FIFTEEN miles of reinforced concrete sea wall to encircle every bit of waterfront on Davis Shores will be started this week under the direction of W. N. McDonald, former United States engineer and builder of the famous Malecon sea wall and drive at Havana, Cuba.

The Davis Shores sea wall will cost $1,486,000 and will be completed in one year. With the sea wall now being built about Davis Islands in Tampa, this constitutes the biggest bulkheading engineering job now in progress in the world!

The sea wall about Davis Shores will be built of many thousands of slabs of concrete and steel, each of which weighs nearly two tons. These slabs are 18 feet long, 27 inches wide and eight inches thick. They are set upright with a crane and jettied into place by high-pressure pumps.

On the ocean side of Davis Shores the sea wall will be 10 feet high, insuring forever the integrity of Anastasia Island and the historic harbor of St. Augustine. Engineers studied weather and tide charts of St. Augustine for 50 years back before designing the wall.

Such intensity of development operations, the $5,000,000 building program for 1926, and such immensity of engineering plans are making Davis Shores known throughout the land. With Davis Islands it is the most fascinating engineering project ever attempted.

Sales totaled $18,714,600 in one day when the last of this magnetic property was placed on the market. It is the most-sought property in Florida today—the type that will always be in great demand—that will bring big profits to its owners through re-sale for years to come!

Modern Check Of Assessed Valuation Of Sanford Will Be Finished At Early Date

That the assessed valuation of the city will be increased to a nearly exact figure possible to assemble, owing to the fact that the city sometimes ago employed an expert to check up on the increased building operations and the new additions to the city, was the opinion expressed today by L. Phillips, city clerk. Mr. Phillips said today that the great increase in building, the rising property values, and the new additions to the city required an amount of time necessary to do an assessment roll which he found it impossible to handle alone. The man whom the city put on the job has almost completed the task, it is said, and the results will appear on the rolls for 1926.

have been erected on lots which, under the 1925 assessment rolls, were rated as vacant. Dr. Phillips said, "It was necessary for the city to check the lots against the building permits issued during the past year in order to get the correct assessment on the new buildings." The new assessed valuation will be of great help to the city in floating the $2,000,000 bond issue, provided the voters of the city accept it at the polls on May 19, it is believed by officials and leading business men. The law allows a limit of 15 per cent on the assessed valuation for the purpose of issuing the municipal bonds, and the increase this year will allow ample margin between the law's allowance and the valuation, it is said.

My days among the dead are past; Around me I behold, Where'er these casual eyes are cast, The mighty minds of old; My never-falling friends are they, With whom I converse day by day, With them I take delight in weal And seek relief in woe; And while I understand and feel How much to them I owe, My cheeks have often been bedew'd With tears of thoughtful gratitude, My thoughts are with the dead; With them I live in long past years, Their virtues love, their faults condemn, I prize their hopes and fears, And from their lessons seek and find Instruction with a humble mind.

My hopes are with the dead; anon My place with them will be, And I with them shall travel on Through all futurity; Yet leaving here a name, I trust, That will not perish in the dust.—Robert Southey.

Grade crossing accidents in the city limits of Sanford was the subject discussed in an editorial half a column in length by The Herald of that city. It always takes an accident and a lengthy editorial in a newspaper to call the public's attention to the fact that railroad crossings in most cities are not properly safeguarded. And they straightaway forget about said crossings until another accident followed by the usual newspaper comment calls the situation to their attention. Ocala is no exception to the rule.—Ocala Star.

In the meantime he will appear in the Herald making war on gambling or any other vice. It is about time the Herald did something to distinguish itself along this line, for it has referred in the past only an academic way to Palm Beach Independent.

When Children Should Be Spanked

Whether children should be spanked is a question that has always been the subject of debate, and one which will probably never be answered to the satisfaction of everyone. Recently a noted educator in a lecture on the subject of rearing children, asked the question, "Should Children Be Spiked?"

According to the educator, spanking is necessary when children are young in order to compel them to avoid those things that are bad and dangerous for them. In defense of painful punishment, he declared pain is the only thing effective at that age.

Continuing this line of reasoning, the educator who has made an extensive study of the subject, says, "All animal life is attracted by what gives pleasure and repelled by what gives pain. Since nature does not always provide that pleasure or pain shall follow a good or bad act, we step in and make attractive the good acts, and make painful the things that the children must learn to avoid."

Spanking is an advantageous method of punishment up to the age of five, says the lecturer. After that age, its merits are more or less doubtful. It probably depends upon the child. The so-called "age of reason" is supposed to begin when the child is between five and seven years, and when he reaches that age, different forms of punishments should be adopted, although there are many parents who still cling to spanking and switching until the children are in their early teens.

An interesting part of the lecturer's message is a warning that there is one thing that punishment is no good for. Although it will keep a child from doing that which he should not do, it will not make him do something that he should do. For obtaining constructive effects—that is to make him accomplish something—the child should be rewarded, says this authority. In this manner accomplishment of a task will be made more pleasant.

The University of Miami

Last week witnessed the ceremonies attending the laying of the cornerstone of the new University of Miami at Coral Gables. Over seven thousand persons are said to have been present and heard the impressive speeches marking the beginning of this great educational movement.

It is a fine thing to have a part in the intellectual uplift of one's community. It is a fine thing to construct beautiful buildings which some day may have a part in the development of men's minds. Great universities mean much in the forward march of humanity and usually tend to improve greatly the environment in which they are found.

