

CUBA DECIDES TO PAY PART OF BANK DEBT

Reputation Is Denied By Treasury Head; Contract's Legality To Be Discussed

HAVANA, Dec. 28.—(A.P.)—The Cuban government decided yesterday to pay more than $2,000,000 on certificates due Monday on a $20,000,000 bond issue originally sponsored by the Chase National Bank.

Minister of the Treasury Manuel Despaigne said "We are not repudiating the debt but are merely suspending payment until the whole situation can be discussed thoroughly with the officials of the Chase Bank in order to determine which part, if any, the debt is legal."

President Grau San Martin told bank officials that the obligation was "illegitimate" since the deposed President, Gerardo Machado, contracted it.

The amount due Chase is $2,000,000. Interest and arrears on treasury obligations amounted to $2,855,000 also due Dec. 31.

"We cannot pay these debts, the product of Machado's misadministration, without suspending other legitimate payments, including employes' salaries and the Speyer and Morgan loans," said Despaigne.

President Grau told an Associated Press representative that "I believe the United States attitude will be reasonable since the suspension does not mean the repudiation of debts."

"The Cuban courts always are open to any just claims. Those debts were contracted without the approval of the Cuban people and we will not honor them," he said.

Benjamin Fernandez de Medina, Uruguayan minister to Cuba and author of a political constitution plan, conferred until the early morning hours with President Grau San Martin but he declined to comment on the nature of their long conversation.

A government spokesman said there is a possibility that conciliatory negotiations between Cuba's warring political factions will be resumed based on "upon Grau remaining in the presidency with a coalition cabinet."

Mexico Acts To Force Americans From Jobs

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 28.—(A.P.)—The Department of Interior made effective a ruling yesterday intended to force Americans and other foreigners holding technical professional jobs to give way to natives.

The ruling stipulates that technical workers now employed or to be employed in the future must be signed to definite contracts and that upon their expiration the jobs must be given to Mexicans. It is further stipulated that during the contract period the foreigners must have native assistants and train them to take over the job later.

Democratic Leader Byrns Is Hopeful That 74th Congress Will Be An Harmonious One

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(A.P.)—I think it very certain that the coming session of Congress will be an harmonious one. There will doubtless be earnest debate of such problems as taxation, appropriations, farm relief, the codes and currency.

But in the last analysis, the large majority will be willing to settle any differences that may arise according to the advice of the President.

The President was chosen by the people as their leader to bring the country back to prosperous conditions.

They are not going to look with patience upon the effort of any individual or set of individuals, who have no better plan to offer, to interfere with the President's plans and efforts to bring relief from conditions due at least in part to mistaken policies of the past.

SOVIET PROGRAM FOR BUYING U. S. GOODS PLANNED

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(A.P.)—The Soviet program for the purchase of American goods, it was learned today, is being rapidly developed in conjunction with the general buying budget for the second five-year plan.

The extent of these purchases depends on two things: 1. Satisfactory credit arrangements.

2. Removal of obstacles to Soviet exports to the United States.

The Soviet position on these two points was enunciated by a higher Soviet official in the United States.

"It would be difficult to increase substantially our purchases in this country before the existing restrictions on the importation of Soviet products are cleared up and assurance is received that there will be no special obstacles placed in their way."

"It is urgently necessary for us to state that any large scale development of purchases in this country is dependent on the availability of acceptable financial arrangements."

BANK REFUSES TO PLAY PART IN U. S. POOL

Deposit Insurance Act Spurned By Chicago Institution Said To Be 94 Percent Liquid

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(A.P.)—The first instance of a national bank refusing to participate in the federal deposit insurance pool yesterday evoked from treasury officials a "shoulder-shrugging" statement that the institution had no choice in the matter.

Informing that J. E. Nichols, president of the First National Bank of Englewood, Chicago, had announced his institution would not join unless compelled to do so by the government, Walter J. Cummings, president of the Deposit Insurance Corporation said: "Congress decided that long ago for Mr. Nichols and his bank will participate along with every other national bank."

