Exhibit commemorates 50th anniversary of war's end

By GRACE M. STINECIPHER Herald Columnist

SANFORD - To commemorate the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II, the Sanford Museum will have a special exhibit of area memorabilia from that period in history. It will be on display from Aug. 15 through Sept. 15.

Among the things on display will be Sanford Heralds of the era, ration books, savings stamp books, items relating to air raid drills in Sanford, Florida State Guard shirt and manual, patriotic sheet music written by Sanford's Wille Borland (Mrs. Roy) Pippin and Lake Mary's Harry Wester.

There will be several items exhibited from the General Joseph C. Hutchtson collection. General

Hutchison, a brigadier general in the National Guard and a Sanford resident, accepted the formal surrender of the Japanese forces on Mindinaro. Philippines on Sept. 8, 1945.

Also of special interest is a story about Ezekiel collecting scrap metal and also earning money to buy savings stamps written and illustrated by Elvira Garner. This was sent to Miss Lucille Campbell's sixth grade class in response to a letter they had written to Miss Garner inquiring if Ezekiel was involved in collecting scrap. Miss Garner was, of course, the author of the popular Ezekiel books which have their setting in SANFORD - Preliminary population statistics revealed recently by the University of Florida Bureau of Economic and Business Research indicate the state is growing faster than at any time so far this century. How does Seminole County stack up as population grows? A close examination of the statistics for Seminole NEWS County may ANALYSIS prove to be more revealing than overall figures may initially indicate.

First of all, it should be noted that the bureau stresses the figures are only preliminary and may be updated later as additional information is obtained. Seldom in the history of these documents, however, have the figures been downgraded. Rather. most of the changes, some relatively minor, have shown increases.

The increases were caused by areas which were uncovered that had not been fully examined and counted. Figures do Include prison and nursing home populations and other factors to indicate the actual number of persons residing within

Bizarre tale of murder and money

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The life of a California doctor who as a boy lived in Sanford, resembles an adventure mystery novel. Police believe they now know who dunntt."

The story involves medical fraud, and suspected attempted murder by a decorated former Marine Corps sharpshooter.

After his father, Bill Shoemaker, was killed in 1965 as the result of a plane crash in California. young Billy came to Sanford, where he lived for a number of years near his uncle A.K. Shoemaker. in the Shoemaker development of Idyllwilde. He attended local schools for about five years before returning to California.

Dr. Bill Shoemaker is now an orthopedic surgeon. He had been associated with another surgeon, Dr. Ronald Neufield, but last September parted company with him when it was reportedly discovered Neufield may have been bliking patients in a massive over-billing scam, altering medical records to collect $25,000 a month in private disability insurance.

According to the San Diego Union-Tribune. Neufield had also taken out a $1 million life. insurance policy on Shoemaker and another employee.

Shortly after the two parted company, two men reportedly followed Shoemaker's car onto an interstate highway, and one of the men is said to have begun firing shots, bitting Shoemaker in the wrist and shoulder. Bec Bisarre, Page 5A

The Fort Walton Beach Republican, ending weeks of self-imposed silence, said he didn't believe his recent behavior warranted his involuntary commitment by his mother last week to a hospital for a psychiatric examination.

He said he would not resign. But he didn't know whether he would seek re-election in 1996.

"I'm sorry and I apologize, particularly to the people of northwest Florida who elected me to office," a teary-eyed Harden told reporters Thursday during an emotionally wrenching news conference in the Senate president's office.

"I know that because of this, I've been a great embarrassment to a lot of people who have supported me. Harden said he was diagnosed with depression during his was not yet on the medication and hoped not to take it at all. His disclosures came after publicity about his personal

WEST PALM BEACH - An outbreak of contagious salmonella infection that started at a Mexican restaurant here has reached epidemic proportions, Palm Beach County health

"I think we're looking at an epidemic," Dr. Jean Malecki, director of the Palm Beach County Public Health Unit, said Thursday, "The potential for spread is very serious. We need to have the cooperation of the entire community."

The greatest fear, she said, is that people infected with the bacteria will spread it into hospitals, day care centers, nursing homes and other food service areas. Employees of such places should not go to work if they have symptoms and should see their own doctors or call the health department immediately.

More than 700 calls came in about the outbreak at Margarita y Amigas restaurant last weekend, and up to 2,800 people could have been exposed to the contagious bacteria, officials

Ninety percent of callers say they have had salmonella symptoms of nausea, vomiting, fever, chills and diarrhea. Every call produces two to four more names of people who may have been exposed to salmonella. Malecki said, and 40 state employees are tracking the leads.

Eleven cases have been confirmed, including five people who were hospitalized for dehydration from diarrhea. All have been released from the hospitals.

One restaurant patron already has filed a lawsuit seeking damages for the chimichanga dinner that allegedly made her sick. Debra Staley, 40, of West Palm Beach claims in her lawsuit that the dinner was "toxic, unwholesome, defective (and) unsafe for human consumption

Margarita y Amigas, one of the oldest Mexican restaurants in West Palm Beach, closed voluntarily Wednesday and will remain shut until it corrects all its health violations and all 70 employees are tested for salmonella and cleared as healthy.

Campaign heats up against cloned phones, cellular fraud

By IKE FLORES Associated Press Writer

ORLANDO - Cops and cellular phone companies are stepping up a campaign against high-tech crooks who defraud the wireless industry of $1.3 million a day.

The cooperation is in part a recognition that drug dealers and organized crime groups are using cloned, or reprogrammed, phones to hide their activities.

The industry-wide epidemic of unauthorized use of cellular service takes many forms, is increasingly high-tech and affects customers. companies and society in general, industry and law enforcement officials said Thursday in Orlando.

Members of the Cellular Telecommunications Industry Association in Florida are providing a hours a day to determine if confiscated phones have been cloned, and how they may have been used in other crimes.

