Guerrillas See No Rush

To Release 19 Diplomats

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI)- Leftist guerrillas occupying the Dominican Embassy have released three hostages but said there is "no rush" to liberate the 19 diplomats they are still holding.

Three Colombian men, guests at the diplomatic reception where the hostages were seized 29 days ago, were released Tuesday by the April 19 Movement guerrillas but their leader, "Commandante Uno," said, "We still have the important people."

He was referring to the 19 captive diplomats - U. S. Ambassador Diago Asencio, Papal Nuncio Angelo Acerbi, the ambassadors of Israel, Egypt, Switzerland and six Latin American nations, two charge d'affaires and six consuls.

The government, in six sessions of ransom talks, has flatly refused to free any of the jailed leftists on constitutional and legal grounds.

Some Reds Joining Rebels?

NEW DELHI, India UPI) - Some Soviet soldiers with Moslem backgrounds have defected to Islamic rebel forces in Afghanistan, a Westerner who traveled secretly into the country said today.

The Westerner, an expert on Afghan affairs, said he met three of the Soviet defectors at a rebel camp in the northeastern Afghan province of Badakhshan in late February. He said the central Asian soldiers were told they were being sent to fight American, Chinese and Pakistani enemies of the Moslems in Afghanistan. "We got to Afghanistan and asked, where is the enemy?" he quoted one of the rebels as saying. "We are fighting our Moslem brothers. We were lied to."

Linowitz Can't Sway Israel

President Carter's Middle East envoy Sol Linowitz has failed to win concessions from Israel that could induce Egypt to prolong the Palestinian autonomy negotiations beyond the target date of May 26. Linowitz's failure to gain Israeli concessions on the definition of the Jewish state's security and promise to

The visions of Jeno Paulucci, Sanford and Duluth, Minn. industrialist and entrepreneur, for revitalization of the downtown Sanford and how he can help these visions become reality will be discussed by the Sanford City Commission at a

10 a.m. workshop meeting Thursday. Mayor Lee P. Moore called the workshop session of the city commission to consider setting priorities for the projects and facilities the city may need and for which Paulucci and his staff can provide assistance. Paulucci has arranged an early April meeting for city officials to meet with state officials in Tallahassee over state and federal funding possibilities.

The industrialist nearly a month ago offered to help the city obtain federal funding from the U.S. Economic Development Administration. He said earlier this month he has set up a meeting in Washington with EDA. Among the projects Paulucci has suggested are: a multistoried conference center on a square block of land at First Street from Palmetto to Commercial; a master plan for downtown development; converting the old Seminole Memorial Hospital building into a modern nursing home after the new Hospital Corporation of America hospital is built; construction of a senior citizen center for meetings, gatherings and activities and expansion of senior citizen recreation in the downtown area; and contruction of shopping malls geared to small exclusive shops and senior citizen craft centers in the downtown area.

It is now perfectly apparent that the Carter administration hasn't a clue as to how to free the American hostages in Tehran. The limited economic sanctions long since imposed have been ineffectual. Conciliation and compromise have produced nothing. Recently, President Carter publicly canceled even the threat of military force.

The current policy, stripped of State Department mumbo jumbo, comes down to this: The administration is willing to wait until the snarled domestic politics of Iran unravel sufficiently to permit release of the hostages, however long that takes. The apparent victory of hardline revolutionaries in Iran's parlimentary elections renders even this hope doubtful.

But what if the occupation of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran has more to do with international politics than with the twists and turns of the Iranian revolution?

The present moment has now become crucial not for the Reagan nomination - that contest is over - but for the Reagan presidency. The great temptation now will be or the Reagan team to rest on its oars and enjoy its present victory. Contrary to much opinion, Reagan now tands an excellent chance of being naugurated in January 1981. This is not going to be 1964 again, Johnson versus Goldwater. Carter is no Lyndon Johnson. Reagan is no

Reagan, in contrast, has won all his primaries except Massachusetts (where he lost to both George Bush and John Anderson), turning in one of the most impressive primary performances in the history of modern politics.

