WIN AT BRIDGE

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

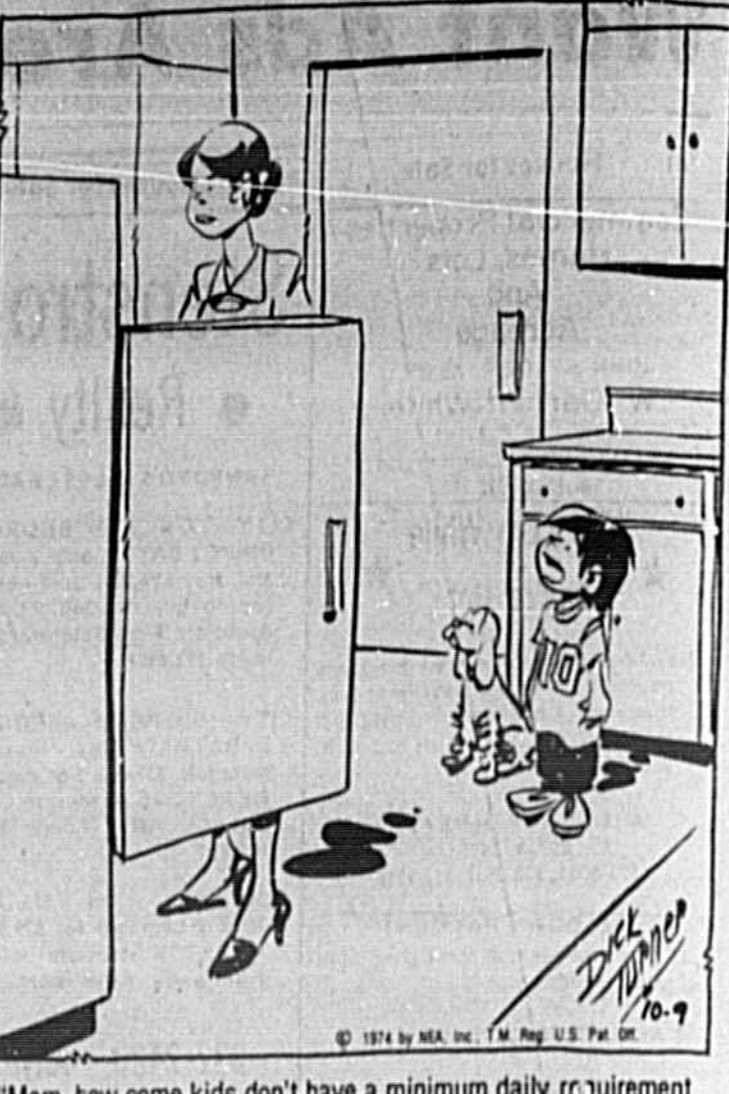

BRIDGE HAND: NORTH 1083, WEST (D) J7, SOUTH AKQ9765, EAST AK1098432, WEST (D) J7, SOUTH AKQ9765, EAST AK1098432. Opening lead—J.

Is there a third way? There sure is! You can draw the defense's last trump, ruff a heart, ruff a club back to your hand and run off all your trumps. If West has a diamond stopper he will be squeezed out of it since he will have to hang on to the queen of clubs. If East has the diamond stopper he will also be squeezed since he must hang on to the ace of hearts. This play is known as an automatic double squeeze. Only West can guard against the jack of clubs; only East can guard against the queen of hearts. Therefore, neither one can protect diamonds.

CARD STAMPS

The bidding has been: West North East South 1♣ Pass 1♥ Pass 3♥ Pass 4♥ Pass 7. You can have a lot of fun with today's hand if you cover up the East and West cards. Now try to make your spade slam after East wins the first trick with the king of clubs and returns the five of clubs. You win in dummy and can afford to play one round of trumps. Both opponents follow. Now, there is a very simple way to proceed. Play a second trump and go after diamonds. If second trump 3-2 you will have a million tricks. A second line will be to try to ruff both your losing hearts. That will fail if West started with just two hearts and the jack of spades.

Jury Calls O'Malley

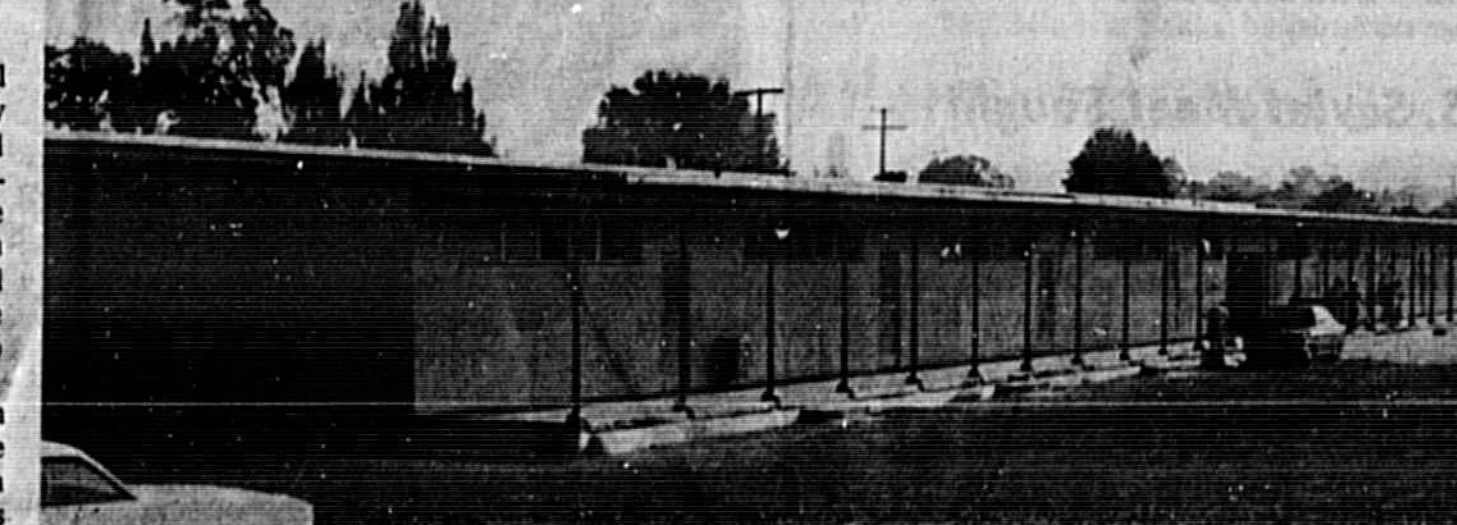

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Leon County Grand Jury today subpoenaed state Treasurer Thomas O'Malley. He charged that his action was "patently political" aimed at subverting his re-election campaign. O'Malley was ordered to appear Wednesday morning before the grand jury that has been investigating his conduct as state treasurer and insurance commissioner and other matters involving his personal finances. He charged that the panel's special prosecutor, state Atty. T. Edward Austin of Jacksonville, "is doing everything in his power to interrupt the political process." "It is a travesty on the electoral process that this grand jury is being manipulated in such a manner," O'Malley said in a statement issued by press aide Jerry Davies. O'Malley was campaigning today in Brooksville and Jacksonville. He charged that Austin "must be extremely desperate after conducting an investigation of me for five and a half months." The grand jury has been investigating O'Malley's financial affairs for six months and is expected to conclude its probe by the end of next week. State law provides that O'Malley would have to be granted immunity from prosecution for any matters he discusses before the grand jury. Asst. State Atty. Robert Willis of Jacksonville, a grand jury special prosecutor, declined comment on the possible nature of O'Malley's testimony or the extent to which he might be immunized by answering questions. State law protects the secrecy of grand jury proceedings.