Someone has said long before us, however, that there is a time and place for everything. We wonder if this is the time for devoting one's money and efforts to the foundation of a university, even at Coral Gables. It is intended to spend ten million dollars on the initial outlay of the university. No doubt additional millions will be spent before many years.

We wonder if a university is the best use to which this money could be put. Ten million dollars would work a revolution in the roads of Dade county which are said to be not in the best of repair. Ten million dollars, if properly expended, would take all the little boys and girls now attending school in tents and put them in decent school buildings and would provide them with suitable teachers.

It is of greater advantage to the state that all its children learn reading and writing than that a few be thoroughly schooled in the mysteries of philosophy and analytical geometry while the rest grow up illiterate.

FLORIDA POULTRY EUSTIS LAKE REGION

While Florida has been reveling in real estate developments, hand-headed capitalists have been quietly studying the state's possibilities and advantages from an industrial point of view. These men are impatiently waiting for the influences of glowing literature and high-powered salesmen, but they can analyze a business proposition with acumen and precision.

Emanating from New York comes, reports are reaching Florida to the effect that several concerns are investigating the climate, conditions and advantages of establishing large poultry producing plants in this state. Much of the poultry now used in eastern cities comes from the large poultry ranches of the Far West, even all the way across the continent from California. Florida, being about half the distance from the big eastern centers of population in the matter of transportation by rail and is also accessible by water.

There is some doubt in the minds of northern poultrymen whether or not the climate of this state would permit of poultry raising to advantage. This phase of the situation is what is now being studied, and when the poultrymen can satisfy themselves that there will be no difficulty from this source it would not be surprising if several large poultry farms were established in different parts of this state.

Residents of Florida know that their climate is favorable for the successful production of poultry and eggs and the only reason that this state must now procure the larger part of its poultry supplies from distant points is that there has never been any systematic effort made to develop poultry raising here. Poultry has been produced here ever since farming began, and the fowls have vigor and stamina equal to those of any part of the country, but the industry has never been developed.

It would not be surprising if this branch of the farming industry in Florida soon receives more attention than has ever before been devoted to it.

BY WAY OF COMPROMISE: Up in Minnesota a railroad train killed a cow belonging to a Scandinavian homesteader. The tragedy having been reported at headquarters a claim-agent was sent to the spot to make a settlement of damages with the owner of the slaughtered animal.

Now, the claim-agent was a plausible and persuasive person else he would not have been a claim-agent. Having sought out the Scandinavian and introduced himself by his official title he proceeded to make out as strong a case in rebuttal as was possible under the circumstances, with the hope of course, of inducing the injured party to accept as moderate a sum as possible.

THE POPOLO DI ROMA says Mussolini's magnificent defiance of Germany must not be dissected or discussed. "It is necessary that it remain with us in its nude Roman potency."

IT IS possible to push nude Roman potency too far. Italy's plan for regaining domination of the Mediterranean which nude Roman potency won by the destruction of Carthage, causes anxiety and danger in France, Spain, England, Russia and Greece. If war should come it would be a matter of flying machines, coal, money and especially of international alliances.

The Italians are wonderful fighters. No nation excels them in courage, but you cannot win modern wars with fine phrases, nude Roman potency, or unlimited courage, if your enemies combine against you.

MRS. MARY HARRINGTON, of Mahanoy City, Pennsylvania, had several children. Her husband, a coal miner on strike, went to look for work in another town. She gave her children what food she had, and she died of hunger.

ONE ADVANTAGE is with the mine owners. Not matter how long a strike lasts, mine owners, their wives and children, never starve. That's an advantage, yet pushed too far, it can become a disadvantage.

WHEN TOLD that the poor had no bread Marie Antoinette wondered "why they did not eat cake." Later she and her husband stopped eating, via the guillotine. She was only a poor fool.

An able statesman of her time suggested that the people eat grass. The people stuffed their mouths with grass when they carried their head around on the end of a pike. It is well to remember these things even in happy, prosperous days.

THE REVEREND James Empringham, of the Protestant Episcopal Church Temperance society, called for the prohibition of wine. He stood out to legalize light wine and beer.

Bishop Manning who says Empringham has no right to speak for the church, calls drinking "not a sin, but says prohibition should be obeyed. This does not annoy rich laymen, his parishioners, who build for him the United Methodist Church, John the Baptist. They can drink whatever they want.

CARDINAL HAYES, just returned from Rome, tells New York that it is improper to ask our children to consider vile and outlawed that which we must use daily in our worship. Others ask that it is "improper to prohibit those who believe banks are essential to the welfare of the people to legalize big man."

Many find it hard to understand why use of alcoholic wine should be permitted in churches, Protestant, Catholic, Jewish, and faithless churches. Others ask why, if alcohol is so vile, the sacred blood should actually be physically present, transformed into an alcoholic drink, instead of being transformed into something non-alcoholic.

THAT IS FOR discussion by those with religious authority. Ordinary men wonder that prohibition has succeeded in driving out comparatively mild alcoholic drinks that many European nations have used for centuries, without drunkenness, while bootleggers have drunk whiskey as the national drink.

MR. BUCKER, United States district attorney for New York business men it would cost $15,000,000 a year to enforce prohibition in New York alone. He might add that such an expenditure would not actually enforce prohibition. You could not stop the bootleg traffic with its profits of hundreds of millions annually, if you spent a thousand million yearly.

