POLICE

IN BRIEF

Man faces marijuana charges after woman arranges delivery

LONGWOOD — A woman who allegedly made a deal to sell marijuana to a City County Investigative Bureau agent is wanted on marijuana charges and the man who allegedly made the delivery to a Longwood dry cleaners where the deal was struck, has been arrested.

The agent reported meeting the woman at the Maytag Cleaners, State Road 434 at U.S. Highway 17-92, at about 7 p.m. Tuesday. The woman allegedly agreed to sell the agent a small quantity of marijuana for $40. The agent watched as she made a phone call and noted the number she dialed. As a result of that call a man arrived at the cleaners in about five minutes and the woman allegedly picked up marijuana from him and the agent gave the man $40, according to police reports.

The man left, but agents called his home and he agreed to meet them and surrender. John Lee Willis Jr., 33, of 240 Cornell Drive, Casselberry, was arrested at 10 p.m. Tuesday. He has been charged with possession and sale and delivery of marijuana. He has been released on $2,000 bond to appear in court June 27.

The woman who allegedly struck the deal was not arrested at the scene. Agents reported they will ask for a warrant for her arrest on the same charges.

Vehicle assault charges filed

SANFORD — A Sanford policeman's reported sighting of a man trying to use his vehicle to force a car off U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford, has brought charges against a California man.

John Wilcox Coleman, 52, of Hollywood, Calif., was arrested at 6:12 p.m. Tuesday after police stopped his car near 14th Street, Sanford. Coleman has been charged with aggravated assault with a motor vehicle, willful and wanton reckless driving and disorderly conduct. The reason for his alleged dangerous driving was not given in an arrest report. He has been released on $3,500 bond to appear in court June 27.

Police report seeing Coleman's northbound car several times cross into the outside lane where another vehicle was traveling beside his. Police said he tried to force that vehicle off the road.

Juvenile arrested after burglary

SANFORD — An 11-year-old juvenile was arrested Monday evening in connection with a burglary at 217 E. Third St.

At 5:15 p.m. Albert Mackey told police that he was alerted by an alarm that sounded from a locked gun cabinet in his home. Upon entering the room, Mackey observed a juvenile, who ran out the back door after dropping a television and taking a short-wave radio.

Police reports indicate that an 11-year-old juvenile was later arrested and the property recovered.

Police seek abductor

SANFORD — Seminole County sheriff's deputies today are investigating a report of an early morning abduction, attempted rape and attempt to run over an 18-year-old Sanford woman.

The woman told sheriff's deputies she was getting in her car at the Cavalier Motor Lodge, U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford, at about 1:45 a.m. today when a man forced his way into her car and took her west on State Road 46 to the Day's Inn.

There he allegedly tried to rape her but the woman escaped from the vehicle. The man tried to run over her with her car and then fled west on Pineway Street in the car. Sheriff's deputies referred the case to Sanford police who reportedly said they "could only handle the incident that occurred in the city," a sheriff's report said.

Driving under the influence

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

- Daniel Edward Hoffman, 22, of 272 Mosswood Circle, Winter Springs, was arrested at 11:58 p.m. Tuesday after his car failed to maintain a single lane on Mosswood Circle, Winter Springs. He was also charged with having a defective tire on his car.
- Ronald Mansoski, 40, 703 Beverly Ave., Altamonte Springs, at 9:55 p.m. Tuesday, after he drove erratically on U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford. He was also charged with careless driving and driving without a license.
- Louis Raymond Hardy, 18, of 169 E. Lake Mary Ave., Lake Mary, Wilber Avenue, Lake Mary, after his motorcycle was clocked traveling 94 mph through Lake Mary. He was also charged with fleeing to elude police, reckless driving, failure to stop at stop signs and having no motorcycle endorsement on his driver's license.

Body found near accident scene identified

By J. Mark Barfield
 Herald Staff Writer
CHULUOTA — A body found four hours after a one-car accident Tuesday morning has been identified as a passenger of the car.

Peter John Finch, 24, 160 W. Fourth St., Chuluota, was apparently killed when he was thrown from a car that overturned and rolled several times at about 3 a.m. Tuesday, a Florida Highway Patrol spokesman said. The accident occurred on State Road 419 three miles east of Oviedo.

Finch's body was found by a resident about 7 a.m., 30 to 35 feet from the scene of the accident, the spokesman said.

The accident occurred when the driver of a 1973 Volkswagen, James E. Albritton, 31, 155 10th Ave., Chuluota, apparently lost control of his car while traveling east on S.R. 419, the spokesman said. The Volkswagen swerved off the east shoulder of the road then, overcompensating, Albritton apparently swerved to the opposite side of the road.

The car overturned several times and Finch was thrown from the vehicle, over 8- to 10-foot-high weeds and a five-foot high fence landing in the yard of a nearby resident.

Although troopers investigated the accident about 45 minutes after it was reported by a passerby, Finch's body was not found because it was hidden behind the weeds, the spokesman said.

Troopers were delayed in responding to the accident because they had to drive to the scene from Volusia County, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said Albritton was taken to Winter Park Hospital for treatment, but could not tell troopers about the accident or whether he had a passenger in the car. Albritton was listed in stable condition at the hospital. Charges are pending, the spokesman said.

Local officials deny air quality violations

SANFORD — Local, state and federal air monitoring officials could not confirm sub-standard air quality readings for Orange and Seminole counties although both areas were mentioned in a UPI story in connection with legislation just passed by the Senate, which will require auto inspections in six Florida counties.

According to a UPI story originating from Tallahassee, both Orange and Seminole counties have recorded sub-standard air quality levels already this year. The Senate bill (SB 1056) would supposedly be amended in the future to include any counties that fall below federal air quality standards.

Testing for ozone in Seminole County is monitored in Sanford by the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation and in Orange County, it is monitored by the county in Winter Park.

Information from Sanford and Winter Park is collected by DER and forwarded to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. If ozone levels exceed 120 parts per billion three times during a three-year period, a federal violation notice is issued in the state requiring compliance or fines may be imposed, officials said.

See story.....Page 6A

Tom Sawicki, DER district air engineer in the Central Florida Orlando district office, said the highest reading in the two counties this year was in Sanford in April apparently during an Interstate 4 traffic jam. The reading was 107 ppb — still well below the state and federal maximum allowable ozone levels.

The bill will take effect in Dade, Broward, Palm Beach, Hillsborough, Pinellas and Duval counties in March of 1990 and require all car owners to submit their vehicles for annual inspections.

Business reports stolen computer

SANFORD — A $1,000 computer and $200 worth of hand tools were stolen in a burglary to Authorized Heating and Air, 853 Waterway Place #141, Longwood, between Friday and Tuesday, a sheriff's report said.

In other reported burglaries and thefts:

•Seminole County sheriff's deputies have the name of a suspect who may have stolen a $250 air conditioner, a $40 engine stand and $500 worth of tools from the home of Linda M. Scanlon, 920 Lake Lane, Longwood, between Saturday and Monday.

•Douglas Grove, of 241 S. Embury St., Casselberry, reported to sheriff's deputies a $250 welding set was stolen from his pickup truck at Kmart Plaza, U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park, Tuesday.

•Sheriff's deputies have the name of a suspect who may have stolen $667 from the cash register of the Gulf station, 5355 Red Bug Lake Road, Winter Springs, between May 7 and 11. The loss was reported by the store manager Tuesday.

•A $628 range was stolen between Saturday and Monday from a vacant General Homes, of Casselberry, house at 3883 Buscayne Drive, Winter Springs, a sheriff's report said.

•Sheriff's deputies have the name of a suspect who rented a $2,700 pressure washer Friday and failed to return it Tuesday as promised to Taylor Rental, 3215 S. Orlando Drive, Sanford.

