SANFORD — A 22-year-old Orange City man was killed when he lost control of his 1980 BMW on Silver Lake Drive near Ohio Avenue in Sanford.

Police Chief Steven Harriett said the car of Thomas Stocks was traveling at more than 70 mph when Stocks lost control of the vehicle at about 2:52 a.m. Sunday. The car hit a sign, a post and a gate and rolled several times before stopping about 200 feet off the road. Harriett said, Stocks, who was traveling alone, was killed. The accident may be alcohol related. Harriett said.

Annual Swedish gathering set

SANFORD — The second annual Swedish Gathering for descendants of the Swedish immigrants brought to Seminole County by city founder Henry Shelton Sanford in the 1870s will be Nov. 30 from 3 to 6 p.m. at the Cultural Arts Center, Fifth Street and Oak Avenue, Sanford.

The event will be hosted by the St. Lucia Festival and the Sanford Historical Society.

Lab Gallant, chairman of the festival's docent program, said in a release she will set up interviews with those who attend the gathering.

For more information, call the St. Lucia Headquarters at 323-9178.

'Women for WineSense'

SAN FRANCISCO — To counter negative messages about alcohol aimed at female drinkers, a group of prominent women in the wine industry have banded together to promote moderation.

Called Women for WineSense, the group was formed this year to defend wine against anti-alcohol forces which have increasingly focused their campaigns on women and the dangers of drinking, particularly during pregnancy.

Since Rodeno conceived the idea for the group this spring it has attracted more than 100 women executives from throughout the U.S. wine industry. The group's message, that wine in moderation has been an enjoyable part of society for both men and women for thousands of years, and can continue to be.

The group is a reflection of the movement in the U.S. wine industry to counter what winemakers call "neo-Prohibitionists." The industry has battled a number of proposals over the past five years, mostly in California.

Danger at the door: Study finds latchkey children at risk

By JANET BASS
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Nearly half of a recent sample of school-age youngsters were left home alone at least occasionally, if not regularly, and many risked danger by improperly answering the phone or a knock on the door.

The Child Welfare League of America surveyed 447 children in kindergarten through third grade who live in urban, rural and suburban areas. In its November-December issue of Child Welfare, the league found that 42 percent of the children were left unsupervised at least occasionally, if not regularly.

"It was apparent that as children got older, parents were more and more willing to leave them without supervision," the authors said.

The percentage of "latchkey" children left alone occasionally or regularly in kindergarten was 28 percent; in first grade, 37 percent; in second grade, 45 percent; and in third grade, 77 percent.

"These figures far exceed any previously published estimates," the authors said.

For years, Congress has tried to tackle the child care issue and was finally able to gather enough votes this year by folding a child care bill into the federal budget package. The measure includes $732 million in 1991 block grants to states for expanded child care services for pre-school and school-age latchkey children.

The Child Welfare survey also found that urban children were far more frequently left unattended occasionally or regularly than rural and suburban children.

Parents said in interviews with the authors they were "doing the best they could" and felt they had no alternative.

While suburban parents were less likely to leave their children unsupervised, they were considerably more likely to leave them unattended for the occasional trip to the grocery store — 3 percent regularly vs. 35 percent occasionally.

These parents did not consider day care relevant for these spontaneous situations, according to interviews.

Three new board members 'doing their homework'

SANFORD — Going into their first meeting as school board members, Barbara Kuhn, Jeanne Morris and Sandy Robinson, said they are prepared for the challenge.

To their advantage, they all agree, is the accessibility of the school district staff to answer questions and find information that will help them make informed decisions about the items in the 332-page agenda packet.

The three will be sworn in tonight at 7 p.m. during a brief ceremony before the school board meets at the district office, 1211 Mellonville Ave., Sanford.

School board attorney Ned Julian will preside over the short ceremony. Supt. Robert Hughes will then be in charge until a new chairman is chosen.

It is expected that vice chairman Nancy Warren will be elevated to the top spot. It is unclear who might be nominated to fill the position of second in command.

Preparing for tonight's meeting, District 4 representative Barbara Kuhn said, "I've been doing my homework, and I have a lot of questions."

Each of the board members has been paired with an assistant superintendent who will act as a liaison between the board and the district staff to make researching the answers to questions easier.

Larry Furlong, a Democrat, became the first non-Republican elected to the county commission in 14 years. His nomination became formal with his oath of office administered by Eaton.

Along with Furlong, commissioner Bob Sturm also was to be sworn to a fourth four-year term in office. Not since county commissioner W.B. Kilbee began his 18-year term in 1937 will a person have served so long on the commission by the time Sturm completes his current term in 1994.

District seeks land purchase in Lake Mary

By VICKI DeSORMIER

LAKE MARY — The Seminole County school district will offer $520,000 to purchase a 1.7-acre site adjacent to Lake Mary Elementary School, 132 S. Country Club Road, Lake Mary.

The school's play area will be expanded into the site when a new art and music suite is built on a portion of the current playground.

Part of the money for the purchase of the land has been budgeted from the sale of the right of way along Lake Mary Boulevard.

In July Seminole County paid the school district $228,762 for nearly five acres of land purchased for the purpose of widening Lake Mary Boulevard north of the school.

"This works out well for everyone involved," Richard Wells, assistant superintendent for facilities, said at the time he received the check from the county. "They get the land they need to expand the road and we get the property and the facilities we need for the school."

The land which was sold by the school could not have been used to build the new facilities. In the form of two narrow strips along Lake Mary Boulevard and Country Club Road, as thin as 15 feet in some places, included a retention pond on the northeast corner of the campus.

Lake Mary Elementary is a bit smaller than most elementary schools in the district. It has a capacity of 694 students, while most others have an average capacity

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Former Green Beret subject of manhunt

JACKSONVILLE — A former Green Beret who allegedly is involved in a racial hate group that stockpiled weapons had fled the Clarksville, Tenn., home where he was supposed to be under house arrest.

Jacksonville police had asked military authorities in Tennessee to guard Michael Tubbs, 25, a former Jacksonville resident. They learned Monday he had escaped and had not been under guard. Police believe Tubbs could be armed and heading for Jacksonville.

During the weekend they found a supply of military weapons, including stolen machine guns, an anti-aircraft gun, explosives and mines at several Jacksonville locations.

Federal court records said a childhood friend implicated Tubbs in the weapons scheme. The records said Tubbs was involved with white supremacist groups, and Jacksonville authorities said he may be linked to the Ku Klux Klan and the Aryan nation.

Koger Properties under investigation

JACKSONVILLE — The Securities and Exchange Commission has begun an investigation into allegations that Koger Properties may have been involved in insider trading.

The company disclosed the ongoing investigation in its quarterly financial report Monday and said president, Wallace Kienast, had resigned. Kienast was reported last month to be on indefinite sick leave.

The investigation stems from 23 lawsuits filed by shareholders in federal court following sharp declines in Koger stock. Some of those suits allege insider trading.

Koger common stock fell from 25 1/2 a year ago to 6 3/4 quarters at Monday's close. One of the lawsuits claims Kienast sold nearly 35,000 shares of stock in August for more than $120 a share.

Amtrak allowed to dump human waste

PALATKA — President Bush has signed a bill allowing Amtrak passenger trains to dump human waste over rail beds, leaving pending cases in Florida and other states in limbo.

The bill includes a clause retroactively preventing prosecution of the passenger service for dumping wastes back to 1976.

Amtrak was convicted last year in Palatka of criminal littering for dumping raw human sewage over two train tracks.

The rail company was never sentenced. U.S. District Judge Howard Melton in Jacksonville enjoined the sentencing until it could be determined whether the case fell under federal or state jurisdiction.

Assistant state attorney Dennis Bayer argued that an existing federal exemption did not pre-empt state environmental law. He said the enactment of the new bill proves that point.

The state appealed to the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeal in Atlanta, but neither the appeals court nor the Jacksonville federal court has issued orders in the case.

Other cases are pending in Oregon, Nevada and Idaho.

Dairy owners urged to use bottled water

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — State regulators are urging the owners of some north Florida dairies to use bottled or municipal water because of high nitrate levels found in their drinking water wells.

Elevated nitrate levels were found in some wells at dairies in Gilchrist and Lafayette county wells, but not at wells near the dairies.

Dairy farmers questioned the findings and were going about business as usual until more tests can be made.

The Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services took the samples for the Department of Environmental Regulation in order to determine the dairies' effect on the region's water.

Nitrates are found in cow manure and can cause health problems for humans, especially in infants and the elderly.

HRS sampling has shown nitrate levels above the state's drinking water standard of 10 milligrams per liter at some of the dairies.

Mervyn's to acquire five stores

MIAMI — The Mervyn's department store chain said Monday it plans to open 12 stores in Florida in 1991, including five that will replace existing Lord & Taylor stores to be bought from May Department Stores Co. of St. Louis.

The Hayward, Calif.-based Mervyn's, a subsidiary of Dayton Hudson Corp. of Minneapolis specializing in moderately priced fashions and home goods, said it expects to hire about 2,000 people as part of the expansion.

Terms of the acquisition were not disclosed.

Mervyn's said it agreed to buy Lord & Taylor stores in Dade County, Coral Springs, Boynton Beach and Jensen Beach. The company said it expects to close the stores in January and re-open them as Mervyn's stores in July.

