TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—House Speaker Hyatt Brown and Senate President Phil Lewis reconvened the Legislature at noon today for its second special session, a three-day term limited to the budget, higher education and a few other items.

Brown and Lewis decided Sunday to call the special session after the collapse of Saturday's one-day session.

Legislative leaders had worked out a $550 million supplemental budget and were ready to vote it out Saturday night, but a Senate move to tax media advertising triggered a deadlock.

Brown and Lewis huddled with Gov. Bob Graham early Sunday morning, then met by themselves Sunday afternoon, deciding finally to limit consideration during the special session to the $550 million supplemental spending plan, Graham's "Trim bill" on property taxes, renter's relief, taxing media advertising, and tax breaks for "live aboard vessels."

Graham can add items to the call and so can individual legislators, but only upon the approval of both houses by a two-thirds majority vote.

Lewis said he has given up on a constitutional amendment requiring single-member legislative districts instead of multimember ones. And both Lewis and Brown said they see no reason to include trucking in the special session because the decision has now been made to deregulate the industry July 1 under the Sunset Act.

Graham said he might get the Legislature to consider the single issue of continued safety inspections of giant tractor-trailer trucks. He is considering a proposal, which may or may not require legislative approval, to transfer the 75

The "live-aboard vessels" issue didn't surface until late in the session. Persons who live aboard yachts and other boats tied up in marinas claim they shouldn't have to pay property taxes.

Legislative leaders believed they had worked out a compromise higher education plan. It would merge the University of North Florida with the University of Florida and establish a legislative committee to study the possibility of other mergers.

The plan also would expand the Board of Regents from 10 to 13 members and dilute the board's power slightly. The plan faces substantial opposition in the Senate, largely because of the UNF-UF merger.

Senate Rules Chairman Dempsey Barron of Panama City reacting, senators said, to a newspaper report that President-designate W.D. Childers of Pensacola, a close friend and political ally, is under investigation by the state-wide grand jury, tried Saturday night to muscle through a bill clamping the 4 percent state sales tax on newspaper, radio and television ads.

Barron, D-Panama City, tied up the Senate most of Saturday evening, refusing to allow final action on the budget and other proposals that had to be passed before legislators could go home.

The Senate finally rejected the media advertising proposal, which would have funded the $13.7 million television relief plan being sought by Graham, raising 21-37 to clear it for a final vote.

Senators had passed the advertising bill earlier in the week, but the House rejected the plan Friday and it was dropped from further consideration. When the story on Childers broke Saturday morning, Barron blasted the press and pursued the proposal fiercely.

House members were angry over what several branded as improper pressure from the Senate for passage of the advertising tax and other bills. They also said they were unsure about the contents of the complicated "Trim bill" allowing increases in city and county property taxes. Finally, the House adjourned and said the governor could convene a special session.

House members voted to return to work Monday after Brown told them, "frankly, the longer we wait, the tougher it will be to reconcile our differences." Senators, who adjourned a few minutes after the House Saturday night, said they wanted a week to cool off and rest. Lewis finally agreed to Monday.

They Threaten To Withhold Support

Black Caucus Presses Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Members of the Congressional Black Caucus threatened today to withhold their support of President Carter in the fall election unless he changes his jobs policy within the next two weeks.

Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., who spoke for the caucus, repeatedly accused Carter of "misunderstanding what we're trying to say" during a 90-minute meeting with him at the White House.

"We have come away with a feeling of real disappointment," Mrs. Collins said. "Disappointment because we felt there were two ships passing in the night."

"The president, I don't think, fully understood the intensity of the situation that we find throughout the United States today," she said. "There is indeed a Mount St. Helens ready to explode in any urban community today."

Mrs. Collins said Carter told them he would examine their demands for realignment of his economic policy.

"We're going to return in about two weeks," Mrs. Collins said. "We have several alternatives. We have the alternative of saying the man has not been responsive to our needs and, therefore, we don't have to vote for him."

"We're not prepared to do that at this particular time," she said.

Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., said the caucus opposed "trading off jobs" in an attempt to slow inflation. Hawkins said the caucus called for "an immediate attack on the inflation in the proper way by bringing down interest rates and by controlling and limiting the increase in prices, including oil prices."

The blacks, who provided a basic core of Carter's support in the 1976 campaign, have been distressed by unemployment in their ranks that often has been twice as much as for whites.