Some recommend legalizing light wine and beer, while keeping out the saloon. Others equally sincere, believe that legalized wine and beer would be used as a mask for more illegal whiskey.

DWIGHT MORROW, President Coolidge's air board chief, understands the importance of the commercial airplane, in and out of the post office. That development is progressing at a rate that makes the inactivity and incompetency of the army and navy aircraft less important.

MR. NEW, the postmaster general, works constantly at air mail extension. On April first, the Transcontinental Air Mail will divide at Salt Lake City, and thence separate flying machines will carry mail to northern and southern California, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

MR. MAYO, Ford's chief engineer, says Henry Ford is planning many new railroads. He has planes running from Detroit to Cleveland and Chicago. He plans another line to Buffalo, another to Boston, connecting lines to New York, taking in Springfield, Massachusetts, Albany and New Haven.

What is most important, Ford expects to add to his express carrying a flying passenger department. Well, there is the argument. The

THREE OF A KIND—WITH BUT A SINGLE THOUGHT

WHO BENEFITS FROM BANKS.

It was emphatically stated at the last convention of American Bankers Association that there has been too much of an air of mystery about the banking business with the results that banks have been misunderstood and attacked by those above $10,000 constitute only 7.7 per cent. The same condition exists in the heart of the financial center of the city as in the most distant residential or rural branch of the bank.

LAUGH AND GROW FAT

THE iconoclasts seem determined that there shall be left to the people no illusions, no traditions. They are after Keston and Franklin and everybody else who has been conspicuous enough to get into the past to be subject to anecdotes. They are after some of our pet lions. And they are especially vigorous in their attacks upon the old ideas of health and how to have it. A well-known writer, for instance has just said that fat people are not good-natured. It has always been assumed that people grow fat because they are good-natured. A fat man has always been the symbol of jollity. The best-known poem about Sauter Claus speaks of his fat belly shaking like a bowlful of jelly. Shakespeare recognized the general quality of fatness when he put in the mouth of Caesar the words, "Let me have men about that are fat, sleek-men, and such as sleep of nights. You Cassius has a lean and hungry look. Such men are dangerous."

SYMPATHY, WHO NEEDS IT?

In a stately thirty-room mansion in the midst of a spacious park of woodland not far from New York a woman sat shivering amid the luxurious furniture and equipment of ornately decorated rooms. She was thinly clad and in the big kitchen there was little food.

The woman was not a care-taker but the owner of the house and park and her plight was discovered as the result of her appeals for help from some philanthropist. She did not ask any gift, except in the way of low interest on the loan of $70,000 she wished on the property.

But she was convinced that she was as much entitled to charity and sympathy as any one and so maintained when asked why she did not sell the property and live comfortably on the proceeds in a cottage, "It is easy enough for a poor woman in a tenement garret to gain sympathy, but my situation is just as tragic," she urged, and explained that she had lived in luxurious quarters all her life and was too old to change to any cottage.

Well, there is the argument. The poor woman of the tenement is not particularly unhappy with cold and cause she is accustomed to them—she has no happy part to them to look back. The woman in the mansion thinks she is more deserving of sympathy because she has known a more luxurious life and so feels destitute even in a cottage-tenement dweller. The charitable man makes the best claim for sympathy, the one who never had or lost.

Women's Club Hold Its Annual Bridge Luncheon At Club House On Tuesday

One of the most brilliant social events of the season was that of Tuesday when the members of the Social Department of the Sanford Women's Club entertained at its annual bridge luncheon at the club house, with Mrs. Ernest Housholder as hostess.

The large club auditorium was transformed into a veritable fairy bower, with its decorations of red, white and green.

White trellises entwined with deep red roses and feathery sprays of asparagus ferns, encircled the room interspersed with tall potted palms.

The balconies, mantel, stage and cabinets were covered with artificial snow and glistening icicles.

Luncheon was served at small tables centered with white candles in red rose holders. The place cards were full blown roses tied with green and white tulle.

At 1 o'clock, a delicious five course luncheon was served by the members of the Domestic Science class of the Sanford High School.

Receiving the guests upon arrival was Mrs. Ernest Housholder, wearing a smart sport frock of white embroidered georgette, her hat of red straw and corsage of red sweet peas adding a pleasing touch of color to her costume.

Introducing the guests to the receiving line was Mrs. R. A. Newman, attired in a chic gown of red and blue velvet combined with blue georgette.

In the receiving line were Mrs.

Ernest Housholder, Mrs. W. Theodor Langley and Mrs. Henry Wight.

Mrs. Housholder's stunning frock was of accented pleated chartreuse green georgette banded in cream lace. Her hat of white tulle straw with large white tulle roses.

Of lip stick red georgette was the gown worn by Mrs. Langley. Her hat was a small model of red straw and maline.

Mrs. Wight was strikingly handsome in a soft white frock of georgette. Worn with this was a handsome Spanish shawl embroidered in vivid colors.

The guests were shown to their places by Mrs. W. C. Hill, whose becoming costume was of Miami pink combined with white; sport model, with hat and other accessories to match.

After luncheon a spirited game of bridge was played and after five progressions, scores were collected by Mrs. Newman, Mrs. Samuel Fuleton and Mrs. W. C. Hill, and the prize for top score, a white porcelain flower holder in the form of a water nymph, was won by Mrs. O. V. Smith. The second prize, an imported plate, went to Mrs. E. D. Ball. Mrs. H. C. Viehle was given a red powder jar when her honors and points failed to score.