•Fred Jackson, of 975 Snowhill Road, Geneva, reported to sheriff's deputies 132 sprinkler heads with a combined value of $2,376 were stolen in a burglary to a construction site trailer at Rampton Cove, Lake Mary, between Friday and Monday.

Storm season begins today

By Fred H. Cooper
 Herald Staff Writer

A big hurricane conference is going on over at Tampa even as a low pressure area near Cuba is bending its body into a northerly direction. Then, from out of a west comes the prognostications of Colorado State's William Gray: 1988 will be one of the most active hurricane years of the 1980s.

Now the chief forecaster for the National Weather Service says that predicting hurricanes is a chancey thing at best. Never mind the Seminole's who study the habits of swamp animals for clues of impending storm activity. Put your trust in the Indians — you never heard of destruction by wind of any condominium chukees.

By the same token, watch that storm in the Caribbean. It's southwest of Havana and shows little increase in intensity during the last 24 hours. If, and that's a big if, it starts any growth in the next 3 days, it will affect us, if only with some rain and that we need.

Fortunately, though we haven't had much rain of late, the temperatures have pretty much stayed in the 80s during the day. And, without that moisture, the humidity has stayed in the 50s and 60s. Thus, you haven't sweated. It's been balmy, eh what.

Can you believe Sarasota and Crestview tied for highest high honors yesterday with 92 degree readings. Sanford was near the lowest with 62 degrees last night.

A heavy downpour that drenched New Mexico and stranded a slew of motorists shifted east and soaked Oklahoma and Texas, where nearly 10 inches of rain fell Local flood warnings were posted over northern Texas.

Forecaster Harry Gordon said the heavy rain in central Texas caused flooding at Caldwell, Cross Plains and Dublin. Low-lying streets in Cisco and Eastland were closed by flooding.

In Caldwell, thunderstorms hurled hail and winds that gusted more than 50 mph and downed trees and knocked out power, Gordon said.

(Reports by United Press International and data provided by the National Weather Service were used in compiling this report.)

Small plane pilot blamed in near-miss

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The pilot of a small plane that nearly collided with a Continental Airlines DC-9 was illegally flying in the air space, the National Transportation Safety Board said Tuesday.

The pilot of the commercial jet was forced to make an emergency bank and climb to avoid hitting the single-engine plane at about 2 p.m. Monday, Federal Aviation Administration officials said.

Authorities were unable to locate the pilot of the smaller plane.

Air traffic controllers at Hopkins International Airport could not locate the small craft on radar after the Continental pilot radioed them, Phil Powell, an NTSB investigator in Atlanta said.

Officials credited quick action by the Continental flight crew with preventing a major disaster. There were 79 passengers and five crew members aboard Continental Flight 283. The incident occurred while the plane was at 7,000 feet on an approach to the Cleveland airport from Boston, about five miles east of the airport.

A Continental flight attendant suffered minor injuries when she was thrown around the cabin as the pilot made the sharp climbing turn to avoid the smaller plane.

The Continental pilot, who was not identified, said he was about 100 feet vertically and the span of the DC-9's wing horizontally from the small plane.

"We have no idea where the single engine aircraft went," said Powell.

Finley Downes, manager of the Cleveland FAA office, said the pilot of the smaller craft apparently was flying illegally in the airport's terminal area.

Bakker makes surprise visit to PTL, vows to stay

FORT MILL, S.C. (UPI) — Jim Bakker made a surprise visit to PTL grounds Tuesday afternoon and vowed to stay until Heritage USA is restored as a Christian retreat.

Bakker told reporters and a small contingent of the Bakker faithful that he was at PTL for a meeting with his long-time ally Roe Messner and PTL attorneys.

Messner, builder of PTL's plush Heritage Grand Hotel and several other buildings on the sprawling grounds of the bankrupt ministry, claims PTL owes him $14 million.

"He (Messner) needs my testimony about matters pertaining to billings of Messner Enterprises, and that's something I know a great deal about," Bakker said.

But Bakker, who quit as head of PTL amid a sex scandal, said he and his wife, Tammy Faye, are prepared to stay until Heritage USA is restored. Bakker said his wife will join him later this week.

"We're here to stay until this place is totally a Christian center," said Bakker, responding to a follower who asked if he was back for good.

A reporter asked what right he had to return to PTL.

"What right do I have to be here?" Bakker asked. "I'm Jim Bakker and I love God and we'll do everything in our power to restore this place if we have to buy it piece by piece."

Bakker, wearing a gray suit with a carnation boutonniere, said "I feel great, great," to be back at PTL.

"I'm just kind of looking it over," he said, looking up at the World Outreach Center, site of his former office. "This is the first time I've had to see my office in more than a year."

"Six months ago the guard at the gate would have shot me if I tried to drive onto these grounds, and today he welcomed me."

PTL spokesman David West confirmed Messner's meeting with PTL attorneys, but would say only that "debtor-creditor negotiations are going on."

While Bakker was huddled with Messner and PTL attorneys, other PTL officials were working on preparations for a new ministry to replace the bankrupt PTL.

A last ditch plea for money last week resulted in $320,000 in contributions to the bankrupt PTL television ministry, and the Rev. Sam Johnson said Tuesday the scandal-ridden PTL may give way to a "new" ministry in a matter of days.

Johnson continued to beg for contributions on "The PTL

—Jim Bakker

Show," saying the money is needed to keep the show on the air until the new debt-free ministry can take its place.

"We are still in bankruptcy, but coming out of bankruptcy is going to emerge a brand new ministry — it could be called Heritage Ministries," Johnson said.

"Red Benton is a liquidating trustee," Johnson said. "He has no golden goose, there is no golden egg. If we don't come up with the money, we will go off the air."

Johnson said the name of the new ministry was not "etched in stone," but people were meeting behind the scenes Tuesday to formulate a constitution and bylaws for the new organization.

"We must have a board that will be representative of this new ministry to lead us and guide us, a leader must be chosen. All of these things must happen and will happen in the next few days," Johnson said.

Johnson told the PTL television audience that the new ministry would lease PTL's studio and other facilities. He said once the new ministry is self-sustaining, it will have the opportunity to buy back certain other properties lost in the bankruptcy.

Former PTL trustee David Clark, following a 4 1/2-hour meeting concerning the emerging ministry, said a return of the Bakkers to the PTL grounds would have no effect on PTL's reorganization.

"It's a free country," Clark said. "They can come back and they can stay here in the hotel if they want to. We're working hard and we aren't concerned with the Bakkers. My concern is to work with the people here so we can start a new ministry."

Johnson said if the Bakkers were to return to power at PTL, he would have to leave his post as pastor of the Heritage Village Church.

"We have lived for the past 14 months with Jim and Tammy coming back not coming back, coming back not coming back and for a while they came back but they stayed out at Tega Cay," Johnson said. "If they were to come back, I'm an Assembly of God minister and I could not continue as pastor of the church."

Johnson said most surveys he has seen show a majority of the PTL partners do not support the Bakkers.

"We do know, obviously, there is a wonderful group out there that does support them," Johnson said. "We all support them in our love and our prayers."

PTL has been on a downward slide since March 1987, when Bakker quit over a sex scandal, handing the ministry over to the Rev. Jerry Falwell. A month later Bakker demanded the ministry back, saying Falwell had tricked him.

But Falwell refused, saying Bakker was guilty of a variety of sins and had practiced a lifetime of homosexuality.

Donations to PTL and other television ministries plummeted as a result of the negative publicity, and in June 1987 PTL filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection. On May 2, it failed to make a $5 million payment due creditors.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Rufus Reynolds then declared PTL in default and ordered a liquidation plan. Then-truster David Clark proposed one that calls for a sell-off of all assets, with PTL leasing back what it needs to continue as a ministry.

