrong this year and I just can't get ahead, win the lottery! Please, do you see my luck changing and how soon, I'm almost broke?

LOTTIE SANFORD

DEAR LOTTIE: You must not be completely broke, you had 32 cents to mail me a letter. No I don't do lotteries, and I don't think that you have been just having a run of bad luck. I think that you have waited too long in your life to make any progress and now when you are more dependent upon certain resources, that your ability to earn a living or have savings to use in emergencies is "just not there." Your health, I feel, is not the greatest and I hope that you are seeing a physician for your ailments.

You know, Lottie, I remember an old equation for luck and it goes like this Preparation + Opportunity equals Luck! You see, people make their own luck. It just doesn't fall out of the sky and into our life. I think there is still time for you to do something with your life if you want to! The journey of a thousand miles has always begun but with a single step, now you can take "your own second step." Best wishes.

DEAR MR. STEWART: When are you going back on radio?

LENORE SANFORD

DEAR LENORE: Soon, I hope. I hope, I hope (but I won't give up my column.)

Anti-Semitism is sickness; bigots ignore the cure

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing an item from your column. Please run it again, people need to be reminded.

E.D. BAUM, HOUSTON
DEAR E.D.: I'm glad to oblige — it's one of my favorites: SAM LEVENSON'S ANSWER TO AN ANTI-SEMITE

"It's a free world; you don't have to like Jews, but if you don't, I suggest that you boycott certain Jewish products, like the Wasserman test for syphilis; insulin, discovered by Dr. Minorsky; chloral hydrate for convulsions, discovered by Dr. Lifreitch; the Schick test for diphtheria; vitamins, discovered by Dr. Funk; streptomycin, discovered by Dr. Z. Woronan; the polio pill by Dr. A. Sabin and the polio vaccine by Dr. Jonas Salk.

"Go on, boycott! Humanitarian consistency requires that my people offer all these gifts to all people of the world. Fanatic consistency requires that all bigots accept syphilis, diabetes, convulsions, malnutrition, infantile paralysis and tuberculosis as a matter of principle.

"You want to be mad? Be mad! But I'm telling you, you ain't going to feel so good!"

READERS: Shortly after that item ran, I received this letter, which I also published:

DEAR ABBY: Your recent column in which you quoted the late, beloved Sam Levenson, contained an error.

In listing some outstanding contributions to medical science made by Jews, Levenson credited a Dr. Z. Woronan with the discovery of streptomycin.

Abby, I hope the Nobel Committee in Sweden doesn't hear about this, because in 1952, they awarded the Nobel Prize for medicine to Dr. Selman Abraham Waksman of Rutgers University for discovering streptomycin!

However, Dr. Waksman belongs on that list because he, too, was Jewish.

ARTHUR ISBIT, PH.D.,
CULVER CITY, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law, who is getting along in years, has informed her son and me that when she dies, she wants to be cremated with absolutely no funeral service. She is a non-believer and never went to church.

My husband and I believe that a funeral service would help bring closure but we promised that we would respect her wishes.

Abby, would it be terribly wrong if we had a simple graveside service when it is time for her to meet her maker?

WONDERING IN TEXAS
DEAR WONDERING: Since she clearly stated that she wants to be cremated with absolutely no funeral service — and you promised to respect her wishes — that is precisely what you should do.

DEAR ABBY: I found this in a fortune cookie at Trader Vic's: "It is much wiser to take advice than to give it." Since the fortune applies directly to what you do, I thought I'd ask what you think of it.

ADVICE

LONGTIME READER IN SILVER LAKE, CALIF.

DEAR LONGTIME READER: The philosophy may be true — but it's not nearly as rewarding. (At least in my case!)

DEAR ABBY: Help! What is a mother do do when her 17-year-old daughter thinks its OK to come home at 4 a.m. from a date? Her father is no help at all. He wants to be her "buddy" and has never insisted that she adhere to her 12:30 a.m. curfew.

I have spoken to my pastor and other mothers, and they all agree with me. But Dad doesn't! Are there other mothers out there with my problem?

SLEEPLESS AND HOPELESS IN COW.

DEAR SLEEPLESS AND HOPELESS: You have a bigger problem with your husband than you do with your daughter. As long as he chooses to side with your daughter, curfew enforcement will be impossible. His failure to back you up in enforcing the rules of the house may be symptomatic of other problems in your marriage.

If he continues to undermine you instead of presenting a united front, there's little you can do to regain control of your daughter.

Indian resort stirs up Panhandle town over gaming

By ADAM YEMANS
Associated Press Writer

MARIANNA, Fla. — The Seminole Nation of Oklahoma trumpeted plans for a glitzy resort and bingo hall more than a year ago near this small Panhandle town.

The resort has stirred debate in rural Jackson County, where 45,000 people live, but not much else.

Since announcing the project in July 1994, the Oklahoma tribe has made little progress in getting the local blessings it needs to proceed with its Sweetwater Family Resort, about 80 miles northwest of Tallahassee.

Supporters said the multimillion-dollar project could mean 4,000 jobs and an infusion of money for the region.

But opponents, led by a group of ministers, don't want Indian gaming in their community. The Micoosukee Tribe of Florida also objects to another tribe moving into the state and starting a moneymaking venture.

