Licensing department absorbed

SANFORD — The City of Sanford's Licensing Department operation is to be reassigned to other departments, rather than continue as a separate entity. The move came about following the official termination of former licensing official Gretchen Mason on Dec. 2.

City Manager Bill Simmons told the city commission last night that the department's operations will be reassigned. The cashiering will be handled by the utility department, and enforcement and administration will be under the jurisdiction of the building official.

The data processing for the licensing department had previously been reassigned.

Regarding Mason's termination, Simmons said it was for a variety of reasons mostly for accounting irregularities. "One other reason," he said, "was for insubordination, when she refused to cooperate when we launched an internal investigation."

SANFORD — The Midway Elementary School will hold a general Parent Teacher meeting tonight, beginning at 6:30 p.m. Following the PTA meeting, a special holiday show will be held by the children. Everyone is invited.

Business center boom?

New office facility eyed

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Within days of buying Heathrow International Business Center, Pizzuti Development Inc. was in the Seminole County Current Planning Department with a site plan for a new office center for a 700-person software and data processing facility.

Officials with Cincinnati Bell Information Systems Inc. confirmed Monday they are in negotiations with Pizzuti for a 16-acre site near the southern end of the HBC between International Parkway and Interstate 4.

Pizzuti Development Co. Inc. engineers Conklin Porter and Holmes submitted a proposal to the county for a three-story, 130,000-square-foot office building and adjacent 66,000-square-foot data processing center and parking. County staff will critique the proposal Dec. 21.

The development application was received by the county Dec. 7, two weeks after HBC was bought by Pizzuti Equities Inc., a partnership which includes Pizzuti Development Inc.

"We didn't really intend it to happen so quickly," said Clifford Aiken, executive vice president of

Recoton plans expansion

By NICK PFEIPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Officials for Recoton Corporation in Lake Mary may have their fingers crossed for luck Wednesday and Thursday when plans for a major expansion go before the city planning board Wednesday, and the city commission Thursday.

Approval will mean a large scale expansion of the facility. The lack of approval at this time could produce problems in grant money for road paving.

Wednesday's P&Z officials will hear a request for site plan approval for a warehouse/distribution center.

Thursday, a Recoton request is scheduled for the regular commission meeting. An ordinance will be heard on second reading, rezoning five acres west of Lake Emma Road from agriculture, A-1, to heavy commercial, office, light industry, M-1A, submitted by Recoton.

When the request was presented on first reading during the Dec. 1 commission meeting, it was approved with little discussion and no objections by a unanimous vote of the commission.

In order to be considered, the program requires applications be filed by December 31 of this year.

Under the proposal, cities, with a population of under 50,000 people, are eligible to apply for a financial grant. If it is approved, the federal government pays 75 percent of the

Inmate admissions hit seven-year low

1984-85 14,193	1989-90 44,701

1987-88 28,644	1992-93 30,530
1988-89 30,870	1993-94 26,473

TALLAHASSEE — The number of criminals entering Florida penitentiaries has hit a seven-year low.

There were 26,473 inmates entering prison last year, a 40 percent decline compared with 1989-90 when admissions peaked at 44,701, a new report by the Department of Corrections shows.

It is the lowest figure since 1986-87 when 23,102 felons were sent to prison, according to the department's annual report, which will be released this month.

Major reasons for the steep drop are the steady downturn in drug offenders going to prison and changes in sentencing guidelines that allow many nonviolent offenders to avoid state prison altogether.

Gov. Lawton Chiles said last week the new sentencing guidelines allowed the state to stop granting early release this month.

Some law enforcement officials said the sentencing guidelines aren't helping them do their jobs and distort the true picture of crime in Florida, which has the nation's highest crime rate.

The decline in prison admissions are a direct result of the sentencing guidelines being weakened, said Manatee County Sheriff Charlie Wells, the founder of an effort for a constitutional amendment to ensure prisoners serve a minimum of 85 percent of their sentences.

The guidelines were first enacted in 1983 to provide uniform sentences and ease prison overcrowding.

State lawmakers revamped the guidelines last year in try to ensure violent and repeat offenders serve most of their sentences. The changes also allowed nonviolent offenders such as burglars and car thieves to avoid state prison in many cases, authorities said.

Crimes such as bribery, forgery, perjury, burglary (unoccupied), aggravated assault, carrying a concealed firearm and battery on a law enforcement officer, have all been deemed by the Legislature to be undeserving of a state prison sentence, said a report by the Dade County grand jury earlier this year.

Supporters such as the governor say the revamped guidelines help the state keep killers, rapists and repeat offenders locked up longer.

Last week, Chiles announced that criminals headed to prison starting this month will serve an average of 75 percent of their sentences, almost double the current average time.

While the number of prison admissions has declined in the past four years, the state's prison population has risen steadily to 56,500 because the number of violent offenders being retained for longer has jumped. The state will add another 20,000 prison beds by mid-1997.

"Hopefully at some time we're going to say, 'Stop, slow down,'" the governor said.

Since 1990, when sentencing guidelines were changed to divert drug offenders from prison to community treatment programs, drug admissions have dropped each year.

In 1989-90, drug offenders accounted for more than 36 percent of all new admissions. Last year, that figure declined to 27.7 percent, the lowest since 1987-88. The department said it is aiming to reduce drug admissions to less than 25 percent.

The number of felons sentenced under the guidelines showed the emphasis on sending more violent offenders to prison, the corrections department's report shows.

The percentage of inmates sent to prison on murder charges, sexual offenses and other violent offenses increased from 1992-93 to 1993-94. Those convicted on theft, forgery, fraud and drug charges declined while the percentage of burglars remained the same.

"The Legislature, acting under the guise of 'getting tough on crime,' has in reality gotten 'tough' on only some crimes," the grand jury report said.

Makes you feel good

While this holiday season probably doesn't have any more of a "giving spirit" than in previous years, it is remarkable to see how many projects have been undertaken to help insure a good holiday for everyone.

Even though many people are living in abject poverty for most of the year, this season, one dedicated to giving, seems to draw out the best in people. For that everyone can be proud and pleased.

Just look at a few of the events. The Spirit of James Brooks toy drives held several times a year at Cafe Jake's in downtown Sanford; volunteers from clubs and organizations helping the Salvation Army ring those kettle bells; our fire fighters who are refurbishing bikes for the needy children through donations from the Sanford Kiwanis and private individuals.

