Wolflinger leads prosecutors

SANFORD — Brevard/Seminole State Attorney Norm Wolflinger began his second term as President of the Florida Prosecuting Attorneys Association Board of Directors July 1. The association is comprised of the state's 1,549 prosecutors along with 20 elected State Attorneys and the Statewide Prosecutor. "It is a privilege to have the opportunity to lead the prosecutors of this state in our fight for justice and victims' rights," Wolflinger said. "This past legislative session passage of major public safety laws, like those requiring criminals to serve 85 percent of their sentence and calling for public notification of the release of sexual predators, was a great victory for all law abiding people in Florida. The Florida Prosecuting Attorneys Association will continue to push for tougher penalties for repeat and violent offenders."

Laptime stories at the library

CASSELBERRY — A new laptime story program will be presented for the first time on Thursday, July 20 at 7 p.m. at the Central Branch of the Seminole County Public Library System. This is a seven-week series, 20-minute program aimed at babies 6-18 months and their caregivers. The programs are free of charge.

The library is located at 215 North Oxford Road. For further information call 338-4000.

Developing good relationships

LAKE MARY — Phyllis Phipps, certified therapist and author of "The Relationship Revolution" will be guest speaker Friday, July 14, 7 p.m. at Little Wing Books located in Lake Mary Village shopping center (next to Blockbuster Video).

She will address getting started finding and sustaining a relationship, assessing a potential partner and handling rejections, maintaining and balancing love and safe sex and shaking the fear of commitment.

There is no charge. For more information call 324-1066.

Correction

In a brief in Thursday's Sanford Herald regarding a back-to-school hotline being sponsored by WFTV-Channel 9, it was erroneously reported that all elementary and middle schools in Seminole County return to class on July 17.

Both Pine Crest and Midway elementary schools will not begin until a week later on Monday, July 24.

The Herald regrets the error.

The hotline will be available from 5 to 7 p.m. on Tuesday, July 11 and may be reached by calling 1-800-732-WFTV (732-9388).

Rabun nixed for Volusia job Council comments surprise county manager

By SANDRA ELLIOTT and ROGER HARNACK
Herald Staff Writers

SANFORD and DELAND — Seminole County Manager Ron Rabun described himself as surprised and disappointed this morning after the Volusia County Council voted not to hire him due to salary demands and called him unprofessional.

During a Volusia County Council meeting Thursday, councilmen took turns calling Rabun unprofessional and questioning his integrity after demanding a salary of $125,000 per year, plus benefits, despite his prior knowledge that the county had capped the salary at $115,000. "I'm surprised and disappointed," Rabun commented this morning. "It has been an interesting but a very stressful process. I wish them the best of luck in the future as they continue to wrestle with the hiring of a county manager candidate."

"I would guess the true nature and true understanding of the difficulty of negotiating with Volusia County officials can be seen in the littered wreckage of the three candidates that have been through. It's not just me. Three people...I don't

Murder witness recants testimony

By BILL KACZOR

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Twenty years after his testimony helped send biker "Crazy Joe" Spaziano to death row for a Seminole County murder, a Pensacola man says police and a hypnotist suggested the testimony and had him believing it was true.

"There was so much manipulation and mind control," Anthony Dilliso said in an interview with The Associated Press at his lawyer's office Thursday. "I was fed. The fire was fed. ... I had it down perfect by the time court came."

Dilliso said his memory is gradually improving about what he now claims was false testimony he gave that was key to Spaziano's 1975 conviction for the murder two years earlier of an 18-year-old Orlando hospital clerk.

Laura Lynn Harberis' sexually mutilated body was found in a garbage dump near Altamonte Springs.

Gov. Lawton Chiles last month called off Spaziano's scheduled June 27 execution in the electric chair after Dilliso, a lay Christian minister who now restores old cars, told The Miami Herald his testimony was bogus.

Spaziano's case remains in limbo. The governor has asked the FDLE to investigate Dilliso's recantation, but he has not yet made a decision on whether to grant a new clemency hearing.

Agents from the Florida Department of Law Enforcement questioned Dilliso last month within days after the Herald published an interview in which he first recanted his testimony, but he then said he could remember little about what happened two decades earlier.

Dilliso said Thursday he was See Witness, Page 6A

Volunteers gather to fight annual battle against waterway pollution

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — More than a hundred volunteers are expected to roll up their sleeves and their pant legs on Saturday morning as they go to fight an annual battle against pollution in area waterways.

Humans routinely toss their cans, plastic bags, shoes, tires, garbage and even automobile batteries into the lakes and rivers that dot the Seminole County landscape.

Unfortunately, organizers say, cleanup parties can only take action once a year. But when they hit the water, they attack with the tenacity of a school of piranha.

"Last year, they brought in 4.96 tons of debris in four hours," organizer Barbara Hughes-Gregg of the Seminole County Agricultural Center, said. "That is a lot of trash."

That amount does not even begin to scratch the surface of the amount of trash that is in the water, she admitted.

"Unfortunately, people don't even think when they See Pollute, Page 6A

Model was alcohol and drug free

FORT LAUDERDALE — Teen model Kriasy Taylor had no alcohol or illegal drugs in her system when she died at home this weekend, according to preliminary reports released by the medical examiner.

"We got some preliminary tests of blood and there was no sign of alcohol, and testing done on urine samples was negative for drugs," Broward County Medical Examiner Joshua Perper said Thursday. "There's been no testing of blood yet for drugs."

Perper has questioned whether the 17-year-old model's unsupervised use of Primatene Mist may have caused an irregular heartbeat and contributed to her death. The exact cause of Taylor's death may not be known for several weeks when toxicology and microscopic reports are completed.

Taylor is the younger sister of 20-year-old supermodel Niki Taylor.

Jet off course lands safely

MIAMI — An American Airlines jet managed to land safely at Miami International Airport after coming within two miles of landing at the wrong airport.

The 8,002-foot runway at Opa-locka Airport was long enough for the McDonnell-Douglas MD-80 from Dallas-Fort Worth, but its actual destination was seven miles away on a 10,502-foot runway at Miami International.

The airliner requires 6,500 feet to land, said Federal Aviation Administration spokeswoman Christy Williams in Atlanta.

"The pilot acknowledged clearance and said he had the airport in sight, but apparently it was the wrong airport because he made a turn toward Opa-locka," Williams said.

An air traffic controller advised the pilot to circle back to Miami, and Flight 1840 carrying 66 passengers and a crew of five landed in the right place at 1:35 a.m. EDT Thursday.

The airline had no explanation for the mistaken approach but was investigating.

Case dropped against woman

TAMPA — Prosecutors have dropped their case against a woman accused of tossing two kittens out her car window in May.

Unabong Chong Edwards was jailed on animal-cruelty charges, targeted by a local animal rights group and had her car seized following the May 25 incident on a busy Clearwater roadway.

But state attorneys now say there was no evidence that Mrs. Edwards committed the crime.

Her husband, John, also claims police overlooked a key detail that should have trumpeted her innocence — the remains of a third kitten under the car's hood. The kitten was found in the car's splash pan — evidence that the kittens crawled under the hood while the car was parked at home, he said.

A mechanic found the remains after police returned the impounded car to the Edwards.

Feds charge 4 in scam

MIAMI — A federal grand jury has charged four people in a $200,000 scheme to sell "discounted" airline tickets that were bought with numbers taken from stolen credit card receipts.

Arrested were Leonel Fleitas, 36, Myrna Figueroa, 42, and John Stirling, 22. Thursday. Police didn't have to go far to arrest the fourth suspect, Misael DelValle, 23. He was already in jail on a previous theft conviction and probation violation.

They each face up to 10 years in jail and a $250,000 fine for federal credit card fraud violations.

Police said DelValle, a former busboy at a south Miami Beach restaurant, stole credit card receipts left by customers. The defendants used the stolen credit cards numbers to buy round-trip Delta airline tickets, which were then resold at discounted prices — domestic flights for $100 to $250 and international tickets for $400 to $500.

Fish prices on the rise

TALLAHASSEE — While commercial fishermen are lining up new jobs, consumers are already faced with higher prices for some fish.

The state's new net ban is making it harder to find mullet and other inexpensive bottom fish that had been harvested with gill nets.

"The consumer is going to feel it, no doubt about it," said Chuck Adams, a marine economist based in Gainesville.

Mullet has already gone up 20-cents a pound in the Tampa area, where it now sells for $1.49.

Adams predicted prices could increase another 20 cents by Monday as the supply continues to dwindle.

"There will be an upper price limit," said Adams. "But I don't know where the limit's going to be or how long it will take to get there."

And some packing houses are making plans to lay off employees.

Governor raring to go 'It's good to be feeling real good'

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles shrugged off the brief loss of blood to his brain that left him hospitalized this week and said he was eager to return to work.

"It's good to be feeling real good," Chiles told reporters allowed to visit him in his hospital room Thursday.

