From books to boards

SANFORD - Next year's new homes may be built using this year's telephone books. Seminole County and other central Florida counties have begun their annual telep book recycling drive. Locally, the books will be collected at Southeast Recycling in Longwood and taken to U.S. Gypsum in Jacksonville. There, the entire book will be ground into a mash that will be used to make the paper backing for plasterboard.

From now until Jan. 31, you may toes your old telephone books into your recycling bin for curbaide collection. The program is available to both city and unincorporated residents. Apartment residents and businesses are asked to take their old telephone books to Southeast Recycling, 275 W. Marvin Ave. Businesses with at least 100 directories may call 330-9539 for information.

This year marks the fourth since the Semino County recycling office and United Telephone began a pilot program in 1989. County recycling coordinator Sherry Newkirk said 100,000 lbs. of telephone books were collected the first year. That amount increased dramatically by 1991 when the cities joined the program. Nearly 543,000 lbs. of books were collected in the county last year, she said.

Newkirk said a lot of improvements have been made in the program since it first began. In 1969, the books had to be stacked in the same direction to allow slicing machines to remove the backing and covers, which "contaminated" the paper mash. Newkirk said telephone companies have changed the glue and ink they use and now, the entire book can be used.

SANFORD — While the Florida Cabinet Tues-ay approved the state department of education's SANFORD — While the Florida Cabinet Tues-day approved the state department of education's accountability plan that will give schools greater freedom to meet state-mandated standards, the Seminole County school district has had plans underway to do just that for over a year. A district-wide meeting of the School Advisory Committees (SACs)last month attracted more than 500 parents teachers and administrators. Florida's Cabinet voted to give more de-cisionmaking power over schools to local dis-tricts, teachers and parents, though some speakers objected to burdening districts and they want more freedom. "We're going to set the standards and they're going to implement them in their own way," said former state Senate President Phil Lewis, D-West Palm Beach. Barbara Spragg, who heads the Seminole County SAC, said she is excited by having everything firmly in place so that SACs at each school can move forward with their plans.

Spragg said that little was changed from the draft of the proposed Blueprint so that the plans made are "right on target."

Mayor recaps the progress in Lake Mary

By MOR PPBIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - Lake Mary is in a good and growing position, outgoing Mayor Randy Morris told businessmen this morning businessmen this morning. He spoke favorably during a State of the City address to the Lake Mary/Heathrow Chamber of Commerce.

Morris covered a number of subjects before speaking of the stalled construction on Lake Mary Boulevard. "This is probably the second most controversial matter that has come up in the past year." he said. He listed the proposed closure of Broadmoor Drive, which went down to defeat, as the one that drew the most problems.

"The big conflict was over burying the power lines along the boulevard, which the city paid for." he said. "Although higher costs were discussed, we ended up spending only $1.1 million to bury them. That project, which the city did because of sesthetics and safety, is now 90 percent complete." Morris compared the safety of the underground lines with South Florida, where thousands of people were without power when standing lines were knocked down during the recent hurricane.

He continued, "As for the actual construction, it's a county project, not a city project. Nobody is to blame for the work stoppage. It was Mahoney, the prime contractor, who couldn't pay his subcomtractors, who caused the problem.

"The matter is now in the hands of the insurance company." he said, "and they will be turning it over to the county to be re-bid. It could take another 60 days to get that accomplished, but my estimate is that we won't see trucks out there until January." Bee Progress, Page 5A

County assures merchants that boulevard work will resume soon

LAKE MARY - Representatives of Seminole County assured Lake Mary Boulevard merchants disgruntled over road construction yesterday that work on the road would resume soon.

The county is meeting with an agent for the bonding company that insured the job this week. Merchants had asked for the meeting to question the county about its role after the construction company hired for the project ceased work over financial problems. Merchants have said business along the torn-up boulevard is stagnant because of construction.

After each side explained their positions on the construction work stoppage, they agreed to cooperate by sharing information.

The County was represented by Commissioner Bob Sturm, who's district includes Lake Mary, County Manager Ron Rabun, Engineer Jim Pullen and Project

A dozen merchants led by Ken MacDonald and John Emanuel gave the merchants points of view on the problems caused by the construction stand-still.

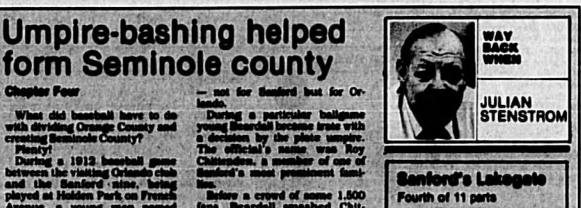

"I can feel your frustration and concern." Rabun said. "But this isn't a failure on the part of government entities. We have an unfortunate situation where a business failed. (Mahoney Construction Co.), and we now have to deal with the bonding company who insured the project.

