SANFORD - Plaintiffs in a federal lawsuit seeking their own representitives on the Seminole County Commission want to force the county to pay more attention to the needs of blacks and other minority residents.

"We've been wanting to do this for 10 years." Johnell Jackson, a plaintiff in the suit filed Wednesday in U.S. Middle District Court in Orlando, said this morning. "I'm hoping we can get someone on the commission and move forward with getting some improvements accompliahed."

The sult against the county was filed Wednesday by: Jackson, a Midway community leader: Sanford City Commissioner Bob Thomas: Sanford minister Amos Jones: Sanford resident Willie King: and Hispanic leader Ed Martinez of Winter Springs.

The suit seeks to increase the number of county commission districts from five to seven and to have commissioners elected solely from within their districts instead of the present county-wide DIRC85

Jones, a black, lost a primary bld to Art Davis, a white in 1988. In 1984, two blacks, Sam Black and Alfred DeLattibeaudiere, faced each other in the Democratic county commission primary, Black, who won, lost to incumbent Bill Kirchhoff, who is white.

The county had not been served with the suit by this morning, said county legal supervisor Roger Voigt.

The sult against the county follows several failed efforts during the past several years to have county commissioners, even consider placing the question of single-member districts before the voters. A petition drive to place the issue on the 1988 ballot failed and commissioners refused to place the issue in their proposed charter, which was approved by voters that year.

Former county commission chairman Fred Streetman refused requests last year by the Seminole County Democratic Executive Com-mittee and local chapter of the Florida Hispanic American Voters League to have commissioners discuss the issue. Streetman suggested the topic could be discussed next year by a charter update committee.

Current commission chairman Bob Sturm said he believes commissioners were right not to take up the issue.

'It gives an option for one person to have too much power," Sturm said this morning. "It leads to old fashioned ward politics. I think the facts will support the county's position. Whites will vote for blacks. It happens all across the country."

To that arguement, Martinez said many minorities elected from predominately white communities are tokens.

"It's pure tokenism to minimalize political Des Suit, Page 5A

LAKE MARY - A request for $25,000 in matching money from the Greater Lake Mary/Heathrow Chamber of Commerce, never made it into the 1992/93 Lake Mary budget. The request was dropped by the City Commission during the first budget hearing last night. During a Commission budget meeting on Aug. 27.

Chamber President John Siegel requested the City to "...consider a commitment for a matching grant of $25,000 over a two-year period." He had asked for the money as part of a grant which would be matched by the Chamber, and withdrawn with Commission approval, in small amounts, as neaded."

Bigst had said. "There is not enough money for us to do things that need accomplishing." He added, "We are the only Chamber in Central Florida that does not have any financial support from its City. yet the Chamber does a great deal of work for the benefit of the City."

Last night, Deputy Mayor Paul Tremel read a letter received from Craig Spearman, chairman of the City's Business Advisory Board. "The Chamber does great things in helping attract employers into the City," he wrote, "and the development of their Bee Chamber, Page 5A

Special session totaled $1.1 million

TALLAHASSEE - Lawmakers' critics call it a waste but others say $1.1 million is a small price to pay for this year's special legislative sessions.

That's the cost of more than two months of work done after this year's regular two-month session concluded in March, said a legislative report released earlier this week. "I think these sessions were basically a waste of money," said Jon Shebel, president of Associated Industries of Florida. "It seems like in a special session, the longer it goes on, the more disorganized it gets and the more potential there is to do damage to some segment of the citizenry." But Linda McMullen, veteran government analyst and lobbyist, said $1.1 million was a bargain price for effective government.

"I don't think $1.1 million is a lot of money — not to fix the problems Florida has," McMullen said, "Florida is the fourth largest state, and 60 days is an abysmally short amount of time to deal with the state's problems."

The report said the lawmakers spent an average of $22,516 a day in a monthlong June special session on the budget and other unfinished business.

At that rate, for every two days they met, the lawmakers could have spent the money to pay the salary and benefits of a schoolteacher instead.

A 30-day reapportionment session in April and May wasn't as costly, averaging $6.591 a day.

Court urged to reveal prostitute's clients

TALLAHASSEE - Media lawyers told the state Supreme Court on Thursday that potential embarrassment doesn't Justify keeping secret the names of clients of convicted Broward County prostitute Kathy Willets.

Willets was convicted of engaging in prostitution, sometimes while her sheriff's deputy husband. Jeff, videotaped the encounters from a closet in their Tamarac home.

The Willetses were sentenced in February in a case that drew national attention. Legal arguments continue over whether the clients' rights of privacy outweigh the public's right to know their names.

When disclosure harms someone's reputation or could injure a third party, attorney Richard Rosenbaum of Fort Lauderdale argued, "There is a right for someone to keep things quiet." Rosenbaum represents Willets clients identified in court papers as "John Doe, et al.," who have kept up a running legal battle against publication of their names.

"When you're looking for access to public records, the Legislature decides," argued news media attorney Sanford Bohrer of Miami. "These judges don't have the ability to amend public records law."

Firm to begin planning 10th university

TALLAHASSEE - A Board of Regents committee picked a company to come up with a master plan for the 10th university, to be built near Fort Myers, the state announced Thursday.

The university is expected to open in fall 1997 with about 1,500 to 2,000 students. Enrollment should meet a planned capacity of 9,500 by the end of the decade.

Over the next four months, Wallace Roberts & Todd, with offices in Coral Gables, will establish a map for the site and identify which regulatory agencies are involved.

During the following eight months the architectural and planning firm will develop a master plan to set the direction for facilities, academic programs, growth management, infrastruc-ture and transportation.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE Cleanup deadlier than storm

By LAURAN NEEROAAI Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — More people died after Hurricane Andrew swept through southern Florida than during the storm itself, federal health officials said Thursday in warning people to be careful during cleanup.

As of Thursday, the hurricane was blamed for 51 deaths in Florida, Louisiana and the Bahamas. Florida medical examincre said 15 deaths there were directly related to the storm, most in buildings collapsed by the storm, and 23 were indirectly related.

Many indirect deaths occurred when Floridians began cleaning up, the Centers for Disease Control said.

"There are all sorts of dangers out there lurking from debris." said Dr. Gib Parrish, an epidemiologist with the Atlanta-based

Secretary of Health and Human Services Louis Sullivan warned Floridians this week that the trauma of Andrew would be the area's biggest health problem.

"The psychological trauma that people go through in an incident like this begins to manifest itself a few days to two weeks after this." Sullivan said at a news conference in Miami on Wednesday.