This was one of the largest social functions that has been given this season.

There were 38 tables of players, which included not only the members of the department, but numbers of out of town guests as well.

Library Gets $1,000 Donation From City

Through the generous action of the City Commission an additional appropriation of $1,000 has been allowed to the library board, with which to buy more books.

Mrs. Brown, city librarian, appeared before the city commission at its last meeting, and stated that the library work was growing so rapidly that there was urgent need for more funds, in order to meet the demands made by all classes of readers for more books.

This request was endorsed by A. R. Key, chairman of the library board, and the commissioners unanimously decided to give this financial assistance, which will greatly help the library in meeting the needs of the public and in carrying on their work.

Miss Margaret Davis, Mrs. Tom Davis, and Mrs. A. M. Phillips Motored to Orlando on Monday Evening Where They Attended the Recital Given by Fita Kreisler.

Owing to the serious illness of Dr. Mary Harris, national president of the W. C. T. U., she will not be able to fill her appointment to speak here on Feb. 13 as previously announced.

Mrs. S. E. Barrett now of Jacksonville, but formerly of Sanford, is receiving a cordial welcome here as the guest of Mrs. S. O. Chase at her home on Oak Avenue, after an absence of several months.

The guests were shown to their places by Mrs. W. C. Hill, whose becoming costume was of Miami pink combined with white; sport model, with hat and other accessories to match.

Shawl and Scarf Have Become Important Part of Milady's Wardrobe, Says Bendel

Draping Necessary For Best Use of Newest Wraps

By HENRI BENDEL
NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The shawl and scarf for day have reached a point of extreme importance in the fashionable woman's wardrobe.

embroidered Spanish type, but the gorgeous metal brocaded fabrics fringed with silk, inspired by Calot, and delightful interpretations of colorful silk and satin.

Old Lace Used
I am using exquisite old lace to line these wraps and shaping them in half squares and odd shapes. The one photographed is of ivory white brocade lined with white chiffon and it is cut in the shape of a half moon.

Metallic Brocades May Tarnish In Warm Climates

Let me also suggest that you wear a simple type of frock when you don an elaborate scarf. Nothing is more jarring than a conflict between a highly decorative scarf and a highly decorative gown. One or the other will be subdued.

Not all women wear the shawl with equal distinction. It must be wrapped very subtly about the broad shoulder, or the back that is not straight and like as to lines.

Study Yourself
Try several effects before the mirror and learn to wear your shawl well before you attempt it at a social function. Nothing exceeds it in charm if effectively carried, or is more commonplace than such a wrap bunchily wrapped or draped.

From pearls I must pass to hats another question of interest at this time when there is little excitement in them.

The framing of the face demands a great deal of thought in these days when the obviously picturesque in hatmaking is frowned upon and simplicity the end to be achieved.

Dame Fashion Says "Conceal Hair With Hat"

There is much propaganda in favor of the large hat, but the small one has lost none of its prestige and is inevitably the choice of the New Yorkers. The hat must fit closely about the ears and conceal most of the hair.

But it must make a harmonious line with the rest of the costume. The draped crown of this season allows for greater versatility than we have seen in some time.

I am allowing you today a new creation of burgundy colored plush cloth with a smart cascade of fabric ribbon exactly matching the material.

Many of the newer models are made entirely of silk, preferably faille. This answers the demand for a hat that is light on the head and soft as to touch.

Hats are less severe than during the winter, and the absolutely untrimmed felt is now not the only alternative.

Gunmetal Stockings Came Into Favor, and Lisle Becomes a Rival of Silk

Stockings are a fertile subject for comment for the fashion reporter nowadays. There may be nothing new to note about hats and wraps. At certain times of the year the silhouette of our frocks seems to be stationary—nothing to say on that score. But stockings seem always worth comment or two—they are perennially interesting, and fashions in stockings nowadays change more rapidly even than fashions in hosiery and singles, and that is saying a good deal.

For one thing the death of Queen Alexandra earlier in the winter had an effect on stocking fashions, felt quite vividly in England, and reflected in Paris and eventually in our own land.

During the period of court mourning in England—and it has not quite terminated at the present time—women of the court and those who ape the fashions of the court have given up flesh-colored stockings, wearing instead sheer blacks, and a dark gray that you may call gunmetal or a lighter gray called platinum.

This fashion did not come as such a hardship, since already a number of fashionable women here and in France and in England followed the fashion of wearing extremely thin black silk stockings on occasions when such a choice proved smart. A well-dressed French woman chose a black cloth coat lined with gray tansil, culured and cuffed with gray squirrel, with it she wore black pumps and very very thin black hose. The effect was smarter than it would have been with nude stockings.

More important than this fashion for sheer black and gray stockings is the revived interest in lisle stockings that has been manifested in France and London and is already having an effect on American taste. This was brought about in England by a heavy tax laid on silk stockings from France which led numbers of British women to adopt lisle stockings instead. The saying went the round in London that before long I would be regarded as in quite as bad taste for wearing my legs as a shiny nose. The new lisle stockings are of fine texture but of a soft, dusty finish that contrasts strongly with the sheen of the silk stockings.

In England 25,000 women are employed as electrical workers.

Wyoming was the first state to give the franchise to women.