Yes, we could go on and on. Pages of the Sanford Herald have been full of do-good activities for many, many weeks.

For the average people, gifts to each other and the children are a way of showing friendship. The same thing is generally done for birthdays but at this one time of the year most everyone does something for most everyone else. The collective idea of this holiday does much to boost people's spirits.

In the same fashion, every time a gift or financial help is donated to some of the organizations which help those in need, should also give people a warm feeling.

Even though they may never have been without financial resources during their lives, some people are fully aware of what it is like to be left out at Christmas.

We know of some servicemen, stationed overseas during past years, who didn't receive mail on time, and were unable to get telephone calls or other communications from home.

In cases such as these, the feeling one gets at this time of year when it may appear no one cares, can be devastating. Give this point some thought.

In this supposedly joyous season let's each, as individuals, vow not to let any other person, whether we know them or not, be without some showing of love and friendship.

If you can't help the needy, do whatever possible to help those who are doing so.

Knowing you did something good for someone else can produce a brighter feeling than any light on your Christmas tree.

LETTER

Shame, shame

Kids House was proposed so law enforcement officials could interview physically and sexually abused children in an environment less stressful to them. The plan has suffered a setback.

Children now are interviewed in the cramped office of the Seminole County Child Protection Team on State Road 436. County commissioners gave the coalition a house left behind in the Lake Mary Boulevard widening project.

The center was designed to make abused children less afraid and more comfortable talking with authorities about their pain.

Volunteers were ready to renovate the house, but Lake Mary officials refused to give the property the special zoning exemption needed to proceed.

Kids House fell through in Lake Mary. A new home is being sought.

How sad that Lake Mary officials show so little compassion for the abused children of our area. What an opportunity was thrown away to let people know that Lake Mary really cares.

No one can convince me that ordinances couldn't be changed to accommodate such a worthwhile cause.

Clinton's plan: 'Get things done'

President Clinton will hold to his "get things done" legislative strategy for the last two years of his term, aides say, by offering to cooperate with the Republican majority in Congress on many issues and by meeting frequently with GOP leaders.

But he will "draw the line" on other issues, especially any tax cuts or spending proposals that threaten his record as a deficit cutter.

Clinton has been advised to "embrace" incoming Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., by calling him daily and by enlisting his cooperation wherever possible, as happened previously on NAFTA, GATT, and now in the hemispheric summit.

On policy, Clinton appears convinced that the message of the 1994 elections was not that his "putting people first" 1992-94 agenda was wrong-headed, but that he didn't produce enough change and that his message didn't get through to the public.

As a result, Clinton seems likely to push hard for a political reform agenda that includes campaign finance and lobbying reform, plus stepped-up action on Vice President Al Gore's "reinventing government" initiative and, possibly, accelerated decentralization of federal programs to state and local authority.

A White House task force operating under White House planning chief Mark Gearan prepared a strategy option paper that senior policy adviser George Stephanopoulos delivered to Clinton during his Hawaii vacation.

Clinton and his top aides have been working on strategy ever since, and one aide reported that Clinton may unveil his plans before Christmas — and before the start of the Republican 104th Congress and his own State of the Union address.

Final Clinton decisions are being delayed, sources say, by several factors, including shock over the extent of Democratic election losses, the fact that congressional Democrats haven't chosen new leaders with whom the White House can strategize; and the complexity of the task, which requires juggling budget, political and policy considerations.

White House aides have been cautioned by Chief of Staff Leon Panetta not to discuss the decision-making process with the press, but it's possible to put together a general outline of the direction Clinton seems to be taking.

Political reform appears to be Clinton's major new emphasis for 1995. The White House reportedly feels liberated from the need to yield to Democratic Hill leaders on reform issues and instead can present proposals that challenge Republicans.

Some top Democratic congressional aides may move into White House or 1996 re-election campaign jobs. Those especially esteemed in the White House include George Kundanis, outgoing Speaker Tom Foley's, D-Wash., top aide, and Steve Schutt, chief of staff to defeated Sen. Harris Wofford, D-Pa.

Clinton aides say that the administration underestimated discontent in the country over the insecurity that working-class families feel in the new globalized and high tech U.S. economy.

Clinton has been advised to 'embrace' Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., by calling him daily and by enlisting his cooperation wherever possible.

Making a friend instead of news

WASHINGTON — Though the front page headline, "Ethnic Conflicts Prompt Cries of Alarm," concerned Cardozo High School in Northwest Washington, it could have been about almost any urban school.

Tensions are high, the article said, at multiethnic Cardozo, where 60 percent of students are African American, 30 percent Latino and 10 percent Asian. Interviews with students reveal:

Latino students feel disrespected and stereotyped by black kids. African American students feel disrespected and stereotyped by Latino kids. (Goodness knows how Cardozo's 130 or so Asian students feel; the lack of quotes suggests they're keeping a low profile.)

Some results of these feelings, if you haven't guessed, name-calling, hair-pulling, food-throwing, shoving and fights between groups.

The article was interesting and informative. But what truly would have been news was if students from Cardozo's different cultures mixed, mingled and got along great all the time.

C'mon, we know who we are: citizens of a nation where "the land of the free" means "free to hang out mostly with your own."

In school lunchrooms, Corporate cafeterias, Ritzy downtown restaurants and joints in the 'hood. At movie theaters, the mall and church. In cemeteries, even.

At any given moment, at any given spot, you're more likely to see blacks with blacks, whites with whites and Latinos with Latinos than in any multigroup combination. People feel more comfy with their own.

Big deal.

Actually, yes. It becomes a big deal the second that "we" — in whichever group into which we segregate ourselves — devalue, typecast and suspect "them." It happens as often at IBM and the House of Representatives as it does at Cardozo. It happens whenever folks don't really talk — and sometimes when they do.

This recently was revealed to me when my mom brought over my high school yearbook. Perusing the "West Side Cougar" two decades after graduation, I realized I'd completely forgotten two things:

(A) My senior picture was frightening.

(B) There were hundreds of Latino students who attended my mostly black Gary, Ind., school.

Forgetting the first makes sense. But how could I forget the scores of Latino faces on those pages, the students who sat next to me in class and with whom I sometimes chatted?

Because virtually none of us mingled outside school, that's how — we seldom considered it. Even in junior high, when my fair-skinned, wavy-haired black pal Sharon was told that a Latino hunk named Jose had a crush on her, she knew what to do.