Authorities couldn't say how many poststorm injuries were reported, but about 400 federal health workers are in southern Florida to help local doctors. So far, 21 of the area's 27 hospitals are open.

Hurricanes that hit the United States carlier this century claimed hundreds of lives because of poor weather forecasting and evacuation.

Law professors support Barkett Critics wage campaign to oust first female high court justice

By JACKIE MALLIPAX Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Criticisms made by opponents of Chief Justice Rosemary Barkett "flagrantly misrepresent" her record in an effort to remove her from the bench, a group of law professors say.

"If you're not a lawyer and you know nothing about Chief Justice Barkett except what you read in the opposition documents, you would have the impression of some kind of crazed out-in-left-field judge who's out doing her own thing." Steve Gey, a professor of con-stitutional law at Florida State University College of Law, told reporters Thursday. "If you look at the record she's compiled over the years she's been on the court, that is an outrageous impression to leave." be said.

Barkett, the first and only woman on the Florida Supreme Court, is one of four justices who has a merit-retention election this year. She however, is the coly nos targeted for defent. Her status as chief justice gives Bartiett no special authori-ty in deciding cases: the job is an administrative one that circulates among the justices every two years.

Although the seven justices on Florida's high court are appointed by the governor, they must win voter approval in the first election after being appointed and then every six years.

No justice has ever been removed through the meritretention process, despite a similar campaign against Justice merit-retention process.

Leander Shaw, the court's only black justice, in 1990. Critics, including two survivors of murder victims and anti-abortion leaders, have accused Barkett of being soft on crime and careless of protecting children and families.

Some 40 professors at all six of Florida's law schools signed a letter that said the opponents "flagrantly misrepresent the Chief Justice's judicial positions."

Some 9,000 cases have come to Florida's high court since Barkett joined it in 1985, according to Gey. But only a third have resulted in opinions.

'Of those 3,000 cases, Chief Justice Barkett has been in the majority almost 91 percent of the time," Gey and. "The exact number is 90.9 percent of the time.

"This is not someone who is going against the grain. This is someone who is quite literally dead in the mainstream of the Florida Supreme Court. which itself is a very conservative institution."

Barkett isn't isolated even if only the 19 cases highlighted by her opponents are considered. Gey mid.

'She dissented in only three of the 19 cases," he said. "Now what that means is that in 16 of the 19 cases at least a majority of the court agreed with her."

He also said it was odd that Barkett's opponents picked so many cases that she did not author, noting that she wrote opinions in only six of the 19 cases.

Gey said he was concerned that groups interested in single issues were politicizing the

Religious right: election success

By Associated Proce

ORLANDO - The religious right made a strong impact on Central Florida primary election races, including a victory in a congressional contest.

But Christian fundamentalists also suffered a major loss, with Volusia County State Attorney John Tanner going down to defcat.

Allogether, 22 of 27 can-didates backed by the grassroots network called Christian Coalition won their mees or made it into a runoff.

"There's no question we made a difference." said Tom Scott. Florida director of the movement founded during the 1988 presidential bid of Christian broadcaster Pat Robertson.

Operating from Orlando, the Florida chapter of the Christian Coalition has been tagged by Robertson as one of the strongest in the nation.

Membership is ill-defined, but the group can play a powerful political role, especially in primary and runoff elections which draw few voters.

The biggest victory was that of Republican Bill Tolley in the 15th Congressional District.

Republican state Rep. Dixle Sansom, who lost to Tolley, had harsh words for the Christian bloc. She was compared with Sen. Ted Kennedy in campaign fliers because of her pro-choice views on abortion.

"About a quarter of those who voted are from a far right. fanatical faction and once again (they) picked the candidate." Sansom said. "It's a very narrow, polarized group."

Among other victorics were two candidates in Lake County who soundly defeated incumbent members of the School Board.

Tanner's defeat was a surprise since he waged a "war on pornography" and considered conservative Christians his core of support.

Tanner attributed his loss to the "pro-pornography" vote and the media, who he said did not like his battles against X-rated videos and his death-row prayer sessions with serial killer Ted Bundy.

"I think an armchair could have beat me with the press behind it like that." Tanner said Wednesday after conceding to Republican primary opponent Steve Alexander.

Christian fundamentalists distribute "scorecards" to churches, listing candidates' positions on abortion, school prayer, homosexual rights and other issues.

Many voters were seen walking into polling places with a list of "preferred candidates" from the United Christians of Florida.

"I'm pro-life, and I'd like to make sure the candidates who are pro-life are elected," James Mullins, 26, of Orlando, said as he left the polls Tuesday. "I go by what the churches tell me, and I do a little research."

Signs of the end of primary elections held Tuesday were spotted in area trash bins this week. Maryann Morse won her bid to retain the position of Clerk of Circuit Court. John Tracy, a county commission hopeful, did not.

The location of a burglary, investigated by the Sanford police department, published in Wednesday's Sanford Heraid, was incorrectly identified. Police said an estimated $1,761 in property was reported stolen from "Don Oscar Corporation." The police report said the business was "located behind John's Small Engine Repair, 909 Third Street." The engine repair business and its address was not the location of the burglary. as indicated.

Beer company touts effort to put beer in TV videos

By DIANE DUSTON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - An Internal videotape by Miller Brewing Co. touts the company's success placing its beer in music videos "to penetrate the hard-to-reach young adult market."

Getting "the one-and-only Lite beer to star right along side top recording artists like the on-e-and-only Bruce Springsteen" is extolled as a way to reach "the all-important entry level drinker over and over and over again." "And that means MTV can mean Miller Television, provid-ing brand swareness to over 6.5 million adult males every day." says the video. "By placing Miller Brewing Co.'s products in today's music videos. Miller is able to penetrate the hard-toreach young adult market."

Miller officials any the tape was made in the mid-1980s for corporate use only, but a coalition of groups trying to prevent alcoholism, drunken driving and underage drinking says it reveals the company has been "aneaking" beer ads into other formate to encourage young people to drink. Under the leadership of Center for Science in the Public Interest, the groups announced Thursday that they had petitioned the Federal Trade Commission to halt these "product placement" ada.

Steve Gardner, a law professor and consumer advocate, speaking at a press conference, said such ads are harmful because "the consumer is never aware he or she is the recipient of a commercial pitch."

The Beer Institute reacted hamhly against the groups' efforts.

"A growing body of research has proven no relationship between alcohol advertising and abuse," it said. While beer advertising expenditures have increased about 50 percent in the past 20 years, per capita consumption has remained about the same, it said.

