Final arrests made in 'panty raids'

The last two models sought following last week's "panty raids" on two Fern Park shops last week have turned themselves in.

Angela Lynn Word, 25, and Cara Donna Jenkins, 20, both of Orlando, turned themselves in to a City-County Investigative Bureau agent at the county jail Monday afternoon. Both were charged with exposure of sexual organs.

CCIB agents issued warrants for six models following a two-month investigation at Tezin Lingerie and Fantasy Lingerie, both of South U.S. Highway 17-92. Agents found the models would masturbate for customers during their private lingerie modeling sessions. Sheriff Don Eslinger has asked the courts to close both businesses, citing them as public nuisances.

Pickup destroyed by fire

SANFORD — A 1984 Ford pickup truck was destroyed by fire last night. The fire occurred on West Highway 17-92, at the entrance to Central Florida Regional Hospital.

According to Sanford firefighters, Richard Covell, of Lake Marlon Drive in Deltona, was driving down the lakefront, when he saw smoke coming from under the hood of his vehicle and apparently suspected a fire.

"He parked the truck just off the edge of the highway and ran to the hospital to call 9-1-1," the firefighter said. "While he was out, the vehicle caught fire and was totally destroyed."

Firemen believe the fire was caused by an oil leak in the engine section which spilled onto the hot manifold, and resulted in the blaze.

Breast-feeding bill passes Senate

TALLAHASSEE — A bill guaranteeing the right of a woman to breast-feed her baby in public passed the Senate unanimously.

The legislation (CS-HB 231), sponsored by Sen. Patsy Kurth, D-Malabar, and Rep. Miguel De Grandy, R-Miami, goes to Gov. Lawton Chiles.

Under the bill, a woman could not be charged with violations of state laws regarding indecent exposure or lewd behavior for breast-feeding in public.

Although sponsors said there are no reported cases of women being charged under those laws, some women have been hassled by security personnel in malls and other public places for performing the act.

"Under no circumstances would breast feeding be a violation of the law," Kurth said.

The bill would have no impact on ordinances that prohibit topless sunbathing. It passed the Senate on a 37-0 vote Tuesday.

Correction

A report on the results of the Sanford Civil Service Board's refusal to lower college requirements for police and fire chief hiring, on Friday, Feb. 28. Incorrectly Indicated Fire Chief Tom Hickson has a two year college degree. Hickson does have a 2 year degree in Fire Service Administration. However, he also has a 4 year degree in Education.

Cops nab fugitives

Warrants' sweep nets 41 of 124 persons sought

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Dozens of arrests were made without incident last night as teams of deputies and policemen fanned out over Seminole County to round up fugitives.

In what is being described as a tremendous success, officers nabbed 41 of the 124 individuals they were seeking on charges ranging from assault to traffic violations. Up to a dozen other jail bookings were pending this morning on about a dozen more fugitives, said sheriff's spokesman George Proechel. A complete list of those arrested is expected to be completed this afternoon.

"It was a very, very great success," said Proechel. "We were expecting maybe a 15 percent, 20 percent arrest rate. Nothing like this. Everything just seemed to fall into place."

SANFORD — The first attempt to take government to the neighborhoods was successful. Over 65 persons attended last night's meeting.

The city was represented by Mayor Bettye Smith, district 1 Commissioner Lon Howell, City Manager Bill Simmons, Acting Police Chief Ralph Russell, and a number of top department heads.

Persons attending the meeting were residents of the district 1 area, which comprises most of the historical residential area, as well as Georgetown.

"I'm going into my fifth year on the commission," Howell said, "and I have never been to a meeting that I enjoyed more than last night's." Howell said people took the opportunity speak much easier than at formal commission meetings.

"It was almost like a one-on-one discussion," he said.

Sex charges against former county worker

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Miles Craig gave Seminole County Juvenile Detention Center supervisors no reason to suspect that he might have assaulted a young boy in his care, one supervisor said this morning.

Craig was arrested earlier in the week on charges that he molested a young boy three years ago while working at a state department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) facility in Orange County.

"He was a good employee," said Alexander Wynn, supervisor at the Seminole County facility. "We had no problems with him."

Wynn said that he did not work directly with Craig on a day-to-day basis, but that there were no complaints filed against the man.

He worked at the Seminole County JDC for "only a short time," according to Wynn, and has not been employed there for about a year and a half.

Craig was working most recently at the Cherokee School for emotionally handicapped children in Orlando.

He came to Seminole County from an Orange County facility, Wynn said. He could not confirm if it was Devereaux House, the facility where the assaults allegedly took place.

Wynn would not comment on whether or not

A weighty subject

Maude, an 18-year-old Asian elephant who lives at the Central Florida Zoo in Sanford, had to have a special truck scale brought out to weigh her during her physical exam this morning. The pachyderm weighed in at 8,700 pounds. On hand for the weigh-in were mammal keepers Dave Whaley and Fern Johnson and Officer J.K. Esters, of the state department of transportation, who brought the scale.

Teen mom charged with murdering baby

FORT WALTON BEACH — An 18-year-old high school senior was arrested and charged with murdering her newborn daughter...

Wendy Hollins claimed her baby was stillborn and had fallen into a toilet Sunday night, said Dr. Edmund Kielman, deputy medical examiner.

But Kielman said his autopsy showed no water in the infant's lungs and he classified the death as a homicide, caused by a blow to the head.

"The child suffered severe fractures to her right skull," Kielman said. "I can't conceive of that happening by the baby being dropped. A baby's skull is so flexible and elastic that it takes a lot to fracture."

Ms. Hollins was charged Tuesday with aggravated child abuse and an open count of murder and held without bond at the Okaloosa County Jail in Crestview, said Fort Walton Beach Police Chief Phil Irish.

Florida man heads team probing blast

MIAMI — The second-in-command of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in Miami is leading the team of explosives experts investigating the World Trade Center blast.

Malcolm Brady of Coral Springs heads an ATF national response team that on Monday collected and analyzed particles of debris from within the crater ripped by the explosion, the Sun-Sentinel of Fort Lauderdale reported Tuesday.

Since they were formed in 1979, ATF response teams have been successful in determining the cause in 90 percent of the 250 cases they have investigated, ATF officials say.

Brady's team, along with investigators from the FBI and New York City bomb team, took samples as they burrowed through layers of collapsed concrete toward the site of the explosion three stories below ground, said John O'Brien, ATF spokesman in New York. Getting there likely will take days, he said.

Chiles says no to Indian casino deal

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles will say no deal to an offer by the Seminole Tribe of Florida to pay the state more than $100 million a year indefinitely for an agreement to operate three casinos.

"The governor is not interested in being the governor of Nevada," Chiles' General Counsel J. Hardin Peterson told the St. Petersburg Times for a story Tuesday.

Tribal chairman James E. Billie last month sent a letter to Chiles making the financial offer to operate casinos in Tampa, Hollywood and Brighton northwest of Lake Okechobee.

Indiana reached a similar agreement recently with Connecticut Gov. Lowell Weicker, Billie said.

The Seminoles want to set up casinos at some of their bingo halls, which are legally considered reservations and exempt from state taxes and law enforcement.

Pair charged with murder of baby

FORT LAUDERDALE — A couple was charged with murder in the death of the woman's 2-month-old daughter who had been smothered by a blanket in an attempt to quiet her crying, police said.

Amy Lynn Mitch was originally reported missing Thursday by her mother, Laurel Mitch, 27, who accused a baby-sitter of taking the infant. But police said Tuesday Ms. Mitch made up the kidnapping story and arrested her and her boyfriend, Richard Hamlin, 26.

"What actually happened was that Hamlin placed a heavy afghan blanket over the baby to quiet her from crying, as was his practice," according to a police statement. "He did not remove the blanket and the baby smothered."

The couple then put the baby's body in a suitcase that Hamlin later tossed into a canal, police said. When confronted with inconsistencies in her kidnapping report, Ms. Mitch confessed and led police to the body, authorities said.

Task force to promote positive tourism

TALLAHASSEE — A task force named by Gov. Lawton Chiles went to work on a public relations package to keep visitors coming to Florida in the wake of recent, highly-publicized crimes against tourists.

Chiles named the panel last month after a top Canadian official warned citizens of that country about the recent spate of violence in Florida.

Out-of-state visitors have been targeted in armed robberies throughout the state. Two Canadians, a German and a Briton recently have been killed.

Canada is the state's top foreign market, accounting for 2.4 million visitors to Florida annually, including many who spend the winter. More than 40 million people a year come to Florida, the world's largest tourist destination.

Orange or Brevard County?

New report fuels bickering over VA hospital location

By Associated Press

ORLANDO — Conflicting views over the location of a proposed Central Florida hospital for military veterans may stall the project, say concerned officials in Orange County.

But a new report by the General Accounting Office has added fuel to the arguments of U.S. Rep. Jim Bacchus and others that the new $170 million hospital should be built in Brevard County, not Orange.

U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Longwood, warned Tuesday that initial funding from Congress this year may already be endangered, and the bickering might cause the project to slip away entirely.

McCollum wants the hospital built near Orlando International Airport. Bacchus, a Cape Canaveral Democrat, wants the facility in his district.

The GAO report released Monday said that Brevard, not Orange, will have a faster-growing veterans population by the year 2000, especially among older and poorer vets who are more likely to use the hospital.

The GAO says the VA could save money through a joint operating agreement with the Air Force, which has said it would kick in $18 million to build the hospital if it goes up near Patrick Air Force Base in Cocoa Beach.

Bacchus said the report bolsters his stand. "Given the budget constraints we face in Washington and the necessity for spending cuts, I continue to believe the best chance we have by far is for a site in Brevard County," The Democrat said.

McCollum said the report was full of holes, contending that construction costs would be the same, no matter where it is built.

"Because of the efforts of Congressman Bacchus, I'm afraid we're going to wind up with no funding for construction this year or the whole thing canned, period," he said.

"It's a very dangerous game he's playing."

After a meeting with local leaders, McCollum added: "If we're not together, we are not going to do well" in persuading Congress to approve start-up money this year.