Shevin Surprises Utilities; Rules Fuel Charges Illegal

Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin's opinion today that the fuel adjustment charge levied by power companies to hit their customers is illegal, all a Florida Power and Light official "cold." "It has hit us cold," said Art Wortham, administrative assistant to the FP and L division manager at Merritt Island. Refusing to speculate on the consequences if the company is denied the right to levy the special charge, said, "It would be a blow." He reminded the Shevin ruling "is an opinion and not a court order." "The opinion includes the phrase 'without public hearing,'" Wortham said, adding his belief that all of the company's tariff schedules are the result of public hearings held on at least two occasions. Wortham said the company, after its legal staff has received a copy of the opinion and had an opportunity to review it, probably will release a formal statement later today. Shevin's opinion sparked Public Service Commission Chairman Bill Bevis to call an emergency PSC hearing for Friday morning. Bevis said the hearing would help the PSC "determine what course of action is mandated by this opinion." "I will personally recommend we cut it out for a while," Bevis said at an impromptu news conference. Meanwhile, PSC public council Frederick Karl said in a news release that he was not surprised by the opinion, which Shevin issued for state Rep. Harold Dyer, D-Hollywood. Karl said, "Florida citizens should be cautioned that the attorney general's opinion does not relieve them of the obligation to pay the charges." "The opinion does not invalidate the charges," Shevin told a news conference that customers should continue to pay the charges until the issue is settled by the PSC or the courts. In an opinion issued today for Rep. Harold Dyer, D-Hollywood, Shevin said that the state Public Service Commission does not have the authority to permit regulated utilities to automatically and unilaterally hike fuel adjustment charges without holding public hearings. "Inasmuch as I can find no statutory authority for the commission to permit utilities subject to their jurisdiction to unilaterally raise rates for any reason, I have concluded that rates charged pursuant to a fuel adjustment clause—even when such clause is included in a tariff on file with the commission—are illegal." Shevin said that Florida law says "the commission must order and hold public hearings before allowing any change in rates charged by regulated utility companies." Fuel adjustment charges, even though set apart in monthly bills, are rates within the meaning of the Florida law, Shevin said. In St. Petersburg, Florida Power spokesman Bill Johnson said, "All I can tell you is that if we're not allowed to pass on this cost, in 60 days we won't be able to pay for the oil." He said no oil means no electricity. Public Service Commissioner William Mayo, contacted in Tampa, said, "I wish the guy would get one opinion and stick to it, and I'm referring to the one about two weeks old that said it was legal." "It's this type difference of legal opinion from whatever source which is helping compound the confusion in the mind of the public as to the justification and legality of the fuel adjustment clause," Shevin said. Shevin also said that after Jan. 1 municipal utilities and rural electric cooperatives must hold hearings before they raise rates. Last week, Shevin issued an opinion saying that the passage of 14 years since the present fuel adjustment formula was put into company rate structures had given it legitimacy. However, he said that the question was limited only to the opinions raised by PSC Commissioner Paula Hawkins about whether a failure of the commission to hold hearings before adopting the formula invalidated it. PSC Chairman Bill Bevis said he had not seen Shevin's new opinion. The commission earlier this week scheduled a hearing for Nov. 18 on fuel adjustment as a result of Shevin's earlier opinion and questions by public counsel Frederick Karl about costs in the formula.

Parent Blasts School Board

Seminole County School Board members Wednesday night responded with mixed emotions to charges of "cooing" the southern end of the county in the education program. Reaction ranged from appreciation of the remarks to agreement to disagreement. The criticism came when George Willis, a real estate dealer from Sanford, gave a lengthy critique of the board's preferential treatment of the south end of the county. He mentioned the seven new schools in the south, none in the north, alleged "inadequate, unsafe and depressing facilities" which house the Sanford student population, and the lack of teachers for art, music and physical education. Board Chairman Davis Sims replied Willis was suffering from "tunnel vision" in failing to see the problems exist throughout the county. He stressed the board had accomplished all the goals it set for itself two years ago. Jean Bryant agreed with much of Willis' comments. "These are the same things I have recommended all along. We must bring all the schools up to the adequacy of the schools in the south end." Dr. Stuart Culpepper suggested the citizens of the northern area turnout in March and maintain the four mill tax used for capital expenditures. Both Allan Keeth and William Feather thanked Willis for his remarks and concern. Keeth suggested Superintendent Layer prepare a report, "not a rebuttal," on the matters Willis mentioned. Layer himself said, after the meeting "The quality of teachers is equal, the type of program is equal, with the exception of some small elementary schools, which do not have all the special programs such as music and art. The greatest difference is in the physical plant. The north end is inadequate compared to the newer buildings. But the need to house the influx of students in the south end mandated the money be expended there. If sufficient state capital outlay funds are provided this year and next, and if the voters retain the four mill levy or some part of it in March 1975, the needs of all old schools in the county will be met." Willis scored the principals for their salary adjustments which are deducted from the school budgets, some of which can't afford to hire teachers for those other residents of the district, and benefitted from the concentrated expansion. If the voters of the north end approve the levy in March with a massive turnout, the northern area would be the principal beneficiary of the districts next capital improvement program. He apologized to the board for the absence of a "group of ardent twisting parents," but he said the north end parents don't expect any solution "from a board which is too involved with empire building." Utility Fee Ruling Awaited

A new circuit court ruling declaring unconstitutional utility connection fees could give three financial headaches to new of Seminole's seven cities if confirmed by the Florida Supreme Court. The court decision in a case against the City of Dunedin is now before the Supreme Court, said Altamonte Springs City Atty. Joe Davis. Sanford, Casselberry and Altamonte Springs expect to receive utility connection fees totaling $520,000 this budget year. Sanford charges a combined sewer-water connection fee of $550 while Casselberry's fee is $750 and Altamonte is in process of adopting a new ordinance raising connection fees from $250 to $750. The $200,000 Casselberry anticipates receiving from the special fee represents fully 10 percent of its anticipated 1974-75 revenues. These receipts go into a fund for the sewer and water utility plant, expansion, actual costs of connecting new utility customers, and capital im-

More Retail Price Hikes Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose only one-tenth of a per cent last month as falling farm prices offset increases in the cost of industrial goods, the government reported today. The modest September price rise followed near-record increases in July and August. September increase was the smallest price advance since wholesale prices declined a tenth of a per cent last October.