Fund-raiser set for boy needing organ transplants

By Joyce Herald UCF Intern

LAKE MARY — Good Shepherd Lutheran Church of Sanford and Cafe Sorrentos of Lake Mary have joined forces to hold a fund-raiser to benefit Chuck Suggs, a Lake Mary teenager in need of a heart and lung transplant.

The spaghetti dinner, provided by Cafe Sorrentos and contributions from local businesses, will be served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, located at 2917 Highway 17-92 in Sanford.

Members of the church have pledged to match each dollar collected for the Chuck Suggs Fund up to $900.

The spaghetti, salad, garlic bread dinner complete with cake will cost $4 for adults and $3 for children.

Suggs, 15, has been waiting for a life-saving heart and lung transplant in London, England. Debbie Black has been active in the effort to raise funds for the Lake Mary boy. Black said a group called the Children's Organ Transplant Association has vowed to loan the Suggs family the money to offset costs of his hospitalization.

Black said the organization, based in Indiana, has loaned the Suggs' $115,000 to cover expenses. Donations and fund raising events have allowed the Suggs' to repay the organization $102,000.

Black said they will need about $350,000 to see the teenager through his recuperation.

Donations to the Chuck Suggs Fund can be sent to Sun Bank, Trustees for the Chuck Suggs Fund, P.O. Box 3838, Orlando, Florida 32802.

Zero tolerance is intolerable

The U.S. Customs Service has clearly taken its "zero tolerance" policy to irrational and counterproductive limits. Such bizarre episodes as the seizure of the Atlantis II and its navy-owned submersible research vehicle, ALVIN, erode public confidence in the ability of federal agencies even to conduct a sensible war against drugs, let alone win it.

The $30 million scientific research ship was arrested after traces of marijuana were allegedly found among the belongings of a crew member. This action is the latest in a long string of seizures involving a commercial airliner, yachts, fishing vessels, and more than 1,100 automobiles and trucks. Public opinion speculates about the limits to which the Coast Guard, as agents of the Customs Service, will go.

It is probable, for example, that a thorough search of an airline company and its thousands of employees would turn up at least a trace of illegal drugs. Would Customs seize the whole airline in logical pursuit of its duty? Where do these anti-drug theatrics end?

The public is becoming apprehensive at the spectacle of the drug war being conducted like comic opera. No one denies that "zero-tolerance" has a role to play. Its objective is admirable. Indeed, it is illegal under federal law to possess any amount of a controlled substance.

But the Coast Guard and the Customs Service, acting with all the authoritarianism of a dictatorship, are confiscating property without evidence enough to support a criminal conviction, and in many cases denying American citizens the due process of the law.

The public is not fooled by the cosmetic campaign of harassing yachtsmen at sea and women drivers at the border, which cannot substitute for remedial action. Such extreme measures address neither the problem of drug demand nor supply. Even the author of "zero tolerance," U.S. attorney Peter K. Nunez, has been alarmed by its excesses and is now expressing reservations about the way Customs is implementing the policy.

Enough is enough. "Zero tolerance" as a program of action has gone too far. "Zero tolerance," in fact, has turned out to be intolerable. Its intemperance must be curbed. The fight against drugs need not diminish if it is conducted in the right places, against the right enemies. What does it profit us to punish the pygmies while the giants go free?

Holiday caper

The old expression "you can't win for losing" could easily be directed toward the Seminole County School Board. Last year school was in session on Good Friday and the fur flew. The school calendar for the 1987-88 academic year was prepared and the scheduling of classes on Memorial Day was carefully called to the attention of all who would read or hear at that time. At least school board officials thought that everyone knew.

The calendar was carefully crafted: two weeks winter vacation; spring break to include Good Friday; regular holidays; and appropriate publicizing.

Then the other shoe fell. Memorial Day 1988 will be a day long remembered by members of the school board. Calls from irate parents caused gridlock on the telephone systems and an estimated 30 percent of elementary school students stayed home at their parent's urging. High school students facing final exams had a higher attendance record, but that was only 80 percent.

The decision has been made, Memorial Day will be a holiday in 1989. Now the only question remaining is which other day will be the center of controversy next year. Better check the calendar now.

Isolated obstructionist or visionary?

By Steve Gerstel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate's Republican right, in delaying the INF treaty, never looked so small, so isolated, so out of step with the vast majority of conservatives.

The GOP ideologues were exposed as few in number, limited in vision and deft only at slowing the progress of inevitable ratification.

Their tactics reached the point where Senate Republican leader Robert Dole, certainly a conservative, accused them of embarrassing both the party and President Reagan.

It is ironic that ratification of the treaty, perhaps the shining foreign policy accomplishment of Reagan's two terms, was fouled by the vexing delays of his most ardent admirers.

Although the votes for their amendments hovered around a miserly 10 or 12, the number of GOP renegades was even smaller.

"It's not a group, it's two," said Dole, pinning the blame on Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina and his puppy-like companion Sen. Gordon Humphrey of New Hampshire.

In fairness, the group is larger, including at least Sen. Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming and Sen. Steve Symms of Idaho, who weighed in with their amendments, along with others who agreed with Helms but did not want to share his strange purgatory.

The INF treaty was scrutinized by three Senate committees — Armed Services, Foreign Relations and Intelligence — and then sent with Secretary of State George Shultz to Geneva for final refinements before it was ever presented to the Senate.

From the very outset of the debate, it was manifestly clear that the Senate would not tolerate any changes in the treaty and accept only additions to the resolution of ratification that would not imperil the historic document.

The treaty — the first ever to eliminate a class of missiles — had the backing of Reagan, Shultz, the Pentagon, the Western alliance and almost every senator.

Despite the overwhelming evidence, Helms and Humphrey insisted that they, and they alone, had the wisdom to protect the security of the United States and NATO.

Under different circumstances, the Senate may have suffered the unfathomable whims of Helms-Humphrey, but Reagan wanted to have the approved treaty at the summit in Moscow with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

So Senate leaders began pressing to win passage before the president sat down with Gorbachev in the Kremlin.

They finally managed to do that, but White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker was forced to wait around until Sunday morning before taking a special flight, document in hand.

That did not bother Helms in the slightest. In fact, he would much have preferred that the treaty never leave the Senate, although he admitted, "I have had no illusions from the beginning about the prospects of defeating this treaty."

One of the refreshing aspects of Helms is that he is totally immune to any form of criticism and revels in the role of obstructionist.

What then, did Helms, Humphrey and their allies accomplish? Nothing.

ROBERT WAGMAN

Did Bush know? When?

WASHINGTON (NEA) — What did George Bush know about allegations of drug dealing by Panamanian strongman Gen. Manuel Noriega? This question — like those about his knowledge of U.S.-backed arms sales to Iran — seems likely to dog the vice president through the general election in November.

The questions — being asked by the news media as well as the Democrats — are of more than passing interest. On both issues Bush was more than a casual bystander.

The vice president is running for the Oval Office based on his wide-ranging experience and what he calls his career of achievement. Over the past two terms one of Bush's primary responsibilities has been to head administration anti-drug and anti-terrorist task forces.

The natural question: How could he have fulfilled those duties if he knew of the Noriega situation and the Iran arms sales? Or, conversely, if he did not know, how can he cite a record of authority and accomplishment?

Regarding the Noriega situation, the vice president says he never heard any hard evidence that the Panamanian was involved in drug trafficking until the indictments in February by two federal grand juries in Florida.

However, there is a question about what Bush was told at a critical briefing on Dec. 16, 1985. Bush met with the then-U.S. ambassador to Panama, Everett Briggs. Also in attendance was Bush's national security adviser, Donald Gregg, and Gregg's deputy, Col. Samuel Watson III.