Green and white checked lisle sport stocking is shown at the top, then a cinnamon colored lisle stocking with open work clock, below which is a beige silk and wool stocking with dog embroidered in red and green and at the bottom sheer silk stocking in gunmetal, which has become fashionable in England during mourning period for Queen Alexandra.

THOUGHTS-WISE AND OTHERWISE

Some cooks use only the tops of mushrooms and almost always peel the tops. But if the mushrooms are fresh the stems are excellent and with the tender button mushrooms, if they are well washed, there is no reason why they should be skinned. At least that is the opinion of one cook noted for the deliciousness of her mushroom dishes.

"To make mushrooms taste good you must have plenty of butter," says this cook. "Have it bubbling in your frying pan and then throw in the mushrooms that have been washed, cut up and allowed to dry. Mushrooms taste best soon after they are gathered. This is not unusually possible. Then they should be washed and cut up just before they are cooked. Let the mushrooms saute in the frying pan with butter for three or four minutes. Then pour in enough

Charleston Dancers From Grand Rapids Win National Crown

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Grand Rapids, Mich., is the Charleston capital of the country as a result of its steppers, Miss Louise Sullivan, 18, and J. E. Sullivan, 20, only brother and sister couple entered, making first honors in the national Charleston contest here early today.

Chicago, represented by Lyman Curry and Miss Katherine Osborn, was second, and Clinton, Iowa, which sent Miss Esther Eisele and Homer Eggenberg, was third. Taking part in the contest were the champion Charleston dancers of some 30 odd cities. Each of the winners received a silver loving cup.

The Sullivans said they had been dancing the intricate diversion for only three months, explaining that it had not been popular in their home town as far back as in other cities represented.

The national competition followed a sectional meet Monday evening. In the division meet, Mayor Thomas P. Stoney of Charleston, where it all started, was disappointed to see his entries all out-stopped by a Memphis team. The Charleston mayor presented the winners with cups.

BEANS AND CORN STAPLE FOOD OF MOUND BUILDERS

New History Outlines Mode Of Living And Agricultural Methods Of Pre-Historic Dwellers In This Country

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 10, (AP)—The modern scientific dietitian would have had a great opportunity to practice his vocation among the mound builders of prehistoric times. Beans and corn were the only things about which they knew much.

Habits of the pre-historic peoples are described at length in a new history compiled by Harold L. Madison, curator of Education of the Cleveland Museum of Natural History. Mr. Madison said there is little doubt but that the mound builders were a race of American Indians.

Corn and beans were the staple foods of the mound builders, which they planted and cultivated in their gardens. They knew nothing of wheat, milk and butter. Ten men cleared a piece of woodland by cutting down the trees with stone axes, and burning the brush and debris, leaving the ashes to fertilize the soil. The women then planted corn and beans in rows among the tree stumps. The labor was augmented by fruits, nuts and acorns, and by game and fish.

Food was prepared by knives made of flint and jasper, flaked to a thin, sharp blade. Mortars made of sandstone were in common use. In them, with the aid of a pestle, corn and acorns were ground into meal. For forks, they probably used awls made of bones, according to Madison.

Madison's research has covered the country.

Loch Arbor

--the front yard of the country club

Loch Arbor, because of its unmatched location, and its proximity to the commercial center of the city, is a home community unparalleled. And yet homesites are offered to the public at prices far below the established value for high grade country club property that Loch Arbor is a part.

To insure values and add to the joy of living at Loch Arbor, careful restrictions have been included in the developing program. Each site enjoys an abundance of natural beauty, and each share in the pleasures that are extremely plentiful in and near the development.

Many of the estates sold to date have been purchased by people who signified their intentions of building their homes at an early date. Loch Arbor is not near, but, is an actual part of Sanford. SPORTS BALLYHOOD CONCRETE EXAMPLES IMPORTANT ASSET In the "ballyhood" that is a part of every sport event, in order to make the public enthuse one aptly coined expression often proves the greatest feature of the "comcon" staff.

When Babe Ruth started on his home-run rampage the baseball writers gravely assisted in creating interest in the super-hotter by digging up new and unusual titles for the Babe.

King of Swat, while not entirely new, surely fits the Bambino. Then along came some one with a little more of the high-brow stuff by calling him the "Colossus of Swat." I am sure that one was coined in Boston.

When Tex Rickard signed Dempsey and Carpenter, he realized that a lot of fancy English to make the public fall stronger.

There was never a stronger "ballyhood" than the Carpenter-Dempsey affair. The Frenchman, with his fine war record, was, of course the colorful athlete of the two and most of the descriptive adjectives were handed him.

"Gorgeous Gorges," the "Orchid Man" and many other flowery titles were applied to the French fighter in building up interest in the event. It succeeded beyond Rickard's wildest expectations.

No one thing helped make Ange Pipro more than the expression of the "Wild Bull of the Pannax." There was plenty of color back of that one. When Battling Siki came to this country and put on several of his wild escapades, one of which, finally resulted in his death, a Gotham scribe, in describing Siki and his eccentricities, referred to him always as the "Singular Sengalese." JAMES OCKENDEN—DANGER IN LONG DRIVING.

It is the fashion nowadays to strive at all costs for length, especially off the tee. It is not sufficient to complete a hole of 400 yards in four by means of a drive, a brassie and two putts; you must be able to get your four by means of a very long tee shot, followed by a very long mashie, and then your two putts.