Woodlands Penalty Invoked

The Seminole County School Board Wednesday evening instructed its attorney Douglas Stenstrom to invoke a penalty clause against George Willis, Inc. when he violates the contract deadline for moving the old Altamonte-new Woodlands Elementary School. The deadline is Oct. 13. School Superintendent William Layer reported Saunders had submitted a timetable declaring Nov. 30 as the revised expected completion date of the project. Layer added if all goes according to schedule the building may be occupied as early as Jan. 2. Layer stated during a public meeting on millage, the eight mill board's budget is based on not an increase but a decrease of two mills from the total tax package of last year. He said if any increase is noticed in the tax bill of individual residents the increase would be due to reassessment, not the eight mill levy. In another money-related matter, Layer suggested the board endorse Amendment No. 11 on the November ballot. The amendment provides utility tax receipts be used to repay capital improvement bonds, at no cost to the taxpayers. The board approved the motion. The board also approved the purchase of a gasoline tank to service 1975 model school vehicles. New cars and buses will operate on unleaded gas only, by federal law. The tank would be installed at the school district bus garage. Bids were submitted and approved by the board for basketball backboards at South Seminole Middle School, $1,800.75; duct work for several schools, $24,888.22; electrical supplies for air conditioning at several schools $93,058.49; and a change order at Tusculum Middle School, $21,220. The board received a written resolution from the Winter Springs City Council protesting the board's policy of extensive busing programs of Winter Springs students to Jackson Heights and Oviedo Schools. The board also heard the remarks of George Willis of Sanford, concerning the condition of education in the northern end of the county.

Our Main Interest Is Your Activities

Someone pointed out the other day that this is National Newspaper Week. We've never been able to come to grips with what National Newspaper Week is supposed to represent.

If it means we should bore you with a long recitation of our virtues with appropriate references to the First Amendment then we find it no more significant than National Pickle Week or National Walk Your Dog Week. We would hope that people who toil at this profession do so out of dedication to facts and truth and do not need their egos massaged by our readers once a year.

However, we would like to take the opportunity to remind our readers that we are in this business to tell you what other folks are doing and tell other folks what you are doing. Obviously, we can't be everywhere at once so to do the job in a thorough and professional manner we need your help.

We're not asking that you all come in and sit down at typewriters and pound out reports on your activities; we are asking that you let us know through our various departments; hard news, women's news, sports, religion, clubs, etc., of your activities past and planned.

We are in business to put news into print, not keep it out so the more information we have in our possession the greater our opportunity to present to all our readers an accurate picture of our world and community.

That's how we see National Newspaper Week...not as an opportunity to tout our own horn, but to solicit your help in making the Evening and Sunday Herald a more interesting and informative publication.

It'll be several months before we can get an accurate assessment of how Congress will react to President Ford's anti-inflation proposals. It was a wide-ranging speech which, we suspect, will be subject to a great deal of amending as it works its way through an election-year Congress.

It strikes us that the one provision that doesn't stand a chance of surviving in its present form is his call for a surtax on individual incomes with a $7500 base for individuals and a $15,000 base for families. No Republican candidate in his right mind is going to stand still and watch his natural constituency hit with a new tax. If the surtax survives in any form we would guess that the base figure in each case will be about double what President Ford has suggested.

Freedoms Shaken

Boston's unruly and vicious outbreak against the busing of students — and by implication against school integration — began inconspicuously at Boston Common wove so tightly into the American history of freedom.

And one does not have to be an advocate of busing in pursuit of educational equality to deplore the display of hatred and abuse aimed at Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. The insults and physical harassment of the Massachusetts Democrat are symptoms of the trend developed in the 1960s to substitute violence for reason.

Mandatory busing to hasten integration goals evokes objections from many Americans regardless of race — both frivolous and valid.

Nixon To Blame For Oil Price Rise

WASHINGTON—A confidential congressional study blames the Nixon administration for permitting the oil companies to gouge almost $9 billion out of motorists and other consumers in the last year.

Four dubious and perhaps illegal White House decisions were responsible for the $9 billion loss, according to a study ordered by consumer watchdog Rep. John Moss, D-Calif. In addition, the report reveals that Congress itself directly caused a $2.6 billion ripoff.

These five pro-industry edicts not only gobbled up the consumers' pocket money at the pump, but they also served to boost inflationary pressure and allowed the major oil companies to increase their profits by an average of 71 percent, right in the middle of the oil crisis.

Here are the five rapacious rulings as detailed in the Library of Congress Economics Division study prepared for Moss, chairman of the House Commerce and Finance subcommittee:

(1) The Cost of Living Council allowed the oil companies to increase "old oil" from wells from $5.25 to $5.25 even though "this is oil that cost, roughly, less than $1 to produce." The consumer was stuck with $1.9 billion in excess oil bills. The administration had claimed the Treasury Dept. had documents to justify the increase. But now, Treasury Secretary William Simon has privately conceded to Moss that no "Treasury or Federal Energy Office papers were presented" at the Cost of Living meeting where the decision was made.

(2) Originally, the Cost of Living Council from oil prices at $4.25 per barrel in 1972, a price some 30 per cent higher than previous levels. The, in August 1973, the council freed prices on newly discovered oil to encourage exploration. This allowed the price to zoom to $10.50 a barrel even though costs to the oil firms were seldom more than $2 per barrel. The consumer costs: $3.25 billion.

(3) For every barrel of new oil produced, the council let Big Oil take the price bid off one barrel of old oil. This was also designed to encourage exploration. This questionable bookkeeping cost consumers $2.23 billion.

(4) The Federal Energy Office let retailers raise their profit margin from 7.25 cents per gallon to 11 cents per gallon because of gasoline shortages. But now the pumps are full and the motorists' wallets are still being gapped by the high margins. The cost to oil and gasoline users: $2.89 billion.

(5) Congress is to blame, the Moss study notes, for exempting oil wells producing less than 10 barrels a day from price controls. While this may have kept some marginal wells in production, it cost the consumers $2.64 billion. The Moss report concludes by noting a "ripple effect" caused when oil prices "have dragged coal and intrastate natural gas prices up with them."

Since everything from peanuts to power plants are produced or fueled by oil, coal or natural gas, this has meant that every price rise can, in part, be tied to the oil price hikes. The cozened consumer, therefore, has been tagged twice: Once with the $11.5 billion loss and once with the higher general prices this rise has brought on.

Skyscraper Capitol Called 'Boondoggle'

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The cost of Florida's new skyscraper capitol "will probably be to $60 million or $80 million," according to state Sen. David McClain, R-Tampa.

"This $42 million figure is just the beginning," McClain said in a Wednesday interview.

"It's the biggest boondoggle in the history of the state of Florida. The public will only know about it after they have been asked to pay for it."

The cost of the new 22-story building has risen $17 million over its original cost of $25 million because of inflation and other factors in the two years since it was approved.

McClain said furnishings and "little appointments" could push the cost of the building even higher than $60 million.

McClain and former Senate President Jerry Thomas, Republican candidate for governor, lost an appeal court bid in September to halt construction.

The two contended in a suit that the Cabinet did not have authority to put the building on land set aside as a park by the 1961 Legislature. They have been trying since 1972 to block construction.

