Anti-crime forces meet, solidify plans

By LACY BOWEN

SANFORD — Georgetown resident William Spurling wants to keep criminals moving — out of Sanford. Spurling is the police liaison for Concerned Organized Men in Action (COMA). He met yesterday with Police Chief Steve Harriett. Lt. Mike Rotundo, Commissioner Lon Howell and Downtown Neighborhood Watch Chairman Liz Williams to begin forging guidelines and operating procedures for Old Sanford Neighborhood Mobile Watch. That is a pilot program of citizen involvement in the apprehension of criminals in the historic downtown area, including Georgetown.

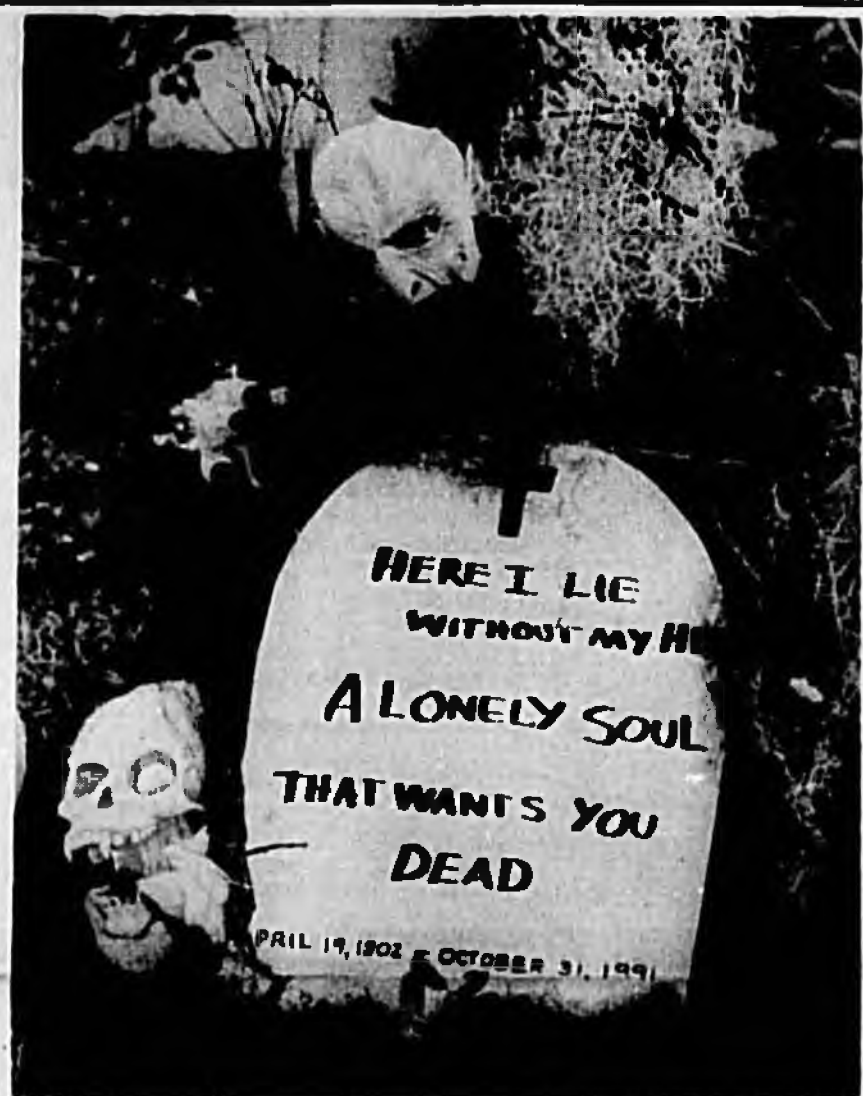

Sanford's new spirit: See Editorial Page 4A

"If the citizens get in and help the police by observing and calling in what they see, then it will help keep the criminals on the go. They'll see the patrol and they won't be able to sell their drugs; they'll move on," Spurling explained. Harriett said interest in the patrol has heightened since the concept was announced earlier this week. It involves two citizens traveling in a marked vehicle manned with police radios, who report suspicious activity in the area. Police dispatch officers to handle the problem. "It has stimulated interest. We're getting more call-ins and not just downtown. Other areas are getting involved," he said. Spurling said his group, formed barely three weeks ago, already has begun to work with many factions of the community, from teens to senior

Trick or Treat tonight

Trick or treaters will be filling the streets of neighborhoods all over Seminole County tonight. While law enforcement officials are recommending that the little ghosts and goblins make their door-to-door candy expeditions before the sun sets, most expect that the little ones will adhere to tradition and set out after dark. Police patrols will be stepped up when the sun goes down to try to ensure the safety of the children by cutting down on the number of speeders.

Chiles to press for reforms in special session

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The government reform Gov. Lawton Chiles has sought before proposing tax reform will likely be part of a special session needed to balance the $29 billion state budget, administration officials said.

"It'll be ready," said Lt. Gov. Buddy Mackay. "We think the thing to do is get (lawmakers) in a position where attention is focused on this, because they are tied together."

The governor got some ammunition Wednesday for his reform efforts when a Cabinet task force headed by Mackay voted for a government overhaul plan that includes a single police agency, merging of two administrative departments and streamlined environmental regulation.

"Today's another day," said Chiles one day after the Supreme Court said he and the Cabinet could not make $622 million in cuts required by a tax shortfall. "I accept their decision. I'm disappointed in it."

Administration officials and legislators scrambled Wednesday to understand the implications of the ruling, which said budget decisions must be made by the Legislature alone.

In Washington just after the state Supreme Court decision, Chiles seemed to indicate the

Two vying for Longwood seat

By NICK PFEIFAU

LONGWOOD — Two candidates face each other for one open Longwood City Commission seat, to be decided November 5. The candidates for the District 2 seat are Dr. Frederick Pearl and Craig Bush.

