Commuter Train Crashes, 30 Injured

BOSTON (UPI) — A commuter train carrying hundreds of passengers rammed into the rear of another crowded train in a tunnel at a downtown station today, injuring as many as 30 passengers who were bent "flying down the aisle," officials said.

At least seven of the injuries were serious and at least two dozen others were transported to city hospitals, officials said. There were about 1,500 passengers on both trains.

The two trains collided at the Back Bay station before 8:30 a.m., said Boston Fire Commissioner Leo Stapleton. Some passengers said the second train was traveling about 10 mph.

Stapleton said at least 30 of those on board were injured with most suffering broken bones and bruises. Seven of the passengers suffered serious injuries.

Those injuries appeared to be neck- or back-related, said emergency medical technicians from Boston Health and Hospitals division.

None of the injuries appeared to be life threatening, rescue workers said. Those who suffered the most serious injuries had been standing on the trains, said officials with the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority.

One train was stopped inside the station when a second train packed with hundreds of passengers slammed into its rear.

officials said. "Two trains came into contact heading inbound," said Timothy Gens, an MBTA spokesman. "One car was derailed. This will effect all service for all commuter rail trains coming into Boston."

Three of the cars in the second train were derailed and at least one car suffered heavy damage, officials said. Both trains were being pushed from behind by diesel engines.

Both trains were heading into Boston from the southern community of Attleboro, located on the Rhode Island border.

The accident caused panic among the passengers on the trains, said Robin Landry of Stoughton, who was riding in one of the first cars of the train that was hit.

"I normally stand up. I sat down today for some reason," said Landry, who was not injured. "The next thing I knew we just hit something. People were flying down the aisle. People were getting very upset. We couldn't get the door opened."

Many of the injured passengers received medical treatment in the lobby of the Back Bay station, officials said. Police closed off bordering Dartmouth and Stuart streets to aid rescue efforts.

"The train wasn't as crowded as it usually is," said passenger Susan White of Boston's Hyde Park section.

Fired Jail Guards Lose Appeals Bid

Sheriff's Panel Backs Polk By Split Vote

Sheriff John Polk

By Susan Loden

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk's decision stands in the firings of two jail guards. Two sheriff's staffers on the appeals board who heard the guards' appeals to their firings supported Polk, while the only attorney on the board, its independent member, ruled that the firings were unjustified.

The Seminole County Sheriff's Civil Service Board rendered the two-to-one decision to uphold Polk's order at about 9:45 a.m. today in a meeting that began at 9 a.m. at the sheriff's department.

Attorneys for the two fired guards immediately after the decision was announced said it is highly likely that they will pursue the issues into civil court. They said they will have to discuss the case further with their clients.

Ex-guards' attorneys Leon Cheek and Steven Laurence said that they found it significant that board member Sanford City

City Attorney Bill Colbert

Attorney Bill Colbert in deliberations before the decision, outlined specific legal points that Colbert said caused him to rule in favor of the fired guards, based on evidence presented and things revealed about general practices and policies of the Seminole County jail.

Colbert said both guards should be reinstated.

Cheek and Laurence said that the other two board members sheriff's Chief Deputy Duane Harrell and sheriff's Sgt. Ken Starr were vague in stating their reasons for supporting Polk and that evidence presented in the appeals hearing and legal points made did not support Harrell's and Starr's conclusions.

Matthew McGill and Richard Blount were fired along with short-time guards Dean High and Douglas Fauls Sept. 3, following a sheriff's criminal investigation into the jailhouse suicide of a 17-year-old murder suspect.

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk, who fired the guards for alleged neglect of duty and falsification of jail logs showing that state and jail required 15-minute check on juvenile prisoners were made, said that the guards were in no way responsible for the suicide of Edwin Bateman of Forest City.

Polk, however, during McGill's and Blount's appeals hearing to the Seminole Sheriff's Department Civil Service Board Nov. 5 and 6, said that he did not believe the guards made the required checks and that they

In the 17-year history of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department Civil Service Board, five fired employees, including two ex-jail guards who avoided work today on their possible reinstatement by the board, have appealed Sheriff John Polk's decision to terminate them.

In the three earlier cases the board in each case upheld Polk's decision to terminate the workers who appealed.

The board is currently comprised of Polk's assistant Seminole Sheriff's Chief Deputy Duane Harrell, sheriff's Sgt.

Cribbage Champ Set To 'Skunk' Opponents

National Master Point Cribbage champion Arnold Crews, 71, of Jacksonville was out to "skunk" the competition and hoped to amass the points needed to take home the gold in the Golden Age Games cribbage playoffs Wednesday.

Crews, who has been playing cribbage competitively 60 years after lessons from an 11-year-old playmate, said he has gathered skills in the game that newcomers don't have. And there are fine points to cribbage that must be mastered if you hope to make the points that bring home the gold.

Seminole Republicans Convention Bound

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

Florida Republicans had hoped that a straw poll of delegates at their state convention in Orlando Saturday would be an early indication of which GOP candidate had the best chance of carrying the state's delegation to the National Republican Convention next year.

However, it has boiled down to a two-man race between Vice President George Bush and television evangelist Pat Robertson, with the other four candidates refusing to participate.

Ray Valdes, chairman of Seminole County's 57-member delegation, says although the majority of the Seminole County delegates are supporters of either Bush or Robertson, there are 18 or 19 members of the delegation who will have to make a decision which of the two delegates to cast their straw ballots.

Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont and former Secretary of State Alexander Haig have all removed their names from the ballot. All the candidates except Kemp and Haig will attend the convention in an effort to woo potential delegates to the national convention.

"I would estimate that Dole would get a minimum of 12 votes from this delegation without any campaigning," Valdes said. He said he presumes those votes will go to Bush in the straw poll.

Valdes says Kemp has the support of three or four Seminole County delegates, a couple are for Haig, and du Pont has the support of one delegate.

Deficit Negotiators Troubled By Defense, Tax Issues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional and administration leaders, trying to crack the U.S. deficit problem, say they are near agreement on a tax and spending package but troubled by "the same stumbling blocks you've seen in the past."

Those stumbling blocks include the size and form of likely tax increases and of likely defense spending cuts. Negotiations entering a 14th day today are seeking to cut at least $23 billion from the federal deficit in fiscal 1988.

"We've done a great deal of negotiating and we're coming closer to numbers," said Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., after Wednesday's round of talks. "At this point in time I'd say we're closer to getting a bill than not getting a bill."

Ortega: Comply In Peace Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega insists he is ready to comply "100 percent" with the Central American peace plan, but he doubts the United States is ready if President Reagan won't agree to one-on-one talks.

The administration indeed is not ready for direct discussions with Ortega and is skeptical of statements that his Marxist Sandinista government is complying with the five-nation peace accord signed Aug. 7 in Guatemala.

"You will find that this government is prepared to go the last mile but we really want to see concrete actions by the Sandinistas," asserted Richard McCormack, U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, following an Ortega speech to the OAS Wednesday.

NEW YORK (UPI) — An anonymous bidder will shell out an eye-popping $49 million for Vincent Van Gogh's "Iris," shattering the previous record of $39.9 million paid eight months ago for one of the artist's "Sunflower" oils.

"Iris," last purchased in 1947 for $84,000, brought a winning bid of $49 million. A 10 percent auction house commission brought the value of the sale to $53.9 million.

Iraq Strikes 5th Tanker In 2 Days; Warplanes Bomb Greek Tanker

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iraqi warplanes staged their fifth strike on shipping in the service of Iran in 48 hours today, attacking an oil tanker off the northern Iranian coast.

Iraqi military officials said warplanes roared over the Persian Gulf before dawn and attacked "a large naval target" — Iraq's term for an oil tanker — near the Iranian coast at 4:45 a.m., Baghdad radio reported.

Iraqi jets attacked two tankers off Iran Wednesday, striking the first vessel at 7 a.m. and staging a night raid on a second at 8:20 p.m., Iraqi armed forces officials said. Two other tankers were hit by Iraq on Tuesday.

Gulf shipping officials said this morning the target of the Iraqi strike Wednesday night was the Greek-registered shuttle tanker Fortuneship Lion.

Arab Leaders Condemn Iran

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — In a surprising triumph for pro-Western Persian Gulf states, Arab leaders have united for the first time against Iran and indirectly endorsed U.S. efforts to protect Kuwaiti shipping in the Persian Gulf.

The United Arab Emirates, meanwhile, said it would restore diplomatic relations with Egypt, an announcement that coincided with Wednesday's conclusion of an extraordinary meeting of the 21-member Arab League in Amman. The league skirted the issue of readmitting Egypt as a member and left it to each Arab country to decide whether to resume diplomatic relations with Cairo.

Arab countries severed relations with Cairo in 1979 after Egypt and Israel signed a U.S.-inspired peace treaty.

Kennedy Expected To Be Confirmed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is awaiting a full FBI review of Supreme Court nominee Anthony Kennedy before formally sending the judge's name to the Senate, even though early indications already say he is confirmable.

The president's decision suggests an added measure of caution in his third attempt to fill the Supreme Court vacancy following the Senate's rejection of his first nominee, Judge Robert Bork, and the withdrawal of his second choice, Judge Douglas Ginsburg, upon an admission of marijuana use the FBI never knew.

"The experience of the last several months has made all of us a bit wiser," Reagan said in announcing Kennedy's nomination at the White House Wednesday.

That conciliatory tone extended to Reagan's portrayal of the political merit in Kennedy's selection — for the benefit of potential conservative opponents as well as liberal critics.