"And we have a very good shot at losing the whole thing from the funding standpoint — just based upon the fact that it's a bad year for seeking money for anything," he said.

The conflict has local officials in Orange and Brevard counties nervous, since the 470-bed hospital would employ more than 1,500 workers and bring additional economic benefits for whatever area is selected.

After a decade of delays, the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs last year picked a 78-acre parcel of land in Orange County, saying the site was centrally located and would best serve the 262,000 veterans who live in Central Florida.

Florida's integrity attacked

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Florida's integrity was questioned by a state Supreme Court justice listening to debate over a 3 percent pay raise promised to state workers and then repealed.

"Men and women of honor are expected to abide by their contractual negotiations," said Justice Leander Shaw. "Once those contracts are firm they are expected to abide by them. Why should the state of Florida be held to lesser honor?"

A lawyer for the state, defending the repealed pay raise, replied that the court might not like the choices made by the Legislature, but that the state constitution gives the authority to make that decision only to lawmakers.

"The concept of separation of powers is fundamental to our form of government," attorney Kimberly Tucker said. She said separation of powers was the cornerstone of the state's appeal.

But Ronald Meyer, a lawyer for the workers, said separation of powers wasn't at issue in the case. He argued that once lawmakers agreed to fund the pay raise, they couldn't back out without a compelling state interest.

"Was there a money problem?" he asked the justices. "Yes. Was it a compelling state interest? No."

The Legislature agreed in the spring of 1991 to spend $50 million to fund a contract negotiated between unions for state workers and the executive branch of state government. But a few months later it became apparent that tax collections were going to fall some $60 million short of what was expected.

That meant the state's $30 billion budget was out of whack and had to be reworked — either by raising more money or cutting spending.

Officials: Ignore closure rumors but expect layoffs

By Associated Press

PENSACOLA — Navy officials say they know nothing about reports that this city's naval aviation depot, the Florida Panhandle's largest industrial employer, will be closed along with all or part of an air station at Jacksonville.

A depot spokesman at Pensacola Naval Air Station dismissed as rumor the claim by Sen. Ernest "Fritz" Hollings, D-S.C., that the aircraft overhaul facility is on a Defense Department hit list, but he said employees were told to expect some layoffs.

Capt. Spencer Robbins II, the depot's commanding officer, Monday spoke to more than 3,500 workers via in-house television, telling them to ignore such rumors, said spokesman Harry White.

"Until the secretary of defense says something, everything is pure speculation and rumor," White said.

But he said layoffs can be expected because of workload reductions. The depot plans to dismiss 185 temporary workers over the next several months.

Meanwhile, U.S. Rep. Cliff Stearns, R-Ocala, said Jacksonville might lose all or part of Cecil Field, which has an annual payroll of $225 million and economic impact of $481 million.

Pat Dooling, a spokesman for all three Jacksonville-area navy bases, said he had no information about any being slated for closure.

Cecil is home to all the Navy's East Coast FA-18 Hornet strike-fighter squadrons and all S-3 Viking sea strike aircraft that deploy on carriers.

Defense Secretary Les Aspin on March 15 will recommend bases to be closed or reorganized to the Base Realignment and Closure Commission. Congress then must approve or reject the list. It cannot make changes.

The Pensacola depot is one of several in the Navy but the only one for helicopters. In addition to work for the Navy and Marines, the depot does helicopter overhauls and modifications for the Air Force, including conversions into highly sophisticated special operations models.

The closing would be a major blow to the area's economy. The depot has an annual payroll of about $145 million.

POLICE BRIEFS

Windows smashed with golf club

Stephanie Yvonne Collini, 27, 236 Springs Run Circle, Longwood, was arrested on charges of criminal mischief and battery early Tuesday morning after her husband said she smashed the windows of a Mercedes Benz with a golf club.

Collini's husband reported to Seminole County deputies she started screaming at him after he arrived home from work and slapped his face several times. The man reported Collini went outside and smashed the windows to the car in the driveway, which belonged to another man.

Brick breaks nose

A Sanford man reported to police a group of men offered to sell him cocaine and when he declined, one of them threw a brick into his car, breaking his nose.

The man reported he and his roommate were driving along Fifth Street and Sanford Avenue when a group of men outside a pool hall walked up to his car and offered to sell them cocaine. When they refused, a man tossed a brick into his car, breaking his nose, the man reported.

Cocaine cookie found

Two Sanford men were arrested on drug possession charges following a traffic stop by Sanford police Monday.

Police report finding one half of a cocaine "cookie" in the car. Arrested on cocaine possession charges were Marvin Merrell Martin, 19, 3000 E. 20th St., and Thomas Williams, 21, 906 Holly Ave., Sanford.

Arrest made for drug possession

Two Sanford men were arrested on drug possession charges after Sanford police searched their car Monday night.

Police stopped the men's vehicle near the intersection of Interstate 4 and State Road 46 after reporting they received a tip the men would be returning from Zellwood with drugs they bought there. A search of the car revealed about 12 grams of cocaine and nine small bags of marijuana, police report. Arrested on cocaine possession charges were Danny Jermaine Lawson, 20, 68 Seminole Gardens, Sanford, and Brandon William Cash, 21.

Cocaine found inside horn button

Mark Raymond Price, 30, 345 E. Palmetto Ave., Longwood, was arrested on a cocaine possession charge by a Seminole County deputy Monday night.

A deputy reported stopping Price as he drove near Anchor Road and Commercial Street for a traffic violation. After he approached the truck, the deputy reported Price offered to allow him to search the vehicle. The deputy reported finding a piece of crack cocaine inside the horn button in the steering wheel column.

Burglary charged

David Wayne McKnight, 41, 84 William Clark Court, Sanford, was arrested on burglary charges early Tuesday morning after a man reported McKnight tried to sell him his own stolen tools for $8.

The man reported McKnight came up to him in a West 13th Street tavern and offered to sell him several tools. When the man examined a tape measure, he saw his initials on it. When he later checked on a house he had been restoring, he found a smashed window and his tools missing. McKnight was held on charges of possession and dealing in stolen property.

Warrant arrests made

The following wanted persons have been taken into custody:

• Donald Kieth Garden, 28, 90 Hidden Lake Drive, Sanford, was arrested by a Seminole County deputy following a traffic stop on Alafaya Trail Monday morning.

• Neddrell Renea Bryant, 33, 500 Oak Ave., Apt. 5, Sanford, was served with a warrant at the Seminole County jail Monday. Bryant was wanted on a charge of failure to appear in court to answer to a suspended license conviction.

Inmate executed in Arizona

By PAUL DAVENPORT
Associated Press Writer

FLORENCE, Ariz. — An inmate who said he deserved to die for strangling his pregnant fiancée was executed by injection early Wednesday.

John George Brewer, 27, went to his death 1 1/2 hours after the U.S. Supreme Court, in a 7-2 vote, lifted a stay imposed by a federal appeals judge.

It was Arizona's second execution since 1983 and the first since voters switched the state's method from the gas chamber.

Earlier Tuesday, the state Board of Pardons and Paroles refused to move to block the execution after hearing Brewer's mother argue against it and Brewer argue in favor.

"I committed this crime and I feel it is an appropriate penalty for the crime," he testified.

Brewer confessed shortly after the crime that he beat and strangled 23-year-old Rita Brier, who was 22 weeks pregnant, in the couple's Flagstaff apartment in 1987, then had sex with the corpse.

He said he had to try three times to kill her with a necktie wrapped around her neck during a 45-minute struggle. He told the parole board he wished it had taken longer to kill her. "I do not feel that she suffered enough," he said.

Brewer's mother, Elsie Brewer, who attended the parole board hearing in a wheelchair, said her son had tried to kill himself as a boy.

"I've been trying to prevent him from committing suicide ever since he was a small child. Today I was trying to prevent him from committing suicide again," she said.

It was the 192nd execution nationwide since the U.S. Supreme Court in 1976 allowed states to resume use of the death penalty.

Michael Bayless, a Phoenix psychologist who said in 1988 that Brewer was competent to plead guilty, testified that he now questioned that finding because of new material he had seen.

"I said he was competent in 1988. I was most likely in error at that time," Bayless said.

In Delaware, James Allen Red Dog, who refuses to seek appeals to attempt to save his life, also faced execution by lethal injection Wednesday for nearly decapitating a man whose throat he slit two years ago.

Father being tried for incidents more than 25 years ago

By The Associated Press

LARGO, Fla. — It's been more than 25 years since the incidents took place, but the grown children of Asa Eric Culver say they are pursuing rape charges against him now in hopes of protecting others.

"I just want to see justice done," his former stepson testified Tuesday. "I don't want to see him able to hurt any more children. Maybe if he's behind bars, I can sleep again. He ruined my life."

A year and a half ago, Culver, 57, was charged with lewd and lascivious behavior in Lake County for masturbating in front of a 9-year-old art pupil he taught through a church-oriented organization in Mount Dora.

That's when his now 34-year-old daughter, Kathie Lee Forrester, and her siblings decided to come forward.

Culver, who now lives in Old Town in Dixie County, has admitted being a pedophile who molested his children and others, the St. Petersburg Times reported today. However, his attorney Patrick Doherty says Culver denies raping anyone.

"Just as guilty as he is of these other things, he is innocent of" rape, Doherty told Pinellas County jurors Tuesday.

The lawyer said Culver's children are exaggerating to put their father behind bars. Because Florida law includes no statute of limitations for raping a child, rape rather than molestation charges were the only way the case could have been tried after so many years.

"A typical night in the Culver household began when Asa Culver got up in the middle of the night, looked at (his two daughters) and those who was going to be his sexual partner for the night," said attorney Karen McHugh, who is working with prosecutors in the case.

In the early 1970s, Culver divorced, remarried and began molesting his 6-year-old stepson. The stepson, now 28, testified that Culver molested and raped him over five years, threatening to feed him to the sharks if he ever told.

Mrs. Forrester, Culver's oldest daughter, says her memories of being molested go back to when she was 3.