Mervyn's bought and converted two Lord & Taylor stores in Houston in 1989.

Program targets Hispanic teens

United Press International
GAINESVILLE — A University of Florida program that uses peer pressure and teen counselors to fight drug and alcohol abuse will target Hispanic students in the Tampa and Miami areas, school officials said Monday.

If we have peers giving positive pressure, hopefully it will keep others out of trouble.

— Joe Wittmer

The program, funded by a $121,700 grant from the U.S. Department of Education, is aimed at eighth- and ninth-grade students in Dade and Hillsborough county public schools with large populations of Hispanics.

"That is a crucial age. It is when they start making decisions," said Gerardo Gonzalez, chairman of the university's department of counselor education. "We can step in and make a difference."

Gonzalez and professors Robert Myrick and Joe Wittmer will teach school counselors the basics of peer advising, a method that calls for students to advise each other on everything from teen pregnancy to drugs.

"We will teach the counselors how to teach the students to be advisors to their peers," said Gonzalez.

He said counselors also will be taught to deal with the specific needs of Hispanic students.

"They will leave with a better understanding of how culture affects these students," Gonzalez said.

Myrick said students at the schools will be taught to take on four roles: counselor, tutor, special friend and small group leader. "The program gives students a chance to learn from each other," Wittmer said. "It is peer pressure that sometimes gets them into trouble. If we have peers giving positive pressure, hopefully it will keep others out of trouble."

Studies have proven that peer counseling is the most effective drug and alcohol intervention method among adolescents. Myrick says in his book "Peervention," which will be released in January 1991.

By teaching students to help each other, the program also will mobilize more resources within schools that usually have only a handful of counselors, Myrick said.

"Kids won't listen to me and they won't listen to a counselor, but they'll listen to each other," Wittmer said. "Let's take the peer pressure out of the parking lot, turn it into something positive and get it into the classroom."

Exercise may make elderly better drivers

United Press International
TALLAHASSEE — Aerobic exercise such as bicycling or brisk walking may make the elderly better drivers by speeding their reaction time, a Florida State University researcher said Monday.

"Driving depends heavily on reaction time and older adults' reaction times are slower," said Dr. Tonya Toole, an associate professor of nutrition, food and movement sciences.

"We're seeing that exercise can retard that slowing process and speed reaction time."

Tests with simulated brake and accelerator pedals showed those who regularly participated in aerobic exercise had reaction times that were one-tenth to two-tenths of a second faster than those who were sedentary.

"We're not talking about very much time but in situations where quick responses are required it can be very important. It's possible it could make a difference," Toole said.

She said walking, jogging, swimming and bicycling all increase oxygen intake and improve reactions. She said it takes a minimum of three 20- to 40-minute periods of aerobic exercise a week for at least four months to benefit reaction time. "The exercise needs to be aerobic," Toole said. "This means you can't go out and lift weights and get great benefits to reaction time. But elderly adults can speed reaction time without having to do anything but going out and walking briskly."

Toole said researchers are beginning to learn the importance of aerobic exercise to not only physical health, but also to mental health. Her studies also showed that elderly adults who participated in aerobic exercise recalled sets of numbers better than those who did not.

"We're learning a lot more about how simple tasks like physical reaction time are integrated with more complex behavior like memory," Toole said. "We're finding that the neural pathways responsible for those more complex decisions are also benefited by aerobic exercise."

Blockbuster Entertainment Corp. will acquire rival Erol's Inc. for $40 million

United Press International
FORT LAUDERDALE — Blockbuster Entertainment Corp., the nation's largest videocassette retailer, said Monday it agreed to buy rival Erol's Inc. for $40 million in a move that will boost its profile in the nation's capital.

"We wanted to get a foothold in (Washington) D.C., and they are heavy in D.C.," said Blockbuster spokesman Wally Knief.

Blockbuster said the two chains had reached an agreement in principle on the acquisition of Erol's, which owns 208 rental stores in Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago, Richmond, Va., and Tidewater Virginia.

Knief said the bulk of those stores will be transferred to franchisees of Blockbuster, in areas where operations overlap.

"The company will not own Erol's stores in areas that are already covered by our franchisees. Those stores will be acquired by our franchisees. There will not be a mix," Knief said.

He estimated that Blockbuster will retain ownership of 10 percent to 15 percent of the acquired stores.

Blockbuster said it agreed to acquire Erol's in exchange for cash, a note, common stock and the assumption of certain debt, which together it valued at $40 million. Knief said no further details on the amount of cash or number of shares involved in the transaction were available.

Executives at Erol's were said to be notifying the company's 2,700 employees Monday of the agreement, and were not immediately available for comment.

However, Erol's founder and principal stockholder, Erol Oran, was quoted by the company as saying he believed the acquisition served the best interests of company shareholders and employees, "particularly in view of Blockbuster's significant financial resources."

For the first nine months of 1990, Blockbuster earned $47.5 million, or 60 cents a share, on revenues of $815 million.

Also Monday, Blockbuster announced the opening of its 1,500th store, in Vancouver, British Columbia.

Big-named, small cats showcased in exhibit

By NICK PFENFAUF
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Judging from the name of the animals in a new exhibit, visitors at the Central Florida Zoological Park might expect to find some type of large powerful cat with black spots.

Not so, say zoo officials. The name Jaguarundi has no direct relationship with a Jaguar, other than both of them are members of the cat family.

The Jaguarundi is a small feline weighing from 10 to 20 pounds. The average length of its slim body is 25 inches. It has short legs and small rounded ears and comes in a variety of color variations.

Although they look more like the family cat than the powerful Jaguar, these animals are on the endangered species list and quite rare in zoological parks. Only 16 zoos currently list them as official exhibits.

With a formal name of Fella yagouarundi, they are also called Eyra or Otter Cats. The male in the Sanford exhibit is slightly over one year old, and is on loan from the Cincinnati Zoo, while the female, over two years old, is on loan from the Arizona Sonora Desert Museum.

The new exhibit featuring the two Jaguarundi has now been opened to the public, in a "Mexican Canyon" setting complete with a display of rock cliffs, a waterfall, dry river bed and live plants. Zoo officials say this type of exhibit is the forerunner of a new standard for future feline exhibits. Similar renovations are planned for other feline and primate exhibits as soon as funding become available.

According to Marketing Coordinator Andrea Farmer, the cost for this new exhibit was approximately $5,000 and required over 400 staff hours to complete construction.

Commenting on the new exhibit, zoo director Ed Posey said, "We hope to promote natural behavior with this naturalistic habitat. This new exhibit should promote future reproduction for this pair of Jaguarundi."

Longwood residents split on development tax refund

By NICK PFENFAUF
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — Citizens who follow governmental activities in Longwood are not only split into two camps, but the separation is getting further apart each time the city commission meets.

One side is led by Mayor Hank Hardy and commissioners Paul Lovestrand and Gary Hefter; the other side has former Mayor Gene Farach, former Deputy Mayor Jeff Morton, commissioners Rex Anderson and Adrienne Perry and a group of staunch supporters.

In preparing the city's budget that went into operation Oct. 1, a tax increase of almost one-mill was approved in order to pay for planned downtown redevelopment, a new city hall complex, and other improvements in the city.

The plans were formulated after a series of town hall meetings, by Farach, Morton, Anderson and Perry, plus former city administrator Mike Abela. Farach and Morton were defeated in their re-election bids and Abela was fired last week.

During their successful political campaigns, newly elected commissioners Hefter and Lovestrand, said they wanted to halt the growth plans until they could be put on a pay-as-you-go basis because the increase in taxes was not necessary.

Last night, a group of citizens rebelled.

The tone of the meeting was set early, during the public participation period when Diane Fedderer told the commission, "I urge you to move forward on redevelopment, or give us our money back that you're taking in taxes."

Crolyn Emmling told Hefter and Lovestrand, "Roll back our taxes. Take the money and put it in an escrow account then reimburse us at the end of one year. But don't use the money for anything else."

Morton presented the commission with a petition signed by 132 people asking for a tax refund if the downtown redevelopment project is not going to move forward. Morton said, "I want you to pass a resolution on that tonight."

Later in the meeting, Anderson commented that "Commissioners Hefter and Lovestrand talk about pay-as-you-go, but so far I haven't seen any plan on how to do it. I move that we return the tax money to the citizens."

Commissioner Perry seconded the motion, but Hardy objected, saying, "We haven't even had one work session yet. This shouldn't be brought up so quickly."

The vote on returning the taxes was 3 to 2, with Hardy joining Lovestrand and Hefter in opposing the motion.

Several times during the discussion, Hardy had difficulty with a rather vocal audience and called on Longwood police to assist in keeping the meeting orderly.

Perry admitted that the commission may have been overly ambitious in making such large-scale plans for city improvements, "but that doesn't mean the idea is wrong. Maybe it just needs to be postponed, and we should return to the way everything was before."

Perry added, "If the two new commissioners ran on a no-new-tax platform, as the people have discussed here tonight, I would vote that the people should be given back their taxes."

Lovestrand, however, called attention to a parting memo from Abela, who reported that the city is now $600,000 short of its expected revenue.