The carriers also debuted a 20-minute video that will help law enforcement agencies across the state to better understand, detect, combat and prosecute cellular fraud.

The 24-hour telephone service is now in place only in New York. The Los Angeles area will follow the Florida effort, said Mike Houghton. spokesman for the CTIA.

The Orlando and Miami areas are especially "hot" in these activities now, said Pete Daiger, a member of the Orange County sheriff's economic crimes squad.

"Many of these crimes go hand-in-hand," he said, "Credit card and phone fraud go right along with drugs, robbery, even murder. . . We have several documented killings in South Florida because people didn't deliver cloned phones fast

Daiger said police agencies throughout the state are conducting workshops and briefing sessions to familiarize officers with the efforts being made

Industry officials meeting at a Walt Disney World hotel emphasized that cellular fraud. which cost them $482 million last year, is not a victimiess crime.

Official: GOP health cuts would cost state

Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Proposed Republican spending cuts would cost Florida $38 billion in federal health care dollars by 2002, a Clinton administration official said Thursday.

That would include $28 billion less in Medicare benefits for elderly Floridians over the next seven years, Health Care Financing Administrator Bruce Vladeck told Florida reporters in a conference call from Washington.

And the state's Medicaid program for those who depend on welfare for their health benefits would get $10 billion less in federal money for its low-income, blind, disabled and elderly clients, said Vladeck.

Nationally, Republicans urge trimming

Medicare growth by $270 billion and Medicaid growth by $182 billion. Vladeck said that would severely impact the 70 million Americans. including 4.3 million Floridians, helped by the

Those are everybody's uncles, parents, neighbors, the disabled kid down the block," said Vladeck. "The majority plans to make some very radical changes.

Vladeck said he is holding conference calls with reporters in various states and White House officials are talking to the Washington media as the Democratic administration gears up for congressional debate on health care cuts next Republicans say they are trying to keep the programs from going bankrupt.

"The president's own advisers project the system will go broke and collapse in seven years unless changes are made," argued Florida Republican Sen. Connie Mack. "It would be irresponsible to stand by and do nothing and in seven years leave elderly Americans without a dime of Medicare."

Democrats argue much of the trimming wouldn't be necessary if Republicans weren't seeking $245 billion in tax cuts.

The debate has added intensity in Florida. where Democratic Gov. Lawton Chiles is urging lawmakers to back his health care plans in a September special legislative session.

Chiles wants to use $8 billion in Medicaid savings the state has accomplished to extend medical coverage to more uninsured Floridians and keep the money from reverting to the federal government. But his Republican foes balk at acting before seeing what health care changes Congress has in store.

Vladeck accused Republican congressional leaders of a "slash and burn kind of approach." He said spending can be cut and programs made more efficient "without going hog wild."

"The president does have a proposal that does it in a more gradual way and takes less out of Medicare and Medicaid," he said.

While Republicans propose cutting projected Medicare growth by $270 million over the next seven years. Clinton would trim it by $124 billion.

Clinton would curb Medicaid growth by $54 billion instead of the $182 billion proposed by the Florida has 2.6 million Medicare recipients senior citizens and their nursing homes, hospitals and health-care providers - who collect $13 million a year in federal benefits.

Pawned games lead to arrests

Two 19-year old Sanford men were arrested by city police for burglary and grand theft after allegedly taking $700 cash and 17 video games from a video store in the 3600 block of Orlando

Robert Earl Gray Jr., 2534 El Portal and Michael Brian Lance, 1201 W. 20th St. allegedly entered an "employees only" area in the rear of the store and used a ladder to access the manager's office over a partition wall. After taking the cash, the pair removed 17 game tapes from the store in a bookbag. The tapes are valued at $59 each. Most of the tapes were sold at a local pawn shop for $5 each. Lance gave a written statement after his arrest that he used some of the money to buy a cell phone.

Computer check leads to arrest

Leroy Hardy, 44, 1401 W. 7th St. was arrested Wednesday by Sanford police at First Street and Magnolia Avenue after a traffic stop for no tag and no brake lights. A computer check showed Hardy's license had been suspended four times and he was arrested for driving with a suspended license, no insurance and defective equipment along with the tag violation.

Domestic violence arrests

• Anthony Raymond Spurlock, 21, 757 E. Warren Ave. was arrested by Longwood police for aggravated battery after a fight with his girlfriend. He was also arrested on an outstanding felony warrant for shooting into a building/vehicle. The victim told police a verbal altercation became physical while she was carrying their 9-month-old child. The woman is also three months pregnant and wishes to prosecute.

Retail theft arrest

Wayne Maxwell Munns, 19, 1321 Landry Circle, Longwood was arrested for retail theft by Longwood police after a supermarket employee saw him take an 80-cent apple pie from the shelf, go to the restroom and eat it without paying for it. He told police he had not eatén in days.

Pot spotted from air

Three men were arrested by City County Investigative Bureau unit agents for cultivation of marijuana and possession of marijuana in separate incidents.

CCIB agents conducted an air search during a marijuana eradication operation resulting in the arrests.

Eddle Dean Morris, 40, 390 Lake Lenelle Road, Chuluota was arrested for growning three pot plants in an oak thicket in the 1700 block of Broadway, Oviedo.

Shaun Richard ODowd, 40, 432 Sugarmili Road, Oviedo was arrested for nine plants growing on various locations on his property. Some plants were hanging to dry.

James Donald Tumlinson, 49, 432 Sugarmill Road, Casselberry was arrested for two plants and several drug paraphernalia items along with some dry marijuana in a box.

Sanford police reports

OA $250 TV set was reportedly stolen Tuesday from a residence in the 100 block of Hazel Boulevard in Sanford.

● A $400 weed cater was reportedly stolen Tuesday from the front of a business located in the 500 block of E. First Street in Sanford.