Pearl, 48, is a 12-year resident of Longwood. A podiatrist for the past 21 years, he and his wife, Betty, have five children.

Bush, 46, a five-year Longwood resident, is a licensed real estate salesman with Century 21 in Longwood. He and his wife, Sharon, have two children.

Dr. Frederick Pearl

Pearl's motto is, "A responsible change for a better future."

Regarding his campaign, Pearl says, "If elected, I will bring to the city commission, intelligence, integrity, non-partisanship, and over 10 years of experience working with city and tri-county area governments."

Among his major concerns are the prospects for the future of Longwood, especially in dealing with the sewer deficit and budget. He said he would like to address those issues as a commissioner.

"The sewer deficit," he says, "is a fundamental problem within our city. The deficit will only be solved by an intelligent compromise between city residents, city government and county government. This compromise is essential for the fiscal and environmental health of Longwood."

Regarding the budget he says, "Ultimately, Longwood must have a balanced budget. A budget that can meet the needs of the citizens and

Inn expected to disappear from ballot

By NICK PFEIFAU

LONGWOOD — Whether or not the City's purchase of the Village Inn will be on the ballot in Longwood Tuesday is still to be decided. The vote may be held off until a better price is settled upon.

The city has been seeking approval from the citizens to purchase the 104 year old building for use as a city hall. The problem at present centers on a vast difference between the price requested by the owners and the most recent cost estimate obtained by the City.

A special meeting has been called for 5 p.m. this afternoon to once again discuss the purchase price.

Thousands of tires dumped

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

As many as 50,000 tires have been illegally disposed of in the Sanford Area. A Volusia County man has been arrested in the case.

Sgt. Jeff Ardelean, environmental investigator with the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, reported Wednesday that Joseph Anello, whose most recent address is Port Orange, was arrested in Volusia County Tuesday. He is to be moved to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

According to Ardelean, "Anello leased some property on Celery Avenue for a short period of time, and collected used tires from the area, dumping them on the property. When he was warned about it in April, he moved about one mile further to Cameron Avenue, where he again set up a similar operation on leased property." The third time, he moved the operation indoors in a leased building.

Between 20,000 and 30,000 tires were found on the Celery Avenue property, with an additional 10,000 on Cameron, and 10,000 in the building.

Since April, the investigator said two written warnings had been issued against Anello, for operating the tire disposal without a proper permit. "You don't need a license to handle up to 25 tires," Ardelean said, "but what happened here was not only a situation of operating without a license, but violations against the Florida litter laws."

Anello is being charged with 3 counts of violation of the litter laws, which are felony charges, and 3

Women seek ban on silicone implant

CLEARWATER — A Clearwater woman is leading a local support group's effort to try to convince the U.S. Food and Drug Administration that silicone breast implants should be banned.

Janice Buck and other members of Silicone Sisters, an organization of about 60 women from west-central Florida, are featured in a videotape that details various health problems they believe are linked to reactions to silicone used in implants.

The group sent the home video to FDA officials who will have to decide by January if the breast prostheses should remain on the market. An FDA advisory committee will meet in Washington to continue dialogue on the issue on Nov. 13-14.

Members of Silicone Sisters complain of constant muscle pain, aching joints, skin problems, bladder infections and immune systems that produce antibodies that attack a person's own tissues.

However, not everyone is convinced the problems they are experiencing are caused by implants.

Willets new twist: 1-900-288-KATHY

MIAMI — Feeling down and kinda blue? For $3 a minute, Kathy Willets will talk to you.

But the self-proclaimed nymphomaniac says she and her sheriff's deputy husband Jeff won't be talking about the now infamous prostitution and wiretapping charges against both of them.

The couple will be the stars of a new 900 telephone service scheduled to begin within one week.

"KATHY WILLETS SPEAKS," says the ad submitted to the Sun-Sentinel in Fort Lauderdale. "Finally, you can hear what she has to say."

The ad features a photo of Kathy Willets in front of a fireplace, telephone cradled to her ear. The phone cord is curled around her hand and a bare knee.

"Call 1-900-288-KATHY and listen to Kathy talk about her past, her lifestyle, what she likes best, and much, much more," the ad reads. "If what you read in the papers doesn't satisfy you, call Kathy today."

Evicted bats shun new home

GAINESVILLE — More than 10,000 bats ousted from two stadiums at the University of Florida apparently didn't care much for a $30,000 custom-made bat tower the school built to keep them around.

Fed up with high-pitched squeals and smelly droppings, the university sealed the bats' stadium hangouts last month.

The university didn't want to get rid of the bats altogether, having developed a certain appreciation for the creatures' mosquito-eating skills. So it was decided to capture and move the creatures to a new home in a nearby wildlife sanctuary.

National bat expert Marshall Hanks was hired to move them to the wooden shelter next to Lake Alice. The shelter stands on 20-foot stilts, far from predators and within easy reach of insects and water.

But the bats didn't bite.

Lap dance law ruled unconstitutional

WEST PALM BEACH — A judge has ruled that Palm Beach County's law banning lap dancing is unconstitutional because it unfairly forbids contact that is typical in other nightclubs.

The opinion was sought by an attorney for Kathi Lynn Reilly, a dancer at the Landing Strip, who was arrested in September after she was paid to perform a provocative solo dance for an undercover sheriff's deputy.

"Under the language of the ordinance an employee of an adult entertainment establishment would be prohibited from teaching the Lambada even if fully clothed," County Judge Peter D. Blanc wrote in his Monday ruling. "However, if that employee were to go next door to a Latin dance club to give lessons, the same activity would not be prohibited."

Alligator subdued

PALM BEACH — How do you subdue an alligator sunning in a mud puddle at a Palm Beach mansion along the Intracoastal Waterway? How about a rope and wooden driver from the nearest golf bag?