Nor is Carter anything like LBJ, who was perceived a a master politician and a party unifier in 1964. He had inherited the political dividends of the Kennedy assassination, and though a Southerner, gained massive liberal support in the North. Another important fact: when Johnson ran against Goldwater in 1964, inflation raged at .5 percent. So this is not 1964, and the contest will be very different. What should Reagan do now? He should consider two big moves, one of them obviously correct, one of them of more speculative nature. First of all, Reagan should name a shadow foreign policy team composed of serious and well known figures, possessing long ex-perience in dealing with foreign affairs in general and with the Soviet Union in par-Reagan may have a vulnerability on the foreign affairs side, and this would correct it. Between 1966 and 1968, Richard Nixon traveled the world and was seen with the major figures on the international scene. He made foreign policy his strong suit.

Reagan could accomplish that in a different way. He should name an informal, bipartisan council of, perhaps, 12. It could include Henry Kissinger, Dean Rusk, Henry Jackson, Alexander Haig and other unillusioned citizens. Such a foreign policy backdrop, formed immediately, would constitute in the European sense an "alternative regime." It would greatly strengthen Reagan as a candidate in November.

The second Reagan move should be ex tensively discussed among his strategists. Now that he has the nomination wrapped up, Reagan has a certain luxury in considering vice presidential choices. He will not need anyone's bloc of votes at the Detroit con-

The ticket could then begin campaigning several weeks before the ordinary starting time. Again, the country would get used to the idea of a kind of alternative government.

Inmates Release Hostages, Surrender After 13 Hours

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) - Inmates in the violent crime section of the Essex County Jail shot a guard and took five other guards hostage before surrendering early today to end a 13-hour revolt.

Four of the guards were released unharmed but exhausted by the ordeal. They were placed on stretchers and carried from the building by other guards shortly after 6 a.m. They were to be taken to the hospital for physical examinations. A fifth guard who was beaten was freed at the start of

Woman Indicted For Murder

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) - A Westchester County grand jury has indicted a schoolmistress for murder in the slaying of "Scarsdale Diet" author Dr. Herman Tarnower.

Westchester District Attorney Carl Vergari said the grand jury "had all the options available to them" during the two days they considered evidence in the case and decided Tuesday to indict Jean Harris, 57, on murder charges - instead of manslaughter.

He said the panel had been given the choice of indicting Mrs. Harris on the lesser charge but opted for the murder count. Manslaughter would have meant there was insufficient evidence to prove Mrs. Harris intended to kill Tarnower.

"They chose to indict on second-degree murder, which shows intent, and criminal possession of a weapon, was in stable condition with a bullet lodged between two ribs.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) - Without Carlton Fisk, you can forget all about the Boston Red Sox this year. Naturally, Manager Don Zimmer doesn't come right out and say that in so many words. That's easy enough to understand. No manager likes to feel his club's chances are all tied up in only one of his players. But the more you listen to Zimmer, the more you become

"It all depends on whether or not Fisk is able to throw again," Zimmer says. "With him in there catching, we've got a chance. Without him " here, Zimmer shrugs. Fisk's problem goes back to August of 1978 when he broke two ribs going after a foul ball in a game with the Blue Jays. He should've rested but he couldn't because the Red Sox were battling the Yankees for first place. Playing with broken ribs, Fisk had to make an adjustment in his throws. No Solid Leads In Hunt

For Young Woman's Killer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) - No solid leads have turned up in a search for a man with a red beard and tinted, wire-rimmed glasses in the murder of 18year-old Carol Ann Barrett.

The young woman, on vacation with friends from hometown of Zanesville, Ohio, was kidnapped at Daytona Beach Monday, shot to death and dumped in remote area north of Jacksonville, Fla., 100 miles

"I wish I had something. No investigation has produced anything solid," said Jacksonville homicide Lt. Jim Subar, who is heading the investigation because the body was found in his department's jurisdiction.

Suber said Tuesday even the hundreds of fingerprints found in the Treasure Island Motel room where she was abducted probably won't help until the suspect is found.

Sub Launches Missile

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) - A Trident I missile was launched today from the submarine USS Henry L. Stimson while the vessel was cruising submerged 50 miles off Cape Canaveral and the Navy called the test "successful."

The missile with a dummy warhead was fired down the Air Force's Eastern Test Range at 7:19 a.m. EST. The 15-year-old Stimson is the third of a dozen Poseidon class missile launching submarines being converted to fire the longer-range Trident. The Navy spent $13.1 million on conversion of the vessel that originally cost $90.5 million. The Navy said there were no Soviet spy ships in the area of today's launching.