"He remained in good condition through the night," hospital spokeswoman Liz Nogowski said today.

Doctors said the governor did not suffer a stroke and will have no lasting damage from the transient ischemic attack, sometimes called a "little stroke," that left him nauseous and disoriented early Wednesday.

"I feel good ... trying to talk them into letting me out of here," he said.

Doctors said he could be discharged from Tallahassee Memorial Regional Medical Center by Saturday and return to work next week.

Chiles' condition was upgraded from satisfactory to good Thursday morning. He slept well, ate breakfast, showered, took a brief walk inside the hospital and read cards and letters from well wishers.

The governor said he still planned to bring lawmakers back to Tallahassee in August for a special session on health care reform. He said he didn't plan to change his work pace or delegate more duties to Lt. Gov. Buddy MacKay.

A long weekend of activities outdoors may have contributed to a possible drop in the governor's blood volume, bringing on the TIA, the doctors said. Chiles may have been somewhat dehydrated from a weekend fishing trip to South Florida and then a long walk on the hot July Fourth holiday back home in Tallahassee, doctors said.

Tests showed the governor suffered no lasting damage, said Dr. Charles Ma'lland, a neurologist who treated Chiles.

TIA's are sometimes called "little strokes" and are considered warning signs that a patient is at risk for a stroke. In Chiles' case, the TIA was not diagnosed as a stroke because there was no permanent damage.

Dr. Karl Hempel, the governor's personal physician, said that other than minor changes in diet, Chiles would not have to change his lifestyle. He will have to take aspirin to lower the risk of blood clotting and will continue taking the blood pressure medication that he already was on, doctors said.

The governor received hundreds of get-well calls, letters and faxes. President Clinton and Vice President Al Gore sent their best wishes to Chiles' wife, Rhea.

The governor underwent a brain scan and a magnetic resonance arteriogram to gauge whether the basilar artery, located at the base of his skull, could have been diseased or if a nearby blood vessel could have ruptured, doctors said.

The tests did not find any such problems, Ma'lland said.

Employee of Month

Kristie Strine has been named by the City of Sanford as Employee of the Month for July. She has been employed by the city since 7/27/81 and has progressed from clerk-typist to secretary III. In addition to her professional duties, Strine has made outstanding strides in civic and community services. According to Tim McCauley, personnel director for the City of Sanford, "There's not a day that goes by that Kristie's outstanding communication, tact and interaction with co-workers and the general public goes unnoticed. She is always calm and professional and always handles situations to result in customer satisfaction and a positive reflection on the city."

Wiretapping overruled in prostitution probes

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Police can't tap phones to investigate prostitution, the state Supreme Court said Thursday, taking away a tool frequently used to combat prostitution businesses.

The unanimous decision stemmed from an Orlando case where Cynthia Marie Rivers and four others not identified in the ruling were arrested on various prostitution charges.

The trial court granted a request by the defendants to throw out the evidence obtained through the wiretaps and the 5th District Court of Appeal upheld that ruling.

Florida's high court agreed with the lower courts, concluding that the federal wiretap law preempts the state's wiretap law. Prostitution is listed as a crime serious enough to warrant wiretapping in the state law, but not the federal law.

Belle Turner, an assistant attorney general in Daytona Beach, said she had not read the ruling and could not comment on its specifics. But she said the ruling's impact seems clear: "It's going to make it more difficult to combat organized prostitution."

Lawyers for the state contended a provision in the federal law that permits wiretaps for "other crime dangerous to life, limb, or property" covers prostitution because of the threat of AIDS.

"Unquestionably, the spread of the virus that causes AIDS is a great health concern," Justice Major Harding wrote for the court. "However this alone does not make prostitution intrinsically 'dangerous to life.'

"Moreover, Congress specifically provided that the 'dangerous to life' general category is 'intended to exclude such offenses as fornication and adultery, which do not involve danger to life, limb or property,'" Harding continued.

But he said wiretaps could be used to investigate prostitution-related crimes that involve violence or the threat of violence.

All the justices supported Harding's opinion except for Justice Charles Well, who concurred only in upholding the lower court's ruling.

Ed Leinauer, an Orlando attorney who represented Ms. Rivers and two of the other defendants, was pleased.

"I think it's absolutely the correct decision legally," he said.

Robbery

Sheriff's deputies arrested Terry James Gibson, 29, of 2810 W. 20th Street Wednesday. According to the arrest report, a 62-year-old man was robbed of $70 by two men while walking behind a residence in the 1800 block of Southwest Road. Deputies said the man was able to identify one of the persons as Gibson, who was located a short time later near the area. Gibson was charged with armed robbery. An investigation is underway to determine the identity of the second person reportedly involved in the robbery.

Bomb found

A deputy sheriff, on morning patrol at approximately 2 a.m. Thursday, reported finding a container with a clear liquid, approximately 40 yards south of the intersection of Crowley Circle East and Crowley Circle West, in the Mandarin subdivision near Longwood. He said the container was "emitting caustic fumes." He called the Seminole County Hazardous Material Team which neutralized the container. It was taken as evidence. The deputy believes the item was some type of homemade acid bomb.

Marijuana arrest

Sanford police arrested Andre Jermain Stokes, 22, of 3001 Dixon Street, Sanford, at 25th Street and Park Avenue Thursday. According to the arrest report, Stokes was seen by an officer who suspected he may have been involved in the use of drugs. Following an investigation, Stokes was arrested on a charge of possession of marijuana under 20 grams.

Warrant

Gregory Robert Lehmkuhl, 18, 3103 Scarlet Drive, Sanford, turned himself in to deputies at his residence Wednesday. He was wanted for violation of probation on convictions of possession of drug paraphernalia and resisting an officer without violence.

Domestic cases

Robert Gallagher, 33, 1080 Sipes Avenue, was arrested by deputies at his residence Wednesday following a reported fight with a female. He was charged with battery domestic violence, possession of marijuana under 20 grams, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Scott Gornly, 37, 800 Park Avenue, was arrested by Sanford police near Seventh Street and Park Avenue Wednesday following a reported altercation with a female. He was charged with battery domestic violence, and resisting an officer without violence.

Traffic stop

Calvin Darnell Woodard, 28, Ridgewood Avenue, was stopped by Sanford police in the 2800 block of Georgia Avenue Wednesday. He was charged with driving with a suspended license.

Incident reports

Sheriff's deputies are investigating the reported theft of four hubcaps valued at $300, from a Nissan, Wednesday, parked near a business in the 3800 block of W. Lake Mary Boulevard.

Groceries, beer, cigarettes and other items with a total value of $228.95 were reported stolen Wednesday from a residence in the 100 block of S. French Avenue in Sanford.

A white 1974 Ford pickup truck and a bag said to contain $65 in cash were reportedly stolen some time between June 29 and July 4, at a home/business in the 2800 block of West First Street in Sanford.

The Student Museum at 301 W. Seventh Street was reportedly burglarized Wednesday. Sanford police said someone forced open the locked gate and tried unsuccessfully to gain entry into the building. While nothing was determined to be missing, police estimated a total of $200 was done in damage.

Several vehicles were reportedly burglarized Wednesday, parked near a business in the 1400 block of S. French Avenue. No determination had been made as of yesterday regarding items which may have been stolen.

A car and truck were burglarized Wednesday in the 1000 block of W. 25th Street in Sanford. A camera and other items valued at $275 were reported missing.

A TV and other items valued at $250 were reportedly stolen Wednesday from a residence in the 1600 block of W. 18th Street in Sanford.

An AM/FM/Cassette unit was reportedly stolen Wednesday from a vehicle in the parking lot of Seminole Community College.

Double arrest

Sanford police reported finding two persons in a car, behind a grocery store in the 600 block of W. 11th Street Monday. As a result of an investigation, both persons were arrested. Jwana R. Duval, 36, 1806 Mulberry, Sanford, and Beauford McCarthy, 69, of 1700 W. 18th Street, said to have been the driver of the vehicle, were each arrested on charges of possession of cocaine, and possession of cannabis.

Lawyers: Judgment worth the fees

By MIKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

ORLANDO — Attorneys are arguing whether $26 million in legal fees is appropriate in a $188 million judgment against the state.

The award was won by lawyers in Orlando and Chicago on behalf of 630,000 people who paid $295 each to register out-of-state vehicles in Florida. They want 14 percent of the total award.

The state argues that is the equivalent of a fee of $4,400 an hour — steep even for high-priced counsel.

But Raymond Ehrlich, Jacksonville lawyer and former Florida Supreme Court justice, thinks the lawyers' fee is reasonable.

A costly, complex case such as this one could only have been undertaken on a class-action, contingency-fee basis by qualified counsel willing to gamble that they would get nothing if they lost, Ehrlich and others testified.