Phil Rotolo, who owns a computer store in Marianna, said he asked customers to sign a petition for or against the project, and the vast majority supported it.

"I can't imagine someone objecting. There's a bingo hall right down the street from our store," Rotolo said. "My mother plays bingo. She's 88 years old. She's a bad person, I guess."

The Rev. Tony Martin, an associate pastor at the 1,000-member First Baptist Church, said opponents aren't against the Oklahoma Seminoles — only the bingo hall.

"If they wanted to build everything else, they'd just be welcome with open arms," Martin said. "Gambling hurts the people who can afford it the least."

Seminole Chief Jerry Haney said the resort would be designed for families and bingo would be only one type of entertainment. But he wouldn't rule out a casino if legalized gambling is ever approved by voters.

"At this point we're not looking at casinos," he said. "If it happens, we want to keep our options open."

Sweetwater's backers envision a bingo hall for up to 3,500 people, a 400-room hotel, an outlet mall, an Indian cultural center, a virtual reality game center, a bowling alley, a recreational vehicle park, a concert hall and a multi-screen theater.

Plans include a wildlife refuge by Jim Fowler, of Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom fame, and a water park by the owners of Adventure River near Memphis, Tenn.

The project would cost between $150 million and $200 million. But a dispute over a fraction of that amount has kept things at a standstill.

The city, county and school district want the Seminoles to reimburse the governments up to $250,000 for costs associated with approving the project. The developers would recoup those expenses from money they agree to pay local governments once the resort is operating.

Chief Haney balked when the lawyers hired by the three local governments proposed the payment plan.

"Excessive funding was requested up front before we could even talk to you," Haney wrote one local official earlier this year. "This approach is unacceptable to us and we hope to get things back on track."

Last week, a group of officials met with developer Norman Pinkard to discuss the project but they only agreed to meet again.

"We are not going to agree to anything until we get a compensation agreement," said Marianna Mayor Jim Wise. "We can't spend taxpayers' money for this type of thing."

Local officials said they want to work with the Seminoles. But officials said they know nothing about the financial wherewithal of the project's backers and are wary when $250,000 can hold up a multi-million development.

"There's just something that doesn't seem to add up," said county commission Chairman Chanley Carter.

Pinkard, a small business consultant from New York and a former deputy commissioner for the New York State Department of Commerce, said the developers are trying to overcome the region's resistance to change.

He said the resort would be financed through a combination of taxable and tax-exempt revenue bonds that would be paid off through long term leases and money generated by the resort.

"I think localities want reassurance. We're not going to break and run. They haven't been privy to all the vendors we're organizing," said Pinkard, promising more announcements about the venture in the coming months.

Last year, supporters said they had a tentative agreement with Carnival Cruise Lines to serve as a "master vendor" for the resort. Its subsidiary, Carnival Hotels & Casinos, is developing a casino in eastern Massachusetts for the Wampanoag Tribe.

Company spokeswoman Beth Mignon would neither confirm nor deny "any possible involvement" in the Seminoles' proposed resort near Marianna.

Even if a reimbursement agreement is completed, the project still has a long way to go.

The Oklahoma tribe must reach agreements on how much to pay the local governments since the Seminoles would be exempt from state and local taxes. Other issues include law enforcement, emergency medical service and roads.

The Seminoles have a contract to buy 1,700 acres from the Reiff family, which operated the Chipola Nurseries, at Interstate 10 and State Road 276. If the sale goes through, the Seminoles would ask the federal government to hold the land in a trust so it would be exempt from state and local regulations.

"This is an opportunity of a lifetime for Jackson County and Northwest Florida," said Joan Reiff, one of the land owners who stand to make millions from the sale. "This is truly a beginning of a new era for this whole area."

Gov. Lawton Chiles, who opposes legalized casino gambling, also must approve the project because it includes gaming. Chiles wants the Seminoles to get local approvals and conduct site reviews by state agencies before he considers the project.

Last year, the tribe, which has about 12,000 members and is based in Wewoka, Okla., received about $40 million from the U.S. government for land taken from the Indians since 1832.

The Micoosukee tribe has asked the governor to reject the Seminoles' project. They said the government already has compensated the Seminoles for the land it took.

"We believe that any decision to allow an outside tribe to set up Indian gaming in the state would have serious social and economic repercussions for the existing federally recognized Indian tribes," Micoosukee Chairman Billy Cypress wrote Chiles.

The state's other tribe, the Seminoles in South Florida, hasn't taken a public stance on the Panhandle project. Chiles has opposed efforts by the Florida Seminoles to expand gambling on their lands.

In Jackson County, supporters and opponents have used unscientific surveys and letter-writing campaigns although the debate softened as the project stalled.

Chiles has received about 300 letters opposing the project from a letter-writing campaign conducted by a group called Jackson Citizens Against Indian Gaming.

The Marianna Chamber of Commerce has compiled more than 1,500 letters, surveys and petitions that showed a split in support for the project.

Still, the only viable signs of the proposed attraction are periodic news conferences to tout the project and a sign erected on the farmland where the project would be built along I-10.

Chief Haney said the Oklahoma Seminoles want to return to Florida as residents willing to pay their way.

"We want to come back home to do what we can for the communities we come in to," he said. "Anything you do you're going to have some opposition."