According to an agenda prepared for the meeting, "drug interdiction" was a major topic to be discussed. The participants have said their specific recollections of the meeting are hazy, but they are all sure that Briggs did not discuss suspected links between Noriega and drug trafficking.

This will probably become a critical campaign issue. Expect the Democrats to pound away at the obvious inconsistencies of Bush's position. Bush's aides are obviously concerned, but so far they have not been able to come up with a strategy to answer the questions.

Pot growers cultivate national forests

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — A violent drug war is being waged in our national forests and the good guys are losing.

Nearly one-fourth of the marijuana grown in the United States is cultivated, not in back yards or on private farms, but on public land in the national forests across the country. In 1980, the figure was only 5 percent. Now the U.S. Forest Service estimates that about 16,000 pot growers have staked out informal claims in the forests and are raising their crops in as many as 10,000 gardens.

This is not simply a case of 1960s dropouts puttering in the garden growing the weed for their own use. The 16,000 growers are criminals who view any outsiders as the enemy, and that includes forest rangers, innocent hikers and animals.

The lengths to which these criminal cultivators will go to protect their crop is frightening. Forest rangers tell stories that are reminiscent of the jungles of Colombia, not the vacation lands of the United States.

ROBERT WALTERS

Desert is threatened

JOSHUA TREE, Calif. (NEA) — Mention of the word "desert" invariably invokes images of vast, desolate expanses of sand stretching lifelessly to the horizon in every direction.

But that stereotype does not comport with reality here in the Mojave Desert, where myriad varieties of floral life abound, numerous species of animals thrive, and even the rocks are piled in intriguing formations.

In the high desert of the Joshua Tree National Monument, the unexpected assortment of plants, bushes and flowers includes the peach thorn, the lemonade berry and the red top buckwheat. Towering over them all is the Joshua tree, with its hard, dagger-shaped leaves and their needle-sharp points.

Jack rabbits and coyotes, squirrels and mice skitter about the desert floor. At higher elevations, chipmunks and bobcats, bighorn sheep and mountain lions prowl the pinyon-juniper scrub.

Everywhere there are great jumbled piles of boulders in the California desert, which occupies 25 million acres or one-quarter of the state's land area.

But only a string of low mountain ranges separates the region from the Los Angeles-San Diego urban corridor, where population growth is placing unremitting pressure on a desert that is as vulnerable as it is beautiful.

It has become a weekend playground not only for rockhounds, backpackers, campers and hunters, but also for owners of a variety of all-terrain vehicles and unconventional aircraft.

Four-wheel drive trucks, dirt bikes, and dune buggies compete with Go Karts and skateboards that are sail-powered, hang gliders and ultralights, gyrocopters and experimental planes.

The 16 million visits recorded every year are placing intolerable pressure on the desert. Among the nearly 100 wildlife species threatened with extinction is the bighorn sheep, the rarest big game animal in North America.

By far the biggest landowner in the desert is the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management, which administers almost half of it — but has assigned fewer than two dozen rangers to police more than 12 million acres.

BLM, traditionally oriented toward resource extraction, has never been especially sensitive to environmental values or conservation concerns.

Now, however, Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and other members of Congress are seeking enactment of legislation that would shift responsibility for protecting much of the desert from BLM to a more conservation-minded Interior Department agency, the National Park Service.

The centerpiece of Cranston's proposal, however, would be a newly created Mojave National Park carved out of 1.5 million acres of BLM-administered land east of Barstow.

Critics claim this approach would "lock up" the desert. In fact, it would leave almost 800,000 acres and 30,000 miles of paved and unpaved roads open to off-road vehicle use and other forms of recreation.

Without enhanced protection, however the splendor and diversity of the desert are threatened by practices that already have scarred its fragile landscape.

Giant heart pumps

By Susanne Fowler

CHICAGO (UPI) — A 16-foot high, 36-year-old heart is beating once again inside the Museum of Science and Industry.

The walk-through plaster and fiberglass pump is part of the refurbished $2.5 Million "Your Heart" exhibit at the Midwest's largest tourist attraction.

As with most of the museum's educational presentations, the heart display invites hands-on participation.

Visitors can press a button to see how nicotine, linked to high blood pressure, also can be used to kill pesky cockroaches. A turn of a handle helps people feel how much harder the coronary muscle must flex if arteries are constricted.

A person can enter his or her height, weight and other vital statistics into a computer to determine if he or she should lose weight or reduce stress at the workplace to lessen the chance of dying from the nation's No. 1 killer.

Yet another colorful display shows which types of foods, such as pickles and peanut butter, are surprisingly high in sodium or fat, and which types can help keep blood pressure in line and arteries clean and clear.

But what the exhibit does not include are examples of man-made hearts of even pacemakers.

Co-chairman of the rehab project, Dr. Gary Wilner, says the plastic pumps were excluded on purpose.

The exhibit, he says, is all about preventive treatment for heart disease and what people can do in the home or office, or for their kids and grandchildren, to improve their health.

Wilner, director of cardiac research and training at Evanston Hospital, north of Chicago, says heart treatment has come a long way since the museum's larger-than-life heart was first erected in 1952.

"Back then," he says, treatment of heart disease "was merely a case of benign neglect. They put you in the hospital and came back six weeks later to see if you were still alive."

Wilner says improvements followed more than a decade later with the first coronary care unit in 1963 and the first bypass operation in 1966.

owners reported a marijuana plot to authorities.

(BU) About $145 million worth of cocaine was dumped from a drug runner's plane into a Georgia national forest when the pilot tried to elude federal authorities. A black bear came upon a portion of the cocaine and died after eating some of it.

Marijuana growers are flocking to the public land in national forests partly because of what they stand to lose if they grow it on their own land. Federal authorities can confiscate the land and house of anyone caught growing marijuana at home.

Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, is investigating the problem and what can be done to stop the growers. As it now stands, the odds are with the growers. Only 135 pot growers were arrested in national forests last year. And only half of them spent more than 30 days in jail. None were sentenced to more than two years.

The poor law enforcement record is in stark contrast to the level of violence. About 400 incidents of assault or intimidation are reported annually by Forest Service employees or visitors to the national forests.

Teacher shot during gunfight

NEW YORK (UPI) — A grade-school teacher was wounded by a stray bullet as she herded students away from a gunfight just hours after officials proposed installing metal detectors at schoolhouse doors to reduce school violence.

None of the students was hurt and the teacher was treated for a minor graze wound, but the incident in the South Bronx Tuesday afternoon illustrated what educators, parents and city officials said is a chronic problem in New York City's public school system, the nation's largest.

Public School 67 principal Francine Weisler praised Bridgitte Isaacs, 27, as a "heroic and dedicated teacher" who with other teachers ignored the gunfire to herd hundreds of grade-school pupils to safety inside. Only after all the students were safe did the teacher say she had been shot in the leg, Weisler said.

"This is what we live with all the time in this area," Weisler said of the drug- and violence-plagued South Bronx.

Could include Seminole County later

State Senate passes auto inspections bill

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The Senate Tuesday voted to require automobile emissions inspections in six urban counties where air quality has fallen below federal standards.

The bill (SB 1056) would require annual emissions system inspections in Dade, Broward, Palm Beach, Hillsborough, Pinellas and Duval counties beginning in March 1990. Florida stands to lose tens of millions of dollars if air quality in those counties is not brought up to federal standards.

If additional counties fall below the federal standards — Orange and Seminole have recorded sub-standard levels already this year — the inspections would also be required in those counties.

Congress and the Environmental Protection Agency are considering revising the standards to include "commuter" counties adjoining out-of-compliance areas. If that occurs, said sponsor Sen. Curt Kiser, R-Palm Harbor, inspections could also be required in Pasco, Hernando, Clay, St. Johns and Nassau counties.

The inspections are needed, Kiser said, to protect Florida's air from the pollution pressures caused by rapid growth.