Carter met with the black lawmakers a few hours before leaving for Miami, where he was to discuss with local officials federal aid for victims of the recent riots there, and ways to foreclose future violence. From Miami, he will fly to Seattle to discuss his program for cities with mayors.

2 Die In Car Crash On County's South Side

Michael J. Keen, 15, a Lyman High School ninth grader and the lone survivor of a two-car collision in which two persons died Sunday, was released from Florida Hospital-Altamonte today.

Killed in the collision were Stephen Lansing, 18, of 64 Wildwood St., Altamonte Springs, driver of one of the vehicles and Robert Keen, Michael's father. Michael Keen was driving the second car.

The Keens home is located at 161 1/2 N. 13th Ave. Both Robert Keen and Lansing died at the scene.

According to the Florida Highway Patrol, charges in the accident are pending investigation by R.S. Kirk and R.E. Davis, homicide investigators.

The Highway patrol accident report said the car driven by Lansing was traveling westbound on CR 427, when it went out of control, crossed the center line into the eastbound traffic and was struck in the right side by the Keen vehicle. The Lansing car, a 1978 Buick, was a total wreck.

The Keen car was traveling eastbound. The accident occurred at 5:25 p.m., Sunday on CR 427, one mile north of Longwood.

Sanford's Land-Use Plan Fuzzy, County Official Says

By DIANE PETHRYK
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County is expected to tell the city of Sanford this week that the county and the city have a basic difference in philosophy concerning formulation and use of their comprehensive development plans.

In a letter the county commission is expected to authorize Tuesday to be sent to Sanford Mayor Les P. Moore, the county says the city's plan "lacks sufficient detail" for the county to evaluate the impact of city proposals on the incorporated areas of the county.

In accordance with the state Local Governmental Comprehensive Planning Act of 1975, cities and counties must formulate and maintain development plans.

The county continues to perceive the Comprehensive Plan as a detailed expression of the inter-relationship of land capability, goals of the citizens, costs of facilities and available revenues. This view leads to a rather specific plan and land use map that have a direct relationship to zoning and the actual use of property," the county's letter states.

But "the city's plan continues to appear to be a more general approach designed to serve as a guide for future growth and development in the city," the letter says.

It points out that the potential exists for some inconsistencies between the city's and county's planning efforts.

County Planner Woody Price, who drafted the letter, emphasized that both the city and county plans "are legitimate and legal."

"We're not attempting to do Sanford's plan for them or say their plan needs to be like our plan," he said, "but for us it generates a problem in some areas."

Price said he hopes the letter will stimulate a dialogue to minimize the potential for future conflicts. But he said he realizes the letter is unlikely to effect any major changes.

"Land use compatibility (between the city and county) will likely continue to be an issue," he said.

The letter, he added, is part of a requirement of the state statute that governmental units within a county exchange information on changes they may be proposing to their comprehensive plans. The information must be subjected to a 60-day review-and-comment period before they may be adopted. Sanford recently sent proposed changes to its plan to the county.

But, Price said, the city is not obligated in any way to act on any of the county's suggestions.

Moore declined today to comment on the letter until he receives it.

Price states in the letter that the section of the city's plan dealing with public safety is "perhaps the most thorough" of all the sections and there appears to be several opportunities for cost savings in both equipment and personnel expenditures by minimizing what may be duplication of effort.

For instance, Price suggests that a fire notification system might cost less if centralized.

Currently, the county operates a central communications system utilized by the cities of Altamonte Springs and Longwood.

Mideast Setbacks

Under the terms of the Camp David agreement, Israel and Egypt were to have completed negotiations on autonomy for West Bank Palestinians by May 26. Instead, the deadline passed with no agreement and with hardly a ripple.

As though all this were not discouraging enough, there is little likelihood of an early resumption of Israeli-Egyptian talks on the status of the West Bank.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat faces similarly confining options. Given Israel's present negotiating posture, Sadat can hardly be expected to offer concessions that would be viewed in Egypt and elsewhere in the Arab world as the final, unequivocal proof that he had betrayed the Palestinian cause.

Heretofore, the United States has been a chief catalyst in moving Israel toward the sort of flexibility without which previous agreements would have been impossible.

The prospect, then, is for a prolonged pause in the Mideast peace process. Even so, there is reason for at least a pinch of cautious optimism.