Earlier in the day, Cummings issued a statement saying that 97 percent of the nation's bank accounts would be completely guaranteed by the deposit insurance plan which becomes effective Jan. 2 and terms of the scheme the most restrictive plan ever devised. (Continued On Page Two)

Dingfelder Handles 1st Cars Of Celery

The New York and Sanford produce firm of C. I. and M. Dingfelder, whose Sanford agent is Julius Dingfelder, today claimed the honor of having handled the shipment of the first carloads of celery sent from Seminole County to open the 1933-34 shipping season.

Approximately 1,500 crates were taken from a choice three-acre celery tract grown by Charles Lee, prominent Okeechobee grower, this morning, and early tonight this celery will roll by freight to the Northern markets where celery prices were considered "fair" today. The Herald staff had an opportunity to sample two stalks of this early celery, and it pins Mr. Dingfelder in declaring it to be of very fine quality.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 28.—(A.P.)—Because he said "to look to me like $200,000 is a stiff fee to pay to anybody," Governor Sholtz yesterday called for full information from Trade committee of the state on a contract with two banking firms for refunding $2,000,000 of school bonds, with a clause providing payment of $200,000 in commission.

C. W. Peter, attorney for the banks, said the fee would be $200,000.

Grip Of Winter Is Slowly Relaxing As Weather Moderates

With the exception of some regions of Tennessee and Kentucky, the South generally was warmer with a promise of a continued slow rise in temperature, followed by rain this afternoon or tonight.

In New York City, 31,000 men struggled beneath a leaden sky and in a far below freezing cold to complete the task of moving a 100,000-ton load from the streets. Hundreds, most of whom were unsheltered, were crowded into makeshift huts for the night.

White River, Ontario, is out of the coldest temperatures with a below, but points in Minnesota with 11 below were not far behind.

REAL ESTATE TAX ABOLISHED IN ILLINOIS

State Is 1st To Order Full Substitution Of Sales Levy For Usual Assessment

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 28.—(A.P.)—Illinois yesterday abolished real estate and personal property taxes as far as state assessments are concerned. It was the first complete abolition of a sales tax for property taxes in the United States.

The step was taken after state officials decided a two-percent tax on retail sales, with certain exemptions, would be adequate to replace the $300,000,000 levied annually in the next year on general property.

Although cities, counties, school systems, sanitary districts, and other local units will continue to levy real and personal property taxes, the state's share of the revenue will result in a saving of from seven to 10 percent to property owners.

The abolition is effective on 1935 taxes for which property owners will be billed early in 1934. Taxing authorities said they hoped the action would be beneficial to the state and to the counties, where $200,000,000 of real estate taxes for 1935, 36 and 37.

The state's share of the property tax for 1935 was at least $400 million, an increase of 25 cents over the previous year. More of that for the sales tax, of which the rate will have had to be between 10 cents and 11 in 1934, to the fact that value of real property has dropped from $7,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000.

C. W. Peter, attorney for the banks, said the fee would be $200,000.

Walter F. Meier of Seattle, grand exalted ruler of the Elks of the United States who paid Sanford today, No. 1211 a brief visit this morning as he stopped off on his tour of Florida.

Walter F. Meier of Seattle, grand exalted ruler of the Elks of the United States, this morning commended the officers and members of the Elks of the United States, No. 1211, for their year's work.

Meier was given by more than 50 local Elks, including all of the lodge officers, at the club room at about 10:00 o'clock and for a short time before leaving for Deland he chatted familiarly up and down the hall with members of the lodge.

During his talk, Mr. Meier commended the growth of the order in Florida and throughout the United States. He said that for the last year he has visited almost all of the 1,000 Elks lodges in America.

Mr. Meier, expressing pleasure over the excellent large turnout of the lodge officers and members, said that according to reports from lodge leaders in the United States over 800 members were in attendance at the order on that day.