"The longer we let this go, given our growth patterns, we are going to get farther and farther out of attainment," Kiser said. "The signals are already on the horizon that Florida's air quality is declining — and it's going to get worse."

The inspections would be conducted at centralized private facilities contracted by the state, and could not cost more than $10. A car that failed the test could be repaired and then re-inspected at any state-certified garage.

The bill would allow but not require auto safety inspections at the emissions testing centers. Kiser said information gathered through those optional tests could be used in deciding whether to eventually re-establish mandatory safety inspections.

The bill also prohibits removing or tampering with any automobile's emission system.

The Senate bill is nearly identical to a companion measure that has already passed the House. Lawmakers are expected to settle the few minor differences in the bills and pass a final version before the session's scheduled adjournment Friday.

Australia intercepts arms bound for Fiji

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — A 12-ton cache of suspected Soviet arms illegally bound for Fiji was intercepted Tuesday, and customs officials said the shipment could have supplied another revolution in the South Pacific nation.

Authorities said the weapons were hidden in shipping containers marked "used machinery" that had originated in North Yemen and arrived in Sydney a week earlier via Singapore and Sri Lanka.

"We know that it looks like a comprehensive load of equipment of Russian origin," Federal Minister for Customs Barry Jones said. "It includes rifles, mortars, mortar throwers, hand grenades, detonators and TNT."

The cache was bound for Latouka, Fiji, stronghold of deposed Fijian Prime Minister Timoet Bavadra, and could have fueled a small war, customs spokesman Alistair Wilson said.

"The weapons are the sort of weapons you would see on television or on any news film from the Middle East," he said.

Fiji, a former British colony 1,700 miles northeast of Sydney, has been torn by rivalry between the island's ruling ethnic Indians and disgruntled Melanesian natives.

Irregularities in consignment documents led customs officers to inspect the containers before allowing them to be loaded onto the French freighter Capitane Cook, Wilson said.

The multimillion dollar cache had arrived seven days earlier in Sydney's Port Botany from the port of Dordrecht in North Yemen, via Sri Lanka and Singapore.

Governor vows to veto transportation fee increases

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Gov. Bob Martinez made a late entry Tuesday into negotiations over next year's state budget by vowing to veto a package of transportation fee increases being considered by House and Senate negotiators.

He also ripped spending levels in the $20.7 billion proposed House budget, declaring they would force either a deficit or a tax increase next year, and accused House leaders of election-year posturing.

"There's a spending machine in the House that needs to be curbed. We have no desire to chum that spending frenzy," the governor said, referring to fish entrails used to attract sharks.

Martinez gestured during a news conference toward a placard listing $320 million in fee increases for motorists that have been suggested at one point or another during the session.

"Should they survive the legislative process, I'll veto anything that is on here," he said. "We need to live within the dollars that have been produced by raising the sales tax to 6 percent."

However, only two of the proposed fees — a $100 auto registration fee for new residents and current residents adding additional cars, and a $1 per day rental car surcharge — are still under active consideration. And they were not included in a tentative settlement proposed late Monday night.

House-Senate budget conference subcommittees were to meet Tuesday to determine if the settlement — which basically involves splitting the difference between House and Senate spending levels — is adequate to the state's needs.

House Appropriations Chairman Sam Bell, D-Ormond

Beach, noted the governor joined the budget negotiations five days into the process. And although the House and Senate negotiators have grown testy at points, none has talked as tough as the governor.

The House and Senate have been uncharacteristically calm, and the little bit of abrasiveness we've had has been mild. The only guy running around and slam banging anything is the governor," Bell said.

He noted that it is a "blue moon" month, in which the moon waxes full twice.

"I suspect that has a bearing" on the governor's remarks, Bell said.

"In a full moon, strange things happen to people. Their teeth get longer and they start talking about not wanting to bond after all."

Guaranteeing state tax receipts and lottery profits to bonds for road and school construction were central to Martinez' budget recommendations. But he is backing off the lottery bonds now that House and Senate negotiators have identified other sources to bail out the ailing Public Education Capital Outlay fund.

Bell said Martinez' attitude increases the likelihood the Legislature will have to extend the session past its scheduled adjournment Friday to settle upon a spending plan for the fiscal year that begins July 1.

"I think they (the budget differences) can be reconciled if in fact a spending diet is accepted on the House side," said Martinez.

Statewide poll shows voters still undecided

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A statewide poll by the University of Florida shows neither party's presidential candidate with a clear lead in the run for the White House.

"The race is neck and neck this early in the race with the election outcome to be decided by those who are as yet uncommitted," said Robert Epting, who directed the research for UF's Bureau of Economic and Business Research.

Republican Vice President George Bush was the winner among the 508 registered and nonregistered voters surveyed, receiving 37 percent to 31.9 percent for Democratic Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Undecided voters accounted for 11.2 percent, respondents favoring neither candidate 10.2 percent and those declining to answer 9.6 percent.

The poll was conducted by telephone May 9-25 as part of the research bureau's monthly survey on attitudes about local and national economic trends.

When only registered voters were counted Dukakis narrowly led Bush by 39.4 percent to 38.3 percent, with 10.5 percent undecided, 9.1 percent opposed to either candidate and 2.7 percent not replying.

"There's still a great deal of room for movement in the polls by both candidates, especially here in Florida," he said.

Among those respondents not registered to vote, 44.1 percent were Bush supporters, 17.7 percent undecided, 17.7 percent supporters of neither candidate, 14.7 percent Dukakis backers and 5.9 percent declined to answer.

The deadline for Floridians to register to vote in the presidential election is Oct. 8.

Recent national polls have shown Dukakis to be ahead of Bush, but there are several reasons why the vice president might be more popular in Florida than nationwide, said Michael Martinez, a UF political science professor.

Bush's son, Jeb, is Florida's commerce secretary, Martinez said, and the vice president has good contacts with Republican office holders in the state.

"Also, like other Southern states, Florida is a little more conservative ideologically than the country at large, so Bush probably looks better here than in the Midwest and Northeast," he said.

The results give different messages to each presidential campaign, Epting said.

"Since nearly three times more unregistered voters favor Bush, the Bush camp clearly needs to focus on registering these people who already favor them," he said. "Whereas, the Dukakis people need to decide how they are going to recruit the undecideds and people who are presently committed to neither candidate."

BOSTON (UPI) — The 2-foot high solid gold cup awarded to the winner of the 1924 Ascot Cup horse race in England and valued at $88,000 was stolen early today by two men who smashed a display case at the downtown Four Seasons Hotel.

The trophy, made of 98 ounces of pure 18-karat solid gold, was in a display case along with a number of other one-of-a-kind antiques leased by the hotel from Regent-Bond Ltd., a Boston company associated with Garads Inc. of London, the official crown jewelers for England's royal family.

'Stardust': Host Lakers rout Mavs

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Celtics supposedly have legendary leprechauns sitting atop the baskets at Boston Garden.

Now, the Los Angeles Lakers offer a mystical explanation for their home-court success — and it has nothing to do with Jack Nicholson, Dyan Cannon, or the smog.

"It's Hollywood Stardust," Mychal Thompson explained. "We just sprinkle it around the Forum, and it gets us going."

What other reason could there be for Los Angeles' startling turnaround in Game 5 of the Western Conference final? After having their vaunted fastbreak vanish over the weekend at Dallas, the Lakers ran wild Tuesday night en route to a 119-102 rout of the Mavericks.

The triumph gave the defending champions a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series. The Lakers can advance to their seventh league championship series this decade with a victory Thursday night at Reunion Arena.

Game 7, if necessary, would be Saturday back at the Forum, where the Lakers are 9-0 against the Mavericks in the playoffs.