Thomas has called the capitol "the most outrageous disregard of the taxpayers I've ever seen."

McClain and Thomas lost an earlier suit in the Florida Supreme Court to halt construction on grounds that a $25 million appropriation in the budget bill was not sufficient legislative authority for the building.

Meanwhile, state officials said 40 broken pilings had been found in the foundation and the search was continuing.

Six were found in the first 18 checks and 34 more were found in a string of 102 examined in the center of the building site, Bob Brown, General Services Department architect, said.

Brown said D&A Equipment Co., the contractor, will pay for the inspection and repair of the pilings, huge steel rods driven down 40 feet to bedrock to support the building.

Okaloosa Tax Assessor Indicted

CRESTVIEW, Fla. (AP) — Okaloosa County Tax Assessor Rhet Cadenhead, indicted by a grand jury on 75 felony and six misdemeanor counts of criminal malfeasance in office, says he is confident he will be found innocent.

"When the time comes for me to present my side of the case and the people hear the facts, they will exonerate me," Cadenhead said following his arrest Wednesday.

Also arrested after being indicted by the grand jury Wednesday was Jerry Armstrong, an employee of the tax assessor's office, who was charged with one count of conspiracy.

Okaloosa County Sheriff Ray Wilson said both men were released on their own recognizance.

"I worked for the people of this county for 14 years and I feel like the people of this county know I've tried to do a good job," said Cadenhead, 41, a former postal clerk now in his fourth term as assessor.

The indictment accused Cadenhead, an elected official, of "utter disregard to his constitutional responsibility."

Among the charges, the indictment alleged:

—Cadenhead's wife, Sue, was kept on the county payroll and earned $38,000 over the past 36 months for little or no visible duties.

Bond had been recommended set at $78,000 for Cadenhead and $5,000 for Armstrong, but the men were released by order of Circuit Judge Irwin Fleet, Wilson said.

Cadenhead was re-elected in 1972 by a narrow margin after an audit questioned his charging the county for trips to Honolulu and Las Vegas. Cadenhead said the trips were necessary in his role as president of the Florida Association of Tax Assessors.

Russell was appointed by Gov. Reubin Askew to head an investigation of alleged corruption in the county.

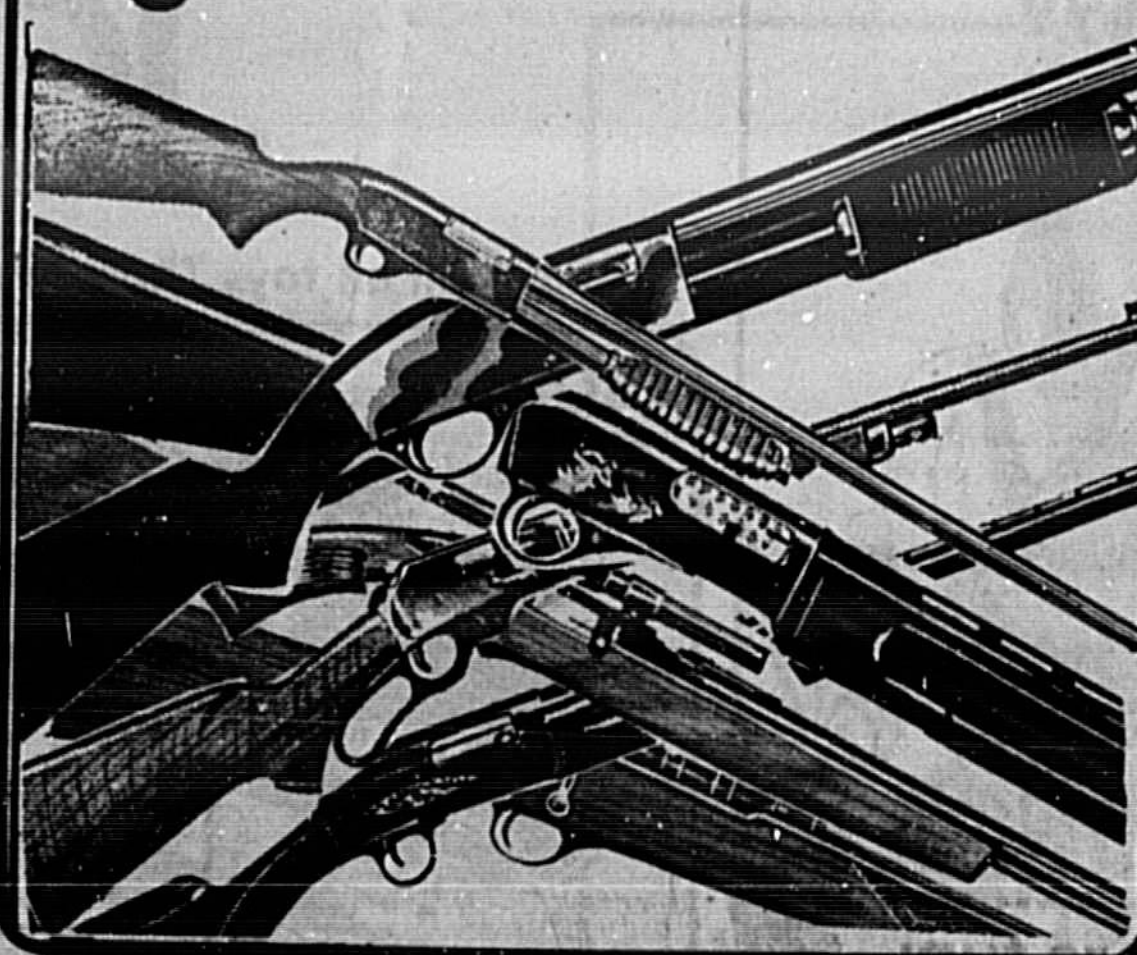

The indictments were returned by an Okaloosa County grand jury directed by special prosecutor James T. Russell of St. Petersburg.

The Pink Ladies of Seminole Memorial Hospital Auxiliary are donating funds for the purchase of a $4,000 cardiac monitor and a $6,000 fetal monitor it was announced to the hospital board at this week's meeting.

When it was learned that Dr. Charles Park Jr. had pledged $1,000 toward the purchase of a second cardiac monitor, board member Andrew Carraway pledged another thousand. Hospital Administrator Robert Besserer said he could raise $1,000 toward the purchase among doctors on the medical staff.

A change in obstetrical procedure that would allow a husband to remain with his wife in the delivery room has been proposed and will be discussed at the next executive committee meeting.

Besserer reported that the one-day surgery out-patient clinic will probably open Nov. 1. Rules set up by the committee call for the clinic to be open three days a week, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday 6:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Any one needing to stay longer will be admitted to the hospital as a regular patient.

It was announced that self-protection classes for all employees—men as well as women—will be conducted Oct. 23 and 24 in afternoon and evening.

Proposed Tower Hazard Airport Manager States

Sanford Airport Authority members expressed serious concern about the proposal of an Orlando television station to erect a transmission tower in the area of Osteen.