Using the rope and borrowed golf club, Palm Beach officers Don Jacobs and Kurt Burfield captured the 5-foot, 10-inch gator that washed over a sea wall early Tuesday. While Burfield swung the club to distract the gator, Jacobs looped over the gator's snout a rope normally used to restrain combative prisoners over its snout.

Woman convicted of dad's murder plot

FORT LAUDERDALE — A 20-year-old woman was convicted of orchestrating her father's murder to collect an inheritance.

Katy Marie Telemachos, who was found guilty Wednesday, could be sentenced to life in prison or the death penalty for the 1990 slaying of her father, George Telemachos.

Prosecutors said she helped her boyfriend, Erik Delvalle of Miramar, sneak into her Cooper City home and shoot Telemachos in the head.

Area business raided

A raid was conducted on a loan company in Seminole County shortly before noon yesterday. The case had been under investigation for several months.

Sheriff's spokesman George Proechel explained, "It's a situation where someone requires a fee be given by a customer, in order to obtain a loan. As of earlier this year, it has been against the law."

He said, "This particular case involves a joint investigation between the Seminole County Sheriff's department, the State Attorney's office and the Florida Department of Banking and Finance."

Officers served a warrant at Sunburst, Ltd., 1881 South Highway 17-92, between Longwood and Casselberry. The owner of the establishment, Norman Applebaum, 44, was arrested and charged with 13 counts. The first charge was listed as organized fraud.

Proechel said, "There were also six counts of violation of the Mortgage Brokers Act, that is, operating without a broker's license, and six charges of unlawful collection of advance fees from borrowers."

He added, "All 13 charges are considered as third degree felonies. Bond was set for $1,000."

Applebaum has reportedly been operating the business for approximately two years in that location.

Disturbance produces arrest

Sanford Police issued a trespass citation Monday against Lorenzo Bundage, 30, of 2729 W. 23rd St. At the time, Bundage was reportedly causing a disturbance at Kim's Food Store, 1229 W. 13th St. in Sanford. As officers were attempting to handcuff him, he reportedly pushed the officer and fled from the area.

Bundage was located Tuesday sleeping in his vehicle parked at 1301 W. 13th St. He is being charged with trespassing after a warning, battery on a law enforcement officer, and resisting arrest with violence.

Drugs and prostitution charged

Officers from the Sanford Police Special Investigative unit have arrested Bernadette James, 29, of 911 Cypress Avenue. She reportedly approached an undercover agent in the 6th Street and Cypress Avenue area, offering to sell drugs and commit prostitution. She has been placed in custody at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, charged with sale and delivery of a controlled substance, (crack cocaine) and assignment to commit prostitution.

Waterpump stolen

Seminole County Sheriff's deputies are investigating the reported theft of an old fashioned waterpump, from the yard of Walter Meriweather, 3471 Celery Avenue, east of Sanford. The item, valued at $300, was reportedly taken sometime Monday night or early Tuesday morning. The case has been determined to be grand theft.

DUI arrest made

Myrtle Moseley Dobbs, 51, of 528 Whisper Wood Drive, Longwood, was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and careless driving early Tuesday morning. Florida Highway Patrol troopers reported finding her car half submerged in a retention pond on Sabal Palm Drive. According to a report, Dobbs told officers she lost control of the vehicle when a small cat riding with her, jumped onto her head.

Car stolen near Lake Mary

Seminole County deputies are investigating the theft of a 1987 Toyota pickup truck, from the driveway of Jose O. Bauzo, 457 Lakeshore Drive, near Lake Mary. Bauzo reported the truck was red in color, and had a Florida license tag of H2V-46R.

Undercover drug arrest

Jerry Thompson, 26, of 82 Castle Brewer Court, was arrested by Sanford Police Special Investigators Tuesday night. Thompson reportedly was apprehended by an undercover agent, near the corner of 6th Street and Palmetto Avenue. He has been charged with sale and delivery of a controlled substance, which was later proven to be crack cocaine.

Warrant arrests

The following persons have been arrested on outstanding warrants:

• Leon Ellyz, 20, of 1314 Williams Avenue, Sanford, was arrested near Seminole High School Tuesday. He was wanted for violation of parole on a charge of battery to a police officer.

• Otis C. Wellon, 62, 139 Bethune Circle, Sanford, turned himself in at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Tuesday. He was wanted on a warrant charging him with obtaining property with a worthless check.

Sheriff, NAACP reach accord

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sheriff Don Eslinger and the members of the Seminole County chapter of the NAACP executive board agreed that Wednesday evening's meeting to iron out some problems was productive.

The local National Association for the Advancement of Colored People group had expressed concern over the sheriff's department's handling of an alleged gang rape in the Midway neighborhood this summer.

The executive board had demanded a public apology from Eslinger and the sheriff who maintains that he had apologized from the beginning apologized once again.

A grand jury on Wednesday cleared the sheriffs department of any wrongdoing in their handling of the arrests.

"Essentially, they didn't criticize our handling of the arrests," Eslinger said. "Based on the evidence at the time the arrests were made, the actions were proper."

There had been charges over using excessive force when more than 50 deputies were dispatched to arrest four men in the alleged rape.

"I believe there was quite a bad misperception about what happened," Eslinger said.

He described Wednesday's meeting as "positive" and "upbeat" and felt that the exchange between the NAACP and himself helped to "clear the air."

The two sides agreed to meet again at a later date to continue to cultivate the relationship they have begun to build.

Breit to judge SCC's juried exhibition

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole Community College will sponsor a juried art exhibition in January that is open to artists in who express themselves in any medium.

The exhibit organizers have arranged for internationally-acclaimed photographer Jack Breit to travel to Sanford to judge the works.

A Florida native, Breit, was essentially a photographer for the last two decades, though he has begun doing a great deal of work in mixed media using his photographs.

Terry Sisaleumsak, curator of the SCC Fine Arts Gallery, said Breit's reputation as an accomplished artist makes him highly qualified to judge the work of others.

"He teaches art so he looks at it with a critical eye," she added.