"Brewers are fighting to gain an edge in an incredibly competitive marketplace." the institute said

The Miller videotape listed 66 feature films that find showed its products. including "Beverly Hills Cop." "Cocoon." "Ghostbusiers." "Gremlins." "Mr. Mom." " Splash" and "The Journey of Natty Gann."

The tape says that by getting Hollywood to use Miller beers in films the company "has discovcrod an effective, new marketing tool ... that can make a major impact on sales, both today and well into the future."

EDITORIALS Ivan's case

Ever since John Demjanjuk, a retired Cleveland autoworker, was extradited by the United States and tried as a war criminal in Israel, there have been questions about whether he had in fact been ivan the Terrible, the sadistic executioner of Jews at the Nazis' Treblinka death camp.

Those questions concern not merely identifications made during the trial in Israel, where he was sentenced to death and is now appealing his sentence, but, more important, the U.S. government's apparent suppression of information in the extradition proceedings that took place in this country.

A federal appeals court in Ohio, agreeing that there is enough evidence to pursue those questions, has now appointed a special master to investigate. The master, Thomas A. Wiseman Jr., a federal judge in Nashville, Tenn., has broad authority to gather evidence from former federal prosecutors involved in the extradition case and from other sources about the Justice Department's conduct in the proceedings that led the government to strip him of his U.S. citizenship and extradite him to israel.

The court's decision is as correct as it is embarrassing to the government.

Demjanjuk's lawyers have contended for some time that the real Ivan the Terrible was a man named Ivan Marchenko, last seen alive in 1944, and that the U.S. government had evidence that Demjanjuk, while he was probably a guard in another death camp, was not the man known as Ivan the Terrible. That contention has been reinformeed by material obtained in recent years from newly accessi-ble KGB files in the former Soviet Union.

If the U.S. courts rule that the extradition was improper, the issue will probably go to a complex diplomatic process with Israel. where prosecutors argued that while Dem-janjuk might not have been lvan, he is almost surely guilty of participating in the murders of Jews at the other camp.

That may well be true; ironically, the effort by Demjanjuk's lawyers to prove his real identity seems to have generated evidence of his other alleged crimes. But the case in this country was based on the contention the Demjanjuk was really another man.

However odious Demjanjuk's past, the U.S. government, which has resisted the courts' move to reopen the case, thus has an obligation to work as vigorously to set the record straight as it did to extradite him. If there is evidence of other crimes. Demjanjuk would be prosecuted - here or in Israel provided he's prosecuted under the proper identity and on the proper charges.

If, as Disracli lamented, "There are three kinds of lies: lies, damned lies and statistics." we have become a nation of numbers-crunching arithmomanlacs.

We are so obsessed with public-opinion polls. numerical facts and educational statistics that we no longer control numbers. The numbers control us.

The recent release of Scholastic Aptitude Test scores by state, various roller-coaster changes in the polls and the president using numbers to tell unconscionable lies are causing a national plague of moral indigestion.

What can we believe anymore? Whom (and it's whom, not who, Mr. President) can we trust?

On Monday, Aug. 24, a big news story was four different polls from the previous weekend, three of which showed Bush closing in on Clinton: Newsweek, no points gained: CBS-New York Times, 10 points: Los Angeles Times, 15 points: and The Washington Post, 17 points. On Tuesday, Aug. 25, a USA Today headline drew the obvious conclusion from these four polls, declaring "Bush Closing Gap on Clinton." Not necessarily, demurred the next day's New York Times headline: "Bush Gains from Convention Nearly Evaporate in Latest Poll."

This begins to take on the Olympian hilarity of Abbott and Costelio's routine, "Who's on first?" Ask Michigan Rep. Guy Vander Jagt about organization's poll showed him leading his challenger. 47-24. Vander Jagt was defeated.

But if polls threaten to change "today's achieve-ments into tomorrow's confusion.' another exercise in psychometric con artistry, the annual release of SAT scores, is even more meaningless.

For years, SAT scores have been plummeting faster than Dan Quayle's ability to spell words with more than two syllables. But what happened this year? The national average of SAT verbal scores inched up one point, the math scores staggered up two points, and the College Board folks who control the SATs were so ecstatic, they fell into a mindless trance.

Increases of one or two points are monumen-tally insignificant because the SAT's standard error of measurement is 18 points. That means you can take the SAT 10 times, and your score might change 10 times, but your score would still fall within that range of 18 points.

Nonetheless, Donald Stewart, the College Board's president, Intoned with the majesty of Eliner Gantry announcing a formula for saving souls. "One or two points may not seem like much, but each point is meaningful on a test taken by more than a million students." Has this man no shame?

His shameless explanation doesn't agitate lolks in Oregon and New Hampshire — and for obvious reasons. They enjoy the highest SAT scores in the nation. But folks in the two Carolinas are disquieted, because their students scored the lowest of all the states.

Here again, SAT test scores have absolutely no relationship to a state's economic health or system of higher education. New Hampshire's economy is a basket case, and low SAT scores haven't prevented North Carolina from building a higher education system that is vastly superior to Oregon's and New Hampshire's, a fact well-known to the nation's college applicants.

And this leads to the ignominy of presidential numerical lies. We can forgive a lovably senescent Ronald Reagan for attributing a quote to Lincoln that Lincoln never said.

"When you say, 'your job has been SUR-PLUSED,' does that magn what I think it means?"

WASHINGTON — During this year's cam-aign, I will regularly examine the claims and ounterclaims being raised by both sides, and Five hundred and thirty-two and still countpaign, I will regularly examine the claims and counterclaims being raised by both sides, and try to bring forth the actual facts behind the charges. This time I will look at various points raised at the recently completed GOP Convention.

"There is a big difference between a candidate who raises taxes once and regrets it. and another who raised it 128 times and enjoyed it every time." - George Bush.

The Bush-Quayle opposition research operation has come out with what it claims is a listing of 128 times that Bill Clinton raised taxes in his 10 years as governor of Arkansas. The list employs criteria that would make the most creative accountant blush, and contains obvious errors that most grade school children would catch in a single reading.

There are duplications with the same "increase" listed more than once. One "increase" takes three typewritten lines to explain, and is therefore counted as three increases. The list calls every fee imposition, every excise tax extension, a tax increase

One example: Every state imposes motor fuel excise taxes. In Arkanass they are automatically renewable every two years. Bill Clinton spent 10 years as governor, thus there have been five renewals - five "tax increases" according to the GOP accounting.

Other examples - the lengthening of the dog-racing season is considered a tax increase because the longer racing season will increase the state's take of parimutuel taxes. The imposition of a $1 court cost fee against convicted criminal defendants is considered a tax increa

The Clinton camp has put out its own fact sheet. It says that by including 10 instances of increases that the Republican researchers did not even find, they calculate that as governor. Clinton has increased taxes and fees 42 times. But in the same period, they note, he has reduced taxes or cut fees on 47 occasions.