Atlantis crew spends extra day in space

By WILLIAM HARWOOD
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — The shuttle Atlantis' crew enjoyed a bonus day in space Tuesday and awaited a decision on whether high winds at the ship's California runway would block a day-late landing attempt to wrap up a five-day military flight.

Chief flight director Randy Stone would not rule out the possibility of a landing Tuesday or Wednesday at the Kennedy Space Center if the outlook remained unfavorable for a touchdown at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., Atlantis' primary landing site.

Used Car Dealer —

Bargain Or Bust?

The first question in everyone's mind should be "where do these cars come from?" A typical independent used car dealer normally has 30 or 40 cars on their lot. It's important to know the origin of these cars. These cars are not the "shrapnel of a new car dealer". These cars are bought from new car stores trying to liquidate their inventory, a product that is not part of their new car line, or something older in year than what a new car store can finance.

Another source for used cars are folks like yourself. Private owners that no longer have a need for their car or truck for many various reasons usually take them to a used car dealer, selling the vehicle for a fair price for both parties.

In this day and age many people have had financial problems that have resulted in a repossession on a car with a bank or finance company. These cars are also sold from independent used car lots. Another source for used car dealers are the auto auctions. This gives the dealer the opportunity to supplement their inventories with a variety of cars that are possibly hard to find.

It is not enough to just purchase these cars, therefore the next step would include reconditioning. The car at that point is checked by a certified mechanic, serviced, and professionally cleaned by an automobile detailer.

Buying a car or truck from an independent used car dealer can bring a smile on your face for several reasons. With the small store having less overhead you can definitely save money with the purchase of a quality and inexpensive car or truck. Many of these dealers will even help you arrange financing if necessary, no matter what your credit background may be.

The staff at Mincer Motors is proud to say that we offer all of these things. Our reputation speaks for itself. If you ever have any doubts about our operation or any of our fellow dealers be sure to check us out with the local Chamber of Commerce of the Better Business Bureau.

Manatee death hits record, biologists grim about future

United Press International

MIAMI — As Florida's manatees swim south for the winter, the death toll for the endangered sea cows has already passed last year's record and biologists are wondering how much longer the species can survive.

Through the first 10 months of 1990, 181 manatees were killed in Florida waters, 9 percent more than last year's record of 166.

Public awareness is at an all-time high and restrictions on boaters are expanding but the manatee death toll keeps mounting.

"If you look at the mortality over the last four years, I don't believe we can sustain this rate, even if we have more animals than we think," said Robert Turner, manatee coordinator for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Only about 1,200 of the endangered mammals are thought to remain in Florida. Right now, hundreds are making their annual migration from north and central Florida to the warmer waters of south Florida.

The migration takes two weeks to a month. Seasonal speed rules went into effect Thursday in many south Florida canals and waterways, including the Intracoastal Waterway.

Despite the manatees' size, which averages 9 feet long and 1,000 pounds, the slow-moving, gray-brown mammals are difficult to see from the surface. Consequently, boaters historically have been their worst enemies, causing about one-third of the manatee deaths.

Last year, boats caused 50 of the 166 manatee deaths. Through October this year, 41 manatees have been killed by boats.

Florida Marine Patrol officers write plenty of speeding tickets in slow-speed zones. Lt. Denise Warrick said. Fines range from $35 to $191.

Studies of more than 1,000 manatee deaths since 1974 also implicate poachers, flood-control gates, fishing gear and pollution.

Despite the increased deaths, manatee researchers have hope. For one thing, this year's record total of deaths was skewed by 46 deaths during a January freeze.

Researchers also expand their knowledge each year, said Cathy Beck, a biologist with a U.S. Fish and Wildlife team in Gainesville that tracks manatees by radio and satellite.

The research shows where, how far and how fast the animals move. It may lead to the establishment of better refuges.

Last year, lawmakers ordered 13 counties with large manatee populations to design manatee protection plans. Most plans are still in the works but researchers see them as perhaps the last real tool in the fight to save the manatee.

Free-trade in peril

After four years of concerted effort, it appears that the Uruguay Round of international free-trade negotiations could adjourn in failure. If this lamentable event occurs, it will be because of the unwillingness of the European Community to reduce its unfair agricultural subsidies.

The 14-nation Cairns Group, a compact of rich and poor farm exporters that got its name from the Australian town where it held its first meeting, has threatened to withdraw from the round by mid-November unless the EC becomes more flexible.

The Cairns Group proposes a 75 percent cut in overall EC farm supports during the next 10 years and a 90 percent cut in export subsidies. This dovetails with an earlier proposal by the United States, which is not a Cairns member. The American plan called for the EC to open its markets to more imports of wheat and corn while the United States lifts its import restrictions on sugar and dairy products and Japan accepts more rice imports.

The United States and the EC have done far more damage to the world agriculture market than the other 94 signatory nations of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. American farm subsidies total $67 billion annually; the EC, $97 billion. But while the United States has been amenable to curbing its protectionist practices, the EC nations have been recalcitrant.

Not only do EC nations oppose the Cairns proposal, many also resist a more modest counterproposal by the European Commission calling for a 30 percent cut in farm supports over 10 years, using 1986 as a favorable baseline for calculations.

The most unfortunate aspect of this stalemate is that it threatens to undermine substantial progress made in other important areas of trade during the Uruguay round. Accords are nearly completed in 14 areas of negotiations, including market access, services, intellectual property and investments.

The Cairns Group warned that the absence of a farm pact not only jeopardizes the Uruguay round, but also calls into question the value of the entire multilateral trading system. The none-too-subtle implication of this warning is that a trans-Atlantic trade war could result if the EC remains intransigent on farm subsidies.

There would be no winners in such a trade war. On the other hand, nearly all nations would benefit from freer trade. Indeed, since GATT came into being, the major trading countries have increased annual global commerce from $60 billion to $4 trillion.

If the Uruguay Round is successfully completed and GATT dictates are extended to every major area of trade, the overall growth in global commerce would yield an additional $200 billion a year in domestic output in the United States alone. The EC would see similar growth.

With so much to be gained by combating protectionism and by opening markets, the EC would be serving its own interests to yield to the will of the other 95 GATT treaty members. If, however, the EC remains intractable on farm subsidies, isolating itself from the rest of the trading world, it would lose considerably more than it would preserve.

Thumbs up to Florida

Floridians deserve a big "Thumbs Up" and "Thank-you" from citizens across the country for passing the three-day, cooling-off period for handgun sales on Election Day.

Adoption of Amendment 2 will help stop the "cash-and-carry" sale of handguns which are used not only by criminals in Florida, but are trafficked into states like New York and New Jersey, which have tough gun laws.

If the Florida legislature had had the courage to stand up to the gun lobby, there would already be a seven-day cooling-off period on the books. The people of Florida did what the legislature refused to do: take action against gun violence. And they did so in a resounding way, approving the waiting period by an overwhelming 84 percent.

Unfortunately, the U.S. Congress adjourned last month without acting on a national cooling-off period for handgun sales. A September Gallup Poll found that 95 percent of Americans favor the Brady Bill, requiring a national, seven-day waiting period for handgun sales. Federal lawmakers should ignore the jingle of the gun lobby's cash register and instead heed the wishes of the public and follow Florida's lead in taking steps to reduce handgun violence.

Is Gulf consensus disintegrating?

Besides the United States, is there a democracy in the world that would prepare for war for more than three months before finally deciding to debate the enterprise?

Not Britain, Germany or Japan. Each of those countries has contributed far less than the United States to the allied effort in the Persian Gulf. Yet each has also enjoyed more free-wheeling discussion over the effort. The Japanese Prime Minister, Toshiki Kaifu, ran into a political chain saw when he proposed sending 1,000 or so non-combatant volunteers to the Gulf. You'd have thought the Imperial Army was about to march again. Unlike their American counterparts, Japanese opposition leaders didn't merely voice "concern." They shook down the rafters with their protests.

Here at home, the lock-step consensus in favor of Bush's Gulf policy has begun to break in the past few days — but only after the elections, naturally. Until then, the media and Congress seemed to compete in how loudly they could sing hosannas in praise of the president's strategy. Not a single congressional election reportedly turned on disagreement over our approaching military adventure. In most races, the issue hardly came up at all.

Many members of Congress, including several I've interviewed, wouldn't even admit to a view on military intervention before the elections.

They said they supported international sanctions and sending troops to the Gulf, but refused to say whether they also favored an eventual attack by the United States should sanctions fail. When pressed, these stout hearts uniformly explained, as if reading from a script, that they didn't want "to limit the president's options."

Odd, isn't it, how these politicians have no qualms about limiting the president's options in every other policy arena. Yet when American lives are at stake, suddenly they grow mute. Perhaps they need to review the Constitution. It explicitly gives Congress — and Congress alone — the power to declare war.

The performance of the press has been no less lackluster. Although the media pride themselves on their free-wheeling debates, they've spoken in almost one voice on our Gulf policy. With a few notable exceptions, they've simply assumed that U.S. vital interests were at stake, rather than examining the nature of those "interests." And to the extent that editorial writers and columnists have dissented from the administration line, it usually has been to question Bush's timetable, not his general policy. Many, for example, have pleaded with Bush to give sanctions more time to work. As dissents go, these are mere quibbles.