"David Daly, of the bond company, is currently in town." Rabun said. "He's been dealing with the county attorney on fashioning an agreement that will put the bond into effect and set construction underway again." Rabun said he hoped the paperwork could be completed in time for the County Commission to consider any proposals at their next meeting. One of the merchants asked, "Exactly how long before construction can actually get started again?"

The Department of Energy has dealt a crushing blow to America's civilian industry by killing plans to develop a secondgeneration atomic reactor.

Although the new reactor was being built primarily to produce trittum for the nuclear warhends, it also could have been used for peaceful energy purposes.

Unlike existing reactors, which may be used only to produce a single product such as tritium, the newest designs are multipurpose. They can produce tritium and also simultaneous burn plutonium and generate electricity. An example of this state-of-the art design is the modular high-temperature, gas-cooled reactor developed by General Atomics in La Jolla. Calif.

Energy Secretary James Watkins said the new reactor no longer was necessary because the Cold War is over and existing reserves of tritium are sufficient for national security needs. He rejected a proposal by the Senate Armed Services Committee that the reactor be used to burn plutonium from the Soviet weapons stockpile. The plutonium could have been used as a fuel to generate electricity.

After three years of research and $1.2 billion in government outlays, Watkins has arrived at his decision to acrap the new reactor program on very narrow grounds. In reality, the new reactor was important not only for national security reasons but also to move the nation closer to energy selfsufficiency.

As recently as last year, the Bush administration's national energy strategy specified the goal of "developing standardized designs for 'next generation' power plants." It is hard to see how the Department of Energy's decision to spike the reactor program advances this important goal.

America's 112 nuclear energy plants provide 20 percent of the nation's electricity. The Department of Energy hopes to spur electrical production from nuclear reactors by 20 percent above the level otherwise projected for the year 2010.

This goal cannot be realized until a next-generation reactor design is standardized and utilities start to order new nuclear power plants. No plants were ordered during the previous decade. Eight licensed reactors actually shut down and 60 plants that had been ordered or were under construction were canceled.

If this were not enough to set the nuclear power industry back, utility companies were required by regulators to write of $10 billion invested in aborted plants.

WASHINGTON - During the upcoming presidential debates, the candidates will grill each other on the most vexing problem facing the nation: Every morning when Congress starts work, the first thing it must do is borrow $1 billion to spend on programs they have already authorized. ## Remember pledge to flag

October marks the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of the American continent. It also marks the 100th anniversary of the penning of the "The Piedge of Allegiance" to the American flag. In the centuries that followed Columbus native peoples and domains were conquered. colonial empires zoomed, commercial enterprise flourished.

The North American colonies were smothered by the tactics and repression of European "imperalism." They had no rights. They had no voice in their government. They had no freedom. They existed as pawns of a distant empire. Tired of being mistreated subjects, tired of dictatorial practices, tired of tyrannical attitudes, the oppressed colonists reacted. A new spirit was born!...And then came "Revolution!"

Freedom became the goal!...freedom to worship. and speak, and work, without restraint, according to each one's own interest and initiative. The colonists had created a new nation, which promised to become "one nation, under God, with liberty and justice for all." The American people have discovered what is most important in life - a democratic heritage of freedoms to guide them in their personal, political and economic lives.

However, the job is not yet complete. There is too much crime, too much poverty, too much drugs, too much economic uncertainty. Some of our cities have become quagmires of evil. Morals have deteriorated. Some would take "God" out of the "Pledge, out of the schools, out of the everyday conduct of work and activity. They confuse the constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion with freedom "from" religion.

We need a "New Revolution!" ... A revolution of mind and spirit and attitude that will reemphasize the "spiritual foundations" which created the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, the Bill of Rights. On this 100th anniversary as we recite the words, "I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands," may we accent the significance of the following words "One nation, Under God, Indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for All."

Strengthening the spiritual foundations will help win the war against crime and drugs, and other discordant elements, which too often stain the flag of freedom and justice.

BOSTON - This is what passes for a happy ending after a sequence of family disasters. A 12-year-old boy has gotten what he wants.

Gregory Kingsley, sturdy and unshakable in the face of courtroom lawyers in Florida, has a new family, a new name and a new life. The boy who went from mother to father to pillar to post in the foster care system is now permanently home as Shawn Russ.

More to the point, the child who will be forever known as the son who "divorced" his parents, has grabbed a chance to reach his own goal: "I'm doing this for me so I can be happy

Happiness is not guaranteed, of course, and happy endings do not always stay that way. It doesn't take a seer to wonder how he will wrestle over his lifetime with his new-old identity and new-old families.

But in its extended form, this was a story ripe enough for a Dickensian novel. There was enough family pathos to make the term "dysfunctional family" sound like an antiseptic label in the dictionary of psychobabble. And everything has changed.

Now George Russ — a man neglected by his own father, a lawyer with eight children who met Gregory at a home for abused and neglected boys - has a new adopted son.

