Daily mail boxes around the nation are filled with notices telling the recipients they have won fabulous prizes. But these guaranteed prize sweepstakes winners emerge as the top scam of the year.

BRIEFS

Lake Mary against gambling

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary City Commission has joined the fight against gambling in Florida. A resolution against any type of gambling was approved last night with a unanimous vote, and hardly any discussion.

Commissioner Gary Brender, the city's representative to CALNO, the Council of Local Governments, brought the matter up for consideration. "CALNO is asking each city government to support a resolution similar to what was adopted by the Board of County Commissioners in March," he explained.

The resolution is all-encompassing, as it includes such activities as riverboats or other marine vessels on or abutting Seminole County waterways, as well as at ports, or casinos within the jurisdictional limits of the county.

Sports complex problems

LAKE MARY — City Commissioner George Duryea says something must be done to clean up the city's sports complex on Rantoul Lane. "When we built this," he said, "we made it something our citizens can be proud of. But take a look at it now. People are throwing trash and cigarette butts all over the place."

Lake Mary Parks and Recreation Supervisor Kathy Gehr explained how the city had hired one parttime worker at four hours per day to keep the complex clean. "It's to the point now," she said, "where it takes two people most of the day, and we still can't keep it clean."

"These people are degrading the park," Duryea commented. "It looks bad for our city."

Several commissioners had suggestions. Commissioner Gary Brender observed, "If we find the field is dirty after some group has rented it, then we should refuse to rent it to them again."

Mayor Lowry Rockett said the city might look into increasing rental fees if people don't start cleaning up their areas, which might assist in paying for the added maintenance crews.

"That probably wouldn't even bring about enough money to pay for the cleanup," Gehr said.

The city staff has been asked to look into the situation and bring some suggestions back to the commission for consideration.

To-Do Guide

• Saturday, May 21 — The Winter Springs Kmart hosts the local portion of a national contest called Rubbermaid/Bassmaster Casting Kids. This free event features children in age groups of 7-10 and 11-14 years old, competing with rods and reels in casting, flipping and pitching at targets. Prizes including a new bicycle will be awarded. Advance registration is available at Winter Springs Kmart. For additional information, phone 699-1333.

• Saturday & Sunday, May 21, 22 — Family Fun in the Park event at Fort Mellon Park, E. First Street, downtown Sanford. A fund raising event by Sanford Main Street. ## No child support payments, no driver's license?

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — While parents in Seminole County who shirk their responsibilities of paying child support have often been under threat of losing their professional licenses, they might also now lose their driver licenses.

The suggestion is based on Maine's new law which threatens to take away the business and driver's licenses of parents behind on child support payments. There, they said the law is persuading deadbeat parents to fork over more than $1 million a month.

"We are already able to, with a court order, take away the professional licenses of doctors, lawyers and others," said Clerk of the Court Maryann Morse. That is accomplished through an agreement with the Department of Professional regulation, she explained.

Eying the early results of Maine's nine-month-old law, the Clinton administration will propose that all states be required to suspend the licenses of parents who refuse to pay their child support as part of its blueprint to reform the welfare system.

Still, there are many parents who do not hold professional licenses.

Here, they have proposed that the state also

Egg-ceptional efforts

Herald Photos by April Keniston

The architectural design class at Seminole Community College was challenged to find a way to drop an egg 60 feet without breaking it. The egg had to be encased in a 6-by-6 inch box, but it was up to the students to make the box safe for the egg. Left, Gregg Smith's tower of foam cups, coupled with balloon for ballast, helped his egg reach the ground intact. Above, Gary Hinton tried to wrap his box in condoms filled with hair gel and Jello. While most laughed at his efforts, his egg really cracked up.

Poll: Passing marks for local judges

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Local judges received passing marks in the annual judicial poll conducted by the Seminole County Bar Association.

The 243 Bar Association members were asked to rate the eight circuit court judges and four county court judges on legal knowledge, impartiality, freedom from bias, diligence and efficiency, integrity and demeanor. Members also were asked to rate the judges on an overall scale from one to three with designations of unqualified (1), qualified (2) or highly qualified (3).

A total of 96 Bar Association members responded to the poll. Circuit Court Judges Seymour Benson, O.H. Eaton Jr. and Vernon Mize received the highest number of responses, over 80 each. They were followed by Judges Wallace Hall, Newman Brock and Alan Dickey, over 70 responses each. Judge Leonard Wood, who oversees juvenile cases received over 60 responses and Judge Thomas Freeman received over 40 responses in the poll. Freeman was appointed to fill the unexpired term of retired Judge Robert H. McArear and has been on the bench only a short time. Not every respondent ranked every judge or participated in every category.

The number of responses in the poll categories ranged from 46 to 78 for County Court Judges

Cops: Man behind bars is scam artist

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — A San Jose, Calif. man charged with attempting to bilk an 87-year-old Sanford woman out of $5,100 in October is in the Seminole County jail after a seven-month delay.

Bond was set at $20,000 on a grand theft charge for James Haggard, 41, following his extradition Wednesday from California. Haggard's arraignment is set for June 16. Haggard was originally to be brought here in October, but he had California charges pending against him which required court appearances, said Seminole County sheriff's Inv. Ron Yolton.

Haggard is charged with offering the woman $51,000 in return for $5,100 in taxes. Yolton said Haggard contacted the woman Oct. 12 last year and after identifying himself as an attorney, told her a telephone scam case had been successfully prosecuted and she was to receive the money. But first, she'd have to pay the local 10 percent tax, she was told.

The woman told him she couldn't afford the $5,100 tax, and negotiated a $2,079 amount, Yolton said. Haggard made arrangements with

Parents cheer for new day care center

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Several dozen families with small children were elated last night. The Lake Mary City Commission approved variances for a new child day care in the city.

The hour-long commission discussion on the variance request was punctuated by shouts and sounds from several dozen small children in the audience, brought by parents interested in seeing the day care center brought to fruition.

The Rev. James Cox had applied for variances in order to construct a fence closer to the street than required in the city codes. He had taken the matter to the city's Planning and Zoning Board on May 10, and was denied by a unanimous vote.

Fatal crash this morning

A two vehicle collision stalled traffic on C.R. 415 during this morning's rush hour. Florida Highway Patrol reported at least one fatality. The accident occurred approximately one quarter mile north of the Osteen bridge. Specific details of the collision and names of the persons involved were not immediately available. Traffic on C.R. 415 was stopped for almost two hours following the crash. The volume is generally heavy in the morning hours with the roadway being a major route to work for persons living in the Deltona/Osteen areas.

Duke U. lauds talented seventh graders

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Duke University Talent Identification Program (TIP) has recognized some of the most talented seventh graders in the nation, including quite a few from Seminole County. Duke officials said.

"TIP's most important function is the identification of talented students," said Dr. David Goldstein, executive director of TIP. "Over the years, we have heard many stories about young people whose abilities were underestimated or overlooked by their teachers or their peers, sometimes even by their parents, and their talents then go to waste. By identifying bright youngsters at an early age and recognizing their abilities, we begin the process of nurturing their talents."

All of the students who qualify for the TIP program scored higher than most graduating seniors on the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) or the ACT (American College Assessment Test).

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Florida's teacher of the year

ORLANDO — Shawn DeKnight, who teaches English and journalism to Miami high school students, has been named Florida's teacher of the year by a state committee.