Boy crazy Sharon, who left no cute black guy unconsidered, had someone explain to the fine Jose that she was black. He backed off — just like we figured he should.

Today, despite tensions, more Sharons and Joses are exploring transcultural attractions. More are friends too. My son's football team, made up of children from the same elementary school, played for weeks before I noticed it was a patchwork of blacks, whites and Latinos — probably because many of the kids visit after school, talk on the telephone, are friends.

Interesting — I didn't recall my Latino classmates because I didn't know them. I didn't notice the diversity of children on my son's team because I did.

These kids' friendships don't mean they'll never have problems — even children whose cultures, economic status and skin colors are identical manage to have plenty.

But back to WestSide — I mean Cardozo. I'll bet many students believe the newspaper exaggerated the school's problems with color and cultural divisions, overlooking some kids' friendships and connections. Others, I'm sure, agree the gaps are serious and widening.

To students on both sides, I'd say this: What's happening at Cardozo and other schools is a definite problem — or a real opportunity. How you see it, what you do about it, is on you.

The fact is, your world and your school are getting more diverse, not less, and white folks have no monopoly on prejudice. The young sister who refuses to talk to the Latina girl in chemistry risks missing out — as I did — on learning more about someone from a culture as vibrant as hers.

The Latino guy who can't make it his business to discuss, say, the Bulls' first win in years with the black guy in gym might never make a friend who teaches him that it hurts as much to hear "nigger" as "wetback."

Of course, doing the right thing might not get you in the paper. But making a friend beats making "news" any day.

C'mon, we know who we are.

Guarded about Project Sapphire

WASHINGTON — Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary invited us into her office to discuss our recent column about Project Sapphire, the American mission that secretly whisked weapons-grade uranium out of Kazakhstan.

But the cabinet secretary who has nurtured a reputation for candor by de-classifying Cold War secrets was cagey about the high-stakes post-Cold War game of anti-proliferation. This despite the fact that she and Defense Secretary William Perry declassified Project Sapphire.

In our first column, we quoted a top DOE official as saying that the price America paid for the uranium — about $30 million for 600 kilograms — "may have set a precedent for paying an exorbitant amount" that we can't match in the future.

"I think it's very important to put down the individual (at DOE) who spoke to you off-the-record to say that the price was too high," O'Leary told us. "That is not my opinion... It was a great success."

There's little debate that Sapphire had a happy ending: poorly guarded, highly enriched uranium was kept out of the hands of potential terrorists or unfriendly nations. The United States transported to Tennessee enough material to make more than 20 nuclear bombs. If Project Sapphire is a harbinger of future deals, however, it's time to examine the fiscal fall-out for taxpayers. Sources involved in the negotiations, for example, tell us the Kazakh government originally wanted $50-100 million, which borders on legalized extortion.

O'Leary hinted that America was pressured to buy the uranium because Iran was angling to get it first. According to a report by Congress' Office of Technology Assessment (OTA), officials at the facility in Kazakhstan say a group of Iranians visited two years ago in an attempt to buy the nuclear material.

The United States is currently negotiating the purchase of 500 metric tons of highly enriched uranium from Russia. As the top DOE official told us, "If the same price (as Project Sapphire) holds for Russia, they'll be able to balance their budget by selling enriched uranium to us into the next millennium. We ought to have concerns about that." If the price paid for the Kazakh uranium is indeed a benchmark, America could end up paying more than $200 billion for the Russian stockpile.

O'Leary admitted that "all of those issues were soundly discussed by all of the principals who were negotiating" the Kazakh deal. But for someone who has billed herself as the oracle of openness, O'Leary is evasive about the financial and terrorist threats posed to the United States.

She told us the American team rushed the material out of Kazakhstan during late autumn — even though inclement weather could have paralyzed the mission at the airstrip — because of "information about who might be seeking some opportunity to get control of that (nuclear) equipment." Does that mean the Iranians were getting closer to their goal?

"Well, you know," O'Leary said.

Was it the Iranians?

"You can say anything you want," she responded. "I think my job here is not to start little flares. I've got enough problems dealing with people (here) without getting hot language from my lips directed toward another country. It's called not doing a 'Newt' (Gingrich)."

O'Leary concedes that America can only continue buying uranium "if it makes economic sense in the long run."

Poorly guarded, highly enriched uranium was kept out of the hands of potential terrorists.

Pizzuti Development Inc. "It just did."

Aiken would not confirm the facility was being built for CBIS, but did confirm Pizzuti had spoken with the Maitland company. Aiken said the facility was being built for lease. Construction could start by mid-1995, he said.

Woody Blaker, facilities manager of CBIS in Maitland, said the company is consolidating its space into one center. The company's 700 employees occupy 210,000 square feet in two buildings at the Maitland Center campus and their data processing center is located on three separate floors.

"We process over 3 million pieces of mail a month," said

Blaker. "We have to carry that down from the second floor in an elevator. We need to consolidate that on one floor."

Although negotiations are not complete, Blaker said the Heathrow site's close proximity to the U.S. Postal Service processing center on Rinehart Road was an attractant.

"We need to be close to a facility that size," Blaker. "The only other facility in central Florida we could use is the facility at Tradeport."

Tradeport is located at Orlando Regional Airport.

Blaker said CBIS writes software for communications, such as "call waiting" or other popular service offered by telephone companies. The company also processes billing for dozens of other companies, he said.

CBIS was formed in 1983 by Cincinnati Bell Inc. Since then, it has grown to a world-wide company with markets in Australia, Japan, Canada, The Netherlands and Switzerland. During the subsequent years, it acquired several companies, including the 1987 purchase of the Maitland firm Austin Computer Enterprises Inc.

If the CBIS deal is finalized, it will represent the second major north Seminole County capture of a Maitland Center tenant. Last week, AT&T finally announced long-awaited plans to move 700 employees from the leased space in the center to a new building on its property on Lake Emma Road.

Blaker said the AT&T decision played no role in their decision-making.

prepared to be sued over its ordinance. Cocchiarella worked on the Orange County adult entertainment ordinance which is being used as a model around the country.

"There is no way to avoid litigation," Cocchiarella said. "Unless you give in to them (adult entertainment businesses) and give them everything they want."

Orange County cracked down on body scrub operations during November and December charging owners and employees with racketeering and prostitution after months of investigation.

