Nearly 600 New Residents Pouring Into Seminole County Each Month

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Nearly 600 new residents per month moved into Seminole County over the past year, according to preliminary population statistics prepared by the University of Florida's bureau of economic and business research.

During the 12 months from April 1, 1982 to April 1, 1983, Seminole County grew from 195,133 to 201,906, an increase of 6,773 residents.

The preliminary estimates have been received by the county and its seven cities, but will not become final until review is completed by the local governmental units affected. It is upon University of Florida population estimates that thousands of dollars in state revenue sharing funds are distributed.

Of Seminole's 201,906 residents, 103,256 live in the unincorporated areas of the county while 98,650 live within cities.

The UF estimates also show that the city of Altamonte

Springs continued to extend its population lead over Sanford, winding up as the county's most populous city for the second year in a row. The two cities are separated by only 350 residents, according to the estimates.

Altamonte Springs has a population of 25,859, compared to 24,769 a year ago, while Sanford has 25,509, compared to 24,731 last year.

Meanwhile, Casselberry remained the third largest city in the county, but it grew by only eight persons over last year's estimates. The city's population estimate is 15,976. Last year's figure was 15,968.

Winter Springs held onto fourth place for the second year with 13,750 residents, compared to 12,601 a year ago, while Longwood is fifth with 11,030, compared with 10,865 last year.

Oviedo has only 11 residents more than Lake Mary, according to the estimates, which put Oviedo's population at 3,249 people. That compares with 3,201 a year ago. Lake Mary's current population is 3,238. Last year's count was 3,140.

County Office Renovation On Schedule

The tearing down has been completed and now it's time to begin rebuilding the interior of the County Services Building.

John Percy, Seminole County's director of public services and development, said crews from Florida Wrecking of Hialeah, Fla., have finished demolition of portions of the old Seminole Memorial Hospital.

Crews from Gulf Seaboard Construction of Fern Park will begin work this week rebuilding the hospital to provide office space for several county offices.

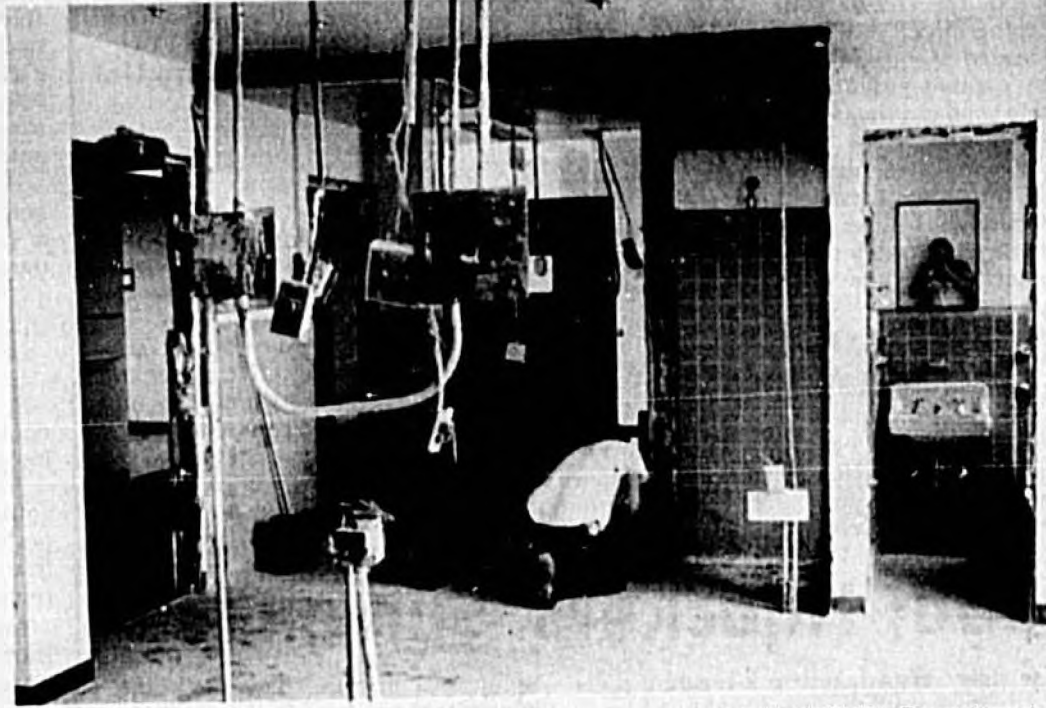

But the real trick will be to complete the renovations before county employees move into the new offices this winter.

"They're right on schedule so far but it looks like it will be really tight," Percy said. The renovation is supposed to be completed within 120 days.

The supervisor of elections office is scheduled to move into the building in December. County commissioners, their staff offices, fleet management and public services and development departments are scheduled to move in March and the property appraiser and tax collector are scheduled to move later next year.

Gulf Seaboard was the low bidder on the hospital renovation project, submitting a $666,000 bid, more than $800,000 less than the $1.5 million anticipated by Helman Hurley Charvat Peacock/Architects of Winter Park.

County officials expect the actual renovation costs to be higher than the bids because of unexpected problems such as structural deficiencies they foresee during the renovation.

Percy said Florida Wrecking officials believe their job has been completed even though some pipes and wiring are exposed and have not been removed.

Percy said officials are examining the building to see where those items must be removed before further rebuilding begins. —Michael Beha

Migrant Health Clinic Finally Has A New Director

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

The Central Florida Migrant and Community Health Center Inc., 2472 S. Park Ave., Sanford, has a new director, filling a vacancy that has existed for more than two months.

Susan Moore, 33, a Canadian native and registered nurse, began work Monday as the new executive director of the health center. She will be paid $30,800 annually.

She was previously director of the East Pasco Health Center in Pasco County, Fla. for four years before accepting the Seminole County post. Prior to her work with the Pasco County clinic, Mrs. Moore was academic coordinator for five campuses of Tampa College and previously taught medical assistants at the school.

Mrs. Moore said the biggest challenge facing her is getting the clinic back into shape after several months without a director. William W. Schomberg Jr., resigned as clinic director for unspecified reasons in June after serving for 2½ years. Dr. Milton Alvarez, the center's medical director, served as interim director since Schomberg's resignation.

"There are the routine type of problems that crop up when you've been without a director for some time," she said. No immediate changes in programs are planned at the center, designed primarily to serve migrant and indigent people.

Her top priority is writing an application to continue a $600,000 federal grant for operation of the clinic.

The grant is the main funding source for the center's clinics in Sanford and Oviedo. The Sanford clinic is open Monday through Friday. The Oviedo clinic is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Mrs. Moore emphasized that the clinic, which cannot refuse treatment to anyone, is not a free clinic. Patients pay fees based on their income and every patient is required to pay at least $4 for an office visit. About 4,500 patients were treated at the clinic last year. The health center employs 24 people in the lab, pharmacy, medical and dental departments.

In 1975, Mrs. Moore came to the United States from Toronto where she worked as a nurse-therapist for seven years. But she no longer works as a nurse because "that wasn't fulfilling."

In her current position the nursing background is helpful but not essential. "For this, your background needs to be in business. A medical background is helpful when you're dealing with doctors and nurses and want to check things."

Mrs. Moore and her husband are living in Altamonte Springs while a house they are buying in Longwood is being built.

Schools, Clerical Workers Reach Accord

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

A tentative agreement has been reached on a three-year contract between the Seminole County School Board and 600 members of the Seminole Educational Clerical Association.

Board negotiator Ernest Cowley said federal mediator Ralph Hudson of Tampa was called in Monday to help settle the contract package. He said the agreement calls for the district to pay $100 in one lump sum to all qualified clerical employees. The board had previously made the payments in monthly installments.

The clerical workers will also receive the same 1.85 percent raise in the base salary as agreed to by teachers, bus drivers, maintenance and custodial workers. The clerical workers annual base pay is $6,893.

The clerical workers were the last of four unions which represent workers in the Seminole County School District to come to an agreement. The Seminole Education Association, which represents about 2,000 teachers, reached an agreement Aug. 19. About 600 food service, janitorial and maintenance workers, represented by NIPSCO and 250 bus drivers came to an agreement with the district Aug. 26.

Each of the agreements must be approved by the members of the unions and then will be submitted to the school board for approval, Cowley said. He said it may be several weeks before the unions approve the contracts.

Cowley said district officials will present a pay plan to the school board Sept. 14 calling for the same 1.85 percent pay increase for administrators and others not represented by the four unions.

The agreements with SCA, NIPSCO and the drivers are three-year contracts. The teachers are in the final year of a three-year pact.

To Be Funded By Gas Tax Hike

City Sets Priorities For Road Improvements

Planning for the Lake Mary Boulevard extension from U.S. Highway 17-92 east to Sanford Avenue and ultimately on to State Road 415 is Sanford's top priority for a city-county joint project to be funded by revenues from the 4-cent county-imposed gasoline tax.

The new tax, which takes effect Thursday, is to be levied for 10 years and is expected to bring the county $3.4 million in the 1983-84 fiscal year. Sanford's share is expected to be about $320,000 the first year.

In addition to the Lake Mary Boulevard extension, the Sanford City Commission Tuesday chose two "highly visible" city roads for improvements. Slated for resurfacing are 20th Street to old Lake Mary Road and Sanford Avenue from Seminole Boulevard to 25th Street.

The commission instructed City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles to approach the county commission with the city's offer.

Knowles said he will have cost estimates on the city road work available by the Sept. 12 city commission meeting. The commission will schedule a workshop shortly thereafter to consider more city streets for resurfacing.

Mayor Lee P. Moore suggested that the commission choose "highly visible" roads for city projects, saying this will let taxpayers see how the revenue from the tax is being used.

Commissioners also said that revenues from the gas tax increase will not be used to buy new road paving equipment. Moore said if additional road equipment is needed it will be purchased in the usual fashion from general fund revenues.

Asked the cost of the Lake Mary Boulevard extension, Knowles said to take the road all the way to State Road 415 (Celery Avenue) for a loop around the city would cost $8 million to $10 million. Moore said it appears the loop would be accomplished via Beardahl Avenue to Cameron Street.

The city already has acquired some of the right-of-way necessary for the project.

Of the two city streets chosen for repair, Knowles said both need leveling, resurfacing and some drainage work.

Because the county has decided to designate the cities' share of the gas tax revenues for only one year, it will be difficult for any of the cities to plan ahead and establish a long-range road program which has continuity.

The formula, set in state law, for sharing the revenues from the gas tax calls for the local money spent by each of Seminole's seven cities and the county over the past five years to be totaled to arrive at an average percentage by each of the eight governing bodies. That percentage computed by county auditors set the split of the revenues at the rate of 65 percent for the county with the remaining 35 percent divided up among the cities.

Knowles said the county commission was surprised when it found that it could not include federal revenue sharing money which it used for road improvements as part of the formula. He said the commission some years ago shifted federal revenue sharing funds into their road and bridge fund to reduce the money it was required to share with the cities under state law.

"The county commission now wants to review and revise the distribution formula annually. I believe you will find the county removing federal revenue sharing funds from their road and bridge budget, substituting property taxes or other local funds to increase the county's share in the distribution formula and thereby reducing the municipal share and to recompute the formula annually

Liquor

Sanford Has To Reverse Itself Over Cantina's License

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Owners of the Showtime Cantina theatre pub operating out of the old Ritz Theatre on Magnolia Avenue were expected to file papers with the state today seeking a liquor license with the blessing of the Sanford City Commission.

The commission at a special meeting Tuesday reversed a decision made nine days ago to permit owner Chuck Williams to apply for the license. The cantina already had a beer and wine license issued by the city.

Under city law, it is necessary for the commission to determine a business is properly zoned for the sale of alcoholic beverages before the state will issue a liquor license.

When the majority of the commission initially refused to go along with such a determination, Mayor Lee P.

Moore pointed out that the city actually had no choice but to give its approval because the site of the cantina is properly zoned commercial. However, three of the commissioners — David Farr, Eddie Keith and Milton Smith — were adamant in their stand. At the time, Farr said he reserved the right to be wrong.

On Tuesday, Farr said he was indeed wrong, adding that the city not only does not have a choice in the matter, but it also should be consistent and the commission had earlier given approval for the new owners of the former Mr. P's supper club to apply for a liquor license.

Farr asked why it is necessary for the commission to grant its approval in such cases since, if establishments are properly zoned for liquor licenses, the city really has no choice.

City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles said city law actually allows the commission to approve or not "on a whim and that opens the door to the possibility of unfairness."

Voting to grant approval were Moore, Commissioner Ned Yancey and Farr while Commissioner Eddie Keith voted against. Smith was absent from the meeting.

Farr originally led the move against going along with the cantina's seeking a liquor license, saying the theatre pub is "not working and is not a viable operation." He said he feared that with a liquor license, the theatre operation will become secondary to the selling of liquor.

Moore had said the state will grant the license if it chooses as long as the theatre can seat 200 persons with 60 percent of its business coming from the sale of food and 40 percent from the sale of beverages.

IN BRIEF

7 Retarded Persons Die In Cottage Fire

SUWANEE, Ga. (UPI) — A fire swept through a home for retarded young adults today and officials said seven people were killed and one person was missing.

Flames of undetermined origin broke out about 2 a.m. in a "sleeping cottage," part of a complex called Annandale, which provides a supervised environment for young adults. The complex is behind the Atlanta Falcons training center on Interstate 85 near Suwanee, about 30 miles north of Atlanta.

Gwinnett County Asst. Fire Chief Tom Griffin said 16 people were believed asleep in the cottage at the time of the fire. Seven people were confirmed dead, Griffin said, and another was missing and presumed in the smoldering debris.

He said the cause of the fire had not been determined. The building had smoke detectors and an alarm was sounded, he said.

Gas Aplenty For Holiday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Motorists will find a plentiful supply of gasoline this Labor Day weekend with prices lower than they were a year ago, the American Automobile Association reports.

The AAA said its nationwide survey found the current national average price of gasoline is $1.28 a gallon, 3 cents less than Labor Day 1982. But the survey said pump prices will be an average of 1.8 cents a gallon higher this Labor Day weekend than they were on the Fourth of July.

AAA spokesman W. Allan Wilbur said that holiday motorists should not have problems filling up.

"Our survey based on 6,000 service stations indicates there'll be plenty of gasoline," he said. "More than three-fourths of all service stations surveyed will be open all day and during evening hours the Labor Day weekend." He said another 18 percent will operate on a 24-hour schedule.

Burglar Awarded $75,000

BENSON, Minn. (UPI) — Francis Rakowski was once a successful small-time burglar, but now he says his life is ruined because one of his victims shot him in the foot. A jury agreed and awarded Rakowski $75,000 in damages.

"He gets rewarded for committing a crime and we get punished for protecting our property," said Ruth Clemens, the mother of Michael Clemens who accidentally shot Rakowski after a burglary of $150 worth of goods from the family car six years ago.

Rakowski, 28, of Benson, pleaded guilty and was given probation for the theft, but he said Tuesday the settlement awarded by a Swift County jury last week was fair.

"They ruined the rest of my life, because I'm a crippled person now," Rakowski said.

Economy

Indicators: Recovery May Be Leveling Off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's sensitive index of leading indicators climbed just 0.3 percent in July, the smallest gain in a year, the Commerce Department said today, another sign the recovery is leveling off.

The 11 consecutive months of improvement in the composite index is the longest unbroken increase since a 17-month period that ended in July 1976.

The strong economic growth the index foreshadowed early in the year came true shortly afterward in the second quarter. But now the index suggests the economic recovery will be settling down toward the end of the year. Private analysts agree.

Department analysts said the small increase did not necessarily mean the recession is fading. "The small increase is not uncommon in the midst of recovery," a spokesman for the department's Bureau of Economic Analysis said. "In November and December of 1975, seven months into that recovery ... the index was up 0.3 percent in each month," spokesman Larry Moran said.

Although seven of 11 indicators were positive in July, the single biggest change was a drop in new orders for factory machinery and other equipment, adjusted for inflation, which held back overall improvement.

The orders setback, a 1.7 percent decline, was reported separately Tuesday by the Commerce Department and is expected to have a big influence on how busy factories will be in the weeks and months ahead.

Economist Otto Eckstein, the head of the Data Resources Inc. forecast firm, said he was encouraged that much of the strong June gain in orders was retained but that "the wild growth of the second quarter is not continuing."

"August will be a month that will show no growth at all," he predicted.

The seven indicators that contributed to the increase were a lengthening of the average work week, an improvement in the weekly initial claims for state unemployment benefits, orders for consumer goods, building permits, stock prices, money supply and outstanding credit.

Lebanon Fighting 'Not Combat'

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — President Reagan is resisting any interpretation of the law restricting use of American forces abroad that could require him to pull the U.S. Marines out of Lebanon.

Reagan told Senate and House leaders in a letter Tuesday that the continued presence of U.S. forces in Lebanon is essential to maintain that strife-ridden nation's political independence.

By characterizing the attacks on the 1,200-man Marine contingent in the peace-keeping forces — which left two soldiers dead and 14 wounded Monday — as "isolated incidents," instead of a "combat situation," Reagan's advisers believe he is on safe legal grounds.

But some members of Congress have said the War Powers Act now restricts the Marine presence in Lebanon. Under the act, when U.S. forces are involved in hostilities or in situations where hostilities are imminent, Congress has 60 to 90 days to order their withdrawal. Congress' authority under the act, however, was called into question in June by the Supreme Court decision that declared unconstitutional the "legislative veto" over executive branch actions.

In his report to Congress, the president detailed the fighting around south Beirut in the past three days.

"We feel we have complied fully with the War Powers Act," in sending the report to Congress, White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters.

Saying that he wanted to keep Congress informed,

President Reagan
...wants to avoid letting Congress have a say in whether U.S. troops continue their presence in the midst of continued fighting in Lebanon

Reagan made the report after the Special Situation Group, headed by Vice President George Bush, had White House and State Department counsel review the law.

"I believe that the continued presence of the U.S. forces in Lebanon is essential to the objective of helping to restore the territorial integrity, sovereignty and political independence of Lebanon," Reagan wrote.

"It is still not possible to predict the duration of the presence of these forces in Lebanon; we will continue to assess this situation in the light of progress toward this objective."