Now Rachel Kingsley - a high school dropout who gave birth at 19 to a premature Gregory. a divorced mother, poor, perhaps abused, certainly neglectful — has been legally severed from her son.

And now Jeremiah and Zachariah Kingsley who also did time in foster care and live with the mother whom the court ruled neglectful no longer have a brother named Gregory.

The importance of the case is not that it granted one boy a so-called "divorce." It's that for once, the sound of a child's voice was heard above the din of adult concerns. For once, when the family and the state both miserably failed him, a child was allowed to sue and speak for his own best interests.

The case, even more than the judgment, cast light on some hard dilemmas about families that fall apart and about a chid welfare stystem with so many cracks that it lets the kids keep on falling.

It raised questions about when to support biological families and when to give up on them. About how much time a troubled parent may need to get his or her life together again. and how little time a child has. About the damage done when the state prematurely severs the ties between parent and child and the damage done when it takes too long.

These are not new issues. When Rachel Kingsley portrayed herself as a mother whose chief crime was poverty, it struck a chord. She is not the first parent to express bewildered anger that the state would pay money for foster care when she could have used it for parent care.

When a stream of witnesses described her as a woman who drank and smoked marijuana. slept with men for money and left the kids for days on end, it struck a nerve. They are not the first neighbors, friends, or family members who want to rescue children.

When the state workers described the rock and hard place of their foster care mandate, it had a dismal familiarity. On the one hand, they are supposed to give priorities to blological families, allow parents time to restore their ties. On the other hand they are told that children should not languish in foster families.

But this time, the deciding voice beionged to the one person who was an expert on his life. It was Gregory who cut through the debate about neglect.

Whatever his mother's troubles or intentions, for 18 months of foster care, he testified, she never phoned or wrote: "I thought she forgot about me. I thought she didn't care about me." Whatever the pros and cons about biological families and adoption. he said with remarkably emotional clarity: "I just want a place to be."

I don't know how much of a legal precedent he has set. There are some 420,000 children in foster care. How many of those children can wend their way to or through the legal system?

How many adults want to adopt them? In some ways Gregory's story is a foster child's favorite fantasy. But it may have a greater impact on our national consciousness than our law.

We live now in a time of renewed emphasia on the importance of the traditional family, the biological family, parental authority. Children's rights are often dismissed as the dangerous and disruptive tools of people who want to destroy families.

reality economic and political reality," says economist Tony Riley with the firm Gary Schilling and Co. "If Clinton's elected, his plan has a better chance of being implemented."

Some analysts believe that Clinton's plan is also more realistic. "If you look at the Clinton plan. it's really detailed," said David Wyss. chief economist with DRI/McGraw-Hill. "There are a few cases where we feel he exaggerated, but the numbers are us realistic as you can expect from any campaign."

All the candidates are proposing spending cuts, but not in "entitlement" programs. where the bulk of the federal money is spent. These programs, such as Medicare, provide direct benefits to individuals, and it would be political suicide to propose cutting them.

None of the candidates has ascribed a reasonable dollar value to the cost of their programs and proposals, so top-level gov-ernment economists from both ends of the political spectrum calculated it for us. President Bush, for example, has proposed three specific programs that would significantly raise the deficit: $160 billion in tax cuts. $100 billion in health-care programs and $10 billion in job training.

Nevertheless. Bush claims that his spending cuts alone would lower the deficit by $130 billion. Bush also claims that if he can institute his entire program, he will shrink the deficit by $300 billion. But according to the government economists we spoke to, Bush's proposals would raise the deficit by at least $140 billion next year.

And when these economists ascribed a dollar value to Clinton's proposals, they found that the deficit would be raised by the following amounts: $140 billion for health care, $134 billion for infrastructure, $63 billion for education and job training and $23 billion for welfare reform.

To pay for his proposals, Clinton pledges spending cuts lowering the deficit by $108 billion, and a tax hike on the wealthy shaving an additional $35 billion. The net effect of these proposals raises the deficit an estimated $217 billion a year.

Perot's plan calls for cuts that take effect in January 1994, and promises to eliminate the deficit in the five years that follow. It calls for $33 billion in cuts in discretionary programs like the space station, higher income taxes on the wealthy, the curtailment of Medicare and Medicaid expenditures and increased gas, alcohol and tobacco taxes.

The sound of a child's voice was heard above the din of adult concerna.

Believe it or not!

As the division question grew in importance almost daily folks began to discuss a name for the new county. Some were keen on calling it "Harney County" after a U.S. Army general who once commanded Fort Mellon during the wars with the Seminoles. Those opposed to that name pointed out that the general already had been honored when Lake Harney was named in his memory.

The question of dividing the county intensified nearly every day. Finally. Representative Forrest Lake went to Tallahassee with a few other citizens from North Orange County insisting that Orange County be divided. Most of the local people had settled on the name - "Seminole County."