DeKnight, 30, was chosen Thursday from more than 120,000 public school teachers throughout the state by a selection committee of the state Education Department. He teaches at Miami Edison High School in the Liberty City community.

DeKnight, who has taught for seven years, said his approach to teaching is not sophisticated.

"Deep down, kids want to learn things," he said. "Anything can be taught." He said, "You have to find a way to break a complex assignment into a series of simple, do-able tasks. It's so important for a kid to feel successful."

He was among five finalists chosen on the basis of teaching ability, communication skills, professional development, teaching philosophy and school and community service.

He got a $10,000 check and will tour the state for the next year as an educational ambassador of sorts.

News helicopter crashes

ST. PETERSBURG — A WTSP-TV news helicopter crashed into the shallow waters of Old Tampa Bay shortly after takeoff, causing only minor injuries to the pilot and photographer on board.

The Sky 10 helicopter took off around 4 p.m. EDT Thursday from the station and crashed a few hundred yards off shore.

Pilot Bob Whitney and photographer Paul Kasper were taken to Bayfront Medical Center with minor injuries. Kasper was treated and released, while Whitney was in stable condition in the emergency room late Thursday, said a hospital spokeswoman.

Kasper said the chopper was having engine problems and he heard a loud noise shortly before it lost power.

"We just started doing one of those spinners," he said. "The next thing I know water is in my mouth and in my face. I got out of there as fast as I could."

The cause of the crash remained under investigation.

Teen sentenced in death of stepfather

PENSACOLA — A 16-year-old boy has been sentenced to 20 years in prison for admittedly shooting to death his stepfather, an Escambia County Jail guard, to avoid arguing with him again last July 5.

Randall Ritchie never changed his expression during a sentencing hearing Wednesday as his lawyer argued the victim, Timothy Ritchie, 40, had abused the teen during a six-year marriage to Randall's mother.

Circuit Judge Michael Jones rejected that argument, saying the abuse allegation had never been clearly documented.

"There has yet to be offered any sort of explanation that would rationalize this intentional, evil act," Jones said.

The teen-ager had been charged with first-degree murder, which would have resulted in a life prison sentence without parole for at least 25 years as the state did not plan to seek the death penalty.

But jurors last month found him guilty of second-degree murder. Although life also was possible for that offense, sentencing guidelines called for a maximum of 22 years.

Clinton names chief of naval education

PENSACOLA — Vice Adm. Timothy W. Wright, commander of the 7th Fleet in Yokosuka, Japan, has been nominated by President Clinton as the next chief of naval education and training.

Wright, 53, would replace retiring Vice Adm. Robert K.U. Kihune, head of the Navy's largest on-shore command, headquartered at Pensacola Naval Air Station, the Navy announced Wednesday.

Kihune plans to return to his native Hawaii after his June 21 retirement. Wright will be unable to assume command immediately, leaving Rear Adm. Paul E. Tobin Jr. temporarily in charge.

Rape-murder suspects try jail break

OCALA — Two men charged with the February campground murder of a college student and the rape of his sister have been accused of trying to escape from jail.

Marion County Jail officials said Thursday they have evidence that Loran K. Cole and William C. Paul were digging at the mortar around the cinder blocks in their cells. The two were caught Sunday passing a detailed map of the facility, authorities said.

Cole, 27, and Paul, 20, are charged with beating John Timothy Edwards, an 18-year-old student at Florida State University, to death and raping his 21-year-old sister twice while she was held captive overnight in a tent.

The men left the sister tied between two trees, but she escaped by chewing through the cords, police said.

The two men are being held without bond pending their trials, which are expected to begin in late 1995 or early 1996, according to sheriff's Sgt. Joe Cobb.

Money launderer speaks out

Task 'obsenely easy' in Caribbean banks

By CATHERINE WILSON
AP Business Writer

MIAMI — For Kenneth Rijock, money laundering was "obsenely easy."

The convicted drug money man was a Miami banking lawyer when he was approached in 1980 by marijuana smugglers who wanted to make their illicit cash legal.

One drug ring led to another. Small planes were chartered to fly cash to safe banking havens in the Caribbean. Rijock celebrates jobs well done with lunches of lobster and champagne at oceanfront restaurants.

"It's common knowledge in the Caribbean which banks are dirty and which are not," Rijock said Thursday, speaking publicly for the first time on his eight-year career in financial crime. "They don't hide it. It's very open."

He admits to laundering $200 million for a single ring that smuggled marijuana, cocaine and hash oil by boat into Florida and by truck to the Northeast and Canada.

The smugglers and pilots rolled over on him, and Rijock wound up serving two years in federal prison on racketeering and tax conspiracy charges. The case prosecuted in Tallahassee has generated more than 100 convictions. At 47, Rijock hopes to resume practicing law. He surrendered his license under five-year suspension to avoid being disbarred. Now he lectures on laundering and works as a paralegal.

He has briefed law enforcement agencies on his techniques. On Thursday, he offered an overview at an international money laundering conference.

With a call in advance, offshore bankers would smooth the arrival of Rijock and his clients through customs, and he encouraged the traffickers to use false names on bank

Rep. Mortham visits Seminole to discuss historic preservation

Rep. Sandy Mortham (R-Seminole) of the Tampa Bay area (left), who is now the minority party leader in the Florida House of Representatives, is seeking to be elected the first woman as Secretary of State for the State of Florida. She met Thursday with the Seminole County Historical Society to tour the Museum of

Johnson granted reprieve

By RON WORD
Associated Press Writer

STARKE — The Florida Supreme Court stayed the execution of Marvin Edwin Johnson and granted a new hearing into claims that another man murdered a Pensacola pharmacist in 1978.

Johnson, 51, was condemned for the fatal shooting of Woodrow Moulton in a holdup of the Warrington Pharmacy on June 7, 1978, with a .357 Magnum.

Defense attorneys say they have new evidence that their client wasn't the man who shot Moulton.

The real killer died in federal prison in Atlanta less than two weeks ago, defense attorneys contend.

His name was William "Buddy" Pruitt, who better matches the description given by the only witness to the murder, the defense contends.

The defense also says it has sworn statements from two inmates who knew Pruitt and two of Pruitt's friends identifying him as the killer. The four said they didn't report it earlier because they were afraid of retribution from Pruitt.

Fourteen hours before Johnson was scheduled to die, the Supreme Court ordered Escambia County Circuit Judge Joseph Tarbuck to hold an evidentiary hearing on the claims about Pruitt's supposed confession.

"A new and full evidentiary hearing is required to make absolutely sure that the outcome of Johnson's trial would not have differed," had information regarding Pruitt been known earlier, Justice Gerald Kogan wrote in a concurring opinion.

Johnson was to be the 34th inmate to be executed since Florida resumed the death penalty in 1979 and the second Florida execution this year.

For Johnson, it was his fourth reprieve from Florida's electric chair. He also had executions canceled in 1982, 1988 and 1989 when courts intervened.

Johnson requested a final meal of lobster, porterhouse steak, french fries, strawberry

Abortion opponent found guilty of weapons charge

By Associated Press

PANAMA CITY — A federal jury has acquitted an anti-abortion activist of knowingly violating a federal law that requires passengers to notify operators before bringing firearms aboard buses, airplanes or other common carriers.