"They did a lot of work on it, took a lot of risk, so I don't think 14 percent was unreasonable," Ehrlich testified Thursday.

The lawsuit by Foley & Lardner of Orlando and Winston & Strawn of Chicago invalidated a statute in effect from July 1991 until September 1994.

Under the lawyers' compensation claim — to be ruled on by Circuit Judge Lawrence Kirkwood next week — each person who requests a refund would get back the $295 payment minus $44.25 for the lawyers' fees.

Arguments on the case continued today.

Kirkwood ruled in December 1993 that the law was unconstitutional because it discriminated against new residents to the state. The Florida Supreme Court upheld the ruling in September 1994.

Assistant Attorney General Eric Taylor said that even though it lost the case, the state now had a duty to represent the people getting refunds.

"We have to help determine a reasonable fee" so that those getting refunds will not have to pay legal costs that are the equivalent of $4,400 an hour, Taylor argued.

The state lawyer suggested there was a duplication of time sheets submitted by attorneys of the two firms.

Also testifying in favor of the proposed fees were James K. Green, a South Florida lawyer and president of the American Civil Liberties Union of Florida; Donald Smith, a former Superior Court judge in Raleigh, N.C.; Orlando lawyer Darrell M. Bloodworth, formerly on the Florida Bar's board of governors; and Eugene O. Duffy, a Milwaukee tax lawyer and tax-litigation authority.

Voluntary AIDS testing urged for all pregnant women

By A.J. HOBSTETLER
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — All pregnant women should be voluntarily tested for the AIDS virus — not just those with high-risk behavior — so infected women can get treatment to protect their unborn children, the government says.

The Centers for Disease Control had previously recommended AIDS tests only for pregnant women with a high risk of catching HIV, such as intravenous drug users or prostitutes.

The change came after a federal study found that infected women can cut the risk of transmitting HIV to their unborn children by two-thirds if they take the drug AZT during pregnancy. Without the drug, as many as a third of babies born to HIV-infected women will be infected — some 2,000 infants a year.

The new policy, outlined today in the CDC's weekly report, is the first time the agency has suggested voluntary testing for an entire group of people. The CDC said it should save the lives of 1,000 babies each year.

"Simply knowing a woman is infected will not prevent transmission of HIV to her baby," said Dr. Helene Gayle, who heads the CDC's AIDS efforts. "To reduce chances of transmission, we must provide ongoing treatment and care, including AZT therapy."

Proposals for widespread AIDS testing have been controversial because of fears the test results won't be kept confidential and that infected people will have trouble getting insurance or face discrimination.

In New York, a bill that would have required telling mothers whether their newborns tested positive for the virus stalled in the Legislature this year after protests from women's groups and AIDS activists who said it amounted to a test of mothers without their consent. The state already tests infants but does it blindly, telling no one the results.

But the CDC and AIDS experts believe most of the 4 million women in this country who become pregnant each year will choose to be tested.

"Women will do anything if it improves the chances of better health for their baby," said Dr. Wanda Jones, who heads the CDC's Office of Women's Health.

An obstetrician who runs an AIDS counseling and testing program for pregnant women at Atlanta's Grady Memorial Hospital agreed.

"We hear from our patients that they want to know (if they are infected) for the benefit of their babies," Dr. Michael Lindsay said. About 95 percent of the women in the Grady program chose to be tested after they were counseled about AIDS.

Troy Petenbrink of the National Association of People With AIDS said his group supports the CDC recommendation because it is voluntary and includes counseling by the woman's own doctor.

"It's important that the physician talk to the women about the issue ... and offer the test voluntarily. We know that that works," he said.

Widespread HIV testing of pregnant women should pay for itself both by saving babies' lives and their medical bills, said the CDC's Dr. Martha Rogers, who wrote the recommendations.

The CDC estimates that care for HIV-infected babies now costs about $240 million a year. The agency hopes to cut that figure in half.

The total cost of the program was estimated at $127 million: Testing could run as high as $120 million, based on the $30 cost of an HIV test. The AZT treatment would cost about $1,000 per woman, adding another $7 million to treat the 7,000 HIV-infected women who give birth each year.

The CDC is encouraging insurance companies and Medicaid to cover the costs.

The CDC recommendation calls for women infected with HIV to begin taking AZT by the 14th week of pregnancy and continue taking the drug through delivery. Newborns should receive the drug for the first six weeks after birth to protect them during breastfeeding.

AZT, sold as Retrovir, was the first anti-viral drug approved for treatment of HIV infection.

Our brothers' keepers

J.Q. "Slim" Galloway disappeared Sunday evening in Sanford. He was eventually located in Longwood Monday afternoon at approximately 4 p.m. Galloway is 83 years-old, and the concern for his safety was almost unequalled in recent times.

Slim is safe once again, but he gave everyone a scare. After his disappearance was revealed, the Sanford Herald received continuous calls from concerned individuals to see if there had been any word. Even individual staff writers received calls at their homes asking similar questions.

We haven't seen such an outpouring of people wanting to help or showing concern in many years.

It is understandable however, Galloway is one of the truly-loved men in Sanford. He has participated in local life for decades, including service as a constable and captain with the Seminole County Sheriff's Office.

He has also been prominent during Sanford City Commission meetings, and has been involved in club activities, where he was known for always offering to assist in projects he saw were beneficial to the community.

A look at the daily incident reports at the Seminole County Sheriff's Department and Sanford Police Station however, show that such a disappearance is by no means uncommon. Each day, within the county, there are possibly a half dozen reports of persons who are missing. While many of them are juveniles who may have had their own reasons for leaving home, it may be surprising to see the number of senior citizens who virtually disappear.

In a majority of cases, a person may not have an alert mind because of medical problems or extreme age. They often wander about through the community, trying to find their way home, but without a recollection of where they are or what street and address they should seek.

Few people would ever think of themselves getting to the point where they forget where they are. Yet it could very possibly happen. We just don't want to think of it.

This however, is the problem. And the only way to seek a solution is to take some steps in their shoes. Give it some thought. If something happens to us, would anyone on the street offer to help? Would friends and neighbors join in a search?

People must be willing to help others. This should also go for families who must accept responsibility for being certain a person who may have problems is not allowed to travel anywhere alone.

We often hear the question, "Am I my brother's keeper?" The answer is, "you should be, because some day, you may be that brother and need someone else to be your keeper."

LETTER

Thanks for coverage

The committee of the "Over 50 Dance Club" wish to thank you for your coverage of the senior citizens dance held every Wednesday afternoon at the Sanford Civic Center. This dance has been held for 20 years now and you have always graciously supported us by announcing this weekly in your paper.

Without your news coverage many seniors would not realize the opportunity they have in meeting and making new friends. Also, they can listen and dance to the music of a great 12-piece band.

The dance is suspended for the summer and will resume on Sept. 13.

We all wish to extend our appreciation to you and your staff for your cooperation over all these years. Thank you all again.

"... So — how would you like some FEDERAL help?"

BEN WATTENBERG

Is Richard Morris the new Gergen?

There is something ritual, and weird, about the ascendance of a Republican (!) pollster, Richard Morris, to elevated status in the Clinton White House.

Make no mistake about it, it has happened. After all, there was the headline in the Washington Post: "Republican Advisor Stages Quiet White House Coup." At the very end of the story was this astonishing news: "One former Democratic elected official with close ties to the Clintons said the first lady as well as the president were concerned that the advice he (Clinton) was getting was 'too hidebound Democrat.'" His influential aides are either liberal Democrats such as (Harold) Ickes or what the official called "congressional Democrats," such as George Stephanopoulos. Morris, with his career advising Republicans, brings a new thinking more consistent with where the country is," said the former official.

Whoa! Who appointed those people the Clintons think are "too hidebound Democrat"? Well, truth be told, it was "the first lady as well as the president" who picked the whole current Johnny-One-Note liberal government, sparked by a special interest all-star team of civil rights, environmentalist, feminist, poverty, consumerist, and peace activists. And are we to believe that the Clintons believe that Republicans (!) have "new thinking more consistent with where the country is"? Then why do the Clintons keep scolding Republicans for advocating nasty things, like waging war on children? Do the Clintons think voters believe in terrible things like that?

Yes, it's ritual time in Clintonland again. The heralded "move to the center," or "move to the right," is back. Clinton promised it during his 1992 campaign. In a more recent incarnation (mid-1993), it involved the appointment as a White House counselor of David Gergen, who had worked for Republican presidents. At the time, the Washington Post reported that "Gergen will be part of a five-person senior circle, including the president and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, (Chief of Staff Thomas) McLarty and Vice President Gore..."

Moreover, "A senior White House official said that the hiring of Gergen ... is not targeted at George (Stephanopoulos); it is targeted at the idea that we need some adults here. We are concerned about this rap... that the operation is too young, too inexperienced, a little too cocky..."