Make room for county workers

As Seminole County officials study the office needs for a growing staff, a few cautionary tales should serve as warning:

- the federal government is building a new building in Atlanta, a city with a 46 percent office vacancy rate;
- a new Social Security Administration building in Chicago, a city with a 22 percent office space vacancy rate, will cost taxpayers $4 million;
- $10 million will be spent for a new federal building in downtown San Francisco, which has a 12.5 percent vacancy rate.

Get the picture? As the federal government spends millions of taxpayer's dollars, existing offices stand vacant nearby, sometimes no further away than you can throw a dollar bill. Or several million of them.

Such examples should not happen here. Commissioners have wisely decided to keep the main county functions in the old Seminole Memorial Hospital for several more years. Through renovations and remodeling, thrifty officials have provided for new staffers.

But in some county buildings, such tactics may have been exhausted. Building 310 which houses the Sheriff's Office at Central Florida Regional Airport is clearly inadequate and unnecessary. In one office, two people are stuffed into a tiny office intended for one. In another office, four desks are shoved into a room that once held two.

The county is now paying more than $120,000 yearly for the aging building, up from $30,000 in 1979. Why are we still renting offices for a permanent workforce? The Sheriff's Office should be in a publicly-owned building with adequate space to accommodate a reasonable annual staffing increase. Perhaps land is available at Five Points or some other county-owned property so scarce tax-producing commercial land is kept available for economic development.

Even the county courthouse may be about due for expansion. Despite the efforts of Clerk Maryanne Morse and the judges to make do with the available space, it is scarce. An addition may soon be in order.

But there is plenty of vacant office space in Seminole County available for lease or purchase for other growing county functions. Downtown Sanford has several vacant buildings that can be filled with government workers for a short time. Such lease arrangements could continue until a new administration building is truly needed.

Make room for county workers, but don't waste tax dollars doing it.

How to fight crime

How much longer will the people in Seminole County allow the criminal element to survive? How much longer is it going to be before the educators, the business community, the intelligentsia, the governing body, the police, the clubs and other organizations decide to take steps to eliminate crime in the county? How much longer will it be before the communities embark on a program that has been scientifically verified to eliminate the cause of crime even before it happens?

Every week I read of some kind of violence in one of the nearby counties and communities. So far the police and other monitoring agencies have been helpless to stop it from happening. Thus it is clear that another means must be employed. A method to stop crime before it happens must be used.

Crime is the result of both individual and collective stress. Stress is the result of an overload to the nervous system. Stress causes both psychosomatic problems and excessive negative behavior. Stressed individuals take their stress from work to home, from home to work and everywhere in between. They project their stress into the environment. The result is outbursts of violence and many other negative behaviors. What is needed is a method eliminating the individual and collective stress.

Only one method has ever been found to eliminate both individual and collective stress. It is called Transcendental Meditation or TM. It is a simple technique that anyone can do.

Who wants to take credit for starting Seminole County on the road to being crime free? The students? The retired people? The clubs — many of which state as their goal improving the quality of life? How about the police? After all, they exist to prevent crime from occurring.

On March 3 I will present a lecture on "Eliminating Crime in Sanford" at the Sanford library at 7 p.m. Everyone who would like to take part in the project to eliminate crime in Sanford or see it decline should be there. If you can't make it but want to be part of it, please call me at (904) 736-7846.

Who pays for Bill's economic plan?

The biggest political debate of our time has concerned "government" vs. "markets."

Two recent presidents boldly changed the balance in America. Lyndon Johnson did it in the mid-1960s with his Great Society, the root of which was that government could do more to help people. Ronald Reagan preached the opposite, that government was "the problem, not the solution."

Their times had something to do with their plans. Johnson's America was booming, ready to roll. Reagan's America was in the grip of stagflation.

Comes now is Bill Clinton's economic plan bold enough to be in the LBJ or Reagan league? If it is, might it "reverse Reagan"? Are the times propitious for such a path?

Experts differ. Some say it is bold; others say it is only modest.

The actual Clinton numbers are modest. Over the next four years the Gross Domestic Product will amount to $30 trillion. Clinton's new spending on domestic discretionary programs — a good spot to observe the growth of government — involves $97 billion, or about .03 percent (and only half that if his reductions are real).

But numbers aren't everything. Mindset may be more important than magnitude. A nose under the tent can yield a camel under the canvas. Just who is this masked man we elected? What does Clinton believe about markets vs. government?

On balance — and there is some balance — what Clinton sent to Congress shows us the face of "Government Bill." Its key chapter, titled "A Legacy of Failure," is an economically illiterate rewrite of the 1980s in order to shape the 1990s. In its own key words, but in my arrangement: "Trickle-down Reaganomics eroded family structures, offered succor to the greedy privileged few who engaged in financial scheming.

Two recent presidents boldly changed the balance in America.

while ordinary Americans were left behind and could no longer dream the American dream."

(All that, mind you, describing the world's premiere economy, which gained 19 million jobs, where real family income among rich, poor and middle class increased.)

But we have another president, too. He spoke to the Chamber of Commerce last week. It was that good old market man from Arkansas, "Business Bill!" That fellow knows regulations get in the way, that government is inefficient. He did not mention to his applauding audience that they were, in fact, the greedy, scheming, privileged few.

So what is Schizoid Bill really up to? What is the net balance of declavive direction as opposed to the modest magnitudes, of markets vs. government?

The actual Clinton budget plan itself is more Government Bill than Business Bill. He likes government. So he wants to increase existing, often tired, programs for food stamps, weatherization, AIDS, parenting, trees, forests, immunization, mass transit, worker-proffling, Head Start, one-stop career shopping and clean water, for starters. All right. That's what Democrats do, and they won.

Abortion pill: As it should be

BOSTON — The company always blamed it on the weather. The European manufacturers of the abortion pill were simply, repeatedly, and openly terrified by the American climate.

When anyone asked the heads of Roussel-Uclaf and its parent company, Hoechst, why they refused to make RU486 available to American women, they would just point to the political atmosphere. In the intemperate, unpredictable American environment, they said the pill would produce a storm of controversy. They worried that the company would be devastated by a right-to-life boycott.

But my, how quickly the prevailing winds have changed.

There's a pro-choice president in the White House. A frustrated group of Americans has begun negotiating for a Chinese version of the pill. And suddenly, the same company finds our climate rather hospitable. In a shift that would make a weatherman dizzy, Roussel-Uclaf has told the Food and Drug Administration that the abortion pill should be made available here.

It may only be a matter of time before American women have access to the early, non-surgical abortion that's already been used by 120,000 French women. Indeed, if the early RU486 research is right, Americans may have an effective morning-after pill. And abortion may finally become what it was always supposed to be: a private matter.

These days the most public threat to abortion rights isn't coming from the court or from the legislatures. The front lines now are the clinics, the parking lots around them, and the sidewalks in front of them.

There's an irony in this turn of events. Early in the movement, such clinics were conceived as low-key, low-cost, neighborhood places where women could comfortably come for all their reproductive health care, including abortion. "If the anti-choice people had designed them, they couldn't have done a better job than we did," says a rueful Barbara Radford, the head of the National Abortion Federation.

Clinics have become the isolated ghettos of abortion providers and the easy targets for pro-life activists. Abortion itself is segregated from the medical world and medical practice.

Over 90 percent of abortions are performed in specialized clinics. Doctors assume they can refer patients to clinics and are less often trained to perform abortions themselves. Only a quarter of gynecological residents are routinely taught the procedure.

Instead of having a clinic in every neighborhood, we have entire states, like the Dakotas, with only one clinic apiece. State restrictions are often written with clinics in mind and there are no abortion providers in 85 percent of the counties nationwide.

The buildings themselves are not user-friendly. They have become easy marks for arsonists and bomb-throwers and those — this is the latest — who inject putrid chemicals through the walls. Just to get in, a woman may have to run a gauntlet of pickets, and self-appointed "rescuers." While someone in the parking lot writes down the number of her license plate so she can be harassed at home.

RU486 could irrevocably change this for one simple reason: You don't need a clinic to swallow a pill.

Women who must now take long bus rides to distant cities, where they are required by some state laws to wait 48 hours, would only have to visit their gynecologist or family physician. Women, who must now be escorted along hostile sidewalks to a strange front door, could sit in the waiting room back home with patients getting pap smears and flu shots. Instead of one clinic in a town or state to terrorize, there would be thousands of doctors' offices, HMOs and college clinics to identify.

The pill does not make surgical abortions obsolete. It is only used in the first nine weeks of pregnancy, four percent of the French women who took RU486 still needed a surgical procedure. In France, the drug is still restricted to clinics, where most of the country's health care is provided.

But here, RU486, as a morning-after pill, and an abortion pill, could become part of our decentralized medical system. As Radford puts it, "If individual physicians start providing this pill on a regular basis, the anti-abortion people will have to go home."

Finally, after all these years, most abortions could truly become a matter between the pregnant woman and her doctor. What a change in the weather that would be.

These days the most public threat to abortion rights isn't coming from the court or from the legislatures.

Bureaucrats need a 'meeting meter'

WASHINGTON — Bernard De Koven, founder of the California-based Institute for Better Meetings, thinks it's high time that the federal government convene a meeting to ban most meetings.

De Koven has invented the "meeting meter," a $39.95 computer program that he calls a "taxi meter for meetings."

Before your meeting, you punch in the hourly salary of each participant and then you put a little flag down as if you were a cabbie. It lets you gauge how much the meeting is costing you — minute by minute.

"I would donate it to the federal government if they would use it consistently," joked De Koven. "The amount of money that's being spent on meetings is phenomenal. And it's even more true in the government world than the business world."

De Koven said that it would have even been an effective tool during the Pentagon procurement scandal, when Pentagon brass were spending $400 for hammers and $640 for toilet seats. "I can imagine them all sitting around the table, deciding that my meter cost too much money and buying a ($7,400) coffee pot instead," he said.

De Koven believes that Clinton's vow to re-invent government will have to start in the meeting room. "Government meetings themselves have to be re-invented," De Koven said.