Before the jury ruled Thursday, Houston taxi driver Daniel Ware, 40, testified he was unaware of the law and denied witness testimony that he spoke of attacking a national meeting of abortion doctors and clinic staffers in Pensacola.

Ware had been accused of illegally transporting three guns and 500 rounds of ammunition to Pensacola on a Greyhound bus by failing to report them to the company in February. Greyhound rules prohibit firearms aboard buses.

Ware would have faced five years in prison if convicted.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven Preisser said Ware must have known it was wrong to bring the guns on the bus because signs warning of Greyhound's firearms ban are posted in bus stations. Ware also admitted to riding Greyhound buses up to 20 times, Preisser said.

But Ware said he had never noticed the signs because they were not prominent. Two Greyhound employees also testified the signs are obscure.

Wednesday, two Pensacola area anti-abortion activists who reported Ware to authorities testified that he showed them the weapons and spoke of a mass killing at a meeting of the National Association of Abortion Providers March 12-13 in Pensacola.

Ware said all he did was recount a conversation he had overheard at a Houston anti-abortion demonstration.

"If at some point these people could pinpoint the hotel where these abortionist people were gathering they might be able to put a bomb in there like the Beirut mess," Ware testified he heard the strangers say.

"I never at any time expressed to these people that I might carry out any of these threats," he added.

Ware had come to Pensacola to attend the trial of Michael F. Griffin, who was convicted of murdering abortion doctor David Gunn outside a Pensacola clinic last year.

He said he brought the guns to protect anti-abortion activists from what they feared might be an attack by federal agents. He compared the situation in Pensacola to the deadly confrontation in Waco, Texas, between federal agents and Branch Davidians last year.

Kudos to school bus drivers

You hear it every day: "There are a lot of crazy drivers in this world." People are generally talking about others, of course, never themselves.

Judgments are made based on our observations of other drivers making turns, forgetting to signal, speeding, and changing lanes. One never knows when the actions of "that idiot" behind the wheel may lead to a collision.

At least we have some cheerful news. It has again been proven that we have some of the best school bus drivers in the entire state right here in Seminole County. They were judged winners in the Road-E-O held recently in Lakeland. The event is a state-wide competition. Seminole County drivers won the competition for the third consecutive year.

It must be reassuring to parents to know that some of our bus drivers have proved to have superlative skills in handling those large conveyances.

People should be proud of this group. In the competition team, two were females and three were males. A third Seminole County female was in the singular alternate competition, and she finished second in the state.

This just didn't happen. The drivers spent many hours and weekends, on their own time, perfecting their skills in order to enter this competition. Certainly, being the best in driving goes beyond the annual Road-E-O event. It benefits everyone who is connected with these bus routes.

Motorists may occasionally become angry because they are forced to stop when a bus is loading or unloading children. This however, is something that drivers must become accustomed to. It's the law.

It is refreshing to know that children are as safe as possible on those busses. For this, we school officials and the drivers. Not just the competition winners, but all the drivers.

There may indeed be many crazy drivers in today's world. Thank goodness school bus drivers have taken it upon themselves to advance beyond this level.

We put our children's lives in their hands. They deserve an occasional thank you.

The price of proms

The prom sponsor and junior class president at Seminole High School would like to respond to a recent editorial "Prom Expense Borders on Discrimination." Many of the statements made were incorrect and misleading.

We, as an institution of learning, are always concerned with the extra-curricular, as well as, academic education of the students. We are well aware of the financial differences (i.e., single-parent families) within our school.

In order to help defray the costs of prom, the Junior Class begins fund raising in September and continues nonstop through prom. The issue is not fund-raising efforts, but instead a lack of support by many students, parents, and members of the community. These are the same people who now complain about costs.

All students and parents have had equal opportunity to work with the Junior Class to earn free or half-price prom tickets as prizes awarded during this year's magazine sale.

In addition, AAU, a service club here at Seminole, has worked with us to provide tickets and/or tuxedo rentals for many students unable to afford them.

The cost can be as minimal or expensive as students and parents make it. Prom pictures are optional, as are limousine rentals. For that matter, girls can wear "Sunday" dresses and young men can wear suits.

As far as it becoming "almost mandatory" for juniors to attend a "senior prom," no student is required to attend this event. It has been a tradition at Seminole for over 20 years that the junior class plan and put on the prom for the seniors. It is now, and always has been, called a "Junior-Senior Prom."

The pomp and pageantry of a prom held in a top hotel is a sign of the times. The editorial staff of the Sanford Herald needs to survey other schools to understand that in Seminole, Volusia, and Orange counties, students want to go to the pricey establishments rather than the gym. Aside from the fact that the students would not have it any other way, it is a learning experience. Most students have never participated in a formal event such as this.

We, who have worked endless hours through the year to produce this "Evening of Enchantment," ask the parents and members of the community to become actively involved in supporting the event early in the school year to lower costs, instead of waiting until May to be outraged at ticket prices.

Is Clinton immune from Jones case?

Alright, I confess. I've gotten a certain implicit thrill from the latest sex suit against President Clinton.

This country has arrived at the edge of a moral rubicon. It may be time for the American people to decide how deep the alleged muck of a president's past conduct should be probed before both the press and the right-wing zealots are asked the same question Joseph Welch asked another right-wing bell-ringer, Sen. Joseph McCarthy, "Sir, have you no shame?"

McCarthy didn't, and neither has the press nor the extreme right.

If a response to presidential peccadillos is that everybody is human, it may be of small comfort these days to President Clinton to know that none of this nation's founding fathers were angels. Either they were frequenting extracurricular beds, challenging each other to duels with guns, or overseeing one of the civilized world's most dehumanizing systems of slavery.

They knew where the lines should be drawn between political governance and social dalliance. They anticipated that the Paula Joneses of the world would salivate for a chance to bring one of them down.

But they carefully spelled out the circumstances under which members of Congress or the president could be arrested or tried. For Congress, no arrest or trial except for "treason, felony or breach of the peace." (Is libidinal activity in a bedroom a breach of the peace?)

Even more felicitous for members of Congress, they could make any scurrilous or libelous statement on the House floor. Rep. Clayton Powell Jr. learned the limits of this clause. He made a scandalous statement on the House floor. Later, Powell repeated the statement at a public press conference, where he had no immunity. He was sued for libel and lost.

As for the president, he can only be impeached after conviction of "treason, bribery or other high crimes or misdemeanors." The Pandora's box there is "misdemeanors."

This country has arrived at the edge of a moral rubicon.

Does Paula Jones' lawsuit have constitutional merit? Very doubtful, contends one of the country's most distinguished law professors, Daniel H. Pollitt, the William Rand Kenan Jr. emeritus professor of law at the University of North Carolina Law School.

Pollitt has marshaled a formidable argument, citing for constitutional precedent, the Nixon vs. Fitzgerald case of 1982. The Supreme Court affirmed summary dismissal of an action brought by Ernest Fitzgerald, a civilian employee of the Air Force, after he had "blown the whistle" to a Senate committee about huge "overruns in the procurement of an airplane."

As Pollitt points out, the Supreme Court conceded that a president can be sued "when judicial action is needed to serve broad public interests" or be required to submit evidence in an ongoing criminal trial.

But, insists Pollitt, the president cannot be sued by a private citizen for damages. Pollitt quoted and with a bunch of media barracudas and their parasitic cheerleaders like Newt Gingrich and Rush Limbaugh.