Within a matter of days, Gergen, the adult, was being undermined by those young, cocky, inexperienced White House aides, as well as by liberal adults, mostly programmed and finetuned by left-wing special interest groups and activist liberal Democratic members of Congress. After a while, with his influence eroded, corroded and railroaded, Gergen left.

Is Morris just Gergen redux? The same ritual is apparent. It is being said that Morris is already under sharp attack by the demoralized White House staff, who call Morris "the flavor of the month," and regard him as a "one-man rebellion." Depending on how you stand on Morris, that is either the good news or the bad news.

Make no mistake about it, it has happened.

Celebrity luggage rates higher

WASHINGTON — Air travelers take note: If turbulence and tight seats weren't enough, now it appears that celebrity luggage may rate higher than you do.

Or so it seemed recently at Chicago's O'Hare airport. I'd just finished a one-hour layover from Phoenix, where I'd made a speech to young journalists. Because I'm six months pregnant — and look eight — the group sponsoring my lecture had sprung for first-class seats on my American Airlines flight. Cool.

But air travel, I learned, is no picnic for pregos in any class. Three hours of twisting, shifting and maneuvering food trays around my midsection was exhausting. Because I couldn't bend over to get my bags, there was little to do but ponder how my ankles resembled twin hams stuffed into my shoes.

I was reboarding when it happened. Bags in each hand, I'd tottered toward the plane and was just stepping on when an urgent voice boomed, "Excuse me!"

Leaping away from the door, I expected to see somebody piloting a wheelchair, or at least someone burdened with something necessary to the flight, like food or an extra propeller.

What I saw was a blow-dried young man in a pricey pinstripe suit brush past me. Dropping two large Gucci suitcases in my path, he started unhooking a matching garment bag while beginning a leisurely chat with plane personnel.

Stunned, I stared at his back. Pinstripes — as relaxed as if he were perusing a brunch menu — examined, fussed and fiddled with the bag's closures, not once looking back at me and other incredulous passengers. Stunned, I stared at his back. Seconds passed, fuming. I finally dropped my now-leaden bags.

"Excuse me," I said. "But why did I have to move so you could put on some luggage?" Pinstripes looked as startled as if a fly he'd flicked away had suddenly spoken. "What?" he said.

I repeated it, adding, "Why couldn't you wait in line like everyone else?"

But he's already turned away. Ignoring me, he hung the bag, scooped up the Guccis and entered first class.

I was a fly again.

"That was rude, sir!" I shouted, startling everyone. And I realized I was shaking. Why, I wondered, did he think he could act as if I were invisible — was it because I'm a woman, black, pregnant? Worse than the anger was my embarrassment at having lost it. Suddenly, I wished I were invisible — I must have seemed insane.

But what was crazy was what happened next. A male flight attendant, who'd apparently seen everything, gave me the thumbs-up, whispering, "I'm so glad you said that!" Another attendant, a woman, said: "I am so sorry. ... How can I help you?" Another passenger jumped to assist with my bags.

Mollified, I sat. And noticed that across the aisle, Pinstripes was actually grinning — at two thin, blond women in sunglasses who'd just gotten on the plane. Oozing warmth, he pointed to where he'd put the bags.

Then it hit me. The blonder one was Sharon Stone.

Pinstripes' contempt wasn't due to my sex, color, bioattness. I was simply less important than the luggage of a woman whose main contribution to American culture was providing moviegoers with a surprise gynecological lesson in "Basic Instinct." It was a fame thing.

Maybe I should have told him I was Whoopi Goldberg.

I was pondering all this when the male flight attendant handed me a business card. "I got it from the gentleman you were speaking with," he said. And winked.

Pinstripes had a name — which I won't mention because I was raised to be kind, even to apparent jerks. Amazingly, he works for American Airlines as a "Special Service Representative." The man I'd assumed was a brusque traveler was getting paid to disrespect passengers.

Later, I called Pinstripes' work number and learned he was on vacation. His friendly voiced supervisor, Ginny Borowski, explained what special services does: "We meet and greet our gold-platinum (frequent flier club) commuters and VIPs. ... We see if we can be of assistance."

"Oh no!" Borowski said when I described Pinstripes' actions. "That's wrong. Don't think I'll let it go unnoticed. That's not the way we operate." We chatted a bit, and she asked me to phone next time I'm in Chicago.

Sometimes a rotten experience turns out fine.

Stone, I heard, participated in a charity event in Washington and was charming to all.

One stranger's rudeness was immediately blunted by the kindness of numerous other strangers.

And because I liked his supervisor, I even felt better about Pinstripes. Maybe he was having a bad day.

Now if only I could do something about these ankles.

Pinstripes looked as startled as if a fly he'd flicked away had suddenly spoken.

Kerrey fears shortsightedness

WASHINGTON — Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Nebr., is sipping hot tea in an empty Senate dining room and talking about his disdain for political cowardice.

"With me, the moment where that was the most damning was after coming home from Vietnam," recalled Kerrey, who lost part of his right leg during the war. "Politicians said to me, 'I know the war is bad and everything, but I've got to keep my political base going.' They were willing to let the war drag on — and people were dying — even though they knew it was wrong and should have done something to stop it."

The 51-year-old Kerrey is haunted by the fear that his generation of political leaders is similarly shirking its responsibility in the battle to save federal entitlement programs. While Medicare and Social Security are rushing toward insolvency, President Clinton and Congress are still promising easy solutions to the crisis and trying to soften the pain with budget-busting tax cuts.

Just as the body-bags kept piling up after he returned from Vietnam in 1969, Kerrey now worries that innocent Americans are going to be casualties of an entitlement explosion — while gutless politicians walk away from the wreckage.

"I have a similar sense of urgency as I look at this entitlement problem because it is something that will punish people, but it's not going to punish us (politicians)," Kerrey told us. "The people who are going to suffer the most are the beneficiaries of these programs who are going to find themselves miserable because they've reached the end of their productive lives and they have nothing to show for it."

It was appropriate that Kerrey's call to arms was issued as the House was passing a constitutional amendment to ban burning of the American flag. Kerrey is leading the fight against the amendment, which the House approved last week in a shameful attempt to play the patriotism card on the eve of Independence Day.

While others wrap themselves in the flag, Kerrey remains dedicated to what it represents — duty and honor above cheap political gain. It's one reason why, 25 years after earning the Medal of Honor, he's beating the drum for entitlement reform at a time when others would prefer to ignore it.

As chairman of Clinton's entitlement commission last year, Kerrey learned that entitlements and interest on the debt will consume all tax revenue by 2012. When the baby boomers start to retire in 2008, Social Security and Medicare will be sapped like never before as the retired population swells by nearly 30 percent.

Nevertheless, Clinton's latest budget plan ends in 2005, and the Republican budget ends in 2002. "We're not thinking about the future," Kerrey told our associate Ed Henry. "And as a consequence, we're missing an opportunity to help people acquire the wealth that they need to be independent."

Kerrey notes that Clinton quietly refused to sign the commission's final report, even though it consisted of cautiously broad outlines for reform. And Kerrey accuses Republicans of "pretending" to solve the entitlement problem by slashing welfare for the poor, but not "reforming welfare for the middle class or the rich."

On this holiday, Kerrey loathes the "ungratefulness" of people who are joining the anti-government chorus at the same time that they're collecting government checks.

Kerrey now worries that innocent Americans are going to be casualties of an entitlement explosion.

Rabun

think it is just a Ron Rabun problem," he added. The council voted 5-2, Councilman Stan Rosevear and Chairman Freddy Moore dissenting to discontinue any further negotiations with Rabun.

"He knew ahead of time what the salary was," Pat Northey, Deltona, said.

According to Northey, Rabun had demonstrated a lack of integrity in trying to blackmail Volusia County out of $10,000 a year in salary after being offered the job.

Northey noted that prior to his selection, Rabun had said he would be able to work within the specified salary range.

"That does not bode well for Mr. Rabun," she said.

Councilman Lynne Plaskett, New Smyrna Beach, was also adamantly opposed to continuing negotiations with Rabun.

Plaskett blasted the Seminole County manager for being unprofessional in his demands.

"I think we can hire a qualified manager for $115,000 or less," she said. "The additional $10,000 Mr. Rabun is requesting is unreasonable and unprofessional."

"That's unfortunate anyone would characterize my negotiations or my integrity in that manner," Rabun said. "It's hard to respond, I'm not sure I will."

Rabun noted ambiguities in the advertisements for Volusia County manager indicating $115,000 was firm while another indicated the figure was negotiable. Some council members indicated in one-on-one discussions the higher salary end was not a problem.

During the search for candidates, Rabun said he told the consultant in May he would not accept $115,000 or even $118,000 to move to the Volusia County job.

"I told him he should disclose that to the council and if the council absolutely would not do that (consider a higher salary), then they should not interview me any further," he explained. Rabun also suggested if the council was uncertain about the salary matter, they should rank the top two candidates for the post and if talks with the top pick fell through, they could begin negotiations with the second one immediately.