He commended at length on Elks of the United States, No. 1211, for their year's work, and said that in Alaska, where he is a member, the lodge has 100 members.

Thousands Rush To Secure CWA Jobs In Florida, Says Fagg

TALLAHASSEE, Dec. 28.—(A.P.)—Thousands of persons previously registered with federal employment agencies are now rushing to put their names on the Emergency Relief Administration rolls, the state advisory council on relief was told today by Marcus Fagg, Executive officer.

These thousands, Fagg said, hope to get CWA jobs through registration on the relief lists.

The result is that Florida has applied for grants totaling $5,000,000 for January and February. The funds would be used for direct relief work and for payrolls to persons employed on CWA projects.

Beer Bootleggers In Atlanta To Be Arrested At Once

ATLANTA, Dec. 28.—(A.P.)—Mayor James L. Kuy, friend of 3.2 percent beer, yesterday opened a fight against dispensers of more potent brew and ordered police to drive them out.

The weaker beer was licensed by the City of Atlanta in defiance of the State's home dry laws soon after beer was permitted nationally. Mayor Key led the fight for the beer, which the licensing ordinance called "non-intoxicating malt beverage."

Dealers today protested "bootlegging" beers of heavy alcoholic content" were driving city authorized legitimate dealers out of business.

"I'll back you to the limit," the mayor replied, adding that 3.2 percent beer had been proved "non-intoxicating and healthful."

"Our people are well satisfied with our solution of the problem," the mayor, long a foe of prohibition, said.

Soon after police served a copy of charges on Sig Hamuels, wholesaler, charging him with disorderly conduct. Officers said they seized a brand from him which last week showed 5.85 percent alcohol.

Hollywood's New Deal

One of the happiest promises of the new year for theater-minded folk is the new deal in Hollywood, since the filming of Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women," John Balderston's "Berkeley Square," and Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland," all of which will be presented in Sanford soon, means a great deal more than that there are three good shows to see. It means that there are more where these came from if the public wants them. It is a definite sign that the much berated producer is making a gallant attempt to climb out of the welter of gangster molls, scrambling bootleggers, and red hot mammas that have been cluttering the studios of late and to make films that possess subtlety, charm and the other enduring qualities of the classics.

It is a test of popular taste with the box office as the barometer that does not lie. If these new pictures which depend for their appeal upon whimsicality and imagination rather than upon vulgarity and cheapness draw the crowd better than "Passion In The Raw" and "The Racketeer's Daughter," the producers and managers will take the hint and a really stimulating age for the films will follow. There is no reason why this cannot come to pass. The screen is as nearly a perfect medium for a fantasy or a fairy tale as one could find. The field for truly great talkies is practically unlimited. What thrilling opportunities lie in Charles Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities," Robert Louis Stevenson's exciting and romantic "Treasure Island," Cooper's "Leatherstocking Tales," and Tennyson's "Knights of the Round Table!" What a chance to do something really good by producing Charles Kingsley's "Water Babies," James Barrie's "Peter Pan," the Arabian Nights tales, and Oscar Wilde's incredibly lovely fairy stories! If the public is only willing?

In our hard boiled modern world, "Little Women," the familiar and well-loved story of four young girls in a small New England town in the 1850's has the quaint flavor of an old hand-worked sampler, the delicate aroma of a jar of faded rose leaves, and the freshness of the lilacs blooming in the Alcott garden. Katherine Hepburn plays Jo, the part taken by Katherine Cornell in the London stage production in 1919. Joan Bennett plays Amy, Frances Dee, Meg, and Jean Parker Beth, while Edna May Oliver is a crochety old Aunt March, Paul Lukas the German professor, and Henry Stephenson Mr. Laurence. The New York critics report that the story has been so closely followed, the characters so faithfully drawn, and the whole so delicately handled that the fragile bloom of Miss Alcott's novel has not been brushed away and the four "Little Women" step out of the pages of the book, as if wrapped in cellophane, untouched by modern Hollywood. They are four friends of our youth whom we need not be afraid to meet again in the movies.