NBA PLAYOFFS

"We have a motto. We're just not going to lose at home," said Coach Pat Riley, whose club is 8-1 at the Forum during this year's playoffs. "Our best game has been the first game of each series and each 'squeeze' game."

The Lakers shot a sizzling 60 percent, including 73.7 percent (14 of 19) in the second quarter, when they fashioned a 64-47 halftime advantage. The Mavericks never threatened again, and now hope to turn their game up a notch at home, as the Lakers did.

"They're definitely more effective here, just like we're a lot better at home," Dallas guard Derek Harper said. "We'll just have to regroup."

Thompson's stardust may have had something to do with it, but it was probably just some old-fashioned elbow grease that enabled Los Angeles to win the battle of the boards for the first time in the series.

The Lakers had a 47-40 rebounding advantage, holding Roy Tarpley, who averaged 16 rebounds in the first four games, to 11 — his lowest total of the series — and only 3 in the first half. A.C. Green led the Lakers with 10 rebounds.

"We had the whole team concentrating on rebounding," said Thompson, who added 9 rebounds off the bench.

The Lakers were also ignited by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 21 points on 10 of 16 shooting, and even filled the lane on the break in the first half.

"He's 41-years-old, and he was running the break like he was a 21-year-old," Dallas Coach John MacLeod said.

If there was one moment that fired up the Lakers, it came in the first quarter, when Byron Scott was clothed to the court while soaring to the basket by the Mavericks' Sam Perkins.

"I think it was an emotional lift for us," said Magic Johnson, who had 20 assists and 15 points for the Lakers. "Like a vitamin."

Mustangs: Salvagio's, Carli's triumph

Manufacturing, Sun Bank fall in opening round action

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

FIVE POINTS — Salvagio's Boys and Carli's Hallmark Card Shop each came up with opening round victories Tuesday night to advance in the Mustang Division playoffs before 101 fans at the Seminole Pony Baseball Complex.

Salvagio's opened the playoff tournament with an 18-10 win over Metal Manufacturing with Shaun Burger picking up the win. Burger worked three innings and allowed five hits while striking out four and walking six.

Salvagio's got on the board early with three runs in the top of the first inning. After an out Geoff Crawford reached on an infield single and stole second, an error put runners on first and second and they advanced to second and third on a balk. Two passed balls accounted for the first two runs with Burger drawing a walk, Chris Sanders then walked to put runners on first and second and both moved up on a passed ball. Another passed ball scored Burger and Salvagio's never trailed.

Burger kept Metal Manufacturing scoreless in the bottom half of the inning with Salvagio's adding three runs in the top of the second to take control of the game. Keith Tedesco, Nathan Becker and "Peanut" Newfold all drew walks to open the second frame with Crawford driving in a run with a ground out to first. Eric Fredie then walked to re-load the bases with Burger following with a single to plate Becker. Sanders brought home the final run with a ground out to give Salvagio's a 6-0 lead.

Metal Manufacturing got on the board in the bottom half of the second inning with three runs with Ricky Meeks leading off with a walk, a ground out advanced Meeks. Billy Appling, Mason Alday then drew walks to load the bases. Nathan Faleck then drew an RBI walk, after the second out of the inning, Shawn St. Dennis ripped a double to left center to score two more runs and narrow the lead to 6-3.

Salvagio's added three runs off three walks and three passed balls to regain a six run advantage, 9-3, in the top of the third. Metal Manufacturing scored one run in the bottom of the third off three hits as Brian Zaladonis opened with a single advanced to third off a David Bernosky double and scored on a single by Weston Davis.

Salvagio's added a run in the top of the fourth with Metal Manufacturing scoring twice in the bottom half of the inning to move the score to 11-6.

Salvagio's then scored four runs in the top of the fifth inning to take command of the game. After an out Newfold reached on a walk, stole second and scored off a Crawford triple. Fredie

Top-seeded Lendl dumps McEnroe in French Open

By Rebecca Bryan
UPI Sports Writer

PARIS (UPI) — Top-seeded Ivan Lendl, trying for a third consecutive French Open title, advanced to the quarterfinals of the $3.9 million tournament today by defeating John McEnroe 6-7 (3-7), 7-6 (7-3), 6-4, 6-4 in the completion of their fourth-round match.

The match, originally scheduled for Monday, had been put off one day and started late Tuesday because of rain. Play was halted due to darkness with defending champion Lendl leading 6-7 (3-7), 7-6 (7-3), 4-2.

Lendl, looking different than the person who struggled in drizzle and darkness Tuesday night, conceded just one point on his own serve in the fourth set. McEnroe, the 16th seed, served well, but was caught repeatedly by the Czech's precise passing shots.

The victory evened Lendl's lifetime mark against McEnroe at 14-14.

Two-time champion Mats Wilander and American teenager Andre Agassi today were to play their rain-delayed quarterfinal matches.

Sweden's Wilander faces Spantard Emilio Sanchez, the 12th seed, and Agassi, the ninth seed, was to play Argentina's Guillermo Perez-Roldan.

Wilander beat Sanchez 8-6, 3-6, 6-0, 6-2 in their last meeting, a 1987 Davis Cup semifinal.

Agassi and Perez-Roldan have never played each other before. Agassi, 18, is the youngest American to reach a Grand Slam quarterfinal since 1968, while Perez-Roldan is the youngest Argentinian to appear in a Grand Slam quarterfinal.

Wimbledon Champion Pat Cash, the fourth seed, lost to Soviet Andre Chesnokov in a fourth round completed Tuesday.

Florida Southern wins Div. II title

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Fernando Arguelles ripped an RBI single in the 12th inning Tuesday night to score Bob LeFebvre from first and give Florida Southern a 5-4 victory over Cal State Sacramento and the NCAA Division II championship.

It was the seventh NCAA championship for Florida Southern, 48-10. Cal State Sacramento closed its season at 43-21.

Florida Southern opened with two runs in the first inning. Chris Leach, who was voted the most outstanding player of the tournament, led off with a single and scored on Chris Allen's double. Allen advanced and scored on two wild pitches by Eric Bennett.

Florida Southern took a 3-0 lead in the second when LeFebvre scored from second on a throwing error by Cal State third baseman Steve Hansen.

In a bizarre third inning,

COLLEGE BASEBALL

Sacramento's Mike Ripplingler homered off the scoreboard, but he passed Brian Hwitt, who held up at first to see how the umpire ruled the hit, and was declared out for passing his teammate.

The game was tied 3-3 when Hansen singled in Mike Brackins.

Florida Southern went up 4-3 in the sixth when LeFebvre scored from third on a wild pitch by Mike Frame, but Cal State tied the score again in the sixth when Lorenzo Lesky scored from third on an infield out by catcher Tim Taber.

In the 12th, LeFebvre walked, was sacrificed to second and scored on Arguelles' single.

John Hudek, who pitched final 1 1/3 innings for Florida Southern got the victory, improving to 12-2. Steve Schweizer took the loss for Cal State Sacramento.

Rose's suspension expires

CHICAGO (UPI) — Pete Rose's month-long suspension for shoving umpire Dave Pallone expired Tuesday, making him eligible to manage the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday against the Chicago Cubs.

Rose, suspended for shoving Pallone April 30 in Cincinnati, spent the month watching from the pressbox. He said he was not miserable during his suspension.

"Why would I want to be aggravating myself?" Rose said of his press box time. "I was prepared for it when I had my first day of the suspension. I saw more pitches than any player. The only other guy who saw every pitch was (interim manager) Tommy Helms."

"There is no sense in bitching about something I can't control. You can cry all you want but it's not going to make it 25 days."

Near perfect: Toronto's Stieb 1-hits Brewers

United Press International

Although Toronto's Dave Stieb was concerned about his stuff before the game, the right-hander's repertoire almost worked to perfection Tuesday night.