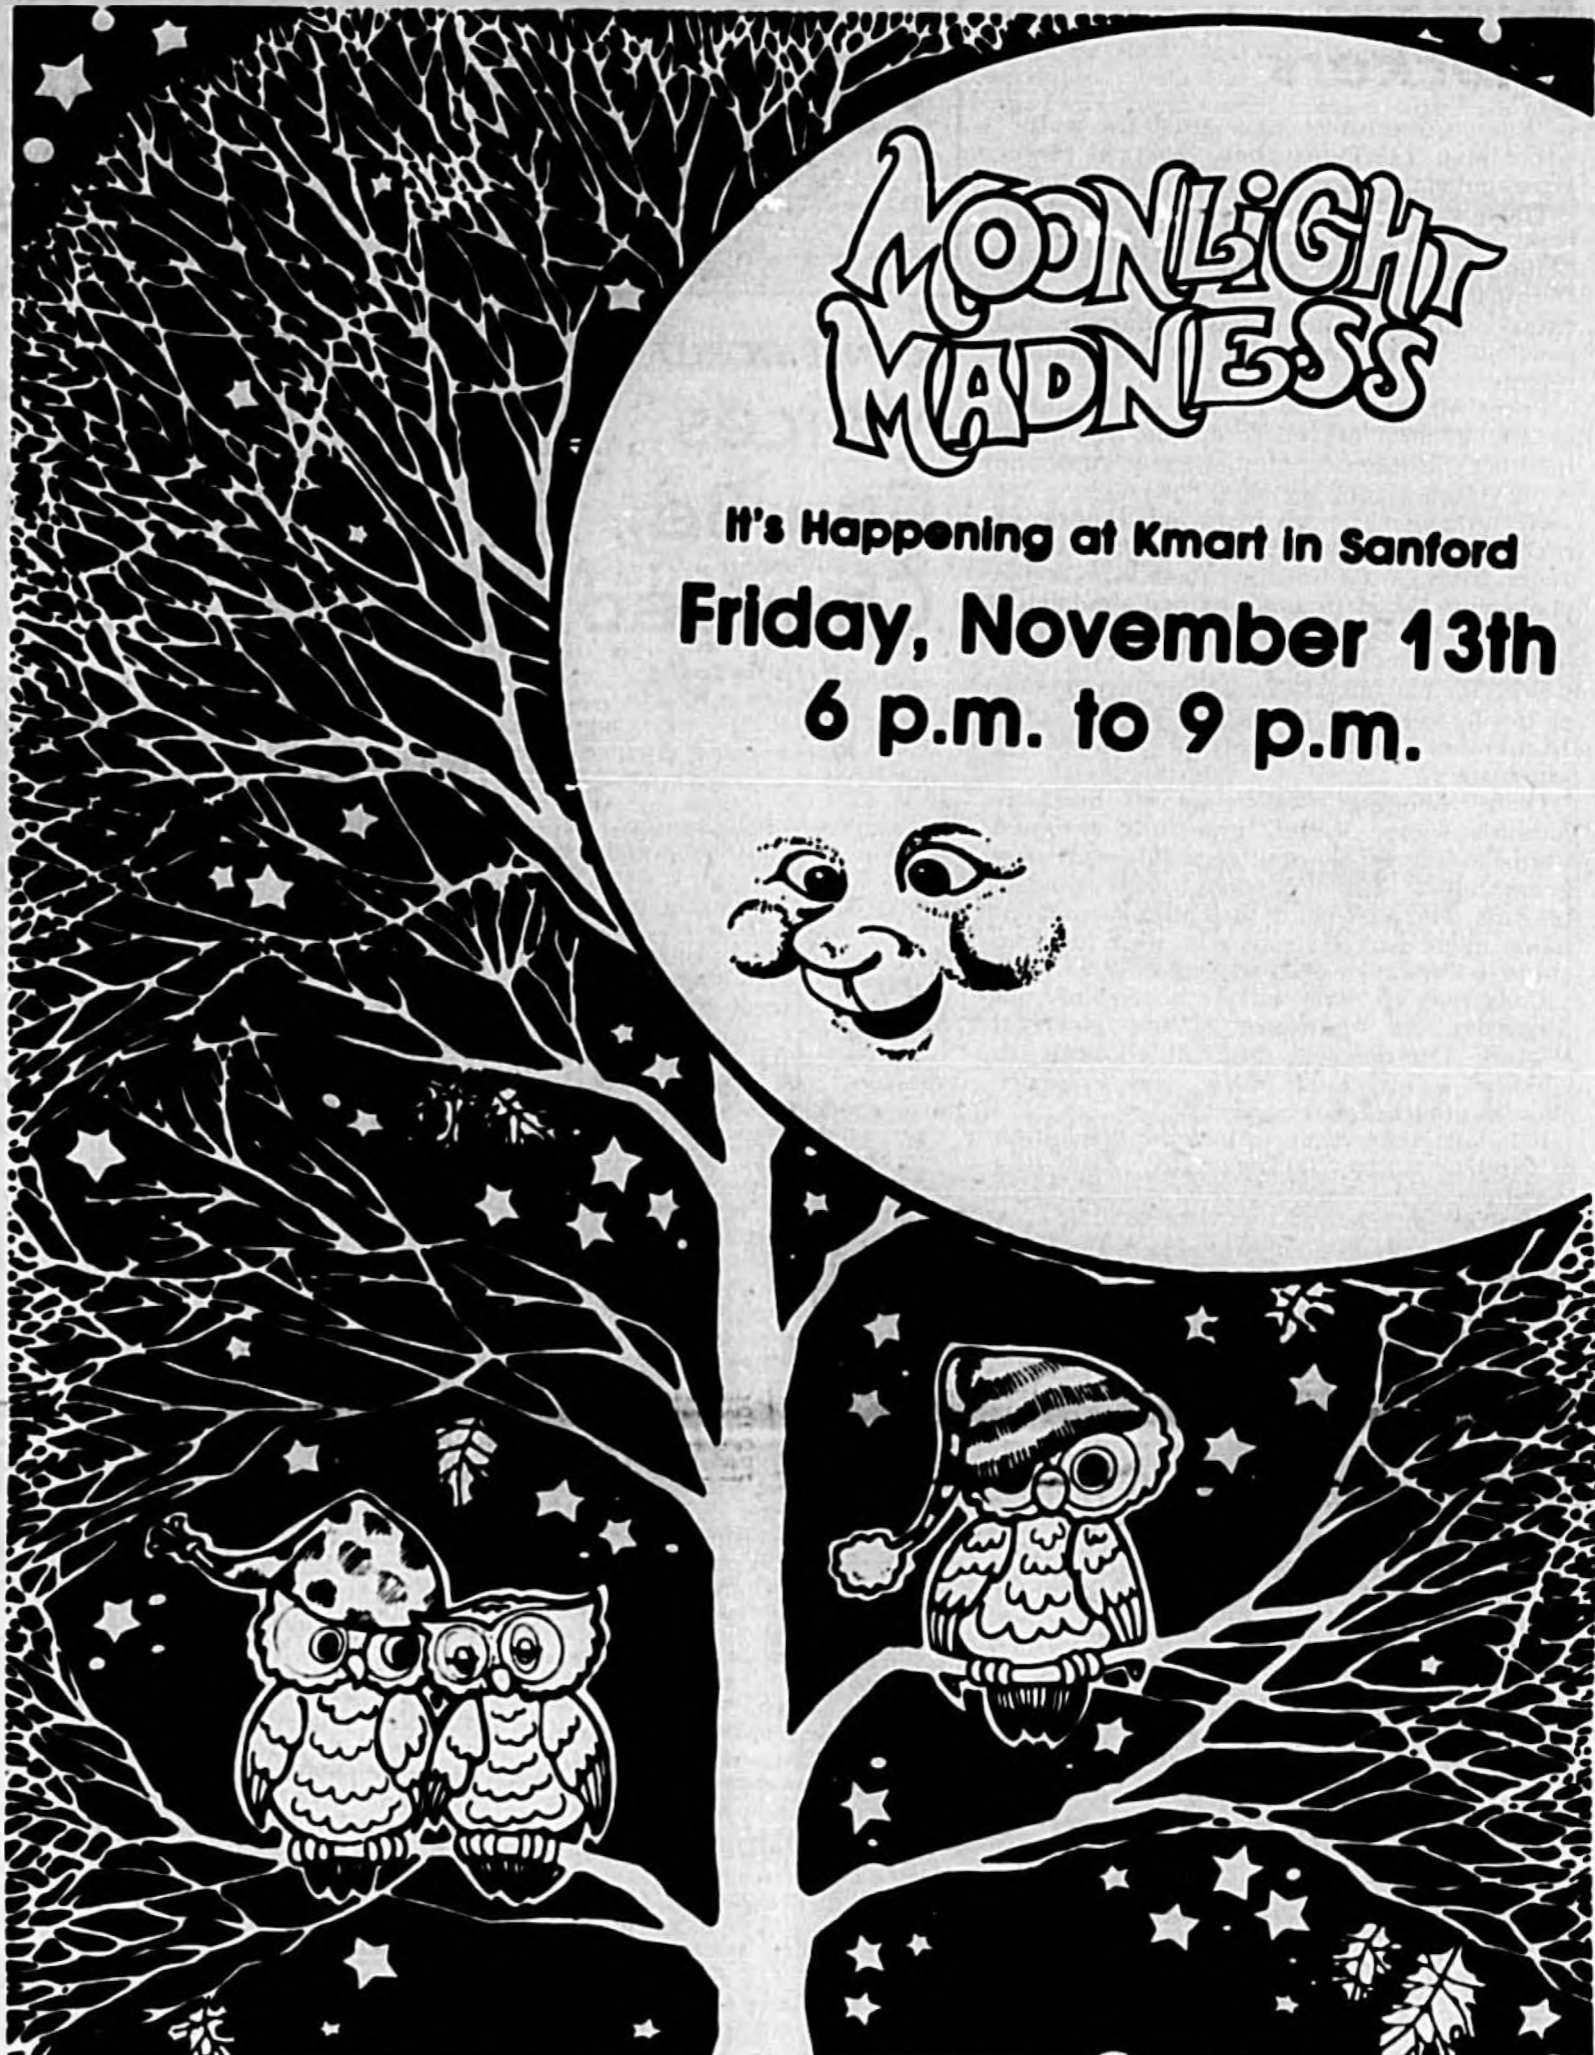

Some senators of the Republican right wing have criticized the White House for a perceived willingness to compromise after two stinging defeats and have suggested Kennedy might be too moderate to suit them. With that apparently in mind, Reagan pointedly termed the judge's credentials

"pure conservative."