In recent days, fortunately, our sleepwalking Congress and media have awakened. The smell of gaspword on the horizon has concentrated their minds. Some members of Congress suddenly want to debate the Gulf policy, or even vote on the issue of war and peace. Newspapers are lining up in support of a vote, too.

Well and good, but where have they been for the past three months? What did they think Bush intended to do with the hundreds of thousands of troops he'd sent to Saudi lands? Where did they suppose the inflexible logic of the president's position — the invasion of Kuwait "will not stand" — led, if sanctions failed?

Toshiki Kaifu ran into a political chain saw when he proposed sending volunteers to the Gulf.

ISSUES THAT HIT HOME

Driving home the need to vote: answer to apathy is in the mail

By STEVE GERSTEL
United Press International

WASHINGTON — More than 13 years ago, the Flood Control District in Monterey, Calif., was faced with one of those special elections that excite only apathy. It seemed a waste to even set up polling booths.

So Monterey decided to hold the first all-mail vote under which a ballot is sent to every registered voter. The result was stunning.

The Flood Control District was inundated by 18,500 ballots, an increase of more than 50 percent over any previous election in that jurisdiction, and the election saved nearly $10,000.

Since then, jurisdictions in Oregon, New York, Kansas, Montana, Missouri, Washington, Nebraska — perhaps as many as 1,000 — have used the all-mail ballot, most in local, uncontested elections.

Now the General Accounting Office, in a report, has suggested that Congress consider mail voting, as well as other, more conventional methods, to reverse the deplorable voter turnout in the United States.

In the Nov. 6 general election only about 36 percent of all Americans eligible to vote bothered to cast ballots. That tied the record for the lowest turnout ever in off-year elections, set two years earlier.

Among the suggestions made by GAO, the congressional watchdog agency, is using toll-free numbers on each state by which the voter could request an official absentee or mail ballot and find out he or she is about to be purged from registration rolls; mailing pamphlets explaining propositions and referendums, conducting mock elections in high schools.

GAO has offered for Congress' consideration proposals to make registration automatic and also suggested setting registration deadlines closer to the day of the election. As many as 37 states might increase turnout by 5 percent or more by adopting election-day registration.

Although many members of Congress back changes to increase participation in elections, resistance to new methods have been strong. In 1989 the House approved the "motor voter" bill that would have required states to include a registration section in the application for a driver's license. That bill was killed in late September of this year when the Senate failed to crack a Republican filibuster 55-42, 5 short of the needed 60.

"Resistance to proposal for reform in this area appears to be broad and based to some extent on concerns for maintaining the security of elections from fraud and abuse, and possibly because there has been little public pressure for registration reform," the GAO said. "Resistance has also been noted in the case of elected officials who may seek to perpetuate the administrative ground rules by which they were elected."

The GAO said all-mail election would have the "most dramatic effect on turnout" — an analysis of data showed the range of increase between 20 and 40 percent — but acknowledged that the major concern is the possibility of fraud and abuse.

"But since conventional elections have not always been free of such problems, the important question is whether they are more likely to be encountered in all-mail elections than in conventional elections," GAO said.

The report said the one study conducted showed "little evidence" of fraud or abuse.

"However, that study was confined to local uncontested elections, usually on bond issues or referendums," GAO said. "It is not clear what level of fraud or abuse would exist if contested state and national elections were conducted by all-mail ballot."

GAO said there are three areas where fraud or abuse could occur: the forging of signatures; the completing and mailing of ballots sent to recently deceased; the paying or coercing of voters to fill out their ballots in a certain way.

The report acknowledged that if the stakes are higher or in areas where political corruption is rife, a "considerably lower level of integrity" might surface than in the mail elections studied.

In the Nov. 6 general election only about 36 percent of all Americans eligible to vote bothered to cast ballots. That tied the record for the lowest turnout ever in off-year elections, set two years earlier.

GSA chief takes a paid vacation

WASHINGTON — The head of the General Services Administration turned a one-day speech at a conference in Amsterdam into a 12-day grand tour of Europe for himself and five staffers, at taxpayers' expense.

GSA Administrator Richard Austin and his entourage spent more than $22,000 on the trip in late September. Among the travelers was a bodyguard who just happens to be the son of the Capitol Hill staff director for the House subcommittee that sets the GSA budget.

The GSA is the federal government's landlord and supply store — managing office buildings and doing out pencils. Apparently Austin thought he could learn something from touring castles in Dublin and meeting the queen's paper supplier in London.

In a memo to the White House in July to explain the need for the trip, Austin said he wanted to "foster improved relations ... and exchange information ... personally view GSA operations and discuss ... views on how well we are providing service." Austin's report of the trip strains to make it sound like business. He lectured the International Symposium on Office Accommodation in Amsterdam on the topic, "Office Accommodation Policy of the American Government." As scintillating as that sounds, it was not the highlight of the trip.

The delegation toured a palace in the Netherlands, the Dutch Parliament, a museum in Amsterdam, Dublin Castle and a National Park in Ireland, and U.S. military bases in England and Germany. In London they stayed in a four-star hotel where the rooms go for $200 plus a night. In London, Austin visited Her Majesty's Stationery Office. Why? Because, according to his report, the director of the office had visited the United States and Austin wanted to find out if "there were any outstanding issues for GSA." There weren't, the report says, but there's no harm in checking.

A GSA spokesman told us that each GSA administrator makes a similar trip to review the troops, but sources in the agency told our associate Dean Boyd the trip was "a sad waste of money."

If the trip alone was not enough to stir grumblings within GSA, the selection of James Gunnels as a security guard for the entourage did the trick. He is the son of Tex Gunnels, the staff director of the House subcommittee that doles out money to GSA.

James Gunnels is a criminal investigator with the Federal Protective Service stationed in Fort Worth, Texas. The service is within the GSA and its job is to provide security for federal buildings. There are some 200 Federal Protective Service agents in Washington that Austin could have taken, but a GSA spokesman told us James Gunnels was chosen "because he's one of the best."

We asked his father, Tex Gunnels, if his powerful position with the appropriations subcommittee could have had anything to do with the choice of his son for the European trip. "I don't see how the hell it could," Tex Gunnels told us, adding that his son was "ordered to go." It was a tough job, but somebody had to do it.

Exactly what the younger Gunnels did on the trip is not clear. Federal Protective Service officers can't carry guns overseas, but the GSA said it needed a security man to plan the trip because of overseas travel warnings posted by the State Department after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

There is a bright side to this story. Austin's wife joined the delegation in Ireland, but she paid her own way.

Apparently Austin thought he could learn something from touring castles in Dublin.

Eight charged with rape, fatal stabbing of mother

United Press International

BOSTON — Eight teenagers are being held for allegedly slaying a 26-year-old mother who was beaten with a tree limb, raped repeatedly and stabbed dozens of times in a park on Halloween night in what one police detective called an apparent case of "wilding."

Police rounded up and arrested the eight alleged gang members at about 6 a.m. Monday in Boston's Dorchester neighborhood after a two-week investigation into the death of Kimberly Harbour, 26, of Milton.

Harbour's beaten and stabbed body was found in Franklin Field, a park in Dorchester, in the early morning hours of Nov. 1. She was the mother of a 7-year-old girl.

"They beat her with a stick, stabbed her repeatedly," Boston Police Lt. Peter O'Malley said during one arraignment in Dorchester District Court. "More than one person stabbed her. More than one person raped her. ... One person jumped up and down on top of her."

Media reports quoted police sources as saying she had been stabbed about 100 times.

The eight, all alleged members of the Franklin Field Pistons gang, pleaded innocent during two separate arraignments to charges of murder, rape and robbery and were ordered held without bail.

Carlos Garcia, 18; Corey James, 19, and Che Bernes, 17, all of Dorchester, were scheduled to return to court for hearings Nov. 29.

The juveniles, including four from Dorchester and one from Malden, were scheduled to return to court Dec. 5.

Boston Police head homicide Detective Edward McNelley said it was one of the most heinous crimes he'd ever seen, reminiscent of the "wilding" gang-rape and beating of a Central Park jogger in New York in April 1989, a crime that shocked the nation because of its brutality and random nature.

"I don't know what 'wilding' is, but if you say, 'is it the same as what happened in New York?', I'd say there were a lot of similarities," McNelley said.

O'Malley said the suspects set out as a group late Oct. 31 "with the idea to rob females" and came upon Harbour and a companion, Laura Peterson. O'Malley said the suspects first took a set of keys from Peterson, but "threw" them at her and turned their attention to Harbour.

to us (as members of the public)," said Jeanne Morris, the District 5 representative, "but now it is our responsibility to get those answers."

An orientation session for the whole board was scheduled for yesterday morning to help acquaint the new members with the procedures they must follow and to help them prepare for the next four years of service.

"It's a lot of the housekeeping things we need to know," explained District 1 representative Sandy Robinson.

Following that session, the new members spent an hour or two with the assistant superintendent who would help them understand the items on the agenda on which they had questions.

"I had some questions on some of the change orders," Robinson said.

She said she was familiar with the bulk of work she would face as a school board member because she has attended countless meetings as a concerned parent and as a member of various school board committees.

