Did daughter rob mom?

SANFORD — Jennifer Lee Hilpert, 18, was to make her initial court appearance this afternoon at the Seminole County Correctional Facility. She is charged with one count of grand theft, burglary, and dealing in stolen property.

Hilpert was arrested yesterday morning at her sister's residence in Sanford.

Sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough said Hilpert and two men are accused of breaking into her mother's home on Beverly Lane in Casselberry in late June, taking approximately $5,000 in electronic equipment.

The mother reportedly said she will press charges against her daughter. McDonough said the younger Hilpert has threatened her mother with bodily harm when she gets out of jail.

Hilpert is being held under $5,000 bond. The two men, identified as James Hill, 20, and Shawn Butler, 18, are reportedly in Pennsylvania.

Hanna guest at Zoo benefit

SANFORD — The Central Florida Zoological Society is holding its sixth Black Tie on the Wild Side gathering this Saturday, July 29. The annual fund-raising event will be held at the Walt Disney World Dolphin. Special guest will be Jack Hanna, formerly director of the Sanford zoo in 1973, and star of many television programs on wild animals. He is currently Director Emeritus of the Columbus Zoological Gardens.

The event begins at 6:30 p.m. with a reception, silent auction and exotic animal appearances. Dinner follows, plus a live auction and dancing.

Last year, the event netted over $60,000 for education and conservation programs at the Central Florida Zoo.

Cost is $125 per person. For details, contact the zoo at 323-4450.

Crafters needed

GOLDENROD — Artists and crafters are being sought for the seventh annual Crafters' Bazaar of Goldenrod, a benefit for Hospice of Central Florida.

The event is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 23, at University Park Plaza in Winter Park.

Approximately 200 exhibitor spaces are available. Cost for a 10 by 10 booth is $40. No commercial food vendors or resale items will be accepted.

All proceeds will go to the exhibitor with rental fees to be donated to Hospice of Central Florida.

Last year, over 5,000 people attended the event, and since 1989, the bazaar has raised over $31,000 for Hospice, serving Seminole, Orange and Osceola Counties. Entry deadline is September 1, or when all spaces are filled.

For exhibitor's space reservations or additional information, phone Lavergne Ryan, 678-8080.

Hot month for bomb threats

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — At least six false bomb threats have been made in Sanford during the month of July. Police are investigating similarities in a number of the calls.

The first reported threats were made on July 5, at the Seminole County Courthouse and Sanford City Hall, both on North Park Avenue. Personnel at the courthouse were not required to evacuate, and city employees were allowed to leave early, as the threat was made just prior to the end of the work day.

According to both of those incidents reports, police were told that the calls appeared to have been made by "an older sounding white male, possibly with a northern accent."

The next report was made on July 17, to Bram Towers. It was again indicated the voice appeared to be an older sounding male.

This past Wednesday, a bomb threat call was made to the Sanford Police Department at 815 S. French Avenue. Police Commander Dennis

Residents want FPL site landscaped

Commissioner backs movement

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — The fenced-in network of metal poles, wires and transformers at the Laurel Avenue power substation has prompted historic district residents to enlist the help of their district county commissioner to seek landscaping of the site.

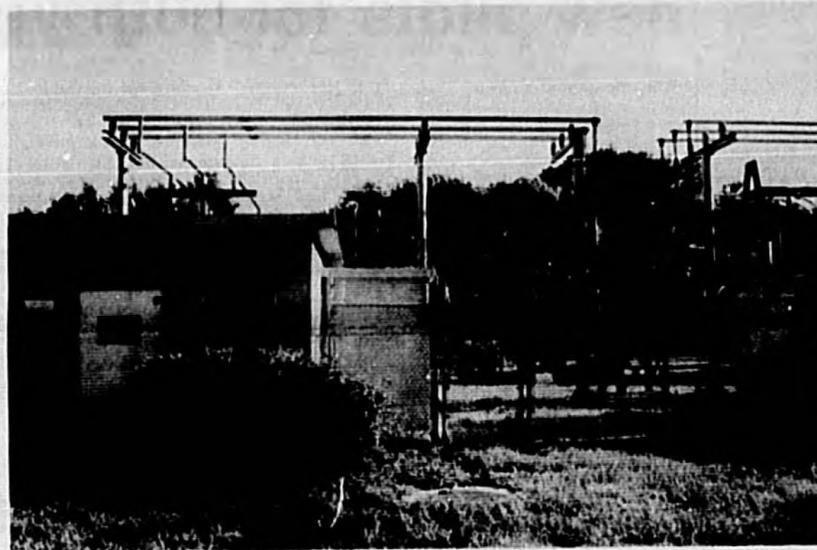

Concerned citizens and residents of the historic district are seeking the assistance of Seminole County Commissioner Daryl McLain to persuade Florida Power and Light Corporation to beautify the substation at Laurel Avenue and 6th Street.

"I've been working on this issue since June 30," McLain said. John Mercer brought the issue to his attention. McLain is attempting to schedule a meeting between FPL officials and members of the historic district to find a solution.

The problem is not new. McLain, 46, recalls the substation appears today much as it did when he was a grammar school student living in the historic district over 35 years ago.

"The substation is ugly and devalues all the homes located in the historic district," the

Freon law may ease for Florida drivers

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Local mechanics don't want the state to go backward environmentally. Still, there are plenty of people with failing air conditioning systems who are hot to have the law regarding Freon changed.

The state environmental regulators are thinking about lifting a rule that bans mechanics from adding Freon to leaky air conditioning systems.

Florida's rule is the toughest in the country. Federal rules require refrigerants to be captured during repairs but do not prevent the "topping off" of leaky systems, as Florida's rule does.

"People want us to just put a little refrigerant in to keep the system going," said Bill Fledderman, manager of Seminole Car Care in Longwood. "We can't do that, but if we did, all they would be doing is polluting the environment and forestalling the inevitable. If there is a leak, the system is going to fail in a week, a month, three months. It is going to fail."

Consumers have complained of being forced to make expensive repairs to systems that leaked only small amounts of Freon. Many complained that cheating mechanics used the rule to coerce drivers into getting repairs that weren't needed.

Teen, friend indicted for murder

TALLHASSEE — A grand jury has indicted a teen-ager and a friend he had been forbidden to see on first-degree murder charges for the fatal beating of the teen's mother.

Aaron Moore, 17, and David Balty, 22, confessed two weeks ago to the June 29 murder of Kathryn Moore, whose body was dumped down an abandoned well.

An arraignment before Circuit Judge J. Lewis Hall Jr. will probably be scheduled within the next couple of weeks, said Warren Goodwin, chief assistant state attorney in Leon County.

Moore and Balty are being held without bond. Moore was angry about being grounded by his mother and forbidden from hanging around with Balty, sheriff's officials said. Mrs. Moore, 41, had punished her son after he and Balty stole her car for a joyride to South Carolina.

Youth sentenced to chair

FORT LAUDERDALE — Martin Puccio, the last of seven youths to be sentenced in a mob attack, will die in Florida's electric chair for his role in the 1993 slaying of his best friend, a judge said.

Puccio, 22, of Hollywood, was convicted last September of first-degree murder in the death of Bobby Kent.

Kent, 20, was lured to a remote Broward County rock pit. He was stabbed and beaten with a baseball bat by a group of friends and acquaintances who thought he was a bully.

Puccio, who received the harshest sentence, helped plan the murder, gathered the weapons, and beat and stabbed Kent before leaving him to die, prosecutors said.

Circuit Judge Charles Oreene followed a jury's earlier recommendation in deciding Thursday on the death penalty.

The six other defendants received sentences ranging from seven years to life plus 30 years in prison.

Construction worker electrocuted

POMPANO BEACH — A construction worker laying a sewer pipe was electrocuted when a backhoe struck an overhead power line.

Floyd West, who was on the ground, was using his hand to guide the 30-inch-wide pipe Thursday afternoon. The metal pipe was attached by cable to the backhoe, which was being driven by another worker.

The crane portion of the backhoe hit the 9,720-volt power line, sending high-voltage current through the backhoe, the pipe and into West, according to the Broward County sheriff's office.

The accident interrupted power to some area residents. West, 37, of Miami, was an employee for Coastal Utilities. The company was installing the pipe in a neighborhood near Pompano Beach, just north of Fort Lauderdale.

Model files harassment charges

DAYTONA BEACH — A former model for Hawaiian Tropic sun-care products sued company founder Ron Rice, alleging he sexually harassed her over four years.

Cindy Harbuck, 22, claims Rice, 54, groped her and took "indecent liberties" while she slept or was under the influence of alcohol or medication.

She said Rice loaned her money for breast augmentation surgery in June 1992 and later "demanded to see what he had paid for" and fondled her breasts. She said he also made sexually explicit comments.