Yet when asked about his provocative declaration during the Bork battle that he would send the Senate another nominee "they will object to just as much," Reagan moved to appease Democrats by terming that a "facetious" statement.

For his part, the 51-year-old Kennedy appeared eager to answer the question that derailed the 41-year-old Ginsburg: Whether he ever has smoked marijuana.

"The answer was no, firmly no," he told reporters.

Chinese Checkers

"Every Communist must grasp the truth," wrote Mao Tse-Tung, that "political power grows out of the barrel of a gun."

The father of Communist China would have been shocked by the recent changes in Beijing's political hierarchy. They were accomplished without violence and without the ritual vilification that have characterized previous shifts in power among Marxist regimes.

Prime Minister Zhao Ziyang was installed as the general secretary of the 46-million member Chinese Communist Party. At 68, he is the youngest man to hold the post.

He brings to the job fresh and innovative economic ideas that have, during the last few years, freed China from the feudalistic bonds of absolute Marxism and breathed a modicum of life into the economy with carefully applied free-market mechanisms.

With the elevation of Zhao, and the addition of his hand-picked candidates to the ruling 18-member Politburo, the old guard passed into history.

Deng Xiaoping, Zhao's patron and the nation's senior leader, gracefully resigned from the Central Committee to allow the new generation of leaders freedom to carry out the reforms. He took with him into retirement many aging party satraps who were likely to stand in the way of Zhao's agenda.

Deng may be gone, but he is certainly not forgotten. As chairman of the powerful Military Commission, he will continue to exercise tremendous power and influence over the affairs of party and state.

It is significant that, unlike the generation of Chinese leaders he succeeded, Zhao was too young to participate in the Great March of 1934, which became the litmus test of revolutionary zeal after the People's Republic was founded in 1949.

Despite these gaps in his political resume, Zhao's elevation guarantees the rejuvenation of the party leadership and places the architects of the country's modernization in the hands of a new generation.

As in the Soviet Union, however, openness in economic matters has not been matched by a similar commitment to greater political freedom. Zhao is sensitive to the charge, "There is already some dissent in China," he said, after the close of the 13th party congress. "But there is no absolute freedom in any country."

Perhaps not. But the total absence of political freedoms in the People's Republic is bound to hamstring the development of the cherished economic reforms in which Zhao has invested such great hope.

Olive Tree Caper

News on the BBC almost always is given in matter-of-fact style, and so was the story broadcast recently about the EEC fraud squad.

The European Economic Community is setting up a fraud squad probing how 10 percent of the community's budget is being stolen through fraud.

Some of the cheating gimmicks are not really new. There were stories two decades ago of products on which an export subsidy was collected, the cargo shipped down the coast a few dozen kilometers, imported, and then exported again for a double subsidy.

The BBC, though, had news of some new wrinkles. In Italy there are indications that subsidies have been paid for 20,000 or more olive trees that do not exist.

Signs of EEC fraud seem to center on Mediterranean areas, notably Italy and Greece. But who knows? It may simply be harder to keep a secret there. Impulses for a quick gain are common everywhere.

Western Europe is swimming in butter, olive oil and the like, as subsidies done for political reasons keep production high, and so a fraud squad is needed.

Fraud is not difficult when you have a scheme of subsidies and market controls on a variety of valuable commodities with elaborate accounting and fund transfers. The EEC has a jungle of them.

Gen. Colin Powell, This Man Is No Token

Paradox in politics: Consider the job of national security adviser to the president. The person in that job also runs the National Security Council. He is almost invariably one of the most powerful men in the executive branch of government. It's the post from which Henry Kissinger gained status as a world-class power broker. It's from whence Zbigniew Brzezinski rose to fame.

Originally, the Reagan administration intended to downgrade the post. But as we saw from the Iran-contra revelations about the roles of NSC advisers Robert McFarlane and John Poindexter, it's a hard post to downgrade. The adviser is located in the White House and in direct contact with the president.

America will soon have a new national security adviser. When Frank Carlucci leaves the adviser's role at the NSC to replace Casper Weinberger as secretary of defense, Carlucci will be succeeded by Lt. Gen. Colin Powell. By every standard, Powell is the right man for the job. He has been Carlucci's deputy and Weinberger's top military aide. He has been a White House fellow and a student at the National War College. He has commanded an Army corps in West Germany and a brigade of the 101st Airborne. He served two tours in Vietnam.

Oh, by the way, he is black.

In fact, he will probably be the most powerful black official in American history.

A protocol chart might tell you that Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Samuel Pierce, a black, outranks Gen. Powell. Or that former U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young outranked him (the U.N. job had Cabinet rank). But those are just lines on a chart. The U.N. job typically has lots of visibility but little power. Powell will be powerful and visible.

There has been little public comment about the fact that Powell is black. There are some refreshing reasons for this. First, the military has become the most integrated institution in America. About 20 percent of the U.S. military is black. About 10 percent of Army officers are black. Of the active Army generals, 7 percent are black.

So as Powell rose through the ranks, he was not that unusual. He was only excellent. When his turn came for the big job, it was not much news — because it felt naturally right. This was not Jesse Jackson running a sure-lose presidential candidacy but becoming famous because he was black. It was not Geraldine Ferraro, selected as vice presidential nominee because she was a woman, and becoming a sensation because of it.

The appointment did not make Colin Powell immediately famous because it was based on merit, not race or gender or politics. That is the way a society that salutes equality of opportunity is supposed to work.

There is a certain irony and paradox to all this. Ronald Reagan did the appointing. You remember Reagan, don't you? He's the president the liberal black leadership denounces for racial insensitivity. Democrats have been counting on using the race issue against the Republicans.

It may not work. Having made a highly principled decision, Reagan and the Republicans will organically gain tactical political advantage from it. Those are the rules of the road. Thus, Powell will be trying to gain support for a foreign policy that is in trouble.

Voices Can Be Changed

By Gayle Young
UPI Science Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Every human voice is as unique as a thumbprint, with its own resonance, pitch and tone.

Great voices have led multitudes into war, inspired them in speeches, enthralled them in theaters and captured their imaginations over the radio. And some say voices of poor quality have ruined acting careers, negatively influenced business deals and driven away romance.

"A voice is a reflection on the speaker," said Morton Cooper, a man who bills himself as "the voice coach of the stars. In our society, impressions count."

Most researchers agree that the sounds people make depend on what type of throat, vocal chords and nasal cavities they are born with. But many also believe people can change to some degree the quality, pitch and projection of their voice if they are unhappy with the one they have.

And some people, mostly those who speak in a low pitch with guttural tones, sometimes are forced to change the way they talk because years of incorrectly using their voices have ruined their vocal cords.

These researchers say accents, talking too fast or too slow, stuttering and slurring are problems of speech. They are interested in the voice—the actual sound that is used in speaking.

"Generally you can change the quality and characteristics of your voice to a certain degree," said Dee Child, professor of communicative disorders at Utah State University.

"But a lot depends on the equipment you're born with."

The sound emitted in speech starts when air from the lungs is forced through the trachea and vocal cords of the larynx. From there it gets resonance as it passes through the nose and sinus passages.

The quality of the voice is largely determined by the shape and size of these structures, but researchers say pitch and projection also play a major role and they are picked up from the environment.

People tend to speak in the same pitch and same fashion as did people who were around them when they were learning to speak.

"Everyone has a range of pitch they are born with," said Child, who noted some people are better at hitting high notes and others low. "But the habitual pitch, the one you use normally in speech, may be something you learn from whomever is around you."

How To Distribute That Oil?

By Jack Anderson
And
Dale Van Atta

The nation's emergency oil stockpile won't reach its targeted level of 750 million barrels until 1995, but Energy Department officials are already worrying over the best way to dole it out in a future crisis. By law it must be sold to the highest bidder, but officials are trying to figure out how to keep big distributors from profiteering. If the emergency were to last any great length of time, the needs of the military, and of the 21 other countries the United States is pledged to share the stockpile with, would send petroleum prices skyrocketing — perhaps five times higher than current prices, according to an Energy Department forecast. That would enrich distributors who bought government oil

WASHINGTON WORLD

Vote Count On Target

By Steve Gerstel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The opinion of White House chief of staff Howard Baker to the contrary, Sen. Alan Cranston of California is a superb head-counter. Just ask Judge Robert Bork.

At a time when the White House was still insisting the Senate would confirm Bork for the Supreme Court, Cranston unfurled his tally sheet that showed President Reagan's nominee hurrying to defeat.

That prompted Baker to proclaim Cranston "the worst head-counter in the Senate"—an off-the-cuff assessment that the chief of staff soon found extremely inedible.