Hostages Freed; Hijackers Surrender

By United Press International

Four gunmen who threatened to blow up a hijacked Air France jetliner freed unharmed all 15 hostages today and surrendered to Iranian authorities at Tehran airport, ending a tense five day ordeal. Three Americans were among those freed.

Firing shots in the air, the hijackers emerged from the Boeing 727 at 1:33 p.m. (5:53 a.m. EDT) and read a statement to reporters on the tarmac before being led away by authorities, reporters said.

An Iranian airport official, reached by telephone from London, said the hostages were in good condition after being forced to live for five days aboard the jetliner, seized Saturday on a flight from Vienna to Paris.

"The hostages are well but they have been taken to a hospital for a check-up," the official said.

French reports said the Arabic-speaking hijackers apparently were promised political asylum in Iran, but it was not immediately known if any of their other demands were met by the French government.

The gunmen Tuesday night threatened to force the jetliner into the air and blow it up over Iraq with all aboard if their demands were not met.

They had demanded that Arab prisoners be freed from French jails, that France withdraw its troops from Chad and Lebanon and that France stop providing Iraq with credits for buying French fighter jets.

"We could have expected anything. So of course we are very happy about the happy ending.

When two priests talked with the hijackers today I realized something was about to happen," said Jean Perrin, charge d'affaires at the French embassy in Tehran.

Throughout the tense, round-the-clock negotiations at Tehran's Mehrabad Airport, the French refused to give in to the hijackers' demands.

The hijackers, said to be armed with machine guns and grenades, seized Air France's Flight 781 Saturday with 114 passengers and crew aboard.

The plane arrived in Tehran Sunday with 17 hostages after a 3,500-mile odyssey with stopovers in Geneva, Sicily and Damascus — releasing most of the passengers en route.

Satellite Launched; Shuttle Maintains Its Perfect Record

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Challenger's astronauts launched a spinning gold and blue Indian satellite today to expand that nation's telephone and television systems, maintain a cyclone watch and issue disaster warnings.

Gulon Bluford, America's first black in space, released springs that pushed the boxy multipurpose satellite out of the space freighter's cargo bay as the shuttle swept 184 miles over India on its 18th orbit.

With the sun reflecting off two sides wrapped in gold foil, the satellite as seen on television resembled a flashing jeweled pendant drifting away in the darkness of space.

"We're happy to let you know the satellite was deployed on time with no anomalies and the satellite looked good," Bluford reported at 4 a.m.

"Good show," replied Jeff Hoffman in Houston control. "You guys have maintained the shuttle's perfect record." It was the sixth satellite launched from a shuttle in NASA's effort to use the ships to replace unmanned rockets.

Bluford, commander Richard Truly, co-pilot Daniel Brandenstein, Dale Gardner and Dr. William Thornton were told an hour later that the satellite's own rocket successfully fired to push it toward a 22,236-mile-high stationary orbit.

The astronauts were concentrating on commercial jobs during their second day in orbit. The satellite launching earned NASA $14 million and Gardner ran a biological processor to separate living kidney and pituitary gland cells for an aerospace company.

"We've never had so much fun in all our lives," Truly said.

The "Eight Team," as mission control calls this eighth shuttle crew, also had some time for sightseeing. The fliers spotted a volcano spewing brown smoke off Lombok Island in south Indonesia. The island was the site of disaster when Mount Merapi collapsed into the sea in 1979.

Successful placement of the $50 million Insat-1B satellite in the proper path at sunrise over India today was crucial because a twin failed last September when a navigation sensor mistook the moon for the sun.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Cool air and rain gave the South and Midwest a break from the record heat of the Summer of '83 — with the least rain in 30 years and the hottest temperatures in a century — but forecasters predicted another heat wave by Labor Day. Rain dotted the Plains Tuesday and showers and thunderstorms were reported over New England, the Gulf Coast — including Florida — the Rockies and the Pacific Northwest. Showers dropped temperatures into the 70s and 80s over parts of the central Plains — Kansas City, Mo. cooled down to 76 — but readings still hit 104 at Enid, Okla. and Medicine Lodge, Kan. Bartlesville, Okla. reported 103 and Joplin, Mo. hit 100 and Williston, N.D. tied a record at 97. Highs in the 90s were forecast for the Southeast and 100s were predicted in the desert Southwest. The summer's on-again, off-again heat wave has been blamed for at least 17 deaths nationwide in the past 11 days. The Midwest rain came too late to help parched crops.

Delivery Man Hurt In Liquid Chlorine Explosion

An employee of a Sanford pool service firm was slightly injured Tuesday when a cylinder of liquid chlorine he was delivering exploded.

Five residents of the east Orange County neighborhood where the delivery was being made also received minor injuries and three homes were evacuated for a short period of time, said David Hawley, spokesman for the Orange County fire department.

Kevin Mauldan, a delivery man for Chemical Service and Repair, Orange Boulevard and Country Club Road in Sanford, was delivering a 20-pound cylinder of liquid chlorine to a home at 10935 Fernando Drive in the Park Manor subdivision south of State Road 50 when the explosion occurred, Hawley said.

Mauldan sat the cylinder on the ground and was walking back to his truck at about noon when a valve on top of the cylinder blew off, releasing the liquid and fumes, Hawley said.

Five neighbors who attempted to aid Mauldan were slightly hurt. Mauldan and the five were treated at the scene by fire department paramedics for inhalation of fumes. They were all transported to the emergency room of Orlando General Hospital where Mauldan was treated and released. The other five were observed by physicians and released, Hawley said.

Hawley said no reason has been determined for the explosion. He said the liquid chlorine is used to purify water in swimming pools.

Three Area Real Estate Salesmen Lose Licenses

The Florida Real Estate Commission has revoked the licenses of three persons who at one time lived in the Seminole County area.

Charles Henderson, a Winter Springs real estate salesman, had his license revoked after the commission found him guilty of fraud, misrepresentation and dishonest dealing.

When Henderson was working for Caroline Lange, a Longwood broker, in November of 1983, he received $420 a week for three weeks as a draw against future commissions, but he left the area without repaying Lange, said William Furlow, senior attorney with the state Department of Professional Regulation in Orlando.

Myers Van Buren, a Winter Park real estate salesman, had his license revoked when he was found guilty of operating as a broker.

Van Buren solicited and obtained tenants for a rental property in Matland

In April of 1982 without the permission of a broker and received $1,200 in rent money from the tenants but refused to deliver the money to the property owner, Furlow said.

Thomas John Moscoso, an Altamonte Springs real estate salesman, had his license revoked after he was convicted by a federal court of accepting bribes.

Moscoso pled guilty in federal court in Jacksonville to accepting bribes when he was employed as a city planner in Leesburg in November, 1981, Furlow said. Moscoso was sentenced to 17 months in prison.

The Real Estate Commission reported that 262,675 real estate licenses are held by individuals and corporations in Florida, including 114,827 licenses held by salesmen, 74,946 held by inactive salesmen, 26,387 held by brokers, 12,939 held by corporations and 17,703 held by broker-salesmen.

Baker County Cops Using Trikes To Run Down Dopers

MACCLENY, Fla. (UPI) — Baker County, which is mostly pine woods, couldn't afford the fancy airplanes wealthier Florida counties use to locate marijuana fields, so it went out and bought a couple of triecycles.

But deputies tooling around on the two Suzuki ALT 125 all-terrain motorbikes have probably found more marijuana patches in the piney backwoods than any low-flying plane or helicopter would ever have found.

"Us small counties don't have money to get planes and helicopters, so we had to go to something else," Chief Deputy Joe Barber said.

In the two weeks they have been using them, Barber and sheriff's investigator

"We still do a lot of walking," Barber said. "We ride these things until we find a trail, and then we'll get off and follow that."

To look at them, one would think they were a pair of middle-aged joyriders. But the pistol hanging from the front of one bike and the police radio hanging from the other leave no doubt about their mission.

The bikes, which cost about $850 each, were purchased with money seized from drug smugglers a couple of months ago.

"It didn't cost the taxpayers anything," Roberson said. "We used doper money."

Barber said the three-wheelers may be the solution for rural counties where

'If we keep busting marijuana patches with these things we'll probably have to put them under lock and key. These old boys (the marijuana growers) will probably want to blow them up.'

—Chief Deputy Joe Barber

Archie Roberson have found and uprooted more than 4,000 marijuana plants.

"We've already found a couple of patches that the airplanes flew over," Roberson said Monday. "They'll go across some rough territory. A motorcycle couldn't go in the places these things go."

Before the purchase of the dune buggy-type motorbikes, Barber said he and Roberson scouted the woods on foot, but that was time-consuming.

"We have 583 square miles in this county. That's a lot of territory," he said.

domestic marijuana is a problem. Baker County is the first in northeast Florida to try the machines, he said.

"For smaller counties, I believe this is going to be the best thing in the world," he said.

The bikes are so effective that Roberson said they now have to think about ways to protect them.

"If we keep busting marijuana patches with these things we'll probably have to put them under lock and key," he said. "These old boys (the marijuana growers) will probably want to blow them up."

Blacks Challenge Written Tests In Police Promotion

ST. PETERSBURG (UPI) — Two black men who challenged the police department's use of written tests in its promotion process have taken their complaint to federal court.

The two men, officer Ron Adams and former officer Ernest Mathis, filed a class action suit against the city in U.S. District Court in Tampa in an effort to block the city from using a promotion system that uses written tests.

The men won a minor victory Monday when the city's human relations department issued a report saying the department's use of a written test as one of three steps in the promotion process adversely affected minorities.

Settlement negotiations between the officers and the city broke off last week.

Linda Allan, the attorney for Adams, said the talks fell through because of pressure from white officers who believe the complaint has no merit.

Police chief Sam Lynn said last week that he was prepared to defend the department's promotion process.

The human relations report said the department had failed to take the necessary steps to prove that the test used in the promotion process was job-related and had not established a valid cut-off score on the sergeant's examination.

Judge William Castagna scheduled a hearing for next week on Ms. Allan's motion for a preliminary injunction seeking to prohibit use of the test.

Blacks Narrowing Educational Gap With Whites: Psychologist

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Black students have made dramatic improvements in the last 15 years in reading, mathematics and other subjects, for the first time narrowing the traditional gap in achievement between black and white youth, a psychologist says.

"The evidence is very clear from several sources of data gathered in 15 years," Lyle Jones of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill said.

Exact reasons for the improvement of black students, he said, remain unclear but one factor might be improved living conditions of black families, leading to more constructive attitudes and higher motivation in black children.

While overall achievement scores of white students improved 2 percent in the past decade, black children's performance on such evaluations as the Scholastic Aptitude Test soared 10 percent, said Jones, who spent two years studying the data.

While the average scores of black children born in 1953 were 20 percent below white students' results, the difference was cut in half for children born in 1970.

"We see consistent reductions in the average difference between whites and blacks and considerably higher relative levels of average performance in mathematics for black children born since 1965 than for black children born earlier," Jones said.

"We may safely conclude that the gap between white and black average verbal and quantitative achievement levels for elementary and secondary students has appreciably narrowed over the 1970s."

Noting the overall "sad" state of American education, however, he said, "We are still far from the levels that would fulfill societal expectations and there's great need to improve further."

Americans also should not lose sight "of the continuing large average achievement difference between white and black children," he said.

The findings seemed to contradict study results presented earlier by Dr. Arthur Jensen of the University of California at Berkeley, who contended blacks differ from whites in some mental capacities.

"It's possible that the achievement gains for blacks might plateau at some level and never equal that of the whites, but it's clear they're making rapid progress now," Jones said.

The Death In Manila...

There are moments in the history of nations when a single event can reverberate like a thunderclap and alter the future forever. The assassination of Philippine opposition leader Benigno S. Aquino Jr. is likely to be such an event for the Philippines, and for the authoritarian government of President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Democracies, by their very nature, have little trouble establishing legitimacy with their own citizens. Totalitarian regimes, by their nature, need not obtain the consent of the governed and so do not have to be overly concerned with preserving an air of moral authority.

But authoritarian governments, falling somewhere between democracy and absolute tyranny, must preserve at least a measure of moral authority lest they invite the universal opposition that only a genuinely totalitarian regime can hope to suppress indefinitely.

And herein lies the danger posed by Benigno Aquino's assassination to President Marcos' continued rule. Although Mr. Aquino's killer has been identified as Rolando Galman y Dawang, described as a notorious killer and gun for hire, the fact remains that he died in the custody of the government security troops who met his plane in Manila.

To the millions of Filipinos who supported "Ninoy" Aquino or who at least saw him as the one figure best able to rally a heretofore splintered opposition to the Marcos regime, nothing is likely to dispel the suspicion of government complicity in his death. And even many of Mr. Marcos' own supporters are certain to be at least alienated if not driven into opposition unless the government can demonstrate conclusively that it was blameless.

Mr. Marcos himself acknowledged his political problem when he conceded that the Aquino assassination cast "some kind of shadow" on his government. If that shadow cannot be removed, Mr. Marcos' days in Manila's stately Malacanang Palace may well be numbered.

Ironically, the pall of suspicion cast over the Marcos regime is no less real despite the logic suggesting that no Philippine government official would order Benigno Aquino's assassination, most especially when the opposition leader was in government custody.

Few governments in the world are more obsessively concerned with their image abroad than that of Ferdinand Marcos. And while Mr. Marcos and those who hold power with him had ample reason to wish Benigno Aquino out of the way, it strains credulity to imagine that any were so stupid as not to know that murdering the most prominent opposition leader would only risk isolating the regime internationally and crystallizing resistance at home.

Who, then, might profit by Mr. Aquino's assassination? Two obvious guesses are the Communist Party of the Philippines and the Muslim separatists fighting for an independent Islamic state in the southern Philippines. Both groups stand to benefit by polarizing Filipinos, discrediting the Marcos government, and inciting further violence and unrest. And both groups have long since demonstrated a willingness to employ terrorism when it might advance their causes.

Then, too, Benigno Aquino's long career in the rough and tumble — and frequently violent — world of Philippine politics must surely have earned him personal enemies waiting patiently to settle old scores.

What can be said now with certainty is that the assassination of Benigno Aquino represents a tragedy for a country linked by history, shared ideals, and strategic interests with the United States. Here was a man of courage and principle who was committed to the restoration of Philippine democracy and, in fact, gave his life in that noble endeavor. Americans and Filipinos alike can only mourn his loss and hope that it will not be in vain.

Some Women Boring

Organized women are getting to be an awful bore.

Recently, some representatives of women's business and professional clubs were meeting in Washington, and through some mixup had their guided tour of the White House canceled.

Tough, but things like that do happen sometimes.

The next morning President Reagan rushed over to their convention at the Sheraton Hotel and apologized to them in person.

That strikes me as excessive. Reagan even said that he intended to "do penance," a remark which under the circumstances goes rather far in the direction of being undignified.

All of this got Reagan precisely nowhere. He was informed, for his pains, that the mixup over the tour reflected the "insensitivity" shown by his administration toward "women's issues."

When Reagan tried to compliment the women at the Sheraton, he got his head handed to him. "If it wasn't for women," he said, "us men would still be walking around in skin suits carrying clubs."

Now C.S. Lewis or G.K. Chesterton might have phrased it a bit differently, but all Reagan was saying was that women have been a civilizing influence in history — a perfectly defensible point. C.S. Lewis, indeed, devotes a chapter to it in his well-known study, "The Allegory of Love." The businesswomen at the Sheraton found the remark "offensive" and groaned in ideological horror.

Of course in episodes of this sort no one is really "offended" or "horrified." People pretend to be, because their ideology dictates that they are supposed to be.

If the president had told them all to go jump in the Potomac, a lot of people would have wired him congratulations. There is no need for him to play these sleazy little games.

A little earlier this summer in San Antonio, Tex., a meeting of the National Women's Political Caucus made the leading Democratic presidential contenders grovel, whine, and look ridiculous.

Poor John Glenn innocently committed a horrifying ideological error. He actually used the phrase "man and wife."

Zounds! You're supposed to say "man and woman" or "husband and wife," get it? Glenn apologized abjectly.

Alan Cranston appeared to be intimidated to the point where he took leave of his senses. As president, he told women, he would refuse to repair roads and bridges in states that failed to ratify the E.R.A. The female zealots seemed to go for this idea, perhaps reflecting that only men had been killed when that bridge on the Interstate collapsed recently in Greenwich, Conn.

Gary Hart made the mistake of speaking for more than his allotted seven minutes, and was sternly rebuked for "insensitivity" to women. Groveling, he promised to do better next time.

Drug Probe Over, Questions Linger

WASHINGTON — The breakup of a Capitol Hill cocaine ring set in motion the criminal investigative process which, under the public spotlight, should have been difficult to nullify. But the cover-up squad at the Justice Department apparently has succeeded in thwarting the investigation.

The department has announced that there is not enough evidence to prosecute three members of Congress who were under investigation for allegedly buying drugs from the ring. This establishes precedent that will also end the investigation of six other members who had been identified as cocaine customers.

The investigative files are not available to the press or public. We are in the position the Justice Department likes to have us in: We have to take their word for it.

Government has grown very knowing about the press — about its limited resources, its short attention span, its difficulty in pursuing libelous stories, its inability to function when information is cut short.

It's hard to go beyond a prosecutor who will not prosecute the higher-ups. Nor can we circumvent defendants who plead guilty and keep their silence.

And so the case against the congressmen has been passed over — with only unanswered questions to tempt our interest on a quiet day. The Capitol Hill cocaine scandal, like a block of cement heaved over the Fourteenth Street Bridge, has vanished out of sight.

But occasional putrefying remnants bubble up from below now and again to bother the calm surface, marking the spot where the scandal disappeared.

Narcotics investigators developed important leads, for example, pointing to the accused congressmen. But the record shows that the prosecutor, Dan Bernstein, failed to pursue them.

By relentlessly pressuring one of the dope dealers to plead guilty, Bernstein also prevented a trial that was sure to have brought out evidence embarrassing to Congress.

The indicted dealer, Troy Todd, 23, for months refused to plead guilty. But Bernstein apparently didn't want the case to go to trial. He made repeated calls to Stanley Dietz, one of Todd's attorneys, who said Bernstein threatened to investigate other members of the Todd family if his client failed to enter a guilty plea.