On June 26, Rabun announced to the Seminole County commissioners he was withdrawing his name from consideration for the Volusia County job because of the salary issue. After that announcement, Rabun said he was urged not to withdraw by four council members when they met at a Florida Association of Counties meeting. The salary issue was to be flexible on the part of both parties, he said. "I even said it on the tape at a June 2 meeting with the council."

"There was not a mystery and certainly not a misrepresentation of my understanding of salary. I did not try to pull the wool over the Volusia County people's eyes and I think they know that. I don't think the facts support that. I'm not going to engage in a negative discussion but I resent the fact that anyone would question my integrity in that regard," Rabun said.

Rabun said it seemed the Volusia County officials acted as courtiers during the recruitment process than turned into adversaries during contract negotiations.

Plaskett said that even though Rabun is making approximately $118,000 a year in Seminole county, if he did not in good faith want the job at the advertised salary level he would not be a good county manager.

At-large Councilman Phil Giorno was also opposed to offering Rabun any kind of position with Volusia after trying to force Volusia into paying him $10,000 more than the advertised salary.

"I wonder what kind of candidates we would have here today if we had advertised $125,000?" Giorno said.

Giorno noted that the council had other applicants with the same qualifications as Rabun who were only seeking a $95,000 salary.

Since next year also promises to be a tight fiscal year, Giorno said he could not justify paying anyone $10,000 just to walk in the door, particularly when Volusia County staff may not get any raises in the upcoming year.

Taxes

the county's taxable value would have been $16,283,799 higher.

Although the property tax assessments are held in check, capped at 3 percent or the rate of inflation, which ever is lower, Goemmel noted that does not necessarily mean a property owner will pay less tax.

"The assessments are capped but the millage rates are not," he explained.

Preliminary budget talks are underway and work will continue during the summer. The county and Sanford commissioners recently voted to keep their millage rate at the present level. If other government entities do the same, the amount of property taxes paid by an individual home owner should not increase.

Florida homeowners will see increases in property tax assessments capped at 2.7 percent this year under the so-called Save Our Homes amendment that became law in January.

But the Department of Revenue and the supporters of Amendment 10, approved by voters in 1992, still are feuding about how the measure should be calculated in the future.

The amendment limits annual increases in the appraised value of homes to 3 percent or the inflation rate, whichever is lower. Last year, the consumer price index increased 2.7 percent.

The only time an assessment could exceed the cap is when a home is sold and reassessed. New construction or improvements which increase a home's value may increase the assessed value for tax purposes.

Save Our Homes supporters said the amendment has protected thousands of homeowners statewide by limiting the increase in their assessments. The cap saves homeowners money and costs local governments tax revenues.

"It has absolutely succeeded," said Ken Wilkinson, Lee County's property appraiser and leader of the Save Our Homes initiative.

But Wilkinson, along with some other appraisers, and the revenue agency still are fighting over a proposed rule to complete implementation of Amendment 10.

The dispute is headed to Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet some time after they return in August from their summer break.

The agency's rule would allow assessments to increase up to 3 percent on homes when market values are flat in a year but a home's market value exceeds its assessed value.

Information from the Associated Press contained in this report.

Witness

disappointed agents haven't talked to him since then or given him a polygraph test because he now remembers much more about an event he tried to put out of his mind for years.

Dilisio, who was 18 when he testified, had told the Seminole County jury Spaziano, a member of the Outlaws motorcycle gang, had taken him to the dump in August 1973 and shown him two bodies, one of which resembled Ms. Harberts, and bragged about the killings.

Police found the decomposing remains of Ms. Harberts, but the skeletal remains of a second woman were never identified. Spaziano was only charged with Ms. Harberts' death.

Dilisio had undergone hypnosis, now considered too unreliable for use in Florida courts, to enhance his recollection.

"Joe never took me to the dump," Dilisio said. "The police did."

Dilisio said detectives plied him with pizza, promised to get him out of a drug rehabilitation home and threatened him with prosecution for series of petty crimes before Orlando hypnotist Joe McCawley joined in his preparation for the trial.

"When I got to the point of testifying I believe I actually had it implanted in my mind like a movie," Dilisio said. "I didn't realize I was lying under oath against a man to put him in the electric chair."

He said he wanted to please his interrogators so he started embellishing on their suggestions.

"I can recall a story started and I was filling in the blanks," Dilisio said. "It got real. I started living it. The hypnosis was every dramatic. It was painful ... mentally."

Dilisio said he barely knew

Spaziano, 49, and has not talked to him since the trial. He also said he was unaware Spaziano had been sentenced to death until a lawyer for the convict contacted him earlier this year.

He said he had thought Spaziano received a life sentence. Although the jury recommended life, now-retired Circuit Judge Robert McGregor sentenced him to the electric chair.

Pollute

into the water," she added.

The items are discarded from recreational boats, from cars traveling over bridges, from fishermen and others along the shore and even by homeowners on the lakes and rivers.

Certainly the trash is an unsightly mess that makes the natural environment less attractive. It even poses some dangers to those who use the waterways for recreation.

But the biggest hazard of all, Hughes-Gregg said, is to the fish and other animals who live among the discards.

"Last year, people were learning an important lesson when they found dead fish and eels in cans," she explained.

The fish, she explained, go into cans for shelter, but they often grow too large for their man-made environment and become stuck and die.

"So it not only looks bad," Hughes-Gregg said of the pollution, "it kills."

Anyone who wants to help out with this second annual event is being asked to meet in the parking lot of the old Zayres Plaza on 25th Street and Airport Boulevard in Sanford at 7:30 a.m. on Saturday.

There they will receive a free t-shirt and be assigned a group leader. From there, they will caravan to their clean up site and get to work.

The t-shirts were designed by South Seminole Middle School eighth grader Khlem Nguyen. The youngster was the winner of a county-wide poster design contest that brought in 150 entries that graphically showed cleanup efforts.

Already 30 members of the Orange County Airboat Association have offered their services for the work on Lake Harney and Lake Jesup. Because of the number of alligators in those bodies of water, cleanup from boats is necessary.

A number of church groups and scout troops have also volunteered to help.

"And this year there has been a lot more cooperation from government and not-for-profits,"

Hughes-Gregg said.

In addition to the airboat association, the Seminole County Sheriff's Office, all the area fire departments and the Marine Trade Association will be offering their services to the effort.

The seven sites selected for cleanup are Lake Jesup, Lake Harney, the Triplet Lake chain and Gee Creek in Casselberry, Seminole Ramp and the Sanford Marina, Snow Hill Road, the Wekiva River near Katies Landing, Cameron Wight and the Emmanuel Bin.

"The sites were selected just based on the amount of debris in the areas," Hughes-Gregg said. "These spots are really dirty."

DEATHS

VIOLA W. BEAUMONT

Viola W. Beaumont, 83, Seminole Avenue, Altamonte Springs, died Monday, July 3, 1995.

Born in Ravenna, Ohio, she was a bindery worker for Danner Press of Canton, Ohio. She was a member of the First Reformed Church of Canton and also belonged to the Eastern Star in Canton.

Survivors include her son Tommy E. Roberts of Altamonte Springs; her daughter Marion E. Russell of Hedgeville, W. Va.; her seven grandchildren and her seven great-grandchildren.

Family Funeral Care, Oviedo, in charge of the arrangements.

DOMENICO LEO

Domenico Leo, 72, Tulip Trail, Casselberry, died Thursday, July 6, 1995 at Florida Hospital in Altamonte Springs.

Born Jan. 21, 1923 in Halifax, Mass., he moved to Central Florida in 1984. He was a factory worker in the textile industry. He was a veteran of service with the Italian Army.

IN BRIEF

AROUND THE STATE

Mudcats win in 14th

JACKSONVILLE — Darryl Ratliff singled in the tie-breaking run in the 14th inning as Carolina beat Jacksonville 5-3 in Southern League baseball Thursday night. Carolina blew a 3-0 lead in the ninth inning as Jacksonville scored three unearned runs, but the Mudcats broke through in the 14th inning. Jay Cranford with one out, and Troy Beasley doubled. After an intentional walk to Troy Womack, Ratliff lined a single to right to break the tie, and Jason Kendall's fifth hit of the game drove in another run.

Cardinals win in 12

ST. LOUIS — Tom Pagnozzi's a veteran trying to break a long slump. Brian Jordan's a young player trying to establish himself as a leader. The two combined to help the St. Louis Cardinals win a game. Pagnozzi hit a game-tying two-run homer in the seventh inning and Jordan singled home the game-winner in the 12th Thursday night as the Cardinals beat the Florida Marlins 3-2. Pagnozzi's homer was his first of the season, and the catcher is hitting just .218. He was 10-for-65 (.154) in June with one run batted in. Jordan drove in the run in the 12th after Marlins reliever Matt Mantel walked Jose Oquendo and Allen Battle. The Marlins scored both runs in the fifth inning. Greg Colbrunn singled with one out and Jerry Browne doubled with two outs. The first run scored on a wild pitch and Charles Johnson singled home the second run, extending his hitting streak to 10 games.