Airport Manager J.S. "Red" Cleveland explained the outcome of a public meeting last week regarding the request by Channel 2. The majority of those attending were opposed to the proposition he said because of the hazard it would create to pilots flying in the area.

Cleveland explained the tower, proposed to be 2,050 feet, is higher than any other in the area, but more importantly it completes a wall of towers of other stations in the area of airport.

The danger is two fold he explained. Pilots on instrument landings would find it necessary to radically change their approach pattern, allowing for greater height if the landing is missed on the first attempt. Also, the tower itself is a hazard to pilots, unmarked, except for the red flashing lights at night. This was criticized by several board members as not being a sufficient warning to the pilots.

Cleveland said in the last six or seven years, there have been as many as 53 air crashes involving such structures.

The Florida Airport Managers Association will meet with state and federal aviation agency officials in Orlando on Friday, Oct. 25, in hopes of preventing the construction of the tower.

Cleveland added the city is preparing an ordinance to govern the height of structures within the city limits in the area surrounding the airport. It is ready for the second reading at the next city council meeting. However, the council has no such ordinance.

In other action at the Thursday meeting, the Authority: Approved the lease of space to three interests, the City of Sanford, for a dog pound at a cost of $288 per year; DeWitt, McGee and Associates, office space, at an annual rental of $2,884; and Phi Delta Enterprises, who uphold the ambulances of Starline Enterprises.

POLLY'S POINTERS Elbow Grease Fails Stairs

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — When I removed the rubber-backed carpet from my back stairs I found the backing had stuck to the steps. I tried scraping and scrubbing but neither worked. I hope some reader has suggestions as to how I might remove this. — K.J.C.

DEAR POLLY — Do tell Carla the way I get a cork out of a bottle is to use a wire string with several knots made on one end, one on top of the other, until the knot is of a good size. Lower the string inside the bottle, with knots at the bottom, turn bottle upside down so the cork will fall into the neck of the bottle and the knot will be behind the cork. Pull. Presto, the cork will come out. — FLORENCE.

DEAR POLLY — I am a school teacher who has discovered chalk is good for more than its intended use. I find it is often most effective for covering soil and blemishes in wallpaper. It comes in so many shades that one is bound to blend with the paper. I find I use cream colored the most and just gently rub it in with a clean fingertip. — ELIZABETH.

DEAR POLLY — When wrapping food for the freezer I use masking tape and write on it the items enclosed and the date. Often such writing becomes so blurred I could not read it. Now I put a strip of clear cellophane tape over the writing to protect it as it is most important to keep food moving according to dates. — ANNE.

DEAR POLLY — My husband sleeps during the day so dark shades or curtains were needed in the room where he sleeps but I could not find any to fit the windows. I decided to use black bath towels. One side was hemmed to slip on the curtain rod and I soon had good practical and reasonably priced shades that are easy to keep clean. They can be washed and are ready to hang again in no time at all. — LUPITA.

DEAR POLLY — I would like to respond to A.F.R. who resents little ones crying in church. We have five children and used to go through that wiggly embarrassment and often resorted to taking them out.

Finally we realized the little ones did not understand why they were in church. They were in the back, could not see the minister and what was going on so it was impossible to explain that they should be quiet while the man was talking. We moved to the front of the church. I mean way up front and sometimes there were several empty rows behind us. Our little ones soon became models of propriety and to this day people compliment us on how well behaved our children are. They are now teen-agers and we still sit in the front and pretty much alone. If any families with little ones would care to join us I am sure they would be pleased with the results. — ELSA.

DEAR POLLY — Cindy should take her yellow satin shoes back to the store where they were dyed and have brown dye put over the yellow and then they should be beautiful. If she cannot go to the same place, any other store that dyes shoes would do them for her. I dyed many pairs when I sold shoes and know this can be most successful. — DOT.

DEAR ABBY He Needs Father For A Friend

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I needed some Scotch tape so I looked in my son's desk for some, and collected the beginning of a letter my son had written to his girl friend. It read: "I am only interested in being stoned, spending money and sex." I read no further. My first impulse was to confront him with this, but then he would say I had no right to go snooping through his desk. I don't think I should go on ignoring this. I would appreciate some advice. He is 18 1/2.

BEWILDERED FATHER

DEAR FATHER: You could be about 17 years too late. It won't help you now to be reminded that you failed to build the kind of father-son relationship that inspires trust, confidence and total honesty. It's possible that what you read did not reflect your son's thoughts accurately, however. Don't tell him what you saw, but try to get a dialogue going so you can get inside his head. Encourage honesty, and no matter what he says, be cool, and don't put him down or make him feel guilty. If you can develop candid two-way communication, you'll be able to influence and eventually help your son. He doesn't need punishment, Father, he needs a mature understanding friend.

DEAR ABBY: About a week before our daughter and her steady graduated from high school, they told us that she was pregnant and they wanted to get married. There was a long silence, then my husband said: 'We've all made mistakes in our lives, but some of us never got caught. Now you two kids will have to excuse us for five minutes while we plan our daughter's wedding.'

Then Dad led me into the bedroom, handed me $25 and said: "Let's see if you're as smart about money now as you were 25 years ago."

Needless to say, time was short, so I went downtown the next morning and bought six yards of yellow cotton, two simple floral patterns, two yards of pink lace, two yards of ivory lace, and some pink and ivory ribbon—all for less than $10. (I had $15 left over for the flowers and reception. Boy, I had money to burn!)

My younger daughter (age 15) and I made the dresses. I baked the wedding cake and made punch. Only the very immediate families were invited to the wedding.

Our minister performed the ceremony in front of our fireplace, which was decorated with greenery from our garden and two white candles. The girls were beautiful in their simple dresses with their long black hair tied back with ribbons to match their dresses. The bride carried a single ivory carnation, and her sister, a pink carnation.

We made sure the fridge was well stocked, and Dad, Sister and I spent the week-end in a neighboring town with Dad's brother. Dad says I'm still as smart about money as I was 25 years ago. NO NAMES PLEASE

DEAR NO: You're not only smart about money, you are wise about other things, too. And so is your husband.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "EVANSVILLE, INDIANA": You are mistaken. No one said "ignorance is bliss." The quote is, "Where ignorance is bliss, it's folly to be wise."

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to: ABBY, Box No. 4978, L.A., Calif. 90048. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

DR. L. E. LAMB Grandson Needs Operation Now

DEAR DR. LAMB — My 7-year old grandson has an undescended testicle. His doctor says it will have to be surgically descended into the scrotum and that it should be done by the time he is 8 years old. Further, he says that normal development depends upon both testicles being in place in the scrotum. My question is, in what way is normal development affected? What would be likely to happen if nothing were done about this? Is this a common situation among boy babies? If so, I wonder about the countless ones whose parents cannot afford surgery?

DEAR READER — Most doctors agree something should be done about the problem before puberty gets very far along, so doing it by age 8 is quite reasonable. Some boys can be treated by hormones at an early age, but this should not delay surgical correction if the boy is approaching puberty. That is why your doctor wants it done by age 8.