Seminole County has had its share of warm, rainy weather lately and Florida health officials are warning people that this kind of weather increases the risk of contracting Eastern equine encephalitis, a viral infection of the brain and nervous system that is transmitted by the bite of certain mosquitoes.

It's not a disease to be taken lightly. Four cases were reported in Florida in 1980, and three of the victims died.

So far this year, one probable case of the disease has been reported in a youngster who had recently been camping in the Ocala National Forest.

Eastern equine encephalitis is transmitted through the bite of infected mosquitoes. The virus is carried by birds, mosquitoes acquire the virus by biting infected birds and occasionally transmit the infection to another bird or, less often, man and other animals.

Almost all human cases reported in Florida have been in persons who live in rural areas or work outside or who are active in outdoor activities such as fishing, hunting, hiking or camping.

Because of the popularity of outdoor activity and unusually large populations of mosquitoes this year, Florida health officials are asking persons at increased risk to take personal preventive measures.

Avoid exposure to mosquitoes, especially during dusk and evening. Use mosquito repellents, wear long-sleeved clothing of thickly woven materials and avoid fresh-water swamps where the virus is often found. Elimination of mosquito breeding places such as old tires or containers of standing water around the house is also important.

Because Eastern equine encephalitis is transmitted through birds, Florida uses a system of sentinel chicken flocks maintained near urban areas by county health departments and mosquito control districts to detect presence of the disease. The chickens are checked periodically for infection by means of blood tests.

Since the mosquitoes feed by preference on birds, the detection of viral activity in the sentinel chickens usually precedes any large-scale infection of humans. The early warning given by the sentinels allows mosquito control activities to start or increase.

Airlines Make Sky Unfriendly

WASHINGTON (NEA) — There's a lot of fine print on the back of an airline ticket — but how many people have ever read it? Even if they tried, most people probably would give up midway through the legal gobbledygook.

However, a growing trend makes it imperative that air travelers begin to read and understand all of that fine print.

Take the recent case of passengers waiting at the Minneapolis airport for a flight to Newark. The plane they were due to take developed mechanical difficulties — but, said the airline, don't worry: You'll be put aboard a flight due to leave shortly for La Guardia Airport.

Some passengers grumbled about the delay they'd face in getting from La Guardia to Newark, but they boarded the new flight. They assumed that the airline was responsible for getting them to Newark, their ticketed destination; no other possibility crossed their minds.

They were in for a surprise. When they landed at LaGuardia, the airline told them they were now on their own: They had paid to go from Minneapolis to the metro New York area, said the airline, and the airline's obligation ended when they landed at any New York airport.

This is one manifestation of the Reagan administration's effort to get the federal government off the back of private industry. As part of its deregulation program, the administration is phasing out the Civil Aeronautics Board, which will cease to exist at the end of 1984.

Previously, the CAB regulated almost every aspect of an airline's relationship with its passengers. The CAB approved an airline's tariff schedule, which included the guarantee that a passenger would be transported to the specific airport for which he or she was ticketed and stated that the airline was responsible for assuming certain costs if a trip was delayed.

But the CAB eliminated domestic tariff schedules as of Jan. 1, 1983, as one step toward the complete phase-out of the agency. The elimination of tariff approvals has led to today's highly publicized fare wars — but it also enabled each airline to define what costs it would be responsible for in case of delay or rerouting.

At one time, under CAB-approved tariffs, if a flight were delayed beyond a certain amount of time, the airline was required to provide passengers with a meal and a free phone call so they could advise relatives or associates of the delay. If the flight departure were pushed past a certain time — usually 10 p.m. — the passenger was entitled to a motel room at airline expense.

But it's now up to the airlines to determine what, if any, costs they will assume — and given their profit position, most of them are deciding not to pick up any costs at all.

In addition, some airlines have decided that their responsibility ends when the passenger is transported to any airport within a metropolitan area.

ROBERT WALTERS

On The Waterfront

PORTLAND, Maine (NEA) — From Seattle to Miami, this country is rediscovering the virtues of its urban waterfronts — and nowhere is that phenomenon more evident than in this seacoast city whose harbor was first used 350 years ago.

In a thriving port area bustling with activity, a new generation of trendy boutiques, pricey art galleries and chic restaurants coexist with long-established ship chandlers, sailmakers' workshops and mariners' bars.

The city has carefully preserved dozens of century-old buildings, providing visitors with an opportunity to examine the Italianate, mansard and colonial revival architecture of the 19th century while touring specialty shops offering everything from scented candles to antique furniture.

But because Portland is firmly committed to sustaining an active working port, the most ubiquitous sensations are the sights, sounds and smells of maritime activity. The pungent aroma of fresh seafood is inescapable.

More highly publicized waterfront revivals are underway in four cities where developer James W. Rouse has designed festive markets which have been highly successful in attracting both local residents and tourists.

Boston's Quincy Market-Faneuil Hall restoration was completed in 1976, followed by Baltimore's Harborplace in 1980. The South Street Seaport in New York City and Waterside in Norfolk, Va., both opened earlier this summer.

"The momentum of waterfront development is likely to continue and perhaps accelerate," predicts the newsletter of the Waterfront Center, a non-profit Washington-based organization which monitors developments in the field.

"Just a fraction of what's going to happen has happened yet," says Cambridge, Mass., architect Roy Mann. "Clearly, there's going to be more of what we're seeing in large metropolitan areas and it's going to spread to the smaller communities," adds Philadelphia architect Philip Franks.

Much of that activity in smaller cities already is underway — and one of the most striking aspects is its popularity in Midwestern communities far removed from the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts.

Indianapolis, for example, has ambitious plans for $182 million worth of development — including an amusement park, conservatory, marina, zoo and performing arts center — on 250 acres along the banks of the White River.

Other Midwestern communities with riverfront or lakefront renewal plans include Toledo and Sandusky, Ohio; Fort Wayne, Ind.; Peoria, Ill.; and Grand Rapids, Mich. In St. Louis, one of the region's most depressed cities, a $50 million waterfront project, Laclede's Landing, has been highly successful.

In the South, Riverwalk in San Antonio, Texas, ranks as one of the nation's earliest and most popular efforts to integrate a city's waterfront with the lives of its people.

Elsewhere in the region, waterfront rehabilitation is planned or underway in Miami, New Orleans, Pensacola and Sarasota, Fla.; Charleston, S.C.; Savannah, Ga.; Mobile, Ala.; Memphis, Tenn., and a host of other cities.

Not all waterfront development projects are highly successful or widely acclaimed. For example, Detroit's Renaissance Center on the banks of the Detroit River has not met its developers' expectations because of the city's depressed economy and its harsh, forbidding design.

San Francisco's Fisherman's Wharf has been so successful in drawing visitors that it ranks as California's second most popular tourist attraction (Disneyland is first) but the water-related aspects of the project have been almost totally obscured.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Rain Dampens Aquino Funeral, Crowds Turn Out

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Hundreds of thousands of mourners jammed Manila's streets today in an emotional farewell to slain opposition leader Benigno Aquino, but heavy thunderstorms kept the funeral from becoming a mass anti-government protest.

The downpour dampened demonstrations against the regime along the 16-mile route between the Santo Domingo Cathedral and Aquino's entombment site at the Manila Memorial Park.

Still, the huge crowds were the largest the Philippine capital had seen since Pope John Paul II made a pastoral visit to the country in February 1981.

A 10-wheel flatbed truck carrying Aquino's flag-draped casket was forced to inch its way through enormous throngs of mourners, who turned out despite the rains to pay respects to the man who had been the chief political rival of President Ferdinand Marcos.

Hijackers Renew Threat

By United Press International

Iran denied takeoff permission today for an Air France jetliner held by four armed men at Tehran's airport and the hijackers responded by threatening to kill their 15 hostages, including three Americans, French Radio reported.

The Boeing 727 remained on the ground at Mehrabad Airport in the Iranian capital for a fourth day, the French Radio said, quoting the official Iranian News Agency.

The report said Iranian authorities withdrew permission for the plane to take off after the hijackers threatened Tuesday night to blow the jetliner out of the air in mid-flight over Iraq.

The four Arabic-speaking hijackers responded by warning they would kill the seven crew members and eight passengers still aboard the plane sometime today if France refused to accede to their demands for release of Arab prisoners and changes in French foreign policy.

Rebels: Stone Holds Key

United Press International

Special U.S. envoy Richard Stone carried a message back to El Salvador today from Salvadoran rebels accusing the United States of intransigence and warning that Washington holds the key to any political solution in the four-year civil war.

Diplomatic sources said Stone would arrive at Ilopango airport in El Salvador today from Costa Rica and later travel to Bogota, Colombia, after he debriefs leaders of the U.S.-backed government on his talks with the rebels.

Diplomatic sources in Colombia said Stone would meet with members of the Salvadoran Peace Commission, Francisco Quinonez and Bishop Marco Rene Revelo.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

2,000 Fish, Frogs Dead Where Rodeo Horses Died

JACKSONVILLE, (UPI) — About 2,000 fish and frogs were found dead in a stream less than two miles from the pasture where 48 rodeo horses mysteriously died over the past five days.

A toxicologist, Dr. Richard L. Lipsey, was in the pasture Monday when a horse keeled over dead almost at his feet.

"Judging from the symptoms — convulsions, breathing difficulty — the horse had to die as a result of pesticides or PCB poisoning," he said.

Lyle Wiggins, one of the owners of the horses that died in a west Jacksonville pasture, said about 2,000 dead fish and frogs, including minnows and baby bass, were found in a stream less than two miles from the pasture.

City environmental and public health officials visited the swamp and took samples for laboratory analysis.

New York Gal Miss Teen

LAKELAND, (UPI) — A 5-2, 97-pound community college student from Amsterdam, N.Y., with a green belt in karate has been named Miss Teen USA.

The 11-day-long pageant wound up Tuesday night with the selection of Miss New York, Elizabeth Zakarian, as the winner.

The 17-year-old brunette who begins classes at Fulton Montgomery Community College near her home this fall was selected over 50 other teenagers from across the nation.

The final night of the pageant was televised nationally and attended by a crowd of about 3,500 in Lakeland Civic Center.

First runnerup was Tina Marrocco of McLean, Va.; second runnerup was Krista Keith of Edgewood, Ky.; third runnerup was Kelly Jerles of Perry, Ga.;

Conflict Lebanese Army Launches Major Offensive

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A fourth day of heavy fighting erupted around Beirut today and the Lebanese army mounted a major offensive to regain control of the capital from Moslem militiamen, clamping down a curfew and warning violators would be shot.

Artillery fire pounded U.S. Marine positions and other peace-keeping units and forces in the Syrian-controlled upper Meiri mountains east of Beirut, believed to be Druze Moslems, shelled the beleaguered capital through the night, state-run Beirut radio said.

U.S. Marines came under sporadic mortar, rocket and machine-gun fire for four hours Tuesday and returned with salvos from automatic weapons and machine guns, said Maj. Robert Jordan. There were no U.S. casualties.

The nuclear-powered aircraft carrier USS Eisenhower was positioned just over the horizon after coming to within 3 miles of Beirut in a show of U.S. strength and support for the Lebanese army, Jordan said.

The Pentagon said the remains of the two Marines killed Monday — 2nd Lt. Donald Losey, 28, Winston Salem, N.C., and Staff Sgt. Alexander M. Ortega, 25, Rochester, N.Y. — would arrive today at Dover Air Force Base, Del.

The shelling Tuesday terrorized the city and sent frightened residents scrambling for bomb shelters to wall out the bombardments.

There were no immediate reports on new casualties. The previous three days of factional fighting — one of the worst outbursts since Lebanon's 1975-76 civil war — left 44 soldiers, including seven peace-keeping troops, and 30 civilians dead and more than 150 people wounded.

Lebanese army units came under attack again as Shiite Moslem militiamen tried to disrupt army operations and the government ordered the army to mount a major offensive to regain control of west Beirut.

The army clamped down a curfew and warned armed people on the streets would be shot without warning. Many city streets were relatively quiet today.

Richard Fairbanks, the deputy U.S. special envoy to the region, held an early-morning meeting with Prime Minister Cheikh Wazzan on the escalating violence.

Heavy artillery fell every five minutes near U.S. Marine positions for about 45 minutes around midnight, and two shells exploded within the perimeter of the Marine positions at Beirut International Airport, a Marine spokesman said.

The Marines responded by firing flares as a warning and the rounds halted, he said, but reported no casualties.

New fighting was also reported in the northern port city of Tripoli, where Beirut radio said 10 people died and 20 were wounded overnight.

Struggle Erupts In Israel Over Begin Successor

JERUSALEM (UPI) — A power struggle developed today between Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Deputy Prime Minister David Levy over who will succeed Menachem Begin as prime minister of Israel.

The succession battle began Tuesday after Begin affirmed his Sunday decision to resign despite entreaties by his Likud coalition executive committee.

"I cannot continue. I cannot go on," one participant at the meeting quoted the 70-year-old prime minister as saying.

Begin looked frail as he left the emergency meeting and was driven off in a bulletproof limousine. Supporters chanted for him to retract his decision.

The Israeli leader did agree to delay handing in his official resignation letter.

In order to give his Likud coalition time to build a government before he steps down and to deprive the opposition Labor Party of a chance at leadership.

The first step in building a government is to have his Herut Party pick a successor — but a struggle immediately broke out Tuesday between party leaders Shamir and Levy, two of Begin's closest partners.

The eight Cabinet ministers belonging to Herut, including Levy and Shamir, met through the afternoon and into the evening but failed to decide on a successor.

Supporters of Shamir, 68, want the Cabinet ministers to decide, while backers of Levy, 45, prefer the choice instead be made by the larger Herut

Central Committee, where Levy has strong support.

Shamir, like Begin, was one of the leaders of the pre-independence underground fighters who used terrorism to fight the British. Levy is a member of the Sephardic community of Jews originating from Middle Eastern countries.

Both men favor Jewish settlement in the occupied West Bank, indicating there would be little change in a post-Begin Likud government.

Begin's resignation takes effect only after he submits a formal letter to President Chaim Herzog, who must then consult all of Israel's political parties before asking a party leader to form a new government.

By withholding his formal resignation until his often-fractional government coalition has time to agree on a new leadership team, Begin in effect ensures the Likud Bloc remains in power.

Ariel Sharon, minister without portfolio and former defense chief, emerged briefly as a candidate but said Tuesday he was supporting Shamir.

Defense Minister Moshe Arens, once a leading candidate, is ineligible to serve as prime minister because he is not currently in the Israeli parliament.

Begin's confirmation of his decision to leave office ended three of the most frenzied days in Israel's history. Israel radio broadcast continual bulletins on the progress of the Herut meeting Tuesday at which members implored Begin to stay on.

Space Phone Active

BEDMINSTER, N.J. (UPI) — More than 51,000 earthlings listened in on chatter between the crew of the space shuttle Challenger and Mission Control in Houston on the first day of the craft's latest flight.

Since liftoff early Tuesday, American Telephone & Telegraph's "space phone" has allowed shuttle-watchers to call a special telephone number to listen in on radio conversations between ground controllers and the five astronauts.

AT&T spokeswoman Gail Purpura said that by 8 p.m. EDT Tuesday, 17 1/2 hours after the shuttle lifted off from Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral, Fla., 51,367 people had called the special number.

More than two-thirds were from the United States. The rest were from overseas.

Ms. Purpura said the totals were "substantially lower" than during the June flight which carried Sally Ride, America's first woman in space.

The current flight has an all-male crew, including Guion Bluford, the first black American to fly in space.

Despite the early launching, 5,254 callers were on the line when Challenger lifted off at 2:32 a.m. and nearly 10,000 people "dialed aboard" within two hours after takeoff, Ms. Purpura said.

Anyone in the United States, Australia, Bermuda and the Caribbean can use the service by dialing 1-800-410-6272. The cost is 50 cents for the first minute and 35 cents for each additional minute, plus tax.

Overseas callers can tap into the space conversations by dialing their international access code, plus 1-307-410-6272.

Court Reverses Itself

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — An appeal court Tuesday backed off its earlier view that rehabilitative alimony for ex-wives automatically ceases when the woman remarries.

Ruling 3-0 in a Leon County case, the 1st District Court of Appeal said a lower court had been misled by its earlier decision and should reconsider a petition by Mildred Lou Kissinger.

In divorcing Philip Mason, her husband of 23 years, in 1981, Mrs. Kissinger was awarded $625 per month in rehabilitative alimony which was to continue for three years so long as she remained enrolled in the school of pharmacy at Florida A&M University.

When the woman remarried, her former husband asserted that the alimony should stop even though she was still attending FAMU and the three years had not lapsed.

Leon Circuit Judge Donald Hartwell agreed, largely on a 1976 1st DCA ruling dealing with rehabilitative alimony, which is intended for a non-working spouse to acquire job skills to be self-supporting.

In that ruling, the appeal court said, "Remarriage of the recipient also, of course, requires termination of rehabilitative alimony."

Looking back on the case, the three-judge panel concluded that this statement was "gratuitous," not central to the earlier case and, therefore, not binding.

It sent back the Kissinger case to the circuit court to decide the issue.

Marcos Still The Key To Philippines' Future

By Ron Redmond

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Benigno Aquino gambled with his life and lost.

The political archrival of Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos bet he could return to his homeland, reorganize the opposition, talk Marcos into holding free elections and halt his country's slow journey toward "another El Salvador."

Instead, he was met with an assassin's bullet to the back of the head the moment he set foot on Philippine soil after a three-year voluntary exile in the United States.

His death spells big trouble for Marcos, the already splintered opposition and the return of democracy in the Philippines.

Aquino, 50, chose to return to Manila at a time when Marcos faced mounting problems, including an ailing economy, rampant corruption, a growing communist insurgency in the countryside and possible falling health.

Two weeks before Aquino's arrival, Marcos dropped out of sight — to complete a book on Philippine history, aides said. He was later forced to make two appearances on nationwide television — first to dispel rumors he was ill and then to call for calm in the wake of Aquino's death.