Some black directors diminish us

WASHINGTON — Recently, my older son — who wants to become a director if he can't make it in the NBA — looked into the eyes of the family's other rabid film buff and grinned.

"You'll love this," he told me. "Two movies are coming out about black people back in the '70s. You know — when you were young."

It did sound like an embarrassment of riches — a double dose of movies but an era dear to me shot from a black perspective.

The first, Maltz Rich's sweet-natured "The Inkwell," opened three weeks ago with so little fanfare that I was barely aware of it until a colleague raved: "Finally — a movie about blacks in which nobody gets shot or curses every other word!" Despite the film's lightweight story and lack of publicity, "Inkwell" opened strong, then faded.

More people are aware of Spike Lee's latest, the semiautobiographical "Crooklyn." The "Today" show featured interviews with cast members, including Aïre Woodard. Buoyed by Bryant Gumbel's chat with charming newcomer Zeida Harris, 2, who plays the film's protagonist, I eagerly attended a "Crooklyn" screening.

The movie, which Lee wrote with siblings Joie and Cinque, opens with sights and sounds sure to evoke happy memories in folks who came of age in the 1970s: little girls in tube tops jumping rope, Afro-ed boys flying rickety wooden gliders. Everything's drenched in sunshine and the sweet sound of the Stylistics. Yum.

At first it's a riot, watching Lee use the Three "F's" to conjure a visual feast of all that was hot in '70s black America: Food (sugar-laden lemonade, chips coating a dime); Fashion (bell-bottoms, crocheted tops); and Fun (Eich-a-Sketcha, dancing with the "Soul Train" gang).

But Lee left out the most essential "F," one that would pull the others together, expand on them and hold them in place as a movie: Feelings.

It's ironic, but I've seen it over and over: Nobody can reduce African Americans' real lives and emotions to a series of stereotypes better than a black director, whose knowledge of our look and lingo can make a dangerously false package appear authentic. Lee has often complained, justifiably, about the limited manner in which whites have depicted minorities on-screen.

But worse than the fact that "Crooklyn" has no plot — and that this "warm comedy" features two brothers who spend the entire movie sniffing glue and a Hispanic grocer who bumps and grinds with a black prostitute in front of a child — is that only one emotion seems adequately explored: rage, loudly expressed.

Children endlessly degrade their siblings. A mom berates her spouse for not contributing financially; he hollers that she's unappreciative. Neighbors screech at each other in English and Spanish. The whole block verbally abuses a nerdy white neighbor. Such stuff happens — but in it all, or even most, of what happens?

We see several scenes of a supposedly loving mother threatening her children with "slap ping the black off" them and "beating the brains out of" them. We hear next to nothing of her dreams for herself and her children, her love for her husband, her feelings about her teaching job. She never grades a paper.

Even the smart and sensitivity of "Crooklyn's" young heroine, Troy, are revealed less by her scripted shoplifting and verbal slaps at her brothers than by Harris' expressive face.

But more than anger and negativity are overdone in an interminable segment. Lee purposely sets his camera lens askew, making everything appear as though reflected in a fun-house mirror. Viewers have no clue why.

Most painful is hearing a decade's vibrant, rich music ("Tears of a Clown," "Mighty Love") used to make audience members feel emotions that Lee seems incapable of evoking with his writing and directing. Most shameless example: The Five Steps classic, "O-o-h Child," used to force audience grief over the death of a character we should have known and cared about far more.

But whatever Spike's failings as an artist — and I must give him his props for "Malcolm X" and the masterful "Do the Right Thing" — the guy is a marketing genius. Already, I've seen "Crooklyn" T-shirts emblazoned with, "It's a 70's thing."

Maybe it is. But I lived through the decade. And while I remember my share of screaming siblings and parental squabbles, I also recall an ocean of familial support, love displayed in ways other than fatigues and wisecracks.

While some will doubtless love "Crooklyn," it wore me out. But I was already tired — of getting excited at the prospect of seeing a movie that should celebrate our collective past, the multifaceted men, women and children who have enriched all our lives. And then finding myself nailed to my seat during the credits, feeling disappointed, disrespected, disheartened. Knowing we can do better.

At first it's a riot.

McLarty seems to be handling it

WASHINGTON — In a White House that has sometimes lurched from crisis to crisis, White House Chief of Staff Thomas F. "Mack" McLarty knows that the fine print of his job description warns against allowing controversy to consume the staff. If he ever forgets, he can reread the late H.R. Haldeman's letter.

Haldeman, chief of staff to former president Richard Nixon, turned the White House into a fortress during Watergate. Shortly before his death last year, Haldeman wrote McLarty a personal, eight-page, handwritten note, sharing his insights and suggestions.

"I read it with care and had looked forward to the opportunity to meet with him, but he passed away shortly after I got here," McLarty told us recently. "One of the things Haldeman felt he did was push the staff, drive them too hard so they lost a sense of perspective. He really carried that guilt very much on his shoulders, and felt a personal responsibility."

President Clinton counts on McLarty for these and other reasons, and grew sentimental recently as he talked to an adviser about his boyhood friend. "I am so glad Mack is making it," Clinton said. "He came into a new job and you never know who's going to make it and who isn't."

McLarty is more than "making it." After a sputtering start, the White House staff is running more smoothly after several internal tune-ups. Much of the credit belongs to the man who shouldered a great deal of the blame when things were misfiring. He's won over skeptics within and outside the White House — including Mr. Democrat himself, Robert Strauss.

"My first thought about Mack was, 'Boy, I hope he knows enough to handle that job,'" Strauss told us. "I think the concern was legitimate at that time. But he's smart. He's a good pol. He's got good political antenna, good business judgment. He's grown dramatically. He's really on top of his job now."

"His learning curve was sharply upward in the beginning, but I think he mastered it (the job)," said one senior White House official. "He's become more assertive. He's managing things better. There are a lot of balls up in the air in this place. The president frequently likes to run the show himself in a very hands-on way. But I think Mack is very effective with a light hand."

Some White House officials believe McLarty has had to tread lightly at times because this administration has a strong and independent first lady whose staff and agenda have in the past operated outside his purview. "If you're a ward of the first lady, then he isn't going to be able to fire you very easily," said one official.

White House officials credit McLarty for cracking down on a staff — and a president — that lacked discipline. "He is somewhat less tolerant of people freeloading," says a second White House official. "I think he's got strong supporters, and I think he has fewer detractors." This official also praised McLarty's daily 8:45 a.m. management meeting for forcing tough decisions.

For his part, McLarty acknowledges that "the trains are beginning to run a lot better." But the man known as Mack the Nice also insists that the improvement not come at the expense of that "sense of perspective and decency." "You don't have to be mean to be chief of staff," argues Strauss. "You have to be firm. This is a very firm, tough guy. He's just got a nice Southern manner about him."

After a sputtering start, the White House staff is running more smoothly after several internal tune-ups.

revoke the driver licenses of those who do not pay. Morse said she is not sure that will do much good.

"To be perfectly honest," she said, "they'll just drive around without their licenses. They aren't going to let that stop them."

The administration's reform legislation, now expected to be introduced in June, will leave the details of revoking licenses in child-support cases to the states.

The aim of the White House plan is to use the threat of losing a license to embarrass and pressure parents, particularly the self-employed whose income is harder to tap. Into paying past-due child support and setting up a payment schedule.