Two separate reports were filed Tuesday regarding thefts from a construction site in the 100 block of Towne Center Boulevard. In one, an estimated $400 in electrical equipment was reported stölen. The second report told of $700 in copper tubing and fittings having been stolen from the same location.

Buick station wagon stolen in the 1900 block of South Holly Avenue was recovered by police in the 100 block of Ramblewood Drive before the owner discovered it was missing. A resident of the 1800 block of Maple Avenue said she was dragged into a car by a man after she refused a ride near Seminole High School. She hit the man with her bookbag and fled. The suspect is a white male, 23 to 32 years old, 5'8" tall with a mustache and dirty blond hair. The incident occurred Wednesday about 6:20 a.m. at 20th Street and Chase Avenue.

Say, those TV lawyers are pretty good

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Back in the mid-1960s, when Chicago lawyer Warren Swanson wrote the first abortion-related episode for the soap opera "Another World," the word "abortion" simply wasn't said on television.

It was called "treatment." Or the woman said, "I've got to get rid of this." Eventually, the soap character was tried for murder after she shot the man who made her pregnant.

Swanson, who practiced criminal defense law at the time, said he made sure "everything was accurate" in the courtroom scenes. "I did not bend the rules there at all," he said in an interview.

Some lawyers like to pick flaws in the way their profession is portrayed on television. But Swanson found that his script-writing sideline taught him a thing or two about being an attorney.

"It helped to make me more creative, more adventurous in defending cases," he said. "I would think of the members of the jury as I would think of an audience listening to a soap

New York University law professor Stephen Gillers says one of the best trial opening statements he ever saw was on "L.A. Law." It was strong and effective but lasted only a few minutes. "Often, less is more in the courtroom. The more information you throw at the jury, the less the jury remembers," said Gillers. "A writer's art is what you leave out, and a lawyer can learn that the art of advocacy is often what you leave out." Los Angeles attorney Charles Rosenberg was the legal consultant for "L.A. Law" for its entire eight-year run.

"There is a long interest in the law in the United States," he said. "On the one hand, many people hate lawyers; and on the other hand, people are fascinated by lawyers. Rosenberg said he tried to make sure the legal language was accurate and that both sides of issues were fully explored. He saw to it that during courtroom scenes, lawyers did not lean on the jury rail or touch the wit-

But some rules had to be bent for dramatic effect. In one episode involving a woman who was in a permanent coma, the show's writers decided to have her bed wheeled into the courtroom so the judge could see her.

That wouldn't happen in real life. But Rosenberg said the acene was true in a broader sense because "the legal issue that's at stake is whether that person is dead or alive."

Television legal dramas "are realistic in the sense that they get to the emotional heart of matters and they show you very good lawyering," Rosenberg will help them win."

Some of the shows may even give a more authentic view of the legal system than the true-to-life trial of O.J. Simpson.

Washington lawyer Marna Tucker said she thought it was useful for the public to see the preliminary hearing in the Simpson case, but the trial itself had become bogged down in "the excess of everything."

"What it says to people is, if you have money you have your own system of justice," she said.

Tucker, a lawyer known around town as the "diva of divorce," said she enjoyed, the program "Civil Wars" about divorce cases. "As ridiculous as some of those things seemed to be, they were really close to what I see," she said.

Indeed, Swanson - who wrote soap opera scripts for years said that if someone made up a script like the Simpson case. 'you'd think it was very bad

Soap opera historian Les White of Los Angeles said legendary soap creator Irna Phillips often paid lawyers to send descriptions of their actual cases. which she would use in her story

Gillers watched a number of "L.A. Law" episodes for a Yale Law Journal article during the show's run. In which he said the program "uses the actor's and the storyteller's arts to entertain. not to fool, people."

Lawyers, meanwhile, sometimes (and legitimately) use the same arts to make the false appear true or the true false, at least momentarily, if doing so

Probe of accidental shooting ends in arrest of men next door

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Bill Gerald Cline, 23, 1061 Brielle Court, Oviedo made his first court appearance Thursday on three counts of battery on a law enforcement officer and one count of resisting arrest with violence.

Seminole County deputy sheriffs arrested Cline about 10 p.m. Wednesday while investigating an accidental shooting at Springwood Village con-dominiums on State Road 434 near Longwood. A couple reported they were in their bedroom at 149A Springwood Circle about 8:45 p.m. when a bullet was fired into their living room, hitting a dining room chair and landing on the floor. No one was hurt.

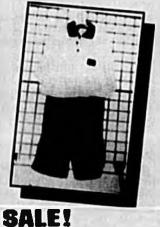

Deputies determined the shot came from an adjoining living unit occupied by three young men. The gun reportedly discharged while the three men were playing with it, but it could not be determined which man fired the shot, sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough said. No charges were filed in connection with the shooting.

'During the investigation, one of the men, Bill Cline, became extremely abusive to the deputy sheriffs," McDonough continued. "He cursed at them and tried to leave as the deputies were questioning him. Cline began punching and kicking the deputies." The suspect was eventually restrained and arrested. Cline is being held on $2,000 bond at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. The other two occupants of the apartment were arrested for disorderly conduct.

School schedule bears watching

If, with only a brief advance notice, all Americans were required to drive on the left rather than right side of our streets and highways, it would surely bring about a great deal of disruption. Everything we have done in the past would require rearranging, including placing steering columns on the left rather than right sides of our vehicles.

It may be a rather rough comparison, but the change from school terms which have been in effect for over 100 years to the year-round concept, may have left many families with a considerable amount of difficulties. Vacation times had to be rearranged, the constant enrollings for intersession classes, and transporation to and from day nurseries all caused changes in the day's normal schedule of events for many people.

Some parents, (not all) have now become accustomed to the track system for year round schools. There may still be some extra planning required, but they have learned to live with it.