She added that her experience as a member of the Lake Mary Planning and Zoning board will be to her advantage in that she was prepared for a bulky agenda package.

"It's a lot," she said, "but I expected it."

Kuhn said the agenda is one that "a person with reasonable intelligence and an ability to do

Jeanne Morris

Sandy Robinson

some detective work" would have no trouble understanding. Even so, she said she will ask a lot of questions.

"I have a lot of watchdogs out there making sure I do the right thing," she said.

Morris, who has been involved with the school board for about 15 years as a leader in the PTA and as a member of many board committees, said she looks forward to being on the board so she can get answers to things that were often passed without question.

"I used to sit and wonder how something was going to be accomplished or why it was done a particular way," she said. "Now I have access to those answers."

Each of the new board members said they have in place or are setting up additional sources of information to help them find solutions to dilemmas facing the board or to help them make informed decisions.

Kuhn said she has a list of business contacts who will help advise her. Morris said as a member of the PTA and other committees, she built up a long list of school and community resources she feels she can call on to help answer her questions. Robinson is currently setting up a pair of committees at the primary and secondary levels of teachers, administrators and parents from each school in the district who she hopes will be able to provide her with information from the school-level.

All the new board members said they are excited by their new responsibilities, and looked forward to serving on the board.

"I was expecting they'd go a little easy on us for the first meeting," Kuhn said, reflecting on the agenda. "I guess we'll have to get right to it."

Also at tonight's meeting the new board will decide on the day and times when their meetings should be held.

Last year, meetings were moved from Wednesdays to Tuesdays because most other school boards in the state meet in Tuesdays. Representatives from Seminole County often were disadvantaged at state meetings because they could not arrive until after a Wednesday meeting.

Traditionally, one school board meeting each month is held during the day and the other in the evening to accommodate citizens with various work schedules who wish to attend the meetings.

Seattle, Montreal are among world's most 'livable cities'

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Melbourne, Australia, along with Montreal and Seattle-Tacoma, Wash., are the world's most livable cities, according to a study released.

Those three locations are closely followed by Atlanta and Essen-Dortmund-Duisburg, Germany.

Monday's study, "Cities: Life in the World's 100 Largest Metropolitan Areas," by the Population Crisis Committee, also found the five largest cities with the worst living conditions are Lagos, Nigeria; Kinshasa, Zaire; Kanpur, India; Dhaka, Bangladesh and Recife, Brazil.

In the study, the committee ranked 100 metropolitan areas in 45 nations and used 10 indicators to come up with its score — murder rate, food expense, living space, access to utilities, communications, education, infant mortality, air quality, noise pollution and traffic congestion.

"More than half the world's 100 largest cities are faced with astronomical population growth and, for many, their ability to cope is already overwhelmed," said Sharon Camp, senior vice president of PCC.

"It is nearly impossible for these sprawling metropolitan areas — many located in the world's poorest countries — to keep pace with the need for transportation, sanitation, utilities, schools and hospitals, as long as their populations double every 12 to 20 years," she added.

According to Camp, the statistical snapshot demonstrates that for developing countries, curbing overall population growth will have a significant and positive impact on the quality of future urban life.

Hypocritical Rascals Out" movement and defeated two challengers in a primary and runoff. He faced no Democratic challengers. Sturm fostered an environmental protectionist stance, winning a key endorsement from the Sierra Club, which overshadowed his endorsement from the pro-builder Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida.

Furlong squeaked out a narrow one percent win over Republican Sandra Glenn, the first woman elected to the commission and the first woman to serve as its chairman. Furlong ran on a strong controlled-growth plank, calling for new residential construction to keep pace with new schools. Glenn balked at the school proposal and said population growth has been managed correctly.

Furlong has arrived at a centralist position between commissioners Jennifer Kelley and Pat Warren and commissioners Sturm and Fred Streetman. The two-commissioner coalitions have often formed on key votes such as the forced resignation of former county manager Ken Hooper, leaving Glenn as the swing vote.

The first key vote the commission took today was election of a new commission chairman. Sturm nominated Streetman, an commissioner voted unanimously to approve his nomination.

The next key vote which did not arise today is the selection of a growing interest in offering the job to Hooper after more than a year of failed attempts to entice a new county executive to the oft-divided commission. Sturm and Streetman have supported Hooper since his resignation and have said they would support his return.

Furlong said he would vote for rehiring Hooper if at least three other commissioners vote for him.

Warren said she has spoken with Hooper about returning to the position and said she has been contacted by Hugh Harling, engineer and her 1988 campaign manager, on Hooper's behalf. Warren faces a possible District 1 commission challenge from Hooper in 1992 and said Hooper referred to the elimination of that challenge with his ap-

Warren would not say whether she would support rehiring Hooper, but she did say this morning, "I don't want to hurt Ken. I'm just hoping I won't have to say anything negative today."

Kelley said she would not support Hooper's appointment. Hooper did not return calls.

tion's efforts.

The survey found that almost 90 percent of the shoppers agreed that Salvation Army kettles add to the holiday spirit, and 97 percent felt that the money collected by the Salvation Army was put to good use.

Most of the shoppers surveyed at a mall that did not allow Salvation Army kettles on the premises felt that donating to a Salvation Army kettle actually put them in a better frame of mind for shopping.

Many shopping malls whose holiday plans traditionally include the Salvation Army's presence reported increased traffic in their places of business, said Clark, Martire & Bartolomeo, which conducted the survey.

All funds received in the Salvation Army's traditional Christmas campaign go directly to the needy, said Lt. Col. Leon Ferraz, spokesman for the Salvation Army's national headquarters in Verona, N.J.

Last year's donations enabled the Salvation Army to provide food, clothing, shelter, companionship, gifts and visitations to more than 6 million needy people across the country. This year, the number of people needing help is expected to be even higher, he said.

By the time local Salvation Army personnel called it a day yesterday, they had a total of nine kettles placed in strategic areas around the area.

Most of the kettles are located at shopping centers where the largest number of passers by will be doing their holiday shopping.

The campaign to raise money for the needy, will continue through Dec. 23.

Although the nationwide Salvation Army Kettle drive officially began last Friday, many cities started their individual drives as of yesterday. The aim was to have all kettles in place before the upcoming weekend after Thanksgiving which is traditionally the heaviest shopping weekend of the entire year as people begin their holiday gift buying.

supervision provides its own special challenge to policymakers precisely because it appears to be spontaneous," the authors said.

In another part of the survey, parents of 18 children were asked to prearrange a 15-minute block of time when their children normally would be home alone. Children's responses were monitored when a telephone caller asked to speak with their mother and when a delivery person knocked on the door.

Only two of the 18 children performed appropriately on the telephone simulation. The optimum response was that their mother could not come to the phone and that they would like to take a message. At no point should the child give their name.

None of the children handled the package delivery portion effectively, with 13 opening the door and taking the package. The optimum response was for the child to go to the door, ask who is there without opening the door, and then ask the deliveryman to leave the package by the door.

The authors say the survey's results emphasize the need for more study into "the thinking of parents and their children, the resources available to them, and the process by which so many families come to leave very young children without supervision and without adequate training to minimize risk."

U.S. war veterans build clinic in Vietnam

BANGKOK, Thailand — A group of American veterans of the Vietnam War is building a clinic in a village pounded by American warplanes in the "Christmas bombings" of 1972, the official Vietnam News Agency said.

"American Vietnam veterans are helping the Vietnamese people heal war wounds by building clinics for them," said the news agency in a dispatch dated Sunday.

The agency said nine American veterans were working with Vietnamese villagers to build the 10-room clinic at Yen Vien, 6 miles east of Hanoi.

It said the village "was razed by U.S. carpet bombing in late December 1972" when then president Richard Nixon ordered expanded bombing in an effort to force North Vietnam to sign a peace agreement.

South African mine accident kills four

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Earth tremors at two gold mines have killed six workers and left six missing thousands of feet underground, mine officials said Monday.

A tremor measuring 1.67 on the Richter scale caved in a shaft at the Western Deep Levels mine early Monday, killing three men and leaving six others missing, parent company Anglo American Corp. said.

Rescuers were searching for the six, an Anglo spokesman said.

The accident at the mine west of Johannesburg took place some 11,500 feet below the surface, the spokesman said.

Three men died 6,900 feet underground at the Buffelsfontein mine in the central town of Klerksdorp Saturday after a tremor measuring 3.2 shook loose tons of earth, mine owner Genmin said.

Milli Vanilli stripped of Grammy

LOS ANGELES — With the photogenic if not phonographic pop-singing duo Milli Vanilli stripped of the Grammy it won without singing a note of their mega-hit album "Girl You Know It's True," the music business is in something of a tizzy.

Milli's award as Best New Artist of 1989 was rescinded Monday by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences' national board of trustees, the first time such a thing has happened in the 33-year history of the Grammys.

Academy President Michael Greene said the ruling to rescind Milli Vanilli's award had been taken "regretfully."

Leukemia victim dies

HOFFMAN ESTATES, Ill. — Jean-Pierre Boaze, the Hoffman Estates leukemia victim whose father tried to force a bone marrow transplant from the youth's half-siblings, has died, an attorney for the family said.