The show, which will begin accepting entrants on Jan. 2, is the third annual juried competition at the SCC Fine Arts Gallery.

"The first year we had collage compositions and last year we had mixed media," Sisaleumsak said.

Kiwanians seek outstanding woman for their Gatchel award

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The deadline for entries in the Annual Roberta Gatchel Woman of the Year selection is fast approaching. Nominations must be submitted by Nov. 4.

Sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Sanford, the annual award was established in 1969 in memory of the Kiwanis benefactress Roberta Gatchel, who catered Kiwanis luncheons for over 20 years. Mrs. Gatchel died 1967, leaving approximately $27,000 to the Sanford Kiwanis Club. The proceeds have been, and will continue to be used for the benefit of underprivileged children.

Chairman of the Kiwanis project, Bill Fraasa said, "We have mailed out about 32 application forms to various clubs in the area, but there are probably others who would be eligible to make an entrant, and we would certainly like to hear from them as well."

Fraasa said almost a dozen entries have already been received for this year's competition. The award is presented each year to the Sanford area woman who has done the most for her club and community. Each woman's organization is given the opportunity to nominate one of its members.

The final selection will be made by a special committee of Kiwanis members. The award winner will receive a plaque and just before the event. Check-ins are also required just prior to an event, to assure scorekeepers and others of the arrival of the registered entrants.

The Golden Age Games opening ceremonies are scheduled for 1:30 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center Patio, with competition and other events scheduled for the entire week, concluding on Saturday, Nov. 9.

Schedule changes announced

SANFORD — Even though schedules have been printed on Golden Age Games events, several late changes have been announced. The latest two involve swimming and a bike race.

Originally, all the swimming competition was listed for Lyman High School in Longwood. According to the latest word, only the competitive swimming will be conducted at Lyman. The synchronized swimming scheduled for Monday, Nov. 4, will be moved to Westmonte Civic Center, in Altamonte Springs.

An additional change has been

Golden Age Games

announced in the starting time for the 10k bicycle race scheduled at the Central Florida Regional Airport in Sanford, Tuesday, Nov. 5.

Golden Age Games officials suggest all participants double-check times and locations prior to the events. They also remind persons wishing to enter various competitive events that both registration and check-ins are required. Registration may be done at any time, in most instances, up to the time

Sanford picks board members

SANFORD — Sanford City Commissioners last night named new members to two city civic boards.

Cecil Tucker and Robert Mann were appointed to the Henry Shelton Sanford Memorial Library-Museum Board. They will replace two members whose terms expire November 4. On October 14, commissioners re-appointed Dr. Vann Parker and Dr. Paul Bordenkircher to the museum board, but both members cannot be reappointed because they have served the maximum number of terms. One vacancy remains on the board.

The Board of Adjustments terms of W.M. Phillips and Norval Angle will expire in November. Angle was reappointed. Sylvia Smith will replace Phillips on the board.

Sanford has great potential for rejuvenation. That promise was highlighted in the recent weekend of old-fashioned, town-hall meetings about the future of downtown and the historic district — Old Sanford.

The character of the area that officially is designated as historic is changing. Older residents are giving way to younger families and singles. A once stable area is, for now, transient. But, as Central Florida grows and the new-housing market becomes ever more expensive, Sanford's older housing stock emerges as more attractive while remaining affordable. And, as some of the leaders in the community recognize, that is an asset to be scrubbed clean, developed, polished, protected and promoted.

Unfortunately, some people in influential positions seem to believe that a whitewash and promotion alone are all the effort that is warranted.

They are wrong. Downtown and the fledgling historic district face problems. Some of them are not nice and clinical; they are unsavory. No amount of happy-talk promotion will succeed in sweeping such problems under the rug. In the hope they never will be noticed.

Let's face facts: Old Sanford has a crime problem and it is a serious one. Just ask the people who live there, such as Liz Williams, the newly emerged Neighborhood Watch chairman; just ask Lon Howell, the city commissioner who represents the area; just ask Steve Harriett, the chief of police.

They'll all tell you it's true. The police chief himself, no words. Crime is a flagrant and blatant problem, he says.

The problem is not new in Sanford. It is like problems that many American cities in transition have had to cope with.

But here, some things are dramatically different these days. There is a new spirit in Old Sanford. It showed up in the formation of the Sanford Historic Trust; it showed up in the building of Park on Park; and it continues to show up in current events. It is a ground swell.

What Sanford is seeing for the first time in a long time is much more than sound and fury. It echoes impatience with the city's old guard that seems so uncomfortable with change and growth. It is the rumbling of public support for progress.

It is a good sound. But it is not good enough.

What is needed is a tidal wave of public involvement, out of which will emerge the ideas, the energy and the leadership to sustain the momentum created by the groundswell.

Now is the time for us all to become involved: The people who live here, the people who do business here, and the people who run city hall.

Old Sanford does indeed have a new spirit. It is a propitious time for change. What's more, it is time for people to rally to the cause.

America 'ain't ready for reform'

A presidential aide's statement and a congressional-administration power struggle are stark reminders that no reform is forthcoming despite the exposure during the Thomas-Hill hearings of a system that screams out for it.

Americans who were mesmerized by the U.S. Senate's pornographic pep show know that the confirmation system broke down completely. The Senate realizes that it never crawled out of its voyeuristic sewer during the hearings. And even a confused George Bush conceded that something needs to be changed. But he is not prepared to negotiate away one iota of power.

"I think you can assume that we would not look favorably on a plan that would take the power to choose nominees out of the president's hands and give it to the Democratic-controlled Senate," an anonymous administration official commented.

The key phrase in those 35 words is, "Democratic-controlled Senate." If Republican George Bush had a decisive Republican majority in the Senate, he would be far more receptive to some measure of reform.

We could have that if we had responsible party government. Responsible party government means that Republican George Bush should govern with a Republican majority in both the Senate and the House.