In her own words Martha Morrison is a "nice natured person" and sees herself as "easy going" and "even tempered."

But Mrs. Morrison works in the commercial loan department of the Atlantic Bank in Sanford and part of her duties include collecting past-due accounts. When she gets on the telephone with a delinquent account, a Jeckle and Hyde transformation occurs and easy going, mild mannered Mrs. Morrison disappears. She does not get mean and nasty exactly but she does collect the bank's money in a no-nonsense fashion. "That's the part I like best," she said.

When she is away from the bank, her 4-year-old son, Jason, takes up a lot of her time but she does enjoy playing the piano and organ and is presently the organist for a church in Longwood.

Amateur radio is another activity Mrs. Morrison enjoys along with her father and two uncles who still live in her native Atlanta. "It's one way I keep in touch with my family in Georgia," she said. Mrs. Morrison lives in DeBary but has been in the Sanford area for more than seven years, having graduated from the University of Central Florida with a degree in English.

She gives credit to her mother for teaching her how to cook. "She stood me on a stool and I made a pound cake," she recalled. Since that first pound cake, when she was 8 years old, Mrs. Morrison has added numerous recipes to her collection but most of them Southern in nature and many have been 15 or 20 minutes. given her by other members of the family. A cookbook compiled by her grandmother is filled with family favorites that usually have the name of the family member who originated the dish in the

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - When the subject of electric vehicles comes up, many people think in terms of "experimental," but a federal official promoting plug-in cars and vans points out thousands of electric vehicles are used nationwide every day.

Fork-lift trucks, golf carts, mining equipment, trolleys and trains - among other vehicles - often are powered by elec-

Now the federal government is working with private companies toward a goal of having electric cars, trucks and vans comprise one-third of the nation's commercial vehicle pool. "We don't like to characterize them as experiments," said Anthony Ewing. "We're not trying to test the vehicles; we're trying to expand the markets."

Ewing, who visited New Orleans recently for an electric vehicle users' meeting, heads the demonstration and incentives branch of the Department of Energy electric and hybrid NOT ABATED IN SPECIFIED Seminole County Courthouse, FECTIVE DATE. vehicle program. (Hybrid vehicles will be equipped to run on TIME LIMITS; PROVIDING FOR Room 203, Sanford, Florida. either electricity or conventional gasoline power, but none are SUCH NUISANCES BY THE Clerk to the Board of in use yet in the federal program.)

Walt Disney World, American Telephone & Telegraph, the Long Island Lighting Co., and General Telephone & Electronics are among participants in the federal project operating electric vehicles every day. One possibly surprising point Ewing made about electric vehicles was that they do not save energy. "The energy used in the electric vehicle is equivalent to the energy used in an internal combustion engine that gets six miles per gallon," he said. "But the electric vehicle is not dependent on petroleum. (It) can operate on whatever fuel source is used to power the generating plant. The country can shift its fuel sources as most appropriate and as the national political situation requires."

One reason for the low MPG equivalent is the weight of the batteries, the key component in the electric vehicle. They also are the weakest link - the part that provides the biggest stumbling block to mass use of electric vehicles - because they have to be replaced regularly. Announcements are expected within a few weeks on batteries with a longer range between recharges, and life of up to 100.000 miles, but even then the problem will remain.

cars, trucks and vans to replace gasoline-powered vehicles over a four-year period. The federal government pays 20 to 80 percent of the cost. The first year is devoted to planning and acquisition, with the next three spent on vehicle use and cost and maintenance studies.

Long Island Lighting, for instance, uses 21 vehicles now and has 19 more on order for meter reading, employee van pools, security patrol and interoffice mail delivery. GT&E operations in Long Beach, Calif., Tampa, Fla., and require regular recharging and battery replacement and still are in the development stage. The limitations also define certain specific uses for which electrics are well-suited: short, around-town runs of limited range with overnight recharges available (such as meterling and deliveries), or there-and-back runs (like car and an-pools) with a parking stop in between.

Mom All Steamed At Ruined Mattress

DEAR ABBY: Here's the situation: Last weekend my 12-year-old son, Danny, asked if he could invite his 13-yearold friend, Steve, to sleep over. Steve had just moved into the neighborhood and Danny was the only friend he had. I said yes.