Graf, Vicario reach final

WIMBLEDON, England — Five-time champion Steffi Graf extended her mastery over Jana Novotna with a three-set victory that put the top-seeded German into the Wimbledon final. Graf rallied after losing the first set for a 5-7, 6-4, 6-2 victory. In Saturday's championship match, Graf will face second-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, who downed defending champion Conchita Martínez 6-3, 6-7 (7-5), 6-1, to reach her first Wimbledon final. Andre Agassi will play Boris Becker in one men's semifinal today, while defending champion Pete Sampras faces Goran Ivanisevic in a replay of last year's final.

Red Sox get Aguilera

MINNEAPOLIS — Rick Aguilera, one of baseball's best relievers in the 1990s, was traded from the Minnesota Twins to the Boston Red Sox for a couple of prospects. The trade was prompted by Aguilera's pending change of status. At midnight EDT, he was to become a 10-and-5 player, 10 years in the majors, the last five with the same team, which would give him trade approval. Boston, leading the AL East, had a big hole in its bullpen. Red Sox relievers went into the game in Minnesota with a 12-13 record with 14 saves and a 5.40 ERA. The Twins receive pitcher Frankie Rodriguez, 22, and at least one player to be named.

Lindros NHL's best

TORONTO — Philadelphia's Eric Lindros was named most valuable player in the NHL. Lindros got 10 of 26 first-place votes in outpolling Pittsburgh forward Jaromir Jagr and Buffalo goalie Dominik Hasek for the award. At age 22, Lindros is the youngest MVP since 1980, when 19-year-old Wayne Gretzky won for the first time. Hasek had the consolation of being named best goalie for the second straight year on the strength of a 2.13 goals-against average and an 18-6-3 record. Quebec, which is moving to Denver next season, had two players win awards. Peter Forsberg was named rookie of the year and Marc Crawford was coach of the year. Paul Coffey of Detroit was named best defenseman for the third time and Pittsburgh's Ron Francis was honored as best defensive forward and as the most gentlemanly player.

Knicks ink Nelson

NEW YORK — Don Nelson, among the winningest coaches in NBA history, was hired to coach the New York Knicks. The 55-year-old Nelson, the former coach of Golden State and Milwaukee, replaces Pat Riley, who resigned last month with a year remaining on his contract. After more than six seasons with the Warriors, Nelson was forced to resign last February, ending a disastrous season in which a feud with Chris Webber forced his trade to the Washington Bullets.

Pinehurst crown still up for grabs

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The visitors came out hitting and made life miserable for the home teams in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Thursday Night Spring Slowpitch Softball League at Pinehurst Park.

The visiting team was the winner in all three games Thursday, two of which resulted in upsets.

Included in the upsets was a 13-6 clubbing of league-leading Hopkins Meats by Nobles Construction. Hopkins, which saw its seven game winning streak come to an end, held a 6-3 lead going into the fifth inning. But Nobles, which has now won four games in a row, rallied for six runs in the fifth inning and five runs in the sixth inning to pull out the win and keep its title hopes alive.

The other upset came in the second game of the night as Glasurit Paint ended an eight-game losing skid by scoring six runs in the seventh inning to turn a close game into a comfortable 13-7 victory over No Escape.

The only "expected" victory came in the opening game of the evening as Creek Baseball scored eight runs in the fourth inning and 10 runs in the sixth inning to humble Glasurit Paint 20-4 in six innings.

Hopkins Meats is now 9-2 on the season, while Nobles Construction is 8-3. Trailing the leaders are Creek Baseball (4-6), No Escape (3-7) and Glasurit Paint (2-8).

The regular season will close next week with Hopkins Meats playing Glasurit Paint at 6:30 p.m.; No Escape challenging Nobles Construction at 7:30 p.m.; and Creek Baseball taking on No Escape at 8:30 p.m.

Powering Creek Baseball were Chuck Hargrove (home run, four singles, four runs, three RBI), Jin Schaefer (two doubles, three singles, two runs, five RBI), Tom Kelly (double, three singles, three runs, RBI) and Greg Hensley (triple, double, single, two runs, three RBI).

Also hitting were Nick Williams (double, single, two runs, RBI), Steve Ross (two singles, two runs, three RBI), David Graham (two singles, run, RBI), Mickey West (two

Beer:30 hands M.A. Erectors first loss

By DEAN SMYTH
 Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — What a difference a game makes.

After being held to three singles in a 15-0 thrashing by Wayne Denach Incorporated, Beer:30 turned right around in the second game and exploded for 25 hits in a 19-6 clubbing of previously undefeated, and league champion, M.A. Erectors at Chase Park.

In the other game in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Spring Thursday Night Slowpitch Softball League, Ken Rummel Chevrolet scored two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to defeat Baskin-Robbins/Florida Sport Wear 8-7.

The season will end next week with Ken Rummel (3-8) taking on Beer:30 (5-5) at 6:30 p.m.; and M.A. Erectors (9-1) playing the doubleheader against Baskin-Robbins/FSW (3-8) at 7:30 p.m. and Wayne Denach (5-4) at 8:30 p.m.

Reader censures columnist Sympathy won't help enablers cope

DEAR MARY: I hated your answer last week to that poor lady who wasn't sure she could continue to live with her husband, even though he wasn't drinking, because he was so mean and abusive to her. I know how that feels — she could have been describing my father when I was growing up, and I can tell you, he put us all through hell.

It wouldn't have hurt you to give her a little sympathetic understanding. She is obviously really hurting and doesn't need anyone else telling her what to do — I'll bet her husband does plenty of that. I know I'll never see this letter in the newspaper, but I still feel better for having written it.

MAD AT YOU

DEAR MAD: Thanks for writing — it keeps me humble, but I

FAMILY COUNSELOR

still stand by my answer. Living with an alcoholic or dry drunk can certainly be hell for all the rest of the family, but sympathy isn't going to help anyone overcome their enabling or co-dependency. Alcoholics and codependents go together like white on rice. If she learns to stop participating in the alcoholic games, she will be making real progress toward helping herself. Anything less than that will keep her stuck in the family patterns that are currently destroying both of them.

Co-dependent enabling is never really helpful and will always lead to resentment, frustration and feelings of hopelessness for the co-dependent.

Anyone who grew up with or is now involved with a person who abuses alcohol or any other drug is at risk for enabling and co-dependent behavior. To begin changing the pattern the enabler must do these things:

- Acknowledge the problem and say what you see in an honest and direct way.
- Decide what your limits are and make them clear to the other person. Don't switch agreements after one is made.
- Learn to say "No" and mean it. Alcoholics, dry drunks and other behavior-disordered people are master manipulators. Trust what you feel and refuse to be sucked into the blame game, victimization or feelings of guilt or resentment.

Peer support is important in overcoming co-dependency and enabling. We learn enabling behaviors in an effort to adapt and cope with what is going on in our lives. But in order to improve our lives, we must unlearn those behaviors and take charge of our problems one day at a time.

(Mary Balk is a Certified Addiction Prevention Professional and a counselor at Pine Crest Elementary School. Contact her at the Sanford Herald, or call 322-1711.)

Shaved heads may be 'in' thing and 'gang' thing

DEAR ABBY: We have two sons. One is 14, and the other is 11. They recently asked us if they could get their heads shaved. They tell us that all their friends are doing it, and it is the "in" thing right now.

Both sets of grandparents say this is part of growing up. When we were their age, fellows wore their hair down to their shoulders.

Should we allow our sons to shave their heads?

CONCERNED PARENTS
DEAR CONCERNED: Shaving the head may be the "in" thing, but in some areas, it is also the "gang" thing.

If children adopt gang styles, even if they are not involved in gang activities, they can put themselves at risk. Gangs don't take kindly to non-members who "copy" them, and rival gangs attack members of other gangs.

The principal of your children's school, or your local police department, can tell you if shaved heads are dangerous in your community.

DEAR ABBY: Last week, I came home to find that my uncle had hanged himself in my garage following a long period of depression. He left no note, no apologies or explanations — only hundreds of unanswered questions. This selfish act has affected our family so deeply, I cannot describe the pain we are enduring.

Of course, the news of his death was in the local newspapers, but most people have been reluctant to offer words of sympathy because they don't know what to say — or even if they should mention it. Suicide is such an unsympathetic death, the family is left to grieve alone.

Perhaps if you print this, people will think before they take their own lives. To those who consider suicide, I say, "Please seek help before you do something that will affect the lives of those around you."

You may sign this with my real name.

TRACY DAVID, DAYTONA BEACH, FLA.