That may sound almost heretical. It also works the other way around. A Democratic-controlled Senate and House would function more productively and would more accurately reflect the will of the people with a Democratic president.

In George Bush's case, the will he reflects is that of millionaires, patricians and people who think like them — even when it is not in their best economic interest.

Nonetheless, the American system must find a method for either insuring a Republican majority in both Houses for a Republican president or electing a Democratic president for the Democratic majority in both Houses.

Obviously, this will not happen anytime soon. What was true in the 1930s when a corrupt congressman, Paddy Bowler, growled, "Chicago ain't ready for reform," holds true for the U.S. government in 1991. The average American unthinkingly accepts the inefficiency of a horse-and-buggy system designed to prevent the rise of political parties, a doomed cause to which most of the nation's founders were devoted. James Madison anticipated Karl Marx when he lamented in 1787 that "the various and unequal distribution of property" is "the most common and durable source of factions."

The will he reflects is that of millionaires.

Maintaining that unequal distribution of wealth is precisely why the George Bushes, the Orrin Hatches, the Arlen Specters and the Alan Simpsons labor strenuously to preserve a system conceived in 1787. But the same system also embraced slavery and the disenfranchisement of women in 1787.

If the Thomas-Hill hearings spell out the imperative for reform, a power struggle between two congressional subcommittee chairs and Housing and Urban Development Secretary Jack Kemp confirms it.

Sen. Barbara Mikulski and Rep. Bob Traxler, both Democrats, chair the two subcommittees that control appropriations for the Republican-administered HUD. The Mikulski-Traxler vs. Kemp battle over how and where HUD's $25 billion should be spent turned so bitter recently that Kemp contemplated asking the president to veto the spending bill.

Experts battle on Yellowstone land

WASHINGTON — Imagine Yellowstone National Park without its five-star attraction, Old Faithful. Today (Oct. 31) a House committee will face that possibility — a nightmare that has environmentalists tossing in their sleep while the Bush administration snoozes undisturbed.

The issue is whether entrepreneurs should be able to dig hot-water wells on the outskirts of the park and take the chance of sucking energy from Yellowstone's bubbling pots, hot springs and geysers.

The debate has so torn the experts at the Interior Department that one of the federal employees scheduled to testify today almost had to pay his own way to Washington because his bosses don't like what he is going to say.

Irving Friedman, an outspoken geologist with the U.S. Geological Survey, was summoned by the House Interior Mining and Natural Resources subcommittee to testify. He is expected to say that he disagrees with his agency's findings that the private wells could be drilled "without risk to the park's thermal features."

Sources told our associate Jim Lynch that Interior Department officials debated whether or not they should make Friedman pay his own way from Denver to Washington for today's hearing.

When word of that reached Rep. Nick Rahall, D-W.Va., the chairman of the subcommittee, he zinged a letter to Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan: "Please note that I would view the Department requiring one of its employees to use personal funds in order to testify before Congress as a form of intimidation and as being an attempt to thwart his appearance."

The Interior Department bought Friedman a ticket, and a spokesman for Lujan told us he was not aware of any effort to block Friedman from testifying.

This battle between the experts in the lower ranks of federal government and their bosses who answer to President Bush is becoming all too frequent on critical environmental issues. Lujan's stand on the Yellowstone debate has bolstered claims that pro-development interests are driving the administration's land-use policy.

In the Yellowstone case, the National Park Service decided that any private plans to tap into Yellowstone's natural plumbing could endanger the park. But Lujan ignored that expert advice. He sent a report to Congress without mentioning the Park Service's conclusions, and he endorsed the operation of a geothermal well dug a couple of miles outside the park by the controversial New Age group, The Church Universal and Triumphant led by Elizabeth Clare Prophet.

In an internal letter, Yellowstone Park Superintendent Robert D. Barbee warned that approving the well would be a "dangerous precedent, a debilitating foot-in-the-door for future geothermal developments." Barbee said the action "could easily start a gold rush" around Yellowstone.

The director of the U.S. Park Service, James Ridenour, sent a confrontational letter to Lujan's office warning that geothermal wells are a danger to the nation's first and largest national park. "It is fairly clear to me that series of wells most likely would produce a significant impact to the features of Yellowstone," Ridenour wrote.

Lujan's handling of the issue raised hackles in Congress when he passed along his rosy opinion, and included a supporting report from the U.S. Geological Survey — a report that was not universally endorsed in the USGS.

All too frequent a battle on critical environmental issues.

When we hunted for witches

Every year for well more than a century the children of America have celebrated Halloween by dressing up like witches and warlocks, taking their broomsticks to the streets of their neighborhoods, and engaging in some god-natured intimidation of moms and pops, who, for their part, go along with the fun.

Yet there was a time in the country when this sort of thing would have engendered gasps rather than giggles. There was a time when sorcery was not a trifling concern. This Halloween is the commemorative eve of a milestone date in the annals of the supernatural, the 300th anniversary of the Salem witch trials.

Salem, located about 15 miles northeast of Boston, is a Massachusetts seaport founded by the Puritan colonists. In 1692, the authorities arrested 100 or more of the residents and charged them with practicing witchcraft. That was treasonable heresy then. In other words a capital offense against the crown, and many of the accused were tried and put to death.

The slaughter remains one of the darkest moments in New World history. But Alison D'Amario reminds that it must be remembered in the context of the period. She runs the Salem Witch Museum, and says the trials were, in effect, an act of good citizenship:

"It's hard for us to understand it today, but things were very plain in the 17th century. The Puritans believed in God, and they were afraid to provoke his displeasure. They killed the witches in order to save their community from the wrath of the Lord."

The Puritans borrowed this notion from mother England, to be sure. Witchcraft was born on the Continent, and it had always been treated severely. The hunt for witches began in the 1400s in northern and central Europe, and the estimate is that from 350,000 to 3 million suspects were executed through the 1700s.