Reagan's Running Mate Chore

LOS ANGELES (NEA) — Ronald Reagan's key aides here concede their candidate is facing a major problem over his choice of a running mate.

Nearly everyone in the Reagan camp agrees that the strongest running mate for the former California governor would be Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee.

But if Reagan chooses Baker, he will break a direct promise to a major special interest, thus casting himself as a candidate who breaks his solemn word when doing so becomes politically expedient.

Reagan has long been on record as opposing abortion. He received much support in the primaries from right-to-life groups, which see him as the only major presidential candidate with a strong anti-abortion record.

Then in a major interview with the Wall Street Journal, Reagan was asked to list those issues which he considered his running mate could disagree. Reagan named the Panama Canal and a Kemp-Roth type of sweeping tax cut.

Rags To Riches Part Of Jockey's Ride

NEW YORK (UPI) — You'd think that because of their size and the ever-present possibility they could break their necks every day they go to work, jockeys automatically would have a strong feeling of admiration and sympathy.

Sports Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN

That way at all. It doesn't always work out. To the average jockey, the only time any jockey is a hero is when he is riding the particular horse he's bested.

Canter's job did on a treacherously muddy track in winning a race that was supposed to have been strictly among three other horses, Coder, Rambo and the Kentucky Derby-winning filly, Genuine Risk.

Canter's Win On Temperance Hill 'Big Thrill'

NEW YORK (UPI) — All morning long, the telephone in trainer Joe Canter's barn was as insistent as jockey Eddie Maple's whinny on Temperance Hill Saturday.

No sooner had Canter hung up on one call than the phone rang again. "I had no idea he'd be 50-1," said Canter, who said he "bet some" on the colt.

Exercise Improves Your Overall Health

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—I'm an 18-year-old female who enjoys jogging and exercising. My mother has been concerned about this because she has read that jogging breaks down the breast tissues and can damage the uterus. Is this true? I have noticed that since I have started to jog and exercise, I have lost weight from the waist up. My mother is sure that this is not best for me. I don't want to do any harm to my body but most of the books that I have read on running favor women jogging. Is jogging good or bad for a woman's body? Mom told me to get a doctor's advice so that's why I've written to you.

DEAR READER—The old saying, "Different strokes for different folks," certainly does apply to the use of exercise. The choice of an exercise program for any individual depends on his or her health status and the goals to be achieved. In other words, why do you want to exercise?

Now, I'm all in favor of exercise because I think it improves people's health. Certainly a major portion of our population is too inactive for its own good. Exercise can be done in the wrong way or the type of exercise a person may elect to use may not be the right one for the goal he or she wants to achieve.

There are exercises that do help improve the figure if you're concerned about your bust. Specifically, these are the exercises that involve the chest muscle and maintaining proper posture. A woman who has developed proper muscle strength between the shoulder blades and stands up properly with her shoulders back will have a more attractive bustline.

Also, if the muscles underneath the breast are developed, even a small bralette will appear larger and result in a more attractive figure. So if your goal is to improve your bustline, you might consider an overall exercise program that is related to developing all the muscles of your body and helps you maintain an optimal posture.

Women who do not wear brassieres tend to develop sagging breasts, whether they jog or not. Whether jogging will affect your bust or not may depend a lot on your degree of development. In any case, I think a woman who wants to avoid sagging breasts should wear a bralette that provides adequate support. Definitely she should wear it when jogging and she should also wear it when she's not jogging. The bralette will help to prevent stretching.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
You will have greater respect for yourself and so will others if you make difficult decisions. Make judgments without fear or prejudice.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)
It's important today to do your own thing in your own way. Letting erratic associates get involved may cause headaches you might not be able to forgive.

Stromberg To Lay Off 279 Workers

The economic recession has finally come to Seminole County. Stromberg-Carlson, the largest industrial employer in the county, announced today it is "permanently" laying off 14 percent of the employees in its Lake Mary and Longwood plants effective June 20. Total of Stromberg's employees and 239 people in the digital systems center in Lake Mary, Whitney said.

He said the layoffs were announced to the Longwood plant employees Friday and to the Lake Mary plant employees on Monday. "We are laying off about 40 people in our engineering and development center in Longwood and 239 people in the digital systems center in Lake Mary," Whitney said.

Myopia Surgery Untested

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A government advisory council says more research is needed before it can endorse surgery to correct nearsightedness, a common vision disorder usually corrected easily by eyeglasses or contact lenses.