Lake did what he thought the people wanted him to do. He pushed for the legislation which most folks later said he wrote - and got the House and the Senate to pass it. Lake,

The council resolution passed Tuesday arts up a commission to look into reports of massacres, "ethnic cleaning" and other crimes against civilians or military personnel in all former Yugoslav republics.

Former Prime Minister Tadeusz Masowiecki of Poland, the U.N. Human Rights Commission's special envoy, is to travel to Bosnia-Herzegovina, Croatia and other areas beginning Monday and report back to the commission.

Lawrence Engleburger, the acting Secretary of State, said Tuesday night that he hoped the resolution would be "a warning to those in Yugoslavis who have been committing acts, that they had better watch out from now on because there will be people watching."

Long arm of the law lengthens

MIAMI -- The long arm of the law may be getting a little longer when it comes to going after drug lords

Two recent Florida cases illustrate the point. In one, British bank accounts belonging to slain Colombian drug lord Jose Gonzalo Rodriguez Gacha were ordered confinented to natisfy a judgment out of Jacksonville.

In another, the Customs Bervice in Miami announced that for the first time, the government has seized property in the United States based solely on alleged violations of foreign drug laws.

"It's an extension of two trends that have been accelerating in the last five to 10 years," Paul Rothstein, a Georgetown University expert in constitutional law, said Tuesday. "One is extending the reach of American law to international situations - the other is the increasing use of forfeiture law."

Suden provokes indignation

WASHINGTON - At a time when an estimated 7.2 million of its citizens face severe food shortages, the government of Sudan is provoking indignation among some officials by exporting beef to Iraq and grains to other African countries.

The State Department on Tuesday urged Sudanese authorities to reassess their decision to export a reported 20,000 tons of beef to Iraq, one of the few countries on friendly terms with the Muslim-led government in Khartoum.

'We think the government of Sudan should reconsider its transaction in light of the needs of its own people," department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

Other officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Sudan was exporting grains to neighboring countries even as the United States and other donor nations altempted to prevent mass starvation in the country through large-scale shipments of corn and sorghum.

Strike ends soon after it begins

PHILADELPHIA - A walkout by 15,000 city employees ended just 16 hours after it began when the unions agreed to most of the cost-cutting measures Mayor Ed Rendell had already imposed.

The wallout Tuesday represented the biggest challenge yet to the new mayor's plan to bring Philadelphia back from the brink of financial ruin.

Leaders of the two unions - one representing 12,000 blue-coliar workers, the other representing 3,000 white-coliar employees - told members to return to work today. Ratification votes were not immediately scheduled.

Similarly, eight in 10 likely voters in an ABC-Washington Post poll said the country was "seriously off on the wrong track." and the same percentage said they were dissatisfied or angry with the way the federal government was working.

Perot was the initial beneficiary of the restless mood. He depicted himself as Mr. Fix-it. and for many weeks voters believed he was their white knight - the maverick from way outside the Beltway, the only one with sense enough to

Advertising experts give high marks to Perot's commercial

NEW YORK - Advertising executives watching Ross Perot's 30-minute TV commercial gave him high marks for projecting a folksy image while showing that he understands what alls the economy.

But some faulted some of the visual techniques he used in the Tuesday night broadcast, and others noted that once again he did not talk about what he'd do to solve the nation's economic problema.

The paid commercial, broadcast by CBS in most prime-time markets, worked because the candidate let the lacts ( EAK IOF NIM DY PICEenting dozena of charts that detailed economic woes, the adexecutives said. For example, Perot used colored bar graphs to illustrate soaring U.S. health care costs and the growth of federal agencics.

Sitting at a deak and using a pointer, Perot discussed issues such as the deficit, unemployment and gasoline taxes in a homespun manner, relying on peppery phrases like "getting our heads kicked in" to describe America's role in international trade.

"Even though I didn't understand all the charts myself, 1 understood he was trying to share information," said Easdon. known for his enigmatic Nissan Infiniti eds that in 1989 showed peaceful nature scenes but not the car itself.

"He waan't trying to entertain. He was just using the facts as a weapon. He set up the fear. He set up the emotion. The next thing is for him to come back

Garth said he watched the commercial at home on a 5-foot-wide television and he still couldn't make out the details in many of Perot's charts.

Easdon said the ad promised to change political advertising by persuading others to try Perot's direct approach. But Garth said the Bush and Clinton campaigns would probably not rework their ada because they do not see Perot as a major factor in the election.

BERKELEY. Calif. - After 30 years of waving a cheerful helio to commuters every weekday morning, Joseph W. Charles has waved goodbye.

"Thirty years and 82 years old, that's enough." said the man who has been a rush-hour fixture since Oct. 6, 1962, the day he first started waving to motorists from his front yard.

TV cameraa rolled as the Waving Man, as Charles is known, made his final appearance shortly after 7:30 a.m. Tuesday. In honor of the occasion he kept waving until 10 a.m., 45 minutes longer than usual. "I enjoyed it so. I forgot about the time," said the retired navai supply employee. "This morning was one of the most enjoyable and most and days of my life. I won't forget it.