"They're more ceremony than actually result-oriented. I think that's symptomatic of a government that's become more focused on its politics than on its productivity. If (bureaucrats) get paid to go to meetings, they find that it's easier to not communicate well at these meetings because that way they'll get invited to other meetings."

De Koven would target meetings like one he reported on last year. Some 85 executives from the Labor Department's Pension and Welfare Benefits Administration flew to San Francisco for an annual management conference that included a class on "cultural diversity" which cost $18,000 to arrange plus travel, meals and lodging for all the executives.

The department told us it couldn't possibly figure out the total cost of that trip without wasting even more taxpayers' money doing the calculations.

Recently, we learned that the PWBA was planning to continue its management studies next month, with a five-day junket to Atlanta. A phone call from our associate Ed Henry gave them second thoughts.

The next morning, the agency's acting director announced the cancellation of the Atlanta trip during a regularly scheduled executive staff meeting. The director, Alan Lebowitz, cited President Clinton's push toward austerity as the reason for the cancellation.

"The cancellation is related to the mood of the administration since Jan. 20," a PWBA spokesman told us. "You don't have to be pounded over the head to see the direction this administration is headed in. If it's going to be austerity, everybody has got to pitch in and do their part. The president is trying to save money, and, by golly, we work for the president."

Not all federal agencies have grounded their junketeers.

Less than 12 hours after Clinton delivered his stirring call for sacrifice in the State of the Union Address, 19 executives from the Environmental Protection Agency descended upon the eastern shore of Maryland for a two-day junket.

It's high time that the federal government convene a meeting to ban most meetings.

Administration seeks to cut federal aid to refugees

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Needy refugees trying to build new lives in the United States will have their federal cash and medical benefits cut off after five months instead of eight under a Clinton administration plan.

The reductions, which take effect April 1, come at a time when cash-strapped states are already grappling with the costs of providing medical, education and social services to refugees and other immigrants.

One state official said Tuesday that the administration's plan could shift more of the burden of aiding refugees to state or local budgets.

According to the Department of Health and Human Services, most refugees arrive in the United States with no financial resources.

The federal cash and medical assistance is available to needy refugees who are not eligible for other cash or medical programs, such as Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Medicaid or Supplemental Security Income.

The federal aid is designed to help newly arrived refugees become self-sufficient. But the economic downturn may dim job prospects for some refugees, increasingly the likelihood they will turn to the government for assistance. And those without health care coverage may turn to local emergency rooms for treatment they cannot pay for.

Governors of Florida and four other states with large immigrant populations asked President Clinton recently for federal help with programs that support refugees and other immigrants.

"If the federal government wishes to sustain a humanitarian foreign policy which fosters immigration and refugee admissions, then it must allocate the financial resources required to support this population once it has arrived," the governors said in a Jan. 31 letter to Clinton.

They called on the federal government to take immediate steps to provide all reimbursement owed to the states for services to documented and undocumented immigrants and refugees.

"States cannot be expected to pay the costs of policies which are fundamentally the responsibility of the federal government," the governors told Clinton. "This is especially the case at a time when so many states are struggling with long-term budget problems and are being forced to reassess state programs and expenditures."

The governors are Pete Wilson of California, Mario Cuomo of New York, Lawton Chiles of Florida, Ann Richards of Texas and Jim Edgar of Illinois.

According to the administration's proposal, published in Monday's Federal Register, needy refugees will receive cash and medical assistance for five months after their arrival, instead of the current eight months. The benefits are equal to state-set Medicaid and welfare payments under Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

The administration says the cuts are needed because limited funds have been set aside by the program, run by HHS. It says nearly $246 million is available for the refugees this year, a 10 percent reduction from 1992.

The president and Congress determine the number of refugees to be admitted to the United States each fiscal year. In 1993, the ceiling for those eligible for federal aid is 122,000, down from 131,624 in 1992.

To be designated as refugees, individuals must have a well-founded fear of persecution in their country of origin because of their race, religion, nationality or political opinion.

During his election campaign, Clinton opposed the Bush administration's policy of intercepting Haitian refugees at sea and returning them to Haiti without considering their pleas for political asylum. After the election, he changed his position.

The Supreme Court heard arguments Tuesday on the situation.

Road

will increase the further west you travel."

The concept is to be presented for informational purposes to the Lake Mary City Commission at Thursday night's regular meeting.

Under the city code, the Seminole County Planning Department has been vested with the authority to assign and change the address numbers. The aim is to allow a more uniform numbering system throughout the county.

The uniform numbering system is to enhance 9-1-1 emergency response time by eliminating number repeats along Lake Mary Boulevard. Also, the boulevard extension has different numbers assigned to it.

West said, "The plan is to send notices to property owners in April or May, alerting them to the address change. The notice will give them a minimum of six months to make the change so that advertising, stationary and legal papers for each property or business may be changed."

West indicated the county will readdress properties west of Country Club Road first, then change address numbers between Country Club Road and U.S. 17-92 afterward.

Addresses, including that of the city hall, will change at the beginning of next fiscal year, Oct. 1, 1993.

According to the latest city directory, numbering on the boulevard at 17-92 begins in the 100's and progresses through the 900's at the Lake Mary City limits. Continuing westerly, but within the city limits, numbers begin in the 400's, and decline to the intersection of Country Club Road, where the address of the convenience store across from the city hall is 110.

From that point westward, numbers again start at 100 (City Hall), and continue upward through the 900's again, at Interstate 4.

The matter is scheduled for discussion during Thursday night's city commission meeting, scheduled to begin at approximately 7 p.m., or immediately following the conclusion of a joint meeting between the commission and the Lake Mary Planning and Zoning board.

very well organized by our warrants people."

With all seven cities participating, Proechel said seven teams spread out through the county at midnight this morning seeking the wanted persons. Proechel said each team included a warrants deputy, police officer, a K-9 unit, and a traffic unit. The charges included aggravated assaults, carrying a concealed firearm and robbery. Proechel said a Tuesday night was selected because most working people would be home and not drinking or using drugs.

Each equipped with a stack of arrest warrants, the teams went 'a'callin'.

Although several fugitives tried to hide when the teams arrived, officers and K-9s were able to apprehend them, Proechel said. There were no scuffles, he said.

"Our first priority was the safety of the officers," said Proechel. "Nobody was hurt."

Because of the success of the operation, Proechel said warrants officers hope to repeat the sweep periodically.

"We wouldn't do it on a regular schedule, of course," Proechel said. "But it was very, very effective and they'd like to do it against from time to time."

Lake Mary agenda

By NICK PPRIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Two meetings of the city commission will be held this Thursday, March 4. Prior to the regular commission meeting a joint workshop will be held with the Planning and Zoning Board.

Items listed on the agenda for the joint meeting, scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. are as follows:

- Providing for Planning and Zoning approval of site plans, subdivisions and variances
- Providing for staff discretion to enforce certain code requirements
- Outline of City Commission priorities concerning land development issues
- Explanation of ex parte communications

The regular city commission meeting is scheduled to follow the joint meeting, at 7 p.m. If the joint meeting extends beyond one hour, the regular meeting will begin immediately following.

Items on the agenda are as follows:

- Special presentation — Analysis of bond refinancing
- Status report — Primavera development
- Citizen participation
- Reports from City Manager, Mayor, City Attorney
- Motions and ordinances by City Commission
- Public hearing, Second reading — Ordinance — Amending off-street parking requirements
- Public hearing — Ordinance — Extending acceptance period for gas franchise

Both meetings will be held in the commission chambers of Lake Mary City Hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Boulevard.

Sanford P&Z agenda

SANFORD — Five items are presently listed on the agenda for Thursday night's meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

1. — Public hearing to consider a conditional use application for property located at 1901 Country Club Road, for the purpose of a welding establishment for ornamental wrought iron.
2. — Public hearing to consider an application for dimensional variance for a nonconforming structure at 613 E. 1st Street, for use as a professional office.
3. — Request for site plan approval for professional office for Thomas C. Greene, Attorney, at 613 E. 1st Street.

4. — Request for a one-year extension of the approval of final plat and improvement plans for Carrige Cove North.
5. — Request for a 60 day extension of the site plan approval for Alfred Cann Project, 1006 W. 25th Street.

The regularly scheduled meeting of the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission will be held Thursday, March 4, beginning at 7 p.m., in the City Commission chambers at Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

Bills to change sentencing, control release methods, add judges passed

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A bill to end minimum mandatory and habitual offender sentencing requirements as part of Gov. Lawton Chiles' "safe streets" program passed Tuesday in the House.

Members voted 67-48 to pass the measure (CS-HB 79) and send it to the Senate.

Also approved, 115-0, was a measure (HB 1835) to let the state's Control Release Authority consider freeing some less violent inmates already sentenced under minimum mandatory or habitual offender laws.

That would avoid an October prison gridlock that would force the release of violent criminals to make room for incoming offenders, said the sponsor, Rep. Kelley Smith, D-Palmetto.

The House also voted 119-0 to pass and send the Senate a bill (HB 1907) to create four new judgeships in the state's District Courts of Appeal, 13 in circuit courts and seven in county courts.

The sentencing guidelines bill was designed to supplement Chiles' proposals to build more prison beds by making more current beds available for violent criminals.

"This says the worst, most violent offenders are going to have first priority to go to prison," said Rep. Jimmy Charles, D-Ormond Beach. The bill would end a system under which 18,700 state prison inmates last year served less than six months of their sentences, said Rep. Elvin Martinez, D-Tampa, who sponsored the bill.

Rep. Carol Hanson, R-Boca Raton, said sheriff's and state attorneys opposed the elimination of the minimum mandatory sentences for some offenses and the option of prosecuting some as habitual offenders.

"You are about to take away two very important law enforcement tools from our state attorneys," Hanson said.

Martinez said violent criminals would serve more jail time under the new system, however, and judges would be able to sentence nonviolent offenders to alternatives such as drug treatment programs or work camps.

Criminals would serve an average of 75 percent of their sentences under the new system, compared with about one-third at present, said Rep. Scott Clemons, D-Panama City. "This bill's nickname is 'truth in sentencing,'" he said.

the Seminole County facility was aware of the HRS complaint against Craig when he worked here.