The city commission has been working toward an ordinance regulating adult-type businesses for nearly a year. The second of two 180-day moratoriums passed to prevent any new adult businesses from opening while the ordinance was being written expires at the end of January. The ordinance was proposed after three body scrub parlors opened in rapid succession in the city.

Scrub businesses have proliferated in the metropolitan area. The MBI traced the genesis of the businesses locally to Roosters in Longwood. A former Roosters manager and former employees started their own businesses around the metro area. Cocchiarella said in one instance, a customer who frequented body scrub parlors decided to open his own business.

City attorney Richard Taylor and Cocchiarella advised the commission that continuing the moratorium past the one year mark might be interpreted by a court as restraint of trade. Only one business has inquired about the end of the city moratorium, Taylor said.

City commissioners zeroed in on the core elements of the proposed adult entertainment ordinance such as definitions, zoning, distance regulations and the licensing process.

The MBI attorney noted a number of instances where ordinances have been challenged or thrown out because they were so restrictive there was no area where adult businesses could operate. The Longwood proposal would put adult entertainment businesses in the I-2 (Industrial) zone.

The First Amendment protects some adult entertainment, Cocchiarella added, but not rub/scrub operations. He also suggested the ordinance include a provision that club dancers must remain on stage while performing and at least three feet from customers. Dancers sometimes leave the stage and dance for tips during their performance.

The commissioners agreed to conduct another work session Monday night to fine tune the ordinance, then schedule the first reading and public hearing along with the necessary advertising.

Commissioners Jim Carrio and Bill Winston, who joined the commission in November, requested adequate time to research questions before voting on the ordinance. Mayor Iris Benson noted the commission has been working on the proposal for about a year and is not rushing the issue. Commissioner Ron Sargent also attended the work session but commissioner Annamaria Vacca was absent.

At that time, city planner Matt West explained that the rezoning was the first step in an annexation campaign, with the land to be added to the Reعون site.

Prior to the presentation of the ordinance however, as part of the city manager's report, Reعون will again be brought to the forefront.

City Manager John Litton plans to present a request submitted by Reعون to proceed with clearing and grading, prior to site plan approval.

According to the presentation to be given to the commission, Litton and West have explained that the request is being submitted by Reعون in order to comply with the State Department of Commerce Transportation Grant deadlines, which is funding the paving of Emma Oaks Trail. The Reعون Corporation must start construction of the building footers by March, 1995.

In order to get all the preconstruction work done, Reعون has requested that it be allowed to clear and grade the land, which contains a series of rolling hills.

In opposition to this request however, the city site plan regulations state, "no work of any nature shall commence on the property until a building permit has been issued, without the approval of the City Commission."

As West explains, a building permit cannot usually be issued without site plan approval.

The commission however, has the leeway to allow development construction to take place prior to the site plan approval.

If the P&Z meeting approves the site plan this Wednesday, the first city commission meeting at which site plans could be reviewed would be January 5.

There will be an additional work session meeting of the Lake Mary City Commission beginning at 4:30 p.m. this Thursday. The regular meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

presented me with an opportunity that I simply could not pass up," Laisure wrote.

Laisure declined to comment this morning, saying she wanted to wait until her appointment was approved by commissioners.

Byron Brooks, deputy Orange County administrator, said Laisure was offered the job without a formal search.

"Any one who has had the good fortune to work with her can see she is such a talented person," said Brooks. "We focused on her."

"She will be missed," said Rabun. "She's been a great asset to the county."

Rabun said Monday he will advise the position to current employees before advertising outside the county.

"I to give our employees a chance to move up before going outside," said Rabun.

Laisure started with the county little more than three years ago. Laisure was Rabun's first recruit in September 1991 of his new senior management staff following a shake-up. Laisure previously served as deputy city manager of Richmond, Va., a city with 217,000 people, not a great deal smaller than the entire Seminole County population of 298,000 at that time.

Laisure oversaw the administrative functions of the county, including Employee Relations, Management and Budget and Tourism. During her tenure, she oversaw the construction of the county's $2.8 million sports training center, futuristic Geographic Information System and Master Space Plan.

the present North Lake Village. Among the variances are those pertaining to required parking space sizes and overhang parking areas.

The site plan indicates 144 two-bedroom, one-bath units, 72 small three bedroom two-bath units, and 72 large three-bedroom, two-bath units. All of the buildings are three stories in height.

Specific information regarding expected costs for the units or other facts pertaining to the proposed North Ridge Apartments were not immediately revealed.

In addition to the North Ridge Apartments matter, other items scheduled for discussion during this week's P&Z meeting include:

• Public hearing to consider request for dimensional variance at 1200 French Ave., for reduction in front yard setbacks.

• Discussion on chain link fences in residential front yard setbacks.

• Additional business from floor and commission members.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 15, in the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Ave.

Clinton previews new agenda

WASHINGTON — Trying to get a jump on Republicans, President Clinton is previewing his new agenda in a speech Thursday night, and is expected to announce his proposal for a middle-class tax cut.

"I think what he'd like to do before Christmas and perhaps this week is outline in just a little bit more detail where he's going to take the country," White House spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers said Monday.

Clinton and senior advisers are considering a tax credit for families earning less than $100,000 a year, Commerce Secretary Ron Brown was quoted as saying in today's editions of The Washington Post. Brown said there had been no decision on the upper income limit, but it was likely to be between $75,000 and $100,000.

Republicans are proposing cuts for earnings up to $200,000.

Campaign may repay U.S. Treasury

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's 1992 campaign should repay the U.S. Treasury a record $4 million for a variety of spending irregularities, the Federal Election Commission staff is recommending.

The six-member commission will meet Wednesday to vote on the repayment figure, most of which stems from what the auditors concluded was federal funds to which the campaign was not entitled.

Overall, $3.8 million of the repayment total was assessed to the primary campaign, while just $254,546 in repayments was assigned to the general campaign, according to documents made available Monday.

And the vast bulk of the primary total — $3.44 million — came in federal matching funds to which the FEC audit team concluded the campaign was not entitled.

The total recommended repayment is $4,073,696.

Financial chaos far from over

SANTA ANA, Calif. — The financial chaos in Orange County is far from over, a major Wall Street credit rating agency warns.

Moody's Investors Service, in a much-awaited review of the county's finances, said Monday that $1.29 billion in bonds issued solely for a risky investment strategy "are extremely vulnerable" to future losses.