People familiar with Charles' daily send-off aren't likely to forget either.

"I used to go out of my way just to wave at him," Municipal Judge Julie Conger said. "When you saw him it made your whole day."

However, Perot did not offer solutions to the problems he underscored. Instead, he ended the ad with a plug for his hot-selling book "United We Stand," which describes some of his proposals.

Perot said he would discuss his solutions in upcoming presentations, including another 30-minute commercial Friday night.

The independent candidate paid CBS $380,000 to air Tuesday night's commercial before the first game of the National League baseball playoffs.

David Garth. a New York political consultant who handled independent candidate John Anderson's 1980 presidential campaign, said the commercial had appeal because it was straightforward and unadorned. "The fact that it had no production values made it a great production. But whether it could hold interest for half an hour, I can testify that the answer is no," Garth said.

Garth said after 20 minutes he felt as if he had spent a week white type on a sea of black to illuminate phrases describing the nation's troubles. For example, "School Daze" dramatizes how America's education problems persist despite increases in spending.

Jerry Torchia, an associate creative director at The Martin Agency in Richmond, Va., said such phrases were "cute" and seemed to contradict the sobering tone of Perot's overall THEM ede

"I don't think what he said was cute." Torchia said. Otherwise, the ad worked well in its attempt to show that Perot understands the nation's problems, he said.

"He's the Madonna of politics. He's a master of self-promotion with his grass-roots approach and all that kind of shuck-andjive stuff." Torchia said.

remembered Relocation camp hardships

By Anno LEVIN Associated Press Writer

POSTON, Ariz. - Jimmy Takashima had no idea what awaited him a half-century ago when, after several months living in converted horse stables at a California racetrack, he got off the train in the middle of the Arizona desert.

What he and other Japanese-Americans who were put into an internment camp during World War II found was a harsh and desolate place of sweitering tar-paper barracks set behind barbed wire.

"We were brought into Poston about the middle of September. At that time it was very hot, windy and dusty," said Takashima, 78, of San Diego.

"When you went to the bathroom in the middle of the night, you could hear the coyotes howling," said Rose Yamauchi, 55, of San Diego, who was 4 when her family was sent to Poston.

On Tuesday, Takashima and Yamauchi were among 1,400 people from around the country who gathered to dedicate a monument at the site of the Poston War Relocation Center, the largest of the camps used to intern people of Japanese ancestry during the war.

The three-story concrete obelisk cost $300,000, raised through donations. It was built with volunteer labor.

The commemoration came more than 50 years after President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed an order paving the way for the evacuation of some 120,000 Japanese-Americans from the West Coast on the grounds they were a threat to national security.

"Fifty years ago the failed leadership of our country condemned guiltiess people into con-centration campa." George Ikeda, 70, of Em-maus, Pa., said at Tuesday's dedication. The presidential order "legalized racism and made the accident of birth a crime."

The Poston Memorial Monument Committee had originally planned to build a Japanese-style pagods on the site but changed the design for fear of anti-Japanese sentiment, said George S. Okl. co-chairman of the committee.

instead, the bottom third of the monument resembles a Japanese stone lantern, which is topped by a 20-foot shaft that towers over the scrubland ringed on all sides by rugged mountains.

Poston and Manzanar in eastern California were the first of 10 such relocation camps. One other camp was built in Arizona; the rest were in Arkanase, Utah, Wyoming, Idaho and California.

From 1942 to 1945 Poston was home to nearly 20,000 Japanese immigrants and their U.S.-born children. They lived in blocks of wooden barracks, with communal bathrooms and laundryrooms for every 14 barracks.

Very little remains of the three camps - Poston I, II and III - that sprawled over 71,000 scres of the Colorado River Indian Reservation in western Arizona, about 60 miles south of the gambling resort of Laughlin, Nev.

Takashima was one of the lucky ones. Sensing what was coming, he leased his San Diego celery farm to a tenant who returned it to Takashima after the war. But many of those who were uprooted never got their property back.

Under a 1968 law, each person who spent time in the camps is due $20,000. Two weeks ago, President Bush signed legislation authorizing an additional $400 million to complete the reparations

In 1963, a government commission concluded that not a single documented act of espionage or sabotage was committed by a Japanese or Japanese-American on the West Cosst.

Many of the Nisci, or second-generation Japanese, who entered the camps as children remember those years as an adventure.

"It was like camping without a motor home," Yamauchi said.