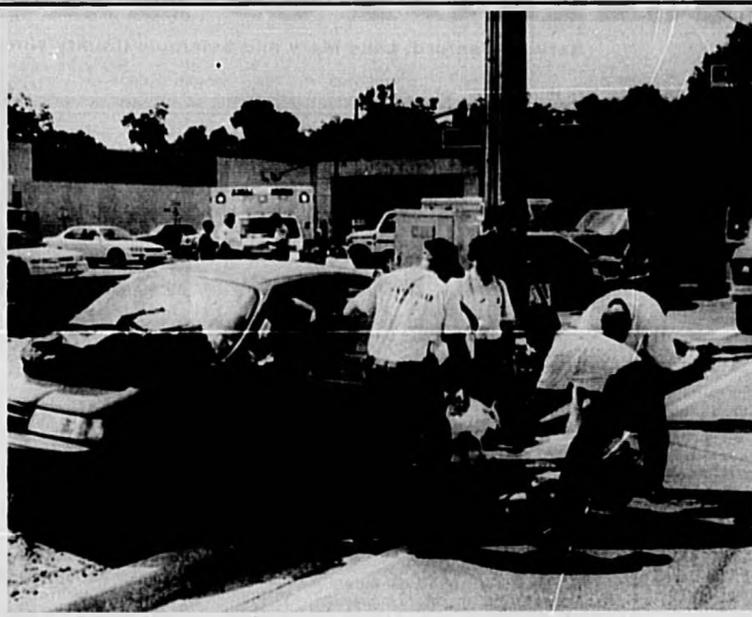

"Cindy is seeking justice," said her lawyer, J. David Kerec. Rice denied the allegations Wednesday.

The circuit court action, filed Monday, seeks compensatory damages in excess of $15,000 for the alleged incidents between 1991 and 1994.

Mobs terrorize motorists after cop shooting

MIAMI — At the Macedonia First Baptist Church in Miami's Coconut Grove neighborhood, revelers spent the early evening ringing in the city's 99th birthday with a peaceful celebration of gospel music.

Just hours later Thursday, the streets outside the church erupted in violence as a band of nearly 30 youths hurled rocks at cars and set trash on fire — apparently in protest of a fatal police shooting days earlier.

"Just one extreme to another," said Miami City Commissioner J.L. Plummer, shaking his head in disgust.

Police quickly moved in to seal off the neighborhood after receiving reports of rock-and-bottle throwing. Some motorists suffered minor cuts and lacerations from broken car windows, police spokesman Angel Calzadilla said.

About 100 officers, including 55 in a special field force with helmets and shields, swiftly set up a perimeter and restricted traffic through the neighborhood.

Police Chief Donald Warshaw said the disturbance quickly dissipated after his officers started their sweep through the neighborhood.

"It's all quiet now," Warshaw said about two hours after police received the first calls alerting them to the disturbance. "It's an easy part of the city to contain, and they were put down quickly."

The neighborhood was reopened about 3 a.m. EDT, Calzadilla said. There were no immediate arrests and no officers were hurt.

Motorists and residents reported seeing young men, their faces covered with masks or pillowcases, menacing motorists in the area, which borders a popular entertainment district.

Blue Angels select three new pilots for 50th year

PENSACOLA — A Persian Gulf War veteran and a former "Top Gun" instructor are among three new pilots who will join the Blue Angels for their 50th anniversary season next year.

The Navy's six-plane flight demonstration squadron, based at Pensacola Naval Air Station, announced the selections Wednesday.

The new pilots are Navy Lt. Scott Beare of Fallon Naval Air Station, Nev., and William Moyer of Oceana Naval Air Station at Virginia Beach, Va., and Marine Capt. Patrick Cooke of Miramar Naval Air Station, Calif.

Beare, whose hometown is Alexandria, Va., said Thursday he began his Navy career in 1980 as an enlisted man aboard submarines. He then attended

George Washington University and has served as a "Top Gun" instructor at the Navy's Fighter Weapons School at Miramar.

He currently is with the Marine Fighter Attack Squadron 323 at Eglin Air Force Base near Pensacola. The Marines are flying simulated combat missions in their Hornets against Air Force F-15 Eagles.

Background on Moyer was unavailable from the Blue Angels and he was not in Thursday at his squadron.

The new pilots will replace Marine Maj. Ben Hancock, who flies the No. 2 jet; Lt. Cmdr. Doug Thompson, the No. 3 pilot; and Lt. Cmdr. Rick Young, in plane No. 5. Most pilots serve two-year tours and half of the team normally is replaced each year.

Publix chain denies new allegations of discrimination

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer

TAMPA — Publix Supermarkets Inc. denies new allegations by worker advocacy groups that the chain discriminates against its employees based on age or disabilities.

The supermarket chain made its comments Thursday, the same day the groups, spurred on by the United Food and Commercial Workers Union, called for a deeper federal probe into discrimination complaints and a boycott by shoppers statewide.

"The UFCW has launched an all-out publicity assault on every imaginable front," the supermarket chain said in a brief statement. "We will not dignify the union's attempt to exploit the news media and other organizations with any further response."

Eight past and current employees claim they were discriminated against because of age, sex or injury. They had complaints ready to file Thursday with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The EEOC has been examining charges of gender and race discrimination at Publix stores for three years. It does not comment on investigations.

Carolyn Dietz, a nine-year employee, worked as a deli manager until she broke her foot. She told reporters at a news conference Thursday that she was forced to work against doctor's orders and harassed until she retired.

As deli manager, she said she was the lowest paid of the management team. She said superiors told her she was not really management level, just part of the crew.

Her husband, Bob, is also a past employee. He contended his hours were slashed dramatically after an on-the-job injury and that Publix later told him it had no position for him.

The United Food and Commercial Workers Union does not represent Publix workers but its representatives were at the news conference.

"Behind the smiling face at Publix, there appears to be an ugly reality — that includes new allegations of age discrimination, violations of the Americans with Disabilities Act and sexual harassment," said Patricia Scarelli, the union's director of women's affairs.

Other groups joining the chorus Thursday for a widened EEOC probe include the Coalition for Justice in Workers Compensation and the National Organization for Women.

A lawsuit filed last week in federal court in Tampa charged the Lakeland-based company pigeonholed women in low-paying jobs with little chance of promotion. It seeks to represent 45,000 women workers at Publix's 489 stores in Florida, Georgia and South Carolina.

Groups representing seniors, women, injured and disabled workers joined the UFCW in supporting the workers. They told consumers to buy groceries elsewhere.

"We are urging people not to shop at Publix," said Eileen Hanson, a UFCW representative.

Barbara DeVane said Publix's record with older workers was disgusting. She represents 100,000 seniors for the Florida State Council of Senior Citizens.

"Seniors are casualties of job discrimination that pushes us out of the workplace," she said. "Your ads say, 'We care.' We seniors say, 'You couldn't care less.' Publix only cares about the bottom line — profits above people."

Arrested for robbery

Robert Lee Daniels, 22, 1705 W. 14th St., Sanford was arrested Wednesday in connection with the June 30 robbery of a food delivery person in the 1700 block of 14th Street.

An order from a local pizzeria of sandwiches, sodas and chips was being delivered to an address on 14th Street. A black man flagged down the deliveryman saying "This is the place," then claimed it was the wrong order. The deliveryman was surrounded by several men with towels covering their faces demanding money, the police report states. The victim dropped the food order and attempted to flee in his car with some of the group trying to grab his keys.

The shop owner used a call return phone feature and discovered the food order had been placed from another house on 14th Street. The victim identified Daniels as the man who flagged him down in the street after viewing several photos. Daniels was also served with two outstanding warrants, one felony and one misdemeanor after his arrest.

Battle to keep Chi-Chi from castration fails

By The Associated Press

KEY WEST, Fla. — What started as a poibelled pig's quest for passion has ended in his castration.

The procedure finished a tumultuous five days for Chi-Chi, whose only crime was trying to have sex with another kind of hog — the big metal kind known as a Harley-Davidson.

Monroe County Animal Control incarcerated the pig after Saturday's moment of passion and said he wouldn't be freed until he was neutered.

After media reports evoked widespread sympathy for Chi-Chi's plight, Becky Barron, vice president of the Lower Keys Friends of Animals, adopted the pig on Thursday.

Barron had him castrated and donated him to the Monroe County Sheriff's Children's Animal Park, a petting zoo maintained by county inmates and funded by donations.

By early afternoon, Chi-Chi was awake and slowly recovering, Barron said.

"He's woozy and a little crabby," she said.

The 50-pound pig was caught trying to have sex with Walter Wyatt's 1995 Harley. Wyatt said the animal caused more than $100 damage but was considering dropping the claim against the owner, who decided not to reclaim the pig.

With the first threats of castration, the town and Wyatt came to the beast's aid, getting him a lawyer, a $300-plus defense fund and promises of future romps with motorcycles.

Most everyone now agrees the operation was the best for Chi-Chi, said Wayne Smith, Chi-Chi's lawyer and president of the Monroe County Bar Association. The defense money will be donated to the zoo, he said.

"There are many Harley-Davidsons that can now sleep at night without fear of unwanted sexual advances from Chi-Chi," Smith said.

As for Chi-Chi's future, there's talk of making him the mascot for the Keys' annual biker fundraiser, Poker Run. He also was scheduled to appear at the East Martello Museum here, which has a temporary exhibit of historic Harleys.

"Chi-Chi will observe the exhibit wistfully, dreaming of days, maybe nights, gone by," Smith said.

Maximum-security teen program opens

By JACKIE MALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's juvenile justice system has been expanded to include a facility where teen-age criminals can find themselves behind bars for three times longer than any current program.

Florida can and does send its worst teen-age criminals to the adult system. But until now, the toughest juvenile program lasted just a year.

A program that opened its doors Thursday in temporary quarters in the Citrus County Detention Center in Lecanto, some 50 miles north of Tampa, will hold its inmates for at least 18 months and up to three years.