DEAR TRACY: Please accept my sympathy for your recent tragedy. People who take their own lives are often deeply depressed and unable to think clearly. They are so focused on their own pain, they don't realize the effect the suicide will have on others. Fortunately, these periods of deep depression are usually only temporary. I urge people who have frequent thoughts about suicide to consult their physician — depression can be successfully treated.

DEAR ABBY: Our son was all set to get married in August of 1994, but two weeks before the wedding, he and his fiancée agreed to call the wedding off.

A month before their wedding date, the parents of the bride had a bridal shower for their daughter, which my wife and I attended. We presented the bride with a check for $500.

ADVICE

When the wedding was canceled, all communication between the bride's family and us stopped. Since then, the bride has made no effort to return the $500 check we gave her. (It was never cashed.)

We did not think it proper to put a "stop payment" on it — so we just let it go. So far, the check remains uncashed.

Is it proper etiquette for her to keep the check inasmuch as the marriage never materialized?

PARENTS OF THE GROOM

DEAR PARENTS: No, the bride should have returned all gifts — including your $500 check. I doubt that she'll ever cash it, but on the outside chance that she may, call your bank and instruct it to stop payment on that check.

Incidentally, the bride's parents committed a faux pas — parents and close relatives, according to etiquette, should not host showers. Friends should.

DEAR ABBY: I am a dental hygienist, and I just read your column about people who cancel their appointments at the last minute because of an emergency, and of course, some just don't show up at all.

I recently had a telephone call from a client who said, "I'm sorry, I can't come in for my appointment today because the O.J. Simpson case is on, and it's so fascinating, I don't want to miss even one episode."

Another woman called to cancel her long-standing appointment, saying, "It's such a beautiful day, I'm going to the beach."

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

Safe deposit boxes not insured by FDIC

The contents of a safe deposit box are not insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC), or generally, by the bank where the box is located. (Make sure you read the contract you signed with the bank when you rented the safe deposit box in the event that some type of insurance is provided, some banks may make a very limited payment if the box or contents are damaged or destroyed, depending on the circumstances.)

If you are concerned about the safety, or replacement of items you have put in a safe deposit box, you may wish to consider purchasing fire and theft insurance. Separate insurance for these perils may be available; consult your insurance agent. Usually such insurance is part of a homeowner's or tenant's insurance policy for a residence and its contents. Again, consult your insurance agent for more information. If floods and earthquakes have been known to occur in your location, you may want to look into insurance against these natural disasters.

In the event of a bank failure, in most cases an acquiring institution would take over the failed bank's offices including locations with safe deposit boxes. If the FDIC conducts a payoff because no acquirer can be found, boxholders would be sent instructions about removing the contents of their boxes.

For more information about deposit insurance coverage, ask your local bank or savings association or write to: Office of Consumer Affairs, FDIC, 550 Seventeenth St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20429.

(Barbara Hughes/Gregg is the Seminole County Extension manager. Inquiries may be directed to her at the Cooperative Extension Service, 250 W. County Home Road, Sanford, FL 32773 or phone 323-2500, Ext. 5856.)

IN BRIEF

Methodists schedule VBS

SANFORD — All children are invited to First United Methodist Church, 419 Park Ave., for a Vacation Bible School program. The event is set for July 10 through 14 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

"Sontown Family Celebration" is the theme for the VBS. Children will enjoy songs, skits, games, Bible studies and snacks.

Pastor Cliff Melvin commented, "We have an exciting summer program planned for the children in our community. This summer we will be transforming the church into Sontown, a fun place where everybody will feel at home. We will be helping kids discover important ways to get along with their families. Families have so many challenges these days. We're looking forward to this very special opportunity for us to reach out to parents and children in our neighborhood, make their loads a little lighter and brighten their week with down-home fun. Most of all, we want people to know that they can be part of God's family and count on Him whenever they face a challenge together."

For more information call the church office at 322-4371.

Citywide benefit set

SANFORD — A citywide benefit program for Johnny Golden has been scheduled at First Shiloh Baptist Church, 700 Elm Ave., Saturday at 7 p.m. The event will feature local choirs and soloists.

Golden is the son of Cynthia Cassanova Brown and a former star athlete at Seminole High School. He has been stricken with spinal meningitis, a potentially fatal disease.

Contributions can be brought to the program or made at any local SunBank.

Tripp's to sing

SANFORD — LaVerne Tripp and family, legendary pioneers in the world of Christian Country Gospel Music, will perform at Sanford Church of God, 801 W. 22nd St., tonight at 7 p.m.

LaVerne is joined by his wife, Edith, a part Cherokee Indian Princess and their two sons Rob and Terry.

For more information call the church office at 322-3942.

Youth convention planned

SANFORD — Victory Temple of God, 601 Pine Ave., has planned a Reachout Week and Youth Convention from July 10 through 16. Times for the services will be 5 to 8 p.m.

The theme will be "Young People Making a Difference." Door prizes, refreshments, arts & crafts, videos and guest speakers will be available.

Participants are expected from as far away as Ft. Lauderdale.

For more information contact Alisa Grace at 330-0029.

Church anniversary celebrated

SANFORD — The New Bethel M.B. Church will be celebrating its 56th anniversary on Sunday, July 9 at the 11 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. services.

For the morning service the inspirational message will come from the Rev. Victor Blair of Oviedo. The afternoon service will feature the Rev. Caffey and his congregation at Zion Hope M.B. Church as the group in charge.

All are invited to attend.

Slaughter to speak

LONGWOOD — Marriage, money, children and career are concerns that most of us face today. Being a Christian does not exempt us from the pressures that these concerns may bring.

As Slaughter sings and testifies around the world, he spreads the word of God's redemptive, restoration power and how the Lord is really concerned and wants to give victory over the everyday problems we face.

Slaughter will be in service at Wekiva Assembly, 1675 Dixon Rd., on Sunday, July 9 at the 7 p.m. service.

Clown assistants wanted

SANFORD — C.I.R.C.U.S. (Clowns In Righteous Consecration Unto Salvation) is seeking assistants to accompany clowns performing in downtown Sanford on Saturday afternoons.

Those desiring training in clowning are asked to call Doug Burnham at 330-9239 after 5 p.m.

Methodists schedule J A M.

SANFORD — The First United Methodist Church, 419 Park Ave., hosts a J A M (Jesus and Me) for children every Monday evening from 4:30 to 7 p.m. The evening covers Bible stories, dinner, puppet shows and drama.

For further details call the church office at 322-4371.

Church plans dedication service

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Restoration Community Church, 300 S. Mellonville Ave., will dedicate its new facilities Sunday in the 10 a.m. service. Pastor Waisanen will speak on the subject of America.

Waisanen and his family work together in this endeavor. They have resided in the Seminole County area for 15 years. "My wife, Delorise, copastors the church with me," he said. "My son, Scott is the youth minister."

The congregation began in August of 1990 with 12 members and met at the Longwood Fitness Center. They have now grown to 80 members. "This is the third new church we've started in the last 12 years," said Waisanen. "One of our goals is to satellite churches all over the area. We'd also like to see a Christian youth center and a Christian senior center established in Seminole County."

Counseling services are also offered by Waisanen and his wife. "We counsel marriages and families," he said. "Our goal is to restore marriages and families and help them be healed."

Dr. Pat Rush also works with the church. "We have a Spirit Fire School Ministry," said Waisanen. "We offer various classes through this in-terdenominational school with Rush coordinating the school." Nursery, and classes from toddler to adult are offered. For more information about the church and its ministries call the church office at 328-7688 or the pastor at (904) 789-9537.