A picture of a different ilk and yet somewhat like "Little Women" for its quaint charm and beauty is "Berkeley Square" made from the stage play. In it, Leslie Howard does a beautiful piece of work as a modern young Englishman who inherits an ancient house in London's Berkeley Square and becomes so enamored of the old things there and the whole atmosphere that he wanders back into the eighteenth century, where he falls hopelessly in love with a young lady who was born a century or so before him, in the days when Sir Joshua Reynolds was the fashionable portrait painter, and Samuel Johnson was the wit-about-town.

But "The time has come, the walrus said, to speak of many things," most particularly the filming of "Alice in Wonderland." Just last year, the Lewis Carroll fans, and they are legion, were thrilled by Eva Le Gallienne's Civic Repertory production of this classic fantasy in New York. Hard upon its heels comes Paramount's all-star "Alice" with Charlotte Henry in the title role about the only person in the cast who isn't a high-powered box-office attraction, or at least, very well known. All we know about this young Brooklyn miss of seventeen who has had virtually no experience in the movies is "what we see in the papers" but they all seem to agree that she has the charm, the naivete, and the unaffected simplicity of a real little girl in a real wonderland. The costumes have been copied exactly from the Sir John Tenniel illustrations, and all of Carroll's strange people "saunter by, a long procession, as mad as April, and as sweet as May."

Gary Cooper is the White Knight, Richard Arlen the Cheshire Cat, Leon Errol Uncle Gilbert, Edna May Oliver the Red Queen, Louise Fazenda the White Queen, Charlie Ruggles the March Hare, May Robson the Queen of Hearts, Allison Skipworth the Duchess, Skeets Gallagher the White Rabbit, Jack Oakie Tweedledum, Edward Everett Horton the Mad Hatter, Carey Grant the Mock Turtle, and, best of all, perhaps, W. C. Fields as Humpty Dumpty. We wonder what Lewis Carroll, who in real life was Charles L. Dodgson, an Oxford don in the 1850's, would think if he knew that his queer creatures had been reincarnated in a Hollywood studio. Perhaps the original Alice Tiddlet, the little girl for whom the story was created one sunny afternoon at Oxford back in 1862, now a woman of nearly eighty, will see her strange companions come to life in some English picture house. She visited America in May 1932 as the guest of Columbia when that university celebrated the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Lewis Carroll.

An amusing story is told that Queen Victoria was so enchanted with "Alice" that she ordered all the other books of this Lewis Carroll brought to her immediately. The messengers returned laden only with heavy mathematical tomes, and she discovered that the creator of this make-believe world was Charles Dodgson, the mathematical wizard of Oxford. With all due respect to mathematics, we dare say that Alice will live long after Mr. Dodgson's other books are collecting dust on forgotten bookshelves, for we quite agree with Margaret Sangster:

"There's Alice and the Rabbitt, walking primly,
 The sobbing turtle, and the child that sneezed;
 The croquet-playing queens who shout and grimly,
 The drowsy dormouse, and the Hare that teased.
 Your dear illusions never, quite, can pass,
 Though you have wandered through the Looking Glass."

And so it all depends upon the public. They can have good movies if they want them. "Little Women" and "Alice in Wonderland" are but the test by which their taste is gauged. Those who care for good music, good books, and good plays should make a particular effort to go when such pictures are shown in order that we may have more of them. Those who are less familiar with the classics will like them better if only they will make their acquaintance.

 tions, it was pointed out, undoubtedly will be removed with the establishment of consulates in Russia and by some sort of a trade agreement.

There has been no definite discussion on credit. These await the arrival of Alexander A. Troyanovsky, the Soviet ambassador, and the Russian trade commissioner, yet to be selected. All likelihood points to Ivan Boyoff as the trade commissioner. He is well known to American financiers and industrialists, and made a long visit here last winter. The commissioner would supervise generally trade matters in the United States. However, it was said, the duties and work of the Amtorg Trading corporation, the Soviet business agency, would remain.