"I hope they find something that works," Morse said.

President Clinton's welfare plan also addresses some of those larger issues. It proposes a national computer system to track all child support cases, tougher requirements for paternity establishment and an expanded role for the IRS. The plan expects to save nearly $1 billion over five years. In addition to the money that will go to the mothers, but will spend $465 million on computers.

Today, only one-third of mothers receive child support regularly, and fathers who have custody aren't doing any better, Roberts said. Women are awarded custody in 85 percent of divorces, she said.

Roberts said the threat of taking away a driver's license only kicks in when a parent's payments are in arrears. During that time, a mother may have gone on welfare or taken a second or third job to keep her family afloat.

"Wouldn't it rather try to work on the system up front, from the day the child support order is entered, to make sure it's getting paid regularly and on time?" Roberts said. "What really and truly needs to be done is to get support to be a regular and consistent monthly source of income for custodial parents."

Information from the Associated Press was included in this report.

To be called Koolaty Kare, the center will be located directly across Country Club Road from the entrance to the Lake Mary City Hall. It will be at the extreme west end of the Shoppes of Lake Mary Center.

Cox said the location would be ideal with its close proximity to Lake Mary Elementary School. "The children will be going into year round schooling," he said, "and they will need some place to go when they are on their vacation periods. Our aim is to provide them with a good day care center."

The Rev. Cox explained that the center will be for children from K through 5th grade. "If we can get the variance to have a fenced-in playground area at the back of the structure," he explained, "it will allow us to serve approximately 25 children at a time. Without the added area," he added, "we would probably be able to have only 16."

Questions from members of the commission however, made it appear as though the matter was destined for denial. Commissioner George Duryea commented, "I have a problem with granting this kind of variance. We are not an urban city, we are rural. And if there is a definite need for such a facility, there are many other places in the city which will better serve your needs."

Cox responded that he had made an extensive search and could not find any other facility in the city area as good as the proposed location, or close to the traffic brought about by parents bringing their children to the elementary school.

Commissioner Gary Brender favored the request. "I believe there is a pressing civic need for some type of intercession day care," he said. "The only problem I have is with safety. I would suggest if we approve this, that there be more guard railing."

Brender said he had a concern over what the day care center would look like to people passing on Country Club Road. "I don't think this is what we envision for downtown Lake Mary," he commented. "And what happens if we want to widen Country Club Road, but have given you the variance to have the fencing closer to the roadway?"

City Planner Matt West responded that Country Club Road is a county road, and would probably not see any widening for at least ten years or more. Mayor Rockett observed, "I could see this possibly wouldn't be proper if the whole downtown area was developed, but it's not. And this is certainly more compatible than many other uses which could go into this space."

"I'm not against the day care center," said Commissioner David Meador, "but I am against approving the variances. I just don't want to go against what we work so diligently at in establishing codes under which development is required to be made."

Commissioner Sheila Sawyer agreed with the safety problem, and said she had misgivings about a playground so close to traffic. "But if we approve this," she asked Rev. Cox, "what are your plans for the future of this day care center?"

Cox said his church, located on Markham Woods Road, has 20 acres of property to be developed. "Right now we are in a bond drive to get money for a new sanctuary," he explained, "and within possibly four to five years, we plan to build a large scale day care center on the property. We have already named it Greenwood Christian School."

Brender wrapped up the discussion. "We seem to have a need (for day care) that is not being met," he said, "and this isn't forever, it's only for four or five years and if we approve this, we will be helping resolve some of the problem forced on us by the Seminole County Schools in setting up this year-round schooling."

Brender moved to approved the request for the variance, with the stipulation that the chain link fence and guard rails be extended further than originally proposed behind the property for the protection of the children.

With Brender and Sawyer voting for it, and Duryea and Meador going against the request, Mayor Lowry Rockett cast the final yes vote, and the measure passed three to two.

The move was followed by a round of cheers and applause by over 40 parents and their young children who had filled a large portion of the chamber room during the meeting.

shortcake and orange juice, said Gene Morris, a Department of Corrections spokesman.

His list of final visitors included his son Marvin Johnson Jr., and daughter Martha Martinez, both of Callahan, plus three grandchildren, and several other relatives. Seven attorneys also were scheduled to visit.

Court records show Johnson entered the pharmacy and ordered Moulton to empty money and drugs into a bag.

As Johnson fled the store, Moulton fired five shots from a .38-caliber revolver. They all missed and Moulton was out of ammunition. According to a witness, Johnson returned to the store, telling the pharmacist, "You think you are a smart son of a bitch." He shot Moulton in the chest at point-blank range.

At the time, Johnson was an escapee from a Tennessee prison, where he had been serving 20 years for armed robbery.

He was found guilty of first-degree murder and armed robbery on Dec. 8, 1978, and the jury recommended that Johnson receive life in prison.

Circuit Judge William Frye III, however, sentenced Johnson to death.

Poll

Marlene Alva, Fred Hitt, Don Marblestone and John Sloop.

Attorney John D. Galluzzo served as Judicial Poll Committee chairman. The survey results were given to the judges last week but individual comments are not released. Judges may request to see comments about themselves at the Bar Association office. Comments made in the anonymous poll are not generally released, Galluzzo said, because although some may be seen as constructive criticism, some are not.

If judges were given the opportunity to rank attorneys on a similar scale, and to comment on how they do their jobs, Galluzzo speculated, the attorneys probably would not want the results released to the general public.

The attorneys gave the judges an overall rating of "qualified" and when the overall average was computed they ranked from satisfactory to good.

"There was less than one percentage point difference between any of the judges in their respective ranking," Galluzzo explained.

Even for Judge Wood, who received the lowest overall rating of 1.88 out of three or an average of 3.70 on the 5 point scale, Galluzzo speculated the number reflected the attorneys' frustration dealing with the state agency involved and the special rules and regulations governing juveniles cases rather than the judge.

New judges also tend to be ranked high in polls, as Judge Freeman was in his first time placement. However, only 44 attorneys who returned the poll said they had appeared before him.

Patriots primed for state title bid

By TONY DeSORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Coach Mike Smith knew what it would take to get his Lake Brantley Patriots ready to compete for the 5A-District 4 baseball title this year. The only problem was, would the Patriots survive the process?

"After we won the summer league title last summer and played in the Buddy Lake League last fall, we knew that the team to beat would be Oviedo and possibly Lake Howell," recalled Smith. "I went to my assistant coaches and we decided that we would have to play an extremely competitive schedule in order to vie for the district title."

"That's why we made those trips (to Gainesville, Sarasota, and Miami). We felt that if we wanted to be as good as we possibly could be, we had to play that kind of schedule."

While Oviedo and Lake Howell were both first-round losers in the district tournament, Smith's plan worked. Today at 5 p.m., the Patriots will face Cooper City in the Class 5A state semifinals at Sarasota's Ed Smith Stadium. The 8 p.m. semifinal pits Sarasota against Miami-Braddock.