According to Aire Owens, a supervisor with HRS in Orange County under whom Craig was most recently employed, refused to comment on Craig or on allegations that HRS failed to report to law enforcement officials about the alleged assaults on the 11-year-old boy in his care.

Craig was arrested after the mother of the alleged victim found out that he was still employed in a position that allowed him to work with emotionally handicapped children.

Craig is currently being held without bond in the Orange County jail on charges of sexual battery on a child under 12, sexual activity by a custodial authority and lewd and lascivious behavior in the presence of a child.

Honesty pays off

By Associated Press

BUENA PARK, Calif. — Honesty is paying off for a homeless couple who found a wallet and returned it because they wanted to teach their son a lesson.

The wallet that Tom and Pauline Nichter returned contained a $1,500 plane ticket, a wad of $100 bills and credit cards. The tourist who lost it rewarded them with a handshake.

But after radio and television stations and newspapers carried stories on the couple, well-wishers sent them almost $10,000 and a local real estate agent offered them six months' free rent in an apartment.

They move in Wednesday after months of sleeping with relatives and living in their car.

Biker dies at CFRH after Volusia crash

SANFORD — William Olson, 45, of Holidayburg, Pa., became the 12th Biker Week motorcycle fatality of the year when he died at Central Florida Regional Hospital at 10:06 p.m. Tuesday.

Olson, who, with two friends, were struck by a pickup truck on State Road 415 in Osteen, was participating in Biker Week activities in Daytona Beach.

Alfred J. Gates, 55, of Altoona, Pa., and Thomas Bowlan, 45, also of Altoona, were also involved in the accident. Gates died at the scene. Bowlan, is being treated at Halifax Medical Center in Daytona Beach.

According to the Florida Highway Patrol, the crash occurred about 7:30 p.m. when the pickup truck made a left turn in front of the motorcycle. The driver of the pickup and his passenger were not hurt in the accident.

A Highway Patrol spokesman said that charges have not yet been filed against the driver of the pickup, but that the investigation was continuing to determine if they should be.

southbound runs per day. A sign on the door of the former terminal suggests passengers board the bus and buy tickets at the next stop or from the driver.

The hub, discussed at various times in the past year, would have a combination of rail, bus and air traffic serving the Sanford area, all possibly located in the same general area.

Dave Farr, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce commented, "Closing the Sanford terminal certainly will make some people unhappy. A lot of folks rely on the bus to come into town and this isn't going to be good."

Farr added, "I hope, before long, the bus people will take a look at their loss by dropping Sanford, and realize they are missing a good opportunity."

Dunn commented, "Sanford has always been a good point of operation for Greyhound, and we plan to set up a new operation as soon as possible so there won't be any loss of service."

In addition to the bus depot, Western Union has also been operating at the same location. All customers of Western Union are being asked to contact the company's office at 3802 S. Orlando Drive in Sanford.

Powerful gun lobby in for some of toughest battles

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON — A recent defeat in Virginia and a rebuke from President Clinton suggests that the gun lobby, while still a powerful force, may be facing some of its toughest fights in years.

Clinton last week criticized the National Rifle Association, the nation's premier gun advocacy group, for opposing certain gun controls. His support gives gun control proponents a major ally in their fight for a national waiting period for handgun purchases.

Gun control backers predict passage in Congress of the so-called Brady Bill that would establish the handgun waiting period. The measure had majority backing in both the House and Senate last year but was opposed by President Bush. It died after being attached to a broader crime bill.

In the states, however, the picture is less clear. During the past week, Virginia adopted new handgun restrictions. But one chamber of the New Jersey legislature voted to repeal a ban on assault rifles.

Also, as the tense standoff in Waco, Texas, unfolded between authorities and an armed religious cult, Texas Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said his state, long opposed to gun control, should consider banning "military-type assault weapons."

But in Colorado, the NRA won a court case Friday challenging Denver's ban on semiautomatics.

"There's a lot of activity out there in the states," NRA spokesman Jim Baker said.

The vote in the Virginia General Assembly to limit handgun purchases to one a month was a setback for the NRA.

But the NRA fared much better in New Jersey, where the Assembly voted to override Gov. Jim Florio's veto of legislation to reverse a 1990 ban on the sale, possession and manufacture of semiautomatic weapons.

"It's a landmark message that gun control schemes are useless and out of step with real anti-crime measures," said George McNeill of the NRA Institute for Legislative Action.

An override vote is pending in the New Jersey

Senate, and Clinton's remarks Monday appeared aimed at rallying support for Florio.

"I don't believe that everybody in America needs to be able to buy a semiautomatic or an automatic weapon built only for the purpose of killing people," the president said. Clinton called it an "error" for the NRA to oppose restrictions on assault weapons.

There are heated debates in several other states as well.

In Missouri, for example, the NRA supports a measure that would make it legal to carry a concealed firearm with a permit. The state House passed a version last year but it died in the Senate. An amended version is pending in the Senate.

The NRA and its biggest rival, Handgun Control Inc., also are fighting over concealed weapons measures in Texas, Arkansas and Wyoming.

Another hot issue is whether adult owners should be punished if children gain access to their weapons.

Other examples of state gun control activity:

—Connecticut Gov. Lowell P. Welcker proposed giving the state's 169 municipalities the power to prohibit gun possession. Prospects are unclear.

—Arizona Gov. Fife Symington and the state NRA chapter are pushing a measure requiring minors to have written permission from parents or guardians to carry guns, but with exceptions for hunting, target shooting and other activities. Cities won a court case against the NRA to impose their own restrictions, and oppose the statewide measure because of the exceptions.

—Indiana and Arkansas measures prohibiting local governments from regulating guns have each cleared one chamber of the legislature.

—New Mexico's legislature is considering a seven-day waiting period for handgun purchases. But its prospects are unclear with three weeks left in the session.

—A Kansas House committee has proposed a 72-hour waiting period on handgun purchases. Enactment appears doubtful.

—Among several gun-control bills killed in Colorado was legislation similar to New Jersey's ban on semiautomatic weapons. Maryland's governor has proposed a ban semiautomatic pistols, but the bill is stalled.

Promised immediate end to standoff didn't happen

By ARNIE STAPLETON
Associated Press Writer

WACO, Texas — The FBI put a cult leader's rambling religious message on the radio, but he didn't keep his end of the bargain and refused to surrender, extending into a fourth day today a siege that's killed at least 14.

Negotiations continued into the night between law enforcement officers and David Koresh, the 33-year-old messianic leader of the Branch Davidian sect.

On Tuesday, radio stations played a 58-minute taped sermon from Koresh in which he promised his immediate surrender if the message were broadcast. Afterward, the standoff at the sect's compound dragged on unchanged.

Ambulances and law enforcement vehicles that had moved nearer the compound sat unused. Hospitals told to expect an influx of injured were left waiting.

Jack Killorin, a spokesman for the federal Bureau of Alcohol,

Tobacco and Firearms, said agents were prepared to wait "a long time."

"We don't have a time frame for this," he said.

Up to 400 law officers took part in the siege at the compound, a 77-acre spread with a lookout tower. About 55 people were believed holed up in the compound, maybe 20 of them children.

The deadlock began Sunday as about 100 ATF agents tried to arrest Koresh on weapons charges. The agents were met with a 45-minute barrage of gunfire that killed four agents and wounded 16. Koresh, who assumed control of the sect by force in 1987, said his 2-year-old daughter was also killed.

A second, smaller gun battle later Sunday left one cult member dead, one wounded and a third under arrest.

A federal official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Tuesday that at least 10 cult members were dead.

Hopes for an end to the standoff rose and fell during the day.

"I, David Koresh, agree upon the broadcasting of this tape to come out peacefully with all the people immediately," he said on the tape.

Most of the message consisted of Koresh preaching his interpretation of the Book of Revelation. Koresh's followers believe he is the book's Lamb who can unleash the events that bring about the end of the world.

"Even a man like Christ has to meet with unbelief," said Koresh, who claims to be Jesus Christ.

"I'm sure you're all aware of how I'm involved in a very serious thing right now," he said. "I am really concerned about the lives of my brethren here and also really concerned even greater about the lives of all those in this world."

Earlier Tuesday he allowed more people to leave the compound. Eight children were released in the morning, in addition to 10 who came out earlier in the siege. The children ranged from infants to 10 years old.

Counselors help bombing survivors

By DANA KENNEDY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Brent Brands still has a ringing in his left ear. When a clump of snow fell off the roof of his home the day after the World Trade Center bombing, he "jumped a mile." Unable to sleep at 2 a.m., he noticed how his dripping shower sounded like water spilling in the subway after the blast.

On Tuesday, the 36-year-old Port Authority police officer was the first visitor at one of three crisis centers set up by the Port Authority, the owner of the twin, 110-story towers, to help survivors deal with the trauma.

Brands was one of the first officers on the scene of the bombing Friday. He was also a victim, thrown to the floor by the blast as he left the subway on the way to work.

"I've never come that close to being killed," said Brands, a Port Authority police officer for 12 years and the father of two. "Being a cop, you're better prepared for this kind of thing. But when I went to work Friday it wasn't like I thought I might die."

Mental health counselors moved swiftly this week to help survivors like Brands and their relatives.

If you have nerve to prick your finger, you can test cholesterol

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — If you have the nerve to prick your finger, you won't have to go to the doctor anymore to test your cholesterol level.

A California company got the green light Tuesday from the Food and Drug Administration to begin selling the first cholesterol test for home use.

The kit is expected to sell for $12 to $15, or about the same price as a home pregnancy test kit, when it appears in drug stores within a few months, executives of ChemTrak Inc. said.

Lab fees typically run $15 to $20 for a cholesterol test, and that's on top of the fee patients now pay doctors for an office visit, noted Prithpal Singh, chairman of ChemTrak.

However, he acknowledged, insurance companies won't reimburse people for the over-the-counter diagnostic device.

ChemTrak's Accumeter Cholesterol Self-Test includes a device to prick the finger, then squeeze a few drops of blood onto a plastic cassette with a test strip inside. The strip changes color within 10 to 15 minutes.