The suspicion is that Baker's remark was no more than White House rah-rah rhetoric at a particularly grim time because he encountered Cranston's count capabilities numerous times as Senate Republican leader.

Or, perhaps, he was banking everything on a glaring Cranston failure, the sale of AWCS planes to Saudi Arabia some years ago. In that instance, some of the sponsors of the resolution that would have killed the sale were turned at the last moment by the White House.

The best indication that Baker did not mean what he said was that shortly before Reagan settled on nominee No. 2, one of his aides was asking how he thought Judge David Ginsburg, the chosen one, and Judge Anthony Kennedy, the leftover at that moment, would fare in the Senate.

For the brief time that the Ginsburg nomination flourished, it promised a more difficult task for Cranston. That had nothing to do with any inability on Cranston's part but with the almost absolute mystery about who Ginsburg was and what he stood for.

The Ginsburg problem was solved when the nomination went up in smoke.

It seemed only moments after

Reagan nominated Cranston was prepared for the first public counting of votes. He could count 40-plus, about even, leaning for or against. But then Bork, with fingerprints all over the Constitution, was a much easier target.

Cranston's count on Bork was very close to the 58-42 vote, although he played it conservatively, privately listing Sens. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., and James Exon, D-Neb., as leaning for Bork. They voted against him. The only senator Cranston could not figure out just about until he voted was Sen. John Warner, R-Va., who also went nay.

One of the keys to Cranston's success is that he deals only with numbers, never in names or party affiliation. A close aide says Cranston "guards that very carefully, otherwise his credibility is lost."

Working from a long, narrow Senate tally sheet, which eventually becomes a maze of jots and dots, switches, erasures, pluses, minuses and other assorted chicken marks, Cranston begins with a base of 70 or so predictable votes, which are not the same on every issue.

He concentrates on the swing 20-30 senators, working on them, in one way or another, until he feels comfortable plucking them from the undecided or the unknown category. Some, like Warner, never make it.

Cranston enjoys the role of head counter, which falls to him as Democratic whip, but he does it only on major issues and mostly reserves the effort for those issues that are important to him.

For the media, Cranston's count is a numbers game. For him, it is a way to find out also if there is a way to convince a senator of Cranston's position, who, as an aide puts it, can be influenced, who is wavering, who will be out of town.

ROBERT WALTERS

Afraid Of Big, Bad Wolf?

KALISPELL, Mont. (NEA)—In an era when the high-powered public relations campaign is often viewed as a solution to all problems, few creatures are more in need of a PR effort than wolves.

Most of us begin to fear wolves in early childhood, when we are told stories about the beasts who blew down the Three Little Pigs' flimsy homes in a vain quest for porcine prey, and who devoured Little Red Riding Hood's grandmother and almost consumed the young lady as well.

Older youngsters hear spine-tingling tales of bloodthirsty marauders howling at the moon and of a terrifying phenomenon known as lycanthropy—the purported transformation of people into werewolves.

Thus, it is hardly surprising that the Interior Department's Northern Rocky Mountain Wolf Recovery Plan, a proposal to reintroduce wolves into three states, has not received overwhelming public acclaim.

For hundreds of years, the species known as the gray wolf or timber wolf roamed almost the entire nation (except the southeastern states and southern California) prey upon deer, elk, moose and bison.

The West's early European settlers decimated those animals to satisfy their own hunting requirements, then replaced them with domestic livestock, notably cattle and sheep. When the wolves turned on those animals for food, they became the object of the ranchers' hatred and vengeance.

Generous bounties fueled a campaign that almost wiped out the species in this country. In Montana alone, more than 80,000 were killed between 1883 and 1918.

Wolves are not cute, cuddly pets but neither are they savage beasts. The best evidence of their behavior comes from the only place in the contiguous 48 states where substantial numbers still exist—northeastern Minnesota around the community of Ely.

Approximately 1,200 roam the sparsely populated 30,000-square-mile region, as do almost 250,000 cattle and 90,000 sheep—but only about 75 ranch animals are lost in verified wolf attacks every year because the wolves prefer to feed on wild prey.

The region's most remote sector is the Boundary Waters National Canoe Area. Thousands of vacationers visit it every summer, but none has ever been attacked by a wolf.

Indeed, there is no record of a wild, healthy wolf ever injuring a person in an unprovoked attack.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Gov. Martinez Announces New Anti-Crime Initiative For State

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Gov. Bob Martinez says Floridians have lost faith in the criminal justice system, and promises a "new strategy" to strike back at crime.

"Florida's criminal justice system is not in good order, and it is clear law-abiding society is running a distant second in the war against crime," Martinez told a group of police chiefs from around the state Wednesday. "We cannot permit our citizens to continue to feel that the criminals are winning."

The governor called for the creation of special units to target "superfelons," the 15 percent of criminals who account for 65 percent of all crimes. He proposed establishing one unit, consisting of law enforcement officers, prosecutors and judges, for each 500,000 people.

Martinez branded those superfelons "predators," and said they should face tougher penalties from judges unwilling to accept plea bargains. They should be incarcerated away from first-time offenders and non-career criminals, he said.

AIDS Commission Tours Clinics

MIAMI (UPI) — The commission studying AIDS is hearing continuous calls for more money and better research coordination during its tour of south Florida, repetition one commission member calls helpful.

"It's reinforcement. Very dramatic reinforcement," said Dr. Burton Lee of the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York.

"There comes a time when the federal government has to step up to bat," he said.

The 13-member Presidential Commission on Human Immuno-Deficiency Virus Epidemics began meeting Tuesday in Palm Beach County, and moved to Broward and Dade counties Wednesday.

Mother Won't Pay Medical Bill

MIAMI (UPI) — The mother of 7-year-old liver transplant patient Ronnie DeSillers says it will take a court order to make her pay the outstanding balance on her dead son's $450,000 medical bill.

At a news conference Wednesday, Maria DeSillers also said her attorney, noted personal injury lawyer Stanley Rosenblatt, was investigating the medical care Ronnie received at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh to determine whether grounds for a malpractice suit exist.

"If that's what it takes to help other children, that's what I will do," she said.

DeSillers' statements came in response to a suit filed against her Monday by Children's Hospital for non-payment of $261,000 in bills incurred during Ronnie's three liver transplants. The youth died April 29th while awaiting a fourth transplant.

Decathlon Doesn't Slow Down Reno Orthodontist

The desire to be competitive remains strong with some people even after they reach an age where others would slow down and take it easy. Slowing down is the last thing one competitor in Sanford's Golden Age Games two-day decathlon event wants to do.

A. Ricciardi is a 67-year-old retired orthodontist from Reno, Nevada. On Wednesday morning he squared-off against five other men in his age class in what is considered as one of toughest events in sports.

The Golden Age Games decathlon consists of 10 separate events including the shot put, long jump, baseball hit (replaces pole vault), 50, 100 and 220-yard dashes, high jump, football throw (replaces javelin throw) and discus. While some of the replacement events are not of the same caliber of physical exertion as the original events are, the level of competition has and will be just as high as in any decathlon.

The events were split with five of them being run Wednesday and the remaining five being held Thursday.

Ricciardi said this is the second year he's participated in the Golden Age Games. He just finished competing in the North American Masters Track and Field Championships in West Palm Beach two weeks ago.

With his wife Terry also competing in the Golden Age Games, Ricciardi said he's saving things like gold and tennis for his old age. "I tell that to my grandchildren," he said. Ricciardi has 14 grandchildren.

When he retired four years ago Ricciardi said he couldn't stand being away from "the im-

Fundraiser Held For Knickerbocker

About 135 people attended a $100-per-plate fundraising breakfast Tuesday for David Knickerbocker, Republican candidate for the District 1 seat on the Seminole County Board of Commissioners in next year's election.

Among those who took part in the program were Rep. Art Grindle, Sheriff John Polk, Commissioners Fred Streetman and Bob Sturm, Republican State Committeeman Jim Stelling, and Dick Van Der Weide, Knickerbocker's campaign chairman.

Knickerbocker is so far the only announced candidate for the District 1 seat, now held by Republican Barbara Christensen.

Badminton Means Gold For Blaesing

Maryann Cross

"Nice shot," called Elmer Blaesing, 75, to opponent Al Tumin, 64, as Blaesing ran to the net to return the serve. "What are you trying to do, make me sweat?" he asked.

The two men, entered in the 64-75 age category of the Golden Age Games' badminton tournament Wednesday, bantered back and forth as they played. There was an air of good humor and friendly competitiveness as they played. Blaesing's rugged face broke into a grin as he missed an easy shot.

"I must have been sleeping," he said to Tumin. "That's your point."

Playing two games, Blaesing won both to capture the gold medal in his category. When he sat down after the match, a thin layer of sweat covered his forehead.

"I've signed up for seven events in the Golden Age Games," Blaesing said. "I'm in second place in the bowling tournament so far, which finishes on Friday. I placed second in table tennis and first in free throws."

"I'm slowing down for the end of the week, though," he added with a grin. "I play cribbage today at one, then pinochle on Friday and bridge on Saturday."

Blaesing lives in Pierson, Florida, and said this is the second year he's participated in the Golden Age Games. Last year he placed second in table tennis.

"It's great fun," Blaesing said. "I've met so many nice people. I've been taking pictures and I have a list of about 14 people. I've promised I'll send pictures to when I get the film developed."

"Bowling's my line," Blaesing said. "I didn't start playing until I was 45. Now I love the game."

My average is 192."

Blaesing has been the Wisconsin State Champion for the senior division and is now the senior doubles champion of West Volusia County.

"I've had my years," he said, smiling. "The first year I started in League bowling, I was the state champion."