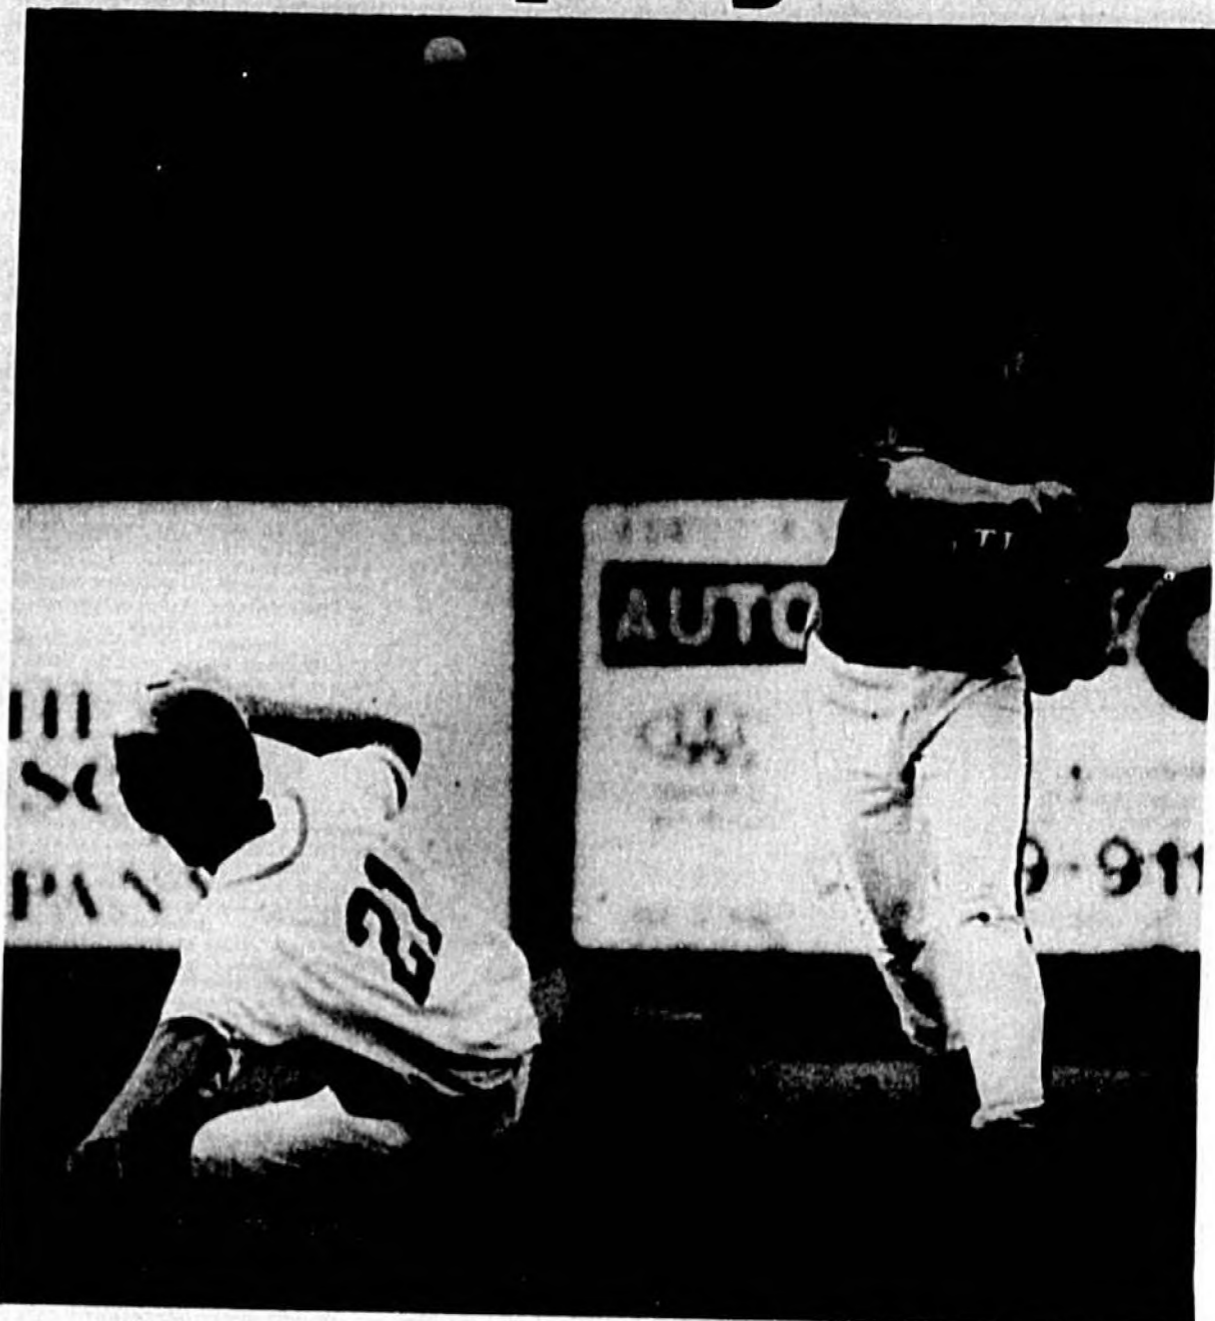

The championship game is scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday.

Thanks to their demanding schedule, the Patriots should be well prepared for the rigors of state tournament play. For example, Lake Brantley (28-8) has been a terror away from home, winning 18 of 21 games on the road (including tournaments).

"That's the benefit of having so many seniors," said Smith. "That maturity has been a big part of our success. That took us through March. Once we learned how to win, we were on our way."

Since the Big Blue Bonanza (which finished April 1), the Patriots are 16-2. According to Smith, the turning point of the season came on Friday, April 15, when the Patriots beat Lyman at Lyman.

"Earlier in the season, Lyman thoroughly beat us," Smith said. "When we beat them over there and won two games in Miami that weekend (defeating Class 1A semifinalist Miami-Braddock)." See Patriots, Page 2B

Shortstop Pete Gaidis and the Lake Brantley Patriots played near-perfect defense over the last half of the regular season and on through the playoffs. That's one huge reason why the Patriots are playing in the Class 5A state semifinals tonight at Sarasota's Ed Smith Stadium.

Rock Lake Middle School seventh graders Mark Seeley and Peter Voigt found one of the few dry spots at Lake Mary High School's Don T. Reynolds Stadium when rain

Middler track meet rained out

LAKE MARY — It looks like the Seminole County Middle School track meet will have to wait another year.

The meet was supposed to make its return from a two-year hiatus last night at Lake Mary High School's Don T. Reynolds Stadium, but steady rains washed out the event shortly after competition in the field events began.

"We're not going to be able to reschedule it," said Lake Mary coach Mike Gibson. "The coaches said there are too many conflicts between now and the end of the school year, so we won't be able to get it in."

"It does look like there's a lot of interest in this event, so we'll continue it next year."

There were a couple of notable efforts before the rains came Thursday night.

Among the 11-13 boys, Billy Restall of Jackson Heights Middle School turned in a leap of 17 feet, 4 1/4 inches in the long jump while Greenwood Lakes' Luis Garrido had a throw of 44-6 1/2 in the shot put.

In the 11-13 girls' long jump, J. Brown from Rock Lake had a leap of 14-3/4 while Tuskawilla's Patty MacDowell jumped 14-1. Rebecca Richins of South Seminole threw the 6-pound shot 31-7.

Roinco widens gap at Chase

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Roinco/Florida Sport Wear posted a come-from-behind victory then got some help from an unexpected source to take a two-game lead in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Spring Thursday Night Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park.