It has been especially difficult however, for parents of more than one child, who may have been in different schools, and involved in different schedules.

Johnnie was out of school for three week time periods every six weeks while Sallie, who is in high school, was only out during the summer months. When do we take that vacation to the mountains in North Carolina?

Now the school board is looking into a compromise calendar between the modified school calendar and traditional calendar.

Parents are already showing concerns that this might produce even more difficulties. Few can blame them for feeling this way, after they have gone through adjusting to what has transpired for the past four to five

On the other side of the coin, there is a matter of overcrowding. There just aren't enough classrooms or space to hold all of the students if we went back to the old school schedule. There isn't enough money to build more schools.

In response, people question why an increase in the number of school-age children wasn't predicted in advance, in order to provide for additional classrooms. They look at that multi-million dollar new school board facility being constructed on the Lake Mary Boulevard Extension, and question where that money came from if there isn't enough to even provide ordinary supplies such as paper and pencils.

Yes, there are a great many questions. But that is as it should be. After all, parents have concerns, for their children as well as themselves. They are also concerned about the use of their tax money in providing adequate schools and supplies.

If and when the school board study comes up with a new calendar plan, we hope it will take all points and all public input into consideration. If people want more schools and more supplies, they will have to be willing to foot the bill through taxes. If they do so however, the school board will have to be willing to spend the money in the most productive manner, one that will be of benefit

What school term will parents and children be faced with next? Will it require another massive adjustment? It will bear watching.

This is the real trouble with China

Last year, when President Clinton broke his campaign promise and granted China "most favored nation" trade status despite its atrocious record on human rights, we were assured that increasing our economic ties with China offered the best hope of liberalizing the Communist regime politically. At a minimum, the move was sure to please the Communists themselves, so brighter days seemed ahead.

Just one year later, it is agreed on all sides that U.S. relations with the People's Republic of China have hit a new low. China continues to export goods made with prison labor; it is still selling nuclear technology and missiles to highly dangerous regimes in the Middle East; it has established a physical presence in the Spratly Islands, which it claims (for the oil they are thought to contain) although they are far closer to the Philippines; and it has arrested and Imprisoned an American citizen. Harry Wu, on trumped-up charges of spying

Far worse, it is proceeding with a massive arms buildup that has no conceivable justification in terms of any military threat to China, and can only be explained as preparation for a policy of aggression against its neighbors. As if to confirm that threat, last month it demonstrated its displeasure at the visit of Taiwan's president.

Lee Teng-hul, to the United States by "testfiring" half a dozen missiles into the East China Sea just 85 miles north of Talwan.

At just this point, former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger rises to be heard. Now, Henry Kissinger is an astute and articulate man. and deserves our attention. But he does not necessarily deserve our assent least of all on the subject of China.

Secretary Kissinger and his boss President Nixon were two of the most accomplished Machiavellians ever to direct the foreign policy of the United States. By "Machiavellians." mean only that their little or no reference to the impulse to that so often confounds "pragmatic" analysis. In a typically Machiavellian stroke, they lured the People's Republic of China away from its old Communist ally, the Soviet Union, at the height of the Cold War.

As a result, Richard Nixon until the end of his life, and Henry Kiasinger to this day, have understandably regarded the care and feeding of U.S. policy toward the Beijing regime as perhaps their chief concern. So it is no surprise that Mr. Kissinger, in newspaper articles and before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, now seeks to protect the old relationship. Scarrely a word does he utter about the Chinese provocations mentioned above. According to Mr. Kissinger, the Chinese leaders fear that the United States has adopted "a strategy designed to contain China." Warning that such a strategy is a "pipe dream," he calls for a new "political dialogue" with the Communist regime. characterized by mutual restraint.

But luckily its day is ending. The people of China cannot long be denied the right to participate in the era of political and economic freedom that is now dawning all over the globe. When it dawns on China, and only then, will that great country take its rightful place as an influence for peace and stability in the world.

Looking warily to the future

WASHINGTON — The young woman, whose country of Liberia, from which she emigrated at age 7 after a coup put her father, a Monrovia smile somehow gave the conflicting impressions of wanting to stand out and longing to disappear, reminded me of the fear.

So did a recent sermon, in which the minister asked listeners to hark back to when they graduated from high school. Think back to when the world seemed to be a place of infinite possibility, he suggested. To when you knew you'd find the thrilling career, the loving mate, the totally satisfying life of your dreams.

I tried. But my dominant memory of being 18, of grabbing at my high school diploma and an uncertain future, is of terror - though I never mentioned it.

Suddenly, I realized, I was an adult. Soon I'd board a train bound for a unfamiliar state to attend college. I'd receive a schedule of classes no one would make me attend, meet scores of strangers and nightly come home to myself and an unknown girl who was to be my

I'd test the doubtful notion that, just maybe, I had some writing talent. I'd learn whether I was crazy to study journalism - an industry that experts said was glutted with naive would-be world-changers who'd never find

I recall that time whenever I meet teens like Miatta David, a 1995 graduate of Kennedy High School in Silver Spring, Md., who'll attend New York University this fall. Two months ago, she approached me after I addressed a "women and careers" panel at her school. Exuding both brash confidence and abject terror at daring to take up my time. Miatta made me wonder:

is the world as ominous to you as it was to me two decades ago?

Mlatta, who just completed an internship at Emerge magazine, appears to have it together. Yet when I asked what she plans to major in, her face crumpled.

"I was going to study journalism, but everybody keeps telling me not to. ... I have this dream to change the world. ... But it's the rest of my life, and I don't know what I want to Shades of the '70s. Ask Miatta if she's often scared, and she shoots you an incredulous 'Yes!" Ask. "Of what?" and she recites:

"Life. How I'll deal with men. Living in New York," where she's been told, "if you're just out of high school and don't have strong enough morals, people will mold you into what they think you should be. ... I wonder if I'm strong enough."