The county said when it became the nation's largest municipality to seek bankruptcy protection last week that it had lost $1.5 billion due to a risky wager using a potent brew of bonds and excessive borrowing.

Analysts said losses climbed to more than $2 billion over the weekend, and Moody's report indicates the actual damage may be far greater.

Also, the Orange County Water District, which provides drinking water to the nation's fifth most populous county, said it could be forced to default on its bonds if a bankruptcy judge doesn't let it pull $34 million from the county's shrunken investment fund over the next 90 days.

Kids may use some adult drugs

WASHINGTON — Pharmaceutical companies may soon sell drugs for pediatric use without doing special research to prove the medicine will be as safe and effective in children as in adults.

The Food and Drug Administration is trying to end a stalemate that has drug companies refusing to do pediatric research and pediatricians using their drugs anyway without any guidance on dosage or side effects.

"We have a duty to our children," said FDA Commissioner David Kessler, who was unveiling new pediatric drug labeling regulations today. "We can get the information we need to treat our children safely and effectively if we think creatively and are willing to commit resources to the challenge."

The FDA has required intensive pediatric trials before drugs are labeled for child use, research that is so expensive and difficult that few companies do it.

About 80 percent of prescription drugs sold in this country never get formal approval for children's use, yet pediatricians prescribe some of those drugs for children every day with no guidance on proper use.

WORLD BRIEFS

Acquittal outrages many

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — Former President Fernando Collor de Mello's acquittal on corruption charges has outraged many Brazilians who see the verdict as a step backward in the crusade to clean up government.

A divided Supreme Court ruled 5-3 Monday that there wasn't enough evidence to convict Collor on the charges that forced him to resign in disgrace in 1992 following months of nationwide street protests.

The court excluded the prosecution's strongest evidence against Collor — computer disks detailing the workings of the purported corruption network and tapes of phone conversations — saying they were obtained illegally.

Congress had impeached Collor, 45, for taking part in a scheme that netted up to $100 million in kickbacks from builders that were awarded public works contracts.

After a three-month trial, he resigned as the Senate met in December, 1992, to decide whether to expel him from office. He was barred from public office until 2001.

Two small achievements

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — U.N. forces in Sarajevo received their first fuel shipment in three weeks, and five Bangladeshi peacekeepers wounded in a Serb rocket attack reached a mobile U.S. Navy hospital for treatment.

Those two small achievements were overshadowed, though, by the Serbs' near-total grip on U.N. operations in Bosnia.

The peacekeepers' injuries came when Croatian Serbs fired a wire-guided missile at an U.N. armored personnel carrier Monday in the Bihac region in northwestern Bosnia. The region has seen some of the fiercest fighting between rebel Serbs and the Muslim-led government in Bosnia's 2½-year war.

"This seems to be a direct attack on UNPROFOR," said Thant Myint-U, a U.N. spokesman, referring to the U.N. Protection Force in former Yugoslavia.

Five wounded Bangladeshis arrived late Monday night at a mobile U.S. Navy hospital in Zagreb, Croatia.

Russian jets buzz Chechen capital

GROZNY, Russia — Russian jets buzzed the Chechen capital and gunfire crackled on the city's outskirts today as negotiators began a second day of talks on ending the military confrontation in the breakaway republic.

Russian officials today issued their first casualty report, saying nine servicemen were killed and 14 were wounded since 40,000 Russian troops poured into Chechnya over the weekend to end its secession from Russia.

In Vladikavkaz, capital of the neighboring republic of North Ossetia, Russian and Chechen negotiators said both sides wanted an agreement. But they remained at odds over Russia's demand that Chechen forces put down their weapons. Chechnya insists that Moscow withdraw its forces first.

ST. LEO — Jason Scott scored a game-high 23 points as Clayton State beat St. Leo 106-71.

AROUND THE NATION

Nets maul Magic

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The New Jersey Nets ended an eight-game losing streak against the Orlando Magic by shooting 61 percent from the floor in the first three quarters to rout the NBA's hottest team 128-101 Monday night.

The Magic came into the game with a league-best 15-3 record, a four-game winning streak and a run in which they had won 13 of 14. No one had even come close to making Shaquille O'Neal and company look bad, with all three losses by two-point margins.

But the Nets succeeded where everyone else failed as Derrick Coleman scored 22 points, Kenny Anderson added 13 points and 14 assists, Rex Walters, making his second straight start, scored nine of his 12 points in the first quarter, and Chris Morris scored eight of his 10 in the second quarter when New Jersey stretched its lead to 25 at the half.

The Magic also made themselves look bad, hitting 6 of 23 from the free throw line, or 26.1 percent, the fourth lowest ever in an NBA game.

O'Neal finished with 18 points, Anfernee Hardaway had 17 and Dennis Scott 16.

Heat burn Knicks

NEW YORK — Glen Rice scored 14 of his season-high 38 points in the third quarter Monday night, helping the Miami Heat break a three-game losing streak with a 122-111 victory over the New York Knicks.

Billy Owens, a 54 percent free-throw shooter, helped the Heat win by making all six of his foul shots down the stretch. As a team, the Heat made 39 of 47 free throws.

Kevin Willis added 28 points, 10 in the final quarter, and 17 rebounds for Miami, which also got a season-high 21 points from Bimbo Coles.

Charles Smith led the Knicks with 24 points, while Patrick Ewing had a season-high 30.

Auburn bombs West Florida

AUBURN, Ala. — Macchie Norris scored 19 points, including five 3-pointers, to lead Auburn to a 96-59 win over West Florida Monday night.

Norris also led Auburn (4-1) in setting a school record for 3-point shots, with 15 total.

West Florida shot 33 percent from the field for the game, compared to 54 percent by Auburn.

Leroy Davis scored 12 points for Auburn, Chris Davis added 10 and eight rebounds, and Wes Flanigan had 10 points.

Noah Haynes led West Florida (5-3) with 19 points, Andrew Russell added 11 and six rebounds and Rob Harris had 10.

Mashburn gets NBA honor

NEW YORK — Jamal Mashburn of the Dallas Mavericks is the NBA Player of the Week.

Mashburn averaged 36.7 points, five assists and four rebounds as the Mavs won two of three games last week. He shot .525 (42-for-80) from the field and .792 (19-for-24) from the foul line.