Ken Rummel Chevrolet took leads of 3-0 and 4-1, but Roinco/Florida Sport Wear came back with four runs in the bottom of the second inning to take a 5-4 lead.

Ken Rummel Chevrolet	310	001	0	—	5	12
Roinco/Fla. Sport Wear	140	000	1	—	4	15
Touchdown Pub	402	000	3	—	10	15
Desk-Mate	002	417	x	—	14	19

Ken Rummel scored an unearned run in the top of the sixth inning to tie the score at 5-5, before Roinco-FWA rallied again.

With one out in the bottom of the seventh inning, Jerry Brussels singled. After a fly out, Steve Donovan doubled and Dave Noble lined a shot that the Ken Rummel third baseman knocked down but could not make a play on as the winning run crossed the plate.

M.A. Erectors received a forfeit See Chase, Page 2B

Top scam of the year

Beware of guaranteed sweepstakes notices

At least 92 percent of the adult population has received a postcard announcing that he or she is a winner of a fabulous prize. I have assumed that most people toss them in the trash can, but the truth is that at least 30 percent respond. And it ends up costing them big money.

The Alliance Against Fraud in Telemarketing (AAFT), represented by coalition members Call for Action, Direct Marketing Association, the U.S. Postal Service, National Consumer's League, and the Federal Trade Commission, held a national press conference on November 17 to call public attention to the growing menace of sweepstake promotions that promise big winnings, but require winners to pay a fee, taxes, or other administrative costs to get that prize. As AAFT Chair Linda F. Goldner put it: "Fraudulent postcard offers have become not only one of the major scams of the '90s, but also a big business which is cutting into legitimate companies' profits and creating a mistrust for all types of prize promotions."

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

Several sweepstakes prize winners spoke at the Alliance press conference to warn the public about the dangers of guaranteed prize offers. One victim told reporters she was contacted several times a day after responding to the first offer. Like millions of Americans who respond to these offers, she can expect to be contacted again and again by "reloaders" who will try to con her out of more money.

All three television networks, CNN, as well as the nation's major daily newspapers and wire services, carried reports on the AAFT news conference.

And the message may be getting through to the consumer. The National Fraud Information Center was flooded with calls after the press conference, mostly from victims who had responded to phony prize offers.

Most of the victims reported they had paid hundreds of dollars to scam artists, convinced that a brand new car, cash, or a trip to the Bahamas was on the way. Many could withstand the loss. But there was one elderly victim, desperate for money, who borrowed the $600 needed to "register" the $37,000 she was told that she had won. When her son contacted the National Fraud Information Center he reported that he had found her with no food in the house. She had sent all her remaining cash to the Houston promoter who got her first $600 and still promises that her huge cash award is still just days away. She assured her son that the money will come any day now, but is beginning to have doubts. Remember always the old saying, "If it seems to good to be true - it probably is!"

Heathrow women make children's wishes come true

By JOANNE LUCAS
Special to the Herald

The Country Club of Heathrow with Meg Kuchar as chairman presented their fifth annual "Dancing with the Stars" recently to benefit the Children's Wish Foundation.

The festivities included live entertainment for dancing until 12:30 p.m. Music was provided by "The Secrets Out."

Photo opportunities with wild animals (Predators Plus) were available along with clowns, an abundant supply of delicious hors d'oeuvres and refreshing drinks.

A Live and Silent Auction feted trips to New York, Broadmoor, Colo., The Breakers and Greenleaf. The 1994 325i BMW convertible, ski jet, jewelry, pinball machines, golf and tennis memberships to the Country Club at Heathrow, rounds of golf, golf clubs and a golf cart drew heavily contested bids. Auctioneer was Dr. Frank Clontz.

The Children's Wish Foundation is a not-for-profit organization founded in 1985. The work of the foundation consists of granting wishes to children who have not yet attained their 18th birthday and are suffering from life-threatening illness which will, in all likelihood, shorten their life expectancy. Since its beginning the foundation has granted over 1,000 wishes. Wish applications are primarily received from throughout the state of Florida. The foundation has a goal - the granting of every wish which meets the criteria.

fund-raiser, Career Data Max, a major sponsor, auctioned off their 100,000 bar code machine for $5,600, and requested Joel Jones, head of Children's Wish, travel to Chicago for a formal presentation of the additional check.

As things always work out for a reason, there was a child in that area whose "last wish" was to visit Disney World in Orlando. Joel, in addition to accepting the check, will arrange ticket and hotel accommodations etc. to grant the child's wish.

Toddler's sitter has Grandmother concerned about abuse

DEAR ABBY: My 2-year-old granddaughter is being allowed overnight visits with a young lesbian. Would you or your experts allow a beautiful little girl overnight visits with a lesbian? Are the chances of anything happening to her any greater than if she were allowed overnight visitation with a straight person who was fond of her?

My granddaughter has already been through a lot of unknowns in her young life and needs all the protection she can be given. I know her custodial parent would never knowingly allow her to be in jeopardy, so please tell us if it is necessary to protect this precious child.

Are there signs that would alert us to protect our children and is there any dialogue we can use with a child so young to gain insight if anything is happening to her?

No name, no city, please. If you print this, Sign me...

VIOLANT GRANDMOTHER

DEAR GRANDMOTHER: Your granddaughter is in no greater danger with a lesbian sitter than she would be with a heterosexual baby sitter. Homosexuality (sexual attraction for one of the same sex) and pedophilia (a sexual perversion in which children are the preferred sexual object) are not synonymous.

A study conducted at

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Children's Hospital in Denver between July 1, 1991, and June 30, 1992, found that of 352 cases of suspected child molestation, only two molesters were gay or lesbian. In the study, 82 percent of both boys and girls identified their molesters as the heterosexual partner of a relative of the child.

Signs of sexual abuse include: anti-social attitude; exaggerated interest in sex or "acting out" sex with other children; unusually seductive behavior; fear of intimate contact; refusal to undress for physical education or sports; irritation of the genitals; nightmares; regressive behavior such as acting childishly; crying excessively; and withdrawing into a world of fantasy. One sign may not be a positive indication. However if a number of signs are present, it is wise to consider the possibility of abuse.

The best defense against child abuse is teaching children that if anyone - stranger or family member - touches them in a "private place" they should tell a parent or another trusted adult. And children should be assured that if they have been molested, the shame and blame belong to the adult, not the child.

DEAR ABBY: I am 45 years old, financially comfortable and would like to get married. I would like to meet a man about my age who enjoys going to church. I belong to the First Methodist Church, Blessed Angela Catholic Church and the Mount Zion Jewish Temple. I also attend the Christian Science Church regularly, but I do take aspirin occasionally.

Can you please help me find a man of good character who is interested in marriage, and belongs to any of the above-mentioned places of worship? A moderate cigarette smoker is OK, but please, no beer drinkers.

VICTORIA

DEAR VICTORIA: You seem to have all the bases covered. I cannot understand how you can be a member of all the above-mentioned churches.

To find a good churchgoing gentleman, have a talk with any of your clergypersons and be up-front about your interest in finding a man. I am a firm believer that there's somebody for everybody. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Re the letters stating that churches are always asking for money: It's too bad those folks don't live in this area so they could attend the Helotes Independent Baptist Church.

The collection plate is never passed; it remains on a table at Helen Church, has had some happy results. I found two very special persons whom I thought I had lost: a dear college friend, and a cousin whom I had tried unsuccessfully to locate. But there's more!