On hand to mark the opening of Cypress Creek were Gov. Lawton Chiles, Juvenile Justice Secretary Calvin Ross and four delinquents with long records including armed robbery, aggravated assault, auto theft, grand theft and burglary.

Chiles and Ross were there for the ceremony; the young criminals will be there for at least 18 months but could end up staying in the program twice as long if they don't do well.

Last year, state lawmakers spent much of their 60-day legislative session debating what to do to improve the juvenile justice system.

The reforms they passed included creation of a new agency to replace the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services as the agency in charge of juvenile programs. Lawmakers also decided to mandate a tougher kind of program for teen-agers who remain in the juvenile system.

Cypress Creek is the first "level 10" program to come on line. A second program, operated by the Manatee County Sheriff's Department, is to begin in the next few weeks.

"Maximum-security programs like Cypress Creek take dangerous young criminals off the streets and represent our last chance to rehabilitate dangerous youths while they are still in the juvenile system," Chiles said. "This kind of attention will help us change the lives of the young people we can reach — and protect our communities from those we cannot."

Eventually, Cypress Creek will have space for 84 delinquents. It's operated by Rebound Inc. and includes a six-month orientation phase that features regimentation and training similar to the military-style operations of Florida's six juvenile boot camps.

After the orientation, Cypress Creek inmates are given counseling, education and vocational training. During the final months of their stay, delinquents may get home visits as a transition to their release.

Once teen-agers do leave the program, there is a follow-up program that will last at least 12 months and could result in a return to residential stay for teen-agers who are not doing well.

"This is getting very tough," Ross said.

The first inmates at Cypress Creek are Carlos McCrae and Richard Cole, both of Leon County; James Simpson of Lee County; and Leonard Jennings of Broward County.

McCrae and Simpson are both 17; Cole and Jennings are both

15. McCrae's record includes a list of 13 crimes; Simpson's, 42; Cole's, 67; and Jennings', 45.

Gross domestic product up sluggish 0.5 percent

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The economy slowed almost to a standstill in the second quarter of 1995, turning in its weakest performance in nearly four years.

The Commerce Department said today that gross domestic product, measuring all goods and services produced in the United States, grew at an anemic 0.5 percent annual rate in the spring.

But analysts said in advance of the report that the expected sluggishness, due largely to trimming of excess business inventories that included a sharp slowdown in auto production, does not portend a recession. They predict the economy already has begun to regain momentum and will expand at a solid if unimpressive rate by the end of the year.

The economy has been in a dramatic slowdown since late last year, when it grew at the fastest rate in a decade. GDP increased at a 2.7 percent annual rate in the first three months of 1995 after a booming 5.1 percent pace in the fourth quarter of 1994.

The second quarter sluggishness, while no surprise, could increase pressure on the Federal Reserve to lower short-term interest rates again to give the economy another shot in the arm.

The central bank, after a string of seven interest rate increases since early last year, reversed course this month and cut a key rate for the first time in nearly three years. The federal funds rate that banks charge each other for overnight loans was lowered a quarter point to 5.75 percent.

The Commerce Department said consumer spending, which accounts for about two-thirds of GDP, actually accelerated in the second quarter, increasing at a $22.6 billion rate compared with $14.3 billion the previous three months.

All final sales, including consumer spending, net exports and government purchases, climbed at a 2.1 percent rate after increasing 2.6 percent in the first quarter.

Analysts said the buying pickup may have been due to price cutting by businesses eager to reduce mounting stockpiles of goods.

Inventories subtracted $20.7 billion from GDP, the biggest drop in 4½ years. Reduced car production was a major contributor to the slower pace of growth, the Commerce Department said.

Overall, GDP rose at a $7.2 billion rate in the April-June quarter compared with $38.3 billion in the first three months of the year. Growth was the weakest since the economy expanded 0.1 percent in the fourth quarter of 1991.

All the figures are preliminary estimates and could be revised in upcoming months.

Inflation remained under control and actually moderated a bit. One measure of inflation tied to GDP rose 2.9 percent in the first three months after rising 3 percent in the first quarter.

The Federal Reserve has claimed credit for holding inflation in check by its preemptive series of interest rate increases. Analysts say the full effect of the rate hikes on slowing the economy have yet to be felt.

It's about time

Many veterans of the Korean War are pleased that they have been finally recognized by a veterans memorial. The memorial was dedicated in Washington, D.C. Thursday.

It's about time. There are memorials in the nation's capitol and across the country honoring every one of the wars in which Americans have been involved. Yet for 45 years since the armistice was signed at Panmunjom, Korean war veterans have practically been ignored.

It isn't because they haven't been recognized. Many of our veterans' groups have been attempting to get more participation by veterans of the Korean and Vietnam conflicts. Yet the bulk of their memberships have continuously been connected with World War II or peacetime service.

The numbers have diminished for World War I veterans, and the Civil War vets have long since ceased to be with us.

Yet they are honored. Memorials are not only of national significance, but many cities, towns and states have erected memorials to commemorate their own war veterans.

Locally, even the unincorporated town of Osteen, across the river in Volusia County, has a monument for veterans of the two world wars.

People have shown they care. They have shown pride in their friends and neighbors who put their lives in jeopardy to preserve our nation's freedom. They also remember those who did not return from battle.

Now, with this new Korean War Memorial, we have added another page to the list of honors bestowed by our nation for those who served in battle. It was a long time in coming, and even though Washington sources are boasting it was they who created this memorial, it was actually an outpouring of people, complaining, urging, demanding, that Washington do what must be done for this particular group of military personnel.

It's built and open to the public now. We urge anyone going to Washington to pay it a visit, and show that, regardless of what people may have thought about the actual war, honor must be paid to those who served in it.

Good use

I read with great interest your July 20th editorial What Happens Next? regarding ideas for the use of the vacant shopping centers in and around the greater Sanford area.

Your reference to some potential uses for the former Zayre Plaza particularly caught my attention. As you may be aware, the Seminole County Expressway Authority, of which I am currently the chairman, purchased that vacant shopping center in early 1991. The entire property is eventually going to be needed to build the "missing link" of the GreeneWay between U.S. Highway 17/92 and I-4. Rather than let the stores sit vacant until the GreeneWay construction begins, the Authority decided to put the store to good use.

Since July of 1991 when the Habitat for Humanity established its thrift store at the center, the Authority has been leasing space exclusively to non-profit, community service organizations. Other organizations in the Zayre Plaza include the Seminole Community Volunteer Enterprises Inc.; Florida Baby Food Center, Inc.; GoldenRule Housing and Community Development, Inc.; Alcoholics Anonymous; Seminole Community Mental Health Center, Inc. and Rescue Outreach Mission of Sanford, Inc.

While the Zayre Plaza can only be a temporary home for these community service organizations, the Seminole County Expressway Authority will continue to strive to do its part in providing affordable space to organizations for the betterment of the community.

Affirmative action in politics

It is true: Affirmative action, a.k.a. quotas, has now become "politicized." That's good news.

President Clinton says he's for affirmative action, although he promotes classic Clintonesque to go with it. Gov. Pete Wilson of California is against it and says Clinton is fooling us. Rev. Jesse Jackson says Wilson is "the Susan Smith of American politics." Jack Kemp says Republicans shouldn't run against affirmative action without offering something affirmative in its place. Majority Leader Bob Dole says do away with all federal aspects of affirmative action. Speaker Newt Gingrich says Republicans will come up with an affirmative plan before cutting affirmative action.

Wilson says Jackson is running for president, too. Kemp thinks Dole is moving in the right direction because he is also talking affirmatively. Clinton, politicking, says we shouldn't play politics with it.

Why not? Politics is where this ought to be. One reason Americans are so angry about what affirmative action has become is that it came about without serious political debate. The vast majority of practices called "affirmative action" were never voted on by elected officials. Most were established by court orders, guidelines, regulations and political pressure far from public view. Moreover, the issue was kept out of frontal debate in presidential elections lest anyone be accused of "playing the race card."

There is a healthy aspect to the current debate: Everyone agrees it's bad to "divide America." Proponents say opponents are dividing America. Opponents say affirmative action is dividing America.

It is also clear where affirmative action as now practiced is going away. The Supreme Court has ruled several times to limit the extent of affirmative action. Those rulings were greeted with grief by the quotacrats. But in the aftermath of Wilson's action to halt selection by race and gender at the University of California, the same quotacrats find that the court did well. Jackson now promotes the idea of "strict scrutiny" before any affirmative action is committed, and says he's only in favor of race being a factor, not the factor in selection procedures.

Even the strange speech of President Clinton showed which way the wind is blowing. He said affirmative action has been good for America. He grew emotional as he truthfully stressed that he's always opposed racism, from his early Southern childhood (conveniently skipping over the fact that as a young man he worked and campaigned for segregationist Sen. William Fulbright).

But he said what he would not "allow" in federal affirmative action: (1) quotas in theory or practice, (2) illegal discrimination, including reverse discrimination, (3) preference for those who are not qualified. He also supported a shut-down of programs that have succeeded. Now, that's pretty close to what opponents of affirmative action have been saying. They believe that affirmative-action-as-now-practiced yields all that.

One of the tragedies of the racial problems in America is that the issue has been kept out of the hurly-burly of presidential politics.