Already, the recognition of Russia has had its effect on the Soviet purchasing program for America. Tentative figures in the second five-year program have been cancelled. The revised budget, the Associated Press was informed, allows for increased expenditures in the United States if the conditions set forth previously are ironed out to mutual satisfaction. This budget should be ready by mid-January, after which the Soviets will be ready to talk trade.

Russian-American trade circles have received word that Valery Mezhlauk, the vice chairman of the state planning commission, may come to the United States within the next few months in the furtherance of trade.

This word coupled with information that the Soviet union contemplates in its second five-year plan the building of an automobile plant for six-cylinder cars. Mezhlauk negotiated the long contract with the Ford Motor Company for four and eight-cylinder car plants.

Both the Chrysler and General Motors companies are seeking negotiations for engineering supervision in the construction of a six-cylinder plant. Since recognition, sales to Russia have increased greatly, although they are not of great magnitude. In the remainder of November, after recognition, the sales totaled around a million dollars and run about the same for December.

Sales in December last year were under $30,000.

Little Miss Margaret Berner and Lafayette Tillis were the fortunate winners of the two bicycles which the management of the Star Theater offered to the boy and girl receiving the largest number of votes within a given time. The contest closed Wednesday night and Margaret and Lafayette spent a happy Christmas Day with their handsome bicycles.

Immediately after the wedding and the dinner party which followed the couple left on the fast train for Tampa where they will sail for Cuba. Democratic Leader Expects Congress To Be Harmonious recovery. Industry and business have improved from 10 to 20 percent and even more in some localities.

As a result of administrative action, the cotton states are rapidly recovering. The tobacco and hog and corn programs will soon be in operation, and evidences of recovery in those major products will soon be evident. In fact, recent sales in the tobacco markets just open show a very considerable increase over prices realized last year.

More than 4,000,000 of the unemployed have been put back to work at a living wage and with shortened hours of labor, and the number is increasing. Under the leadership of the secretary of state an era of good feeling and better understanding has been brought about in South America, which means increased markets and greater prosperity for all the nations involved.

The President's monetary policy is achieving the results which he seeks. There will be no necessity to change any of the recovery acts, although some slight amendments may be necessary. Congress will pass the appropriation bills, the liquor bills, a taxation bill. Some changes may be made in the securities act. But further than this there is no present apparent need for additional legislation. There will certainly be no effort to disturb the recovery program of the President. There is opposition to this cannot and should not do.

Everything points to an adjustment by mid-spring, which is greatly to be desired in order that the country may complete the process of recovery. "Buying the output of the United States silver mines, for colnage of at least half of the metal received, will add materially to the money in circulation," insists the Times-Union. Or, to be exact, about twenty million dollars a year for four years added to a present currency volume of $5,849,000,000 and total bank deposits of 42 billion dollars.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(AP)—The farm administration will hold a public hearing here Thursday on a proposed code for the auction and lease leaf tobacco industry. The proposed code would apply to warehouses in the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia.

 for the protection of bank deposits.

"We are flatly opposed to the deposit insurance scheme," Nichols said, "the only way we will have anything to do with it is through government coercion. Our bank's deposits are secured 94 percent by cash and government bonds and we can make our bank 100 percent liquid on a week's notice."

He said a gross injustice would be committed against the management of this bank and our customers were we compelled to make good the losses of mismanaged banks.

In treasury banking quarters it was said the Nichols bank could not qualify for its charter as a national bank or for membership in the federal reserve system unless it complied. Cummings was enthusiastic in forecasting the effect of the insurance system upon business conditions. "Deposit insurance should have a stimulating effect upon business throughout the country," he said. "In the first place, it should forever end the fear of 'runs' on banks which are members. Moreover, it should return large sums for hoarding, making it unnecessary for banks to carry such large bank reserves, free credit and relieve unemployment."