LONGWOOD - Like mentor, like protege. After Lake Howell's unartistic 15-12, 2-15, 15-11 win over Lyman in a Seminole Athletic Conference girls' volleyball match Tuesday night, Lake Howell coach Jo Luciano and Lyman coach Christy Tibbitts, who played for Luciano, stood at courtside shaking their heads in dismayed amazement. Luciano was concerned that her Silver Hawks had won the match on attrition, scoring more points on Lyman errors than on their own attacks. Tibbitts was bothered by the fact that the Silver Hawks' game plan worked. 'lt wasn't very pretty, was it?" asked Luciano rhetorically. "We play good defense, but we can't seem to get any sustained offense going. I was pleased to see the girls bounce back from a three-game loss to Seminole last week and come back from an 8-1 deficit in the first game." Tibbitts, who is now 0-3 on the volleyball court against her ex-high school coach, could do little more than shrug her shoulders after seeing her Greyhounds (64, 2-3 in the SAC) squander an 8-1 lead in the first game, win the second game in a walkover, then fall into a 6-1 hole in the third See Lake Howell, Page 3B

SANFORD - It was a great

It was a terrible performance. Depending upon which aide of the court you were sitting on that would have been your impression of Semi-nole High School's 15-6, 15-5 victo-ry over Lake Brantley in a Seminole Athletic Conference girl's volleyball match Tuesday night at Bill Flem-ing Memorial Gymnasium. ing Memorial Gymnasium.

From a coach's standpoint, those kind of games are nice," said Seminole head coach Beth Corso. "All you have to do is make sure everyone plays. I haven't had one like this in about three years."

This match was a "no contest" from the beginning as the Tribe jumped out to big leads at the start of both games and the Patriots never led in either game. In fact, Lake Brantley never got closer than 7.2

"I liked the way we took control of the game early and kept it." said Corso. "It's scary when you get in one of those good grooves. You're always worried that your team will lose it. I can only remember one lapse tonight and we talked about it during a timeout and got our minds back on the game."

Seminole improved to 4-5 overall and 2-3 in the SAC. The second half of the conference schedule starts Thursday, with the Tribe hosting the Lyman Greyhounds at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium. p.m. with the varsity set for a 7 p.m. start.

The Patriots open the second half with of SAC play by hosting Oviedo Thursday.

Strong serving by senior Megan

Hay (three points) and junior Catherine Foye (four points) gave Seminole a 7-0 lead in the first Julie Heimers gave the Lake Brantley faithful hope when she gave her team two service points, but the Tribe came right back to score the next five points to take a 12-2 advantage. Dawn Burks and Christy Oliver had two service points each during the run. Seminole then had its slight mental lapse as the Patriots used good serving by Rachelle Poppe and mistakes by the Tribe to score the next four points to cut the lead to 12-6. But after Corso took the timeout. Seminole scored the final three points to close out the game.

The Tribe kept the momentum going in the second game as Oliver nailed three straight aces, and four overall, as they took a 5-0 lead. Seminole eventually built another 12-2 advantage, before Shii Campbell served three straight aces for Lake Brantley to interrupt the Tribe run momentarily. Sophomore Kelly Richards then served out the match for Seminole. Burks and Hay led the way for the Tribe. Burks had two service points, six kills and two other winners. while Hay had three service points, one ace, six kills and one winner.

Also contributing to Seminole's win were Oliver (nine service points, five aces, one winner, 13 assists). Foye (five serves, one ace, two kills). Yuleyma Otero (five serves, one ace. one assist), Richards (four serves) and Jill Jasewic (two serves, one winner).

San Francisco group to make 'competitive' offer for Giants

By CATALINA ONTIE Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO - Local investors trying to SAN FRANCISCO -- Local investors trying to keep the San Francisco Giants in the Bay Area will present a "very competitive" offer for the National League team by the end of the week. Mayor Frank Jordan said Tuesday. Jordan told reporters at a City Hall briefing that progress had been made at a four-hour meeting on Monday attended by most of the key local investors or their lawyers. "I can state progress was excellent. I believe the

"I can state progress was excellent. I believe the offer is coming together very nicely," said Jordan, who also attended the meeting. "I don't see any problems at all at this point." The mayor said he believed the offer would be presented to National League president Bill White no later than Friday. The bid then would have to be approved by Major League owners.

Giants owner Bob Lurie announced in August that he had agreed to sell the team to Florida investors who intended to move the club to St. Petersburg's Suncoast Dome. They reportedly are offering $115 million.

Since then, investors headed by NBA Charlotte Hornets owner George Shinn have been working on a deal to keep the Glants in San Francisco. Shinn attended Monday's meeting but returned to North Carolina immediately afterward.

The meeting was held at the office of real estate developer Walter Shorenstein, one of the investors. Peter Macgowan. Safeway Inc.'s chief executive officer, and investment banker Charles Schwab also attended.

The dollar amount of the local bid has been decided but could change by the time the offer is presented, and Jordan, who declined to reveal the figure.

People will be surprised by the amount of the bid, the mayor said.

"It will be a very competitive one," he said. "I think people will be very pleased." Local reports have predicted that a San Francisco Bay area bid would range from 860 million to 895 million. Investors in San Francisco have said the bid need not equal the Florida offer have and the bit need not equal the Fiorida offer because the Giants are worth less here than they would be in St. Petersburg. A small delegation of investors will present the bid to White wherever he is on Friday, Jordan said. The mayor hoped discussions would immediately begin on how baseball would deal with the offer and the offer of function with the offer and the one from Florida

Any sale must be approved by 10 of the 14 NL owners and eight of the 14 AL owners. Jordan predicted that the owners, faced with the printing of achedules and tickets for the 1993 season, would make a decision quickly.