The Congressional Research Service anya that if you apply the same kind of accounting method that the GOP does to every tax and fee increase of the federal government during George Bush's four years as president, you could charge that Bush has "raised taxes" well more than 200 times. The "one" 1990 increase that the president now apologizes for, was actually 74 separate increases by GOP accounting methods.

"February 20, 1991 ... I introduced a new domestic energy strategy, which would cut our dependence on foreign oil by 7 million barrels ing." - George Bush.

The president's original proposal sought to decrease foreign oil dependence only by encouraging increased domestic production by measures such as opening environmentally fragile areas like the Outer Continental Shelf and the Alaskan wilderness to exploration, and by lowering taxes on domestic producers. It also included measures to make the licensing of nuclear power plants and natural gas pipelines ensier

Earlier this year both the House and Senate passed more comprehensive bills. including much of what the president asked for, but also including strict environmental safeguards, and adding measures mandating greater conservation of energy through higher required auto fuel economy standards and higher gas taxes, as well as various incentives to promote the use of alternative fuels.

The Benate and the House have not been able to iron out differences in their two bills because the president has threatened to veto any bill including mandatory conservation measures or new environmental controls. Currently there is a standoff between the White House and the Hill.

'The Democratic nominee calls America 'the mockery of the world."" - Dan Quayle.

Not quite. The vice president's office cites a July 23 speech Clinton gave in St. Louis. An examination of the speech text shows that what Clinton exactly said was "the Bush administration's economic program has made America the mockery of the world."

insuca.

At the center of the political storm is FEMA Director Wallace E. Stickney, a political protege of former White House Chief of Staff John Summu, who has been singled out for stinging criticism by congressional in-vestigators. Even the agency's inspector general says there are several investigations in progress.

Hugo and the Loma Prieta carthquake.

Not only does FEMA have a disproportionate number of political appointees relative to other federal agencies, but the findings indicate that the high number of political appointees has adversely impacted FEMA." according to a preliminary Senate Appropria-Hons Committee report.

Stickney's response was to tell a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee hearing this summer that he had come to know "some of the most mean-spirited people I had met in my life" when he arrived at the agency. FEMA's civil war created the biggest headlines over the disclosure that the agency's former executive director, Thomas R. McQuillian, had attempted to pressure a homosexual employee into providing officials with a list of homosexual employees, and for steering questionable consulting contracts to friends. The employee, Jerald Johnson, claimed that agency officials informed him that furnishing such a list was a precondition for participating in an international conference in the fall of 1991.

Stickney later defended the action on the grounds that security officials were concerned whether any employees concealed their sexual preference and were "vulnerable to coercion." FEMA insiders say that Stickney was more involved in the aborted blacklisting effort than he now claims.

Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., who is openly gay, described himself disgusted by the whole controversy and threatened to hold hearings. 'This is the silliest thing I've heard of from a federal agency in a long time," Frank said. Frank's threat of hearings caused Stickney to act.

"The list in question was destroyed in the presence of myself and other agency of-ficials," Stickney wrote Frank last May. 'Additionally. I am directing FEMA's General Counsel to review Mr. Johnson's personnel and accurity files in order to delete any unfavorable characterizations of, or inferences from, his refusal to provide the list."

Destroying the list hasn't erased the blemish that this and other boondoggies have done to impair FEMA's credibility and effectiveness.

Criteria that would make the most creative accourtant blush.

Single-member district proponents and opponents alike agree a minority-predominant district would be a meandering area that would extend from Midway, through Sanford Into Altamonte Springs then east to Oviedo and Jamestown. A similar thread was drawn on a statewide level to create congressional District 3.

Former City Commissioner Tom Mahoney spoke during the cilizen participation discussion. "I would suggest that rather than the three percent salary increase and the merit plan, you might consider establishing a cap for all pay increases, then allow the City Manager to give the merit increases as he sees fit. That would assure you of Improved employee performance, because they could be competing for the increases and work-ing harder." He added, "it would also give the City Manager a items specifically reduced from the operating budget since the original budget proposal included the following:

•$38,512 saved from the reduction of salaries from 5 to 3 percent •$15,000 saved due to a reduction in planned engineering services.

$1,000 cut from travel and training allowances. ● $653 reduced in City Manager car phone expenses.

•$5,000 saved from a reduction in firefighter uniform expenses.

•$11,509 saved from a lower rate obtained for health insurance increases.

A number of items however, added to the expenses in the budget. They include the following: •$5,000 added to the cost of public safety radio maintenance. •$20,037 added to handle the cost of staff upgrading beginning

Jan. 1. •$30,000 more for increases in landscaping at the new sports complex.

•$39,000 added to cover the cost for three police cars.

Tremel asked Lockridge if the budget would hold should the City decide to accept the rollback millage rate rather than the rate previously adopted by a four to one vote of the Commission.

"It would be possible," Lockridge said. "But in looking alread for five more years, it would reduce the amount of the ending fund balance that would be held for emergencies or carried over to the next year, to a very low point by 1996."

He added. "While we generally plan for at least a 15 percent carryover, the amount would drop to only 8.22 percent of the budget by 1996, but by then, we should have added revenue coming in, so, yes, it could be done.

Lockridge's charts estimated a carry-over of 13.45 percent in 1996. If the millage rate remains as planned and does not revert to the roll-back.

The Commission voted unanimously to accept the budget at last night's first hearing. "We can still make some changes if it's necessary when it comes back for second reading and final hearing." Tremel observed.

The millage rate was then brought under discussion. Commissioner David Mealor moved to approve the original rate of 3.8991. "I can't see going. with the roll-back rate," he said, "and put the burden of financing the City in the hands of some Commission in the future."

Commissioner A.R. "Doc" Jore seconded the motion.

"It doesn't look like we'll have a good ratio of funds by 1996." said Commissioner George Durvea, "but this Commission must tell the citizens that we understand their hard times and that we want to control taxes, so I'll vote in favor of the rollback."

"I'm in favor of the rollback rate too," Tremel said, "but with only four of us here, a two to two vote would kill it, so I'll vote in favor of the higher amount so we can vote again during the second reading in two weeks."

The higher rate passed on a three to one vote, with Duryea in opposition.

Under the 3.8991 millage rate. the owner of a home in Lake Mary valued at $100,000, with the $25,000 homestead exemption, would pay $292.43 in taxes next year. If the roll-back rate of 3.76477 is adopted, the same home owner would pay $282.36. 'it would be a difference in overall income of only about $61,000 for the entire City, Litton said.