Marcos, 65, who reportedly suffers from a chronic kidney ailment, appeared extremely stiff, swollen and ill at ease on the second occasion. Filipinos said they never had seen him look so bad.

Although observers say there are at least three factions jockeying for position within the government, there is no obvious successor to Marcos.

Sensing that Marcos' 18 years of one-man rule was nearing an end, Aquino felt he could wait no longer to return and prepare the opposition for a new era.

"The country is heading toward one of two things — either a leftist takeover or a rightist military junta," Aquino said in an interview the day he died.

"Generals are now all over the landscape. There were 27 before martial law and 107 now.

"So, as long as Marcos is alive, it's OK — he is the godfather."

But after Marcos, Aquino said, an uncertain future loomed.

The Philippines is saddled with a $18 billion foreign debt, sagging demand for its traditional exports of coconut oil, copper and sugar cane, chronic unemployment and declining foreign investment.

The average daily wage in the nation of 50 million people is a little over $3 a day. An estimated 75 percent of pre-school children are malnourished, according to government surveys, and 70 percent of the population dies without seeing a doctor.

The predominantly Roman Catholic country has one of the highest birth rates in Asia and one of the lowest growth rates.

Although the government has nearly broken the back of organized labor, criticism has mounted from a new and somewhat unexpected quarter — big business.

The economic woes earlier this year led to an attack by Marcos' cronies, including First Lady Imelda Marcos, on Prime Minister Cesar Virata's tight-listed economic policies.

Virata, a respected economist who says he has no political ambitions, was accused by free-spending cabinet members of bowing under pressure to the World Bank and International Monetary Fund and of "exchanging the nation's sovereignty" for loans.

Big business sided with Virata and let Marcos know it at an unprecedented dinner in the prime minister's honor attended by hundreds of the country's leading businessmen.

Compounding these economic problems is a growing guerrilla war being waged by the communist New Peoples Army in a majority of the country's 73 provinces and a more isolated but just as bloody Moslem separatist campaign on the southern island of Mindanao.

The communist rebels, numbering between 7,000 and 10,000 men under arms, are not seen as an immediate threat to the government. But they are a costly drain on the national budget and belong to what is believed to be the only growing communist insurgency in southeast Asia.

Filipino opposition leaders warn that the longer Marcos retains his authoritarian powers, the more dangerous the rebels will become.

"We are losing so many of our younger members because they have become disillusioned with trying to work for change within the system," said Salvador II. Laurel, president of a coalition of 12 opposition parties.

"Many of them have simply given up and gone to the hills. We are about the only moderates left in a population becoming increasingly radicalized."

Aquino thought he was the man to rally the opposition for crucial legislative elections scheduled for 1984.

Marcos had ordered his government to "bend over backwards" to ensure the elections for the 179-seat Batasang Pambansa are fair and Aquino told reporters before his return to Manila that he hoped he could talk the president into restoring freedom of the press and ensuring free polls.

Although his hopes were cut short, Aquino's death did have an impact on the controlled local press, gave the opposition a martyr to rally around and brought hundreds of thousands of saddened and outraged Filipinos into the streets.

It was the biggest display of anti-government emotion ever seen in Manila and confirmed family claims that Aquino had not been forgotten despite nearly eight years in prison and three in voluntary exile.

Border Babies Clutch Their U.S. Birthright

By Tom Tiede

MALLEN, Texas (NEA) — Most Mexicans who cross the international bridge here on the Rio Grande are on their way to work in Texas. But not Josefina Garcia. When she walked over the border recently she was eight months pregnant. In early labor, and she'd come to America to have her child.

It was all prearranged. Everything went just as expected. Mrs. Garcia got a taxi on this side of the gate and rode to a small home off a dusty rural lane. She was given some fruit juice, she was examined by an elderly midwife, and she was put to bed near a color picture of Jesus Christ.

Some hours later she gave birth to a girl.

The following morning Mrs. Garcia reported that she and her daughter were doing well. At least they were doing better than they might have done in Mexico. The mother said that she'd been afraid to have the baby back in her village, because the delivery facilities were not very good.

Yet that's not the real reason she made the last minute journey to Texas. The real reason is opportunity. In this case citizenship. When a child is born in the United States, it is automatically recognized as a U.S. citizen, and it is entitled to all the benefits and privileges the nation provides.

It doesn't matter if the parents are Mexican. It doesn't matter if the infant is taken right back across the border. Legally, the child is American, and therefore it has a right to public education, public welfare, the vote, Social Security, Medicare and, of course, free passage.

What's more, it also has the right to help its parents become citizens. The law has been modified in recent years, but the opportunity in it still exists. When American children of foreign parents become 21 years old, they may act as sponsors for family members who want to immigrate.

So that's why Mrs. Garcia crossed the border to have her baby. And that's why thousands of other Mexican women are apparently doing the same thing. "We are poor people," Mrs. Garcia says of her husband and herself. "This is a way to give our daughter and ourselves a little bit of hope."

And it's a way to do it legally. Mexicans who steal into the United States for opportunities are always subject to deportation. But those who have their babies here are doing it with the best wishes of the government. State and federal officials say pregnant women are never stopped at the border.

They aren't counted there, either. The authorities say they don't have any idea how many Mexican women are having babies on this side of the 1,950-mile boundary. There are hundreds of practicing midwives along the line, however, and from all indications they are doing a brisk business.

A few Mexicans also have babies in public hospitals here. But midwives are the usual preference. The midwives are normally Hispanic, they make deliveries in the United States the way it has traditionally been done in Mexico, and they cost less than a U.S. hospital; most midwives charge $150 to $250 a birth.

That doesn't mean midwives are always the best choice for Mexican mothers. Some of the midwives are incompetent, and others are said to be racketeers. Most of the border midwives practice without government supervision or certification, and there have been some problems as a result.

One problem is medical. The midwives sometimes operate without skill or hygiene. They seldom give prenatal or postnatal care, they can be cavalier about sanitation, and there are frightful stories about botched jobs. One Texas state senator, Hector Urbide, says some midwives are "plain dangerous."

Some midwives are also dishonest. The local police say they cater to the needs of illegal aliens. The police say the midwives deliver babies for the illegals, and then legitimize everything with false birth certificates; the service costs between $1,000 and $2,000 in Hidalgo County.

For all the risk and foul potential, however, the authorities do little to discourage the delivery of border babies. There have been a few arrests of midwives and a few deportations of pregnant illegals, but otherwise the law stays clear of questions regarding international motherhood.

...Road Priorities Set

for the next five years when the distribution formula would then be closer to the county's expected 85 percent-15 percent split," Knowles told the city commission in a memo last week.

On Monday, the county commission agreed to do exactly as Knowles predicted and transfer federal revenue sharing money out of road projects.

Knowles suggested the apparent answer is to seek a remedy during the 1984 session of the Florida Legislature to require the same county distribution formula to be used throughout the approved life of the local option gasoline tax as was developed in state law. He said an alternative might be to allow a change only with the concurrence of the cities or to require a referendum on gasoline tax and the formula for any year after the first year.

Commissioner Ned Yancey asked if the Legislature left a loophole or set up the distribution in a fashion that the "first one to read it (the law) can say what it means."

By changing the distribution formula, the county could completely phase out the city's share in five years, Moore said.

Commissioner David Farr said the "county is using this as a club to manipulate the cities."

When Moore suggested the county's seven cities might wish to get together to take some sort of joint action, Knowles said three of the county's smaller cities, Lake Mary, Oviedo and Winter Springs, might not be interested in concerted action because they may believe they will get a better share of the gasoline tax revenues by spending more local money for city roads in future years.

Actually, Knowles said all the cities will get less revenues if the county can manipulate the formula by shifting funds around. —Donna Estes

Conn. Prisoners May Opt For 'Chemical Castration'

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Connecticut could become the first state to use an experimental drug in a voluntary prison program to treat rapists and other sex offenders, officials say.

Correction Commissioner John R. Manson said a study group was looking at the possible use of the experimental drug Depo-Provera, which causes temporary impotence, to treat sex offenders at the state's maximum-security prison in Somers.

The study group, which includes correction officials, psychiatrists, attorneys and others, will determine if there is promise for using the drug in a penal system, Manson said.

The drug is used experimentally at Johns Hopkins Medical Center in Baltimore and Sherbrooke Hospital in Quebec, and Manson said he believed Connecticut would be the first state to use it in a prison program.

The use of the drug was described as "chemical castration" by a Texas judge who last week sentenced a rapist to 10 years of treatment with the drug. Experts, however, say the term "chemical castration" is a misnomer.

The jury in the Texas case had recommended probation for the 28-year-old defendant, who has a history of rape and voyeurism.

Depo-Provera is a trade name for medroxyprogesterone acetate, which can be used to treat sexual deviants. It is not deemed effective in treating psychopathic sex offenders or rapists motivated by violence, not sex.

Manson said the possible state program would be strictly voluntary and inmates would not have their sentences cut or receive other considerations for agreeing to the treatment.

"Basically it will be an offering for those sex offenders who feel this would help them reorganize their lives a bit," he said.

If approved, Manson said the program would most likely begin with a small number of inmates and expand as necessary. He estimated that about 10 percent of the state's prison inmates were sex offenders.

Manson said the possible program using the drug would be "above and beyond" the traditional program at the Somers prison for treating sex offenders, which he said was one of the best programs of its kind.

Manson said the study group will meet again in September and after completing its work would make a recommendation to his office. He said he would decide then whether to proceed and set up the program.

He said the program could be set up with little cost to the state since the drug is not expensive and the program would be run by existing correction department staff.

Manson stressed the program would be voluntary and said he wouldn't allow the forced use of the drug as a condition of a sentence for a convict.

"I would not honor it, because I could not get any of our professional staff to in fact engage in a form of treatment which is ordered by" someone from outside the medical profession, he said.

Bray, Johnson Earn Starting Spots For UCF Opener

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

The University of Central Florida has definitely upgraded its football program with the addition of hard-driving Lou Saban. The big step toward eventual Division I status, however, hasn't closed the door on some of Seminole County's better football products.

When the Fighting Knights open the season Friday at 7:30 p.m. against Elizabeth City (N.C.) State at the Tangerine Bowl in Orlando, there will be two former county prep standouts in the starting lineup and two more who are pushing for starting jobs.

Lake Howell's Jim Bray has nailed down the starting center position while Oviedo's Tom Johnson has earned a berth on the defense at linebacker. Lyman's John Poor is in a battle for the tight end and punting jobs. Another ex-Greyhound, Danny Allen, has returned after a year's absence to challenge for a starting spot on the defensive line.

Bray, a senior from Casselberry, has seen duty on both sides of the line during his Knight career. He was a linebacker in 1980, then switched to center the next year where he has found a home. Bray, 6-2 and 225, led UCF in fumble recoveries in '80 and was game MVP against Savannah State the same year.

Johnson, meanwhile, was an all-everything linebacker for coach Jack Blanton's Lions last year. By moving into a starting role as a frosh, the 6-2½, 215-pounder hopes to follow in the footsteps of another county great — Casselberry linebacker Billy Giovanetti. The ex-Lyman and Lake Howell standout was a four-year starter for the Knights. During his junior year, "Glo" was an Associated Press Honorable Mention Division III All-American. He later signed with the Tampa Bay Bandits.

UCF scout Tod Goodyear, who has been with the College Football

Knights as a player and a coach since the program began, compares the two favorably. "The both like to hit," he said. "Glo was a little quicker, but Johnson is bigger." Coincidentally, Johnson will line up at the same position as Giovanetti — inside linebacker.

Poor, who played on Lyman's district and conference championship team last fall, was considered the sleeper of the UCF signings. At 6-3 and 210 pounds, the Knights expect Poor to grow into a healthy tight end by the time he hangs up his UCF armor. The Altamonte Springs freshman will no doubt add some distance to his punts as he develops.

Joining Johnson on coach Al Seagraves' linebacker foursome will be Glenn Whelpley, Frank Foley and Kevin Cowart. Whelpley and Cowart played last year, while Foley is from Tyler Junior College in Houston, Tex.

Allen Returns To Roam Line

UCF will employ three down linemen led by junior defensive tackle Darrell Rudd, who turned in several outstanding performances for the winless Knights last year. Jack Wilcox (freshman, Jacksonville Englewood) will start at the other tackle while Jamie Jones (freshman, Oakland Mills, Columbia, Md.) will probably start at noseguard. Allen, who is also expected to roam the defensive line, had earned a starting berth, but has been slowed by a hip pointer and is just coming back into his own, according to Seagraves. The Longwood senior should see considerable action Friday.

The defensive backfield — which Seagraves calls "our strongest area" — is headed by strong safety Jamie Lugo (Winter Park), safety Brett Henley and cornerback Darius Fore. Lakeland Kathleen's Vic Riddle and Greg Atterberry are fighting for the remaining corner. Riddle, as most Seminole High fans would like to forget, accounted for four touchdowns when Kathleen whipped the Tribe last year.

Offensively, Bray will be flanked by junior guards Charlie Miller and George Magluta along with tackles Preston Roberts (sophomore, Key West) and Kolton Riley (junior, Sunrise Piper) for offensive line coach Jerry Anderson. Glenn McCombs (sophomore, Cape Coral) will be the tight end while veterans Jeff Froehlich (senior, Bishop Moore) and Jimmy Roundtree (senior, Coral Springs) are the wide receivers.

Junior Dana Thyhsen, the "Deland Rifle," will be at quarterback with speedy Lorenza "Chicken" Rivers (freshman, Kissimmee Osceola), Kim Nixon (freshman, Nichols Mulberry), Terry Bonner (freshman, Memphis, Tenn.) and Orlando Colonial freshman David Slockett splitting time in the backfield.

Although the offense and the defense may lack depth, the place kicking chores couldn't be in better hands with senior Scott Ryerson returning. The Orlando Boone product could be the Knights' ninth All-American and possibly their highest selection in the pro draft. Ryerson hit 6 of 12 field goal attempts and all 13 extra points for UCF last year. The 6-1, 210-pounder was an Associated Press Third Team Division III All-American as a sophomore. It was during that 1981 season that he broke Don Jonas' Tangerine Bowl record with a 54-yard field goal.

KNIGHT NOTES — Anderson, who coached at the U.S. Military Academy the past four years, has a simple offensive philosophy. "We're just going to give the ball to Rivers and see if we can get the hell out of the way."

John Poor

The former Florida Gator Honorable Mention All-American is really impressed with Kissimmee's evasive "Chicken." "Rivers can turn what would be a 10-yard gain for most people into a touchdown. He just has a knack of finding the seams," said Anderson...

Poor's Punting Stock On Rise

Poor is listed second on the depth chart for punters, but his stock may have risen after Tuesday's practice. "He (Poor) was sitting second until Thyhsen slipped a couple off the side of his foot Tuesday," said Anderson. "Lou may move him up a bit now."

The punting game is still up in the air with Poor, Thyhsen and Eddie O'Brien (freshman, Hialeah Miami Lakes) vying for the spot. "Poor has a real good stroke," continued Anderson. "We've just got to speed him up some."

McEnroe Draws Fines — Barely Subdues Waltke

United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — In his own not so subtle way, however much else is going on around him, John McEnroe usually manages to draw the attention.

Like Tuesday, when a schedule of 68 matches was crammed into a 12-hour tennis-thon on 16 courts at Flushing Meadow.

Yet, as is so often the case, it was McEnroe who became the center of a storm when he was fined for three separate offenses, including one for tossing sawdust on a fan, put himself on the brink of an automatic suspension, and came within a set of an inglorious first round exit from the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

And this was only opening day, with six more rounds to come if he is to reach the final.

However much the turmoil that was brewing around him, McEnroe couldn't disguise his displeasure with his game after struggling for 3 hours and 10 minutes before defeating Trey Waltke, 6-3, 5-7, 4-6, 6-0, 6-1.

In much more subdued style, defending champion Jimmy Connors overcame a third set lapse to beat Ramesh Krishnan of India, 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, in a late match. After Krishnan used a pair of breaks to take the third set, Connors broke serve in the fourth and eighth games of the fourth set.

Second seed Ivan Lendl was to play his opening round match today against Florin Segarceanu, while the top two women seeds also were scheduled for action. Top seed Martina Navratilova was paired against Emilse Raponi Longo of Argentina and No. 2 Chris Evert Lloyd against Shelly Walpole.

"I didn't expect to go five sets," McEnroe admitted. "He plays well against me and obviously he doesn't have much to lose. I don't feel I moved that well at all, and I'm glad I got through the match."

"I won't win the tournament if I keep playing like that."

McEnroe was fined a total of $1,850, bringing his cumulative fine total for the last 12 months to $7,300. According to Grand Prix regulations, any player reaching a cumulative total of $7,500 in fines during a one-year period is subject to an automatic 21-day suspension.

He was charged $1,000 for spectator abuse for the sawdust incident, $500 for abuse of official and $350 for ball abuse.

"The guy was egging me on and I don't like people when they egg me on," McEnroe said of his blowup. "A guy like that comes out just to bother me. A really classy individual. It doesn't make me classy for saying something to him but I was wrong and will be again."

"I just don't understand people who do that, people saying, 'come on Trey' right in my ear so only I can hear it. I just get to a point where I snapped, and I realized that it shouldn't have happened."

There was one major upset on opening day with No. 8 seed Jose-Luis Clerc falling to Tim Wilkison, 6-2, 6-3, 7-6. Clerc recently won three consecutive tournaments while Wilkison couldn't make it past the opening round of his previous five tournaments.

"This was the last chance for me in a major and I came in confident," said Wilkison, a 23-year-old left-hander.

Vitas Gerulaitis, the 15th seed, almost duplicated his dubious feat of last year when he was knocked out in the opening round, but this time he managed to ward off three set points in the fourth set and overcome Marcos Hocevar of Brazil, 3-6, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4.

Other seeds advancing along with McEnroe and Connors to the second round were No. 6 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, No. 9 Jimmy Arias, No. 10 Jose Higuera of Spain, No. 11 Gene Mayer, No. 14 Elliot Teltscher and No. 16 Bill Scanlon.

The only women's seed to lose was No. 15 Virginia Ruzici of Romania, a 6-3, 6-3 victim of France's Catherine Tanvier.