Stieb faced one batter over the minimum for his first career one-hitter to lead the Blue Jays to a 9-0 triumph over the Milwaukee Brewers.

B.J. Surhoff spoiled Stieb's perfect game with a fourth-inning single.

During his pregame warmup, Stieb said he felt uneasy because of a sore shoulder. "I was a little bit leery about how I was going to throw when I was down in the bullpen," said Stieb, 7-3. "But my shoulder loosened up, and I had a good first inning. After that, I was throwing mostly curveballs and sliders for strikes."

"Nine runs did it," said Stieb, who struck out five in earning his sixth straight victory. "That pretty well set the stage for what I had to do."

Toronto's six-run second inning was a welcomed surprise for Stieb and his teammates, who have had trouble scoring all season.

"It was a big boost for us to come up with those six runs for Dave," Toronto outfielder Jesse Barfield said.

Barfield returned to the lineup after nearly three weeks on the disabled list with a sore left wrist, and contributed an RBI single in four at-bats.

Stieb has thrown two two-hitters, and Tuesday's victory tied him with Roy Lee Jackson's 1984 club record for most triumphs (6) in May.

Toronto pounded Brewers starter Chris Bosio, 6-6, for six straight hits and six runs in the second.

Tony Fernandez doubled home the first two runs with a bases-loaded double down the right-field line. Ernie Whit and Barfield each singled home a run, and Lloyd Moseby's sacrifice fly scored Nelson Liriano. Fernandez scored from second on Bosio's error on a ground ball.

The Blue Jays added a pair of runs in the fifth off Mark Knudson to build an 8-0 lead. Kelly Gruber tripled under the glove of a diving Glenn Braggs in right field to score Rance Mulliniks. Gruber scored when Jim Ganter's throw sailed into the Toronto dugout.

George Bell put Toronto ahead 9-0 in the seventh with an RBI single. The loss was Milwaukee's worst of the season.

Elsewhere, Chicago routed Detroit 10-1, Kansas City topped Cleveland 6-3 in 10 innings, Minnesota edged Texas 8-0, Boston nipped California 4-3, Baltimore blasted Seattle 12-5, and New York blanked Oakland 5-0.

White Sox 10, Tigers 1

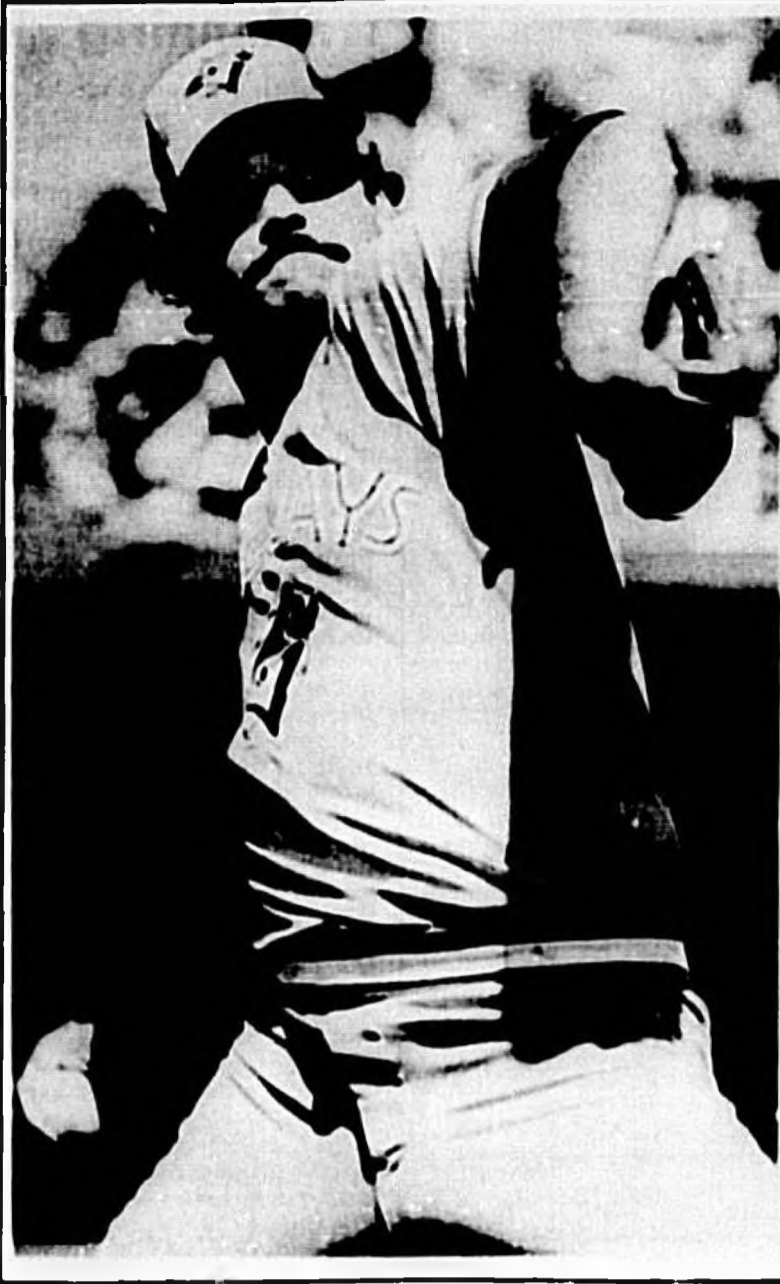

At Detroit, Ivan Calderon, Gary Redus and Ron Karkovics all homered to power Chicago. Jerry Reuss, 3-2, blanked Detroit on six hits over seven innings. Frank Tanana, 8-3, was the loser.

Royals 6, Indians 3

At Cleveland, Bill Buckner broke a 10th-inning tie with a sacrifice fly, and Scott Madison and Jamie Quirk added RBI singles helping Kansas City. Starter Mark Gubicza, 6-5, was the winner. Steve Farr picked up his third save in relief. Cleveland reliever Dan Schatzeder, 0-2, took the loss.

Twins 9, Rangers 6

At Minneapolis, Greg Gagne highlighted a three-run sixth inning with a two-run homer to help rally Minnesota. Juan Berenguer, 5-3, scattered three hits in relief, and Jeff Reardon worked one inning for his 13th save. Texas reliever Dave Mohorcic, 2-2, took the loss.

Dave Stieb fired a one-hitter Tuesday to lead the Toronto Blue Jays over the Milwaukee Brewers. It was the sixth consecutive victory for the ace righthander.

Red Sox 4, Angels 3

At Anaheim, Mike Smithson shut out California over seven innings for his first victory in nearly a year, and Marty Barrett collected three hits to boost Boston. Smithson, 1-1, allowed five hits and no walks through seven innings. Willie Fraser dropped to 4-4.

Orioles 12, Mariners 5

At Seattle, Larry Sheets and Joe Atwell each collected four hits to pace Baltimore's 16-hit attack. Orioles reliever Dave Schmidt, 2-2, pitched 3 1-3 innings. Edwin Nunez fell to 1-2.

Yankees 5, A's 0

At Oakland, Neil Allen pitched a three-hitter in relief to snap Oakland's six-game winning streak. Allen, 2-0, recorded his first complete game since shutting out the Yankees July 20, 1986 for Chicago. He relieved Al Leiter after the Yankees rookie was hit by Carney Lantford's lead-off first inning single. Steve Ontiveros fell to 3-2.

Smith's dinger buries Knepper

United Press International

Ozzie Smith, a seven-time All-Star and six-time Gold Glove shortstop, Tuesday night belted his first home run since the 1985 National League Championship Series.

Smith hit a fourth-inning three-run homer to propel the St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-7 triumph over Bob Knepper and the Houston Astros in his 11-year career. Smith has 14 homers — all of them right-handed.