Simply by comparing the color of the strip with an accompanying chart, people can tell if their cholesterol is under 200, which is desirable; 200 to 239, which is borderline high; or 240 and above, which is high risk.

The test does not measure a person's LDL or HDL cholesterol, triglycerides or other fatty acids. High cholesterol clogs the arteries and puts people at risk of heart disease. More than one-third of Americans are believed to have high cholesterol.

The new kit was tested on nearly 500 adults and proved just as accurate as the laboratory tests, said FDA official Tom Teakerts.

Teakerts tried one himself and was surprised to find that his cholesterol was borderline high. The regulator, who had not had his cholesterol checked in six years, followed up by going to his doctor.

That is what the FDA is hoping consumers will do if they get a borderline or high cholesterol reading.

Abortion clinics report acid attacks

By FRANK FISHER
Associated Press Writer

GRANITE CITY, Ill. — Abortion rights activists are demanding more be done to stop a new tactic used by vandals against clinics around the country: squirting a putrid-smelling chemical that ruins furniture and carpeting.

Almost 50 clinics from Florida to California were hit in 1992 and 1993, according to activists.

"Unfortunately, we're seeing a lot of cities where the local police just sit back and say, 'Honey, it's your business; you deal with it,'" said Ron Fitzsimmons, executive director of the National Coalition of Abortion Providers, a lobbying group representing 180 clinics.

A spot check by The Associated Press confirmed 28 of the incidents cited by Fitzsimmons.

All involved butyric acid, commonly used as a flavor enhancer. Used by itself, it leaves a revolting, long-lasting odor. In most cases, the liquid was squirted through locks, ceilings or under doors or was left in bathrooms.

The Memphis Center for Reproductive Health was hit last

May.

"We had to completely wash down, take the finish off things, seal and refinish," said the clinic's director, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "It's a foul odor, between dog feces and vomit."

No one has been arrested in any of the cases, Fitzsimmons said.

Anti-abortion leaders deny any involvement in the vandalism, which included an attack Jan. 23 on a clinic in Granite City.

"We have not been involved in that kind of activity nor will we ever be involved in it," said Operation Rescue founder Randall Terry. "They want us to be their whipping boy. That's what it comes down to."

Felicia Goeken, director of the National Right to Life Committee in Illinois, said: "To us, the violence is going on inside the clinics. It would really be ridiculous for us to resort to violence outside the clinics because two wrongs don't make a right."

Fitzsimmons planned to unveil in Washington today a petition signed by more than 60 members of Congress calling on the FBI to investigate.

FBI spokesman Steve

Markardt in Washington said that the agency was not aware of the attacks and that it was unclear whether they violated federal law.

A state task force is investigating 16 acid attacks in Michigan.

Sgt. Pam Wycas of the Ann Arbor, Mich., Police Department, which joined State Police to investigate one attack, cited a problem common in the cases: "There was no witness to this incident, nor did anyone claim responsibility. Therefore, there were never any solid suspects identified."

Abortion rights activists said police aren't trying hard enough. "Frankly, if we were talking about similar attacks on hospitals, laboratories, research facilities, we would not see the indifference towards pursuing these culprits," said Carol King, executive director of the Michigan Abortion Rights Action League.

Reports of vandalism of all kinds against abortion clinics are on the rise, abortion rights activists say. There were 115 reported cases in 1992, up from 44 the year before, according to the National Abortion Federation.

Hopkins clinches tie

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Hopkins Meat Packing clinched a tie for the championship in the Sanford Recreation Women's Slowpitch Softball League by beating Off The Wall 24-7 Tuesday night at Chase Park.

In the late game, Beer: 30 forfeited to Vicky's Permit Service.

With one week left in the season, Hopkins is in first at 8-1 followed by Greenleaf Landscaping (6-2), Beer: 30 (4-5), Off the Wall (3-6), and Vicky's Permit Service (1-8).

Next week, the league will make-up the games rained out on Jan. 26, when Greenleaf Landscaping was scheduled to play Beer: 30 at 6:30 p.m. and Off The Wall at 7:30 p.m. before Hopkins Meat Packing faces Vicky's Permit Service in the 8:30 p.m. contest.

Jennifer Ingram led Hopkins' 30-hit assault Tuesday night with a double, four singles, and three runs scored. Joy Weaver added a triple, double, two singles, and two runs. Jamie Hart contributed a double, two singles, and four runs scored. Renee Lanza had a double, two singles, and three runs.

Also chipping in were Tori Quick (double, two singles, two runs), Vickie Miller and Katie Barbour (each with three singles and two runs), Nora Lizzy (triple, single, three runs), Kelly Bartholow (double, single, two runs), Carrie Dryden (single, run), and Gena Bukur (single).

Providing the offense for Off The Wall were Barb Martin (three singles, two runs), Julie Knecht (double, two singles), Teresa Finck (three singles), Nina Turchon and Nancy McGinty (each with two singles and a run), and Chris Tipton (double, single).

Other contributors were Sue Bagley (two singles), Ann Lanza (double, run), Diana Montgomery and Lynn Pell (each with a single and a run) and Carol Cranickl (single).

Patriots top SCC as pitching, defense falter

From Staff Reports

OCALA — All of the pieces are still not quite together. The Seminole Community College baseball team exploded for a season-high 16 hits, but the pitching and defense faltered as the Raiders dropped an 8-6 decision to Central Florida Community College in a Mid-Florida Conference contest Tuesday afternoon in Ocala.

SCC fell to 8-6 overall and 2-3 in the conference, while the Patriots improved to 13-7 and 3-3 in the MFC. The Raiders will host conference foe St. John's River Community College Thursday starting at 3 p.m. at Raider Field.

Trailing 3-0 after two innings, SCC came back to tie the score in the top of the third on a single by Sanford Demetri Beamon and New Smyrna's Johnny Goodrich, a two-run triple by Spruce Creek's Isaac Cruz and a sacrifice fly by Oviedo's B.J. Calapa.

But the Patriots came to regain the lead on a Matt Ragan homer in the fourth, then added two more in the fourth on a two-run shot by Marty Bourgon.

The Raiders cut the lead to 6-4 on Goodrich's first home run of the season in the fifth, but CFCC pushed the advantage to four, 8-4, OVIEDO — Ignoring talk about their past or their future, the Oviedo High School boys' basketball team seized the here and now Tuesday night, fighting off the Boone Braves 60-59 for the 4A-Region V championship.

Oviedo (20-11), the defending Class 4A state champion, advances to the 4A-Section III game against Lantana-Santaluces this Saturday at Santaluces High School. Santaluces defeated Kissimmee-Osceola 68-61 in the 4A-Region VI contest Tuesday.

Boone, ranked fifth in the final Florida Sports Writers Association's Class 4A state poll, ends its season 27-5.

Randy Wright provided the winning margin Tuesday night, taking a pass from Todd Bellhorn and laying a shot off the glass with three seconds remaining while being fouled. Wright missed the free throw, but it didn't matter as Willie Anderson's desperation bomb from midcourt was well off the mark.

The winning play was one of DELTONA — Seminole High School's boys and girls tennis teams very nearly registered their first wins of the season Tuesday afternoon, dropping close decisions to the Deltona Wolves.

The boys, playing at Glen Abbey, lost 4-3 to Deltona. Meanwhile, in the girls' match at Deltona High School, the Wolves topped Seminole 4-2 with one pro-set suspended because of darkness.

Oscar Canonizado figured in two of Seminole's wins, beating Ryan O'Leary 8-3 at No. 1 singles and teaming with David Edwards to knock off O'Leary and Ethan Hutchins 8-5 in the No. 1 doubles contest.

Darren Mazur posted Seminole's other win, besting Hutchins 8-6 at No. 3 singles.

Registering wins for the Deltona boys in singles play were Jason Flumerfelt (who outlasted David Edwards 8-6 in the No. 2 singles contest), Jim Igyarto (an 8-1 winner over Trung Vong at No. 4); and, at No. 5, Jonathon Steele (who topped Brian Alexander 8-4).

In the No. 2 doubles contest, Flumerfelt and Igyarto whipped Vong and Alexander, 8-1.

For the Seminole girls, Megan Hay and Tiffanie Soderstrom recorded the only victories. At No. 1 singles, Hay defeated Jennifer Donovan 8-5, while at No. 2 singles, Soderstrom knocked off Lisa Duffel, 8-2.

Winning their singles' matches for Deltona were Danielle D'Aluto (beating Joanna King 8-1 at No. 3); Amy Wrennick (an 8-2 winner at No. 4 over Chelle Hathaway); and Sandra James (who rolled over Anita White 8-1 at No. 5).

The only girls' doubles match to be completed was at the No. 2 position, where Duffel and Wrennick rocked King and Hathaway 8-1. The No. 1 doubles match pitting Donovan and D'Aluto against Hay and Soderstrom was suspended by darkness with the Deltona duo holding a 7-5 edge.

Seminole's boys (0-8) and girls (0-7) travel to Sanlando Park in Altamonte Springs this afternoon to face the Lake Brantley Patriots. Both of the Deltona teams improve to 3-4 on the season.

into the final eight with a 63-54 victory at Stuart-South Fork.

The win was Seminole's fifth in a row and raised its record to 15-17. Satellite finishes its season at 16-13.

Arrow Force One trailed 31-25 at halftime, but came out of the lockerroom a new team, outscoring the Scorpions 41-18 in the second half, including a 20-7 fourth quarter advantage.

"I felt like the kids showed a lot of heart in the second half," said Traina. "I told them at halftime if we could hold No. 54 (Rob Terry) down, we could win."

And hold him down they did. Terry, a six-foot, five-inch senior, entered the game as the 10th leading scorer in the state with a 25.5 points per game average. In the first half, he showed his scoring prowess, pumping in 12 points. But in the final 16 minutes, he was held to only six points, two in the fourth quarter.

Arrow Force One also proved that they could handle pressure as they made nine of 11 free throw attempts down the stretch in the fourth quarter after making just one of eight tries in the first three quarters.