Gore Denies He Will Resign As Governor

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Robert M. Gore denied today that he would resign as governor of Puerto Rico. "I have no intention of resigning," Gore said. "Naturally my appointment is at the disposition of the President and whenever he wishes I will resign."

Gore said he planned to leave Saturday from Miami by airplane to return to Puerto Rico after a six weeks' visit to the United States. Gore, who returned to Washington today from Chicago said he would return home as his wife is under medical treatment, and his children are in school in the United States.

Milane Movie Feature One Of Season's Best

The local screen has never shown a motion picture filled with greater emotional appeal than "Only Yesterday," the Universal production which opened an engagement yesterday at the Milane Theater.

A love story of surpassing interest must be added excepting the artistry in direction and the perfection of a cast which is well-nigh perfect. The work of Margaret Sullivan, in the leading female role, well explains why she has recently created such a sensation on the New York stage, and justifies her selection for one of the most important parts of the

Dade school board, told the governor the contract had been signed with Brown-Crummer Company and Stranahan and Hartig. Peters said wording of the contract with the bond houses provided that no levy would be necessary to pay the refunding companies and that payments would be over a period of years only if collections on existing levies exceeded present requirements on funds.

"I want to look into this situation fully," the governor said afterward. "I want to know why it is necessary to refund bonds when the Dade county school system is in good financial condition and is meeting its obligations."

Peters had told the governor the county's school system was in good condition financially; that past due accounts had been paid and current obligations, including teachers' salaries, were being met. Some of the county's school bonds, he said, were being retired at 50 percent of their par value.

The attorney said the year's budget was based on collections of $26,000 in delinquent taxes but collections actually had far exceeded that figure.

"The unprecedented influx of winter visitors," Peters added, "has so increased school enrollment that school bus capacity has been exhausted."

He asked, and got approval, for permission to spend funds for repair of school buses and building improvements from collections in excess of the budget set-up.

PRESS FREEDOM ALWAYS CURBED IN EVENT OF WAR

Emergencies Usually Bring Restriction On News Releases

It is the fourth of a series of articles explaining why this issue is so important to every newspaper.

NEW YORK CITY, Dec. 22.—The hotter the question under discussion, the harder it is to maintain freedom in that discussion. It is "freedom of the press."

As the Civil War drew near, shadows of censorship hovered ahead. A law was adopted in 1836, which provided that all memorials and petitions on slavery be laid on the table without being printed or acted on.

That was not strictly a violation of press freedom but seems to have violated the right of petition, and shows a trend of mind. Directly followed a controversy over mailing anti-slavery periodicals to the south, where they were censored.

Through the government never went so far as to prohibit mailing or delivering such material, it came very close, and such mail irregularly not delivered in the southern postoffices.

When the Civil War came, the press was left remarkably free, only a few suppressions were made in the north, and none in the south.

Many of the southern papers at their news from northern papers brought through the lines, for the northern press had more and better correspondents. Newspapers on both sides often suppressed news of military value such as troop movements at request of their governments.

General Burnside, who also prosecuted Vallandigham, was the only one to make a clear-cut case of obstruction of the war.

But President Lincoln, who made a superb effort throughout the war to preserve civil rights under the most trying conditions, revoked Burnside's order.

There were, other sporadic attempts to censor through the mails, but, generally speaking, freedom of expression was almost complete up to the outbreak of the World War.

It was so much so that James Bryce noted especially in America the "unbounded freedom of discussion. Every view, every line of policy, has its fair chance before the people."

The World War was another story. And it was a story which our own war department learned partly during the Spanish War. When this war was imminent, we had little intelligence on military units of Spain in Cuba.

But the war department had all the Spanish newspapers, which were not up on their job, and by piecing together a little here and there, we got a first-rate picture of the Spanish military situation in Cuba without depending on spies. The lesson was not forgotten.

So when we entered the World War, one of the first steps was establishment of the Committee on Public Information. The secretaries of state, war, and navy were members, and George Creel was civilian and active head.