Jean-Pierre, 13, died at home Monday with his father, Tamas, mother and several nurses in at his bedside, said Attorney Edward Jordan.

He was admitted last week to Lutheran General Hospital but was sent home to die Thursday, Jordan said. "He went peacefully. He was a great kid. He was a really sweet kid. He didn't want to die," said Jordan.

Scientists seek AIDS spending limit

BETHESDA, Md. — The National Institutes of Health should devote no more than about 10 percent of its overall budget to AIDS, the head of the government's AIDS research effort said.

Dr. Anthony Fauci, director of the NIH's Office of AIDS Research, said Monday that the NIH currently spends about one-tenth of its budget on AIDS and should not spend substantially more. "I'd be very concerned to have the AIDS budget above 10 percent" of the NIH total, Fauci told an NIH advisory panel. "You could have an encroachment on other programs" like those involving heart disease or cancer.

Iraq to send more troops to Kuwait

By GAYLE YOUNG
United Press International

CAIRO, Egypt — Iraq said Monday it would send more than 250,000 additional troops to Kuwait in anticipation of a possible attack from the U.S.-led multinational force in the Persian Gulf.

The official Iraqi news agency INA reported the decision was made during a meeting of the general command of the Iraqi armed forces presided over by President Saddam Hussein.

"During the meeting it was decided to mass immediately an additional seven divisions (of about 20,000 men each) and call in more than 150,000 reserves," INA quoted an official statement as saying. "Therefore we are adding to our strength in Kuwait more than quarter of a million fighters to keep our superiority, which is unquestionable."

According to American estimates, there are about 400,000 Iraqi troops already in the occupied emirate, which Iraq invaded Aug. 2. Iraq is estimated to have 1 million troops in its regular army and another 500,000 men in the reserves.

The United States has deployed over 230,000 troops to Saudi Arabia and plans to deploy another 100,000 in the coming weeks.

President George Bush, meeting world leaders during a historic treaty summit and Paris, said Monday there was "no room for compromise" with Saddam and dismissed an Iraqi offer to free thousands of foreign hostages held in Iraq and occupied Kuwait beginning on Christmas Day.

Bush, in Paris to officially end the Cold War with the signing of the Conventional Forces in Europe Treaty, called the surprise Iraqi announcement a "cynical ploy" and joined British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in demanding the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of Iraq's invasion forces from Kuwait.

The U.S. dominates a multi-national force of nearly a half-million troops in the Persian Gulf area to discourage Iraq from expanding its Aug. 2 invasion and annexation of Kuwait to other nations, especially the Saudi Arabian oil fields.

Thatcher said after a breakfast meeting with Bush at the U.S. Embassy that Saddam's "evil has to be stopped" and vowed "either he withdraws or the military option has to be used."

Iraq's information minister condemned the two leaders for the statements, counter-charging the U.S.-dominated military buildup in the Persian Gulf is a Western ploy to dominate oil resources in the region.

Meanwhile, a chartered Iraqi airliner with 76 Americans, 12 Britons and 22 other former hostages arrived in London early Monday from Kuwait on a flight delayed by an emergency stop in Athens for repairs, Cairo radio said.

Bush, Gorbachev split on gulf

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

PARIS — President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev have reached a "conceptual agreement" on the possible use of force in the Persian Gulf, but it appeared Gorbachev was not embracing the option as strongly as Bush would like.

The two leaders, who met Monday at a multi-nation arms conference, continued their touchy talks on the subject of using force to oust Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

"There are still people we need to talk to (that) they want to talk to — so we simply have not reached the point of decision yet," White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said after a dinner meeting between two leaders.

Fitzwater said Bush did not specifically ask the Soviet president, who urged "patience" earlier in the day, whether he would support a U.N. resolution authorizing a possible military attack against Iraqi President Hussein's announcement demonstrates his disinterest in a peaceful response. He is thumbing his nose at the U.N.

— Marlin Fitzwater

Saddam Hussein. Instead, he said, they discussed under what circumstances one might be sought.

Initially, Bush and Gorbachev were to hold a news conference. But amid mounting signs of disagreement on the issue of force, Fitzwater and his Soviet counterpart briefed reporters instead.

"I would say that we have a conceptual agreement that force cannot be ruled out," said Fitzwater. "We must be very firm in knowing what course we want to take before taking any further action."

The press secretary denounced as a "treacherous course" Iraq's announcement earlier in the day that it was sending another 250,000 troops into Kuwait, which would raise the figure to about 650,000.

"Saddam Hussein's announcement ... only demonstrates his disinterest in a peaceful response.... He is thumbing his nose at the U.N.," the press secretary said. "We must keep the pressure on."

In recent weeks, Secretary of State James Baker has traveled the world, seeking to drum up support for possible military force against Saddam, who has thus far refused to bend under a 3-month-old U.N.-mandated economic embargo.

But Baker has been met by resistance, particularly by the Soviet Union, which is holding out hope for a negotiated settlement to Iraq's Aug. 3 takeover of Kuwait.

Bush is on an eight-day trip to Europe and the Middle East that will take him to the Persian Gulf on Thanksgiving Day for a holiday celebration with the troops.

Arms treaty launches European summit

By CHARLES GOLDSMITH
United Press International

PARIS — Leaders of 22 NATO and Warsaw Pact nations signed a massive conventional arms treaty Monday, ending a four-decade era of Cold War tension by eliminating the risk of surprise attack in Europe.

The treaty-signing launched a 34-nation summit of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, a three-day meeting ushering in a new age of East-West harmony just a year after the dramatic fall of the Berlin Wall.

The Charter of Paris for a New Europe, declaring "a new era of democracy, peace and unity," is to be signed Wednesday at the summit's formal conclusion.

"We're putting an end to the previous age," French President Francois Mitterrand said moments before the 110-page Conventional Forces in Europe pact was signed by 22 heads of state in a chandelied conference room at the Elysee Palace.

Only a few hours later, Soviet President Mikhail

Gorbachev called for further arms talks on reducing short-range nuclear weapons and naval-based armaments, in addition to sharp curbs on military manpower throughout Europe.

The CFE treaty sets strict ceilings on tanks, artillery, combat vehicles and aircraft and establishes detailed rules on verification and troop monitoring to provide months of warning for a possible military offensive.

"The opportunity for a surprise attack is gone," said British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

The leaders also signed three other documents relating to the CFE treaty, including a declaration that the 16 NATO nations and six countries of the Warsaw Pact "are no longer adversaries, will build new partnerships and extend to each other the hand of friendship."

The historic CSCE summit is being compared to the legendary Congress of Vienna in 1815, where storied names like Metternich, Wellington and Talleyrand redrew the map of Europe following Napoleon's defeat.

Mitterrand said the 1990 summit is in many ways even more majestic.

Middle East Christians fear war

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Middle East Christians, a segment of unheard voices in the Persian Gulf showdown between President Bush and President Saddam Hussein, fear the crisis could threaten their very existence, the head of the Middle East Council of Churches said Monday.

"There is the fear the radical geo-political changes (of the crisis) would put into question the very presence of the church and the contributions of the churches to their societies," said Gabriel Habib, general secretary of the Middle East Council of Churches.

But it is not just the threat of war but also the long-term consequences of the U.S.-European buildup and military presence in the region that threaten the churches, especially if they are again regarded as tools of a renewed Western colonialism.

At the same time, Habib said in an interview with United Press International, the crisis is distracting from other Mideast problems — notably in Lebanon and the Israeli-Palestinian conflict — that are equally likely to erupt in war.

Habib is in Washington meeting with administration officials, congressional leaders and church representatives in an effort to provide another perspective on the mounting threat of war in the Middle East.

Abortion pill ban prompts criticism from researchers, doctors, lawmaker

By ROB STEIN
UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON — Promising medical research into a disease ranging from breast cancer to AIDS is suffering because of a government ban on the French abortion pill in the United States, doctors and a congressman charged.

Medical researchers and Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., sharply criticized the Food and Drug Administration during a contentious three-hour hearing Monday on the status of the controversial drug RU 486.

"In the name of taking some kind of symbolic action ... critical medical research is being derailed," Wyden said. "Americans are going to suffer needlessly due to this position. I think it's very irresponsible."

FDA officials defended their decision to issue an alert that RU 486 could not be brought into the country for personal use because it can cause serious side effects like bleeding and may be used without a doctor's supervision.

"The import alert was to try to protect individual citizens in this country," said Ronald Chesemore, the FDA's associate commissioner for regulatory affairs. The alert, similar to that previously issued for nearly 60 other drugs, placed no limitations on importing the drug for research, he said.

RU 486 has been shown to be safe and effective for inducing abortions early in a pregnancy, allowing women to avoid surgical procedures. The drug has been made available for that use in France and other countries.

But the drug has not been approved in the United States. The drug's manufacturer, Roussel-Uclaf of Paris, has no plans to seek approval, in part because of strong opposition from anti-abortionists.

The FDA does, however, make exceptions in rare cases for individuals to bring small quantities of unapproved drugs into the country for their own use. But in June 1989 the agency issued an "import alert" announcing RU 486 would not be permitted in that way because of concerns over "safety of the user."

Wyden charged that the move was spurred by pressure from anti-abortionists and "sent a message around the world" that could discourage Roussel-Uclaf from making the drug available, even for testing for non-abortion uses.