The Commission is allowed to lower the millage rate during the second reading, but it would not be able to raise it, if a higher level is determined at a later time.

The second reading and public hearing on the budget and the millage rate is scheduled for the next City Commission meeting. Sept. 17.

Commenting on the denial this morning. Spearman said. "I think it's unfortunate that they didn't approve the request."

He added, "I think the work of the Chamber is necessary. It helps build the business tax base, which then reduces the amount of taxes the average citizen has to pay."

"But seeing as how the Com-mission turned down a similar request for financial help last year, I'm not surprised, but I think the citizens should know about this turn-down of support."

Social Security changes advocated

WASHINGTON - The Social Security program for low-income elderly, blind and disabled people needs overhauling to increase benefits and allow recipients to put more money in "nest egg" accounts, a federally-appointed panel concluded Thursday.

The SSI Modernization Project, appointed by Social Security Commissioner Gwendolyn S. King, also proposed incentives to encourage those receiving disability payments to eventually return to work.

The panel was charged with finding ways to upgrade the Supplemental Security Income Program, which was created 20 years ago to provide an income for blind, disabled and aged people. There were 5.5 million people on SSI rolls in 1992, up from 3.2 million in January 1974, when the first benefits were paid.

Clinton analyzes Bush hurricane effort

LITTLE ROCK - Bill Clinton suggests President Bush is making promises with the taxpayers' money to win re-election. but he's not opposing the president's proposals. Indeed, he's trying to take some of the credit.

Clinton in a speech to the AFL-CIO on Thursday said Bush was doing "flip-flops" and supporting a host of new items in the past few days, most of which would pour money into important electoral states .

After opposing the aircraft for years, Bush is supporting the V-22 Osprey, which means jobs in Texas and Pennsylvania. Vice President Dan Quayle announced in Michigan that "the administration had flip-flopped" and now supports production of more tanks made there.

U.S. pilots monitor Iraq

ABOARD THE USS INDEPENDENCE - U.S., British and French pilots have flown across southern Iraq for a week without being challenged by Saddam Hussein, and now are turning their attention to what's going on on the ground. Since last Thursday, when President Bush threatened to shoot down any Iraqi warplanes flying below the 32nd parallel. no flights have been reported over the zone by Saddam's estimated 150 operational combat aircraft - all the Iraqi president has left from a prewar fleet of some 700 jets.

Western officials claim that before Bush declared the no-fly zone, the Iraqis had been flying an average of 30 sorties a day against the dissident Shiites Bush wants to protect.

Air Cmdr. Bruce Latton, who oversees British planes patrolling the skies of southern Iraq, said Thursday that as the "no-fly" zone entered its second week, he expected the focus to shift from the skies to the ground.

Female Vietnam war vets reflect

WASHINGTON - Nine thousand women from the U.S. military went to Vietnam and one question still haunts many of them: What's the price to their health for having served their country?

And just as important. What's the price likely to be for other women in future conflicts?

The Department of Veterans Affairs took a step Thursday toward finding these answers by authorizing a study of reproductive histories among female Vietnam vets.

The available data shows cause for concern. Though their numbers were small, female Vietnam vets had twice the death rate from cancer of the pancreas and uterus as women in the imilitary who hada't acryed in Vietnam, one study found.

Unemployment rate declines

By DAVE SKIDMORE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The nation's un-employment rate dipped slightly in August to 7.6 percent, the second consecutive decline, but the improvement came from a special summer jobs program for teen-agers, the government said today.

and serves

The rate, which hit an eight-year high of 7.8 percent in June before declining to 7.7 percent in July, could well soar again in September with the expiration of the jobs program financed by Congress after the Los Angeles riots, analysts warned.

Labor Department officials estimate 75,000 youths found jobs under the pro-gram in July and 100,000 in August.

Meanwhile, a separate survey of employers' payrolls showed that even with the youth program, there were 83,000 fewer non-farm jobs overall, the worst decline in nine months.

In advance, economists were looking for an increase of around 150,000 jobs

The August decreases were concentrated in retail trade, down 71,000, and manufacturing, down 122,000, the steepest in 18 months.

Today's report was likely to become political fodder in the presidential election race, with President Bush focusing on the improvement in the rate and Democratic nominee Bill Clinton focusing on the second drop in payrolls in three months.

Payrolls had risen 177,000 in July and fallen 76,000 in June. Bush's re-election effort has been plagued with voter dissatisfaction with the virtually stagnant economy. Although the gross domestic product, the total of all goods and services produced in the United States, has been growing slowly for five consecutive quarters, the unemployment rate has continued to rise in most months.

The problem, according to economists, is that the torpid economy, although growing, is not generating enough jobs to accommodate new entrants into the labor force. such as college and high school graduates.

And many layoffs now are considered permanent staff reductions, rather than temporary responses to slow sales. Industries ranging from banking to defense contracting are coping with long-term de-cline. Manufacturers are striving to best overseas rivals who enjoy cheaper labor costs.

"America is being forced by powerful competitive pressures to get its act together. and that means cost-cutting, shedding jobs and efficiency," said economist Stephen S. Roach of Morgan Stanley & Co.

The summer youth employment program helped push the jobless rate for teen-agers down to 19.8 percent in August, from 21 percent in July and 23.6 percent in June.

However, the rate for adult men edged up to 7.3 percent last month from 7.2 percent in July. The rate for adult women held steady at 6.5 percent.

in May, the city council took direct legislative action - its members blocked the refugee home driveway with their bodies. Then they resigned. Residents locked their doors and turned off their lights.

Children were ordered to stay home. Robert Mukisa, a young Ugandan, took an occasional stroll down the winding country road outside the refugee home, a fericed-in barracks where East German soldiers once waited vainly to fire rockets at American planes.

2 Somali women describe misery leading to escape

EDITOR'S NOTE - Hawa Hirab and Hawa Ibrahim crossed together into Kenya, lured by the promise of food, shelter and peace. Their story brings home the tragedy of Somalia, a drama that the world thinks of in terms of tons of relief food delivered and delive death tolis. and daily death tolls.

WILLIAM C. MANN Associated Press Writer

ON THE SOMALIA-KENYA BORDER - Hawa Hirab has buried a husband and seven children in the last two years. After an armed gang took everything she had a year ago and her 6-year-old son starved in July.

Hirab gave up. Hirab, 40, took her four sur-viving children, two also on the verge of starvation, and began a desperate 12-day trek out of Somalia. She was joined by a 25-year-old friend. Hawa Ibrahim; also a widow, and her four children.