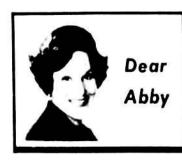

When I went to make up the beds the next morning I found girl. The mother is 21, the the mattress was ruined.

I told Danny about it, and he said that Steve never told him live in the city and are wellthat he had a bed-wetting problem before he slept over, but the next morning when he parents signed themselves, discovered he had had an "accident," he begged Danny not to tell me or his mother gang name. We were really about it.

What can I do, Abby? Should I tell Steve's mother (whom I haven't met) and hope she offers to buy me a new mattress?

Ahhhh spring! Surely no other season is more anxiously onion and garlic in cooking fat in large frying-pan. Pour off all awaited or more enthusiastically greeted. As nature but 2 tablespoons drippings. Drain pineapple, reserving juice. reawakens after the long, dreary winter, families, too, come to Add pineapple and peppers to meat. Combine flour, salt, chili life with a flurry of activities. Spirits soar as everyone heads powder and pepper with 2 tablespoons reserved pineapple outdoors to cycle, garden, golf, play tennis or simply enjoy the juice: stir into meat mixture and cook slowly 10 to 12 minutes.

What more appropriate way to herald the arrival of spring than with a distinctive menu centered around that traditional springtime favorite - lamb. Although now available year round, this fine meat has renewed appeal during this season.

For a tribute to spring, plan a meal that's special - from a leg of lamb entree to a cool, creamy pineapple finale. There is a variety of lamb roasts, bone-in and boneless, from which to choose. No matter which is selected, the cook will appreciate its preparation ease. All are simply roasted in the oven, unattended, until done to the diners' liking - rare for the connoisseur, well done for the traditionalist or medium to Cut into eight 6-inch squares; place 1/4 cup filling in center of match the preference of many people today. For a fresh-asspringtime vegetable accompaniment, serve Potato Baskets with the lamb. Sliced potatoes form the unique crispy cups that hold creamed carrots.

ROAST LEG OF LAMB (5 to 9-pound leg of lamb)

Place roast, fat side up, on rack in open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb is centered in thickest part of leg, being careful not to let it rest in fat or on bone. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) to desired degree of doneness. Remove from oven when meat thermometer registers 135 degrees F. for rare; 155 degrees F. for medium; 165 degrees F. for well done. Allow 20 to 25 minutes per pound for rare; 25 to 30 minutes per pound for medium; 30 to 35 minutes per pound for well done. Allow roast to "set" in a warm place 15 to 20 minutes after removal from oven. Since roasts continue to cook during this time, they usually rise approximately 5 percent F. in internal temperature, reaching 140 degrees F. for rare; 160 degrees F. for medium; 170 degrees F. for well done.

Note: Frozen lamb can be defrosted in the refrigerator or cooked frozen. If leg is cooked frozen, allow one-third to 1/2 more time (at 300 degrees F. to 325 degrees F.) than for defrosted leg.

For a colorful, festive holiday dinner, decorate Easter eggs and a ham as whimsically as you like. Serve with Broccoli Mimosa and Herbed Carrots and Celery for a delightful springtime menu.

Easter Is... Pretty As A Picture

Of all holidays, none is more associated with being "pretty as a picture" than Easter. According to tradition, this is a day for showing off new clothes, most notably "a bonnet with all the frills upon it." Food, too, takes on a festive appearance. Ham, a meat traditionally served for the celebration of Easter, is given a novel guise in this menu. For easy entertaining which looks spectacular, we selected a canned ham that requires no cooking, and used a simple mayonnaisegelatin glaze. An assortment of colorful vegetable flowers decorates the meat. After the festivities, any leftover ham should be stored in an appropriate-sized Tupperware plastic container. The seal will keep the meat fresh and moist, ready for sandwich-making or for use in casseroles.

Vegetables look most attractive when served in pairs that contrast colorfully. Broccoli Mimosa shares the spotlight with an herbed carrot and celery combo. The two side dishes contribute well-balanced green and yellow vegetables to the dinner

Even if you don't plan an egg hunt, any Easter dinner would be incomplete without gaily decorated hard-cooked eggs. Eggs were originally associated with the Easter holidays because many years ago hens did not lay eggs during the winter when daylight hours were short. After months of having to rely on preserved eggs, spring brought the first batch of "new-freshlaid" eggs. Thus, the egg has remained a symbol of the feeling of rebirth that accompanies spring.