However, in a surprise announcement, two-time Open champion Tracy Austin, seeded fourth, withdrew. Austin is bothered by a stress fracture of a rib, affecting muscles in her back, and hasn't played since Eastbourne, England, two months ago.

Seeded women winning were No. 3 Andrea Jaeger, No. 7 Sylvia Hanika of West Germany, No. 8 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia and No. 16 Kathy Jordan. Mandlikova was runnerup to Evert last year.

A Run In The Summertime

Sue Kingsbury (left) and Sarah Elmore turned in strong running performances in last Saturday's Seminole Summertime Cross Country Jambooree at Seminole Community College. Kingsbury, a Lake Mary freshman, finished eighth in the two mile with a time of 13:04.7. It was the third best time ever turned in by a

Herald Photos by Bonnie Wieboldt

Lady Ram runner, Elmore, who runs for Seminole after transferring from Lyman, was the Lady Seminoles' second best runner with a time of 15:54 for 76th place. Saturday's meet was the season opener for most schools which begin dual meet competition next week.

Courageous Overcomes Liberty

Sailing

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Veteran campaigner Courageous, fighting for her life in the America's Cup defenders trial finals, Tuesday overcame Liberty by .49 while workers frantically installed fins on Dennis Conner's trial horse in a last-ditch effort to come up with a design to match that of top challenger Australia II.

Defending cup champion Conner planned to sail Liberty against trial horse Freedom with her new, green horizontal fins today before Liberty resumes the race with 1984time cup winner Courageous.

"It's just an experiment," said Liberty designer Johan Valentijn who put the four-foot fins on each side of Freedom's keel.

Noting that the appendages are being tested first on "our second best boat," Valentijn said, if they work, "we'll put them on Liberty, and that's it."

While 5-knot winds prompted the Challenger's Race Committee to postpone the start of the best-of-seven series between Australia II and Britain's Victory '83 until today, Courageous skipper John Kollus turned the mild 5-to-8 knot breezes into an ally on the shortened 10.5 mile course.

Liberty and Courageous crossed the starting line of the windward-leeward course dead even, but Conner tacked .16 to the first mark with the two Twelves entering a close jibing duel downwind. In an exceptionally tight contest, Courageous rounded the second buoy a slim .10 ahead.

The lead changed twice during the third leg but Courageous, sporting a new genoa, sailed across the finish first.

Liberty and Courageous race every day until a defender is picked, with the Selection Committee of the New York Yacht Club observing every maneuver. The 25th defender of the cup must be chosen by Sept. 8.

The match improved Courageous' record to 10-8 and left Liberty at 9-7.

After sailing around the starting line for more than two hours, Australia II, with John Bertrand at the helm, and Victory '83 returned to their berths in Newport Harbor.

Sunday's race was postponed because of light air, and Monday's match was discounted when neither boat could complete the 24.3 mile course in the allotted 5 hours, 15 minutes.

Australia II, hailing from the Royal Perth Yacht Club, is the clear favorite to win the right to try and wrest the cup from the United States with a 44-5 record. Victory '83 has a 29-25 tally.

While the fins were added to Freedom, yachting observers said Defender was undergoing similar surgery at the Cove Haven Marina. Defender became a trial horse for Courageous after being eliminated from the race Saturday by the selection committee.

Landry Wary Of Redskins In 1st Game

United Press International

The Dallas Cowboys' wagon train may not be ready to ward off the attack of the Washington Redskins yet, but coach Tom Landry is going to do the best he can to keep from being scalped in the season-opener at RFK Stadium Monday night.

"If I had my druthers I wouldn't be playing the defending Super Bowl champions on their field on Monday night," said the Cowboys' coach. "But I don't have my druthers, for some reason."

Football Roundup

"We have a tough time in Washington and we have a tough time on Monday nights against anybody. I hope it will be a tough game because if it isn't we won't be in the game," Landry said. "We know they will play well in their home park. They generate a lot of noise there, but I really don't consider the noise to be that much of a factor."

It will mark the third time in four years Dallas has opened its campaign in Washington.

Running back James Jones was placed on the injured reserve list and free agent tight end Cleo Simmons was recalled. Simmons was one of the players released in the Cowboys' final cuts on Monday.

Veteran safety Benny Barnes, trimmed from the team, cleared waivers and can return to the Cowboys in case of emergency. Veteran running back George Peoples and safety Monty Hunter were picked up by New England and St. Louis, respectively.

In other NFL developments: At Washington, injuries are plaguing the Redskins. Guards Mark May (torn muscle in right arm) and Russ Grimm (bruised shoulder) and their backup, Don Laster (strained neck), will miss at least some practice this week.

At New York, the Jets placed Abdul Salaam on the injured reserve list and claimed wide receiver Preston Brown on waivers from the Baltimore Colts. Salaam will last for a minimum of six weeks, a team spokesman said.

At Miami, the Dolphins placed rookie defensive end Charles Benson and second-year linebacker Ron Hester on injured reserve and recalled defensive lineman Steve Clark, who was waived Monday.

Benson, a third-round draft choice from Baylor, has been suffering from a groin pull since early in training camp and Hester has a bone chip in his knee. Both can be reactivated four weeks into the season as two of the Dolphins' three personnel moves.

The Dolphins open the season Sunday against Buffalo. At San Francisco, the 49ers claimed former University of California standout Daryle Stangstad from the Houston waiver list. The 49ers also placed safety Carlton Williamson on the injured reserve list with a fractured leg.

At St. Louis, the Cardinals released eight players, including veteran wide receiver Dave Stif, and placed four players on injured reserve. The Cardinals released safety Herb Williams, guard Bob Sebro, safety Don Bessilleu, rookie linebackers Guy Bollaix and James Lane, and wide receivers Robert Blakely and Aaron Williams. The Cardinals also placed defensive linemen Ramsey Dardar and Bruce Thornton, cornerback Jeff Griffin and rookie running back Otis Brown on injured reserve.

At Pittsburgh, the Steelers announced they had placed veteran quarterback Terry Bradshaw and tackle Tunch Ilkin on the four-week injured reserve list and placed eight other players, including second-year punter John Goodson, on waivers. Bradshaw recovering from elbow surgery and Ilkin is suffering from strained ligaments in his shoulder.

At East Rutherford, N.J., running back Billy Campfield cleared waivers and was re-signed by the New York Giants, who also placed two players on the injured reserve list and picked up rookie receiver Mike Miller from the waiver wire. Campfield was restored to the Giants' roster Tuesday after clearing waivers and the club also claimed wide receiver Mike Miller, the final cut for Green Bay Monday.

Placed on injured reserve were wide receiver Floyd Eddings, who sprained his right ankle against Pittsburgh in a pre-season game Aug. 12, and Leon Bright, a reserve running back and return specialist.

At Los Angeles, the Rams acquired linebacker Mark Jerue from the Baltimore Colts in exchange for quarterback Mark Reed, who they picked up on waivers from the New York Giants. The Rams also waived linebacker Eric Williams, a six-year veteran formerly with the St. Louis Cardinals.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Austin's Memorial Service Tonight at 8 In Winter Park

A memorial service for George E. Austin will be held at St. Margaret Mary's Catholic Church in Winter Park at 8 o'clock tonight. Viewing will take place at 5 p.m. today at the Baldwin-Fairchild Aloma Chapel in Goldenrod.

Austin, 56, the track and cross country coach at Trinity Preparatory School for the past 12 years, died of a heart attack Monday morning. Austin, who taught at Lawton Elementary School, coached Trinity Prep to seven state championships during his career.

He will be buried in Amarillo, Tex.

Optimists Slate Tourney

The Sanford Optimist Club will hold its annual tournament of champions softball tournament Saturday, Sept. 17 at three locations in Sanford. Games will be played at Chase Park, Pinehurst Field and Fort Mellon Park.

The tournament will be for Class C teams and will cost $90. The roster limit can not exceed 20 and there can be no pickups. Two worth softballs should also be provided.

Trophies for first, second and third place will be given, along with first place individuals, team sportsmanship and highest batting average.

Mail checks payable to the Sanford Optimist Club in care of Tom Whigham at P.O. Box 1330, Sanford, Fl. 32772-1330. The deadline for entries is Sept. 7.

Bears Waive Lick, Earl

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Nine players, including six-year NFL veterans Robin Earl, Andy Frederick, Dennis Lick and Lenny Walterscheid, have been placed on waivers by the Chicago Bears.

The club also announced Tuesday linebacker Al Chesley, a four-year veteran, has been placed on the injured reserve list so the team can meet its 49-man roster limit.

Also waived by the club were tight end Brooks Williams, a five-year veteran; tackle Henry Waechter, a one-year veteran; running back Willie McClendon, a five-year veteran; guard Perry Hartnett, a one-year veteran, and rookie linebacker Don Kimble.

Reagan Proud Of Marietta

MARIETTA, Ga. (UPI) — President Reagan told members of the East Marietta Little League baseball team that the United States is proud of them for winning the world championship.

"I understand all of you in Cobb County and the state of Georgia are extremely proud of the athletic talents and perseverance of the team," Reagan said Tuesday evening in a telephone call from California, which was relayed on loudspeakers for the players and some 1,000 supporters.

"I'm speaking on behalf of the rest of your fellow countrymen. All the rest of the United States is proud," Reagan said. "Just continue to have that same fighting spirit in the years to come. You have every reason to be proud and we're proud of you."

Vikings Reduce Roster

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The Minnesota Vikings have placed veteran kicker Rick Danmeyer on injured reserve and signed another veteran kicker in trimming the roster to the 49-player limit.

A club spokesman said Tuesday that Danmeyer has a bad back. To fill the kicking spot, the Vikings Tuesday signed veteran soccer-style kicker Benny Ricardo, instead of relying on rookie Steven Schoner of Northern Iowa.

Murphy Turns Philosophical, Slump Grows

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Braves went deeper into their slump Tuesday night and centerfielder Dale Murphy turned philosophical.

Although the Braves have yielded first place in the National League West to the Los Angeles Dodgers, there are a lot of games left in the season. Murphy said after Atlanta's 9-6 loss to the Chicago Cubs.

"We're ready to go tomorrow," Murphy said. "You just go out there and play and sometimes you don't get the pitches or the runs you want, and sometimes you do, and sometimes the other team scores some runs. You just try to get one more than they do."

That's been difficult to do with the kind of pitching the Braves have been getting and the hitting they haven't been getting.

The Cubs, who are in fifth place in the NL East, used the long ball for the second straight night to club the Braves into submission.

Carmelo Martinez homered and drove in four runs and Ron Cey homered and had three RBI and Mel Hall hit his third homer in two nights to pace the Cub attack.

The loss, Atlanta's ninth in the last 14 games, dropped the Braves 1 1/2 games back of the Dodgers, who split a doubleheader with the New York Mets Tuesday night.

Mets 3-1, Dodgers 2-2

Pat Zachry left his boot prints on the backs of his former buccaroos but more importantly, gave the Los Angeles Dodgers a firmer leg to stand on in the National League West.

The big, right-handed Texan pitched six shutout innings Tuesday night to lead the Dodgers to a 2-1 victory over New York and a split of their double-header with the Mets.

With Atlanta losing to Chicago, Los Angeles gained a half-game and now leads the Braves by 1 1/2 games.

Zachry, who has been plagued by injuries after being named co-Rookie of the Year with the Reds in 1976, was making his first start of the year after 26 relief appearances.

"My days of going out and blowing guys over are over," Zachry. "All the games are important. This is great. This is like Cincinnati."

N.L. Baseball

In the opener, Ron Hodges singled home Hubie Brooks with the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning to lift the Mets to a 3-2 victory.

Pirates 5, Reds 3

At Cincinnati, rookie Jose DeLeon allowed two hn six innings of work and Dave Parker had four hits, including his ninth homer of the year, to lead the Pirates, DeLeon, 6-2, had a no-hitter for 5 1/3 innings, but was lifted for a pinch hitter in the sixth. Kent Tekulve, the fourth Pittsburgh pl, got the last two outs for his 17th save. Jeff Russell, 2-1, took the loss.

Giants 13, Expos 2

At Montreal, Dave Bergman drove in five runs with two homers and a single, helping the Giants snap Montreal's four-game winning streak. Bergman's third homer, in the fourth inning with nobody on base, came off loser Ray Burris, 4-6, and gave the Giants a 3-1 lead. Mark Davis, 3-3, combined with Greg Minton for the victory. Tim Lincecum singled in five trips for Montreal.

Astros 3, Cardinals 1

At Houston, Ruble allowed three hits in 8 1/3 innings and also drove in a run with a suicide squeeze to lead the Astros. Ruble, 8-3, won for the second time in five days, walking three and striking out three. Bill Dawley relieved and earned his 14th save. Rookie Danny Cox fell to 1-3.

Phillies 6-5, Padres 0-7

At Philadelphia, Sixto Lezcano cracked a two-run homer and Bobby Brown had three hits to lead the Padres in the second game. In the opener, rookie Kevin Gross scattered six hits for his first major-league shutout and Von Hayes' two-run single sparked a five-run first that lifted the Phillies.

Baltimore's Early-Birds Take 7th Straight

United Press International

Taking a page from Ben Franklin, the Baltimore Orioles have become the early-birds of the American League East. By scoring their runs early, they've now caught the worm in seven straight games.

John Lowenstein went 4-for-4 and Cal Ripken and Ken Singleton homered Tuesday night to lead a 15-hit Oriole attack that gave Baltimore its seventh straight victory, a 12-4 decision over the Royals at Kansas City.

"It's kind of nice to start with a run," said Baltimore manager Joe Altobelli, whose team got three, not just one, in the first inning off loser Eric Rasmussen, 2-3.

"We got two in the first last night and three tonight. We think we're one behind," Altobelli quipped.

Ripken extended his hitting streak to nine games, during which he is 18-for-41. Singleton knocked in four runs and Lowenstein raised his season average against Kansas City to .625 with a single, two doubles and a triple, to help Storm Davis improve to 11-5.

Al Bumbry, Dan Ford and Ripken hit consecutive singles to start the Baltimore first. Ripken's base hit knocked in Bumbry for his 15th game-winning RBI. After Eddie Murray grounded out, Lowenstein added another run-scoring single and Singleton's groundout made it 3-0.

"It didn't make any difference what we did, they wore us out," Kansas City manager Dick Howser said. "They swung the bats good. I can't explain what happened. It just happened. They got the lead and it looks like they don't want to give it up. Their pitching is good and their hitting is good. Not only is the hitting good, but good with power."

After the Royals cut the lead to 3-1 on Willie Aikens' 15th homer, in the second, Ripken opened the third by hitting his 21st homer of the year, a 430-foot shot went over the center field wall. Baltimore added another run in the inning and knocked out Rasmussen on Rich Dauer's sacrifice fly.

Singleton made the score 7-1 with a two-run homer, his 16th homer, to center in the fifth.

Tigers 4, Twins 3

At Detroit Lance Parrish hit his 21st homer of the year and the Tigers backed Dan Petry with five double plays. Petry, 14-8, pitched an eight-hitter and Ken Schrom, 12-6, took the loss.

Red Sox 5, Blue Jays 4

At Toronto, Jim Rice singled in Jerry Remy from second base in the 12th inning to lift the Red Sox. John Henry Johnson, 3-2, got the victory, but needed relief help from Mark Clear, who earned his fourth save. Roy Lee Jackson fell to 8-3.

White Sox 6, Rangers 0

At Chicago, Carlton Fisk hit an inside-the-park homer and Harold Baines added a two-run shot to power the White Sox to their fourth straight victory. Britt Burns, 8-8, and Dick Tidrow combined on a six-hitter as Chicago stretched its lead in the AL West to 9 1/2 games over Kansas City.

Angels 10, Indians 6

At Anaheim, Calif., Doug DeCinces had a three-run bases-loaded double and Bob Boone singled in the tie-breaking run to pace the Angels. The triumph went to Winner Rick Steier, 2-1, pitched 4 2/3 innings of one-hit relief. Mike Jeffcoat, 0-3, was the loser.

Brewers 3, Mariners 2

At Seattle, Tom Candiotti scattered five hits over 7 1/3 innings for his third straight victory and Charlie Moore drove in one run and scored another to lead the Brewers. Pete Ladd picked up 16th save while Jim Beattie dropped to 8-12.

Yankees 8, A's 5

At Oakland, Calif., Oscar Gamble's triple triggered a three-run ninth inning rally and carried Ron Guidry to his ninth complete game and 16th victory against eight losses. Dave Beard, 5-4, was charged with the loss.

Cook Of The Week

Jazz Drummer 'Hooked On Classic' Veggies

By Lou Childers
Herald Correspondent

Ten years of being "on the road again" as a jazz drummer led this week's feature cook into a life of healthful eating habits. Ron Hefner of Fern Park says, "I started reading about the benefits of a vegetarian diet when I traveled with a fellow musician who cooked veggie meals."

Ron's friend cooked a host of interesting dishes he'd never heard of before, and gradually, as Ron continued eating food that he says "was unusual for me," he became hooked. "I felt better and noticed that I was becoming less aggressive. It took about six months before I was completely off meat products and substituting other forms of protein into my diet," says the six-foot-six drummer.

Ron's lovely wife, Joan, and their children, Joel, 7, and Joy, 7 months, all enjoy the vegetarian way of life with Ron. However, Joan is not completely sold out, and admits that she "occasionally" gets a craving for a "junk food burger" from one of the fast food chains. Ron sees to it that the Hefner household is getting the right combination of grains, dairy products, legumes, nuts and eggs for a healthy diet. He even oversees the cooking of his baby daughter's food, preferring that she receive "freshly cooked vegetables" instead of canned baby food.

He says, "When Joy started on solid foods a few weeks ago, we first made a thin gruel of oatmeal, and added mashed bananas or boiled yams that we put through a baby food grinder."

"The best book I ever read on this subject," says Hefner, "is Vic Sussman's The Vegetarian Alternative. It has a 'few neat recipes in the back' as well as being very informative."

Although Ron reads vegetarian cookbooks to get basic ideas from them, he tends to be "individualistic" when it comes to the actual preparation, using "a pinch of that and a handful of this." Some recipes, however, like Pecan Loaf must be followed to the letter. It is important, Ron says, to get the pecans chopped VERY fine, or the loaf will fall apart. Pecan Loaf, by the way, is the vegetarian substitute for — you guessed it — Meat Loaf.