Her number one fear? "Of not being happy," she says. "So many people just aren't. ... Every star I see, I wish on for happiness."

Like many people, she sometimes wonders if she's weird. She feels her perspective was shaped by having been born in the African politician, in danger.

She says her sister, who's 15, grew up almost entirely in metropolitan Washington and is "more American. ... Slie's into having fun, looking good ... watching TV all day. ... The American mentality is so caught up in materiality, glamour. ... In Liberia, school was

For Mlatta, life feels complex. The hoplessness she reads on some people's faces, hears about on the news, gets to her. Sometimes, she says, "I'll Just cry. ... I feel like the world is coming to an end. ... You see people dying left and right, hurricanes, droughts. ...

But she's also optimistic. Miatta wants so much that refutes people's sterectypes of flighty, out-of-control teens. She craves marriage and family because "I like the idea of settling down. ...

People say that's not the '90s way.... I hate to admit it, but I'm very traditional."

But my dominant

being 18, of grabbing at my diploma and an

is of terror.

She longs for a greater appreciation of her homeland, by Americans and Africans themselves. "I see how (Nelson) Mandela transformed South Africa, but there's still so much to do. ... I could help do that. ... If (all Africans) ever started working together ... learned to use all their resources, they wouldn't be the 'Third World.'

Talk to Miatta, maybe to most young people. and you'll be struck by how little some things change. By how in life, fear is a given, and the measure of anyone, be they 19, 35 or 70, is in how they cope with that inevitability. I want to tell her that all she wants is within her grasp. But then she shows me she already knows.

"When bad things happen. I laugh and say, "That's another chapter in my book," she says. "I hear Oprah talking about her youth. how she was stupid, and I wish I was wise already. I don't want to go through all that." She pauses.

"It'll be a long hard road. But then I'm going to be OK.

TV violence bill clears Senate panel

By JEANNINE AVERSA Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - For parents who can't supervise everything their children watch, a Senate bill would prohibit violent TV shows at times when young people are likely to be tuning in.

The Senate Commerce Committee on Thursday voted 16-1 to send the bill to the full Senate.

The House and Senate have approved plans designed to keep violent shows away from children. Both plans require television set makers to install a built-in chip that recognizes violence, sex and other content. Parents and others could block such programs from their TV sets, using a remote control device.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., a Republican presidential contender, repeated his opposition to those plans on Thursday as he called upon President Clinton not to carry out a veto threat against telecommunications legislation.

The bill the Commerce Committee approved Thursday. written by its ranking Democrat. Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina, would require broad-

The House Commerce Committee has not acted on a similar plan. Hollings' bill is opposed by the television industry, but supported by parent groups.

President Clinton on Thursday publicly praised Jordan's King Hussein for granting the defectors asylum and said he had personally assured the king the United States would come to Jordan's defense if Iraq threatened military retaliation.

At the Pentagon, spokesman Ken Bacon said an Iraqi military move against neighboring Jordan appeared unlikely, but that whatever Iraq's response, the 20,000 U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf region were "highly ready and highly mobile." Iraqi president and are members of a tribal faction that has been at odds with Saddam in the past over issues involving money, power and foreign policy, said Kenneth Katzman, a specialist in Iraqi affairs at the Congressional Research Service.

The Kamels were important figures.

Maj. Gen. Hussein Kamel al-Majid was fired Wednesday as industry minister; he had been head of Iraq's weapons programs. He was known to have differed with Saddam over U.N. sanctions

He was accompanied by his brother Saddam Kamel, a colonel in the missile forces.

At a White House news conference, Clinton said he interpreted the defections as a vindication of the U.S. stance on keeping U.N. economic sanctions against Iraq.

"I think what these defections demonstrate is just how difficult things are within Iraq now and how out of touch Saddam Hussein has become with reality, how difficult things are for his people," the president said. The United States and its allies fought the Gulf War in 1991 to reverse Iraq's occupation of neighboring Kuwait, and since then, the United States has sought to motivate Saddam's closest military officers to revolt. Clinton has held off Russia and other U.S. allies in maintaining economic sanctions designed to wreck the fraqi

So it was no surprise that administration officials were quick to interpret the defections as a sign of further weakening of Saddam's grip on Katzman, however, said he strongly doubted the defections suggested an intention to try to overthrow Saddam, or even that they represented more than a temporary rift rooted in a dispute over money and the degree of Iraqi compliance with U.N. resolutions imposed after the 1991 war.

"This is basically a family squabble," the congressional researcher said. "In my view, there are not broader implications."

Michael Eisenstadt, a Middle East expert at the Washington Institute for Near East Policy, said he, too, believed it was too early to draw hard conclusions, except that the defections showed "increased distress" among the Iraqi elite.

Pentagon spokesman Bacon said U.S. intelligence had picked up indications of "some preparations" by Iraqi Republican Guard military units in their garrisons, but concluded, "These do no seem to be threatening at this time." He said some tanks or artillery had been moved out of sheds but "haven't gone anywhere."

It was too early to know what these preparatory moves might mean, he said.

"They might just be preparing to repaint a couple of howitzers or something. I don't know." Bacon said.

The 20,000 U.S. troops in the region include sailors and naval aviators aboard 19 warships, including the USS Abraham Lincoln carrier battle group, Bacon said. A large number of Air Force warplanes also are on standby there.

In what Bacon said was strictly a coincidence, about 2.000 U.S. Marines are on their way to the Red Sea waters off Jordan for a training exercise with Jordanian forces that is scheduled to begin Monday and last through the end of the month.

The Marines are members of the 11th Marine Expeditionary Unit, which has been deployed in the Indian Ocean and Arabian Sea. They are aboard four amphibious assault the USS New Orleans, a helicopter landing ship.