BOUQUET OF EASTER HAM

canned ham (5 pounds) 3 envelopes unflavored gelatin divided

4 cups cold water, divided 2 cups mayonnaise

Scallions, cucumber, carrots, grapefruit, radishes, olives Remove ham from can and place on wire rack; set rack on a shallow tray. Ham should be very cold. To prepare White Glaze: In medium saucepan, mix 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin with 1 cup cold water. Let stand 1 minute. Add 1 cup more water; stir over low heat until gelatin is completely dissolved, about 8 minutes. Add mayonnaise, stir until mixture is smooth. Set saucepan in ice water: stir constantly until well chilled and slightly syrupy. Ladle glaze evenly over top and sides of ham. Refrigerate about 30 minutes or until glaze is set. Scrape glaze from tray; reheat and set saucepan in ice water again to chill. Spoon glaze over ham; refrigerate. Repeat process until ham is completely covered. To make flower bouquet as pictured, use stips of scallions for stems, and thinly pared cucumber skin for leaves. Flower petals are made from thinly sliced carrots, pared skin of grapefruit, and thinly sliced radishes. Other flowers are made from halves of sliced black olives, and the pared skin of radishes cut in flower shapes. (All segments of the design must be cut as thin as possible.) Before arranging flowers, prepare Clear Glaze. To prepare Clear Glaze: In medium saucepan, mix 1 envelope unflavored galatin with 1/2 cup cold water. Let stand 1 minute. Add 11/2 cups more water; stir over low heat until gelatin is completely dissolved, about 8 minutes. Set saucepan in ice water; stir constantly until chilled and slightly syrupy. Meanwhile arrange flowers and stems in desired pattern on top of ham. Once design is placed, take each piece and dip in Clear Glaze. Replace pieces on ham in arranged design. Chill until set. Carefully spoon Clear Glaze over ham; refrigerate. Repeat until ham is evenly coated. Yield: Approximately 12 servings.

Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl. Wednesday, March 26, 1980-5C S Ways To Make World's Greatest' Chocolate Cake

If you took a poll on favorite desserts, more people would probably pick chocolate cake than any other. But some would vote for layer cake, some for cupcakes, loaf cake or a different version - so long as it was rich, moist and "chocolatey." Now you can please everyone - and make any occasion special - with one basic recipe that, simply by varying your baking pans and times, becomes five great cakes. The secret? Start with a base of versatile unsweetened cocoa; it's more convenient to work with and gives a deeper chocolate taste.

Cakes will be as melt-in-the-mouth light as they are luscious. And if you do a lot of baking, remember that 6 ounces of cocoa 38-inch layer pans goes as far as 8 of baking chocolate - that's more economical.

PIEL'S LIGHT

Beer

5-WAY CHOCOLATE CAKE 1/2 cup butter or margarine 1/2 cup shortening 21/4 cups sugar

2 eggs 1 teaspoon vanilla two-thirds cup cocoa

21/2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour

11/2 teaspoons baking soda 1/2 teaspoon baking powder

1 teaspoon salt 2 cups buttermilk or sour milk

Cream butter, shortening and sugar until light and fluffy Add eggs and vanilla; beat well. Combine cocoa, flour, baking soda, baking powder and salt. Add to creamed mixture alternately with buttermilk, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Pour into liberally greased and floured pans. Bake at 350 degrees F. as follows:

- 30 to 35 minutes
- 1 13x9x21 inch pan 55 to 65 minutes
- 1 tube or Bundt pan
- 55 to 65 minutes 2 9x5x3-inch loaf pans
- 50 to 60 minutes
- 312 dozen cupcakes 20 to 25 minutes
- Bake at 375 degrees F.

To Sour Milk: Use 2 tablespoons vinegar plus milk to equal 2 cups.

> CHOCOLATE BUTTER CREAM FROSTING

(About 2 cups) ¹₂ cup cocoa

2 and two-thirds cups confectioners' sugar 6 tablespoons butter or margarine

4-5 tablespoons milk or water

1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine cocoa and confectioners' sugar. Cream butter with 12 cup of cocoa mixture in a small bowl. Add remaining mixture alternately with milk, beating to spreading consistency. Blend in vanilla.