Prep athletic participation on rise in Florida, across nation

This is the second second

According to FHSAA, participation in football increased from 29,093 during the 1990-91 school year to 29,416 during 1991-92.

On the national level, soccer continues to increase, for both boys and girls. There were 238.082 boys playing soccer, up from 132,000 in 1979. Girls playing the sport rose from 23,475 to 135,302 during that same period. In Florids, participation in boys' soccer actually decreased from 1990-91 to 1991-92, dropping from 9,372 two years ago to 9,165 last year. There was a notable increase in girls' soccer participation, rising from 4,751 to 5,424 over the

For boys, soccer has moved ahead of wrestling to become the fifth most popular sport, behind football, basketball (518,127), baseball (433,684)

The top five most popular sports for boys in Florids during the 1991-92 academic year were football, basicetball (12.38)), baseball (11.704), track and field (10,100) and soccer. Wrestling

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - Football declined and soccer continued to rise in popularity with high school athletes during the past school year, according to a new national survey that found participation overall at its highest level in 13

The National Federation of State High School exociations has compiled the survey every year ince 1971, based on reports from its member reponentions in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

The latest survey, covering 1991-92, found 5,370,054 sports participants, up 71,963 from the previous year. The total is the highest since the 5,563,012 reported for the 1979-70 school year, the federation said in its report this week. In the October bulletin of the Florida High School Activities Association, the number of school activities association.

athletic participants during the 1991-92 academ-ic year was 150,487, up from 143,410 the year before.

Football remains by far the most popular sport, although the number of participants has been declining nationally for several years. There were 912.845 participants during the last school year.

"Brunch is a killer."

So begins a mystery-novel. "Dying for Chocolate," by Diane Mott Davidson (Bantam Books, 1992), a copy of which I received in the mail. The book begins with brunch, served by the caterer-heroine, Goldy Bear. who whips up a huge feast of fruit salad, cheese strata and macadamia-nut coffeecake. In the very first chapter. Unfortunately, her boyfriend dies shortly after partaking.

Anyway, I agree: Brunch IS a killer, although no one (knock on wood) has died after eating my cheese strata.

I find brunch difficult because much of the typical brunch fare - eggs Benedict, for example, or pancakes - requires me to work as a short-order cook, when I would much rather be sipping hot coffee with my guests.

Leslie Newman, author of "Feasts" (HarperCollins, 1990), rejects brunch altogether in favor of a meal she calls "dunch," being that it is somewhere between lunch and dinner, "closer to lunch, but not so close you will have to make a serious dinner later." Dunch, she says "is never eggs Benedict."

I applaud Newman's efforts. But every once in a while, I somehow get cornered into making brunch. And the gathering that seemed like such a good idea when planned midweek suddenly, in the clear light of Sunday morning, becomes a chore.

What follows is a small collection of do-ahead recipes, which will liberate you from the kitchen and enable you to enjoy a bit of your own party. The first two work especially well, like the hapless Goldy Bear's strata, with fruit salad (or spinach salad) and a quickbread. The pancake goes nicely with a citrus saled and yogurt.

As for Goldy and her boyfriend's mysterious death --well, it would be a grave literary transgression to give away the ending. All I can say is that the caterer didn't do it.

Fresh, out-of-hand fruit juices and cider, vinegars, asuces, butters, jellics, pics, dumplings, strudels, cakes, cookies and candy all can be ade from apples. If you've been in northern rginia, Pennsylvania, New York or Ohio in the fall of the year, you no doubt have tasted some or all of the above

The high water content of a fresh apple makes it a good choice for microwaving. Prepare these e desserts as the fresh crop is appearing on our produce countern.

This recipe for a quick dessert for one is much like the old fashioned baked apple.

APPLE DE CRT.

(One Serving)

1 apple 2 Thep. sugar

1 Thep. flour

14 tap. cinnamon

1 Thep. chopped nuts, if desired 1 tep. butter

Slice apple into 2-cup glass caserole or dish. Combine sugar, flour, cinnamon and nuts; mix well. Sprinkle over apples. Dot with butter. Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered, 2-21/s minutes or until apples are tender, stirring once.

The appleasuce at our house is always homemade and for the last 10 years I've made it in the microwave oven. I no longer can bushels of ics, just make enough for a meal with perhaps a little left over.

Use some of your extra "sauce" for a cake that is a good snack and a coffee cake too. APPLEBAUCE CAKE

1/2 cup cooking oil A cup packed brown sugar

% cup sweetened appleaauce

146 cups unsifted all-purpose flour

Ve tep. aode

14 tap. baking powder

14 tsp. nutmeg

1/2 cup raisins

4 cup chopped nuts

Teppt .