The operation was developed by Soviet surgeon Svyatoslav Fyodorov, who has said he is convinced the 90-second eye surgical procedure will allow most nearsighted people to throw away their glasses forever.

Nearsighted people have better vision for near objects than for distant ones. Fyodorov and his colleagues in Moscow have performed 2,000 such operations in the past decade after perfecting the procedure on rabbits. He also has demonstrated the technique in 10 operations in the United States.

American's National Advisory Eye Council urged both patients and eye doctors to use restraint in choosing the surgery until questions of safety, effectiveness and long-term effects are answered.

The council said in a resolution released Monday it "would like to express grave concern about potential widespread adoption" of the operation.

Nearsightedness, or myopia, affects nearly one-third of all adults in the United States.

The operation developed by Fyodorov is called radial keratotomy. It involves a series of cuts into the cornea, the transparent cover for the front of the eye. These incisions weaken the tissue so that internal eye pressure causes the edge of the cornea to bulge slightly, thus flattening the central portion of the cornea. This improves the focusing ability of nearsighted people.

A six-month follow-up study of the procedure at Wayne State University showed about half of 83 patients no longer needed their glasses following the operation. But doctors said most reported some complications, including glare and vision quality that fluctuated during the day.

Fyodorov said in a recent interview in Moscow he never had a case that had not produced at least some improvement.

Longwood Commissioner John Hepp (right) speaks in opposition to a rezoning request by Commissioner J. R. Grant (left) at Monday night's meeting.

Commissioner's Property Rezoned

Longwood City Commissioner J. R. Grant, who could not attend Monday night's meeting, was successful Monday night when his request was approved 3-2.

It was standing room only as opponents of the rezoning and other controversial issues on the agenda packed city hall for the meeting.

E.D. "Bo" Simpson, acting as an agent for Grant, requested the commission to rezone the property from industrial and multi-family residential to planned unit development for the construction of townhouses.

The main opposition to the rezoning for townhouses came from residents of the Skylark subdivision, who were concerned about increased traffic, overcrowding schools, increased crime, safety of children and use of their malfunctioning sewage treatment plant.

However, City Commissioner William Mitchell, who seconded Grant's motion, reported he had talked to many residents in areas close to the proposed project and they preferred the townhouses over the heavy industrial construction permitted under the present zoning.

Commissioner John Hepp, a Skylark resident, and Commissioner June Lormann voted against the rezoning, and Mayor Steven Uskert cast the deciding vote for the rezoning. City Administrator David Chacey said the property would be designated multi-family residential under the proposed land planning map and that Grant could build 12 units per acre under the rezoning and was only asking for nine units per acre under the planned unit development.

Simpson said it was the first time in his experience that there was opposition to a request to upgrade zoning on a piece of property.

Hepp demanded to know just who was Grant's co-owner of the property. Grant responded, "She's sitting out there in the audience. She's my wife."

In another controversial issue, Virginia Warner presented a petition with 460 signatures objecting to the location of a proposed Handy Way convenience store on E.E. Williamson Road on Orlando's city limits. A motion to deny the site plan approval requested by Miller Enterprises, Inc. passed 4-1 with Grant voting against the denial.

The site plan had previously been approved by the planning and zoning board and the engineering department and Tipton and Associate Traffic Engineers reported a study revealed the store would not be detrimental to traffic on E.E. Williamson Road.

In voting against the site plan, Hepp cited two convenience stores he owns in Daytona Beach and the litter and robberies connected with them.

Residents of nearby subdivisions complained that the road was already dangerous and the proposed store would add to the problem and would be a detriment to the area.

Downtown Work Faces Long Delay

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Work on the city of Sanford's planned downtown facility may be delayed seven months or longer.

Mize said the delay may be even longer if either party decides to appeal the Circuit Court decision when it is ultimately made.

He said one of the allegations in the suit is that the city, by approving the revitalization project for downtown, has "appropriated public funds to benefit private property owners." Mize said this is a constitutional issue and could be appealed to the Florida Supreme Court.

City Commissioner David Farr supported Mize's request for authorization to voluntarily offer to withhold construction.

By beginning construction, prior to court approval, Farr said the city would be "playing Russian roulette with loaded guns."

In response to a question, Mize said if the city began construction and the court decided the project is improper, it has the prerogative of ordering the city to tear out the improvements and restore the streets and sidewalks to their original condition.