Dieters Delight Indulge In Low Calorie Cocoa Treats

If you're counting calories, you may have thought that luscious desserts were off-limits. Here's some delicious news: you can enjoy a variety of chocolate treats that only taste attening, made using unsweetened cocoa as a base.

Below are three tempting examples — legal "splurges" that will help boost almost any dieter's spirits. Each is relatively low-cal and low-fat since, unlike baking chocolate, cocoa has over three-quarters of the original cocoa butter content removed Each is also super-chocolately - cocoa butter adds no flavor, only fat - and easy to create, allowing just a few minutes preparation time.

10C-Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl. Wednesday, March 26, 1980 Rediscover Bountiful Breakfast

What's breakfast to you?

The ALE STREET

Just that quick cup of coffee and glass of fruit juice you grab en route to work, or the instant coffee in a plastic cup and puny piece of bread that's offered as a business breakfast? What many Americans have come to call "breakfast" is hardly the sort of fare to support Mrs. Beeton's contention in her nineteenth-century Book of Household Management that "the moral and physical welfare of mankind depends largely on its breakfasts."

Breakfast should be a full morning meal to be savored, even by the diet-conscious, because a good breakfast will provide important nutrition and energy for the day ahead. Fresh fruit, eggs, potatoes, milk, sausage, porridge, fresh bread, even caviar, have their place in the breakfast cuisines of the South, New England, Texas, England and Scandinavia. So go ahead, rediscover the bountiful breakfast and sample these menus from Town & Country magazine:

Dieting Takes A Few Tugs Of Self Control

By GAYNOR MADDOX Special to the Herald

One sound nutrition principle is that you need not torture yourself in adjusting to a healthier diet. A simple but workable rule is "no seconds." One time around the dinner table or the fast-food counter is adequate. Keeping our calorie intake balanced is another important principle. One example, I lunched awhile back with Dr. Frederick J. Stare, chairman of the Harvard Nutrition Department. He ordered - to both my and the waiter's consternation - a cup of tes and a slice of unbuttered toast.

He smiled, apologizing for his scant repast. "You see," he explained, "I love Italian food and tonight am invited to an Italian friend's home for a gigantic meal. I try to alance my caloric intake for the entire day.

"There is no suffering involved, just a few tugs on my self-control. Disting need not be torture."

Similar advice for parents of overweight children comes from Dr. William Sebrell, chairman of the Columbia University School of Haman Nutrition. "Obesity in children can be controlled through careful balancing of the child's dist," he says. "You don't saatch away all the foods he or she seems devoted to. Rather, if he or she ests three slices of bread at one meal, begin by eliminating one alice, Later, two. "If he or she sleakes down the milk and neglects other foods, gradually diminish the amount of milk given. Milk is, of course, an essential food and all of us need some. But not to the exclusion of other essential feeds." We dised recently is Berboley, Calif., with Dr. Reth Hesenemann, formerly chief of the University of California Nutrition Department. Want a switch from chicken for weekday dinners? Think pork. Today's pork is leaner than before. In addition, oork is high in nutrition and comparatively economical. Jazz up pork in a way that heightens its delicate flavor while keeping it moist. First brown the chops for this pork chop-potato bake. Then saute the onions and green peppers briefly before stirring in the tomato sauce. The sauce will help keep the chops from drving out.

Then combine the chops and sauce with sliced potatoes in a casserole for final baking. Serve with a salad and French

4 medium potatoes, sliced and peeled (about 6 cups)

Sprinkle both sides of pork chops with 1 teaspoon salt. In large skillet, heat oil until hot. Add chops. Brown on both Pour remaining sauce over chops. Cover and bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 50 minutes Uncover and continue baking until chops are cooked and potatoes are tender, about 25 minutes longer.

But because one board member was absent, board Chairman Allan F. Keeth said the parents could bring their appeal again when the full board could review it.

On Wednesday, Board Member William J. Kroll said he investigated the matter and found that officials at both the students' former school and the receiving school gave the parents the wrong information.

"They have a legitimate reason for asking that their son and daughter be allowed to stay at Lake Brantley for the rest of the school year," Kroll said. He had voted against the earlier appeal. Keeth was the only board member to vote against the appeal both times. -DIANE PETRYK