If RU 486 was not also effective for inducing abortions, it would be considered "a major medical breakthrough," said Dr. William Regelson.

Excavation pit collapses near White House

By DAVID CRAIG
United Press International

WASHINGTON — A giant excavation pit next to a subway station four blocks from the White House collapsed in a roar of earth, sparks and steel Monday night, prompting the evacuation of several office buildings and a six-hour search for possible victims.

No injuries were reported and authorities called off their search at about 2:30 a.m. EST Tuesday, saying they were reasonably certain no one was trapped in the rubble.

The walls of the 50-foot-deep construction pit, which took up a quarter of a city block, gave way at about 8:15 p.m. EST, Monday at the corner of 14th and H streets, NW, just behind the world headquarters of United Press International.

"It was like an earthquake! It was unbelievable!" said Arnel Morris, a pedestrian who was crossing the street when the collapse occurred.

"Everything, the sidewalk, the trees, fell into the hole."

The cave-in also swallowed three construction trailers, a large crane and much of the alley separating the excavation site from the UPI building.

Bystanders said the collapse was accompanied by an explosive roar and hail of sparks, flames and smoke that shot out of the pit for several minutes. Fire officials said the fireworks apparently were caused by a short-circuiting electrical transformer at the site.

"It was real scary because it looked like something could blow up any second," one passerby said.

Another witness reported hearing a person scream for help.

Mayor Marion Barry stopped by the scene about four hours after the accident and peered into the hole.

Seminole wins playoff

Advances to regionals Friday night

Seminole's defense, led by Darius Johnson (making hit), Andrea Jones (76) and Richard Paterson (48), stopped Leesburg runner Bryant Reed cold on two straight carries and went on to complete a two-game sweep of and win the Class 4A-District 7 playoffs at Orlando-Evans' Double E Stadium Monday afternoon. Seminole will advance to the regional game at Tarpon Springs Friday night starting at 7:30 p.m.

PINE HILLS — Seminole High School finally showed the domination that everyone has been looking for this season and as a result the Fighting Seminoles took home their third district title in four years by defeating both Edgewater and Leesburg in the Kansas tie-breaker at Double E Stadium Monday afternoon.

It took two series but Seminole stopped Edgewater 10-7 and then eliminated Leesburg 7-0 to advance to Friday's Regional showdown with Tarpon Springs. The game will be held at Tarpon Springs starting at 7:30 p.m.

"We showed we belong in the playoffs today," said Seminole coach Emory Blake. "We kind of slumped around late in the season and let some games get away. But I told the kids if we aren't capable of coming down here and running 8-12-16 plays and winning we didn't belong in the playoffs anyway."

Seminole was an example of offensive efficiency on this day as they ran three offensive plays and scored 17 points. And the defense did its part too holding its opponents to only seven yards on nine plays.

SANFORD HERALD PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Haney turns in another gem in upset

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald sports writer

Last Saturday Lake Mary coach Doug Peters called his team's upset of Seminole a total team effort. But one Ram stood head and shoulders above the rest and led his team to a 24-21 victory, a .500 season record and a berth in the Rotary Bowl.

Senior running back Chris Haney rushed for 169 yards, caught two passes for 28 yards and scored all three of his team's touchdowns. For his performance Haney has been named the Sanford Herald Player of the Week for a second time.

Haney's efforts pushed him over the 1,000-yard mark in rushing for the season. He has rushed for 1,110 yards on 173 carries and scored 11 touchdowns. He has also caught 184 yards worth of passes and another touchdown.

Other players considered for Player of the Week honors were Seminole's Kerry Wiggins and Henry Williams, Lyman's Bobby Washington and Lake Brantley's Daryl Bush and David Sprinkle.

From staff reports

Both of Seminole Community College's basketball teams will be looking to break losing streaks when they take to the hardwood tonight.

The women, losers of two straight, will look to get healthy against a perennially strong Indian River Community College team. Coach Beana's team lost two close games in their tournament last week and have shown signs that they are ready to be a good basketball team.

Tina Lester and Teresa Martin have been doing the job in the paint, while guards Michelle Kumpf and Brandie Groves have been running the show.

The game will be played at SCC's Health and Physical Education Center starting at 7 p.m. and as always admission is free.

The men, meanwhile, will be finishing a tough three-game road trip when they travel to Avon Park to take on South Florida Community College. [See SCC, Page 2B]

"When I announced the starting offense unit and Henry's name was in it you could feel some of the players saying he hurt us last week with fumbles, why is he in," said Blake. "But he is such a great athlete and is fast, you can't beat speed."

STATS & STANDINGS

On Leeburg's first play a handoff to fullback Bryant Reed was stuffed for a two-yard loss by Darius Johnson, Carlo White and Brown. Second down was not much better as Brown, Henderson and Tommy Hampton combined to stop Reed for a one-yard loss.

With things getting desperate Leeburg took to long coming out of the huddle and was nailed with a delay of game penalty. Now it was third and goal from the 18.

On third down Henderson swatted away a pass into the end zone and it all came down to one play. The Yellow Jackets again tried to pass but Brown and Richard Peterson forced a hurried throw that only Henderson got close to and Seminole had defended its district title.

"I felt the coaching staff did a great job getting our kids prepared," said Blake. "We were ready for anything that they could have thrown at us today. Saturday after we lost the homecoming game we went right back on the field and worked on plays for 45-minutes. We couldn't let them think about the losses, we had a district to win."

Despite the win Blake still was not enamored with the playoff system. "I still don't like tie-breakers," said Blake. "I would rather have been home practicing but it didn't work out that way. I told the kids we just needed a little medicine to get better. Today we got that medicine."

IN BRIEF

Bed-ridden can visit friends, family
 The American Medical Transport emergency medical services and ambulance transportation company will donate transportation on Thanksgiving Day to bed-ridden patients who have no other means of visiting the homes of friends or family members for the holiday. AMT will provide the ambulance transportation to individuals in selected area long-term care facilities.  AMT is offering its "Home for the Holidays" program in the holiday spirit of Thanksgiving and companionship, according to Dayna Maradei, public information manager for AMT.
 For five years AMT has provided exclusive emergency ambulance transportation to Seminole County. AMT operates five advanced life support units, all staffed with paramedics in the Seminole County area.
 For more information, call Dayna Maradei at 298-8700.

Happy mom finds adopted son

DEAR ABBY: This concerns "Closed Chapter," who wants to close the book on her past. I know what she went through because 32 years ago, when I was 16, I also had a child out of wedlock and gave him up because I wanted him to have a better life than I could provide for him.
 I beg "Closed Chapter" to at least contact the adoption agency and give them her medical history. She need not disclose her present whereabouts, but she should give them some information about her family, and the family of her child's natural father. (It might not be anything to brag about, but at least the child will know something about his or her birth parents.)
 Abby, four months ago, I located my son living in another city. I wasn't sure he would want to see me, so I had him contacted through a third party. He telephoned me immediately, and when he said, "Hello, Mother," I couldn't hold back the tears.

 He asked how soon we could meet, and did I want to come to him or should he come to me? I decided to go to him. Abby, he's tall, handsome and well-mannered. He is married to a beautiful woman and they have a lovely daughter.

Last month, he flew here to meet my husband and his half-brothers and sisters, and they all got along beautifully.
 I realize that not all reunions turn out as well as mine did, but the point I want to make is this: There should be no secrets. Adopted children should have the chance to meet their birth parents if they so choose.
ONE OF THE LUCKY ONES
 Adopted children should have the chance to meet their biological parents if they wish to, but I wonder how many people are aware that adopted children and biological parents can register with International Soundex Reunion Registry, P.O. Box 2312, Carson City, Nev. 89702. The children must be of legal age (legal age varies from state to state).

Chest spasm calls for stress test

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 57-year-old male in reasonably good health. Prior to 1987, I exercised regularly, jogging five to seven miles a week. Now other demands have taken priority, and exercise is not regular. While trying to jog recently, I felt a spasm in the middle of my chest that has repeated on many occasions. Then I began having indigestion at night. My doctor did an EKG, brief exam and drew blood. He says it is not my heart. What could be the cause of the spasm and indigestion?

DEAR READER: You could be experiencing angina, cardiac-muscle spasm from inadequate oxygen supply to the heart, caused by arteriosclerotic plaque in your coronary arteries. I am not as confident as your doctor is that your "indigestion" comes from other sources. An examination, resting cardiogram and blood tests are not enough, in my opinion, to reach that conclusion.

First of all, you are a middle-aged male. In our society, this places you at risk for heart disease. This risk is accentuated if you are diabetic, overweight, sedentary, a smoker, have a high cholesterol level or a family history of heart disease.

Second, coronary artery disease may not be evident on a standard cardiogram, taken when you are lying down. In my view, you need a stress test, during which you have a cardiogram while exercising. Such a test may give unequivocal evidence of oxygen deficiency while your heart is working harder. You should insist on a stress test.

Third, if you are having anginal pain while jogging or at night, you are in definite danger of a heart attack. The angina may be a warning you should not ignore. Stop exercising until the doctor tests you further and, if necessary, prescribes medicines, such as nitrates.