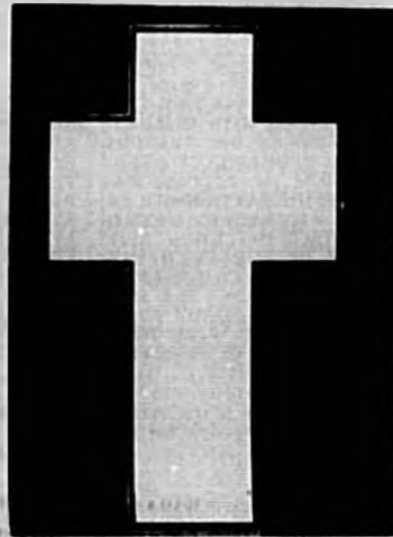

Missionaries remembered in prayer

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

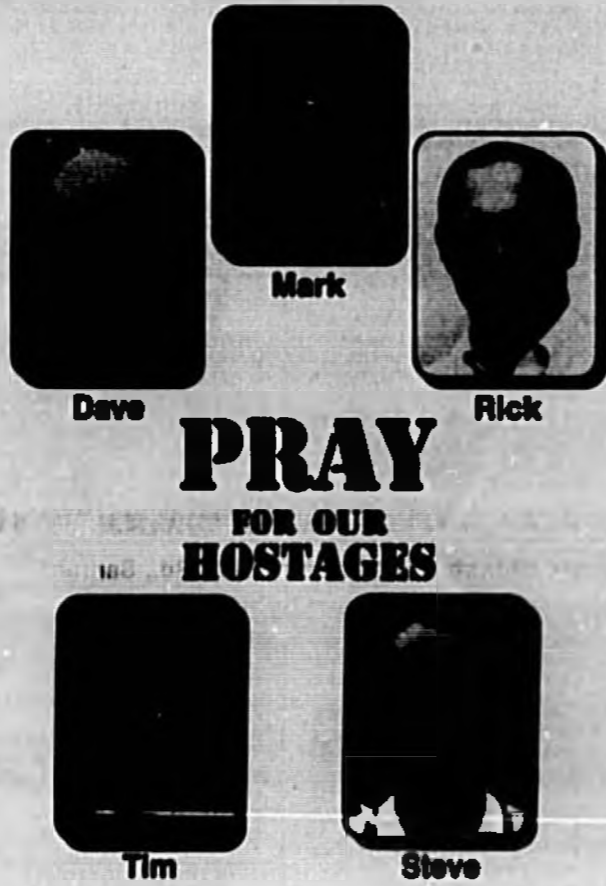

SANFORD — According to a press release, on June 20, New Tribes Mission was notified by the United States Embassy in Bogota that the bodies of missionaries Tim Van Dyke and Steve Welsh had been located by Colombian military forces in the mountains north of Villavicencio. The initial information provided to NTM is that Van Dyke and Welsh were killed June 19 during an encounter between Colombian military forces and insurgent guerrillas.

New Tribes publication "Brown Gold" and the mission itself still requests the prayers of all Christians for the deceased families and the families of other missionaries still missing.

"Even as NTM mourns the loss of these two missionaries who were committed to serving the people of Colombia, we remember that three more of our family and a missionary colleague from another organization remain in captivity in Colombia. Dave Mankins, Mark Rich and Rick Tenenoff from NTM were kidnapped on January 31, 1993. Ray Rising of Wycliffe Bible Translators was kidnapped on March 31, 1994. In light of the tragedy of the deaths of Tim and Steve, NTM calls on the captors of these other missionaries to release them immediately to prevent any further bloodshed to these men of God. We also thank the people of Colombia and Christians everywhere for their expressions of support and for their prayers," also mentioned in the press statement.

Tim Van Dyke and Steve Welsh died in the mission field.

Christian Women to meet

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The Altamonte-Maitland Christian Women's Club will hold its monthly meeting Thursday, July 13 at Maison & Jardin Restaurant, 430 Wymore Rd. The cost will be $11.50 and the group will meet from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

The theme will be "Picnic in the Park" with special features, music and a guest speaker.

For brunch reservations and cancellations call Earlena Sawyer at 880-3710 or Marcia Shilling at 841-5043 by Sunday, July 9.

Applications still accepted

SANFORD — The First Baptist Learning Center, 519 S. Park Ave., is still accepting applications for enrollment in its preschool and daycare programs.

For further information call 324-4115.

Bear another's burden

SANFORD — The Bible tells Christians to "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ." (Galatians 6:2) In a world of ups and downs it's nice to know you're not alone.

Followers of Jesus know that He is our friend and will lead us. We pray for God's strength to continue our walk on the Lord. Yet, we are assured that God sends those we fellowship with to encourage and uplift us.

Prayers have been requested for missionaries and their families. On the other hand we rejoice with the growth of new churches. Let us always remember that we have a purpose. In fulfilling that purpose we can be there for others. "Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep." (Romans 12:15)

Baptists provide activities for youth

Herald Photos by Marva Hawkins

Right photo shows St. Matthews Missionary Baptist Church Bible School offered many activities for youth to keep busy during a week of Bible study. Primary class students were Darnious Collins, Eddie Grinnon, Dominick Terrell, Malcolm Robinson and Jamal Peterson. Teachers for the class were Mary

A. White and Renee Stephens. Eula Martin is the Superintendent and the Rev. Leonard J. Wilson is the Pastor. Left photo shows middle age class with ages 9 to 11. The group was taught how God can shine in the lives of those who believe in his word. Pictured are Brittany Hardy, Marcus Robinson, Jason Chisolm, Olivia Sneed, Tyrone Conquest, Kalan McKinney, Erika Barrett, Nijja Cassanova, Lauren Fields and Christopher Peterson. Teachers for the class were Emma Thompson and Lulu Robinson. Bible school is held every June at St. Matthews.

Does new surgery treat emphysema?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Are you familiar with a newly discovered surgery known as bullectomy? The purpose of this is to reduce or eliminate scar tissue in the lungs. Is this procedure widely used?

DEAR READER: Advanced emphysema is characterized by large bullae -- sacs of stale air within the lungs -- often seen in association with pulmonary scars. Because these sacs are relatively inert, they do not permit the exchange of oxygen with carbon dioxide. More important, they take up valuable space, compressing normal lung tissue and accentuating the breathlessness and difficult breathing caused by emphysema.

In the past, treatment for this condition involved only the use of supplemental oxygen. Today, modern doctors also prescribe antibiotics, drugs to open the airways, special breathing exercises, and cortisone, in conjunction with oxygen.

Bullectomy is a brand new treatment for emphysema and is not widely available, although it has shown promise in the research institutions where it was developed. During the procedure, large bullae are surgically removed, allowing more normal, adjacent lung tissue to expand and function more effectively.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've read your articles on Alzheimer's disease, which has been called "a disease of the caregiver." I believe this is true. The idea of day-care centers is fairly new but provides an alternative to nursing homes and enables a person suffering from the disease to stay in a family setting while, at the same time, giving the caregiver some much needed respite. Please let your readers know of day-care centers for seniors as an alternative for help with this dreaded disease.

DEAR READER: You're absolutely correct. I am grateful to you for writing to point out that many day-care centers are valuable resources for families burdened with Alzheimer's disease. This neurological disorder causes progressive deterioration in thinking and judgment, leading eventually to complete dependence.

In my experience, not all such centers welcome Alzheimer's patients because these folks can be disruptive and extremely demanding. Therefore, it's a good idea to establish whether the day-care center in your community will accept patients with Alzheimer's disease. Copyright 1995 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Whenever you are playing in a trump contract, usually your top priority is that the opponents do not score more trump tricks than is absolutely necessary. This, of course, normally means drawing their trumps fast or faster or fastest. Yet there are deals in which it is wrong to pull trumps. The obvious examples are when you are planning either to crossruff or to ruff losers. Today's deal looks like a struggle for South to retain trump control, but it isn't at all. It is a matter of raking in tricks with losing trumps.

West's opening bid was a weak no-trump, showing 12-14 points. North's two clubs was Landy, promising a major two-suiter. North's spade raise was aggressive, but it pays to bid thin games, especially when vulnerble. And East's silence suggested that South had some values. West found the unfortunate lead of the club ace. (The diamond king would work much better, but who would select that?) At trick two, West switched to a low heart.

After winning with dummy's heart queen, the declarer, Walid El-Ahmady from Egypt, cashed a club to his king and cashed the club queen, discarding dummy's remaining diamond. Now came a diamond ruff, the heart ace, the heart seven ruffed in hand, a diamond ruff in the dummy and the heart king ruffed by the spade king.

The defenders were welcome to a pair of spade tricks to go with the club ace scored at trick one, but that was all.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Cool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 8, 1995

New ambitions and desires could be awakened in you in the year ahead. Your chances for success look good because you'll know how to move things from alpha to omega.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Social involvements won't be frivolous or a waste of time today. In fact, you might trigger something beneficial while relaxing and having fun. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The important thing today is to do a good job first, then worry about what you're going to get for it. The yield will be proportionate to the effort you expend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This should be a good day for you. You might have even more bright ideas than usual. What is really important, though, is that you'll know how to use them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for material gains look promising for today and tomorrow. If there is more of something you want, use your ingenuity to acquire it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you could be luckier than usual in projects or endeavors you personally create or control. Let persons in key positions know what you're attempting to do.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to avoid situations today that could back you into a corner, but know you'll have the ability to wiggle out if pressed to the wall.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You are fortunate in that you have several valuable contacts anxious to see you succeed. Go to them today if you need help gratifying your expectations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not be afraid to make snap decisions today because your first thoughts are apt to be your best ones. The secret to success is to believe in yourself.

PICES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will function best today when you can express your originality. Assert yourself if you feel that your way of doing things is better than others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might start reaping returns today from a service you render which, up until now, has never been fully rewarded. An unexpected shift might bring this about.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Romantic bonds can be strengthened today if you do things to let the one you love know how much you care for him/her. Be demonstrative and obvious.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Strive to be industrious and productive today, but not in ways that serve only yourself. Good things will come if you go out of your way to show kindness.