One day recently, my phone rang and a man's voice announced, "This is Leon Church in Nashville, Tenn." Abby, my husband, Leon Church, died 10 years ago, and I had never heard of another man with that name. After a few speechless seconds he continued, "And my wife's name is Helen Church!"

I said, "Are you serious?" He assured me he was, then went on to tell me about himself and his wife of 14 years - during which time no one had apparently noticed that her name might be considered odd.

So my fun-loving Dad could no longer claim to be the only man who had raised Helen Church.

Thank you, Dear Abby, for helping to keep my 83-year-long life interesting.

DRUG COUNSELOR

MARY BALK

DEAR MARY: Can I "borrow" some space to tell your readers my story? I'm 19 years old and recovering from a crack addiction that started when I was 15. I look back on the past four years now and realize how much harm I've done to myself and the people who care about me.

The first time I tried crack I paid $10 for it and loved the way it made me feel. In fact, the first time I used it was the best time. As my tolerance increased, I needed $50 to get the same hit I'd gotten at first for $10.

Then I started using anything I could get to try to bring back that feeling. I started doing a lot of angel dust because it's cheap, but it would waste me for hours. Sometimes I couldn't even walk I was so high. By this time I was scared to death that I might run out of stuff and I was needing stronger and stronger doses to get the high I needed. I felt nervous and depressed almost all the time. Staying in school or holding a job were impossible, so stealing and shoplifting were the ways I supported my addictions.

After so many years of this routine, I know I'll never fully recover the life I lost to my addiction, but I'm going to spend the rest of my life trying to re-establish the relationships I harmed and developing a healthy new life with new friends and values. It's going to be hard, but I'm committed to spending the rest of my life working on these goals.

KENNETH

DEAR KENNETH: Congratulations on your commitment to a recovering lifestyle. Parents, the message for us is to stay on guard. Any indication that one of our children may be experimenting with or involved with anyone affected by drug use is a red alert that requires our immediate attention and intervention.

of the Tassel

It could have been your son or my daughter coming into view as "Pomp and Circumstance" regally accompanied the winding walk to those appointed places on that sunny Saturday in May. Their scattered tears could have been those of joy, nervous anticipation of the future, the approaching loneliness for roommates and friends of four years, or all of those.

"Now you may turn your tassels." As each hand touched the mortarboard, the world was about to become a reality. Each candidate for graduation was about to receive that coveted diploma complete with all its "rights and responsibilities".

Yes, it could have been your son or my daughter. This time, it was my daughter. The blossom had shown its true colors and proved to be beautiful. As you worship this Sabbath, please pray for her and for each of our graduates as they turn their tassels into reality.

Mono symptom may be infection

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 60 and suffered from mono three years ago. Since then, the glands in the front of my ears and down my neck swell. A specialist did blood work and said there is nothing wrong with me. I know there is and I'm desperate.

DEAR READER: Mononucleosis, a virus infection that commonly affects adolescents, causes fever, fatigue, swollen glands, and a sore throat. This disease is diagnosed with a blood test.

For all practical purposes, once a person has recovered from the infection, he has a lifelong immunity to the disease. Not only is mono rare in people over 30, it almost never leads to chronic fatigue and illness, as you seem to suffer.

Therefore, I suspect that you may have a disease that, in many respects, resembles mono -- but isn't. Toxoplasmosis (caused by a parasitic microorganism) and cytomegalovirus infection are two such disorders. Both can be diagnosed by suitable blood tests, and treated with medication. Ask your doctor about this.

Also, remember that many other infections can cause the lymph glands to enlarge, because these structures act as filters in the body (to trap germs), and the glands produce antibodies, too.

Perhaps your family physician should sit down with you, describe the test results that have been reported, and plan a course of action (such as additional blood work) to identify the cause of your ongoing symptoms. Don't accept half-measures; badger your doctor for answers.

DEAR DR. GOTT: One night my husband and I had intercourse. During this, he died and could not be revived by ambulance personnel or the hospital workers. Was this too much stress and strain for a person who had a previous heart attack? I feel guilty.

DEAR READER: Don't feel guilty. You were not the cause of your husband's heart attack, which could have just as easily occurred during any other strenuous activity.

Sexual intercourse is a recognized risk for men with arteriosclerotic heart disease, because this exertion may place excessive demands on the heart. For this reason, physicians often recommend a "male under" position for men with coronary artery disease: a more passive role is associated with less heart strain.

MEDICINE

To lose a loved one during physical intimacy is a devastating experience and I can well understand your tendency to assume responsibility. However, in most cases, the sex partner is not to blame.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Today we move to the final of the team event at the second Pepsi International Youth Bridge Festival, which was held last January in the Netherlands. Both Denmark and Great Britain had won close semifinal matches, but the final was an easy victory for Lars and Marten Madsen and Henrik and Claus Boysen by 36-14. Today's deal didn't hurt the Danish cause.

The first seven bids were the same at both tables. Two clubs was checkback, asking for more information. Two diamonds denied three spades or four hearts. But when the British twins Justin and Jason Hackett were North-South, Justin bid five diamonds over three spades. This is the better game contract, just requiring the club finesse to work. But it lost and the final result was one down. Three no-trump, reached by the Boysens, is worse, needing hearts 4-4 and a finesse.

The defenders began with four rounds of hearts, ending in the East hand. South threw one club and released a spade and a diamond from dummy. Now a club switch gives declarer a nasty guess. He has eight top tricks: two spades, five diamonds and one club. But he has two finesses available for the ninth trick: in spades and in clubs. Which should he take? He has to decide immediately.

However, East switched to a spade. South finessed his jack, and, when it won, he claimed. But if the spade finesse had lost, he had the club finesse waiting in the wings.

Try to find the right play, baby --uh, huh.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 21, 1994

Some of the seeds you've sown in the past year have not fallen on unproductive soil. In the year ahead you might be pleasantly surprised by what you harvest.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today if you get involved in some type of committee work, go all the way. Don't settle for being a vice-chairman or a minor command. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it.

The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail #2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Should you be told something in confidence today, you're not likely to betray the trust. Two friends will sense this quality in you and separately reveal their secrets.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your expectations could be rather high today, but this does not make them faulty or wrong. Big hopes provide big motivation and if you try, you might do very well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Whistle while you work today, because progress may come more easily if you find enjoyment in all of your involvements, even the serious and demanding ones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your best asset today might be your ability to take the complicated concepts and suggestions of others and sort out their root values. What's left over can be put to good use.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something from which you made money previously could provide a bonanza for you again in this cycle. It's time to take another hard look at this old provider.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A problem for which you have no solution might be easily resolved by your mate if you discuss it with him/her today. A view from a different perspective may be all you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to give expression to your artistic and creative urges today, because you might be capable of producing something worthy of keeping that will please you and others as well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If things have been a trifle dull for you lately in the romance department, don't despair. Cupid may make some swift and favorable changes beginning today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Shop around again today for an item you've been reluctant to buy because of its price. There's a chance you may find it offered at a figure you can afford.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You need the type of activities today that permit you to move around both mentally and physically. You'll find it even more stimulating if you're challenged in both these areas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not discount or dismiss any bright ideas you get today that you feel could make or save you money. What you conceive can be accomplished, at least in part. Copyright 1994 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