Ron has held some pretty impressive jobs as a jazz drummer including one and one-half years with the Mickey Glee Orchestra at the Langford Hotel in Winter Park. He is also an active member of the Calvary Assembly Orchestra and is currently rehearsing for their Sept. 15-18 presentation of "The Life Giver" which will be held at the Tupperware Auditorium.

Besides his career as a jazzist, Ron is also a district manager for the A.L. Williams Company. It almost sounds like he'd be too busy to ever get a chance to cook, but Ron says he does at least 50 percent of the cooking for his family of four.

Other recipes from Ron's files include Pizza Egg Rolls, Stir Fry Vegetables with Tofu and Bar-B-Que Tofu. Tofu, says Ron, must be purchased from a health food store to be good quality.

An additional fact about the vegetarian way of life, according to Ron, is "it's economical." He does the majority of the shopping at the new Green Earth store on 17-92 in Maitland where over 100 barrels of staple items such as dry beans, whole wheat flour, corn meal, etc., sell for approximately 10 cents a pound cheaper than their pre-packaged counterparts.

Ron highly recommends two items for those just starting to get into the alternative eating style. One is "Bacon Yeast," a powdered brewer's yeast that is smoked and used to add hearty flavor to beans or soups. The other item is "Sesame Burger Mix" which comes in a foil pouch with easy to follow directions for preparing vegetarian "hamburgers."

PECAN LOAF

2 cups extra fine chopped pecans
1/4 teaspoon sage
1 medium onion, chopped fine
1 cup chopped tomatoes
1 cup whole wheat bread crumbs
2 well beaten eggs
1/2 cup light cream
1/2 teaspoon salt
Mix everything together and place in a 1-quart oiled baking dish. Brush with melted butter. Bake 35 minutes at 350 degrees. Serve with mashed potatoes and gravy.

PIZZA EGG ROLLS

1 package egg roll wrappers
10 oz. Mozzarella cheese
8 oz. finely chopped mushrooms
2 medium onions, chopped fine
8 oz. tomato sauce
1 teaspoon oregano

Herald Photo by Lou Childers

Ron Hefner, a 6-foot musician and district manager of the A.L. Williams Company, claims that he became "less aggressive" after changing his eating habits.

1/2 teaspoon basil
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder

Saute onions and mushrooms in 2 tablespoons butter until fork tender. Drain and place in bowl. Add cheese and seasonings, mix well. Place 1 heaping tablespoon of mix on egg roll and top with 1 teaspoon pizza sauce. Roll according to directions on egg roll package, making sure sauce doesn't leak out. Place 3 or 4 egg rolls at a time in a deep fryer filled with oil on high setting. Cook until golden brown about 2-3 minutes. Drain on paper towels.

STIR FRY VEGETABLES AND TOFU

1 pound mushrooms
2 medium onions
2 large carrots
1 stalk celery
8 oz. bean sprouts
1 cup bamboo shoots
1 cup water chestnuts
1/2 head of medium cabbage
1 pound firm tofu
Cut all vegetables into large chunks. Slice tofu into 1/4-inch slices and deep fry in oil to golden brown. Drain on paper towels. Sauté vegetables in hot oil in wok or skillet, cover and cook until vegetables are crisp tender. Drain juice into a small skillet and season with 1 tablespoon tamara sauce. Mix 2 tablespoons corn starch with 1 cup cold water and slowly add to hot sauce, stirring until thickened. Combine tofu, vegetables and sauce in wok and simmer about 10 minutes and serve over brown rice.

BAR-B-QUE TOFU

1 pound firm tofu
1 small bottle barbecue sauce
Slice tofu into 1/4-inch pieces and deep fry in hot oil. Fry to a golden brown, remove and drain on paper towels. Place browned tofu in glass baking dish and baste heavily with barbecue sauce. Bake in a 350 degree oven 30 minutes until sauce has browned. Serve with fried potatoes and cole slaw for a great meal.

Publicity Procedure

The Herald welcomes organization and personal news. The following suggestions are recommended to expedite publication:

1. Releases should be typed (lower and upper case), double spaced, and written narrative style (third person).
2. Do not abbreviate.
3. A contact person's name and phone number is necessary.
4. Keep releases simple.
5. Organization releases (the program should lead the meeting account) must be submitted no later than two days after the event.
6. Advance notices should be submitted one week prior to publication date.
7. Photographic coverage requests should be made one week in advance.

Margaret Wright Feted On Her 80th Birthday

Doris Dietrich

PEOPLE
Editor

Margaret Zachary Wright was in the limelight Saturday at a luncheon at Holiday Inn, Sanford Marina.

The festive occasion was in celebration of her 80th birthday when 45 friends gathered to share the event with each also sharing a "favorite memory" to be compiled in a scrapbook.

The birthday luncheon was hosted by the honoree's five children: Joan W. Ludwig, Sanford; Peggy W. Heagerty, Bradenton; Mary Ann Wright, Atlanta; James A. Wright, Greensboro, N.C.; and Roy A. Wright, Atlanta. There are 13 grandchildren.

Margaret is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Zachary of Sanford. She was born Aug. 28, 1903 in Raleigh, N.C. and moved to Sanford with her family in 1910 where she has lived for 73 years.

After attending Sanford schools and graduating from Sanford High School in 1922, Margaret attended Sullins College, Bristol, Va., where she was graduated. Continuing her education at Duke University, Durham, N.C., Margaret graduated with honors there in 1924 when she received a B.A. degree. While at Duke, she was a member of Zeta Tau Alpha.

Her teaching career in the Seminole County School system began in the fall of 1928 and continued until her retirement in 1973.

Married to the late James A. Wright, Margaret is one of the oldest members of the First United Methodist Church, Sanford. She is also a charter member of the Dependables Sunday School Class there. Margaret is active with the Central Florida Regional Hospital Auxiliary where she has served more than 3,000 volunteer hours.

Two former Sanfordites and longtime friends of Margaret's attending the birthday luncheon were Virginia Gillon Smith, Bradenton; and Betty McKinnon Selvidge, Lakeland.

Guess who's coming to dinner? This was the name of a contest held during fun and games Saturday night at the home of Jan and Vince Carr.

And guess who came to dinner? The invitation said a universally prominent party would be the mystery guest.

Four of the crowd (about 70 guests) guessed E.T. They were correct. But a contract prevents photos and other coverage, Jan says. However there will be more on this party later.

There was entertainment galore, food and fun in a colorful Hawaiian setting. Along with E.T., a roast pig also showed up — complete with an apple in its mouth.

Parents Night

Parents' Night, an annual tradition at Trinity Preparatory School for years, is scheduled for Tuesday, September 13.

According to headmaster The Rev. H. Benton Ellis, "Parents' Night is an excellent opportunity for parents to meet their child's teacher and to understand how homework is to be assigned, how the course will be developed, how the grades are derived, and in what areas parents may be of help in the academic progress of their child."

The program is designed to allow parents the opportunity to follow their child's schedule for a typical day.

Parents are urged to attend. They should arrive by 7:15 p.m. for registration at the Dickinson Activity Center.

Clownology Course Set

Would be clowns in Central Florida will soon be experiencing the smell of the greasepaint and the roar of the crowd. Fun World Alley — Clowns of America will be presenting its annual Clownology course beginning Sept. 20 and continuing eight Tuesday evenings thereafter for anyone who wants to get serious about being silly.

The Clownology course covers all the topics and items generally associated with clowns such as, make-up, costuming, props, juggling, stunts, balloon sculpturing, clown history, and general clowning around. Emphasis is placed on individual performance with each student responsible for developing his own face, costume, and performing skills.

Clowns of America is a national, non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation and perpetuation of the American clown. Most COA members are "weekend" clowns who perform mainly for their own personal satisfaction and work at "normal" jobs during the week. Upon completion of the Clownology course, the students will be invited to join the local alley of Clowns of America.

The course sessions will be held weekly from 7:00 p.m. until 9:30 p.m. with graduation on November 8th. A registration and materials fee of $20 must be paid in advance in order to reserve a space, as class size is limited. To register send your name, address, and telephone number to Clowns of America, 101 E. 7th St., Sanford, 32771. For further information call 896-8988.

Barbecue And Beer A Natural Together

Barbecue and beer have always been a natural combination for summer fun and outdoor picnics. But the flavor of both can be enjoyed throughout the year.

Everyone knows how good a hearty beer can taste with many foods. But the makers of Lowenbrau suggest you can have your beer and eat it to! Many people feel that beer tastes as good in food as it does with it. A robust tasting beer such as Lowenbrau can add a special flavor and tang to many American dishes.

Frankfurters steamed in beer and fish fried in beer batters are well-known examples of beer cookery; but beer can add that special zest to a variety of foods.

A beer-honey marinade for barbecued chicken and vegetables and a beer cornbread are three such examples. Beer breaks down the fibers of tough meat to make an instant marinade; and the bittersweet, tangy style of hops balances the sweetness of the honey for a zesty sauce.

A cornbread recipe calling for beer and green chiles adds lightness, moisture and spice to the meal.

While everyone can't barbecue outside all-year-round, today many people have indoor electric hibachis and year-round outdoor grills. And there's always the traditional oven where a good barbecue recipe can make indoors taste like outdoors.

So, whether you're having a picnic, a family homecoming, a tailgate party before or after the big game, or just dinner with a few friends, remember the beer and the barbecue. The effervescence of the beer and the right choice of seasonal vegetables and fruits can bring your meal to its peak anytime of the year.

MARINATED CHICKEN WITH VEGETABLE KABOBS

- 1 cup apricot preserve
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 bottle (12 ounces) beer
- 1 teaspoon onion powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon thyme
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon hot/pepper sauce
- 2 1/4 chickens, quartered
- 2 pounds seasonal vegetables (yellow squash, zucchini, tomatoes, red or green peppers, etc.)

Combine apricot preserve, cornstarch, prepared mustard, beer, onion powder, salt, thyme, garlic powder and hot pepper sauce. Stir until smooth and well blended. Place chicken pieces in large shallow pan. Pour marinade over and refrigerate for at least 3 hours, turning pieces occasionally. When ready to barbecue, remove chicken from marinade and grill for 30-45 minutes, turning and basting often. While chicken is cooking, cut up assorted vegetables. Place vegetable pieces on skewers and brush with marinade. Grill for approximately 6 minutes, turning and basting often. Yield: 2 1/2 cups marinade. 6-8 servings.

SPICY BEER CORNBREAD

- 1 cup yellow cornmeal
 - 1 cup all purpose flour
 - 2 tablespoons sugar
 - 4 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1/4 teaspoon chili powder
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 cup beer
 - 1 egg
 - 1/4 cup butter, softened
 - 1/4 cup chopped green chiles
 - 1/4 cup chopped pimiento
- Combine cornmeal, flour, sugar, baking powder, chili powder and salt. Add beer, egg and butter. Beat until smooth. Stir in green chiles and pimientos. Pour batter into a greased 8x8-inch pan. Bake in a 425°F. oven for 20-25 minutes. Yield: 12 servings.

APPLE COBBLER

- 5 cups sliced peeled apples
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup water
- 2 tablespoons butter

Spicy Meat Sticks Good Party Entree

Outdoor cookery needn't be the usual hamburger and hot dog fare. For a change of pace barbecue, home economists have developed a menu featuring Skewered Oriental Meat Sticks accompanied by a side dish of fried rice, available both frozen and in cans. The spicy meat sticks are a good entree to serve for a party. Let each guest sprinkle lettuce leaves with their choice of garnishes such as parsley, mint, and green onions and wrap each leaf around the grilled meat to form a packet. Have plenty of soy, teriyaki, and sweet & sour sauce set out in bowls for delicious dipping.

SKEWERED ORIENTAL MEAT STICKS

- 1 1/2 pounds finely ground lean pork or beef
- 1 can (8 oz.) water chestnuts, drained and minced
- 1 large garlic clove, minced
- 1 green onion, minced
- 1 1/2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 2 teaspoons sesame oil or vegetable oil
- 1 1/2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon minced fresh ginger or prepared ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- dash hot pepper sauce
- 15 five-to-six bamboo skewers
- 1 head Boston or Iceberg lettuce
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh mint, if available
- 1/2 cup chopped green onion

For dipping:

- Sweet & sour sauce
- Teriyaki sauce
- Soy sauce

Combine meat, water chestnuts, garlic, green onion, soy sauce, sesame oil, lemon juice, ginger, sugar, hot pepper sauce and salt in a large bowl. Mix gently but thoroughly. Shape mixture into 15 to 16 cylinders about one inch thick and three inches long. Slide each cylinder onto a bamboo skewer. Arrange lettuce leaves, parsley, mint, and green onion in serving bowls; refrigerate until serving time. Place dipping sauces in small serving bowls.

Arrange skewered meat cylinders on barbecue grill over glowing coals (or on broiler pan of range). Grill or broil, turning often; until meat is browned and crisp, 10 to 15 minutes.

At table, let diners sprinkle lettuce leaves with their choice of garnishes and wrap each leaf around a meat cylinder, forming a packet for eating out of the hand, and dip the packets into their choice of sauces. 4 servings.

Batter:

- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter, softened
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup beer
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar

Method:

Combine apples, sugar, brown sugar, flour, lemon juice, cinnamon, nutmeg, salt and water; mix well. Place mixture in an 8x8x2-inch pan. Dot apple mixture with butter; set aside. For batter, combine flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, butter, egg and beer. Beat until smooth. Drop in 9 portions over the apple filling. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake in a 375°F. oven for 35-40 minutes or until done. Yield: 9 servings.

Beer-flavored marinade enhances chicken and vegetable kabobs.

Microwave Magic

Shrimp's On For A Quick Friday Meal

The fresh seafood that is available to us is the best found anywhere. When we are at the beach, I buy shrimp from the fishing fleet about mid-morning. The shrimp are fresh and free of odor. When prepared properly, the shrimp are tender, sweet tasting, and pinkish-peach and white in color. The microwave can be used to prepare the shrimp quickly.

Some points to remember when preparing shrimp and other shellfish: use minimum cooking times, most shellfish can be exchanged in recipes, shrimp have a tendency to overcook, add them at the end of cooking time in recipes using other foods such as rice.

Shrimp can be microwaved in beer or in water to which "shrimp boil" has been added. Bring water and seasoning to a boil, add shrimp, bring back to boiling and start timing. Use 100% power on the microwave. One pound of medium to large shrimp should be microwaved 3-4 minutes, shrimp turn a bright pink. Drain immediately to halt the cooking.

SHRIMP CURRY

This recipe serves 6-8 and is good to serve on a Friday evening. It is quick and easy.

- 1/4 cup oil
- 2 cups onions, chopped
- 1 cup green pepper, chopped
- 1/2 cup celery, chopped
- 1 can whole tomatoes (15 oz.)
- 1 can tomato puree (15 oz.)

Midge Mycoff

Home Economist
Seminole Community College

- 1/4 teaspoon cayenne
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 cup chicken stock or bouillon
- 2 tablespoons curry powder
- 2-3 pounds shrimp, peeled and cleaned

Heat oil in a 3-quart container. Add onions, pepper, and celery. Microwave at 100% power for 3 minutes. Add the remaining ingredients except shrimp and curry. Microwave at 100% power for 4 minutes, covered. Add curry powder, stir. Microwave at 100% for 1 minute, covered. Add shrimp and microwave at 100% for 7-9 minutes, covered. Let stand 5 minutes. Serve over rice.

YOU PEEL EMS

Allow 1/2 pound of fresh shrimp for each person. Use the beer or shrimp boil method. Serve hot or cold. Serve with lots of lemon slices, cocktail sauce, cole slaw and home fries.

Another quick shrimp dish that can be used as an appetizer or a main dish follows:

SHRIMP IN LEMON GARLIC BUTTER

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
 - 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder or 1 clove garlic, minced
 - 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
 - 2 teaspoons fresh parsley, finely chopped
 - 1 pound shrimp, peeled and deveined
- Place butter, garlic, parsley and lemon juice in a small container. Microwave 1 minute at 100% power. Place shrimp in a shallow 9-inch round dish. Pour butter mixture evenly over shrimp. Cover and microwave for 5-8 minutes, or until brightly pink. Stir every two minutes for even cooking. Let stand for 2 minutes.

BARBECUED CHICKEN

To speed cooking of barbecued chicken on an outdoor grill, start cooking in the microwave. Place a 2 1/2 to 3 lb. quartered frying chicken with thick bone edges toward the outside of a glass baking dish. Cover with wax paper and microwave on "High" for 15 to 18 minutes. Remove and brush with barbecue sauce. Complete cooking over an outdoor grill. Occasionally turn and baste with sauce for 20 to 25 minutes.

Tuesday, Sept. 6, from 7-9:45 p.m. In J-007, a class in Microwave Food Preparation will begin. Registration is going on now. The cost of this 8-week course is $22.00.

Super Ideas To Jazz Up Hamburgers

A super cheeseburger, about 5 1/2 inches round, certainly will get the youngsters' attention. It is a novel, tasty way to serve a group of school children — with work than usual. In fact, this is one they can do themselves, with a little supervision with the oven.

They'll also like the changing flavors of stuffed savory burgers, seasoned differently each time they are prepared.

SUPER CHEESEBURGER

- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce divided
- 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
- 1 cup dry bread crumbs (unseasoned), divided
- 2 eggs
- 2 1/4 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, divided
- 1 1/2 pounds ground beef
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 cup ketchup

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In medium bowl, place 3 tablespoons of tomato sauce; set remaining sauce aside. Stir in cheese, 1/2 cup of the bread crumbs, 1 egg and 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; mix well and set aside. In large bowl, place beef, onion, salt and remaining tomato sauce, 1/2 cup bread crumbs, 1 egg and 1 1/2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce; mix well. Place 2 1/2 cups of the beef mixture on a jelly roll pan or shallow baking pan. Pat into a 7 1/2-inch circle. Spoon reserved cheese mixture on top; pat into a 5 1/2-inch circle. Place remaining beef mixture on top of cheese; pat down, sealing in cheese. Combine ketchup and remaining 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; brush on meat. Bake until cooked through, 35 to 40 minutes. Sprinkle with shredded Cheddar cheese, if desired. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 portions.