Born in Racine, Wisconsin, Blaesing taught sports for the Racine Parks and Recreation Department. When he moved to Temple City, California, he worked for a golf course and a park until he retired. Blaesing also refereed baseball and basketball for 33 years.

"I keep in shape by working around the resort where I live a couple days a week doing general maintenance," Blaesing said. "I've been a Christian for 53 years. When you live on the straight and narrow course, you don't go out carousing and drinking all night."

Two Men Arrested On Drug Charges

City County Investigative Bureau agents who arrested an accused drug dealer at that man's Altamonte Springs home Tuesday reported that the suspect called his alleged supplier to the scene and that man was arrested too.

The accused dealer, Umberto Marco Velocci, 24, of 276 Spring Colony Circle #125, reportedly struggled with agents arresting him and was charged with resisting arrest with violence in addition to trafficking in cocaine. Eric John Lutz, 22, of 110 Sugar Maple Court, Sanford, the accused supplier, has been charged with trafficking in cocaine. Both were being held without bond.

An agent reported meeting Velocci at Velocci's home at about 6 p.m. The agent said Velocci presented a bag of cocaine to be sold. A second bag of cocaine was reportedly found in the home after the first arrest.

Velocci reportedly told CCIB agents his supplier was at a restaurant. Velocci phoned the supplier at the restaurant and the other suspect reportedly agreed to come to Velocci's home to pick up cash and to deliver more cocaine for a second sale.

Agents hid in a bedroom and reported hearing the two suspects in the living room discuss cocaine deals. Lutz was arrested after that conversation at about 10 p.m., agents reported.

"I feel very strong about helping children in need and I'm glad I can lend a hand," Bailey said of his participation in the event. He will also have as his special guests, the country group Bite the Bullet.

Sanford Mayor Betty Smith will be on hand at the event to present a key to the city to Bailey. "I will be there to support a worthy cause," Smith said.

Chuck Suggs and his family have been in London since Oct. 9, first for medical evaluations to see if he was a candidate for the transplant, and now to wait for a donor to supply the heart and lungs he needs to survive.

Ed Suggs, Chuck's father, said his son seems to be doing fine, although the entire family is homesick. "We're just sitting around waiting for donor," he said. He added that Chuck's condition has not deteriorated any since they left the United States.

One of the big problems the family has is they don't seem to be getting their mail. He also said his family is having a difficult time adjusting to English television programs, but that people working to help Chuck back in the states were trying to arrange for a VCR to be sent to them.

Doctors working on Chuck's case have said they plan to make his medical history part of a documentary, according to Ed Suggs. The piece will follow Chuck through the surgical procedure, when it takes place, through his progress through at least the following five years.

How To Make The Most Of A Blown-Out Fishing Day

Par for the course, the wind has been howling every weekend for the last month and a half. Cold fronts and strong winds from high pressure areas are a way of life this time of the year.

How can we make the most of a blown-out fishing day? First of all, the wind can be used as an ally instead of a hated enemy. Strong winds often force shad and other baitfish into areas such as points. Bass will often school up and gorge themselves during such conditions. The bass will feed in flurries, as each school of baitfish passes by. The fishing can be fast and furious. If you are patient enough to wait out the lulls.

The best way to fish a wind blown area such as a point is to anchor. Why fight the wind with your trolling motor, when you can anchor up and concentrate on your fishing instead of the wind?

Another overlooked fishing method in windy conditions is to wade fish. With today's modern technology, many simple aspects of fishing are being overlooked. Wading is an amazing simple, relaxful way to fish that is ignored by many of today's anglers. You can fish small areas thoroughly without spooking fish. You don't have to worry about the boat or working the trolling motor against gusty winds.

One of the few areas that wade fishing is still commonly practiced is the Puzzle Lake area of the St. Johns River. I was introduced to this type of fishing by Buck Metts. A Sanford athletic star in his high school and college days. Buck loves to park his boat and jump out with a stringer and a rod to catch a mess of bass.

Another alternative to fighting the wind with a trolling motor is to troll with your outboard motor. Trolling isn't limited just to salt water. It is an extremely effective method for catching bass, too. Using different types of plugs and different line diameters, you can probe various depths until you find fish. Then it's simply a matter of tossing out a marker and working the area over for more bass.

Don't let the wind beat you! Fight back by anchoring, wading and trolling.

FISHING FORECAST: Rick Rawlins at Highland Park Fish Camp reports that the specks are hitting in Lake Woodruff on Hal Flies and Missouri Minnows. Stringers of 20-30 are average. Some decent bass are being caught on wild shiners fished in the river and in Lake Woodruff. Use a cork and fish shiners next to floating cover for some exciting action.

Dell Abernethy at Osteen Bridge Fish Camp reports that bass fishing is red hot! The bass are off the main river channel. Look for moving water at the mouth of sloughs and creeks for quick action from bass in the 2-5 pound range. Eddie Hussard and other local anglers have been loading the boat for the past week. Dell said that specks are still scattered, with some anglers catching their limits, and others only catching a few.

Sebastian Inlet is still producing good numbers of snook and redfish. Most of the reds are well above the 27 inch legal limit, but the great majority of the snook are keepers (over 24 inches). Live finger mullet are getting most of the fish, but jigs, Mirrolures, Rebels, and Rapalas will also get the job done. Some flounder are also being caught by anglers bouncing finger mullet slowly across the bottom.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral said that offshore fishing has been impossible due to high seas. Inside the Port, bluefish, flounder, sheepshead, mangrove snapper, and a few snook are being caught. A few fishermen have been catching good numbers of small snook in the barge canal that connects the Banana and Indian Rivers. Redfish and snook are active in the Banana and Indian Rivers. Fish the flats with topwater plugs or gold spoons for good action.

Things have been rough at the New Smyrna Jetty, but anglers have been catching redfish, sheepshead, whiting, drum, bluefish, and flounder. Shrimp is the best all around bait, and finger mullet are a close second.

SUPE'S SCOOP: A small length of galvanized chain added above your anchor will give it increased holding power. The weight of the chain will make the rope lie flat and cause the anchor to dig in more quickly and more efficiently.

Clemens Takes 2nd AL Cy Young

KATY, Texas (UPI) — How good is Roger Clemens? The Boston right-hander is good enough to be the best pitcher in the American League even without going through spring training.

Clemens, who won his second consecutive AL Cy Young Award Wednesday, says he still has bad feelings about having to walk out of camp this spring in a contract dispute.

The Red Sox ace captured 21 of 28 first-place votes from members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America to become the first player to capture consecutive Cy Youngs since Baltimore's Jim Palmer in 1975-76.

"The holdout was not pleasant at all," the 20-game winner said. "I can't believe it (the walk out) happened. I had to walk out of camp, which is not Roger Clemens' style. I don't do those things. It was very tough on me throughout those times. I knew I couldn't hold any grudges and I had to put it in the past."

Clemens missed 30 days of spring training last March and was fined $1,000 per day, which is more than made up by the $150,000 bonus he will receive for winning the Cy Young.

The award, however, translates into $300,000 because the bonus will be added to his $1.2 million base pay for next season. He earned $500,000 for this past season, before the bonus.

"The award is most important," said Clemens, 25. "The money part of it is very nice, but again, I worked my butt off for that money. I earned it. I knew there was a rollover clause. I'm not superstitious or anything, but I don't look at my contract until I win these things, but it'll go to good use, maybe a trust fund for (son) Coby."

Baseball

Clemens did not start a game until April 11 and did not win until April 21. As late as May 22, he owned a 3-4 record but won 17 of his last 22 decisions. He also led the majors with 18 complete games and seven shutouts.

Clemens overwhelmed Toronto's Jimmy Key and Oakland's Dave Stewart in the voting. He was the only pitcher in either league this year to be named on every ballot, and received the news on a telephone in his Porsche, after a traffic jam in the Houston area prevented him from being home to take the call.

"I was down near the Astrodome doing a baseball film with (Houston pitcher) Nolan Ryan," Clemens said. "It was the most exciting moment for me when I've been caught in Houston traffic. I about ran some people over."

"It's gratifying because it puts me in a class with people I looked up to: (Sandy) Koufax, (Denny) McLain and Palmer. I felt I beat the Cy Young jinx. A lot of guys have gone by the wayside after having a good year."

"Last year, I knew I was going to win. It was just a question of by how much. This year there was more anticipation. Now maybe I have a chance to do something nobody's ever done and that's win it three times."

Clemens, 20-9, tied Stewart for most victories in the league. His 2.97 ERA ranked third behind Key and Frank Viola, and his 256 strikeouts left him only six behind league-leader Mark Langston.

Merritt Island, 30-3, Relies On Experience

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Merritt Island's Lady Mustangs, after ending two years of region futility, take a 30-3 record and a lot of confidence into Friday night's 4A-3 Section playoff at Lake Brantley High (game time 7 p.m.).

"We won the district three years in a row, but this is our first region championship," Merritt Island coach Betty Walden said. "We lost to Spanish River the two previous times in region and both times they went to state. After beating them this year, we're looking to go to state."

Merritt Island took the region title over Spanish River in two games, 15-11, 15-12. Lake Brantley devastated Orlando Evans' Lady Trojans, 15-4, 12-15, 15-6. In the Region 5 playoff.

Merritt Island relies on experience to carry its club as it starts six seniors, four of whom have been three-year starters. Hitters Trina Skinner and Tina Newman, setter Michelle Byrd and defensive specialist Kelley Shotwell have been starting since their sophomore seasons and they are the nucleus of this year's team.

Also in the starting lineup for the Lady Mustangs are seniors Lisa Lewis, Tiffany Davis and Tonya Hughes. Bench strength comes from sophomores Tonya Hamilton and Bridget Yost and juniors Denice Lewis and Sonya Huncycutt.