I hope your doctor is correct and that your stress test is normal. If so, you'll want to investigate your symptoms by directing attention to your intestinal tract. The pain of gastritis, peptic ulcer and acid reflux can mimic angina. Therefore, an upper gastrointestinal X-ray (GI series) may be in order.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
In yesterday's deal declarer was lazy, missing a chance for a safety play to make a doubled contract. Today we see a defender exhibiting the same laziness. Forget the fact that East-West can make three clubs. Neither defender felt like entering the bidding, and neither can be blamed. Against two spades, West had a tough opening-lead decision. He did not want to lead trumps away from the king, and both red suits had been bid by the opponents. So he decided on a club. For whatever reason, he led the three-spot. The deuce was played from dummy, and East, not thinking it possible that West had underled the ace, lazily played the eight of clubs. Declarer gratefully won the queen and eventually made nine tricks. Look what might happen if East had the strength to put up the club king at trick one. He should then lead back a low heart. Presumably declarer would play low, and West would take the queen. West would play back a heart to East's ace, and now East would shoot back a club. West would win the ace and play a third heart, ruffed by East. That's five tricks in, and West would still make the king of spades. Readers, take heart! If East, an experienced professional player, could be as careless as this, all of us should reduce our reliance over errors and think positively about avoiding mistakes in the future. HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Nov. 21, 1990
Before moving on to new endeavors in the year ahead, make the ones in which you're presently involved pay off first. You're much closer to the winner's circle than you realize.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) People with whom you're involved today will appreciate the fact that you are not one who makes idle promises. They'll believe you when you say you are going to do something. Scorpio, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your probabilities for material gains look encouraging today, either through your own efforts or from some type of unusual arrangement put into motion by another.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) To thoroughly enjoy your friends today you must first take them at face value. The pleasure of these associations will be diluted if you start looking for motives behind their behavior.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Two good deeds you have recently done for others could be coming home to roost today. In both cases the returns may be in excess of your considerate investment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You have a gift today for being able to effectively adapt things you have learned from others to your present needs. Fortunately, what produced good results for them should work equally as well for you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your possibilities for achieving two important objectives today look good. Your initiative and determination will be supplemented by strong support from effective allies.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Without discounting your present concerns, also strive to look ahead a bit. Consideration given now to future plans could later prove to your advantage.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Material trends are shifting in your favor today but you'll still have to work hard for everything you hope to get. If you sense improvements, don't slack off. Instead dig in and drive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) No one likes to make difficult decisions that could negatively reflect on someone with whom we're associated. Today, however, failing to protect your interest could prove foolish.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're not apt to take much satisfaction today in doing things that come easy, but, conversely, you will take great pride in overcoming challenging complications.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Several hats may be required in order to cope with today's developments. Fortunately, when conditions warrant it you'll be easy to get along with, yet you can also be serious when necessary.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There are indications you should be able to profit today from a situation you think is of little worth. After you make your score, it will contribute to your reputation as a financial whiz. (C)1990, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Lorenzo predicts five airline failures

By BRIAN ROONEY
UPI Business Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Unless the federal government acts soon to lower jet fuel prices, four or five U.S. airlines could go out of business, some within six months, former Texas Air Corp. chairman Frank Lorenzo said Monday.

While not naming the specific carriers he thought in danger, Lorenzo said the airline industry was in a "competitive crisis" caused by a combination of higher fuel costs, "flawed" deregulation and a lack of access to foreign capital.

"If the current environment continues without any government response, four or five U.S. airlines will disappear, some perhaps falling within six months," Lorenzo told the Commonwealth Club of California in a speech broadcast over more than 200 public radio stations. "That means American travelers could be left with just three or four major carriers in three years."

To alleviate the effect of higher fuel prices, which have more than doubled since last July, President Bush should release a portion of the nation's Strategic Petroleum Reserve to airlines at below-market prices, Lorenzo said.

He also recommended Congress eliminate the law prohibiting foreign ownership of more than 25 percent of a U.S. airline, which he said deprives weaker airlines of a critical source of funding.

"If the Dutch can own one of our principal oil companies, Shell, why can't they own the Trump Shuttle?" Lorenzo asked. "It makes no sense."

Lorenzo's speech was a rare public appearance by the controversial airline executive, who resigned this summer as chief executive officer of Continental Airline Holdings Inc., the successor to Texas Air. He sold his interest in the company, which owns both Continental and Eastern airlines, to Scandinavian Airlines.

Lorenzo became a scourge of organized labor in 1983, when he took Continental into bankruptcy as a means of bringing the carrier's labor costs down.

Processor recalls frankfurters

United Press International

WASHINGTON — A Chicago food processor is voluntarily recalling 10,000 pounds of beef frankfurters and 1,400 pounds of deli beef franks because they may contain a illness-causing bacteria, the government said Monday.

The recall by David Berg & Co. applies to 10,000 pounds of bulk-packed "David Berg Beef Frankfurters" and 1,400 pounds of "David Berg Deli Beef Franks."

The bulk-packed frankfurters were distributed in California, Illinois, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Texas. The franks were distributed to grocery stores and supermarkets in the Chicago area.

The Food Safety Inspection Service said the product may contain the bacteria that can cause listeriosis, a rare but potentially serious disease. The problem was discovered during routine testing.

"And We Do Windows!"

Let us introduce ourselves! We are the Neat and Tidy Cleaning Service crew, and we want to serve you!

We feel sensible rates and quality service is the best combination of a service-oriented business, such as ours, and we want you to be the benefactor of the philosophy!

We would like to contact you in the near future to review with you personally the services we offer. We offer such a wide range of services, we feel we can meet the needs of every cleaning situation.

Our staff manager Ruby Payne is a dedicated Christian who specializes in immaculate house cleaning. In a matter of 2 1/2 to 3 hours, our mini-staff, (we have 3 crews) will come into your home and deep clean it to your total satisfaction, guaranteed.

After the initial deep cleaning, our standard residential cleaning ranges in price from $40.00 to $55.00 depending on the size of the house. The weekly, bi-weekly or monthly cleaning includes total vacuum, mop and wax (if needed) all floors, dust and wax all furniture, total kitchen package including cleaning stove, refrigerator, microwave, wipe down all cabinets and polish, clean all appliances and wipe all counters. Bathrooms include total clean, mop and wax floors, clean all mirrors, wipe down tiles and shower doors. Star Richie is staff supervisor, and Mike Stroum does the carpet cleaning.

We will also change linens, towels and make beds, clean ceiling fans and clean window sills. And...we do windows! Inside and out and screens included. You should see what a beautiful, bright difference clean windows make.

Office packages are available with small offices starting at $20.00.

Under the same roof we can also handle the heavier end of house and home upkeep.

We have one crew that handles minor home repair, painting, plumbing, carpentry and wallpaper.

Imagine the convenience and the peace of mind that comes with being able to trust all your house care needs with a reliable company that you see on a weekly or bi-weekly basis. You will know that if you are not happy with any part of our work that you will be able to contact us and get the job done right.

No job is too large or too small; hang a fan, fix a fence, have new vinyl flooring installed, we can do it all.

We are licensed and bonded for your peace of mind. We supply all cleaning materials and equipment.

We cater to the working person; we know how valuable your time is. If you have any immediate or future cleaning needs, please do not hesitate to contact us at 321-7699.

Let Neat & Tidy All-Clean Service be your Christmas Angel.

John and Helen Malloy have your ticket to a world of ceramics at 2764 Navigator Avenue, Sanford. Come by and see them or call 322-8138.

Discover a New World of Ceramics at Clay Creations Ceramics.

Take a short trip to the Sanford Airport, but don't get on a plane. Find your way to 2764 Navigator Avenue, and discover Clay Creations Ceramics.

Open to the public now for 3 years, Clay Creations Ceramics has more than 15,000 molds and 2,000 pieces of poured greenware to choose from. You won't need to pack a bag or make arrangements for overnight accommodations, but do allow yourself some time to look around this spacious shop.

There's greenware on the shelves, greenware on the walls, greenware everywhere, most of it poured by Helen Malloy herself, Helen, and her husband John, own and operate Clay Creations. The Malloy's have been residents of Sanford for the past 25 years and have six children ranging in age from 6 to 27 years old. While John has just started learning to pour, Helen, a twenty year veteran of ceramics, has been pouring for 10 years and taught herself almost everything she knows about ceramics. One of the most difficult, and lovely pieces she pours is a delicate ballerina.

You can find almost any kind of greenware piece at Clay Creations, from utility pieces such as pasta bowls, egg plates, corn holders, casseroles and cannister sets, to antique dresser sets, a three foot decorative horse, table pedestal, clocks and a Southern Belle. Clay Creations also has many bisque items. If you are looking for an odd ball piece, Clay Creations is the place to look.

You will also discover good prices at Clay Creations. Anyone who knows ceramics knows that buying greenware also means that eventually you are going to have to pay for firing. The lower the price on your greenware means the lower the cost of firing. Clay Creations only charges 50% of the already low greenware price for firing. For the first twenty customers who bring in this advertisement, Clay Creations will give you a free greenware piece for each $20 order. This piece will be shop choice, a $5 plus value, limit one per customer and will expire December 1. So if you are looking for something different, look no further than Clay Creations Ceramics.