Ibrahim was left without casions in the same bandit raid that cost Hirab's family everything. The gunmen left a few animals, but soon they were gone too - some eaten, some starved.

The two wretched families crossed together into Kenya, lured by the promise of food. shelter and peace.

Nasir Fernandes, a Kenyan official in the office of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, said the women fled Somalia after hearing "by the jungle telegraph there was food here."

And that's how Hirab and Ibrahim became statistics in a drama the world thinks of in terms of tons of relief food delivered and daily death tolls. Even their arrival Tuesday was a statistic: 38 families, 156 ople - two of the lowest daily totals in months

What is happening in Somalia is largely the result of 21 years of misrule by dictator Mohammed Siad Barre and the anarchy that followed his ouster last January. But to the victims - people like Hirab and Ibrahim - it's too complex to understand.

Who is responsible? Ibrahim was asked, as she and Hirab stood beneath a leafless acacia tree on the safe side of a 330-foot-wide no-man's land between Kenya and Somalia.

Is it Siad Barre? The warlords who replaced him? "I don't know who brought this trouble." Ibrahim said. through Fernandes' translation. "I think God brought it."

Why would God do that? 'God knows,'' she said.

SAC football teams battle

By DEAN SENTH Herald Sports Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS - At this time of year every coach feels he has a good team, but until he sees his players in action there is always question marks. Tonight at Lake Brantley High School's Tom Story Field some of those questions will be answered as the six Seminole County varsity football team's square off in the Seminole Athletic Conference

Jamboree starting at 7 p.m. Each team will play one half, with Lake Howell taking on Lake Mary in the first session, Oviedo challenging Seminole in the second session and Lake Brantley battling Lyman in the final scalion

"We feel real good about the kids we've got and the work we've done so far," said new Lyman head coach Larry Baker. "But we've only seen us against our own people. The jamboree will give us a better idea of where we are right now." Oviedo's veteran head coach Jack Blanton had the same thoughts.

"I can't really tell how good or had we might be," said Blanton. "Only time will tell and tonight will be the first test."

While the Greyhounds have a new coach, they also have a lot of coach, they and have a lot of veteran players returning, including quarterback Todd Cleveland and two-way star Bobby Washington. Among the questions that will be answered tonight will be at the quarterback position, where only Cleveland and Lake Mary's Jason Recently and the Mary's Jason Resmussen are returning starters. The duo placed in the top four in the county in passing yardage a year ago. Defending 5A-District 4 and SAC champion Lake Brantley will go with baseball player Jeff Shaw. His appearance, along with using star defensive players J.D. Russell and Darryl Bush at split end and tight end, respectively, may prompt head coach Fred Almon to consider throwing the ball regularly this year. year.

Seminole will also have a diamond player at the offensive heim as Todd Biraden takes over. Braden is not the only offensive question mark for Tribe head coach Emory Blake as only three offensive starters return from last year. But one thing Blake will not worry about in his defense where seven regulars come back as well as several members of a junior varsity squad that was 7-0 last year.

Oviedo is planning on using Leon Lowman at quarterback, but he may not play tonight because he is still recovering from off-season knee heimingly asked Pay vincent to re the commissioner immediately rejected.

By an 18-9-1 vote, owners adopted a resolution stating they had no confidence in Vincent. who was elected to a 416-year term on Sept. 13, 1989.

Vincent, who sent the owners a letter saying he would never quit, affirmed his decision after the session. He did not attend, remaining in New York because he said its purpose was unlawful under the Major League Agreement. It says the commissioner's term can't be shortened and his power can't be diminished.

The four-hour special meeting, held near Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, unfolded calmly. New York Yankees managing general partner Joseph Molloy said Vincent's treatment of Yankees owner George Steinbrenner and pitcher Steve Howe were among issues discussed. The resolution also made references to labor and television negotiations and franchise stability.

Courier uses patience to whip Chesnokov

APTennis Writer

NEW YORK - Jim Courier idly and impassively strummed his racket strings in the sprinkling rain early in the day as Andrei Chesnokov begged the umpire to stop their second-round match.

Courier's patience — with the rain, with Chessokov, with his own mistakes in the match and his mild alump this summer - is a big reason he's No. 1 and in the third round of the Open after a 4-8, 6-3, 6-3, 6-1 victory. If Courier lacks the charisms of Jimmy

Connors, rarely showing emotions on or off the court, he certainly is thriving stoically as the modern, American version of Bjorn Borg. Courier, born in Sanford and now living in

Dade City, needed that attitude Thursday during the frustrating delays against the siways-dangerous Chesnokov, the 40th-ranked Russian who had beaten him in their five previous matches

After falling a set behind this time, Courier didn't worry or change his tactics. Instead, he pummeled the ball as hard as ever from the baseline, took his chances on occasion at the net. and, he said, "I won the last point, something I hadn't been able to do five times against Andrei.

"I played a little amarter today. I was a little more patient than I had been in our past meetings, and that was really the difference. I served smarter, and wasn't over-anxious out there.

As the drizzle began in the third game of the second set, one game apiece. Chesnokov slipped to lose a point on serve, complained to the umpire, alipped again to lose another point, and complained once more. "I asked, 'Please, can you come down and check how slippery it is here?"" Chesnokov said. "And he said, 'No, you can play.' I said, 'Believe me, it is impossible to play because I feel slippery. I slipped every time. It is hardcourt. It is not a clay court, where, OK, when rain is feit. I can play.

The umpire, Bultan Gangji of Great Britain. didn't budge.

"He was sitting on the chair like a stone, the heaviest one," Chesnokov said.

Courier, meanwhile, stayed back by the baseline and fiddled with his racket, waiting to pounce on the annoyed Chesnokov and break him. Which he did. From there, it was all one way - Courier's.

The umpire stopped the match for the first time after Courier held to 3-1, and when it resumed nearly an hour and a half later. Courier stayed ahead. A second rain delay of about half an hour, in the second game of the fourth set, didn't faze Courier, either. He came back at 30-40 to break Cheanokov right away, surged to a 5-0 jead, and closed out the match easily.

Courier couldn't explain why he is virtually unbeatable at times, and terribly vulnerable other times.

"I wish I knew," he said. "If I knew I'd never have bad matches. That is the world's biggest mystery for the tennis players — why some days you have it and some days you don't. But that is what we keep striving and searching for. Sometimes you get that confident foeling, and that carries into the match. And I feel pretty confident right now."