"Experience is our main strength," Walden said. "The girls play very well together, they have excellent team chemistry. We don't have a real star and we don't have real big people but we are very consistent in everything we do."

Two of Merritt Island's three losses this season came in the Tampa Prep Tournament, one to Tampa Prep and one to Bradenton Manatee, two teams that are also currently playing in the playoffs. The other loss was a Cape Coast Conference setback to Satellite which Walden said was the Mustangs' worst effort of the year.

"We know Merritt Island is a good, solid team," Lake Brantley coach Stephanie Glance said. "They have some great hitters but we have a great block that we put up. It should be an interesting match."

Lake Brantley and Merritt Island did meet once this season, but that was the second match of the year for the Lady Patriots. Since then, Lake Brantley has improved by leaps and bounds and is one of the hottest teams around going into the section playoff.

"We saw Lake Brantley but that was too early to really tell anything," Walden said. "At least we know what they have height-wise and what we have to contend with there."

Glance concurred that the early-season meeting is not much to go on at this point. "We played them our second match and we've come so far since then," Glance said. "I know Merritt Island has improved to, but we feel we are very capable of winning if every single person has her best match."

Land O' Lakes: Season Of Comebacks

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Comeback is a word that the Land O' Lakes Lady Gators have been very familiar with this season.

After a sluggish start, the defending 3A-2 Section champions came back to win the district title in three games, then bounced back from a first-game loss and a 14-10 third-game deficit on Tuesday to defeat Tampa Plant, 7-15, 15-11, 16-14 in the 3A-4 Region playoff.

"It ages the coach a little bit but it's good when a team can come from behind like that," Land O' Lakes coach Jerry Stacy said. "Because when the situation arises again, it won't be new to the girls and they might be able to handle it a little better."

Oviedo Hosts Land O' Lakes In 3A-2 Section Playoff

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

For the second year in a row, Oviedo's Lady Lions are a member of Class 3A's "Elite Eight."

While being one of the top eight teams in the state is quite an accomplishment, the Lady Lions have their sights set on a berth in the Final Four.

Last year, it turned out to be only a dream as a nervous Oviedo team bowed out in the sectional at Land O' Lakes. In 1987, the Lady Lions will host Land O' Lakes in the sectional and they control their own destiny.

"The girls said they can't wait to play Land O' Lakes again," Oviedo coach Anita Carlson said. "Last year, they went over to Land O' Lakes and really didn't play their game. This year, they want to show Land O' Lakes just how good they can be."

The 3A-2 Section playoff will be played Friday at 4 p.m. at Oviedo High School. The Lady Lions take a 22-2 record into the sectional while Land O' Lakes comes in a 16-12. The winner goes on to the Class 3A State Tournament next Friday.

"We should be settled down since we're playing at home,"

Carlson said. "The girls are really anxious and ready to go. And we're hoping to have a good crowd."

Oviedo advanced to the sectional playoff with a 15-13, 15-10 victory over Gainesville High in Region 3 play on Tuesday night. The Lady Lions' strength is in their team unity and an offensive attack that can be overwhelming when it's on.

The Lady Lions have several capable hitters led by senior captain Jill Knutson and junior Suzanne Hughes. Both had some big kills in Tuesday's region match. Seniors Jodie Switzer and Bobbie Kelley and juniors Anna Hollis and Kerstin Colon have also contributed to the attack while Knutson and Switzer have been impressive in the setting department.

"If we go out and play our game we should do fine," Carlson said. "We have to keep setting up and hitting and try not to let Land O' Lakes get on offense."

Serving also could be a key for Oviedo Friday as Carlson said Land O' Lakes' weakness may be in serve return. Serving has been a key for the Lady Lions in their district championship and region victories.

"I heard serve return is not one of Land O' Lakes' strong points," Carlson said. "And serving has been a definite strong point for us the last few games."

"Anna (Hollis), Jodie (Switzer), Suzanne (Hughes) and Jill (Knutson) have all been serving well," added Carlson. "And if Bobbie (Kelley) is on, it always gets us started well."

While Oviedo's offensive attack, setting and serving are as good if not better than last year, one area where the Lady Lions were hit hardest by graduate was defense. With outstanding back row players such as Cindy Wood, Trudy Ferguson and Mikki Eby graduating, it left a big hole for Carlson to fill. But sophomore

Big East Has No Clear Favorite

United Press International
Looking for a Big East favorite? Try Pittownacuc.

The trioka of Pittsburgh, Georgetown and Syracuse should again rule the league, which a year ago sent two teams to the Final Four and had a third among the last eight.

The Panthers, Hoyas and Orangemen tied for the conference regular-season title last year with Georgetown capturing the post-season tournament and Syracuse losing by a single point in the national championship game.

Among the others, Seton Hall should challenge for a first-division finish. Providence will try to duplicate its NCAA magic of last season and St. John's must rebuild. Villanova, Boston College and Connecticut will fight to stay out of the basement.

Pitt Coach Paul Evans welcomes back center Charles Smith and forward Jerome Lane, the nation's top rebounder last year. Smith considered jumping to the NBA early but decided to stay in school.

"You can talk about our freshman but Charles was the key recruit," Evans said. Foremost among the freshman are guard Sean Miller and forward Bobby Martin. Combined with returnees Demetrius Gore and Rod Brookin, Pitt should have the one feature it was missing last year — depth.

Georgetown will be even more faceless this year than a season ago. Gone is forward Reggie Williams, who led the team in scoring and rebounding. Forward Perry McDonald is the only returning Hoya who scored in double figures.

"We have a lot of experienced players but what we don't have is the lake-charge guy." Georgetown Coach John Thompson said. "Offensively, we have some questions that we'll have to answer but we'll get them answered."

Syracuse will be loaded. Center Rony Seikaly, forward Derrick Coleman and guard Sherman Douglas are back. But the Orangemen may miss Greg Monroe and Howard Triche, important cogs in the NCAA drive last season.

Earl Duncan, who sat out last year under Proposition 48, Keith Hughes, Stevie Thompson and Derek Brewer will vie for starting spots.

As unlikely as Providence's run to the Final Four last year, even more improbable would be a return. Rick Pitino bolted to the NBA leaving new coach Gordie Chiles with a system reliant on 3-pointers and pressing defense but without Billy Donovan, the man who best carried out the plan.

"I think Rick Pitino or God could be the coach this year and they won't go to the Final Four," Pitt's Evans said. "Last year they got all the breaks. They were the Cinderella team."

Guards Delray Brooks and Carlton Screeen will share Donovan's responsibilities. "Delray will take care of the scoring and leadership and Carlton will do the penetrating and passing," Chiles said.

Seton Hall returns five starters from last year's team, the first Pirate squad since 1960 to finish above .500. Center Mark Bryant is the top player but 5-3 Pokey Wigginton, a junior-college transfer, has drawn the most attention.

St. John's lost Mark Jackson and Willie Glass but Lou Carnesecca recruited Juco transfers Greg Harvey and Michael Porter to bolster the backcourt.

In the Atlantic 10, Temple figures to be the class of an improving league. The Owls, under John Chaney, won both the A-10 regular season and tournament titles last year. Gone is star guard Nate Blackwell but Chaney recruited prep standout Mark Macon.

Macon should start in the backcourt alongside point guard Howie Evans. The frontcourt will look the same as last year with Tim Perry and Mike Vreeswyk flanking center Ramon Rivas.

Rhode Island and West Virginia could challenge the Owls. The Rams return five starters, led by guard Carlton Owens and forward Kenny Green.

West Virginia, the conference team to beat Temple last year, lost three starters but forward Chris Brooks, a Proposition 48 casualty last year, should make an immediate impact. Other top players are forwards Tyrone Shaw and Darryl Prue.

Penn State should improve. St. Joseph's returns 6-foot-8, 250-pound center Rodney Blake but little else. Duquesne, George Washington, St. Bonaventure, Massachusetts and Rutgers will all struggle to avoid the second division.

In the Ivy League, Dartmouth may threaten the traditional domination of the league by Penn and Princeton. The Big Green return guards Len Bazelak and Bryan Randall and swingman Jim Barton. The trio combined for 53 points a game.

Carolina, Tech Duke To Vie For ACC Title

United Press International
Forecasting the Atlantic Coast Conference race usually goes like this: North Carolina and Villanova fill in the blank and Duke and Georgia Tech fill the blank.

North Carolina State tops the second tier, joining Maryland, Virginia and Clemson. Only Wake Forest figures to make little impact on the league.

North Carolina lost three starters and its top reserve from a 32-4 team that was undefeated during the conference regular season. Two of the missing are guard Kenny Smith and forward Joe Wolf, both first-round NBA picks.

But the Tar Heels return 6-foot-9, 250-pound sophomore J.R. Reid and junior guard Jeff Lebo. Reid, last year's ACC Rookie of the Year, averaged 14.7 points and 7.4 rebounds. Lebo will move from off guard to the point to replace Kenny Smith. The only senior is guard Ranzi Smith.

"It's the youngest team I've ever had, with one senior and two juniors," Coach Dean Smith said. "Still I think we could be a very good team." No team in the league can match Duke's depth. The Blue Devils lost one starter, point guard Tommy Amaker, from a 24-9 squad. But they are laden with talent, especially on the frontline with 6-10 Danny Ferry, 6-7 John Smith and 6-6 Billy King.

"Our strengths are depth and experience," Blue Devil Coach Mike Krzyzewski said.

Georgia Tech has a nice blend, especially in forwards Tom Hammonds and Duane Ferrell. But the only center is 6-11 James Munlyn, who managed just 2.9 points and 2 rebounds last year.