You are not considered to be a fashionable player unless you can crack and creek, and then comes "Oh, I was driving so far today that I never had to use anything but a mashie for my second shots. I simply made the course look silly to you know." Now I am the last person in the world to despise the long shot; indeed, to be able to hit the ball a long way, providing you can hit it straightly, is of vital importance to any player who wishes to become really first-class.

One may be able to indulge in his blind swiping for days and weeks with complete impunity, but suddenly, and without the slightest warning, the machine begins to crack and creek, and then comes disaster.

Many New Mentors Quite a few big schools will have new football coaches next fall. Among them are California, Washington and Jefferson, Indiana, Oregon and the Army and Navy. The success of each will be watched with unusual interest.

Adventures of the Twins

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

When Mister Snoopy, the Shandy Man, rushed out of Hidy Go Land, the sun was shining brightly.

But when Mister Sprinkle Blow the weather man looked down and saw what was going on, he rolled a cloud over the sun and put Mister Snoopy out for good and all.

"Yes, sir! This was the end of him, so Mister Havalook saved his pennies after all, and is living peacefully with Sniff Whisker, the mayor of Ash Can Town."

As for the umbrella that Mister Snoopy threw up at the moon with all the dolls and other Hidy Go people tied up in it, including the Twins—well!

Instead of going to the moon, the umbrella was heading straight for the sun, because the moon was in China at that minute.

But the big umbrella never got to the sun because Mister Sprinkle Blow's cloud was in the way. That jolly fustian was just about to fill up his barrel marked "Regular Pardowna" when pop! The big umbrella came bursting through the cloud and landed right at Mister Sprinkle Blow's feet.

"By all the Hidy rain-tods and tree-tods and hop-tods!" he cried. "Such a big umbrella! Really, I never saw such a fat umbrella in my life! It's even fatter than the big umbrella I ride down to the earth on when I go on my travels."

Just then he heard voices crying faintly, "Help! Help!"

"Why it's a talking umbrella!" said Mister Sprinkle Blow. "It must have a radio in it."

So he untied the string at the top—and out rolled Nancy and Nick and all the dolls. The gingerbread man was nothing but crumbs now.

"What's all this?" cried the jolly old weatherman fairy. "Where have you been and where are you going my dears?"

"Don't you know us?" cried the Twins. "We're Nancy and Nick and we've been down to the Land of Hidy Go helping poor Mister Havalook. These are his subjects, the Rag doll, the Crinoline Doll, Black Dinah, Calamity Jane, Miss Tootsie Bobb, Belinda, Mrs. Jiggs and Miss Pithers. Also Sailor Sam, the Tin Soldier, Teddy Bear, Limber Long Legs, Jack-in-the-box and what is left of the Gingerbread Man."

"How do you do," said Mister Sprinkle Blow.

"How do you do," said all the dolls solemnly.

"Won't you sit down?" said Mister Sprinkle Blow.

"No, thank you. We must be going," said Miss Crinoline.

"Back to Hidy Go Land?" said Mister Sprinkle Blow in surprise.

"No," said Miss Crinoline. "Back to our mistresses. We shouldn't have left home in the first place. Say," she said turning to the Rag Doll. "How did it come that I found my skirt on the wash-line after I distinctly saw you walking off with it?"

"I was only trying it on for fun to see how I looked in hoops," said the Rag Doll. "I took it back and hung it up again."

"Names, please!" said the Kangaroo, stopping suddenly and taking a book out of his coat pocket.

BILIOUS ATTACKS

From Which Kentucky Man Suffered Two or Three Times a Month, Relieved by Black-Draught.

Lawrenceburg, Ky.—Mr. J. P. Norris, a local coal dealer and farmer, about two years ago learned of the value of Thordford's Black-Draught Liver medicine, and now he says:

"Until then I suffered with severe bilious attacks that came on two or three times each month. I would get nauseated, I would have dizziness and couldn't work. I would take pills until I was worn-out with them. I didn't seem to get relief. After taking the pills my bowels would act in a couple or three times, then I would be very constipated."

"A neighbor told me of Black-Draught and I began its use. I never have found so much relief as it gave me. I would not be without it for anything."

"It seemed to cleanse my whole system and make me feel like new. I would take a few doses—got rid of the bile and have my usual clear head, feel full of pep and could do twice the work."

"THE GOAT SONG," splendidly staged by the Theater Guild, is perhaps the most involved symbol of the season's products and, even though all the symbols and allegories are not caught at a single visit, it is thrilling and highly theatrical. Franz Werfel, the author, was a playwright and poet who came out of the war chaos in Germany. Goat song is the Greek word for tragedy. You will recall that it is the goat-like head of the Dionysians which to this day is used in visualizing the tragic drama. Werfel has laid his play in a Slavic peasant background. Everything possible is being done for the sufferers and already Mr. Whitney has brought some kind of order out of the terrifying chaos.

It will be an interesting fact to the superstitious when it is known that Miss Perier had on the fatal party which she had just purchased from Mrs. Prescott, and of course they were destroyed with her.

At this time, only about an hour since the accident occurred, no one knows what disposal will be made of the picture. Of course it will never be shown from the screen.

The loss of Miss Perier is almost irreparable to the moving picture industry. She was quite the most popular star in the whole profession.

Mr. Prescott came here at the request of Mr. Graves Hamilton, the founder of the mill, just before he died, and has been making a very great success of it during the last year.

All Pittsburgh is mourning with Mrs. Prescott and her two sons who are yet too young to know that they have lost a father.