After soul-searching, 'Jane Roe' joins anti-abortion forces

By STEFARI &. KOPENEC Associated Press Writer

DALLAS - After months of soul-searching, the woman responsible for the Roe vs. Wade decision to legalize abortion has quit her job at a women's clinic and joined forces with a leading anti-abortion group.

Although Norma McCorvey still supports abortion in some cases, she now has regrets about being the "Jane Roe" in the historic 1973 decision by the U.S. Supreme Court. "We've had two generations of women — well, almost three generations now - of women who have grown up with Roe vs. Wade," she said Thursday. "They have literally been handed the right to slaughter their own children."

McCorvey was baptized Tuesday night by the Rev. Philip "Flip" Benham, the fundamentalist preacher who leads Operation Rescue. They had become friends in recent months.

She said in an interview that she still believes "a woman has a right to have an abortion, a safe and legal abortion, in the first trimester."

"I will not support a woman's right to choose a safe and legal abortion in the second trimester," she said. Secondtrimester abortions are legal, although third-trimester abortions have been outlawed in some states.

McCorvey resigned Saturday as marketing director at A Choice For Women, a Dallas clinic that has been a frequent target of anti-abortion demonstrations. She is now a filing clerk for Operation Rescue, but said she would not participate in its demonstrations.

'Jesus Christ has reached through the abortion mill wall and touched the heart of Norma McCorvey," Benham said.

McCorvey said she was not pressured into her gradual change of heart.

"I didn't get up this morning and say, 'Oh, well I'm Just going to be pro-life today and not be Jane Roe anymore. I've been thinking about this for months now," she said.

She had become increasingly diseatisfied with what she felt was an undue emphasis on abortion at the clinic where she that she felt she had been used by abortion rights groups. By the same token, she said she will not allow herself to be used by the anti-abortion movement.

"There will not be any exploitation of my political status," she said Thuraday on "Nightline." "I've already been exploited enough to last a lifetime.

Clinic officials did not return telephone calls seeking comment.

Feminist lawyer Gloria Allred. who has represented McCorvey in the past, said the abortion rights movement did treat Mc-Corvey poorly, often excluding her from speaking events. She would not elaborate on why.

Operation Rescue moved lisnational headquarters March 31 into an office adjoining the abortion clinic where McCorvey worked. At the time, McCorvey said she was "horrified" and concerned about possible violence.

In recent months, Benham and McCorvey became friends.

In her 1994 book, "I Am Roe: My Life, Roe v. Wade, and Freedom of Choice," McCorvey chronicles how her life changed forever when she agreed in 1970 to become the plaintiff in a mind," she said.

worked. She also told ABC News lawsuit seeking to overturn Texas' anti-abortion statute.

She was a 21-year-old carnival barker when she got pregnant for the third time, after a casual affair. The Supreme Court decision came too late for her. however, and she put the infant up for adoption.

Her autobiography also reveals she is a lesbian and details much of her difficult life, including years spent in reform school, being raped while a teen-ager and a marriage at 16 that ended soon after, while she was pregnant. She talks of periods when she sold drugs for a living. tended bar in gay hangouts and worked in a carnival.

Sarah Weddington, who successfully argued Roe Vs. Wade before the nation's highest court. was sorry to hear of McCorvey's change of heart. But she pre-dicted it would have little effect on the abortion debate or the mood in the Republican-led Congress to reverse some of the gains of the abortion rights

"The truth is what really matters is what the judges on the Supreme Court think, what people in elected office think and what average citizens think -and I don't think this news about Jane Roe will change one HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. - It's been quite a year for Longwood baseball.

Chris Westervelt went 4-for-4, scored four times and added 4 RBI Wednesday evening to help pace the Longwood All-Stars' 14-0 victory over the Georgia All-Stars from North Columbus in the championship game of the Babe Ruth Baseball Prep Southeast Regional Tournament.

Longwood (which outscored its four opponents 44-10 in the tournament) will now come home for a week and then return to North Carolina, this time in Kingston, to face a team from Taylor, Indiana in the first round of the Prep World Series on August 20.

This will be the first appearance ever for a Longwood Babe Ruth team in a World Series and comes on the heals of Lyman High School's 6A state baseball championship and the Major's second straight state championship.

The victory was a redemption of sorts for the Longwood team as last year, as 12 year olds, these players suffered a doubleheader loss on the final day to miss out on going to the Major Division World Series.

10 point first half effort by Dong Hughes as the Young Guns took the lead.

Hughes kept on scoring in the second half, adding 11 more to his total for a night's best 21 points. But it was not enough as Mackey netted eight points and Waldo and Sylvester Wack six points each to keep Sanford A.A.U. at buy. Mackey trailed Waldo in the winners' scoring

(which suffered its first loss of the tournament 5-1 to Longwood on Tuesday) to come out fired up," Westervelt said. "Georgia was down, and I don't think they felt they could beat us twice. We just jumped on them early and we just kept rolling." Longwood loaded the bases with none out in the fourth inning as Graves singled, Melillo walked and Hawarah singled. After an out, Westervelt's single scored Melillo, and Rosado's two out single scored Hawarah and Westervelt. After DiFonzo walked, Mathew Main singled to score Rosado and DiFonzo. Hawarah, Westervelt and Mike Kalin each singled and scored in the fifth inning. Westervelt's single drove in Hawarah, J.T. Williamson singled to score Kalin, and Rosado collected a base hit to plate Westervelt.

"I feel our offense is tremendous," Westervelt said. "We can hit with anyone. Our pitching is as good as anybody's. I feel we have a very good shot at it."

Buying a new car

Examine options before making a deal

one of the most expensive purchases many consumers make - second only to the purchase of a home. For that reason, consumers are urged to think about their needs and examine their options carefully before negotiating a deal on a new car or truck.