"We can work around that on offense," Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins said. "But our problem is going to be stopping the other guys' big men."

N.C. State could join the league's upper echelon if it gets good contributions from a solid freshman corps. The returnees, including 6-10 center Charles Shackelford, have been flashy but inconsistent.

Maryland's program bottomed out last year in the wake of the death of Len Bias. But there's optimism under second-year Coach Bob Wade.

The frontline should be strong, with 6-7 Derrick Lewis the only returning first-team All-ACC member. Brian Williams, a 6-10 freshman, was one of the most highly sought high school players.

Virginia lost two starters and Clemson three. Both may take time to find replacements, but can look to excellent point guards — the Cavaliers' John Johnson and the Tigers' Grayson Marshall.

Wake Forest faces its first year without 5-3 Tyrone Bogues, who led the league in assists the last two seasons. The only returnee of note is 6-7 sophomore Sam Ivy.

Payton Sharing The Load In His 13th Season

CHICAGO (UPI) — There are ample examples of all-time great professional athletes staying around one year too long.

Athletes past their prime often tarnish their image by getting one extra campaign out of a body that should have called it quits earlier. Willie Mays with the New York Mets, Bob Cousy with the Cincinnati Royals and Franco Harris with the Seattle Seahawks come to mind as of late.

It's premature to put Walter Payton in that category — yet. But Payton, in his 13th and what he insists is his final NFL season, isn't going out the way many people would have liked.

After gaining 1,333 yards in his 12th season to extend his NFL career rushing mark, Payton has found the going tough this year. Not only is he likely to gain fewer yards than any time in his career, but he has seen the backfield spotlight taken away by second-year pro Neal Anderson.

There is the NFL strike to consider here. Payton missed four games and the argument can be made that at his age, coming back is harder than it is for a younger player.

But statistics seldom lie. Payton didn't get over the 100-yard rushing mark for the season until midway through the Nov. 1 game with Kansas City. The 100-yard mark for a single game is one of Payton's trademarks.

Football

Payton has always had a love-hate relationship with the print media and dismissed any notion of his slowing down.

"We're winning. That's what's important. That's what I've been saying all along but you guys don't always listen," Payton says.

Bears' Coach Mike Ditka is quick to rush to Payton's defense when any mention of Payton having an off-year is made.

"You guys don't see it, but his blocking has never been better," Ditka says. "He's out there catching passes, too. We just haven't been in a position to get Walter the ball as much as in the past."

Part of Ditka's theory is true. Chicago has fallen way behind in some games this year, forcing it to go to the pass more often.

"What I like about what we're doing still is that we're so versatile. We've got so many different formations that we can confuse opponents," Payton says. "Again, we're falling behind so we haven't been running as much."

In the past several years, the Bears have dominated opponents early. They went to the running game and that meant Payton would get 25 to 30 carries per game.

"Walter is still the best athlete I've ever seen," says Bears' running back coach Johnny Roland. "We also have another running back in there in Neal Anderson and he needs to get a certain amount of carries."

Ditka also denies the Bears have started to abandon Payton as part of the game plan.

"Look at the number of carries. It's about split even, isn't it?" Ditka asks.

But Ditka insists he wants to use his entire corps of running backs for the final seven games of the season.

"Now you guys (the media) may look at it that we won't be using this one guy (Payton) as much and that's fine if that's how you want to look at it," Ditka says, "but that also means Anderson won't get as many carries."

The running chores have been split equally between Payton and Anderson. But for more than a decade, Payton has been a workhorse back who usually carried the ball two times out of every three for Chicago.

While Payton's numbers are down considerably this year — he has 160 yards in five games — he is still playing on what many consider the best team in the NFL. He also manages to avoid injuries which may be the most amazing statistic in his arsenal.

He hasn't missed a start since his rookie season but some argue his ability to shake off the smaller, nagging injuries may be hurting him.

"I've never seen anyone like him. He's the best athlete I've ever seen and he's still the best player in the NFL," Ditka says.

The recent NFL strike prompted some suggestions that Payton might reconsider and stay around an extra year.

"This is still my last," Payton says. "I want to go out with a Super Bowl ring again."

Payton will miss football but has the ambitious goal of obtaining a NFL expansion franchise. He has already met with NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle on the subject. He also has several business ventures including a restaurant in suburban Chicago.

Whether his diminished statistics put a damper on any changes in his retirement plans remain to be seen. Most opponents still key on him in their game plans and Ditka notes Payton is more capable of having an "explosive" day than anyone else.

"I don't understand what all the talk is. Here is the best football player ever and people are questioning about how we use him and whether he can still play," Ditka says. "Let me tell you, he could play another three years if he wants to. We'd want him."

Oviedo Goes To Edgewater

By Scott Bander
Herald Sports Writer

The Oviedo Lions are a football team that has had just about everything go wrong for them this season. The Lions started off the season very well, winning three of their first four games.

But since then, the Lions have slumped as they have lost their last four games. "In one way, we are kind of like the New York Giants," Oviedo coach Jack Blanton said. "Nothing has gone right for us this season."

Oviedo will try to snap its losing streak tonight when it travels to Orlando to take on Edgewater in a District 4A-7 game. The game will have no bearing on the district outcome as Seminole has already won it. It will, however, be for second place in the district. Kickoff is slated for 7:30 at Orlando Evans High's EE Stadium.

Both the Lions and the Eagles are 3-5 overall. Edgewater, however, has won two out of last three games. "We have been playing some pretty good football lately," Edgewater coach Same Weir said. "We are a small school, but I think that we are starting to come around."

The Lions are coming off a 33-7 setback to Lake Mary last week. Oviedo may have found the running back that it has been searching for as Clinton Dunston rushed for 104 yards. Dunston was ineligible for the first seven games of the season. "He (Dunston) did one heck of a job," Blanton said. "He missed all those games early in the season, but he did a super job last week."

Weir, a former University of Central Florida head coach, said that he was also impressed with Dunston. "We saw him on film, and he is a good little back," Weir said. "He has got good quickness, and he is tough."

Blanton said that his team is depressed, but will still give it its all. "We'll keep on hanging in there," Blanton said. "We haven't had much to get excited about lately, but hopefully that will change." The Lions have scored only 25 points in their last four games.

Oviedo is a banged up team, and will be without the services of several starters again this week. Linebacker Willie Paldo, who missed last week's game, is questionable against this week. Defensive back Karl Wright is out for the season with a bad knee, and cornerback Mike McCurdy is also questionable with a sore knee. Running back Rodney Thomason is also listed as doubtful.

"Last season, we didn't really have any injuries," Blanton said. "But this season has been a totally different story. We have had four or five starters miss every game because of injuries, and it has taken its toll."

Although Oviedo has been struggling lately, Weir still said that he has a lot of respect for the Lions. "They have always had a good defensive team," Weir said. "I am expecting a low scoring game. It should be a defensively oriented game."

Blanton said that he had been pleased with his team's defense this season. "We really haven't played that badly," Blanton said. "We have given up the big plays, and they have hurt us."

It has been Oviedo's offense that has hurt the Lions. "We have dug a hole that we can get out of," Blanton said. "We just can't seem to put points up there. The mistakes and turnovers have killed us."

"I'm expecting a very tough game from them," Weir added.

Rams Can't Overlook Mainland Lake Mary, DeLand Need Wins To Force 3-Way Tie In District

By Chris Pieter
Herald Sports Writer

Friday at 8, Lyman High will host DeLand's Bulldogs in the biggest game of the season in District 5A-4. The attention of the district will be focused on the game since it will decide whether Lake Howell wins it outright or there is a Lake Howell/DeLand/Lake Mary three-way tie.

A few miles away from the fanfare at Lyman, though, Lake Mary must handle Daytona Beach Mainland's floundering Buccaneers before it worries about any district three-way tie. Of course, everyone has handled Mainland this season.

"It would be a major upset if they beat us and we don't want that embarrassment," Lake Mary coach Harry Nelson said. "Never think you're too good to be upset. Just work hard and not have it happen."

It will be homecoming for the Rams Friday, who come in with a 6-2 overall record and 4-1 in District 5A-4. Last week, Lake Mary clinched at least a tie for the Seminole Athletic Conference title with a 33-7 rout of Oviedo.

"We got a piece of the conference, now we want a piece of the district," Nelson said. "We also have to have an eye on DeLand and Lyman. Of course, we're pulling for DeLand but Lyman is very capable of beating DeLand. We just want to do our part first."

Football

Doing their part means the Rams must defeat a Mainland team that is 0-8 overall, 0-5 in the district and the lowest-rated Class 5A team in the Dunkel Index. Sometimes, the teams that have nothing to lose can be pretty dangerous and unpredictable.

"Stranger things have happened so you can't overlook anyone," Nelson said. "Mainland has a very good tailback and quarterback and the defense isn't that bad."

"I saw them in person against DeLand," Nelson added. "It was 16-0 DeLand, and all of a sudden Mainland scored and made it 16-8. They were playing well, then DeLand's fullback broke away and it was a rout. For five minutes, though, Mainland was as good as anyone they play."

Lake Mary had its second-highest point output of the season against Oviedo's highly-regarded defense. That included career-high performances by quarterback Carlos Hartsfield (223 yards passing) and receiver Calvin Davis (touchdown catches of 78 and 83 yards).

"I really didn't think we could score 33 on Oviedo," Nelson said. "It was one of those things like the game against Spruce Creek (35-6 Lake Mary win) where everything went right in a short time and all of a sudden the game was over."