Commission Rejects Plan For Ritz Theatre

The Sanford City Commission, following the lead of the city's planning and zoning commission, has turned down a plan to reopen the Ritz Theatre in downtown Sanford.

The commissioners voted unanimously Monday night to uphold a recommendation of the advisory board by denying a permit for a beer and wine license for the theatre operated by John Lawson, an Orlando businessman.

The planning and zoning commission last Thursday night in turning down the request, indicated its concern that children attending the theatre would be able to acquire the beverages.

Lawson said Monday night there is no way he could guarantee 100 percent that alcohol purchased by persons of legal age would not be passed on to minors.

He said his plans for reopening the theatre were contingent on the beer and wine license, saying revenues from showing films would pay only expenses while profits would come from the concessions.

"Without beer and wine sales, the format is not enough to bring people in," he said, adding the beer and wine is a "gimmick" — an "entertainment to people to come to the theatre." Lawson said his plan was to operate the Ritz much like the Old Southern Music Hall in Orlando which is located in the former Beacham Theatre.

He said he had planned to maintain the theatre in the style of the era in which it was built, making mostly cosmetic changes.

Commissioner John Morris said Lawson has some good ideas and "I hope you pursue them, but without a beer and wine license, it's not possible."

Commissioner Julian Stenstrom, noting that the city is trying to rejuvenate the downtown section, said the Ritz building is becoming a blight. He urged that the city through Police Chief Ben Butler contact Orlando to get some idea of what that city's experience has been with the similar operation there before the city commission made a final decision.

Stenstrom's motion, seconded by Commissioner David Farr, was defeated 3-2 with Mayor Lee P. Moore, Morris and Commissioner Eddie Keith voting against. The motion to deny the request was then approved unanimously.

Ex-Navy Man Named City Clerk

Donald Lee Terry, 50-year-old retired U.S. Navy lieutenant commander, was appointed by the Longwood City Commission Monday night to replace Mrs. Linda Zike, who has resigned as city clerk.

Working his way up from seaman recruit, Terry served in the Navy from 1948 to 1976. A resident of Winter Park, he is married and has three children. He recently graduated summa cum laude from Florida Southern College, Lakeland, with a bachelor of science degree in business administration and personnel management, second in a class of 345.

Terry is presently employed as manager of the training program at Davar, Inc.

He was selected for the position of city clerk on 30 this increase. Terry are: gas and oil, up 114 percent; food for jail, up 83 percent; and contract services, up 92 percent.

In the salary area, an increase of 8.7 percent is due to requested new employees. Merit increases for existing employees were budgeted at 4.1 percent per employee and 7 percent for the sheriff for an overall merit increase of 5.96 percent.

The sheriff is requesting 18 additional corrections staff for the new Seminole County Jail and 5 other deputies.

The 18 corrections officers are the minimum needed to allow the county to fully use the new jail and be reasonably free from lawsuits, Polk said. According to state and federal guidelines, the jail needs at least 35 more corrections officers, he said.

Of the five deputies, one each is to be added to Range and Water Patrol, Crimes Against Persons Division, Crimes Against Property Division, the Civil Division and the Warrants Division. Neiswander said he feels the proposed 18 additional corrections officers "are fairly well warranted." But he said the proposal for the other 5 deputies requires further study.

"We will be looking at the total budget for any possibility of cutting back," he said.

Of the total request, $33,505 is budgeted to pay the sheriff's salary. Salaries of deputies and assistants account for $3,289,941. Retirement, social security and other benefits total $88,822.

Expenses other than salaries are budgeted at $1,340,042; equipment, $260,000; investigations, $15,000; contingencies, $50,000.

Polk said he hopes to make some money this year by housing federal prisoners overnight at the new jail while they are being transported between Miami and Tallahassee.

"If they check in at night and leave in the morning we can charge them for two days," Polk said.

Sheriff's Huge Budget Request Stuns County Staff

County Administrator Roger Neiswander said $1 million more for the sheriff's department is not readily available, but law enforcement needs have traditionally been high-priority items for the county.

"That may not have good implications for other areas that are not as high a priority," he said.

The sheriff's "expenses other than salaries" account reflects a 57 percent increase over last year. Several categories account for the majority of this increase. Terry are: gas and oil, up 114 percent; food for jail, up 83 percent; and contract services, up 92 percent.