At first, the colonists were not nearly so harsh, legally. They were just as opposed to the idea, however. The good folks in Connecticut and Virginia used to "swim" defendant sorcerers, that is to say drag them through rivers on ropes, until they confessed to such things as telling fortunes or reciting incantations.

Then zealotry turned to hysteria. D'Amario says it was precipitated in Salem by an outbreak of melancholy among some of the children. Two of the kids were diagnosed as being possessed after dabbling in the occult, and tradition suggests they were aided in the devilry by a West Indian slave named Tituba.

Soon witches were turning up behind every pot of boiling bestial bones. And scores of them were thrown into the inadequate Salem prison. Something thus had to be done to calm the population, and relieve the crowded jail, so a Special Court of Oyer and Terminer (to hear and determine) was convened in May of the year. The court was something less than judicial, unfortunately. The defendants were not permitted to retain counsel, for instance, neither could they appeal, and one of the crabby tests of a witch under Colonial dominion was whether the accused, with his or her life on the line, could recite the Lord's Prayer without error.

The court also accepted "spectral" evidence, i.e. ghostly occurrences. The two children mentioned earlier said one woman had sent her specter to afflict them. The woman said it was nonsense, but she was convicted anyway. Spectral evidence was, by its definition, invisible evidence, and all but impossible to refute.

D'Amario says the impossibility was compounded when the slave Tituba confessed, the first of many at the trials. The slave also implicated acquaintances, another common concession. Tituba told the authorities that "the devil came to me and bid me serve him," and her life was thereby spared for cooperating.

Others were not as lucky. The court was in session for four months, and 27 people were convicted. Nineteen of them were quickly hanged, one was pressed to death with stones piled on his chest, a few died of disease and broken spirits in prison, and a 5-year-old defendant is said to have gone stark raving mad.

D'Amario says most of the convicted went to the noose with dignity, some pleading mercy for those still in prison; everyone was then buried in an area still known in Salem as Gallows Hill.

The soul-searching was not complete. Residents throughout the America of the day continued to hunt down and denigrate suspected witches. But, in 1711, Massachusetts granted compensation to the heirs of the victims; and, in 1957, the General Court of Massachusetts formally admitted they "may have been illegally tried."

Alison D'Amario says Salem therefore learned the lesson that led to the creation of the United States. Tolerance is at the root of a free society. That will be the theme of the Tercentenary commemoration of the trials, as it has been for Halloween's now uncounted.

It's hard for us to understand it today, but things were very plain in the 17th century.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Waves of destructin hit East Coast

A huge Atlantic storm threw towering waves and hurricane-force winds at the Northeast, tossing boats around like toys. Eight people were reported missing today, including five National Guardsmen whose helicopter vanished at sea.

From Maine to North Carolina, waves smashed seawalls to pieces, flooded streets and homes and trapped people in cars. Winds of 70 mph or more knocked out power to thousands, and churning seas eroded beaches as far south as Florida.

Thousands fled to shelters set up in schools from Massachusetts to Maine.

"We had whitecaps going right through the back yard," said Mary Voelger, who was rescued from her home in Scituate, Mass., on a backhoe as waves washed through her house.

Bush-Quayle '92 committee kicked off

WASHINGTON — President Bush is heading for his hometown of Houston tonight to launch a $30 million fund-raising blitz aimed at ensuring he gets to call the White House home for four more years.

Bush and Vice President Dan Quayle will make a rare joint out-of-town appearance at a $1,000-a-plate dinner expected to bring up to $1 million into the coffers of the recently inaugurated Bush-Quayle '92 committee.

The president, just back from the Mideast peace conference in Madrid and bound for Europe again next week, is not expected to formally declare he is a candidate for re-election until next year.

But he and his political lieutenants are laying the financial pillars for a full-bore campaign months before the Democrats even settle on their standard-bearer.

Bell gets thumbs up on news services

WASHINGTON — The seven regional Bell telephone companies have Supreme Court approval to provide news and other information services, but Congress and the courts could still impose restraints.

The court's action Wednesday was a major setback for the newspaper industry, which fought vigorously to keep the "Baby Bells" out of an area newspapers long have dominated.

The court denied without comment a request from the American Newspaper Publishers Association for an order blocking entry by the Bells into the information services market while an appeals court considers the case.

ANPA filed its request with Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, who referred it to the full court. Justice Sandra Day O'Connor did not take part in the case and did not say why. The brief order suggested that new Justice Clarence Thomas did participate.

House to present civil rights bill

WASHINGTON — The House is expected within days to complete Congress' work on a civil rights bill that expands anti-discrimination protections in the workplace and introduces them to the Senate and White House for the first time.

The Senate on Wednesday ended three days of haggling over amendments, passing the measure 93-5 with President Bush's backing.

"The House will likely approve the Senate action," and could take the bill up as early as next Monday, said Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash.

Jewish claim 'immemorial'; Israelis strongly desire peace

MADRID, Spain — Yitzhak Shamir told his country's Arab foes today that the Jewish claim on Israel dates to time "immemorial" and that Israelis strongly desire peace with their neighbors and guarantees for their security.

In a speech on the second day of a historic Middle East conference, the Israeli prime minister told his nation's longtime enemies that Israel prays the talks will "mark the beginning of a new chapter" in the region's history.

"I appeal to the Arab leaders ... show us and the world that you accept Israel's existence," he said, adding that Israel desires to negotiate peace with Arab leaders in their capitals.

Foreign Minister Kamel Abu-Jaber of Jordan, in his address to the delegates, urged Arabs and Israelis attending their first peace conference to work for "the dawn of a new era to rectify the mistakes of the past."

IN BRIEF

Tribe caps perfect season

DeLAND — Phillip King scored the first and last touchdowns as Seminole High School completed an undefeated junior varsity football season Wednesday night with a 52-0 rout of the DeLand Bulldogs at Spec Martin Stadium.

Seminole, 7-0, led 12-0 after one quarter, 36-0 at halftime and 44-0 after three quarters.