The committee had two jobs: First, to obtain voluntary cooperation from all publications in not publishing information of military value, and, second as a public bureau to issue information and propaganda. Both ways, it worked pretty well.

The really repressive power lay in the espionage act of June 15, 1917, which provided drastic penalties for publication and circulation of writings detrimental to carrying on the war.

The really repressive power lay in the espionage act of June 15, 1917, which provided drastic penalties for publication and circulation of writings detrimental to carrying on the war.

A strict censorship of the foreign-language press, the mails, and the cables completed the set-up.

Prof. Lindsay Rogers, now presiding over hearings of the newspaper code, summed up the results two months before the armistice: "Apart from the prosecution of a few groups of editors—notably socialists—for conspiracy to obstruct American participation in the war, most of the objectionable publications have been reached through the post-office."

"About 75 papers have been interfered with in one way or another. Forty-five were socialist papers; four socialist daily papers have been denied 'second-class mailing privileges'; others have been cited to defend themselves, and have retained mailing privileges only by agreeing to print no discussion of war.

"Several pamphlets have been excluded and their authors proceeded against criminally, and perhaps 30 papers have been detained in the postoffice until doubtful matter could be passed on, or have had single issues suppressed."

"Chief objection . . . is made on the ground that enforcement by the postoffice department vests too great powers in the executive branch of the government."

"Obscure papers have been interfered with, while other journals, powerful, but insidiously disloyal, have been countenanced without question."

"There is the danger, then, that the administrative zeal sometimes will do injustice and abridge the liberty of the press when the enabling statute did not."

"Publishers' voluntary censorship of their own news columns, to prevent military information getting out, worked pretty well; the wartime conflicts were over expression of opinion and its arbitrary suppression by the post-office department without trial or court appeal."

The war over, a cry went up for removal of all censorship, the people feeling that the need for it was over.

Seminole Quintet Whips Alumni Five By 83 To 38 Score

By GEORGE STOVALL
By use of superior number, Coach McLucas' Celery Fed basketball squad was able to defeat a squad of alumni players by a score of 83 to 38 Tuesday night.

After trailing at the half by a score of 22 to 18, the squad under the leadership of Oliver Miller began to pile up a score that soon gave it the large victory. Coach McLucas played a combination of his probable "B" squad players for a few minutes in the last quarter and they were able to outscore their opponents by nine to four for the time they were in.

Miller did not get going during the first half, but he came back in the second half and scored 23 of his 27 points. Jordan played well in his position, scoring eight goals for a total of 16 points. Knight made a great rally in the last few minutes of the game to make his total of points 12. Hughes, Kinlaw and Herndon made good showings at guard, and the whole team appeared to be getting up a fighting spirit.

Courier of the Alumni, with the aid of a fine passing attack by Smith, was able to score 17 of his teammates' points. Smith gave a good account of himself also. Moye and Jackson played well for the first three quarters, when they left the court.

With other practice games probable next week, the team is beginning to get in real shape for a

3 YEAR OLD GIRL SAYS SHE KILLED CHUM

Confession Discloses That Brutal Murder Came Christmas Eve After An Argument

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 29.—(A.P.)—A 13 year old girl has confessed, District Attorney Frank Coyne said today, to the murder last Sunday of her eight year old girl chum.

Mary Kavalas, said Coyne, told him after a long questioning last night that she killed Josephine Woropay, hitting her on the head with a rock and strangling her.

"I did it," Coyne quoted the girl as saying, "Jose told a pack of lies about me and my family. I did it. I lost my temper." Josephine's body was found on Christmas Eve.

Mary told authorities that they had gone for a walk Saturday afternoon, when an argument arose over tales Mary said Josephine had been telling.

She said she hit her with a rock, stunning the younger girl, and then strangled her with strings from an old mop and an old automobile tire tube.

She also broke a bottle, slashing the child's face and body until she became exhausted. She drug the body under the steps of St. Matthews Lyceum where it was found the next day.