Also considered were Otis Thorpe of Houston, Reggie Miller of Indiana, Pooh Richardson of the LA Clippers, Bhaquille O'Neal of Orlando, Buck Williams of Portland, Avery Johnson of San Antonio, Shawn Kemp and Gary Payton, both of Seattle, and Karl Malone of Utah.

Volunteers

RSVP members help to keep environment clean

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) has been active since 1973. No sitting in slow moving rocking chairs for them or gazing into the yard to watch the grass grow. These people are using their time and talents to serve the community. Their wisdom and expertise is being shared with the up-and-coming generations.

One of the recent endeavors of the group was their Adopt-A-Road cleanup on Nov. 30. Nine individuals — Paul Holmberg, William Joudrey, Birdena Joudrey, Joan Keogh, Kevin Keogh, Thelma Mike, Martha Riley, Nancy Nolte, volunteer coordinator and director, Gloria Black, met bright and early at Shoney's to charge their tanks for the task at hand.

Gloria Black and Nancy Nolte both agreed that the organization wanted to be more involved in programs geared to helping the environment. Even their flyer announcing the event said, "Enjoy a morning in Florida's great outdoors and help clean up our environment at the same time. The trash disposal trip will take place quarterly." So, the group adorned in orange safety vests and trash bags set out after a hearty breakfast and official T-shirt clinging tightly to spruce up the roadways along 17-92 near Flea World. The seniors got a kick out of the stop sign they were given. Their flyer boasted that "the real stop sign was ready in case someone on your team has yearned to play traffic cop."

Black also shared her views about the organization. "RSVP is changing direction," she said. "In 1993, Pres. Clinton signed a new bill creating a corporation for national service. In creating this corporation they focus on education, health and human needs, public safety and the environment. They feel and I do too that seniors have such a wealth of talents to offer in helping the environment. I wanted the volunteers to be a little more high profile in the community. They need to get the recognition they deserve so we adopted the road."

She further spoke about the fact that these projects can be submitted for further grant monies. A recent grant received was for $5,000 to help Seminole Community College with students. "We'll be working with non-English speaking mothers whose children attend the public schools. There are about 1,100 children in that category. SCC is creating a curriculum to improve reading and writing skills for these mothers. We will work on a 15-week program along with them."

Black concluded by saying, "We're here to provide seniors the opportunity to get involved. I'm all for getting seniors more involved. When the corporation took over, it lowered the age for RSVP from 60 to 55. Now there are more people who can help others on a volunteer basis."

Family gets heat from Mom's smoking

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have just completed our dream house. Where we live, the days are warm and sunny, but it can get downright cold in the evenings.

Here's my problem: We have invited my sister, her family, and my mother for Christmas. Mother will be staying with us, and I have told her that she may not smoke in our house. This has created a real furor.

My sister thinks I'm being unreasonable because Mother has emphysema, congestive heart failure and bleeding ulcers — and she's an alcoholic and weighs about 90 pounds. She also uses a walker.

We have an outside fireplace on the patio that emits a great deal of heat, and we'd gladly light it for her while she smokes outside.

Abby, am I unreasonable to forbid smoking in my home? My sister and mother have put a real kullt trip on me.

SMOKELESS IN ARIZONA

DEAR SMOKELESS: In view of your mother's condition, it's unrealistic to expect her to huddle by an outdoor fireplace to smoke. Perhaps her physician would prescribe nicotine patches to tide her over during her visit with you. Obviously, your mother is very frail, so enjoy her while you can.

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter signed "Bugged" from the reader who resented having to chip in for the boss's Christmas gift.

Well, Abby, I am the boss, and I have a message for my employees.

Please skip the collection this year. I am already rich because I have a competent staff who makes my job a pleasure. Just give me a card with your good wishes for me and my family — and spend your money on your loved ones!

The only gift I want is another year of "bossing" such generous people, and I will consider myself blessed indeed.

Please sign my name. I want these great people to know I mean them.

PAM KOCH,

LAWRENCEVILLE, N.J.

DEAR PAM: What a lovely idea. It's a first. (And something tells me it won't be the last!)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I aren't speaking, and I need some unbiased advice.

Our 24-year-old daughter got herself arrested and is sitting in jail because she couldn't come up with her bail. The judge gave her 90 days.

She has been calling, begging us to come down and get her out. She broke a restraining order and will be in jail for Christmas.

My husband and her brothers and sisters all say she needs to learn her lesson, but every time she calls me crying, I get so upset I go to pieces and do whatever it takes to rescue her.

Abby, how can a mother enjoy the holidays knowing her daughter is sitting in jail? Mind you, she has been in trouble many times, but this time, she couldn't get off.

Have you any words of wisdom for me?

STRESSED-OUT MOM

DEAR MOM: Yes. One of her problems was knowing that her family would always come to her rescue. Let her sit!

DEAR ABBY: I am a male lieutenant, now stationed in Bavaria. My mother recently visited me here. When I was growing up, she used to say, "You are just like your father!"

During her visit, she told me that after 29 years of a very rocky marriage, she and my father are finally divorcing — and she trashed Dad something terrible. Her verbal attacks on my father angered me, and I had trouble controlling it.

I never understood why I reacted so strongly until I read a letter in your column written by a divorce lawyer. The letter explained that children are half of each parent, and when one parent speaks ill of the other, the child feels that half of him is bad. Although I couldn't explain it at the time, my mother's attacks on my father felt like attacks on me.

Thank you, Abby, for explaining why I felt so guilty and defensive.

'Maus' author resurrects a Jazz Age classic poem

By KAREN MATTHEWS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — After Art Spiegelman earned plaudits and a special Pulitzer Prize with "Maus," a two-volume comic book that depicted his parents' life during the Holocaust, he wanted to do something completely different.

Hence "The Wild Party," a jazzy, sexy narrative poem from the 1920s which Spiegelman has reclaimed from obscurity and illustrated with dozens of equally jazzy, sexy drawings.

"After 'Maus' I felt that there was a lot of pressure for me to be a spokesman for the second-generation children of Holocaust survivors," Spiegelman, 46, said in a telephone interview from his Manhattan studio. The new book is "not a natural follow-up to 'Maus,'" — that, he said, was part of the attraction.

"The Wild Party" was written in 1926 by Joseph Moncure March, a young poet who had been the first managing editor of The New Yorker. It was considered too hot to publish until 1928, when a limited edition of 750 copies was released. The opening lines seduce the reader:

Queenie was a blonde, and her age stood still,
And she danced twice a day in vaudeville.