King got things started when he scored on a 12-yard run. Later in the opening quarter, Marcus Shields caught a 15-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Todd Braden.

In the second quarter, Cory Wilson scored on a 30-yard reverse. Andre Rawlings went over from 20 yards out and Braden tallied on an 8-yard keeper. Don Hunt ran for the two-point conversion after Wilson's and Rawlings' scores while Braden had the two-point conversion after his touchdown.

Bryant Moore went 70 yards on a draw play for Seminole's touchdown in the third quarter. Braden again ran for the conversion. Then, in the fourth quarter, King crowned the season with a 15-run scoring run. Hunt registering his third two-point conversion.

For the game, Seminole rushed for 478 and passed for 150 more, racking up 628 total yards of offense. The Tribe defense, which posted its second shutout of the season, limited DeLand to 88 yards of offense.

Jamie King and Damien Burke each recovered a fumble on defense for Seminole while Phillip King and Alton Jenkins each had an interception for the Tribe.

On Monday, most of the team will move up and join the varsity for the duration of this season, beginning next Friday with Seminole's game against Lake Brantley.

NBA approves sale of Magic

ORLANDO — The sale of the Orlando Magic to Richard DeVos was approved Wednesday night by the NBA Board of Governors.

"Richard DeVos and his family were unanimously approved as the new owners of the Orlando Magic," NBA deputy commissioner Russ Granik said in a league statement.

DeVos, founder of Amway Corp., bought the team Sept. 19 from an Orlando group headed by William duPont III.

Bucs go back to Testaverde

TAMPA — Vinny Testaverde will return to Tampa Bay's starting lineup when the Buccaneers face the Minnesota Vikings on Sunday, coach Richard Williamson said Wednesday.

"There are two reasons," the coach said. "One, Vinny has the most playing experience this year and two, he was the starting quarterback last year when we won both games against Minnesota."

Testaverde has missed the last two games with a chipped bone in his right thumb. Chris Chandler started in his absence but had limited success against the New Orleans Saints, then was yanked in the second quarter of last Sunday's 27-0 loss to the Greer Bay Packers.

The Bucs (1-7) are ranked 27th in the NFL in total offense.

Kelly received 27 of a possible 28 first-place votes in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America and finished with 138 points. Detroit manager Sparky Anderson, who received the other first-place vote, was second with 50 points and Toronto's Cito Gaston was third with 17.

Seattle's Jim Lefebvre, Boston's Joe Morgan and Stump Merrill of the New York Yankees, all fired, were among a record 10 managers to receive votes. Lefebvre and Morgan tied for fourth with 16 points.

Rams after Volleyfest three-peat

By BILL KENNIS
 Herald Correspondent

LAKE MARY — Only the best. Starting tonight at 5 p.m., the third annual Volleyfest double-elimination tournament at Lake Mary High School will offer perhaps the best of boys volleyball that the state has to offer.

"Each year, the tournament has grown stronger," said tournament organizer and Lake Mary head coach Bill Whalen. "We have a stronger field than ever. Our goal is to continue to make it grow. Once there is a regular state championship, I want to keep our tournament No. 1 in Florida."

In both the state rankings and the tournament seedings, Kissimmee-Osceola (22-1) is No. 1 and Lake Mary (18-3) is No. 2. When the two teams met earlier in the season, the Osceola Kowboys nipped the Rams 15-13, 13-15, 16-14.

Rounding out the top four tournament seedings are Lake Howell (17-4) and Boone (16-7). Other competitors include Evans (17-6), Apopka (14-3), Bishop Moore and Oviedo (10-8).

Play begins at 5 p.m. with Apopka taking on Lake Howell. Evans challenges Osceola at 6 p.m., Oviedo faces Boone at 7 p.m. and Bishop Moore battles Lake Mary at 8 p.m.

At 9 p.m., the losers of the Bishop Moore-Lake Mary and Oviedo-Boone matches will face each other.

The tournament will then resume at 9 a.m. on Saturday. Game times on Saturday are 9 a.m., 10 a.m.,

1:30 p.m., 2:30 p.m., 4 p.m., 5:30 p.m., 7 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. (the championship game).

Tickets cost $3. One ticket covers a full day's schedule.

"I'm real excited about the field," said Whalen. "Everybody has played strong competition. Even Osceola has been challenged. I would not be surprised if somebody beat them. Last year, no one was disappointed by the tournament."

Lake Mary's goal is to make the championship game.

"If we make it to the championship, then anything else can happen," said Whalen, whose teams have won the first two Volleyfest championships. "If we play our caliber of volleyball, anything can happen. After we make it, it's best to be lucky as well as good."

For Lake Howell, the tournament provides a test of its mettle.

"We have our work cut out for us," said Lake Howell head coach Christy Scott. "We're facing some strong teams, and looking forward to the competition. We've been preparing to play up there with the big boys all season."

After an up-and-down season, Oviedo is seeded last in the tournament. But the Lions hope to surprise someone.

"If the real Oviedo shows up, we should do well," said Oviedo head coach Dale Reichard. "If the team that showed up in our last game reappears, it could be a long night. We've been looking good in practice the past week. Hopefully, we'll ambush someone."

Jason Likens (No. 24) and the Lake Mary Rams will have to be at their best this weekend if they hope to win their third Volleyfest championship in as many years. The tournament begins tonight at 5 p.m. at Lake Mary.

Hornets sweep Tribe in finale

By BILL KENNIS
 Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — No team can win while defeating itself mentally.

The Seminole High School girls varsity volleyball team lost to Bishop Moore 15-5, 15-4 Wednesday night at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium as both teams ended their regular season schedules.

Emotions as much as Bishop Moore defeated Seminole.

"We don't win if we beat ourselves," said Seminole coach Beth Corso. "I feel like they beat us, but then we also beat ourselves. It was a combination. We got down on ourselves individually."