Giants move to St. Pete Shinn still trying to stop

By Addies at. Perturber Associated Press Writer

BAN FRANCISCO - While his deal may never be considered by baseball owners, Charlotte Hornets owner George Shinn worked with potential investors in Ban Francisco to hammer out a counter-offer that would keep the Gianta from moving to Florida The NBA owner arrived in San rancieco on Thursday to talk with scal investors, including developer Walter Shorenatein and Safeway chairman Peter Magowan, and attorneys on both sides. The discussion lasted well into the night. Mayor Frank Jordan asid at 9 p.m. Thursday that the meetings would continue today. He said there was no immediate announcement because Shinn was late in arriving and "the battery of attorneys that are there for both sides also are asking many, many questions."

Shinn was reportedly willing to invest about $25 million and secure $30 million in joans to buy the Giants. Local investors would come up with an additional 860 million.

Shinn and Shorenstein also issued a brief statement Thursday night.

We continue to make progress in our mutual effort to keep the Gianta in San Francisco, Several issues remain to be resolved, and further discussions are needed tomorrow. We are optimiatic that these issues can be resolved," the statement aaid.

Jordan, who aat in on the investors meeting for a brief time, said he could not elaborate on the issues that were not yet resolved.

"I'm optimistic. I feel good about where we are." Jordan said. "There is progress being made — it's not as quickly as I'd like to see it made, obviously, but it's because of the complications of this transaction."

Owner Bob Lurie agreed on Aug. 7 to sell the Giants in principle for about $111 million to a group of Florida investors who want to move the team to the Suncoast Dome in St. Petersburg, Fla. Lurie has said that he will not consider other offers for the team until the baseball owners vote on the Florida sale.

The owners and commissioner Fay Vincent must approve the sale and move. Ten of 14 NL owners and eight of 14 AL owners must vote in favor of it.

The owners are set to meet on Bee Glants, Page 38

Wednesday in St. Louis. The Giants' sale is on the agenda for the executive council, but it's unlikely a vote will be taken among all the owners on the matter

Fred Kuhlmann, chairman of baseball's ownership committee. said Thursday that Lurie may have indicated he would consider other offers that would keep the team in the San Francisco Bay area.

"I think Bob himself had made some kind of statement that he would listen to counter-offers out there and then act a deadline for them to be received." Kuhimann said prior to a major league meeting in Rosemont, Ill., called to discuss Vincent's status.

Kuhimann said he believed Lurie made the statement to NL president William White during a trip to Ban Francisco.

The Glants issued a statement disputing Kuhlmann's comments.

There is no change in the Giants' previously stated position regarding the team's agreement to sell the Giants to a group from Tampa Bay." the statement said. "That sale is of the baseball owners and the Giants will not consider any other offers pending that ap-proval." currently awaiting the approval

At the Illinois meeting, during which owners voted to ask

Vincent to resign, Jackie Autry of the California Angels said the St. Louis meeting will likely not resolve the Giants' sale. doubt anything will be finalized. It's way too premature. It hasn't even gone to the ownership committee yet." Autry said. "We haven't got any profiles on the St. Pete group. We have nothing to study. Jordan said the potential Ban Francisco offer was "somewhere in the $100 million arena." Sports agent and attorney

Leigh Steinberg, who has aided Jordan in his scarch for local investors, would not comment on the specifics of the deal.

"There are issues to be resolved but their resolvable." Steinberg said.

He hopes the San Francisco offer will be ready to present to owners next week. He also said the current aituation surrounding Vincent would not affect the Giants' deal because the principals would focus on the owners when presenting it.

Delayed Desert Storm packages now enjoyed

LEBY: I am currently in the U.S. Air Force, serving temporary duty in the Persian Gulf. Yes - some of us are still over here, enjoying the 100-degree-plus weather. Sorry I cannot be more specific about my location.

My job here is dealing with moving freight. We recently received a large shipment of freight that had been delayed at a water port for almost a year and a half! This shipment con-tained numerous "care" packages sent by caring people from Michigan. Indiana, Ohio, lowa, and a few other Midwest states

Although these "care" packages were sent for troops during the war, they have been distributed and are being thoroughly enjoyed by those of us who are stationed here now.

Abby, please print this to let people know that their packages were received, and greatly appreclated.

AIRMAN IN THE GULF

DEAR AIRMAN: I will spread the word to my readers. And yes, I am aware that you cannot be any more specific about your location for security reasons. Thank you for writing, and God bless everyone of you men and women, and return you home safely.

DEAR ABBY: Since you have introduced limericks in your column, I can wait no longer. 1 am enclosing a limerick written many years ago by my father. George D. Valli, a former Yale tv historian, renov humorist and prolific author. His contention was that a limerick. by definition, is naughty in its connotation.

In the May 1979 issue of Reader's Digest, his limerick was selected as the winner from among 12,000 entries in a national limerick contest sponsored by Mohegan Community College in Norwich, Conn. 1 believe my father collected $50 (in pennies!) for his winning entry. I hope you will consider it a worthy addition to your collection.

Behavior typical of alcoholic

DEAR MARY: About a year ago my husband's boss told him that if he didn't stop missing work and coming in with a hangover, he'd be fired. Since that time my husband hasn't touched a drop of alcohol. Before his boss issued the ultimatum. that's what I thought I wanted more than anything else in the world, but now I'm not sure which is worse. He works 14 hours a day during the week and on week ends he sulks around the house because he says he can't enjoy himself without a few beers. He insists that he never really had a drinking problem, but would just get "carried away" sometimes. He has ugly outbursts at the kids and me over nothing and feels it's not fair that everyone else can drink but him.

I'm not sure how much more of this I can put up with. Things weren't great when he was drinking, but it's certainly not better now

MEAN AND SOBER'S WIPE

DEAR WIFE: The behaviors you have described are fairly typical of alcoholics who believe they can give up drinking on their own. These folks are often referred to as "dry drunks." A dry drunk refuses to accept that alcoholism is a disease of the mind as well as the body, and that abstinence is just the first step in recovering. Since they never learn to live comfortably without alcohol. they're often intensely an-gry at the world (or themselves), and take it out on those who love them. They continue to deny that they are psychologically dependent on alcohol because "they can give it up anytime." Dry drunks frequently trade one addiction for another by overworking. overeating, becoming de-pendent on nicotine or other drugs, or acting out sexually. Your husband can move from being a dry drunk into recovery if he is willing to do the hard work and realize that recovery is more than willpower and corking the bottle.

Understanding genetic engineering of food

Broccoli that swims? Pork that lavs cggs? Those are the kinds of images that came to mind for many when the Food and Drug Administration announced that it was giving manufacturers the green light to produce genetically engineered foods.