In syncopated rhymes, the book tells the tragic tale of Queenie, her thuggish boyfriend and the half who comes between them.

A product of its time, "The Wild Party" is politically incorrect without, Spiegelman feels, being "naïve." The supporting cast — revelers at the eponymous party — includes Madeline Tru, a predatory lesbian, and the Brothers d'Armano, who must have worn

Pink silk underwear —
Not to mention two Jewish theatrical managers who

"stood engrossed
Bewailing high production cost."

The Prohibition-era world that Spiegelman imagines is dark, hard-edged and unromantic. The illustrations comment wittily on the text. A lightning bolt crackles next to Queenie's backside when she dances with her new conquest.

Spiegelman discovered "The Wild Party" in the 1970s and had wanted to illustrate it ever since.

He writes in the introduction: "It has the mnemonic tenacity, if not the wholesomeness, of a nursery rhyme, and to read it once is to get large shards of it permanently lodged in the brain."

The poem has long had a following among the literati. William Burroughs once told Spiegelman, "It's the book that made me want to be a writer."

The Burroughs quote was recounted by Spiegelman — in a gravel-voiced impression of the older writer — at a reading in an East Village bookstore. Spiegelman, a ruffled, cigarette-smoking figure in thick glasses, told the audience the poem marked "the birth of the hard-boiled attitude."

"That air of hard-boiled disillusionment is something that still seems very contemporary," he said, mentioning the popularity of the Quentin Tarantino film "Pulp Fiction."

EDITOR'S NOTE: "The Wild Party" is published by Pantheon and retails for $22.

Legal Notice

NOTICE OF RESOLUTION OF THE CITY OF LAKE MARY, FLORIDA, DETERMINING IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 170.03, FLORIDA STATUTES, TO DEFRAY THE COST FOR CERTAIN IMPROVEMENTS TO A PORTION OF SUN DRIVE BY IMPOSING A SPECIAL ASSESSMENT AGAINST THE PROPERTIES IDENTIFIED THEREBY, STATING THE NATURE, LOCATION AND COST OF THE SUN DRIVE IMPROVEMENTS, PROVIDING THAT A PORTION OF SAID COSTS SHALL BE PAID BY SPECIAL ASSESSMENT AND A PORTION OF SAID COSTS BY OTHER FUNDS OF THE CITY, IDENTIFYING THE PARCELS UPON WHICH SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS ARE TO BE LEVIED, PROVIDING THE MANNER IN WHICH SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS ARE TO BE MADE, PROVIDING THE MANNER IN WHICH THE SPECIAL ASSESSMENT ARE TO BE PAID AND ENFORCED, PROVIDING FOR PUBLICATION OF THIS RESOLUTION, DIRECTING THE FINANCIAL DIRECTOR TO MAKE AND FILE A PRELIMINARY ASSESSMENT ROLL, PROVIDING FOR CONFLICTS, SEVERABILITY AND EFFECTIVE DATE.

SECTION 1. DETERMINATION TO MAKE MUNICIPAL PUBLIC IMPROVEMENT, NATURE AND LOCATION OF IMPROVEMENTS.

The City determined in 1994 to make the municipal public improvements hereinafter described and to provide for the design and construction thereof:

The improvements include the installation of water lines for potable water along Sun Drive, the realignment of Sun Drive and the paving and related improvements of Sun Drive from the western most boundary of Father's Edge property to Lake Mary Boulevard, said improvements shall hereinafter be referred to as the "Improvements."

SECTION 2. COST OF IMPROVEMENTS AND AMOUNT TO BE PAID BY SPECIAL ASSESSMENT.

The total cost of improvements is $48,706. The total amount to be paid by Special Assessment for the improvements is $17,743. The portion of such costs to be paid by the City from sources other than special assessment is $30,963.

SECTION 3. DESIGNATION OF LANDS UPON WHICH SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS SHALL BE LEVIED.

(a) Property Assessed: All properties as described in Exhibit A, attached hereto, and hereinafter herein, have been specially benefited by said improvements and shall be subject to a special assessment therefore. The improvements will benefit such properties by (1) increasing the development capability of the benefited property; (2) reducing the cost of development of the benefited property; (3) increasing the value of benefited property. The portion of such costs to be paid by special assessments for the improvements is not more than the special benefits to be derived by the properties specially benefited thereby.

(b) Assessment Plat: The properties to be assessed for the improvements shall be further designated by the assessment plat on file with the City Clerk.

SECTION 4. MANNER IN WHICH SPECIAL ASSESSMENT SHALL BE MADE.

Special Assessments for the improvements are to be assessed only against those properties which derive a special benefit from the improvement.

(a) The portion of the costs of the improvements to be paid by Special Assessment shall be prorated among the respective parcels specially benefited thereby in proportion to the benefits to be derived therefrom, determined and determined under the circumstances and facts of this case, it is fair, equitable and just to prorate the portion of the costs of the improvements to be paid by Special Assessment among the benefited properties based upon the estimated taxable square footage of said properties, the future and present use of said properties, the Future Land Use Plan of the City of Lake Mary and the pre-existing access to Lake Mary Boulevard for those properties that have frontage on Lake Mary Boulevard with commercial or office uses. The percentage of the estimated total taxable area of all properties eligible for inclusion in the Special Assessment is multiplied by a value factor represented by the number 1 for non-commercial properties and the number 2 for commercial (used properties) to produce the "Benefit Factor." The "Assessment Factor" is multiplied by the "Benefit Factor" which results in the percentage of improvement costs assessable to each property.

(b) It is hereby found, determined and declared that the proposed improvements do constitute a special benefit to each parcel to be assessed, and that the benefit to each parcel to be assessed will be in excess of the special assessment thereon and that such special benefit will be in proportion to the special assessment imposed on each property.

SECTION 5. PAYMENT AND ENFORCEMENT OF ASSESSMENTS.

(a) Special Assessments imposed upon all parcels located south of Sun Drive and north of Lake Mary Boulevard (excluding 211 parcels) which are developed shall be paid without interest at anytime within 30 days after the City adopts the final special assessment roll, to which, if not paid when due, there shall be added a penalty of the rate of one (1%) percent per month and seven (7%) percent interest per annum until paid.