Politics is where this ought to be.

First lady fires back at tobacco industry

WASHINGTON — First lady Hillary Rodham Clinton may have lost the war over health care reform, but she soon may win a victory in her private battle against tobacco companies.

We first reported last August on confidential plans by Food and Drug Administration Commissioner David Kessler to assert regulatory control over the nicotine in cigarettes by classifying nicotine as a drug. The step would grant Kessler, who this month sent the White House proposals for tougher federal controls on cigarettes, broad authority to oversee their sale and marketing.

At the time, Kessler discussed the possibility of making his announcement shortly after Congress adjourned in October, which could have helped mute some of the uproar since lawmakers would have been distracted by the midterm elections. Although the ultimate decision lies with Kessler, sources tell us the issue came up in meetings between congressional leaders and the first lady more than a year ago, and that she verbally "signed off" on the plan. Mrs. Clinton burned many members of Congress from tobacco-producing states by banning smoking in the White House on Inauguration Day. At one point she also advocated hiking tobacco taxes as a way of funding her health care reform plan.

Kessler has been laying the political groundwork since February 1994, when he announced an investigation into whether nicotine is addictive and should be regulated as a drug. Since then, congressional investigators have unearthed evidence that American tobacco companies have known for decades what they incredulously deny — that cigarettes are addictive. Furthermore, some lawmakers claim that the companies have chemically altered their products to increase the chance of addiction. Now the cigarette industry is embroiled in a criminal investigation by federal prosecutors over whether tobacco executives perjured themselves before Congress.

Since tobacco companies have the kind of political power that's on a par with the National Rifle Association, any move by the FDA would ignite a firestorm of lobbying and arm-twisting. Already Republicans are trying to decimate the FDA's budget, and that effort would only intensify once Kessler cracked the regulatory whip on tobacco giants.

According to FDA contingency plans, a crack-down on cigarette-makers could take various forms — from a ban on advertising to gradually lowering the levels of nicotine in cigarettes. Officials reject the notion of a tobacco or cigarette prohibition.

The FDA issued a standard denial when we wrote our original stories about Kessler's plan to regulate tobacco. But a lengthy interview with Kessler made it clear that he had already reached his verdict by last summer, and was just exploring the best ways to defend his decision legally and politically. Sources say that the new Republican majority in Congress has disheartened Kessler, who was appointed to his current job by former President George Bush and kept on by Clinton. Kessler enjoys a reputation as a top-flight, nonpartisan health professional.

Based on our interview with Kessler, he appears to have both the resolve and the road map for getting the job done. He frequently cites the 400,000 people who die every year from tobacco-related illness. Look at everything we regulate, Kessler told us, from saccharin to red dye No. 3 and Pcb. "Add up the risks of all those substances and then look at the risks from tobacco," he said. "All the risks pale in comparison."

At one point she also advocated hiking tobacco taxes as a way of funding her health care reform plan.

DONNA BRITT

Something else to make you mad

WASHINGTON — Every day, there's something else to make you mad.

OK, so "angry" is the better word. "Mad is for rabid dogs, not people," my mom used to say. But "angry" seems too polite to describe certain inner storms. Sometimes, I just get mad.

Reading the newspaper. Watching TV news and talk shows. Observing the occasional nonsensical behavior exhibited by friends, relatives, strangers, even — especially? — myself.

Some of us stay mad, like the African American friend I recently argued with for an hour. He was mad at certain other blacks and Latinos — the ones who live in poverty and who, he said, seem determined to remain there, behaving badly and embarrassing more upstanding group members.

Days ago, the same friend was mad about law enforcement agents who attended the recent "Good Ol' Boys Roundup" in Ocoee, Tenn., reportedly organized by agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. He was outraged by how some whites posted "nigger check point" signs and by how "nigger hunting licenses" and T-shirts with Martin Luther King Jr.'s face behind a target were sold to attendees.

Luckily, I didn't tell him about the Prince William County, Va., high school baseball team that uses an innocuous-looking, circular symbol known to symbolize "the last thing seen by a black person pushed down a well by Ku Klux Klansmen." The kids say they used the symbol as an innocent "good luck" sign.

And thank goodness, I didn't mention the white Connecticut boys who sneaked the hidden message "Kill all niggers" into their high school yearbook.

I mean, my friend might have had a stroke. His dual "black rage" — directed at both fellow African Americans unable or unwilling to get with the program and at white racism toward all blacks — isn't uncommon.

Add to that many African Americans' fury toward Congress and the Supreme Court for rulings and bills that challenge civil rights and affirmative action initiatives and it's clear: "Angry white men" have nothing on black folks. Some are so bitter after a lifetime of being judged as inferior that anger is a permanent residence.

But even those whose outrage comes and goes see the irony in the headlong adoption of policies reflecting a supposed "colorblind" society, when acts like those of the "good ol' boys" and youths — perpetrated within weeks of each other in different parts of the country — suggest that color blindness remains a coming attraction.

That some people can't see that makes me want to do what Marvin Gaye once sang: holler and throw up both my hands.

But I've come to distrust anger. It's too easy. Mine regularly erupts at people whose actions seem cruel or idiotic but which later, in context, make sense. Rage has clouded my vision and limited my responses so often that I have little confidence in it. Besides, what can I accomplish with both hands in the air?

The trouble with mere anger is that it begets more anger depleting more than it gives, rage paralyzes or forces actions we regret. Many people get mad — and do nothing else.

The trouble with anger is that everybody's feels righteous. Everybody's makes sense. If only to them. But the most passionate finger-waggers often have little sense of what life feels like for the wagged-at. Or how they'd respond in their shoes.

My pal, who is outraged by poor folks' failures, hardly considers his own advantages — loving, working parents, strong values and a good education — and how they shaped him. Outrage is free: helping people change has a cost.

Getting mad is effortless. Being fair requires work. I think of the famous poll in which white Americans were asked what they'd have to be paid to make being black worthwhile. The average response: a cool million — which suggests that some know racism is more real than they admit.

And I think of how the actions of those kids and "good ol' boys" are no more typical of most whites than the stereotypes about "welfare queens" and male criminality are typical of most blacks. Most folks harbor prejudices — yet most still do the right thing, or want to.

I'm suggesting that we do the sacrilegious: Take a deep breath and look as suspiciously at our rage as we do at the other guy's. Looking deeper can spark the understanding needed to change minds and behavior, to channel rage into positive strategies the world can use.

Searching for higher ground requires overcoming fears: that the crazy-mad folks will chew you up, spit you out and keep on stepping; that transforming anger into something more life-affirming could help the racists take over, the abusers run rampant and send everything good down the tubes.

Screaming at each other just speeds the process. Any rabid dog could tell you that.

Some are so bitter after a lifetime of being judged as inferior that anger is a permanent residence.

said it was a male voice making the threat. "We have recorded the call," he said, "and the case has been assigned to a special investigator who is following a number of leads."

There was no evacuation of personnel at the police station.

Thursday, two more bomb threats were made. The first, to the State Attorney's office at the northeast corner of First Street and Park Avenue, resulted in an evacuation by all employees.

The second call was made to the Department of Parole and Probation offices, in the third and fourth floor of the First Union Bank building, at the southeast corner of First Street and Park Avenue. The call, made at approximately 2:30, forced an immediate evacuation of the building.

The bank facility was closed and personnel ordered out shortly after the incident. Bank President Andy Roberts said he didn't believe an immediate check was made of the building.

"After we waited until about 3:30," he said, "and there was no definite proof that this was a false report, I told our employees to go home for the rest of the day, and we closed the bank facility."

Customers seeking to use the bank found a sign indicating that transactions should be conducted at the French Avenue facility. The sign said the downtown office was closed, but gave passers-by no indication of the reason.

Seminole County Under Sheriff Steve Harriett said the sheriff's office has not received any reports of phoned bomb threats this month elsewhere in the county.

Police Chiefs Greg Manning in Longwood and Richard Beary in Lake Mary also said there had been no known bomb threats during July.

"During the two months after the Oklahoma City bombing incident however, we had a large number of calls here in Lake Mary," Chief Beary commented. "There were several calls at the post office and to individual businesses, but each one of them proved to be false." Beary said copy-cat situations often occur following a major disaster. "But during July we haven't had one single call," he added.

In several of the situations in Sanford, but not all, the Seminole County Ordinance Disposal Squad was called out. "The sheriff's office responds to such calls with our special squad," Harriett said, "but we only do so on request, and in some of the cases, there was no indication that any device actually existed."

The Federal Bureau of Investigation was not called in regarding any of these threats in Sanford. "The FBI is called only when there is a federal building involved," Harriett said. "These were either city, county or private buildings."

Freon

will check for a leak before any work is done on the system using an electronic leak detector. And, they will check the system for the presence of Freon.

If none is in there, a pound is put in and a check is done for leaks. If no leaks are found, the system is filled.

If a leak is found, the refrigerant is carefully removed, the location of the leak is recorded and repair work is recommended.

"We let them know exactly where the leak is so they can take the vehicle somewhere else for an estimate and be comparing apples to apples," Flederman said. "We know air conditioning repair is expensive, so they can shop. But you need an air conditioner in Florida."

The state Department of Environmental Protection has scheduled a public workshop next month in Palatka to re-examine a state regulation intended to slow the release of chlorofluorocarbons, also known as R-12 or by the trade name Freon.