In the undescended testicle the part that forms sperm cells will degenerate and will not produce any live sperm cells for reproduction. The cells that produce male hormones, though, still function. If both testicles are undescended then the male may have a normal male personality and appearance, but he will be sterile. With one normal testicle producing sperm, though, he may still be able to father children.

This condition is rare, occurring in only about one in 200 male babies. Many of these will have a spontaneous descent in the first year of life. After that most of them won't descend unless corrected. And, there is an increased risk of cancer of the undescended testicle if it is not corrected. This is a small risk but, nevertheless, an additional consideration.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is the difference between stillborn and estrogen? Are they both hormones?

Irish Youth Suffer Belfast Violence

EDITOR'S NOTE — Ulster's 400,000 children are caught in a five-year-old crossfire of terror and violence. Some have battle scars; some have suffered mental breakdowns. Psychiatrists say many kids are hooked on violence and may never kick the habit.

By ED BLANCHÉ
Associated Press Writer
BELFAST (AP) — "If you hate the British Army clap your hands."
Words of a children's street song in the Catholic Falls Road quarter of this war-torn city are a litany of hate sung by kids who see British soldiers march the same as French kids or Dutch kids once viewed the Nazi conquerors in Europe.

Like Jimmy Brophy, street warrior and aspiring terrorist, "My brother's a provie," he boasts. "He's killed two soldiers. He hasn't been home in a long time. But I'm joining the provies soon."

Jimmy is 12, a cheeky kid who's already mastered the art of street warfare. He laughs a lot. But there's a brittle edge to it, echoes of the riots rampaging, the bombs exploding, the gun battles raging and the instinctive, gut-wrenching panic that grabs innocent and guilty alike when the Army swoops in on a search.

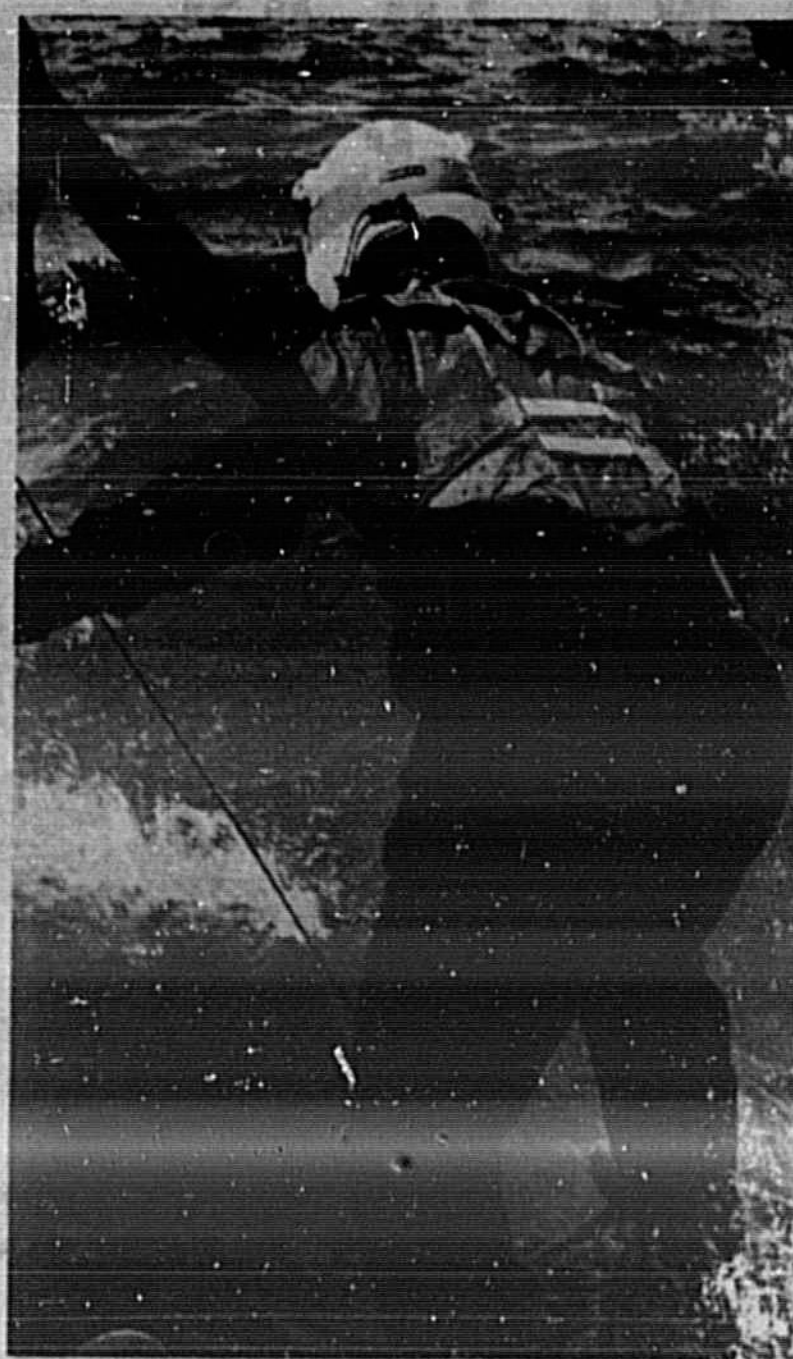

A "provie" is a guerrilla with the Irish Republican Army's "provisional" wing, the mainly Catholic movement that wants to drag Ulster into the neighboring Irish Republic.

The bloodshed of Ireland's heritage goes on. Kids just a couple of years older than Jimmy are part of it.

When they were his age they stored troops. Now they fire high-powered rifles or Soviet-made RPG-7 rockets at them. The youngsters in the Protestant and Catholic ghettos have been reared on violence since British troops intervened five years ago. More than one thousand men, women and children have died, thousands more have been wounded and maimed. The bomb destruction is frightening.

Some of these youngsters bear the scars of battle, like the cocky little Catholic kid who proudly opened his shirt to display a big black bruise on his chest — a wound inflicted by a rock-hard six-inch rubber bullet from an Army riot gun.

Others have suffered mental breakdowns, like the little girl who screams when she hears a door slam because she thinks it's a bomb exploding. Or the 8-year-old Protestant boy whose family has moved four times in two years trying to dodge the violence. He displays classic symptoms of acute neurosis.

Coast Guard crewman practices rescue techniques

He Didn't Need Binoculars

ASTORIA, Ore. (AP) — Mike Allison looks at the world through the window of a helicopter. He is a flight mechanic for the Coast Guard search-and-rescue team based in Astoria. During a routine flight along the Oregon coast recently, Allison was looking down at the ocean, hoping to spot a whale.

"Hey! I see something down there," Allison told the pilot through his headphones. "Looks like a guy waving."

"Come on, Allison. You can't see a guy waving from 2,000 feet," said co-pilot Terry Robertson. "You're not even using the binoculars."

The radioman chimed in, "You seeing sea gulls down there again, Allison?" "Really," Allison insisted. "I see a guy in the water and he isn't in a boat."

"Okay," said Robertson. "We'll make a lazy circle and have a look."