THREE YEARS LATER
Letter from Lealie Prescott to Little Marquise, care the Secret Drawer

I am sitting here writing to you the first letter since that awful accident and the last letter I shall ever write you, dear little Marquise.

You have been a good friend and confidant to Lealie Prescott in the years gone by—years so full of sorrow and grief that I am going to try to forget them. If it were not for my two splendid boys, I would want to begin my life from tonight. I would want to start out with all the memories of those tragedies that led up to the awful holocaust which climaxed the end of my married life with John Alden Prescott completely blotted from my scarred heart.

Poor John! I have often wondered if he realized that there were two natures continually fighting against each other within his body!

His great mistake was in marrying me. The only woman for him was the woman who became with him a mass of steel from which no one could ever find any physical trace of the component parts of a human body.

Keep Pimples away

WHY do you let those unsightly blotches disgrace your skin and ruin your appearance? You can keep them away if you keep your system full of rich, red blood. And not only that, but the very texture of your skin will be soft and velvet like—and the coloring radiant as a rose.

It's all in the blood. And S. S. S. will help Nature keep your blood rich and red and pure.

Yes, you can keep pimples away, simply by taking S. S. S. That's a fact. The kind of red-blood-cells that S. S. S. helps Nature build makes your skin beautiful—clears it up just like it puts firm flesh on you—brings strength to weak, flabby muscles—gives you an appetite like you used to have and generates the energy and vitality of youth throughout your entire system.

Performers Better Their n By Members was losing money and he asked Albee what he could do to put it on a paying basis.

"I told him that the trouble with his show was that people were ashamed to be seen entering it," Albee related, "and that we would have to find some excuse for them. At the time, Richard Mansfield and playing there in 'Mikado' and I hit upon the idea of forming an opera company for the museum."

"To be brief I got the company together and rehearsed 'Mikado' a week, taking the members to hear Mansfield each day. I had $350 with which to stage the production."

"We charged an admission of ten cents and the production proved such a success we had to call the police to clear the streets. Soon we were giving ten performances a day. I went to Philadelphia and brought back a company which had been stranded so that we could keep up the pace. While one company performed the overflow crowd was admitted to the museum to pass the time and as word as the performance was over the other company would go on."

"Among the players I had those who later became famous—were Raymond Hitchcock, Weber and Field, the Cohan family—George was a small boy—and Montgomery and Stone."

"Soon the company expanded its operations and had opera and vaudeville companies playing in Philadelphia and New York. Today it is known as the Keith-Albee district, with Albee as president, and is represented in hundreds of cities."

Peace has since reigned, with only here and there a cropping out of dissension. The most recent ruffling of the surface was a report that one suburban station, after agreeing to remain silent and after changing hands, was on the air Monday nights. An additional disturbing report has been that one station within the city would come on at stated intervals on the quiet nights to give the fans reports on how distance was being received and to announce which of the distance stations had the best programs.

This later plan has met with opposition, fans declaring that they desire to "use our own receivers to find out how the distance is going."

St. Petersburg May Relinquish Militia Company To Miami

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. Feb. 10 (AP)—Under its present status, the local company of the national guard will be removed to Miami unless enlistments have reached sixty five by February 12 next, according to Captain Cramer B. Patter. About 30 men have signified their intention of serving with the company, it was said, and an appeal has been sent to the adjutant general asking that the time for completing the minimum enlistments be extended.

Should the company remain here, it was stated, plans are under way for the erection of a new armory with suitable headquarters for the company and a social center for the troops. A recruiting campaign will be waged between on the time limit with the local post of the American Legion assisting.

ESQUIMOS NOW MOURNING LOSS OF GIRL TEACHER

English Lass Spends Three Years Teaching Group Of Northern Inhabitants Lessons Of Other World

LONDON, Feb. 10. (AP)—Thirty little Eskimos up at Mah-koviz, Labrador, are mourning the departure of their pretty English teacher and straining their ears trying to get news of London over their primitive wireless apparatus.

The teacher, Mary Rowe, 21, is back in England after three years of isolation near the Arctic Circle and is happy to be eating Turkey instead of walrus.

Miss Rowe came back to England on the little ship Harmony, which goes to Labrador once a year and is the only regular steamship communication Mah-koviz has with the outside world.

"There are only five houses and two huts in Mah-koviz, and the huts are no larger than a dining room table and each shelters one native family," said Miss Rowe. "My thirty pupils came from an area of several thousands of square miles. We were 500 miles from our nearest white neighbors, the settlement run by Dr. Grenfell."

"Mail came overland by dog sledge three times a year, and I tell you it was an exciting time when that mail arrived and brought us news from home."

Mah-koviz is a Moravian mission station and the post ship Harmony belongs to that religious organization, of which Miss Rowe is also a member. For a year Miss Rowe was alone in charge of her thirty little native wards.

"I had no time to get home some," she said. "With thirty children to feed, clothe and teach one does not have many idle moments and does not worry about recreation."

The Harmony sails for Mah-koviz again next June and Miss Rowe will probably return for another three-year term of service.

The first unit of the building will be three stories high but it will have a foundation for an eight story building.

"That night there will be a banquet for the visitors at the Knights of Pythias hall where State game and fish commissioner J. E. Royall will speak and the motion picture 'Catching Game Fish in Florida,' will be shown."