The refrigerants are blamed for destroying atmospheric ozone molecules that shield the Earth from cancer-causing ultraviolet radiation. Under an international treaty, CFC production is being phased out.

"I'm not saying if the refrigerants are destroying the ozone or not," Flederman said. "I do think they are polluting the environment and I think Florida has taken a strong stand in this environmental issue. I don't see any reason to go back."

DEP spokesman Howard Rhodes said changing Florida's rule will have little, if any, impact on the ozone layer.

"On a global scale, it's nothing," Rhodes said. "The fact of the matter is, that probably within the next 10 years, all the CFCs that exist anywhere will be in the atmosphere anyway, because all the systems leak."

Flederman noted that those who argue for the change in the law don't specify "where to draw the line." He asked who would determine what was a leak and what was not.

"That's going to be more harmful to the consumer," he said.

The automotive repair industry, which has seen a boom in air-conditioning repairs since the rule was enacted in 1991, opposes the change.

Don Toomey, executive director of the Automotive Service Association of Florida, said the rule should be kept intact because Florida is one of the largest users of CFCs in automobiles.

"The consumers are accustomed to the law, and we don't think it really makes sense to go backward on our law," Toomey said.

All new automobiles, and most of those built after 1993, use a refrigerant called R-134a, which does not contribute to ozone depletion. But many owners will continue to rely on R-12, which will become increasingly scarce when production stops.

The environmental agency's public workshop on the issue will be from 1-4 p.m. Aug. 11 at the Putnam County Agricultural Center at the fairgrounds.

Information from the Associated Press is included in this report.

Landscape

petition reads. Oak Avenue resident Bob Casaca circulated petitions asking FPL for landscaping.

Petitioners complain it is unfair that other substations such as the ones at Brumley and Sylvan Park have irrigation systems and are "very, very lushly landscaped, even though neither is located in a residential neighborhood. The Sylvan Park substation is located in the woods and is bordered by a soccer field on one side. The Brumley substation located in Chuluota where it's closest neighbors are a bunch of cows. Why is it that FPL treats a bunch of cows in Chuluota better than it treats its human customers in Sanford?"

Casaca is seeking a double row of trees around the Laurel substation with irrigation to replace a hedge.

McLain notes the newer substations were landscaped because county officials made it a condition of the site approval.

"It needs to be landscaped," McLain said, referring to the Laurel Avenue substation. "The problem is when the city or Board of County Commissioners, whoever approved it back then, I'm sure it was probably the city, there was no condition of landscaping in issuing the approval. That's the problem we've got."

McLain has corresponded with the FPL property manager Tom Valley about the landscaping and expressed the hope the power company will be a good corporate neighbor and screen the site.

"As I told Mr. Casaca, this is an older site here. I don't know if there's any way we can make them (FPL) do it. I do know that we can bring substantial pressure to bear, and that's what I intend to do," McLain said. "I'm going to tell him (Valley) that I want a meeting with the Historic Trust and see what kind of good neighbor they are."

Valley was in Miami and unavailable for comment this morning.

Knight

will hopefully by a goal of retirement."

Knight said he has no deadline for eliminating his present shoe stock. "If a buyer wants to take over with whatever inventory I have when he's ready to buy," Knight commented, "then that's when the sale will be over. I don't know when that will be but it shouldn't be too long."

If the business isn't sold, Knight says he will alter his plans and decide at that point whether to retire or perhaps continue to stay in downtown Sanford for a short time longer.

The store is located in what was originally the Garner-Woodruff Building, built in 1910. It was home for Woodruff-Watson retail store for over a decade.

By the early 50s, it had become the Western Auto Associate Store, selling auto parts.

Ivey's Shoe Store, owned and operated by John Ivey, was located elsewhere in downtown Sanford in the early 50s, but took over the present location in approximately 1953, at which time Knight was hired as a clerk in Ivey's store.

Knight continued working at the store until 1990, when Ivey retired and Don and his wife Margaret purchased the business. It has continued to operate at that location ever since that time.

Marlins split with Padres

MIAMI — Phil Plantier drove in four runs for San Diego with two doubles Thursday in the first game of a rain-delayed doubleheader the Padres split with the Florida Marlins.

Plantier led the Padres to an 8-2 victory in the first game. In the second game, Russ Morman homered and had two RBI to lead the Marlins to a 8-5 win in a game filled with seven errors.

The first game was held up because of rain twice, the second time for 2 hours, 28 minutes.

In the second game, San Diego erased a 3-0 deficit with a two-run home run by Caminiti in the fifth inning and a one-run home run by Eddie Williams one out later off starter Mark Gardner to tie the game 3-3.

Morman, filling in for injured All Star Jeff Contine, led off the bottom of the fifth with a home run to left field, his second of the year. He also doubled in the first inning.

Panthers sign three

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Florida Panthers announced Thursday they signed forwards Alexei Kudashov and Ashley Buckberger and defenseman Len Esau to free-agent contracts.

Kudashov, 24, was the third draft selection of the Toronto Maple Leafs in the 1991 NHL entry draft. The 6-foot, 183-pound center played for the 1994 Russian Olympic team and led the Leafs' American Hockey League affiliate in scoring last season.

Buckberger, 20, a right wing, was chosen 49th overall by the Quebec Nordiques in the 1993 draft and spent last season with the Kamloops Blazers of the Western Hockey League.

Esau, 27, was the fifth choice of the Maple Leafs in the 1988 draft and has played a total of 27 NHL games with Toronto, Quebec, Calgary and Edmonton. The 6-3, 190-pound defenseman spent his time in the minors primarily with the Calgary Flames' AHL affiliate.

ELSEWHERE

Mudcats walk past Suns

ZEBULON, N.C. — The Jacksonville Suns issued 11 walks Thursday to help the Carolina Mudcats to a 7-3 win in the Southern League.

Jacksonville's pitchers from the start could not find the strike zone. In the fifth inning, the Mudcats scored three times, capitalizing on four walks and two throwing errors by Suns loser Gary Goldsmith (2-5).

Marc Wilkins (4-3) was the winner.

Indians acquire Hill

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Indians moved to bolster their home-stretch pitching staff Thursday, dealing three minor leaguers to St. Louis in exchange for right-hander Ken Hill.

The Indians, 16 games out in front in the AL Central Division with the best record in baseball, were looking to plug any remaining weakness in the last half of the season, general manager John Hart said.

"We made this trade based on the fact that we're trying to win this thing," Hart said.

To get Hill, Cleveland gave up Triple-A third baseman David Bell — son of Indians infield coach Buddy Bell — along with with Class-A right-hander Rick Heiserman and rookie-league catcher Pepe McNeal.

Abbott returns to Angels

MILWAUKEE — The California Angels on Thursday sent four minor leaguers to the Chicago White Sox for left-handed starter Jim Abbott and reliever Tim Fortugno.

With the trade, announced shortly before the Angels' game with the Milwaukee Brewers, Abbott returns to the team with which he made his major league debut in 1989.

The 27-year-old Abbott was 6-4 in 17 starts with the White Sox this season with an ERA of 3.36. He had three complete games.

Fortugno, 33, a left-handed reliever, was 1-3 with no saves and a 5.59 earned-run average in a team-high 37 appearances for Chicago.

Ferrell boosts Oviedo in Legion B tournament

From Staff Reports

TAMPA — Scott Ferrell singled in the tying run and scored the go-ahead run for the Oviedo Gators in a 5-3 win over Fort Walton Beach Thursday in the first round of the American Legion Baseball B State Tournament at Tampa-Jefferson High School.

The Gators, who have compiled a 32-7-1 record playing under the banner of Sanford American Legion Post 53 this summer, were to play Sarasota (a 13-0 winner over Gainesville-Buchholz Thursday) in a 9:30 a.m. game this morning.

If they won, the Gators (Oviedo High School's summer team) will play again in a 10 a.m. game Saturday at Jefferson. A loss would force the Gators to come back and play again today at 3:30 p.m. at Jefferson.

Oviedo coach Kenne Brown and his young team were taking things one game at a time.

"We're a young team," said Brown. "We're still making young mistakes. Our varsity team this year is going to be mostly sophomores and juniors with only one senior with any real varsity experience." Against Fort Walton Beach, some of that young talent delivered for Oviedo.

"An unlikely crew came through for us tonight," said Brown, referring to the bottom portion of the Gators' batting order. "We needed them tonight and they came through for us."

Oviedo took a 2-0 lead after three innings, an advantage Fort Walton Beach erased with a three-run outburst in the top of the sixth inning.

In the home half of the sixth, Oviedo's Troy Boutwell drew a one-out walk. After taking second on an errant pickoff throw, Boutwell went to third on a ground out. Ferrell, the No. 9 hitter in the Gator lineup, delivered a two-out single to score Boutwell and tie the game at 3-3.

Josh Frost followed with an infield single and Ferrell attempted to go from first to third on the play. When the throw to third base sailed into left field, Ferrell scored the go-ahead run. Frost, who took second on the play, scored on an insurance run on Richie Schneck's double.

Robert Carver came on to pitch in relief of starter Ben Knapp in the top of the seventh and closed out the win, striking out one and walking one. Knapp, who was the winning pitcher, allowed three runs (all earned) on nine hits while striking out five and walking five.