But the FDA's announcement also left a lot of people wondering. first, exactly what genetically engineered food is and, second, whether it is going to be adequately tested for safety before being put on the market.

A definition

Genetically engineered food is food to which a "foreign" gene (or genes) has been added. Consider that every source of food, plant as well as animal, contains strands of genes known as DNA, which determine all of the food's characteristics. When a scientist genetically engineers a food, however, he or she spices a "new" gene into one of its DNA strands from another food source or inserts a gene that was synthesized in a laboratory. The extra gene might help a food stay fresh longer, taste better, or remain more resistant to insects before harvesting.

Examples

The first genetically engineered food expected to hit the market is a tomato called the Flavr Savr. Slated to begin appearing in produce aisles next summer, it is not, as many people imagine all genetically engineered foods to be, a fantastic hybrid of plant and animal, but rather a moderately altered item that is more spoilresistant than regular tomatoes.

Ordinary tomatoes rot only about a week and a half after picking because a particular enzyme in them works to turn them mushy. But in the Flavr Save tomato, the gene responsible for producing that enzyme is "neutralized" by a new synthetic gene inserted by engineers. With the "mush" enzyme out of commission, the Flavr Savr tomato can be ripened on the vine five days longer and still be shipped long distances and stored for several weeks before it starts to deteriorate. Currently, tomatoes must be picked hard and green for keeping purposes and ripened (red-dened) afterward with entylene gas.

Examples of other genetically engineered pViroducts in the works are "naturally" decaffeinated coffee and lower-fat fried potato products. A synthetic gene spliced into the DNA of coffee, for example, can shut down the gene directing the synthesis of caffeine; that should improve the taste of decalleinated collee because the process of extracting caffeine from coffee beans washes out some of their desirable flavors. As for potatoes, a new gene in them increases their proportion of starch, a substance that soaks up less fat when they are fried in the form of, may.

potato chips.

Even more exotic combinations lie ahead. Some scientists, for example, are trying to insert into vegetables the gene from certain fish that keeps them alive in the frigid waters of the Arctic, hoping it will protect vegetables from being damaged by freezing. Those in favor of the new technology see it simply as an extension of traditional breeding technques. In which, for instance, two different types of lettuce are "mated" so that the crunchiness of one and the flavor of the other will come together in the next lettuce generation. The FDA is among the advocates.

Objections volced

Despite the FDA's stance, not everyone is sanguine about the changes. Some scientists and public interest and consumer groups are urging caution, even demanding that the government treat genetically engineered foods as potentially dangerous. These critics argue that "genetic engineering is a significant departure from the breeding experiments of the past and that the safety of a food created with a "new" or "foreign" gene cannot be assumed until it has been investigated as thoroughly as any food containing a new additive. We should not, they say, put genetically engineered foods on the market for the public to buy and cat and then wait to see what happens.

Likewise, they express concern about the FDA's policy that genetically engineered food products need not be labeled as such unless a food is noticeably different from what consumers would expect.

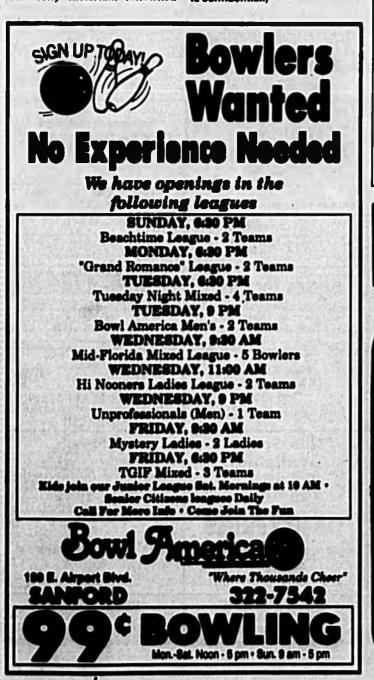

The FDA says it has taken such considerations into account; its new regulations, far from giving industry carte blanche to serve up to the public anything it wants without regard to safety. require that when a common allergen such as shellfish or nuts is put into a food, the manufacturer is automatically obligated to test the food for safety. It must also seek FDA approval before putting the product on the market and label it appropriately to alert consumers.

Body and Soul

- Contraction of the second second second

Contemplate the connection...work and soul.

Work and the body ... a straightforward concept; whatever our work, we must utilize our body, whether primarily brain or brawn.

Work and the soul ... now ponder this. How do you feel, physically and emotionally, after an active and satisfying workday? Perhaps a feeling of stimulation...of elevation ... of the body and the soul ... sometimes coined "a good tired". Why? Because work done with dedication is also good for the soul.

A new concept? Hardly. Over one hundred years ago, the philosopher, Henry David Thoreau, wrote, "Good for the body is the work of the body, and good for the soul is the work of the soul, and good for either the work of the other."

Inclusive in our celebration during the week of Labor Day, as we worship, may we praise God as the source of our talents and our vigor.

"He who labors as he prays lifts his heart to God with his hands."

- St. Bernard of Clairvaux

Surgical repair can correct rectocele

i i 34

DEAE DR. GOTT: I have a rather large rectocele and need to know more about my condition. Is surgical repair necessary. and will it interfere with my having proctoscopic examina-tions during routine physicals? DEAR BEADER: A rectocele is a weakness in the tissue between the rectum and the vagina, such that on straining, the lower rectum will bulge into the vagina - or, in severe cases, actually protrude (prolapse) from the vaginal opening. The condition, which is caused by repeated childbirths, is not dangerous and will not affect health. Nevertheless, it is a nuisance and an embarrassment that sometimes interferes with normal sex relations. It should not interfere with bowel evacuation or physical examinations.

Rectocele repair is standard surgery for gynecologists. You may consider having it done if the rectal bulging "gets in your way" or interferes with normal daily activities.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm puzzled about two herpes afflictions - herpes zoster and herpes genitalis. Can they be positively differentiated by the location on the body? Is it possible for the zoster to be manifested in the genital, lower bullocks and inner thigh area where genitalis is generally found? Further, are there symptoms of each that positively differentiate them? DEAR READER: Being cousins, these two herpes infections cause similar, painful blisters. They are usually differentiated by their locations and patterns of recuttence.

Herpes zoster (shingles) ap-pears as a rapidly progressing crop of blisters that rarely re-curs. The infection, which can affect any portion of the skin, is siways confined to one side of the body, however.

Herpes genitalis, on the other hand, is a cyclic, less severe infection, usually localized to the

The book has drawbacks. You always know when the key play has to be made, which makes finding it easier; and if you read a lot of bridge literature, you will recognize most of the deals. However, if you study the deals and review the analyses, your game will improve.