STUFFED SAVORY BURGERS

- 1 1/2 pounds ground beef
- 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 5 to 6 slices (1 ounce each) processed American cheese
- About 1/4 cup sweet pickle relish
- 5 to 6 hamburger buns, split and toasted

In large bowl, lightly mix beef, onion, parsley, salt and 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce. Shape into 10 or 12 flat patties. Arrange a folded cheese slice and 2 teaspoons sweet pickle relish on half of the patties. Top with remaining patties; press edges lightly together to seal. Brush both sides with Worcestershire sauce. Place on a rack under a preheated hot broiler until cooked as desired, turning once. Serve on toasted buns.

VARIATIONS:

Stuffed Sesame Burgers: To seasoned ground beef mixture add 3 tablespoons sesame seed; mix lightly. Shape, stuff and cook as directed above.

Stuffed Carrot Burgers: To seasoned ground beef mixture add 1/2 cup shredded carrot; mix lightly. Shape, stuff and cook as directed above. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 5 to 6 portions.

TACO MIX

- 4 teaspoons instant minced onion
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 1/2 teaspoons chili powder
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon crushed dried red pepper
- 1 teaspoon instant minced garlic
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1/2 teaspoon dried oregano leaves
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika

In small jar with tight fitting lid, stir together onion, salt, chili powder, cornstarch, pepper, garlic, cumin, oregano and paprika. Store in cool, dry place up to six months. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 4 tablespoons. (Note: Recipe may be doubled.)

To prepare taco filling: In large skillet, brown 1 pound ground beef round over high heat; pour off excess fat. Stir in 2 tablespoons Taco Mix, 1/2 cup water and 2 tablespoons tomato paste. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 2 cups filling or enough for 8 to 10 tacos.

Upside Down Banana Delight 'Potential' Contest Winner

Originality is an important criterion for winning a recipe contest, but many top entries often are based on traditional "classic" recipes rather than odd combinations. A creative twist given to old favorites frequently sets them apart by updating them for today's ingredients and simplified cooking and eating styles.

Upside Down Banana Delight is an example of a potential contest winner. Combining two great American "classics," the banana and an upside down cake, a favorite is sure to result. Banana slices and pecans are substituted for the pineapple slices and maraschino cherries commonly used in an upside down cake. The "cake" is actually a tempting rich, light textured frozen mixture of Kraft marshmallow creme, cream cheese and frozen whipped topping. The result: a refreshing new frozen dessert.

In the past, special equipment and complicated preparations were required to make smooth, creamy frozen treats. Upside Down Banana Delight has an easier, updated preparation method using the "secret ingredient," marshmallow creme to create the texture that's so necessary for tempting home made ice creams and other frozen desserts.

If marshmallow creme is the "secret ingredient" in a favorite family dessert or an innovative treat, that recipe could be a $5,000 Grand Prize winner in the 1983 Kraft Marshmallow Creme "Easy Secret Ingredient" Recipe Contest. Just submit the recipe in one of the three recipe categories: "Make-Ahead Treats," "Special Occasion Desserts," or "Desserts for the Family." Whether the recipe is a no-fail confection, a creamy chilled pie or a favorite snack for the kids, it could be a contender. Other prizes include three First Prizes of $1,000 each, eleven $100 Semi-Finalist Prizes, and 100 "Treasures of Sweet Treats" Confections Cookbooks from Kraft.

In addition to originality and ease of preparation, recipes will be judged on good taste, appetizing appearance, and the appropriate use of marshmallow creme. To enter, simply observe the rules which follow. Take care in submitting the recipe, as any error or omission might mean the judges will never see your entry.

Additional copies of the rules may be obtained by sending your name and address to:

"Rules"; 1983 Kraft Marshmallow Creme "Easy Secret Ingredient" Recipe Contest; P.O. Box 11192; Chicago, IL 60611. UPSIDE DOWN BANANA DELIGHT

1 cup banana slices
1/4 cup pecan halves
1 8-oz. pkg. creme cheese, softened

1 7-oz. jar marshmallow creme
1 container (3 cups) whipped topping with real cream, thawed

Line bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate with banana and pecans, cut side up. Combine cream cheese and marshmallow creme, mixing with electric mixer or wire whisk until well blended. Fold in whipped topping. Spoon into fruit shell; freeze. Loosen edge of dessert with spatula. Dip into warm water, just to rim. Invert onto serving platter. Cut into wedges; serve with caramel or fudge topping. 6 to 8 servings.

Variation: Substitute walnut halves or pecans for pecans.

1. The 1983 KRAFT Marshmallow Creme "Easy Secret Ingredient" Recipe Contest seeks creative home recipes that are easy to make, reasonably economical and quick to prepare, and require a minimal number of readily available ingredients.

Send entries to: KRAFT Marshmallow Creme "Easy Secret Ingredient" Recipe Contest, P.O. Box 11192, Dept. N, Chicago, Illinois 60611. Enter as often as you wish, but only one of your entries may qualify you as a winner. Only one winner per household. Each entry must be sent in a separate envelope and must include:

A. Your recipe entry with your name, complete address and the name of your recipe category on the top right hand corner. Every recipe entered must include at least one 7-oz. jar KRAFT Marshmallow Creme as an ingredient and must fall under one of the three contest categories.

B. The back label from any size jar of KRAFT Marshmallow Creme. NO

PROOF OF PURCHASE REQUIRED BY FLORIDA OR NEW MEXICO RESIDENTS.

2. CONTEST RECIPE CATEGORIES:

A. "MAKE-AHEAD TREATS" In this category, recipes may be completely prepared well ahead of serving time, to save last-minute steps for busy cooks.

B. "SPECIAL OCCASION DESSERTS" Recipes in this category are elegant enough for company, yet are quick and easy to prepare.

C. "DESSERTS FOR THE FAMILY" Recipes in this category are quick and simple enough to prepare for everyday family meals.

3. RECIPE ENTRY: Print or type your recipe using KRAFT Marshmallow Creme on a plain sheet of 8 1/2"x11" paper. Your name, complete address and the name of the recipe category must appear on the top right hand corner. List every recipe ingredient with exact standard

U.S. measurements. Give complete directions for preparation, number of servings, size of pan and describe any utensils/cookware used, times and temperatures. Ingredients should be generally available.

4. Entries must be postmarked by midnight September 30, 1983, and received by Oct. 14, 1983. In case of duplicate recipes, the one with the earliest postmark date will be judged. All entries become the property of Kraft, Inc.; none will be returned. No communications or correspondence will be entered into.

5. JUDGING: Fifteen recipes will be selected from each category and judged as semi-finalists by Marian Tripp Communications, Inc..

Favorite family recipes collected and used over time are eligible, as are newly created recipes. However, in the process of selecting the semi-finalists, the judging organization will disqualify recipes which it knows to have been previously published or which have been winners in national contests, unless they feature changes which in its judgment are significant. By entering, you warrant that, to the best of your knowledge, the recipe submitted has not been so published. Judges' decisions are final.

6. One hundred fifteen prizes will be awarded.

Winners will be notified within 90 days of contest close. All prizes will be awarded. Any taxes applicable are the sole responsibility of the winners.

7. Contest is open to residents, 18 years or older, of USA, its territories, APO/ FPO Addresses, except employees of Kraft, Inc., its affiliates (including Tupperware dealers and sales force), its advertising and publicity agencies, the judging organization and their immediate families living within the household.

Frankfurters crown Italian-style zucchini boats.

Franks Add New Twist To Dips, Vegetables

For a special party or just a quick snack, you can quickly whip up Hot Dog Veggie Dip, a creamy mixture of tomatoes and sweet peppers, cream cheese and seasonings, served with skewered pieces of franks and sausage along with fresh, raw vegetables.

Nacho Dog Salad, a spicy tribute to Mexican cooking, is a meal in itself. No more than 10 minutes on-stove time is required to heat toppings of franks and beans and a tangy cheese sauce.

Shells of fresh, picked-and-plucked zucchini are filled with Italian-flavored filling and crowned with frankfurters to create Wienie-Zucchini Boats.

All three refreshing recipes are filling without being the least bit heavy and require little or no cooking time.

HOT DOG VEGGIE DIP
1 medium tomato
1 medium sweet pepper
1/2 cup pitted, drained olives
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
2 (3 ounce) packages

cream cheese, at room temperature

1 1/2 pounds assorted raw vegetables (carrot sticks, blanched broccoli and cauliflower florets, scallions, mushrooms, yellow summer squash circles, snow pea pods, etc.)

Bread sticks
Remove core from tomato; remove stem, seeds and membranes from pepper. Cut into chunks. Process tomato, pepper and olives in blender, or in food processor fitted with steel blade, until coarsely chopped. By hand, stir chopped vegetables and mustard into cream cheese; mix well.

Heat frankfurters for 5 minutes in simmering water and cut into 1-inch pieces. Secure franks on wooden picks, if desired, and arrange with vegetables and bread sticks on serving platter.

Makes about 20 party nibble servings.

NACHO DOG SALAD

Dressing
1/2 cup salsa or red taco sauce

1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup sour cream

Salad
1 medium avocado

Lemon juice
1/2 medium head of lettuce, shredded

2 medium tomatoes, chopped

3 cups taco chips

1 can (15 to 17 ounces) chili beans or barbecue beans

1 pound Western-style (coarse grind) frankfurters

1 (8 ounce) jar pasteurized process cheese spread

1 (4 ounce) can chopped chiles, drained

2 teaspoons chili powder

Make Dressing:
Combine all ingredients; mix well. Cover; refrigerate until serving time.

Make Salad:
Pit and peel avocado. Cut in slices or rings; dip in lemon juice. Refrigerate until serving time.

For individual salads, make a ring of lettuce around outer edge of each dinner plate. Arrange chopped tomato on top of lettuce. Place about 1/2 cup taco chips in center of each plate.

Bring beans to boiling in saucepan. Meanwhile, cut franks into 1-inch pieces. Add franks to beans and simmer for 5 to 10 minutes.

Heat cheese spread in separate saucepan just until melted. Stir in chiles and chili powder; heat cheese mixture just until bubbly. Quickly pour about 1/4 cup cheese mixture over taco chips on each plate and top each with about 1/4 cup frankfurter mixture. Garnish with avocado slices. Serve at once with dressing passed to each person.

Makes 6 servings.

WIENIE-ZUCCHINI BOATS

4 (8 to 10 inch) zucchini squash, 1 1/2 to 2 pounds

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

2 tablespoons oil

1/2 cup chopped scallions

2 tablespoons chopped parsley

1/2 teaspoon Italian herbs

1/2 teaspoon ground white pepper

1 cup fresh bread crumbs (about 2 1/2 slices whole grain bread, grated)

1/2 teaspoon seasoned salt or garlic salt

1 pound cheese hot dogs

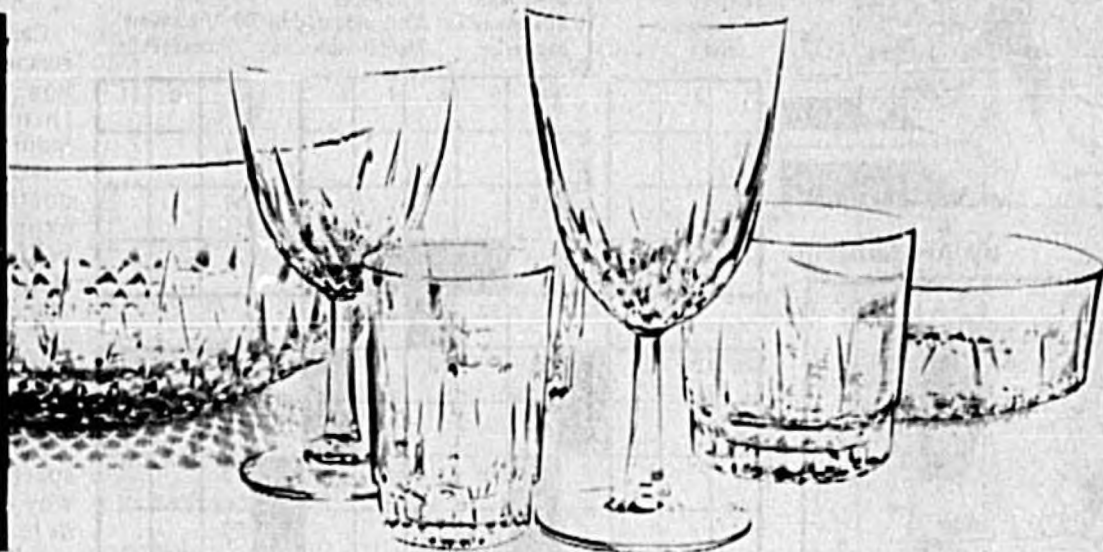

8 cherry tomatoes, split

Trim off ends of zucchini; cut each in half lengthwise. Scoop out each half to make boats with sides 1/4 to 1/2 inch thick. Chop scooped-out zucchini and saute in skillet with butter, oil, scallions, parsley, Italian herbs and pepper just until zucchini is tender. Stir in bread crumbs; mix well. Sprinkle seasoned salt inside each zucchini boat and fill boats with sauteed mixture.

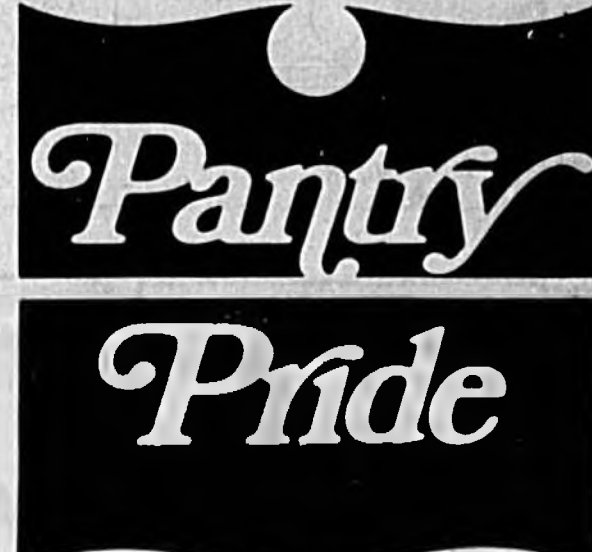

Place filled zucchini boats in shallow baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 25 minutes. Then top each boat with a frankfurter and bake for 6 to 10 minutes longer, until frank is heated through.

Garnish with cherry tomatoes, if desired.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY

SEPTEMBER 1, 1983

Intimate friendships will be established with several persons you'll first meet in your workaday world. You'll become pals both businesswise and socially.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

It's imperative today to give proper acknowledgment to those who have been helpful to you recently where your career is concerned. Virgo predictions for the year ahead are now ready. Romance, career, luck, earnings, travel and much more are discussed. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

Today you may be put on the track to something which has greater value than early appearances indicate. Its worth will be revealed later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Put your ambitious objectives at the top of your agenda today and allow yourself adequate time to accomplish them. Relax in the later hours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

You'll be better equipped and more mentally alert to handle serious matters later in the day than you'll be in the early hours. Schedule accordingly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

In your dealings today, you'll be able to handle in stride any large problems which may arise. However, minor matters could trip you up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Your greatest asset today is your ability to keep things in perspective. You'll relax in fun involvements, yet be serious when necessary.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

You could be rather successful today in ventures requiring bold measures. You won't be afraid to take a chance, yet you'll not do anything foolish.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Try not to let your feelings influence you today in matters where logic should prevail. Emotional evaluations will cause distortions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

An important situation can be adjusted to your advantage today, provided you don't press for extras to which you're not entitled. Be fair.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

You may be a trifle difficult to please today, even though you're apt to get what you go after. Once you have it, you may want something different.

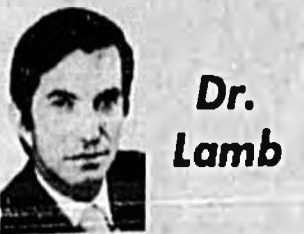

CANCER (June 21-July 21)

Relationships will be jeopardized today if you show preferential treatment to those who can do something for you, and slight those who can't.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

You're basically generous, one who derives joy from giving, but today you might step out of character and demand unreasonable collateral.

Albumin In Urine Not Necessarily Bad

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am very concerned about my 14-year-old son. On a recent examination they found albumin in his urine. The doctor didn't seem to be worried but I have heard that albumin in your urine means you have kidney disease.

He looks and acts like a perfectly healthy young man. He has no complaints but I am worried that his kidneys will undergo progressive damage and he will end up on an artificial kidney machine. If there is anything we can do now to prevent this? I would like to know what it is.

Can you tell me how serious this is and also how can I find out something about how the kidneys work.

DEAR READER—Your doctor probably didn't express much concern because he believes the albumin is not an indication of kidney disease. You are overreacting at this point and your son is a long way from needing an artificial kidney machine.

Ask your doctor specifically if he knows why your son has albumin in his urine. Albumin is a small protein molecule that we all have in our bloodstream. We all leak a small amount through the kidneys every day. But usually the amount is too small to see on a routine urine test.

If the albumin in the urine is from kidney disease, the increase is usually rather marked. It can occur from postural effects. Some young people in particular leak more albumin when they are standing and don't leak any when they are lying down. You can have albumin in the urine from a local infection or even from heart failure. It is not a very specific finding.

Your Kidneys and How They Work In The Health Letter 12-12 will explain to you the filtering mechanism of the kidneys and how the kidneys control salt and water. I am sending it to you per your request.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Our pediatrician told us that our two children, ages 1 year and 2 years, should be on whole milk. Another pediatrician told us we should give our children skim milk. We have no problem with obesity. Which should we use?

DEAR READER—The answer to the question rests in the reason for eliminating whole milk from the diet. It is commonly recommended not to use it so that one can decrease the intake of total fat and particularly saturated fat. And the reason to do that is to maintain a low total blood cholesterol level with a favorable balance of "good" to "bad" cholesterol particles.

Young children are unlikely to have high cholesterol levels or other blood fat findings that are an important factor cause of fatty-cholesterol deposits. However, it does happen and I believe that children should have a screening test to identify those with problems early in life.