Allison 21 was not seeing sea gulls. Below was Charles Machan, clinging to what remained of his fishing boat. An hour earlier, the bow of the 21-foot boat split suddenly and the hull filled with water. Machan, 33, of Lincoln City, had no radio aboard to call for help.

He grabbed some floats as the boat sank. Machan knew he could not last long in the chilly water. He kept checking the time on his watch. He decided he was too far out to swim for shore. Finally, he heard the whop-whop of the helicopter's rotor blades.

"I waved and yelled, but I thought they'd never see me," he said. "I feared it was all over. Then they turned around and came back."

On board the helicopter, Allison rolled back the big side door, manned his rescue position and spoke into his intercom. "Basket going down. Basket on the surface. Man getting in basket. Raising the basket. Man and basket on board."

Three minutes after spotting him in the water, Allison was wrapping a blanket around Machan and putting him under the heater. Machan's lips were blue. His whole body was trembling.

Robertson, 25, radioed ahead to Newport to have an ambulance standing by. Machan was rushed to the hospital. Doctors looked him over and prescribed a hot bath.

"It's hard to explain the good feeling I had bringing this guy to safety," Allison said. Robertson agreed. "The funny thing was we weren't supposed to be on a rescue mission," he said.

"We just happened on the guy while we were taking some spare parts to Newport. It was a Saturday morning. The night before I tried to talk the operations officer out of having us make the run. Nobody wants to make a routine run on the weekend. But afterward I was happy we went."

Now that the party primaries are out of the way, everyone can begin to think about the General Election on November 5th.

I want to thank all of you publicly for making it possible for me to again run as your independent Senator. 17,167 people - Democrats, Republicans and independents - signed my nominating petitions, more than twice the number required by Florida election laws.

Because of you, I can continue to work as everybody's Senator, through people political rather than party politics.

During the next month I will be both your Senator and your candidate. If I can be helpful to you as your Senator, please contact me at the Senate office listed below. If you have any helpful thoughts for me as your candidate, I hope you will contact me at the Campaign address listed.

Thankfully and independently yours,

Music Education is Progressive

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — What do switched-on teens & 6-year-old composers and third-grade jazz buffs have in common? They're all amateur musicians, for one thing. And they're all involved in an unprecedented sort of music education that's sweeping American schools.

There are electronic music courses where students tinker with a synthesizer, classes in which students compose, then perform, their own songs, and schools where music is in tune with the entire academic curriculum.

A recent study by the American Music Foundation (AMF) here found a diverse sampling of innovative school music programs across the country — from individual courses in small-town schools to entire school systems in major metropolitan areas.

The new look in music is substantiated by statistics which indicate that 30 per cent of the elementary schools and 52 per cent of the high schools polled in a recent national survey plan to expand music programs.

The programs cited by the AMF vary in scope, format and instruction methods, but all rely on a creative teacher, all are child-oriented and all have encouraged students to view music as an integral part of their lives.

Musical math, noteworthy history and tuned-in science classes are not at all unusual in schools where music has been integrated into the entire curriculum.

In 12 Columbus, Ohio, elementary schools an Arts Impact Program has done just that.

Originally funded by the federal government, the year-long program now involves some 5,700 students and 190 faculty members. Instead of a separate class period for the subject, music is related to every aspect of academics, from math to gym. History students may study the music of the era while the instrumental music they're studying; art students may base their paintings on musical works. Librettos and lyrics are written by students, which they later perform, directed and produce in musical numbers.

During the first grade, students jointly compose their first song, learn to read it from notes and play it on such instruments as the xylophone, the metronome and the glockenspiel. They also learn the fundamentals of note reading, harmony, rhythm and structure.

During second and third grade, students begin to write and direct staged musical productions. By the fourth grade, they're introduced to the study of orchestral instruments and part-time specialists visit the school to teach violin, cello, flute and clarinet.

Composition is also making an impact on the music curriculum at Evanston, Ill., Township High School, where vocalists and instrumentalists meet twice a day to compose, sing and play their instruments.

The group uses only original music — written by members, by students in the school composition classes or by the music faculty.

40-Year Screen Vet Milland Still Acting

NEW YORK (AP) — Ray Milland glanced with disinterest at the champagne chilling in the silver bucket sent to his suite by the manager of the luxurious mid-Manhattan hotel.

"I hate champagne — in fact, I hardly drink at all," confided the man whose Academy Award-winning role in "The Lost Weekend" made him the international symbol of an alcoholic.

"But I smoke two thurs," he added, searching for a lozenge to ease a throat irritated by the day of back-to-back interviews and television appearances on behalf of his just-published autobiography, "Wide-Eyed in Babylon."

A bit heavier, grayer, and a good deal baldier than he appeared in some 200 movies, Milland retains the sophisticated charm that has kept him on the screen for more than 40 years.

And despite the fact that he is in his mid-60s he's still there, having made six pictures in five countries during the last 16 months.

"I don't have to worry about the youth syndrome any more," explains the 6-foot-2 actor, who played a father in "Love Story" and a grandfather in his latest movie, "Gold," and who usually has a 2-year-old grandson.

"As you get older you don't have to strike any poses any more and you can just be yourself," he goes on. "My greatest worry when I was young was my head of jet black hair. The first thing in the morning I had to check and see if I sleep on it wrong so that it stood out like wire all over my head. Now I don't have any hair so I don't have to worry."

Though most of the hair may be gone, Milland still has an indelible reminder of his younger years — a tattoo that he acquired the summer he worked on a tramp steamer in the Mediterranean.

"That's one of my big regrets, but then I was only 15," he admits, rolling up the sleeve of his bright blue shirt to display a skull on his right arm, fading but still clearly visible.

He ducked the first trick. This maneuver is known as rectifying the count. South still had his 11 sure winners. He was trying for 12.

After that start it was all over for the defense. South won the second diamond cashed his ace-king-queen of spades; entered dummy with a high club and cashed the jack of spades. That play squeezed East. He had to duck a club or a heart and either discard gave South the slam.

You should note that if South won the first trick the squeeze could never develop, since East could never be forced to throw either a heart or a club.

Educators Explain Amendment One

By BILL BELLEVILLE
Herald Staff Writer

A reduction in property taxes might be in store for Seminole County if a state education amendment is approved at the polls Nov. 5, according to state officials speaking at the Orlando Press Club Thursday.

Local educators Dr. Earl Weldon, president of Seminole Junior College, and Seminole School Superintendent William P. Lauer joined Florida Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington, state Senator Robert Graham, and state Rep. Robert Johnson in urging public support for the amendment.

The Public Education Building Amendment will renew authority (approved by the voters in 1963 and 1969) for the state to issue bonds for construction and improvement of educational facilities: vocational-technical centers, community colleges, and universities. But, for the first time, it will also provide aid for public school construction and renovation.

And, with this new measure, the amendment is expected to supply almost one-half of the construction costs for public schools in Florida.

State Rep. Johnson, chairman of the House Education Committee, told the small group of local educators and press that "the amendment will provide funding currently supplied by levying a real estate tax in counties."

The amendment is funded by a gross receipts tax. The 1½ per cent tax is paid by utility companies, including municipalities, on the gross amount of their receipts.