Schneck led Oviedo's 10-hit attack by going 2-for-3 with a double, one run scored, and an RBI. Jeremy Frost had a double, single, and one run scored while Josh Frost singled twice and scored a run.

Slade Hodges contributed a double. Andy Neufeld had a single and two RBI. Ferrell finished with a single, a run, and an RBI. Jay McFarlane also singled. Boutwell scored one run.

Mike Halaychick was scheduled to start for the Gators on the mound against Sarasota this morning.

WORKING ON A DREAM

Varitek continues pro quest

By GARY COATOAM
Herald Correspondent

ORLANDO — Over the past five years, Jason Varitek has been a high school first-team All-State pick (1990), named to the U.S. Olympic team (1992), twice voted a first-team All-American (1993 and 1994), tabbed the nation's top amateur player (1994), and drafted three times, twice in the first round.

Now, as a member of the Seattle Mariners-affiliate Port City Roosters (who complete a four-game Southern League series with the Orlando Cubs at Tinker Field tonight), Varitek is back to square one, struggling at the plate (.226) and learning the game all over again.

Yet for all his acclaim, Varitek's approach has made a favorable impression on Port City manager Dave Myers.

"Jason is a hard worker with an outstanding attitude, especially for a guy who was a first-round pick," Myers said. "Sometimes you don't always know what type of guy you are going to get with a No. 1 pick. Top picks are usually different from what Jason turned out to be. He is a solid professional already after just a short period into his first season."

"Jason has done a good job. He's been put into a tough situation because he is a rookie, and he has more than held his own. Jason has all the tools. He knows how to call a pretty good game at this point, and wants to learn more. Jason is the full package of what you would want in a major league catcher."

Varitek, who has always wanted to play Major League Baseball, feels hard work will be the key to his success, just as it was when he was the starting third baseman on Lake Brantley's 1990 state championship team or the catcher on Georgia Tech's World Series team in 1994.

The biggest difference in making the transition from college to professional baseball, he has discovered, is the intensity of competition. Varitek feels the teams the Roosters face every night are the equivalent

Linemen in spotlight at Bucs-Dolphins practice

Associated Press

DAVIE — One comes with loads of potential. The other has yet to have his potential realized.

Warren Sapp, the 12th overall pick in this year's draft, and Steve Emtman, the No. 1 pick by the Indianapolis Colts in 1992, both arrived at the Miami Dolphins training camp Thursday.

Though both come with different histories, each shares something in common — a desire to make an impact with their new teams.

Sapp arrived with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, who are in town to practice with their cross-state rivals for the next three days.

The former University of Miami All-American was a projected top-five pick until an NFL security report published in The New York Times on the eve of the draft said he had failed tests for cocaine and marijuana.

Sapp has admitted he failed two marijuana tests but adamantly denies the cocaine allegation. Agent Drew Rosenhaus said Sapp was contemplating a lawsuit against the NFL, claiming the league should be held responsible for Sapp's smaller-than-anticipated $4.4 million, four-year contract.

In Sapp's first public trip to Miami since the April draft, he refused to discuss any drug-related topics but did comment on draft day.

"When you leave something behind you, you never look back," Sapp said. "That's the way I've been approaching it. I just move on. That might be a blessing in disguise, playing for my home state."

Sapp said he expected his winning ways learned with the Buccaneers to rub off on his new team, which has made a tradition out of losing.

"That's B.S. — Before Sapp," he joked. "I haven't had a losing season yet, so here we go."

Emtman, who Thursday signed a five-year, incentive-laden contract with the Dolphins, comes knowing he has a lot to prove.

He spent three injury-plagued seasons with the Indianapolis Colts in which he played just 18 games. The team waved Emtman, 25, on July 15 after he refused to take a substantial pay cut — from $2.2 million to $700,000.

"I need to start my career over," Emtman said. "I haven't had a lot of success the last few years. I almost feel like a rookie again."

Dolphins coach Don Shula said the team will gradually work Emtman into the lineup.

"He looks like he's in pretty good shape," Shula said. "He's one of the hardest workers and I look forward into working him into our defense."

Thursday afternoon's practice featured a minor skirmish between Dolphins linebacker Aubrey Beavers and Bucs tight end/fullback Dave Moore.

"We got started on the right foot but unfortunately we had a flare-up," Shula said. "I hate to see that."

The teams will practice against each other twice Friday before meeting in a 96-play scrimmage Saturday afternoon at Miami's Orange Bowl.

Centra-Care secures Oviedo men's title

From Staff Reports

OVIDEO — Double your pleasure, double your fun.

Centra-Care followed up its regular season championship in the Oviedo Recreation Department Men's Class C Thursday Night Summer Slowpitch Softball League with a 14-4 whipping of UCF Business in the post-season playoffs at the Oviedo Sports Complex.

The Mickey Norton-managed team, which had gone 6-2 to claim the regular season crown, exploded for 25 hits in winning the championship contest.

Winning pitcher Kelly Klukis allowed 10 hits and walked two in lobbing the victory and helped his own cause at the plate by going three-for-three and scoring three runs.

Rightfielder Ken Crawford also had an excellent all-around game, throwing out three runners on defense and getting two singles on offense.

Other top offensive games were turned in by Doug Pegel (4-for-4, three runs scored, three RBI), former Oviedo High School star Troy Kessinger (three hits, including a double, three RBI), Bill Lang (triple, single, three RBI), former Lake Howell and Seminole Community College standout Billy Stripp (2-for-2, three runs scored), Joe Brondon (two singles) and Ronnie Gardner (double, two RBI).

The team will now take off for a month before returning to the Oviedo Sports Complex — under the sponsorship of Toucan Willie's — to compete in the Oviedo Men's Class C Wednesday Fall League starting Aug. 27.

RAINES GAUGE

Tim Raines is a Sanford native and Seminole High School graduate now playing for the Chicago White Sox. His stats are for the 1995 season in the first column, personal-best season totals in the second column and current career totals (including 1995 games) in the third column.

Raines drove in the game-winning run with a two out single in the top of the ninth inning as Thursday as the White Sox beat the Boston Red Sox 5-4. Raines finished the day 2-for-6, with one RBI, and extended his record for consecutive stolen bases with his 39th straight in the ninth inning. The White Sox can be seen on WGN tonight (7:30 p.m.) and Saturday (7 p.m.) against the Baltimore Orioles.

Varitek

Continued from 1B of the best college teams. "I'm a step behind because I have never played Double A baseball before," Varitek said. "The hitters are better, and you have to learn how to call a better game. The runners are faster, and they get a better jump when they're stealing. "Everything was difficult in the beginning. I haven't progressed as fast as I wanted to, but you have to take things one day at a time. "An unusual sequence of events resulted in Varitek losing some ground in making the jump to professional baseball. Drafted in the first round by the Minnesota Twins in 1993, Varitek chose to return to Georgia Tech for his senior season. The 14th pick overall in 1994, Varitek was unable to reach an agreement with the Mariners before the strike ended the 1994 season, so he had to sit out until the dispute was resolved. "I never questioned my decision," Varitek said. "Turning down the Twins gave me a chance to finish my education and go to the College World Series in 1994. "Sitting out last year killed me. I'm just not happy unless I'm out in the field playing. "This week has been a special treat for Varitek, being able to play in front of his family - parents Joe and Donna and brothers Joe, Jared and Justin - who turned out to show their support. "They come out here every game," Varitek said. "It's nice to come play here because I get to see my family while I'm here. "Earlier this month, Varitek added an off-field highlight to his experiences at Tinker Field when he proposed to girlfriend Karen Mullinax after a rain-out. The 23-year-old French major from Georgia accepted Varitek's proposal. "She had an idea that it was coming," Varitek said. "There were a lot of people at the game, and I still wanted to propose after the rain-out. I just gathered everybody we knew together and surprised her."

Think vertical for slim look

If losing weight and looking slimmer are your goals, train your eyes to look for vertical lines in the designs of your garments. Vertical lines can be formed by seam lines and detail features. For example look for long slenderizing seams, narrow panels and gores, long narrow sleeves, long pointed collars, V-necklines and long narrow vest openings. For the slenderizing look you can also choose striped fabrics. Vertical stripes will move the viewer's eye in an upward and downward direction creating an illusion of height.

Lines can be positioned to lead the viewer's eye to a desirable focal point, thereby detracting attention from a figure irregularity. Unbalanced lines, diagonal lines, and gracefully curved lines are often used to create the illusion of a well-proportioned figure. Keep the viewer's eye movement in mind. Select garment lines which will cause the viewer's eye to move in a vertical direction.

CONSUMER FOCUS

Another idea to keep in mind while fashion dressing is energy conservation. They may seem like distant concepts to you, but with hot summers and air conditioning, you need to think about your clothing choices. The clothes you wear have an important effect on your personal comfort as well as your pocket-book. Learning to select the proper type of apparel for the existing environmental conditions instead of changing the environment by means of energy consuming air-conditioning can save you money and keep you comfortable too.

Remember, heat exchange between the body and the environment determines body comfort. Proper clothing helps the body to keep its comfortable temperature in the summer. Make your clothes work for you to meet your body needs in the various environments in which you work and live. Extend your clothes through the seasons with efficient wardrobe management. Think about:

- Light colored clothing reflects radiant heat and helps you stay cooler.
- To dress cooler, select loose, open-styles that permit the heated air surrounding the body to escape.
- Clothes that are not overly fitted make good warm weather selections because they let air get to the skin to evaporate perspiration as it accumulates. Larger neck, arm and leg openings help heat to escape through this process, also.