Seminole finishes a disappointing 2-14 on the season while the Bishop Moore Hornets finish 18-6.

Next Wednesday, Seminole opens play in the 3A-District 5 tournament at Flagler Palm Coast. Seminole was 2-2 against district opponents during the regular season.

Once again, inconsistency plagued Seminole against Bishop Moore.

"I never thought we'd be 2-14," said Corso. "I thought we'd be 7-9. I'm still shocked. We need to work on putting forth our best effort level every night."

After sweeping New Smyrna Beach on Tuesday, Charlene Guy and the Seminole Fighting Seminoles lost to Bishop Moore Wednesday.

Man seeks study of female form

DEAR ABBY: I am a 39-year-old divorced man. My ex-wife and present girlfriend are the only women I have ever had sex with, and both are extremely flat-chested. Therefore, I have never touched — or even seen — breasts of any size except in pictures.

Sometimes this bothers me, and I find myself staring at women with large breasts. My girlfriend is very understanding about this and even suggested that we go to a nudist camp so I could get an eyeful.

Abby, do you think going to a nudist camp would get this problem out of my system, or would it just aggravate it?

My decision depends on your reply.

MISSING OUT IN L.A.
DEAR MISSING OUT: Your girlfriend's "understanding" is admirable, but nudist camps are not peep shows. They are for people who sincerely enjoy the freedom of camping out in the buff. You will find naturalists — entire families — at nudist camps.

ADVICE

There are legitimate theaters that offer adult entertainment wherein you can see what you want to see.

DEAR ABBY: Your column about "no-shows" (people who do not show up at a wedding reception after having accepted) struck a raw nerve with me. I was recently married, and we had 40 no-shows at our reception.

We included postage-paid response cards with every invitation, and about 60 percent responded to those. I did a lot of telephoning, and held off the final count to the caterers until two days prior to the wedding. At that time I had to make the final florist order (for every table of eight there was a centerpiece) as well as the final champagne amounts for toasting. We figured that this cost us $1,000 extra.

To this day, we have only found out that one woman was ill, a man didn't get home from a business trip, another man left his wife, and one couple had the flu.

Only one couple informed us personally that they were unable to attend — three hours prior to the ceremony. At the reception, we learned that another couple had separated and he was too upset to attend.

Abby, please don't use my name or city. I'm hopeful this will alert some other folks, and there will be fewer no-shows.

AFRONTED NEWLYWEDS
DEAR NEWLYWEDS: I wish!

I have yet to hear how readers felt about my suggestion concerning no-shows at a catered affair: "Since the food is already paid for, why not pack up the goodies and take them home or to a homeless shelter?"

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter you published about the 17-year-old boy who was having trouble finding a job: You suggested that he go back to some of the places where he had applied for work and was turned down — and offer to work for one week with no obligation on their part.

Many years ago, I was having a very difficult time finding work. My father put an ad in the local newspaper saying, "My son will work for free for one week to prove that he is hardworking and honest." (Something to that effect.)
The telephone rang off the wall

immediately! I was hired by the Tri-State Truck Sales Co. and worked for them for seven years. Your idea is certainly worth trying.

DAVID IN STRATFORD, N.J.
DEAR DAVID: Thanks. Now that idea is in the public domain. Readers, help yourselves.

Monitor effects of cortisone use

DEAR DR. GOTT: What causes post-nasal drip, and why does mucus drip down the throat causing major irritation? Would surgery be a corrective measure?

and must be opened and drained.
(C)1991 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

DEAR READER: The membranes high in the back of the throat, behind the nose, are often the source of a prolific mucous discharge. This is usually caused by a low-grade allergic reaction (to smoke, pollen or dust) but may also appear when these tissues are infected. The condition is aggravated by sinus inflammation, too.

This mucus drainage typically heads south, pulled by gravity down into the throat and trachea where it triggers a cough reaction for the same reason we cough when we swallow food the wrong way. Such coughing spasms are usually quite violent and occur in paroxysms, frequently more pronounced at night. Because there is little material to "bring up," the cough is termed "dry," unlike the "productive" cough characteristic of pneumonia.

Post-nasal drip is one of the most common complaints I see in the office. It can be diagnosed by looking in the throat with a strong light; the gobs of mucus can be seen washing over the back of the pharynx. Avoidance of tobacco smoke and the use of anti-histamine/decongestant medications (such as Actifed, Sudafed or Dimetapp) usually relieve symptoms. Patients with persisting and especially bothersome post-nasal drip may require prescription drugs (such as Hismanal or Seldane) or referral to an allergist.

Surgery is ordinarily not used to treat this condition, unless the sinuses are chronically infected

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
The Canadian team of Bronia Gmach, Mark Caplan, Fred Gitelman, Geoff Hampson, Michael Roberts and Eric Sutherland finished second in the third NEC World Junior Championship in Ann Arbor, Mich., last August.

In the semifinal, they beat an Australian team. Today's deal was played well by Gmach, who had won the North America Master Mixed Teams title in Las Vegas two weeks before.

Experts debate the advisability of opening one no-trump with a five-card major. Here South was able to show her fifth heart when North made a quantitative raise to two no-trump via Stayman. (An immediate two-no-trump response would have been conventional.)

The Australian declarer in the same contract covered the opening lead of the diamond queen with dummy's king. After that, he couldn't avoid losing one spade, one heart and two diamond tricks: 50 points to Canada.

Gmach did better, playing low from the dummy at trick one. West switched to the spade 10. Declarer won in hand with the ace and made the key play of leading a second diamond herself, ducking in the dummy and bringing down East's ace.

Back came the spade queen, declarer winning in the dummy and leading a trump to the king and ace. Now Gmach enjoyed the critical stroke of luck: West had no spade left. He chose to lead the diamond jack. But declarer played low from dummy and overruffed East's heart 10 with the queen. Now South guessed correctly, leading a heart to dummy's jack, which drew trumps, and discarding her spade loser on the diamond king for plus 420.