Even if the extension of the amendment is defeated, the tax would permit extending the program for 12 more years and extending the bonding capacity limit from 75 per cent to 90 per cent of the gross receipts revenue available.

Sen. Graham headed off the claim that a leveling-off in Florida birth rates would nullify the need for the amendment. "There are almost 6,000 people who come to Florida weekly. Many of these are school aged children.

Public Housing Panel Seeks 300 New Units

By BGB LLOYD
City Editor

The Sanford and Seminole County housing authorities have taken the first steps toward getting 300 new rent subsidy housing units for area low income families.

Meeting jointly Thursday night in Sanford the two boards passed resolutions approving applications to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) requesting authorization of the new units under Section Eight of the U.S. Housing Act that becomes effective Jan. 1.

The Sanford Housing Authority administers 480 low rent, public housing units in the city and the county authority has 30 units at Oviedo.

Thomas Wilson III, executive director for both authorities, said studies show there is "very little that can be done in substantially rehabilitating" existing substandard housing to fill the needs of a waiting list of 2,100 families seeking housing assistance.

Wilson recommended both authorities pursue the new Section Eight lease housing since federal funds aren't available for conventional public housing projects.

The developer is responsible for design, construction, maintenance and screening of tenants. The local housing authorities only act as agency administering the rent subsidies.

Wilson said the program would require four more SHA local administrative employees that would be funded by HUD.

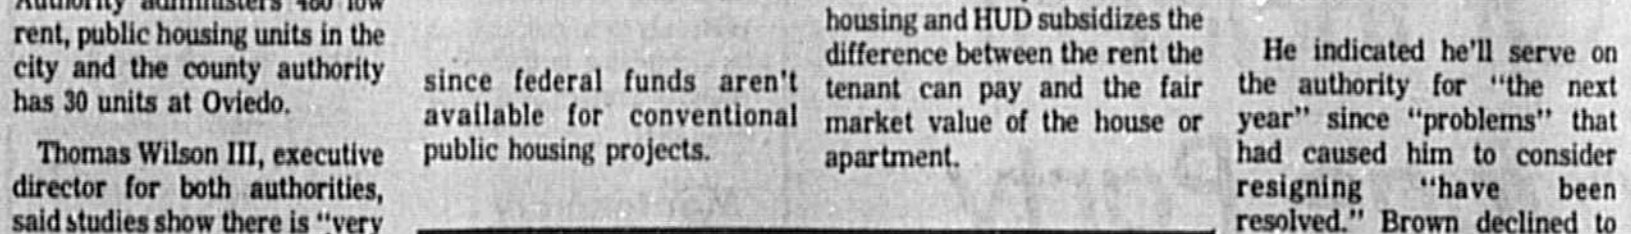

Wick Austin, member of the county housing board, called the resolutions, "just opening the door to see what's available in low cost housing."

George Brown, SHA member selected by tenants, said he will not resign as he is previously announced.

He indicated he'll serve on the authority for "the next year" since "problems" that had caused him to consider resigning "have been resolved." Brown declined to elaborate on the "problems."

In other actions, the Sanford Housing Authority:

- Awarded the low bid of $176,570 to Boyce Construction Co., for modernization of 40 apartments in Edward Higgins Terrace. Following pre-contract negotiations, the renovation work is expected to begin within three weeks.
- Tabled for further study HUD recommendations that the authority use only the Brooke Amendment formula in figuring tenant rents. Wilson said if the change isn't approved by Oct. 14, the local authority will have to hold public hearings on the proposal.
- Approved purchase of two electronic calculators for use in the authority administrative offices.
- Agreed to work with the Tenants Council in seeking ways to bring the day care center at Castle Brewer Court up to state standards. The center is not now operating because the Tenants Council has been unable to find someone willing to oversee the operation.

Fathers will be honored at the eighth annual "Dad's Day" ceremonies of the Sanford Naval Academy Saturday, featuring remarks by Commander John McCain of Orange Park.

The festivities for fathers and sons, and mothers too, begin with a morning golf tournament among the males at Mayfair Country Club.

Water recreation on Lake Monroe with crew, sailing and water skiing follows. A Cross country track meet will be held at 2:45 p.m. at the Sanford Memorial Stadium. A coffee for the females, and a Dad's Club meeting precede the buffet luncheon.

The "Salute to Dads" will be presented by Commander John McCain who was a prisoner of war for five and one-half years in North Vietnam. A soccer game at the stadium between Sanford and Howey Academy will cap the day's activities.

UF Drive Nears Half Goal

Tom Hunt, United Fund Campaign Chairman received reports from major division leaders at the second report luncheon Thursday at the Sanford-Seminole Jaycees dutch treat gathering and found that $3,392 or 43.1 per cent of this year's $125,000 goal had been reached.

Prison Relief Plan Blasted

Jack Horner, United Fund President, reported that Seminole County's largest corporation, General Dynamics and Stromberg-Carlson, began their in-plant campaigns yesterday, also. James Kanaley and Joe Hartwig head the activity in their respective companies.

Florida Power and Light employees reported a partial pledge of $8,000. Another major report came from Montgomery Ward at Interstate Mall, also over $6,000.

Don Smith of Winter Springs, reporting for Granville Brown, public employes division chairman, announced payments and pledges of $3,000 from city employees of Sanford and Winter Springs.

Hunt was enthusiastic about school and college employees being able for the first time this year to use payroll deduction for their pledges. He noted, too, the list of pass-setter firms—100 per cent employee participation—is growing past last year's.

The new emblem for the United Fund—the three people hand-in-hand—is appearing on more and more "fair share" givers in the County. "Fair share," Hunt explained, "is a pledge of one hour's wages per month for a year."

Mrs. Sheila Brown, residential division chairman, reported 170 women, high school youth and Girl Scouts were knocking on doors in the county. "Besides serving as the voice of the United Fund," Mrs. Brown said, "we are happy to report collections of Others reporting were Rachel May, Ed Maisak, drive coordinator for Florida Power and Light and Don Harvey, assistant FF and L coordinator and Len Unitas, past campaign chairman and 1974 vice chairman.

Hunt announced that the third report session would be at the Longwood Hotel, Thursday, Oct. 1. A dutch treat dinner with the Casselberry Lions Club.

"This cannot do anything but make the job of law enforcement more difficult," Harrell said, adding that the plan to have judges sentence those convicted of crimes to county jails to relieve state prisons overcrowding will be impossible for Seminole County to bear.

"Our jail is bursting at the seams," he said. "We had to farm out eight prisoners to Lake County this morning. Others have already been sent to Orange," he said.

"If they get five years and after two months you turn them loose, you're making our job impossible," Lee County Sheriff Wanicka said at a meeting of the Florida Sheriffs Association with state corrections and probation and parole officials.

Wanicka said a Probation and Parole Commission plan to go into county jails in the next 90 days and see if prisoners to be paroled to ease overcrowding could "make a mockery of justice" by releasing after a few months felons who had received much longer sentences.

His comments seemed to mirror the feeling of sheriffs department officials present at the meeting who wanted the state to build more prisons faster and keep offenders in them