First, examine your budget and determine how much you can afford to spend. Most people must finance the cost of a new vehicle. The monthly payment is affected by the amount of the down payment, the length of the loan period, and the interest rate. Although the monthly payments will be lower if you choose a longer loan period, the additional interest payments can add considerably to the total cost. You can save money in overall interest charges by making a higher down payment libraries. financial institutions and choosing a shorter loan and insurance agencies - to

Age no obstacle for Abby

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column for 50 years. I love you and your sister and have learned a lot from you.

I'm 81 years old, and I happen to know you are both closer to my age. I'm curious: Are you still writing your answers or is someone else writing them for

I don't see how you could still be doing it. Most of my friends my age are in wheelchairs or remain silent. This is not some using walkers or canes. That's petty piece of gossip. Neither you normal at our ages, since we are nor your son is doing anyone at the end of the line.

I read the death notices every night to see who has just died. and the majority of the notices show people 10 years younger have told me. than I am. I guess I'm lucky.

JANE IN BLOOMFIELD

HILLS, MICH. DEAR JANE: You say you've been reading my column for 50 years? That's quite remarkable since I've been writing it for only

Also, congratulations on reaching 81. My twin sister and I were born in 1918, but we don't count our years; we count our

P.S. Both Epple and I write our own columns, and we wouldn't have it any other way.

DEAR ABBY: My 17-year-old son (I'll call him Bill) has a friend at school who confides in him. "Meg" is 15, and has been sneaking out of her parents' house in the middle of the night to have sex with several different older boys. Her parents don't have a clue about this. Meg uses no birth control or protection for herself or her partners.

I want to alert her parents, but Bill has sworn me to secrecy. Meg was recently tested for syphilis and pregnancy, and while waiting for the results, she continued to sneak out and have sex with different boys. (She said if she got pregnant, she wouldn't know who the father is.)

I can't tell Meg's parents without getting my son in trou-

CONCERNED AND FEARFUL DEAR CONCERNED: If yur child were behaving promiscuously, wouldn't you want to be told? Explain to Bill that because health and possibly lives are at stake you cannot any favora by withholding this information from those who can

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have brunch with a couple we are very fond of. We pay one week and they pay the next. They drink and we do not. The brunch bill for the four of us is usually around $50. But their bar bill is between $30 and $40.

I don't think it's fair that we should have to pay for their drinks, but when we suggested separate checks, they were insulted and said, "No way."

They don't seem to realize what the problem is, and we can't tell them or they would think we were cheap - which we are not. We have partially resolved the problem by cutting down on the number of times we brunch together. But now they seem hurt that we don't see them every Sunday like we used is there a solution other than telling them the truth? ABSTEMIOUS IN ARIZONA DEAR ABSTEMIOUS: Yes.

Ask for separate bar bills.

Al-Anon may help teen find strength

I'm 15 years old and I feel like an old lady. My dad used to get drunk every weekend and beat my mom up, and scare us kids to death. I wanted to help my mom but if I tried, he'd slam me against a wall and then hurt her worse. He split about three years ago and we haven't seen him since.

At first I was really glad because I hated him so much. I've tried to help my mom with the younger kids and do everything I could to make her life easier, but now she's drinking more and more and everything is still lousy. My younger brother (12 years old) has gotten caught drinking beer and doing other stupid stuff to get in trouble.

To tell the truth, sometimes I'd like to take a drink to see if it would make me feel more relaxed. I'm afraid I won't have the willpower to stay away from it if things don't lighten up. Please tell me how I can get past this and get some rellef before I crack!

TRYING TO BE STRONG DEAR TRYING: I can't give you strength but I can tell you're fighting the uphill battle faced by most children of alcoholics. Some research indicates that as many as 80 percent of children of alcoholics have problems with alcohol sometime during their lives. To beat those odds you must keep your courage and determination as well as finding support for yourself. It sounds like you are filling the role of the "hero" in your family - trying to compensate for other family-members' shortcomings and putting impossibly high expectations on yourself. While this defense is helpful to you in several ways, it also puts too much pressure on you. You've already got to deal with your feelings of anger and confusion over the problems in your family. Add self-imposed stress might push you toward chemical use to relieve your tension.

Find an Al-Anon program that will give you support and comfort. Deal with your anger by recognizing that alcoholism is a physical disease rather than a moral weakness and find some healthy ways to bring some joy and recreation into your life. Finally, find an adult you can trust whom you can talk to about your problems. Good luck to you.

Inmates share pros of jail ministry Letters express praise for the Bible program

Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - No one knows better than the Seminole County inmates at John E. Polk Correctional Facility the value of the jail ministry. Over 20 letters were received in our office praising the positive effects of the program.

Sanford Herald would like to share some of those letters with the public. The chaplains, Pittroff, Westmoreland and Cauthorn, Joanne Zapf and others deserve a round of applause for their unwaivering work with this group of people.

Keep in mind Nuture Cells are where inmates study the Bible and share their faith. D.P. Galliano wrote,"There are a good many of guys I have met that will never be a burden on society again due to these changes. (finding God and the jail ministry) instead they will lead productive lives with their families and not apart from them. They are and will be better fathers, husbands, brothers and sons for their families...! have been in a drug and alcohol treatment program that is all God-based. For without God I would have never come to the program not been able to make the changes I have. I have God to thank."

very close with God. My life completely changed. All the hate and anger and desires for drugs and the lust for things of the flesh were gone."

Stephen Hernandez said,"The programs basic teaching is God. We study God's word. Ever since I got in the program and ever be programs like this all around the world."

Elizabeth K. said," This program gave me some sturcture in my life through studying the Bible and learning the word and sharing with these ladies."