Things did not start out well for Seminole as second-leading scorer Eric Roberts missed his first two shots badly and collected two fouls in the first minute and a half.

But Traina told the sophomore not to worry about it and the youngster responded by scoring 15 of his 17 points in the second half, including 12 in the fourth quarter.

"In the fourth quarter, I'm saying, 'Run, clock, run,'" said Traina. "But then I looked at them (Satellite) and they were so tired, they couldn't chase us anymore and I felt pretty good."

"This team is incredible. I looked at the bench with about a minute to go and we had a 15-point lead and here they sat with their arms folded, just taking it all in stride. They're winning the region championship and they're just sitting there. They still don't realize what they've done."

Junior Deon Daniels led Arrow Force One in scoring with 20 points, while Roberts had 17 and Matt Parker, one of only two seniors on the squad, chipped in with 11.

In addition to his three leading scorers, Traina also had praise for six-foot, five-inch freshman Reggie Holloway and six-foot, six-inch junior Andre Hall.

"Reggie had two huge offensive rebounds in second half," said Traina. "And Slim (Hall) kept battling against their big people all night and did an excellent job."

Traina also said he was confident before the game.

"I've been to eight of these (regionals) before and I had a big pit in my stomach, so I knew I was ready."

Russell holds off Orr for Late Model win

By PAUL MARBOLIA
Special to the Herald

SAMSULA — Apopka's David Russell raced wire to wire last Saturday night, Feb. 27, to take top honors in the Bassett Wheel 50-lap Late Model championship race at New Smyrna Speedway.

Russell, who set the evening's fastest qualifying time, started the race from the outside pole position. At the drop of starter Johnny Bass' green flag, Russell charged to the point and, despite a late race challenge from teammate Pete Orr, held the lead to claim his first win of the season.

"For the first 30 laps, the car was on a rail," said Russell, a three-time FASCAR (Florida Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing) champion. "The next 20 laps, I held on for dear life."

"As the race progressed, the car got looser and looser; it felt like a tire was going down. I fought to keep the car in the groove because I knew that if I gave an inch, Pete (Orr) would get by."

David Rogers, who set the evening's third fastest qualifying time, started the race from the third place slot and, by the end of the first lap, had moved around Orr, the outside pole-sitter, to take over second place.

As Russell increased his lead, Orr closed on Roger's rear bumper with Jack Cook and Wayne Anderson in hot pursuit. On the 12th lap, Orr got around Rogers to reclaim second place, setting up a duel between Rogers, Cook, and Anderson for third place.

Despite cautions on laps 16 and 33 that bunched the field for restarts, Russell was able to maintain his advantage. Russell took the checkers trailed by Orr, Rogers, Cook, and Anderson.

"This was a real good race tonight," said Orr, the recently crowned World Series of Asphalt Late Model champion. "David (Russell) and I were both strong. Since I didn't win, I'm glad my teammate did."

"I got a lot of pressure from David (Rogers) and Jack (Cook) tonight and I was glad I could keep them behind me. I wish I had a little more, though, so I could race with Russell."

Rogers, who is also a three-time New Smyrna Speedway Late Model champion, was pleased with his third place finish.

"I broke a sway bar on the second lap and the rest of the race was a real wrestling match," said Rogers. "All I could do after the second lap was stab and steer, so tonight, I was pleased with third place."

For his trip to victory lane, Russell earned $1,000 plus a pair of Bassett Racing Wheels.

Jerry Symons got by early race leader Ted Vulpius on lap three, then raced unchallenged to score his fifth victory of the season in the Mini-Stock division. Following Symons to the checkers were, in order of finish, Conrad Grenier, Vulpius, Bobby Sears, and J.D. Duncan.

After six laps of side-by-side racing with Jerry Smith, Bill Loomis took the lead to notch a victory in the Sportsman feature event. Loomis was followed across the stripe by Smith, Benny Gibson, Barbara Pierce, and David Salley.

Mike Hughes led every circuit to take the victory in the Bomber main event. Walt Loggins, the evening's heat race winner, took runner-up honors followed by Wally Semrow, Mike Peppier, and Jon Harney.

Jacob Warren, the recently crowned Speedweeks '93 Limited Late Model champion, edged Jason Burkett to win the Limited Late Model feature. Rounding out the top five, in order of finish, were Doug Pilla, Mike Kubanek, and Archie Felsler.

Earnhardt takes early Winston Cup points lead

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH — Coming off his most disappointing season, Dale Earnhardt has vaulted into the NASCAR Winston Cup stock car racing national points lead.

Though still winless since last May's Coca-Cola 600 at Charlotte (N.C.) Motor Speedway, Earnhardt has picked up two straight second-place finishes in the first two races of 1993.

"We're on top of the points and that is what's important right now," Earnhardt said. "Two races is awfully early in a 30-race season, but the only way to lead this thing coast-to-coast is to lead all the way."

"We're after the 1993 NASCAR Winston Cup championship. It is as simple as that."

The five-time national champion was passed on the last lap by Dale Jarrett in the season-opening Daytona 500 two weeks ago. He finished one-half of a second behind winner Rusty Wallace in Sunday's Goodwrench 500 at Rockingham, N.C.

Earnhardt has 355 points in the first two races and leads second-place Jarrett, who has 330 after a sixth-place finish Sunday, by 25 points.

Geoff Bodine is third with 313 points, followed by Mark Martin, 310; Hut Stricklin, 289; Ted Musgrave, 269; Terry Labonte, 264; Wallace, 252; defending NASCAR Winston Cup champion Alan Kulwicki, 250; and Jimmy Spencer and Phil Parsons, who has 239 points apiece.

Earnhardt, the all-time career leading money-winner in motorsports, leads the circuit in money-winnings this season with $289,410. Jarrett is second with $260,085.

Oviedo

those that drives coaches to distraction. As Bellhorn moved up court, four Boone players moved toward him to try and trap him near midcourt. That left Wright literally all alone under the basket.

"I saw that everyone was bunching up near midcourt," said Wright, who spent most of the first half on the bench with two fouls. "I thought that if I got down here, someone might look up and see me. I was just in the right place at the right time."

Bellhorn, a junior who was one of four underclassmen on the floor at the end of the game for Oviedo, saw the same thing that Wright saw.

"Everybody was coming at me, so I figured somebody was open," said Bellhorn, who also plays center field and pitches for the Oviedo varsity baseball team. "I just jumped up and he was there."

Wright's bucket capped a frenetic final 90 seconds that began when Boone's Ryan Asher tossed in a three-pointer with 1:24 remaining to cut Oviedo's lead to 58-52.

On the inbound play, Oviedo's Devon Green was fouled and went to the free throw line. He missed his first shot and fouled Asher reaching for the rebound. It was Green's fifth personal, sending him to the bench.

"There was no doubt in my mind we'd pull it out," said Wright, who collected a game-high 23 points and 14 rebounds before fouling out. "I knew they could do it. I had faith in them that they could pull it out."

There was nothing simple about it. After Asher made both free throws to make the score 58-54, the Lions tried to run some time off the clock. In the process, Brad Repple was called for a foul trying to set a pick, sending Rhys Daunic to the foul line with a chance to tie the score.

But Anderson (who had a team-leading 18 points) negated the opportunity, being whistled for a lane violation on Daunic's first attempt, turning the ball back over to Oviedo.

Bellhorn gave the Lions some breathing room, hitting both of his free throws after being fouled with 42 seconds remaining. The four-point advantage lasted seven seconds as Anderson buried another three-pointer, making the score 58-57 with 37 seconds to play.

Again, Oviedo exhibited patience, trying to run as much time off the clock as possible, even passing up one wide-open shot to keep the clock running and out of Boone's hands. The move appeared to backfire when Asher stripped Ben Boss of the ball and raced in for a layup, when he was fouled by Boss.

Asher drained both shots, giving Boone a 59-58 lead with :10 to go.

Then Bellhorn and Wright hooked up.

As far as Oviedo coach Ed Bolton was concerned, the final sequence was a thing of beauty. Having expended all four time outs, all Bolton could do was watch his lineup of Wright and four underclassmen pull out the win.

"The kids had the ability to do it," said Bolton. "I'm really pleased with the kids. Devon, Chris (Braxton) and Randy are our key people. But when they get into foul trouble, we have guys who can come off the bench and get the job done for them."

What qualifies as something of a surprise — except to Bolton and the Lions — is that those players are all first-year varsity performers. Green, Braxton, Wright, and Repple are the only holdovers from last year's state championship team.

Of those four, Wright and Braxton spent most of the first half on the bench with foul trouble while Green saw spot action in the second half when he ran into foul difficulties. Braxton eventually fouled out with 4:47 to play. Green followed 3:23 later.

In spite of criticism, people must persevere

DEAR ABBY: Don Richter of Leesburg, Ga., wrote: "Stick to the advice to the lovelorn, Abby, and stop being a public forum for crybabies."

Abby, I think Mr. Richter is out of line. Be that as it may, when Florelo La Guardia was the mayor of New York City (1933 to 1945), he hung above his desk at City Hall this pronouncement by Abraham Lincoln:

"If I were to try to read, much less answer, all the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for any other business. I do the very best I know how — the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, 10 angels swearing I was right would make no difference."

ARTHUR H. PRINCE, MEMPHIS, TENN.

DEAR ARTHUR PRINCE: What a reassuring treasure your letter is!

I may take a page out of Mayor LaGuardia's book, and have Abraham Lincoln's eloquent pronouncement framed to hang over my desk.

DEAR ABBY: What can we do about a co-worker who has a serious body odor problem? This has been going on since last year. We have attempted, to no avail, to alert her to this problem, but she has not followed through.

I am the office manager, and all the employees are asking me to speak to this individual again. I don't know how to broach the subject. The situation is causing a problem with the staff. This is no joke, Abby. It may result in her dismissal. She is a valued employee who has been here for many years, and I can't seem to find the words. Please help me.

DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: Call the woman into your office and say, "Last year, I told you that you co-workers had complained about your body odor. Apparently, you did nothing about it because they have complained again."