Seek "Cradle of America" In the Lost Hills of Kong

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Vandercrook leaving for the Hills of Kong.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—In the interior of Liberia, where the white man never has gone, is the "Cradle of Africa." In an almost inaccessible valley in the Hills of Kong a strange race of men live. They have not the features of the African native. They speak a tongue somewhat similar to ancient Egyptian. They have a writing which resembles the hieroglyphics of the dynasty of Ramesses.

This legend, carried out of the Hills of Liberia by chance caravans of natives, has sent John W. Vandercrook, writer and explorer, and his wife, Margaret Mettger Vandercrook, sculptress, to seek for the tribe which may be the only remnant of ancient Egypt.

The couple sailed on the S. S. Half Moon, a freighter, for the 6,000-mile trip which will carry them to the country where few men have gone. Mrs. Vandercrook will be the first white woman ever to set foot in the interior of the country.

Land of Fable Mungo Park, one of the earlier African explorers, tells of the Hills of Kong, a range of mountains hidden in the forests. H. Rider Haggard used his stories on the basis of strange tales of lost races.

Some natives say the mountains exist. The French and other explorers say there is no such range. The flow of certain rivers indicates that there may be a watershed in that region.

If this strange race exists, cut off from human contact except as superstitions natives see them from a distance, what sort of men are they?

Do they know the secrets of the ancient Egyptian civilization? Have they held over thousands of years, the knowledge of arts and sciences of which a few fragments remain along the Nile?

Savagery or Science? Or have they, through centuries of isolation, reverted to a savage state? Do they hold only a trace of the Ptolemaic language and is their picture writing that left on rock by their prehistoric ancestors? Did the civilization of the Nile and of the entire world spring from this valley in the lost Hills of Kong?

Vandercrook and his wife, under auspices of the Liberian government, will try to reach the valley

Movie Titles Not Considered Very Important During Picture Filming

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Feb. 10. (AP)—Motion picture productions and the title under which they are shown occupy positions with relation to each other during the progress of development very similar to the proverbial cart and horse. Sometimes a picture is produced with a definite "showing" title to start with, but very often—perhaps in a majority of cases—the picture is produced before the ultimate name of it is chosen. Thus the horse, in this case the title, is found to be in the rear of its own vehicle.

Most of the studios in this city of pictures take the view that the title of a picture is the important part of it. If the name of a play does not capture the public interest when it blazes on the electric signs, the play itself enters the race for popularity under a big handicap. Of course, say the wise ones, there is a large percentage of movie fans who follow their particular artist heroes or heroines, but they admit that the great bulk of the public does not specialize in any one title. The ascends to the important position of drawing or failing to draw this unknown percentage.

Deception Learned In the first ten years of active motion picture production, studio authorities say, titles were seldom written to fit the actual story, but solely with a view to lengthening the lines in front of the box office. The public soon learned they were being deceived in many cases, and a clamor went up for more truthful names.

Now that so many stars have been developed in all classes of screen shows the studios rely on producers' reputations and the names of the stars in the cast, and write the titles to conform more closely to the story of the play. No separate department of the studio is charged with the responsibility of determining the final title for a production. There are no judges or committees. Instead, suggestions are taken from department heads. The scenario department naturally are more active in this work, but a vote usually is taken on various suggestions, to be passed upon by the highest authorities before finally being decided.

One of the largest studios of Hollywood cites a picture started under one title—incidentally, the name of the stage play. When the picture reached a point where it was about half completed, the title was changed to one considered more appropriate to its actual theme. Under the impetus of the second name the picture progressed until three days before the legend, "The End" was in order. Then a third title was decided on and under this, the picture was shown.

IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The beggar population of New York is computed today at 4500.

Quite a sizable little city of mendicants, it is said, and their modes of alms seeking are as diverse as their costumes and their infirmities.

It is not a new story that many of these ragged and woebegone beggars have been found literally rolling in money when taken to the police station. Hundred dollar bills have been found in tattered shoes and at least a half dozen leave their home in automobiles, park them somewhere, get into their begging clothes and get to work.

But in the last few years the public has been getting wise and handouts are few and far between.

WALKING up Broadway the other morning a "moocher" with a brand new line came up. "Say," he began, "could you lend a fellow a dime that he'll pay back a thousand years from now?"

So honest was his admission that he was a plain, ordinary hunk, and so frank had been his approach, that I gave him the dime and then asked him why he used that line.

"They won't fall for the old stuff any more," he admitted. "The papers have printed so many pieces about guys with money being pinched and about fakes that most of 'em are starving to death. So I comes right out and primes nothing and I don't spring a hard luck line and it works."

THE experience started an investigation have printed so many pieces about guys with money being pinched and about fakes that most of 'em are starving to death. So I comes right out and primes nothing and I don't spring a hard luck line and it works."

Police records would seem to indicate that some think like $30,000,000 was donated to street beggars in the year 1922.

A good panhandler could, a couple of years ago, get $50 a day. A part-time worker could pick up $25 in an afternoon or evening. The sum of money dropped in cup and hat is more than is needed to meet the entire poor fund of this great city.

Now these captains of un-industry work, for the most part in the same sections as the captains of industry. There are more to be found in Wall street and Fifth avenue, where the purses are well filled, than in all the rest of New York put together.

Interesting records have been made by spotters. One watcher saw a "cripple" it may be he really was one—take $8 an hour. That was considerably more than the spotter was being paid. By this time the spotter may be a "blind man" taking his $25 an evening.