Other glowing testimonies herald the work of the Lord. since I had my encounter with Studying with prisoners can add Almighty God my life has not more to their lives than just "jail pate in the nuture cell I became been the same...There needs to house religion" as Zapf shared with readers in a previous arti-

Don C. wrote," Thank God for Good News Jail and Prison Ministries. They shve done a very important thing that Jesus said to do and that is to spread his word and to provide a way for a man or woman to seek and learn about the Gospel of Jesus

Baptists come together for worship

By SUSAN WENNER Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - First Baptist Church of Sanford, 519 Park Ave., will host a presentation titled, "God With Us." on Sunday. August 27 at 7 p.m. The membership shared that this is a worship experience for all scasons.

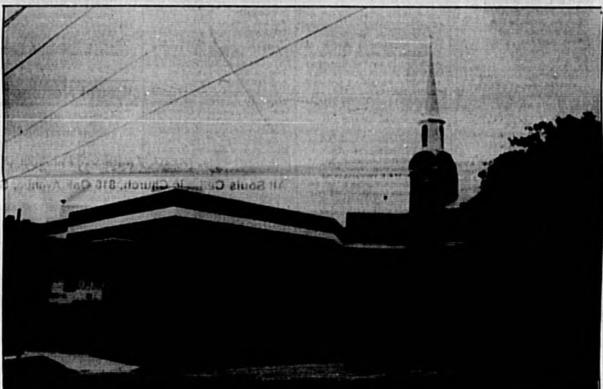

The event will be presented by First Baptist Senlando, Central Baptist of Sanford and First Baptist of Sanford.

The musical rendition will be held in the new sanctuary. The building is over 140 by 100 feet and the sanctuary will seat 810 proper procedure for stopping a severe nosebleed? I'm arthritic and wonder if the Voltaren I'm on might make my blood thinner and contribute to the nosebleeds. DEAR READER: Because most nosebleeds are caused by arterial bleeding in the nasal septum (the plate of cartilage that separates the nostrils), the best way to stop the bleeding is to pinch the nostrils firmly together. Some severe or recurring nosebleeds may require more aggressive therapy, such as nasal packing or cautery.

Common home-remedies, including application of ice or cold compresses to the forehead, are incliective treatments. Most minor nosebleeds will stop by themselves, irrespective of therпру Nosebleeds can be serious. however, in patients with high blood pressure or in those who have a coagulation deficiency. Such clotting problems can be caused by various medications, including Coumadin, aspirin and anti-inflammatory drugs, such as Voltaren, Motrin and others.

If you are taking Voltaren and have repeated nosebleeds, you may require packing or cautery - and you may have to discontinue your anti-arthritia medicine for a few days, substituting acetaminophen. Ask your family physician about this.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can HIV be transmitted through the mouth? Restated, if the virus gets into the mouth through sex or otherwise, will or can an infection occur? If so, what are the odds?

DEAR READER: HIV, human immunodeficiency virus, the cause of AIDS, can cause infection if it enters the bloodstream of a recipient. Thus, the virus can be a threat to anyone with a cut, abrasion or scratch, who has direct contact with the bloodor bodily fluids of an infected individual.

Such a method of transmission is exceedingly rare but, in theory, it could happen. HIV is almost always spread by contaminated blood transfusions, needles (in drug users) and unprotected sex. Nonetheless, if a person with a cut or abrasion in the mouth were to have oral sex with an infected partner, that person could become infected with HIV. Transmission of HIV by saliva is possible but so unusual as to be

We all know the famous line from "The Godfather" about making someone an offer he cannot refuse. In today's deal. South, like the bad guys in that movie, can make his opponent an offer it does him no good to refuse. What is that offer?

Declarer could see 10 tricks (two spades, six hearts, one diamond and one club), but how could he reach the dummy to cash the club king?

South fired off the heart eight at trick two, but West felt the hairs rise on the back of his neck. He won with the ace and dummy's Jack. However, after Roslyn Hts., NY 11577-0169. capturing the jack with his king. East switched to the diamond Jack. South took the finesse, but It lost. Back came a diamond. South banged out all his trumps, but East clung to his three remaining spades, leaving declarer with four losers: two spades, one heart and one diamond.

The kibitzer aimed in on the right play. At trick two, South should shoot the spade queen from his hand.

If East wins with the king. dummy's Jack becomes the entry to the club winner. And if East ducks, South cashes the spade ace, ruffs a spade in the dummy and collects the club

HOROSCOPI

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY Aug. 12, 1995

Favorable adjustments could be in the wind for you in the year ahead even if early indicators signal differently. Beginnings won't be as significant as endings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Although there might be indications of your material position improving, this will not be a time for extravagance. Save rather than splurge. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mall $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Allow yourself adequate time to think things through today. Impulsiveness could cloud your judgment and cause you to make inexcusable mistakes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Loose talk on your part today might cause you to disclose something that should be kept secret. Do not make revelations or betray the trust.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be firm today so that a presumptuous, reckless friend doesn't involve you financially in something you've tried to avoid. When you say no, mean it.

SACITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might not achieve an important objective today if you feel indifferently. Later, you may want to blame circumstances for your absence of motivation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. cards. 19) Keep the lesson you've thoughts today. An old error forgetful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try not to borrow anything of value from a friend today, but if you must, make certain you regard as a friend. This individreturn it in the condition you received it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Name dropping won't cut it with your listeners today. Resist bragging about big shots you pretend to know well, but in reality, know only casually.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Attend to duties and responsibilities promptly today. If you delay now, there is a good chance this could lead to a series of additional delays.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may be the one reaching extravagantly for the check today while your dinning companions fumble for their credit

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) For learned from a painful past the sake of expediency, you experience foremost in your might commit yourself to doing something today that you'll later might be repeated if you're regret. Rescind your pledge while there's still time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Watch what you say today in front of a person who you do not ual might distort your comments when repeating them to others. Copyright 1995 by NEA Inc.