(b) Special Assessment imposed upon all parcels contiguous to and north of Sun Drive (including Mary Cross Lutheran Church and excluding Father's Edge) and undeveloped commercial properties south of Sun Drive shall be paid without interest at anytime within 30 days after the City adopts the final special assessment roll, to which, if not paid when due, there shall be added a penalty of the rate of one (1%) percent per month and seven (7%) percent interest per annum until paid.

(c) The Deferred Assessment is not paid when due, there shall be added a penalty of the rate of one (1%) percent per month until the Deferred Assessment is paid. All Special Assessments may be paid without interest at any time within thirty (30) days after the City adopts the final special assessment roll.

(d) All Special Assessments shall constitute a lien upon the property on which the Special Assessment is levied pursuant to sections 170.03 and 170.05, Florida Statutes, and shall be enforced as provided in section 170.05, Florida Statutes. The Special Assessments as finally determined and adopted shall be payable at the office of the City Clerk.

SECTION 6. PUBLICATION OF THIS RESOLUTION. Upon adoption of this Resolution, the City Clerk shall cause this Resolution including Exhibit "A," hereto, to be published once a week for a period of two weeks in a newspaper of general circulation published in Seminole County, Florida.

SECTION 7. MAKING OF ASSESSMENT ROLL. Upon adoption of this Resolution, the Director of Finance of the City shall make, or cause to be made, an assessment roll in accordance with the method provided herein, which shall be completed and filed with the City Clerk as promptly as possible in compliance with the requirements of section 170.06, Florida Statutes.

SECTION 8. SEVERABILITY. If any section, sentence, phrase, word or portion of this Resolution is determined to be invalid, unlawful or unconstitutional, said determination shall not be held to invalidate or impair the validity, force or effect of any other section, sentence, phrase, word, or portion of this Resolution not otherwise determined to be invalid, unlawful or unconstitutional.

SECTION 9. CONFLICTS. All provisions or parts of Resolutions in conflict herewith are hereby repealed to the extent of any conflict.

Bell's palsy calls for various tests

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter has developed Bell's palsy for the second time. Should she be taking medicine to prevent further damage?

DEAR READER: Although the cause of Bell's palsy (paralyzed muscles on one side of the face) is usually obscure, cannot be diagnosed, and is untreatable, in some cases the disorder is caused by a viral infection, a tumor or Lyme disease (a type of bacterial infection).

In my opinion, your daughter needs testing, such as a CT scan and appropriate blood tests, to identify a treatable cause for the recurring palsy. I suggest that your family physician refer her to a neurologist for the necessary examinations.

It's important for your daughter to get to the bottom of this issue before permanent paralysis ensues. For example, cortisone may remedy a virus infection, surgery may be necessary for a tumor, or antibiotics will cure Lyme disease.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a hiatal hernia and have been prescribed five medications for reflux. My family doctor has given me hydrocortisone in the past for this and now says he won't prescribe a sixth medicine for control of the severe pain. How, then, am I supposed to take care of the intense discomfort I suffer?

DEAR READER: I'm puzzled why your pain is so resistant to medication. Hiatal hernia may be associated with reflux — the painful backwash of gastric acid into the lower esophagus — which almost always can be controlled by drugs, such as Prilosec, that reduce the production of acid.

In my opinion, you should forego the fruitless odyssey of searching for an analgesic. Instead, you should focus on the diagnosis of your pain.

First, you need a gastroenterologist. Such a specialist will perform endoscopy, a test to examine your esophagus and stomach to determine if more than a hiatal hernia is present. For example, you could have an ulcer that resists therapy or the continuing irritation of the reflux may have produced a condition known as Barrett's esophagus, pre-malignant changes in the cells lining this organ.

Second, as you may know, cardiac pain — notably heart-muscle spasm called "angina" — often mimics the pain of reflux.

and — for obvious reasons — is treated differently, with nitroglycerine, for instance.

Therefore, you should have a stress test, too. Your family physician can coordinate this, in conjunction with a referral to a gastroenterologist. Let me know what the doctors conclude.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

If you were going to commission a portrait, would you strike a deal like Oliver Cromwell's? He said to the artist, "Mr. Lely, I desire you would use all your skill to paint my picture truly like me, and not flatter me at all, but remark all these roughnesses, pimples, warts and everything as you see me, otherwise I will never pay a farthing for it."

In bridge, you build pictures in your mind's eye of the layout of the missing cards. The more accurate the picture, the more likely you are to find the best play. In today's deal, though, West missed a chance to paint an inaccurate picture in declarer's mind.

North's two-heart cue-bid showed the black suits. South's double promised values. Spades were agreed; then there was a lot of cue-bidding. After South's redouble, showing a first-round heart control, North did too much bidding. If South had the K-Q of spades and the club king, she would bid seven.

Declarer won the first trick with the heart ace and led a spade to dummy's jack. The spade ace brought down the king. Back to hand with a trump, declarer played a club to dummy's jack. When that held and the king appeared under the ace, declarer claimed her grand slam.

West was left to rue a missed opportunity. As South surely held the spade queen, suppose West had played the spade king at trick two. Wouldn't declarer, picturing this as a singleton, win with dummy's ace and finesse her spade nine? Then, if West had K-x of clubs, she could get to her hand twice and take two club finesses.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
 Dec. 14, 1994

In the year ahead, you will establish relationships with idealistic and compassionate persons. The collective goodwill of your social circle may be raised to new heights.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your intuition can provide insights into financial dealings today that escaped your logic. However, use both. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Solutions to difficult problems might come more easily to you than to your associates today. Be confident in your answers even if they aren't.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You can work wonders today doing charity work. Before reaching out to strangers, though, take a good look at your family to see who needs a little extra help.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Getting out and circulating today will make you feel better, but leaving your easy chair may prove no easy task.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might be in store for some pleasant surprises today, especially materially. Without having to be a Scrooge you may end up with a bundle.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Thinking imaginatively or philosophically will be tremendously rewarding today. Use your mental faculties to the fullest.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Friends will repay your past kindness by helping you through a difficult situation. It's a matter of give and take.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you'll feel more comfortable with sensitive friends than you will with aggressive types. You are too vulnerable at this time to be with self-serving people.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Deviating from your ideals today as you work toward a goal will not expedite matters, it will invite failure.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will seem very charismatic today. The attention you receive will be unusually keen, regardless of where you make an appearance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today your creative touch will be quite evident in even your most mundane endeavors. Others will easily discern your efforts from imitators.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) One of your best assets today is your ability to interpret the true intentions of others even when they say one thing and mean another.