Nelson said the team is already feeling the distractions of homecoming week and he hopes the Rams will have their minds on the task of beating Mainland Friday.

"Homecoming week has so many distractions," Nelson said. "We had some kids late to practice because of the 'Miss Ewe' contest where they dress up in feminine garb and parade around on stage. I just hope we can be rid of the distractions by game time."

The Rams will be missing one of their best offensive linemen and their starting kicker Friday as Alex Birle is out with a knee injury. Eric Birle, Alex's older brother and also a starting offensive lineman, will assume the place kicking duties while Todd Wright will start at Alex Birle at right tackle.

"We're going to miss Alex on his blocking," Nelson said. "As far as kicking goes, Eric Birle is just as accurate but hasn't kicked much this year."

Georgia-Auburn Clash In SEC Biggie

United Press International

Saturday's Georgia-Auburn football game has taken on an added dimension.

The stakes for this ancient rivalry between these two perennial Southern powers were raised considerably last week when Alabama upset LSU. The winner becomes the front-runner for the Southeastern Conference championship and a berth in the Sugar Bowl.

If No. 8 Georgia (4-1 within the SEC and 7-2 overall) wins, the Bulldogs are assured of at least a tie for the SEC crown. If No. 12 Auburn (3-0-1, 7-1-1) prevails, the Tigers would remain in the dark about their bid for the title and the Sugar Bowl until they play No. 10 Alabama on Nov. 27.

Alabama (4-1, 7-2) steps outside the conference this week to visit No. 7 Notre Dame before vying for at least a share of the SEC crown in the season closer with Auburn. No. 11 LSU (4-1, 7-1-1), which hosts Mississippi State Saturday and then visits independent Tulane the following week, remains in contention for a share of the SEC title, but appears blocked out of the Sugar Bowl.

However, if Georgia beats Auburn and Auburn, in turn, beats Alabama — creating a two-way tie between LSU and Georgia, the Sugar Bowl might feel obligated to invite LSU for the second year in a row since LSU won at Georgia last month.

"We're not out of the SEC race," said LSU Coach Mike Archer, "but now we have to depend on someone else. And we can't afford to dwell on the Alabama loss. If we hang our heads, Mississippi State has a chance to come in and beat us."

In other Southeast action Saturday, No. 3 Miami (7-0) continues to fatten its statistics as 38-point favorite while hosting Virginia Tech; No. 4 Florida State (8-1) also is a huge favorite as host to Furman; No. 19 Tennessee (8-2-1), out of the SEC race but very much in the bowl picture, hosts Ole Miss; Florida hosts Kentucky; Southern Miss

Smith Needs Surgery

TAMPA (UPI) — Running back Don Smith, a second-round draft pick who earned Player of the Year honors in the Southeastern Conference last season as a quarterback, has been advised by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers to undergo back surgery.

Smith, 24, has not played this season due to a leg injury and according to Coach Ray Perkins, a slipped disc will keep him out for the remainder of his rookie year.

In the Aug. 22 exhibition game against the New York Jets, Smith suffered a hairline fracture of the fibula and he was placed on the injured reserve list before the Sept. 13 regular-season opener against Atlanta. Perkins confirmed Wednesday that Smith injured his back in a private workout with weights the night of the Falcons' game.

"Our people recommend an operation," said Perkins, who became familiar with Smith's skills when he was coaching Alabama while Smith was evolving into one of the most exciting players in the SEC. "He's going to get a second opinion and he's entitled to do that. Don Smith went against what our doctors asked. It was a foolish thing, but I understand Don's a very competitive person."

WILSON TO START FOR L.A.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Raiders, who demoted quarterback Marc Wilson last year and tried desperately to trade him, Wednesday named him the starter for this week's game at San Diego.

"We're making a change," Coach Tom Flores said at his weekly news conference. "Marc Wilson will start this week. Right now it's best to go with the more experienced guy."

Wilson, heavily criticized for repeated erratic performances, regained the job he lost to Rusty Hilger during spring drills. Hilger, who had thrown just 51 NFL passes before this season, was pulled in three of his five 1987 starts.

hosts East Carolina; Memphis State hosts Louisville; and Tulane hosts Southwestern Louisiana.

Georgia is a slight favorite after previously unbeaten

Auburn's 34-6 loss to Florida State. But Georgia Coach Vince Dooley, who always shuns the favorite's role like the plague, says the lone Auburn loss was misleading because Florida State is not an SEC team.

Webb's Jumper Beat Knicks; Bird's 42 Points Bury Pacers

Basketball

United Press International
Faced with the new-look New York Knicks and their ballyhooed fullcourt press, Atlanta Coach Mike Fratello put his team on the offensive.

"Their press gave us a lot of trouble," Fratello said, "but you have to make a decision either to attack, or play passively. We attacked and that's why we were successful."

It wasn't easy, however. Spud Webb hit a 12-foot jumper with 24 seconds left Wednesday night that helped the Hawks post a 94-93 victory over the winless New York Knicks.

Webb, who finished with 9 assists, sank his jumper from the right of the key 21 seconds after Gerald Wilkins had tied the score for New York at 88-88 on a 3-point shot.

"Spud Webb hit a jumper under pressure," New York rookie Coach Rick Pitino said. "We had a great trap on him, but he saw over it and hit the jumper."

The Hawks' Dominique Wilkins led all scorers with 33 points. Patrick Ewing led New York with 26 points and 11 rebounds. The Knicks are 0-4 under Pitino.

"Most of my baskets came on second or third shots," Dominique Wilkins said. "I wouldn't want to play like that every night."

"I guarantee those were the toughest 33 points he's had in the NBA," said brother Gerald Wilkins, who finished with 17 points for the Knicks. "We rotated on him and forced him to make a second and third effort to get inside."

Atlanta sandwiched a pair of free throws by Scott Hastings and Dominique Wilkins around a rebound basket by New York's Sidney Green, and a 3-point shot at the buzzer by the Knicks' Mark Jackson accounted for the final margin.

Elsewhere, Boston beat Indiana 120-106. Chicago topped New Jersey 105-96. Milwaukee defeated Cleveland 109-101. Utah dumped Dallas 121-92 and Golden State beat Phoenix 130-115. Philadelphia at Washington was postponed because of snow.

Celtics 130, Pacers 108
At Boston, Larry Bird scored 42 points and collected 20 rebounds to power the Celtics to their 22nd consecutive home victory over Indiana. The Pacers' last victory in Boston Garden came April 2, 1978. Robert Parish had 24 points as Boston improved to 4-0. John Long scored 26 points to lead Indiana.

Bulls 106, Nets 96
At East Rutherford, N.J., Michael Jordan scored 31 points, including 15 in the fourth quarter, and Charles Oakley had 16 to lead Chicago. Jordan was held scoreless in the third quarter. Ben Coleman and Dallas Comegys, who got all of his points in the fourth quarter, led the Nets with 14 apiece.

Bucks 109, Cavaliers 101

At Richfield, Ohio, Jack Sikma scored 26 points and Terry Cummings and Paul Presney each added 18 to lead Milwaukee in Cleveland's home opener. Brad Daugherty led Cleveland with 24 points as the Cavaliers lost for the 14th time in their 18 home openers.

Jazz 131, Mavericks 93

At Salt Lake City, Karl Malone scored 32 points and Darrell Griffith added 19 to pace Utah. Malone was 13 of 17 from the floor and grabbed a team-high 10 rebounds. Mark Aguirre led the Mavericks with 21 points. Derek Harper and Rolando Blackman had 11 each for the Jazz.

Warriors 130, Suns 115

At Oakland, Calif., Eric "Sleepy" Floyd scored 37 points and Chris Mullin added 26 to lead Golden State to its first victory of the season. James Edwards led Phoenix with 26 points. Walter Davis added 21 for the Suns. Both teams are 1-3.

Big 10: Michigan Chases After Indiana

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan Coach Bill Frieder says the Wolverines' influx of top basketball talent does not make his team among the nation's best — this year. Michigan adds center Terry Mills and guard Rumeal Robinson, both of whom were highly recruited two years ago out in the state semifinals last year, takes an unimpressive 16-12 record into Friday's 3A-2 Section match at Oviedo High (game time is 4 p.m.). But Stacy said it took the Lady Gators a while to get started after losing most of last year's team to graduation.

"We lost quite a bit from last year's team," Stacy said. "We have three girls back who played last year, everyone else graduated. We started off slow this season and it was not until the second half when we really started playing well. Now we're getting better each match."

The three senior leads for Land O' Lakes, all of whom played last year, include hitters Allison Campbell and Jennifer Miller and setter Tracy Saunders. Senior Michelle Ploughman and sophomores Tina Saldato and Claudine Hawkins complete the starting lineup.

"It's hard to lose the caliber of players we lost," Stacy said. "But the new girls are coming along well and the experienced ones are carrying the team. We're not as explosive as last year but we are pretty consistent with the attack. The key for us is passing. If we don't have the passing game down we'll struggle."

Stacy said the switch to an earlier match, 4 p.m., and the long road trip to Oviedo does not bother him one bit.

"We've been on the road quite a bit," Stacy said. "We played in an invitational tournament at Port Charlotte and some of the teams in our conference are as much as an hour to hour and a half drive."

"The time of the game really doesn't bother us either," added Stacy. "It doesn't matter who or when we play, we're going in with a lot of confidence."

Corrie Lawson and Colon have stepped in and played well in the back row while Hollis and Kelley have also improved their back row play.

Another thing Oviedo has going for it Friday is the home court, where the Lady Lions have lost just once in the last two years. And, in compiling a 48-5 record in the last two years, the only team Oviedo has played and not beaten at least once is Land O' Lakes.