• Fibers that can absorb body moisture and allow perspiration to evaporate from the skin are more comfortable to wear.

• Loosely woven fabric, such as gauze, voile, or open constructed knits, are excellent choices for warm weather clothes because they let air in and heat out.

• When the temperature soars upward, switch to lightweight, easy fitting inner wear and nightwear.

• Cotton socks and scarves are cooler than those of man-made fibers.

These tips will help you to have less stress and more time to concentrate on summer fun.

Yard of the Month

Booze, drugs may be dangerous combo

DEAR MARY: I don't know who to talk to about this, but I think I may be in trouble. When I was going through my divorce I began taking antidepressants to help me cope. I also found that a couple glasses of wine in the evening made me sleep better.

The divorce was three years ago, but I still take the antidepressant. The problem is, I am not sure I could stop taking either the pills or drinking if I wanted to. I'm drinking more now than I used to because I go out to clubs several nights a week. When I get together with my friends I want to hold my own when someone offers to buy me a drink.

FAMILY COUNSELOR

MARY BALK

I keep telling myself I can stop any time but I just never get around to it. I guess I'm not sure how to tell if I have a problem. MAYBE SO-MAYBE NOT DEAR MAYBE SO: You need to contact your physician immediately about the possible dangers of mixing alcohol and your antidepressants. It scares me. But more than that, your increasing alcohol consumption can cause you problems on several fronts.

Women, generally, cannot tolerate the same volume of alcohol as men because of our smaller body mass and relatively higher percentage of body fat. Unfortunately, studies indicate that women begin showing indications of cirrhosis of the liver by consuming only half as much alcohol as men. Also, even light drinking (as little as two drinks a week) can be dangerous to an unborn baby. It also appears that problem drinking for women more commonly begins surrounding a life crisis and is associated with low self-esteem more than is true for men.

We are also at greater risk of becoming addicted to other substances; 60 percent of all mood-altering drugs, 75 percent of antidepressants and 80 percent of amphetamines are prescribed to women.

As the public gets more educated about the special problems alcohol can cause women, the number of female AA members is rising. Let's hope this trend continues.

College grad should help line nest

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice on a continuing problem in our household.

The oldest of my two daughters graduated from college a couple of years ago and holds down a full-time job. She still lives at home, but contributes nothing toward household expenses. She owes a large amount on her credit cards, yet she recently bought a new car. I think she should pay $200 a month to help us out (I'm retired), but my wife says that our daughter owes too much to help us with our bills.

Every time I try to discuss this with my wife, she doesn't want to hear it. She thinks we are obligated to support our daughters, who are now 21 and 23. My wife and daughters stick together and are hounding me to get a job. Apparently, my 26 years of steady dedication to my Air Force career aren't enough for them.

ADVICE

I feel it's time for our daughters to help or to stand entirely on their own feet.

Abby, my credit cards are sky-high with their college expenses, and I'm at my wit's end. Is my request that our oldest daughter help unreasonable?

R.J.B., GLENDALE, ARIZ.
DEAR R.J.B.: Your request seems reasonable to me. Your wife is doing your daughter no favor by coddling her. Eventually she will have to face the real world, and it's far better that she learn to be responsible while she's still nesting at home. Stick to your guns and insist that she pay her share of expenses.

(Problems—Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 46, Los Angeles, Calif. 90046. All correspondence is confidential.)

Former Sanfordite searches for family data in book

An appreciation by Terry Deer.

Those who have had the pleasure of listening to Mary Fears, formerly of Sanford, tell a story know what our group has missed during the time she has focused her attention on researching her family history. It is delightful to be able to welcome her back to Sandcastle meetings, and as a bonus, we will soon be able to learn more about the task that has preoccupied her for so long.

Mrs. Fears' book detailing the challenging search for information about her ancestors, "Slave Ancestral Research: It's Something Else" has been published. More than simple family history or a dry recounting of the steps along the way, the book reads like a tricky, frustrating treasure hunt, where many blind alleys and confusing records are waiting to trap the adventurer.

Any genealogist can tell you how frustrating it is to wade through pages of documents, reels and reels of microfilm, endless columns of half-legible scribble, on the off-chance of spotting a significant name. In the case of African-American genealogists, that problematic search is compounded by the fact that many ancestors, held as slaves and treated as property, were listed in household accounts merely by sex and age. Names were recorded casually, if at all, and often changed. No last names were recorded by slave owners, and when the newly freed men and women took last names, they did not necessarily adopt the names of their former owners.

A boon for genealogists doing slave ancestral research, this book has something to say to people who are not genealogists, something about the innate dignity of human beings and the courage and fortitude of generations of black Americans.

There will be a "book signing" and celebration luncheon Saturday, July 29, 11 a.m., Major Moultrie's Restaurant, Indigo Lakes Golf Club, 312 Indigo Drive, Daytona Beach. The public is invited. For reservations, call the author, Mary L. Jackson Fears, at (904) 253-1516.

If you cannot attend the luncheon, copies of Ms. Fears' books can be obtained by writing to her at 722 Mercedes Ave., Daytona Beach, Fla. 32114 or call her at the above-mentioned telephone number.

IN BRIEF

Marriage Seminar sponsored

SANFORD — The Sanford Meadows Seventh-Day Adventist Church will sponsor and host a Marriage Enrichment Seminar for the community August 4 and 5.

Conference Speakers Ken and Helen Bryant will lead the sessions which will begin Friday evening at 7 p.m. and last all day Saturday and close about 8 p.m.

The seminar will be held in the church school facility at 5615 N. County Rd. 427 (one-half east of 17-92). There is a registration fee of $25 per couple for food (lunch and supper provided) and materials.

Pre-registration is required. Seating is limited. Call Ken Bryant at 644-5000 ext. 123 or 869-8106.

ADD conference set

SANFORD — All teachers and parents are invited to the First Baptist Church Activities Building, Magnolia and 5th St., on Monday, August 21 at 7 p.m.

Anna Martin, Educational Therapist, will speak on "Self Esteem - Why More?" This is the third session of a four part series.

For more information call Joan at First Baptist Church 322-8041.

Women's Day announced

SANFORD — Zion Hope M.B. Church, corner of 8th St. and Orange Ave., will host its First Annual Prayer Breakfast and Women's Day on Saturday, August 12 at 8 a.m.

The cost of the event will be a $6 donation. Rubie Pettaway of New Bethel M.E. Church in Altamonte Springs will be the guest speaker.

For further information call Phyllis at 322-8208.

Calvary hosts production

WINTER PARK — The Studio Dinner Theatre Company will present a mystery dinner theatre production titled "Whodunit" or "The Night Hubble Disappeared."

The production was written by John Venturini and produced and directed by Lynda Stein. The public is invited to attend August 11, 12, 18 or 19 at 7 p.m. each evening in Johnson Hall.

The cost is $16 for adults and $12 for children under 12. Tickets must be purchased in advance and are available at the Calvary Bookstore or in the lobby after services.

There will be no refunds or exchanges. Price reflects dinner and show.

For more information call 894-8984.

Craft bazaar scheduled

WINTER PARK — The Saints Peter and Paul Council of Catholic Women are having their Annual Craft Bazaar in October. The group are currently looking for crafters to participate in this event.

The proceeds of the craft bazaar will help support various projects sponsored within the parish community and the community at large. Registration forms and payments for the event are now being accepted.

The bazaar will be held on Saturday, October 28 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For more information call 677-4984.

Christian Women to meet

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The Altamonte-Maitland Christian Women's Club will meet at Holiday Inn Orlando North, Wymore Road, on Thursday, August 10 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

The gathering will be based on the theme "Mom and Me on Parade." Special feature, music and speaker will follow the brunch. The cost will be $9.50.

Brunch and nursery reservations and cancellations are a must by Sunday, August 6 by calling Earlena Sawyer at 880-3710 or Marcia Shilling at 841-5043.

'Pack-a-Pea Day' set

SANFORD — Reddicks Memorial FBC Church, 2155 Kings Rd. in Midway, will hold a "Pack-a-Pea Day" Sunday at 3 p.m. The speaker for the occasion will be Evangelist Ollie Mae Dames of Hopesound.

For more information call Gwen Thompson at 330-3522.

Clown assistants wanted

SANFORD — C.I.R.C.U.S. (Clowns in Righteous Consecration Unto Salvation) is seeking assistants to accompany clowns performing in downtown Sanford on Saturday afternoons.

Those desiring training in clowning are asked to call Doug Burnham at 330-9239 after 5 p.m.

Methodists schedule J A M.

SANFORD — The First United Methodist Church, 419 Park Ave., hosts a J A M (Jesus and Me) for children every Monday evening from 4:30 to 7 p.m. The evening covers Bible stories, dinner, puppet shows and drama.

For further details call the church office at 322-4371.

Men become Promise Keepers Local men will attend St. Pete conference

SUSAN WENNER

SANFORD — The men of Sanford are gearing up for an upcoming event with an attendance of only the male gender, Promise Keepers. It's not a woman bashing time or a mens liberation activity.

The gathering attracts men in a desire to encourage them in their walk with the Lord. Over 50,000 will be present August 4 and 5 at the Thunderdome in St. Petersburg. Not for a football game but to enjoy a weekend of teaching, singing and mens fellowship.