But unless a child is at high risk because of elevated levels the only merit in using skim milk rather than whole milk would be to control calories or to develop eating habits that would be useful later in life. The thought is that if a person grows up liking skim milk he will continue to use it in adult life when it may be far more important to limit fat, and particularly saturated fat and cholesterol intake.

make overcalls like his, you had better play the dummy like a genius.

Clubs were opened and continued. Dirk ruffed the second club, led a trump to dummy's ace and finessed his 10 of hearts. Then he led a diamond to East's ace.

East led another club, which Dirk ruffed. Then he ruffed a diamond in dummy, finessed his queen of hearts and played the ace. West ruffed and led a diamond, which was ruffed in dummy.

Dummy now held king of spades, a small heart and a small club. East held the top cards in all three suits and South had two trumps and the jack of diamonds. West held the Q-10 of trumps and the 10 of diamonds.

The king of trumps was now led, and East was squeezed in three suits. If he chucked a heart or club, it would set up a winner in dummy, so he jettisoned his top diamond.

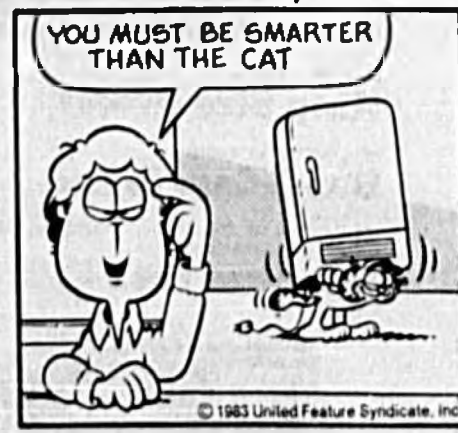

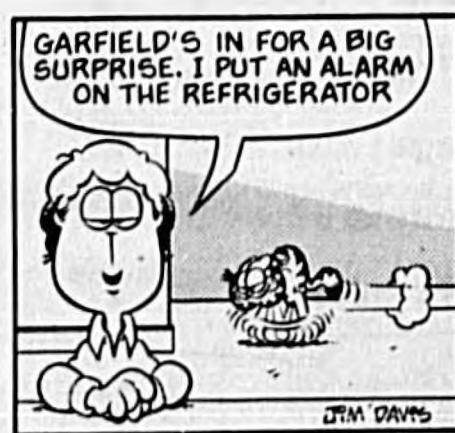

Now South led and ruffed one of dummy's losers. West overruffed, but had to lead to South's jack of diamonds.

Test Developed To Spot Possible Child Abusers

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (UPI) — A Western Carolina University psychology professor has developed a personality test he says can identify potential child abusers.

Dr. Joel S. Milner said his Child Abuse Potential Inventory is one of the first aids ever developed to provide objective information about an individual's potential for child abuse.

"A social services worker could use it in a field investigation where a case just doesn't feel right," Milner said. "If the test looks good, then they have some objective data this is not abuse. If it is not good, it might give them initiative to go back and do more investigation."

Milner said the test could also be used to screen prospective foster parents and other caretakers of children.

"The last thing you want to do is put a child who has been abused in a foster home where they will be abused," Milner said.

The survey includes 160 statements such as "I like to be alone ... Sometimes I fear I spoil my child ... Children should not cry..." to which respondents agree or disagree.

Most of the questions are not significant alone, Milner said. The test's significance emerges when responses are grouped together.

"Some people are not going to hit their kids regardless of what happens," Milner said. "But sometimes, if you put things together, you are striking out."

"What is common among potential abusers is a stressor — loss of job, loss of mate. There are tremendous stresses when we have a recession and you get a lot of abuse."

Milner, who worked on his survey seven years and used a grant from the National Institute for Mental Health to refine the survey, said the characteristics common among child abusers are unhappiness, rigidity in imposing discipline and distress.

But the statement "I have a good sex life" proved to be a fairly accurate indicator of potential abusers when taken by itself, Milner said. People agreeing with the statement generally did not fall in the category of child abusers and those who answered negatively often "failed" the survey.

Milner said those agreeing with the statement may have done better on the test as a whole because their positive reply indicated they were emotionally secure and able to relate to other people.

Answers to whether respondents were abused as children had no relationship to whether they were likely to abuse their own children, Milner said. The failure of that statement to measure potential child abuse, he said, is partly the result of the changing definition of child abuse.

"When I grew up, everybody had welts on our legs because of belt buckles," he said. "Nowadays if you leave a mark on your kid you are an abuser."

Milner said the public image of the child abuse problem still is changing.

"Last century you were considered a good parent if you sent your child out to work in a factory. Before that it was if you sent your child out to work in the fields," Milner said. "One source says 52 percent of the labor force in the last half of the last century were children."

Milner said child abuse was late in becoming a recognized problem — child labor laws were not passed until the 1930s, and only then because cheap child labor was eliminating adult jobs.

"The definitions are getting broader and broader for abuse," Milner said.

Twenty years from now, Milner said it could be illegal for parents to use corporal punishment against their children. Such a law was passed in Sweden four years ago, he said.

New laws requiring children to ride in auto safety seats are a signpost of changing views on child abuse and neglect, Milner said, and those views have ranged from the concept that children are the property of parents to an opposite extreme.

"One man says that anything that inhibits the proper development of the child is abusive, including lack of proper diet and love," he said.

Long John Silver's Coming To Longwood

Longwood mayor June Lormann, accompanied by several other community leaders, will attend the first lunch served in the new Longwood Long John Silver's Seafood Shoppe. Mayor Lormann will officiate the ceremonial ribbon-cutting on Friday with a $300 donation to the Longwood/Winter Springs Chamber of Commerce building fund.

"Mayor Lormann suggested that our contribution be directed toward the Chamber of Commerce since they have no building of their own and have been working at raising funds to construct one," said Eric Leiter, unit manager at the new restaurant located at 306 U.S. Highway 17-92. "We hope that the contribution demonstrates how pleased we are to join the Longwood business community," said Leiter.

"Every Long John Silver's Seafood Shoppe is a part of the community it serves," said John Campbell, Director of Operations for the franchised Long John Silver's restaurants which are owned by Semoran Man-

ATTENTION VOTERS OF THE CITY OF LAKE MARY, FLORIDA

AN IMPORTANT ISSUE WILL APPEAR ON THE BALLOT IN THE CITY ELECTION OF SEPTEMBER 6, 1983. VOTERS WILL BE AFFORDED THE OPPORTUNITY TO ALLOW OR REJECT THE FOLLOWING PROPOSITION:

ORDINANCE NO. 148

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF LAKE MARY, FLORIDA, ESTABLISHING A ROAD PAVING AND PAVING REPAIR PROGRAM AND AUTHORIZING THE CITY COMMISSION TO ESTABLISH A SPECIAL FUND FOR SUCH PURPOSES TO BE CREATED THROUGH A SPECIAL LEVY OF AD VALOREM TAXES OF 1.50 MILLS PER YEAR, PROVIDING FOR CONFLICTS, SEVERABILITY, AND EFFECTIVE DATE.

WHEREAS, the City Commission of the City of Lake Mary, Florida, has determined that the streets and roads of the City are in need of paving repair and that the City has a special fund for such purpose, it is in the best interest of the City that a special fund be established for the purpose of effecting such paving and repairs and that said fund should be created through the special levy of ad valorem taxes of 1.50 mills per year, and that said special ad valorem tax levy should be submitted to the voters of this City for their ratification.

NOW, THEREFORE, the City of Lake Mary hereby ordains:

SECTION 1.

This Ordinance is adopted in compliance with the charter of the City of Lake Mary, Florida, as adopted and in conformance with Florida State Statute, Chapter 166, and Florida Statute, Chapter 200.

SECTION 2.

A special revenue fund shall be created by the levy of a special ad valorem tax of 1.50 mills. Said funds shall be utilized exclusively for the paving and repair of paving of streets and roads of the City of Lake Mary, Florida.

SECTION 3.

This ordinance shall be placed on the ballot for approval and ratification by a majority vote of the electors of the City of Lake Mary, Florida, at the election to be held within the City on September 6, 1983.

SECTION 4.

Upon approval by a majority of the electors of the City of Lake Mary, Florida, at the City Election of September 6, 1983, the within described special ad valorem tax shall be established and the City shall assess the said separate ad valorem tax of 1.50 mills commencing October 1, 1983.

SECTION 5.

There is hereby established within the Public Works Department of the City of Lake Mary a special paving and paving repair fund which shall be generated from the levy of the special ad valorem tax of 1.50 mills as provided in this ordinance.

SECTION 6.

The ad valorem tax of 1.50 mills established by this ordinance shall be levied each year for a period of two budget years. Any extension or renewal of this limited and special paving and paving repair ordinance and the authorized assessment of 1.50 mills per annum provided for herein shall be placed before the electors of the City of Lake Mary for reconsideration each two years following its initial adoption and said assessment shall continue in effect only in the event that the same is so authorized by a majority vote of the electors of the City at each election in which the renewal of this tax levy is presented. The general millage rate to be established by the City Commission during budget hearing prior to any special or general elections shall take into consideration the purpose and intent of this ordinance and the revenues reasonably foreseen by the City Commission as necessary to accomplish the purposes of paving and paving repair which this ordinance is intended to fund.

SECTION 7.

(a) The City Commission of Lake Mary, Florida does hereby establish and assess a special ad valorem tax of 1.50 mills commencing October 1, 1983 to 1985, for the 1983-1984 tax year. The qualified electors of the City of Lake Mary shall determine by a majority of their vote at election each successive two years following the initial adoption and ratification of this ordinance by the electors whether or not this special assessment shall be renewed for an additional two years or rejected. Tax revenues received by the City of Lake Mary as a result of this special assessment shall be specifically used by the City for the purpose of the establishment, funding and maintenance of a paving and paving repair program administered by the Department of Public Works of the City of Lake Mary and expended under the supervision and direction of the City Commission of Lake Mary, Florida.

SECTION 7.

CONFLICTS

All Ordinances or parts of Ordinances in conflict with any of the provisions of this Ordinance are hereby repealed.

SEVERABILITY

If any Section or portion of a Section of this Ordinance proves to be invalid, unlawful, or unconstitutional, it shall not be held to invalidate or impair the validity, force, or effect of any other Section or part of this Ordinance.

EFFECTIVE DATE

This Ordinance shall take effect immediately upon passage and adoption, except that the power and authority of the City to levy and assess the special ad valorem taxes described herein for the purpose of funding, paving and paving repair program as herein described shall be effective only upon the adoption and ratification of the tax herein provided by a majority vote of the qualified electors of the City of Lake Mary, Florida at the initial election addressing this issue to be held on September 6, 1983.

The registered voters of the City are invited to review said ordinance and to obtain a free copy thereof from the City Clerk during usual working hours of 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The Flexible Brunch Picture Of Casual Informal Hospitality

While the origin of brunch, a combination of breakfast and lunch, is thought to be an English inspiration starting around 1900, it could easily be an American custom. It's a convenience for those on the go whose busy schedules are too demanding for weekday entertaining.

Regardless of its background, the brunch is still a most flexible way to entertain: it can be timed anywhere from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.; the menu can be as varied as you choose; if you're having a few guests, it can be a sit-down affair, or for a larger party, a buffet; and most advantageous for the host or hostess, it can be prepared the night before.

But while brunches are the very picture of casual, informal hospitality, they have almost become synonymous with quiches and omelets. The solution to the brunch "quiche syndrome" is the regal potato. Used widely by the finest chefs in the country, this superior spud delivers luxurious taste and an ideal mealy texture, whether it's mashed, baked, pan-roasted or boiled.

Featuring the quality tuber from the Gem state, three exciting main-dish recipes assure the chef of an original and highly satisfying brunch.

One variation of the traditional mold, easy-to-prepare ahead of time and chilled is Idaho Snow With Watercress-Mustard Sauce. Refreshing watercress in a zesty green sauce blends with tender diced potatoes in a piquant but creamy mold.

Another elegant possibility for brunch is Potatoes St. Jacques, a variation of the French scallops-in-cream sauce dish with mouth-watering mashed potatoes and Gruyere cheese.

Party Potato Brunch Loaf is an ingenious and all-encompassing entree that features an omelet made with potatoes, mushrooms, ham and cheese presented inside a hearty loaf of bread. The entire loaf can be assembled ahead of time. (It's also excellent for picnics.)

Here are some tips on how to store the potatoes you buy for the brunch menu.

* Don't refrigerate potatoes — refrigeration causes a sweet taste as the potato starch turns to sugar.

* Keep in a cool, dry, dark, well-ventilated place. At 45° to 50°F, potatoes will keep for several weeks; at room temperature for one week.

* Lengthy exposure to sunlight or artificial light causes potatoes to run green and acquire a bitter flavor.

IDAHO SNOW WITH WATERCRESS—MUSTARD SAUCE

- 4 potatoes, pared and quartered
- 1½ teaspoons salt, divided
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- 1½ cups mayonnaise
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 4 hard-cooked eggs, peeled and chopped
- 1 cup diced celery
- ½ cup diced green pepper
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- Watercress
- ½ pound cooked ham, thinly sliced
- 8 slices prosciutto
- Tomato wedges (optional)

In a medium saucepan combine potatoes, ¾ teaspoon salt and enough water to measure 1-inch deep. Cover. Bring to a boil; reduce heat, simmer 20 to 25 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Drain; cover and chill. When thoroughly chilled, dice potatoes. In a 2-quart saucepan sprinkle gelatin over 1 cup water; let stand 1 minute. Heat over low heat, stirring constantly until gelatin is completely dissolved. Remove from heat; whisk in mayonnaise, lemon juice, Worcestershire and remaining ¾ teaspoon salt. Gently stir in potatoes, eggs, celery, green pepper and onion. Turn into a 6-cup mold. Chill 4 hours or until set.

TO SERVE: Loosen mold around edges with tip of a small knife. Dip mold in warm water 10 seconds; unmold onto serving plate. Serve with watercress, ham, prosciutto, tomato wedges and Watercress-Mustard Sauce. Yield: 8 servings.

WATERCRESS—MUSTARD SAUCE

- 1 cup mayonnaise
 - 1 cup fresh watercress leaves, loosely packed
 - 3 teaspoons Dijon-style mustard
 - 2 teaspoons lemon juice
 - ¼ cup sliced scallions or green onions
- In container of electric blender combine all ingredients. Cover. Blend at high speed until smooth. Yield: 1½ cups sauce.

POTATOES ST. JACQUES

- 4 potatoes, pared and quartered
- 12 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
- 3 cups light cream or dairy half-and-half, divided
- 2 large eggs, beaten
- Salt and pepper
- 1½ pounds sea or bay scallops (cut sea scallops into quarters)
- ¼ cup dry white wine
- ½ teaspoon dried leaf thyme, crumbled
- ½ pound fresh mushrooms, thinly sliced
- ¼ cup minced, peeled shallots or onion
- ¼ cup chopped celery
- ¼ cup all-purpose flour
- 1 cup grated Gruyere cheese (4 ounces)
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 6 fresh mushrooms, fluted, sautéed in butter (optional for garnish)

Place potatoes in a large saucepot; add enough water to measure 1-inch deep. Cover. Bring to boiling; reduce heat; simmer 25 minutes or until just tender. Do not overcook. Drain. Put potatoes in a large mixing bowl; beat (with an electric mixer) until potatoes are smooth. Beat in 6 tablespoons butter, ½ cup cream, eggs, and salt and pepper to taste. (There should be about 4 cups mashed potatoes.) Cover, set aside. In a medium saucepan combine scallops, wine and thyme. Cover, bring to simmer and cook 5 minutes. Remove scallops with slotted spoon and set aside; reserve ½ cup of the cooking liquid; wipe saucepan clean. Melt remaining 6 tablespoons butter; sauté mushrooms, shallots and celery until tender. Add flour; cook 1 minute longer, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and gradually stir in reserved ½ cup cooking liquid and remaining 2½ cups cream. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and just comes to a boil. Add ¾ cup cheese, parsley, Worcestershire, and salt and pepper to taste. Stir until cheese melts; stir in reserved scallops.

TO SERVE: Spoon ½ cup potato mixture in each of six 1½ cup ramekins or individual oven-proof casseroles. Add about 1 cup scallop mixture to each and pipe or spoon remaining potatoes around top. Sprinkle with remaining cheese and garnish with fluted mushroom, if desired. (At this point, ramekins can be covered and refrigerated for up to 24 hours.) Bake in a 400°F. 30 to 40 minutes or until sauce bubbles and potatoes are browned. Yield: 6 servings.

PARTY POTATO BRUNCH LOAF

- 1 round loaf, (about 20 ounces), pumpernickel or Italian bread
 - 2 tablespoons olive oil
 - 3 medium-size potatoes, pared and diced
 - ½ teaspoon salt
 - ¼ cup butter or margarine
 - 1 cup chopped fresh mushrooms
 - ½ cup chopped green pepper
 - ¼ cup chopped onion
 - 1 clove garlic, minced
 - ¾ cup chopped, cooked ham
 - 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese (4 ounces)
 - 7 large eggs, beaten
- Slice off top third of bread in one piece. Scoop out soft center of bottom piece leaving a 1-inch thick shell. Brush inside of loaf with olive oil; replace top and wrap in aluminum foil to keep fresh. In a medium saucepan combine potatoes, salt and enough water to measure 1-inch deep. Cover. Bring to a boil; reduce heat; simmer 10 to 15 minutes or until potatoes are just tender. Drain; set aside. Melt butter in an 8-inch oven-proof skillet; sauté mushrooms, green pepper, onion and garlic until tender-crisp. Remove from heat and gently stir in potatoes, ham and cheese. Add eggs. Bake egg mixture in a 375°F. oven 35 to 40 minutes or until a knife inserted in center comes out clean. About 10 minutes before omelet is done place bread in oven to warm.

TO SERVE: Remove omelet from pan by loosening sides and bottom with a spatula. Remove top of bread and place omelet into cavity. Replace top of bread and wrap in aluminum foil. Let stand at room temperature for 10 minutes before serving. Cut into wedges. Yield: 6 servings.