15 cup packed brown sugar

3 Thep, butter or margarine

I Thep. milk

1/2 cup flaked coconut

Blend together oil and brown sugar. Beat in eggs, once at a time. Blend in appleasuce. Add flour, sods, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg: mix well. Stir in raisins and nuts.

Grease bottom only of 10x6-inch or 8-inch square glass baking dish. Pour in cake batter; spread evenly. Microwave on 50 percent power, uncovered, 8 minutes. Then microwave (100 percent) 21/3-3 minutes or until no longer doughy. rotate dish once. Set aside.

Combine brown sugar, butter and milk for topping in 2-cup glass measure. Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered, 114-2 minutes or until bubbly, stirring once. Stir in coconut. Spoon onto cake and spread carefully to cover. Cool.

It's wondrous what a hug can do

DEAR ABBY: I have had this lovely poem for many years. So many, in fact, I have forgotten where it came from. The author is unknown (apparently); however, I thought your readers

EVER I thought your readers would enjoy it. ECONSOL, MICH IN MONTON, MICH IN DEAR LOVES TO BUCH IN Indeed a lovely poeth, but first a caveat: The hugger should be absolutely certain that the hugabsolutely certain that the huggee will welcome a hug from the hugger.

Please respect the "touch-me-nots" who are fussy about who hugs them. But for huggers like you, who love to hug - here's the poem: HUGS

It's wondrous what a hug can do. A hug can cheer you when you're blue.

It must be why God gave us arms.

Hugs are great for fathers and mothers. Sweet for sisters, swell for

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from the mother whose 2-year-old child wandered away at an outdor festival. You suggested that should this occur in a place where there is a public address system, an announce-ment shold be made that a child is missing. An announcement could also be made that an unidentified child has been found. Those would seem to be the sensible things to do, but listen to this:

We lost our 2-year-old daughter at a Sears store, so we requested that they announce it over the louspeaker. They refused, saying that someone with evil intentions might hear it and quickly snatch the child and take her out of the store.

I believe they were right. Fortunately, two gentlemen from the TV department volunteered to help us look for her. One found our daughter in the toy department cuddling two stuffed animals bigger than she

Patients can outgrow hypertension drugs

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had the blood pressure for years different drugs for control. Beveral months ago I began having severe blachouts or mini-strokes uld find mynelf on the floor with a new bruise from the fall. After neveral attacks I went to the hospital and was ul-timately taken off all medication. Since then my blood pressure is to the h normal and I feel fine. Can you explain what happened to me? DEAR READER: From your brief description. I'll bet that you had syncope (fainting) from ei-ther low blood pressure (caused by the medicine) or heart irregularities (again, from the blood preasure medicine). Hypertension in many patients is not permanent. Some people "outgrow" it, as they age. This is a primary reason why hypertensives have to get checked on a regular schedule. As the blood pressure falls, medicine has to be correspondingly reduced -- or stopped. I have had several patients in my practice who, for years, required strong drugs for high blood pressure. Now that they're in their 70s and 80s, they need leas -- or maybe, none. In a similar vein, some pa-tients are so over-medicated that they're fainting all over the place: Their loyalty to their doctors' instructions is exemplary, but unhealthful.

After years of treatment, your hypertension probably moderated (for unknown reasons) and the medicine was literally too strong for you, causing periodic syncope. Possibly, the low blood pressure may have predisposed you to a cardiac irregularity or periodic slow pulse, when not enough steam got to the third floor, and you fainted. Now that you're off medicine, be sure to have your doctor check your blood pressure periodically to confirm that it stays in the normal range.

Patients on anti-hypertensive

By Phillip Alder I remember losing a major match in England many years ago because my partner and I bid to a seven-club contract that went down only because the trumps broke 4-0 offside. In the other room, our opponents had stopped in three no-trump. If we had bid six clubs, we would have won the match.

when luck is out to luncheon. But on other days, when luck appears to be satisfying its appetite for food, it is actually dummy's diamond eight in his still in residence - if only you can find the right line of play.

On today's deal. South won the apade-jack lead in the dummy and immediately played a club. When East discarded a either 3-3-3-4 or 3-2-4-4 distribution, the slam would still succeed. After winning trick two with the club ace, South played a heart to dummy's ace and ruffed a heart in hand. The appearance of two honors from West suggested a doubleton, but perhaps he was false-carding. Now South cashed his two remaining spade tricks and the three top diamonds, ending in the dummy. When East dis carded on the third diamond. South knew it was safe to ruff hand.

Now everyone was down to three cards. South was left with K-10-9 of clubs and West held Q-J-5 of clubs. South exited with low heart, South groaned inwardly. But he didn't give up and concede one down, as many would. Declarer naw that if West held the club 10. West won with the jack but had to lead from his Q-5 into South's K-9 lenace. West's two "certain" trump tricks had been telescoped into one.