Speakers for the event include Greg Laurie, T.D. Jakes, Joseph Garlington, Juan Carlos Ortiz, John Trent, Gary Oliver, Howard Hendricks and Bill McCartney, founder of Promise Keepers.

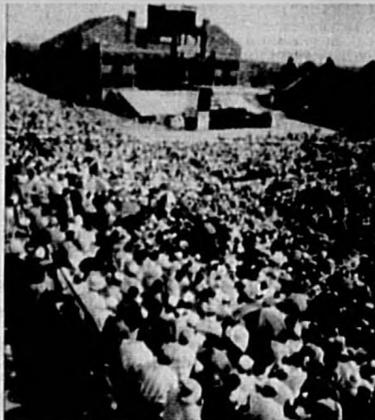

McCartney began Promise Keepers on March 20, 1990. According to Promise Keepers brochures, at the time he was the head coach for the University of Colorado football team and his friend, Dave Wardell, Ph.D. were on a three-hour car ride to a Fellowship of Christian Athletes meeting in Pueblo, when the idea of filling a stadium with Christian men first came up. Later in 1990, 72 men began to pray and fast about the concept of thousands of men coming together for the purpose of Christian discipleship.

Promise Keepers is a Christ-centered ministry dedicated to uniting men through vital relationships to become godly influences in their world.

They strive to build a network to serve local churches. "Amstadiums this year for Promise Keepers conferences.

basadors" and "point men" are appointed to assist in this endeavor.

Those interested normally begin by participating in a conference like the one planned the first weekend in August. During the conference men make seven promises. These promises cover areas such as commitment to God, pursuing vital relationships with brothers in Christ, practicing spiritual, moral and sexual purity and building a strong marital and family relationship. The men also vow to support their local congregation, promote racial unity and be a Godly influence to their world.

Florida State Manager of Promise Keepers, Joe Potts, shared his views. "Seeing stadiums filled with men is very exciting. But, what excites me most is what I continually hear about these men as they go back home from these conferences with renewed commitment and a burning desire to be the Godly men, husbands, fathers and church members that the world so desperately needs now."

According to a recent Associated Press report, Promise Keepers President Randy Phillips said, "We believe we're in the midst of a spiritual awakening." They also reported that men have filled arenas from Detroit's Silverdome to Washington's RFK Stadium for 14 hour Promise Keepers marathons.

Jordan Beckner, a local Promise Keepers member, said, "Promise Keepers facilitates the process of a man becoming what God means him to be. The conference is a mountaintop experience. It's life changing. Promise Keepers has helped me be the kind of husband, father and man of God that he wants me to be. It has showed me how to treat a woman and how to treat a child. We come together weekly on Thursdays for an open group and then on Saturday mornings. It helps us be accountable to each other." Beckner's wife, JoAnne, added, "There has been more spiritual growth and more evidence of a desire to serve God since Jordan became involved with Promise Keepers. He's striving to be the kind of husband and father he should be. It has really enhanced our relationship."

Mike Henley, another Promise Keepers member, said, "Most people only see the conferences that are offered like the one coming up in St. Petersburg. The biggest thing is really the small groups of men that meet. I meet with eight to 12 men each week. We've helped some through addictions and other issues. The small groups keep us accountable. It's had a positive effect on my life."

As of October 1994, 280,000 men have already attended conferences ten or more different sites. The group agreed that their expectation, based on the changed lives of men, the excitement we see around the nation and the leading of the Lord, is that 1995 will witness even greater growth.

Grace holds groundbreaking ceremony

By MARY ROWELL
Herald Columnist

SANFORD — Grace Christian Church of Lake Mary did something Sunday they've looked forward to doing for more than eight years. They broke ground at new church property.

As a church, Grace began in April 1987, meeting at the Altamonte Springs Holiday Inn. As they grew, they moved to the Seminole Family YMCA in Lake Mary.

Grace Christian Church moved to their current location at Wilson Elementary School in August of 1990. Grace has enjoyed the Wilson location but, nice as it is, it's not their own.

The congregation at Grace worked hard to raise the money and buy church bonds to finance a place of their own. The church bought the land next to Wilson Elementary in January of 1994.

The congregation braved 98 degree heat to stand on the spot where the sanctuary will soon be. They prayed, sang and then looked on with joy as the first shovel of dirt was excavated by Grace's pastor Steve Graham, his wife, Childrens Minister Carrie Graham and their children Laura and Steven.

The elders of the church then took turns toasting up a spade of dirt. If the weather holds, the roadway for the big equipment will be dug out this week.

Then the retention pond will be dug. And finally, the first building will be raised. Grace hopes one day to be able to build its own Christian school near the church.

Presbyterians enjoy camping

Pastor Steve Graham and family use first shovel.

Take control of cholesterol level

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 45-year-old female, post hysterectomy, on Estrace supplements. Since 1991 my cholesterol level has been on a steady rise from 192 to 278. I walk briskly at least three miles a day, eat low-fat meals, weight train four mornings a week, take Metamucil, and can't lower my cholesterol. My physician is intent on cholesterol-lowering medication and I'm resistant - so far. I don't want to suffer the side effects. Your comments, please.

DEAR READER: I'm afraid that I'm going to side with your physician. You've done everything you can to lower your cholesterol level, to no avail. At your relatively young age, a cholesterol of 278 milligrams per deciliter is clearly too high and may put you at risk for heart attack, despite your use of Estrace, a hormone supplement that appears, in studies, to protect against heart disease and osteoporosis.

Experts recommend a cholesterol level of 200-220 mg/dL for a person your age. Although the books point out that prescription cholesterol-lowering drugs have many side effects, such as liver inflammation, in reality few people experience complications. Therefore, I believe that the risks of not taking such drugs (Mcwarz and the like) outweigh the hazards of taking them, in your case.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 34-year-old female having problems with abdominal pain and distention during ovulation and premenstrual times. In the past few months I've had one yeast infection, a urinary tract infection and a strep vaginal infection. I'm also experiencing headaches, appetite changes and weight gain. The severity of my irritable bowel syndrome has increased. My gynecologist has prescribed Aldactone and Anaprox, yet I'm afraid these medications are going to hide a more severe underlying problem. Do you feel further evaluation of my problem is necessary?

DEAR READER: If you don't improve dramatically with Aldactone (a diuretic) and Anaprox (an anti-inflammatory drug), I certainly encourage you to have further evaluation by another gynecologist or in a GYN clinic at a teaching hospital. From your description, I'd say that a serious hormonal imbalance may be present - sort of the grandmammy of premenstrual tension.

MEDICINE

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
My favorite Boia bridge tip from last year was by Qi Zhou (pronounced chee zoh; Qi is his surname). Qi's Anglicized name is George Chow; he hails from Shanghai but lives in Flushing, Queens, just east of Manhattan. He is a tournament director who, inter alia, officiated at last year's world championships in Albuquerque.

One of his example deals shows a desperate defense by Pietro Forquet, the Italian superstar. Against five hearts doubled, a club lead would have been fatal. However, Forquet selected a diamond. After winning with the ace, Benito Garozzo, East, cashed the club ace. When West played a discouraging four, Garozzo returned his second diamond. The contract looks guaranteed now. Do you see any chance for the defense?

At trick four, South cashed the heart king. He was planning to continue with a heart to dummy's ace. When the trumps break 2-2, declarer claims, dummy's diamond winners providing copious discards for South's club losers. However, under the heart king, Forquet dropped his queen. This changed the complexion for South. Treating it as an honest card, declarer overtook his king with dummy's ace and called for the diamond king. Expecting East to ruff, South planned to overruff, return to dummy with a heart to the 10, drawing East's last trump in the process, and enjoy the rest of the diamonds. A fine plan - except that it was West who ruffed, not East: one down. Qi Zhou's tip: If your honor card is of no use, play it earlier than necessary. Phillip Alder's new book, "Get Smarter at Bridge," is available,

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osoi
YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 29, 1995

Substantial opportunities are in the offing for you in the year ahead. Generally speaking, things look good, but do not make the mistake of taking your luck for granted.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Manage your resources prudently today. If you yield to extravagance, your surplus might suddenly disappear. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you take personal risks today, that's your choice, but don't put others in a dangerous position without their full consent.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Jumping to conclusions today will severely lessen your probabilities for success. To be on the safe side, be patient and wait until you have the whole picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Resist trying to impress persons less fortunate than yourself with your material possessions today. It could backfire and you'd end up looking foolish.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might take a position that opposes the majority today simply to gratify your ego. Try not to let your pride cost you the respect of others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Think realistically today and meet your problems head-on. Avoid rationalizing your problems by thinking that everything will take care of itself without you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sometimes business with friends can yield fantastic deals. Unfortunately, this might not be the case today, so shop carefully and check all your sources.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do not agree to do something today that opposes your best interests simply to please other persons.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not boast about your accomplishments today until they are registered in the record book. Bragging too soon might embarrass you later.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your luck might desert you today if you gamble on something you don't control. Limit your speculation to involvements where your hand is on the wheel.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Promises you make to family members today will be taken seriously, so follow through on your commitments. You mustn't raise false hopes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Avoid giving advice or instructions to anyone about something you know very little. The recipient of your counseling may hold you accountable.