"If you bathe daily, use a deodorant and wear fresh undergarments, and yet still have an odor, you could have a medical problem, in which case you should see your physician. Whatever the problem, please remedy it promptly. It is unfair to subject your co-workers to such unpleasantness."

DEAR ABBY: Here is my favorite, and first-memorized, short poem, from an automobile magazine published around 1940:

"Car speeda
"Train meeta,
"They greeta
"Saint Peta."

There's an outbreak of tasty focaccia, Italian 'flatbread'

By MARILISA GALTA
NEA Food Editor

I don't know where YOU live, but in Vermont, where I live, there has been an outbreak of focaccia, reaching almost epidemic proportions. On restaurant menus, in bakeries — even in our local general store — focaccia is prominently featured.

Now, for the untitled, focaccia (the word, according to cookbook author Steven Raichlen, comes from the Latin word "focus," meaning "hearth") is Italian flatbread: pizza dough without the sauce and cheese. You can serve it as a snack, an antipasto, or with soups and salads. Like a lot of "peasant food" that has become fashionable, it is inexpensive, simple fare, but requires some care in preparation.

The Inn at Essex, Vermont, where the chefs and students from the New England Culinary Institute do the cooking, serves a particularly delicious focaccia — although theirs is so yeasty and thick that there is nothing "flat" about it. I asked Chef Benjamin Cevelo to share the recipe, and he and student Belinda VanSickle graciously worked up one that could be made in a home-sized batch.

VanSickle, a South American student, said that at home this dough would be used for pizza. Her suggested toppings follow, but as we munched focaccia she dreamed up some more: smoked salmon and capers, smoked Gouda, Stilton and apples, garlic, rosemary, parmesan and onions. I have not tried them but they sound delicious.

Focaccia may be, as my husband describes it, "the pesto of the '90s." That's OK. I still like pesto, even if it is out of fashion.

FOCACCIA

2 tablespoons yeast
3 cups warm water (about 110 degrees)
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
tablespoons olive oil, plus additional oil for greasing bowl

8-10
cups unbleached all-purpose flour
1 1/2 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon minced garlic
1 tablespoon dried rosemary
2 teaspoons dried oregano
1/2 teaspoon black pepper

In a large mixing bowl, "proof" yeast by mixing it with 1/2 cup of warm water and letting it sit until it foams — 5-10 minutes. Add remaining water, corn syrup and 6 tablespoons of oil.

Begin adding flour, a cup at a time, mixing as you add. After you have added about 3 cups, add salt, garlic and rosemary. Continue adding flour until dough pulls away from side of bowl. Put some of remaining flour on a pastry board or other work surface, and knead dough for 5-10 minutes, adding flour if dough feels sticky. Dough should be very firm and elastic.

Wash bowl, oil it lightly. Place dough in bowl and turn over, to grease entire ball. Cover with a clean dish towel and put in a warm place to rise until double in bulk — about 2 hours.

Punch dough down, turn out onto floured board and knead again, a few minutes. Return to bowl, cover and let rise again, about 1 hour.

crumbs
1 8 ounce pkg. semi sweet chocolate bits
1 can Eagle brand condensed milk
1 tsp. vanilla extract
Combine ingredients and bake

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Punch dough down and knead lightly. Press into a greased 12-inch-by-17-inch pan. Using a pastry brush, brush top of dough with remaining tablespoon of olive oil. Sprinkle oregano and black pepper, and add desired toppings (see below) and bake for 35-45 minutes. Cut into pieces.

TOMATO AND OLIVE TOPPING

1/3 cup pitted black olives, chopped
1/3 cup pitted green olives (with pimiento), chopped
3 ounces sun-dried tomatoes; if dry-packed, pour boiling water over them and let stand for 10 minutes

Sprinkle olives over unbaked dough. Bake 20 minutes, remove from oven and sprinkle sun-dried tomatoes on top. Continue baking.

ONION AND RED PEPPER TOPPING

1-1 1/2 cups red onions, sliced thin

1 large red pepper, sliced thin
1 tablespoon oil
Heat oil in a non-stick skillet and saute onions and peppers together. Using slotted spoon, remove from pan and sprinkle over unbaked dough.
Yield: about 20 pieces.

Recipe Chef Benjamin Cevelo and student Belinda VanSickle, New England Culinary Institute, Essex, Vt.

SESAME GARLIC FOCACCIA

1 tablespoon dry yeast
1 teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons plus 1 1/3 cups warm water
1 teaspoon sea salt
1/4 cup fresh basil, rosemary, oregano, thyme and/or parsley (optional)
3 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons minced shallots
3 1/2 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
oil for bowl
cornmeal for pan
2-3 teaspoons extra-virgin olive oil
2 tablespoons sesame seeds
1 teaspoon coarse salt

Combine yeast, sugar and 2 tablespoons water in large mixing bowl. Let stand for 5 minutes, until mixture is foamy. Stir in remaining water, sea salt, herbs (if using), half the garlic, and half the shallots. Stir in flour adding a cup at a time, until dough comes away from sides of bowl. Turn out onto a lightly floured work surface. Wash and lightly oil bowl.

Knead dough for 6-8 minutes, until smooth and elastic. Place dough in oiled bowl, turn over, and cover with a clean dish towel. Place in a warm, draft-free spot and let rise until double in bulk, about 1 1/2 hours.

Punch dough down, then roll into one large or two small ovals, each 1/2-inch thick. Transfer to a baker's peel or a baking sheet liberally sprinkled with cornmeal. Let rise for 30 minutes, or until double in bulk.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Poke your fingers into surface of dough to give a dimpled appearance. Brush with 1 teaspoon olive oil and sprinkle with remaining garlic and shallots, sesame seeds and coarse salt. Bake for 25-35 minutes, or until crisp and golden brown. Let cool slightly. Just before serving, drizzle with remaining olive oil. Cut into wedges and serve.
Yield: 8 servings.

Severe rectal pain may be muscle spasms

DEAR DR. GOTT: Two years ago I began waking up in the middle of the night with excruciating rectal pain. I've had an MRI, sigmoidoscopy, barium enema and every other test known to mankind. My neurologist has given me suppositories, thinking it is nerve compression. In my condition common?
DEAR READER: This degree of rectal pain, in the absence of any obvious cause (such as infection), is not common. Because you have had many tests to shed light on this (and all have been negative), I wonder if you could be suffering from proctalgia fugax, an unusual condition causing severe rectal pain, especially at night. The ailment is believed to be due to spasm of the muscles of the lower rectum; the cause of these strong muscle contractions is unknown, and the diagnosis is made by exclusion of other more serious physical afflictions. You should be examined by a gastroenterologist because, in many cases, the use of a muscle relaxant (such as Valium) at bedtime may eliminate or reduce the severity of the pain.

few days, leading to dangerous infection needing medical attention. Initial treatment of a flare up is with ice. This can be followed by an anti-histamine/analgesic balm. Subsequent infection, if it

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is the proper way to treat a flare up?

DEAR READER: Fire ant stings can be serious and, in portions of the Southeast and Southwest where the ants are epidemic, plentiful. Up to 40 percent of the population in infested areas may be stung at least once in their lifetimes; more than two dozen deaths have occurred, primarily in individuals who were allergic to the ant venom.

In most cases, the sting immediately causes a bump that is painful, lasts about an hour, then turns into a sterile pimple -- which, in turn, may burst in a

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
 As time passes, we lose touch with the past. Take the beginning of contract bridge. There were many experts who helped to mold the game, but almost all of them are gone. One of the last, S. Garton Churchill, died last December at the age of 92.

Known to his friends as Church, he learned auction bridge in 1916, before progressing to contract in 1928. He was an innovative thinker, proposing bidding methods that were ridiculed at the time but within 20 years were generally adopted.

Church was proud of today's deal, which he played in 1960 in partnership with Cecil Head. They won the 1948 Life Master Pairs national title with a record average of 85.5 percent over the four sessions. Because of his excellent diamond fit. Head, sitting North, reversed on the second round. Three clubs was fourth suit forcing, marking time. Four diamonds was their "picture bid," promising four-card support, usually with two honors. Knowing his partner had at most one club, Church stood on ceremony no more, reaching the excellent grand slam with only 25 combined high-card points. The play was a simple matter of technique. Church won the spade lead with dummy's ace, cashed the A-K of hearts and ruffed a heart high in hand. He cashed the club ace, ruffed a low club in the dummy and trumped another heart high. A club ruff was followed by a diamond to the ace and a diamond to the king. Finally, dummy's good heart nine was cashed, upon which declarer threw his spade loser.

HOROSCOPES

By Bernice Bode Oso
YOUR BIRTHDAY
 March 4, 1993
 Contacts that you've established with people who reside at a distance from you could prove to be of immense value both socially and commercially in the year ahead.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It will be impossible for you to be all things to all people today. You know that a leopard doesn't change its spots, so don't be surprised when someone you've never been able to please shows no sign of changing. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Even after you achieve your objectives today, hang on with a firm grip. If not, there's a possibility you could lose whatever you've gained thus far.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It could prove embarrassing for you today if you pretend to be knowledgeable about a topic you know nothing about. The depth and extent of what you do know will be determined by others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't be hesitant about renegotiating arrangements today when you feel that you are not being treated fairly. Discrepancies can be modified more to your liking.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your mate might not be as skillful as you are today when dealing with unexpected developments. If you believe your way is right, proceed just as you have envisioned.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's best not to attempt to do difficult tasks in a hurried manner today. To be both productive and effective, take things one step at a time.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You might be maneuvered into an undesirable position today where you have to choose between backing up a new acquaintance or supporting an old pal. Choose the latter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Major achievements are possible today, but they might require a second effort. If you fall short the first time, regroup your forces and attack with greater vigor.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you are open-minded today, there's a chance you might learn something of significant value from a source that you don't necessarily respect.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could be in for a pleasant surprise today when a situation that appeared to be working against you suddenly does an about-face and starts working for you.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Before making a decision today that you are dubious about, seek advice from people whose judgment you trust. They might have the answers you need.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Success is possible today by concentrating on factors you can control, rather than working in areas where you have no influence. Operate from your strengths.