"I was just happy to hit the ball hard," said Smith, whose last homer was the pennant winner in Game 5 of the '85 League Championship Series against Los Angeles. "I just guessed right because Knepper varies his speed and is cool and crafty."

Larry McWilliams, 4-0, allowed four runs over five innings. Todd Worrell worked 2 1-3 innings to earn his league-leading 14th save.

Knepper, 6-1, began the game with a 1.28 ERA, lowest in the majors. He allowed eight runs, though only two earned, in six innings.

The Cardinals took a 1-0 lead in the first. Vince Coleman and Smith reached on errors by first baseman Glenn Davis and second baseman Jim Pankovits. Coleman scored on Tom Pagnozzi's infield single.

Houston went ahead 2-1 in the second on Alex Trevino's two-run double.

St. Louis scored five unearned runs in the fourth. Tony Pena opened with a single and took third on Jose Oquendo's two-out double. McWilliams grounded to third, but Chuck Jackson overthrew Davis for a two-run error. Coleman singled, before Smith lifted a 2-0 pitch over the left-field fence.

"Our defense allowed six runs to score," Astros Manager Hal Lanier said. "Some teams go through a tough period, but we made fundamental errors on fundamental plays. You can't let a team have six runs when they shouldn't have had any." Houston cut St. Louis's lead to 6-4 in the fifth on Billy Hatcher's second homer of the season, a two-run shot.

Cubs 4, Reds 0

At Chicago, Jeff Pico fired a four-hitter in his major-league debut as the 30-day suspension of Cincinnati Manager Pete Rose ended. Pico, 22, handed the Reds their fourth straight defeat and 12th in 27 games under interim manager Tommy Helms. Andre Dawson hit his 11th homer, his first since May 13.

Giants 9, Expos 2

At Montreal, Robby Thompson smacked his first homer of the season and Jeffrey Leonard his second to make a winner of Rick Reuschel, 7-3. Thompson's three-run blast off Bryn Smith, 3-4, lifted San Francisco to a 6-0 cushion.

Braves 11, Pirates 1

At Atlanta, Tom Glavine, 2-6, scattered four hits over eight innings, backed by a 17-hit attack. Ken Oberkfell had four hits, and Dale Murphy and Gerald Perry three apiece. The game was delayed 15 minutes in the eighth inning because of a partial power outage.

Padres 8, Phillies 0

At Philadelphia, Andy Hawkins, 5-4, pitched a four-hitter, helping Manager Jack McKeon improve to 2-2, and stopping Philadelphia's winning streak at four. Marvella Wynne stroked four hits and scored two runs, and Tony Gwynn had three RBI for San Diego. David Palmer fell to 0-5.

Mets 8, Dodgers 4

At New York, Kevin Elster's two-out homer in 11th off of Alejandro Pena, 2-2, lifted New York to its fifth victory without a loss against Los Angeles. Randy Myers, 3-0, pitched a perfect 11th. Dwight Gooden failed for the second time to become the NL's first nine-game winner.

Chinese divers aim for Olympic gold

By Ira Kaufman
UPI Sports Writer

TAMPA (UPI) — When Olympic diving competition begins this summer, keep your eye on the team that has chartered an Orient Express to Seoul.

After traditional excellence in gymnastics and volleyball, Chinese athletes have been taking the plunge off the 3-meter board and the platform. A recent two-week exhibition swing through Florida offered a primer on just how far Chinese divers have progressed.

"The Chinese have come on real fast and improved a lot ... that's obvious," says LSU diving coach Don Crane, who led an eight-member U.S. squad in a dual meet against the Chinese at Largo, Fla., in May. "They can do some spectacular things, but what I don't think they can do against us is compete. When you're diving in college, you have a meet every weekend and you get used to the tension. Being nervous can take away from your performance, if you're not used to it."

Chinese divers showed little springboard fright in Largo as Li Hongping won the men's 3-meter — becoming just the fourth diver to top 700 points — and Li Qing topped the women competitors. The next day, less than a week after her victory against an international field in Boca Raton, China's Chen Xiaodan placed first in women's 10-meter.

"When you watch the Chinese, you see a new era of diving in the making," says 25-year-old Megan Steyer, who holds 14 U.S. National springboard titles. "It's scary, it's very scary. You'll see a little 14-year-old boy (Chen Yingnan) and a little 14-year-old girl (Chen Xiaodan) doing the hardest tricks you can do, that's the wave of the future."

Chinese diving coaches have studied American techniques intensely since the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles, where Greg Louganis paced a U.S. conquest. Wendy Wyland, 23, the 1984 Olympic bronze medalist on platform, placed second to Chen Xiaodan in the Largo meet. One year after undergoing successful shoulder surgery, Wyland offers a few words of advice for Chinese diving instructors.

Slow down.

"My hat's off to the Chinese, but these girls come in real quick and go out real quick, too," says Wyland. "Their bodies simply burn out. When we see them at meets, they're up there (platform) twice a day. In general, we don't dive as much as they do. The Chinese and the Russians are good, but they're beatable."

Mike Wantuck, 24, who won the NCAA's 3-meter title in 1987, can't help but notice the strides made by young Chinese divers eager for a spot on the Seoul victory platform. But when he sees the consistently high scores awarded to Chinese divers, Wantuck wants to place an asterisk next to the mark.

"In the U.S., we have always emphasized strong, aesthetic diving — doing the hard tricks and making it look easy," Wantuck says. "Now, it seems like it's a contest to see who can do the most somersaults. No offense, it's exciting, however the judging has been steered away from rewarding someone who works to make it look easy. The Chinese are excellent technicians, but their emotions don't show through. They don't all look alike ... but they all sure dive alike."

Chen Xiaodan lists stamp collecting and reading novels as her principal hobbies. At the age of 14, she's been diving seriously for three years. Chen enjoys the freedom of expression derived from the more spectacular dives off the platform and she expects to somersault her way to Seoul.

"I get more excitement from the difficult dives," she says, her twinkling eyes making an interpreter superfluous. "The best part of my first trip to America has been winning. I like diving up to my level."

The broadcaster who throws batting practice

Thorne, who teams with Bob Murphy in the Mets' radio booth, works out with the team before games.

"Because I'm left-handed, I'm helpful throwing batting practice," said Thorne, who also takes throws at first base. "Sometimes you can't find enough good left-handers to throw batting practice, especially if the team is going to face a left-hander."

Thorne began his ritual when he was working games for the Triple-A Maine Guides of the International League. Doc Edwards, now the Indians' manager, was then manager of Maine and open to letting Thorne participate. Thorne has continued the practice since joining the Met broadcast team four years ago.

"I have to be very careful when I do this," Thorne said. "There is a tacit understanding with the players that things said in the clubhouse or in the shower will stay there. But, yes, this helps my personal relationship with the players."

Thorne does not wear a Mets uniform when he works out, and he says there is an important reason why.

"I never want it perceived that I'm one of the guys," Thorne said. "I do this because I enjoy it."

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Expos have changed reliever Tim Burke's role from a short to a middle reliever.

Last year Burke was the Expos' stopper, posting a record of 7-0 with 18 saves and an 1.19 ERA. This season, his ERA was 4.07 heading into the series with the Giants.

"We are moving Tim down and we are going to either Joe Hesketh, Andy McGaffigan or Jeff Parrett to complete the games if we need them," said Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers.

COOK OF THE WEEK

Is she Aussie, Scot or American?

Her recipes reveal relish for all three countries

By Jane Hale
Herald Correspondent

Our Cook of the Week claims to have three homelands: Scotland, Australia and the United States.

Hazel Hardy was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and was raised there. "I had two very wonderful parents," she said. She also has two sisters who still live in Scotland. One is a teacher, who loves to travel, while the other is content to sit at home raising a family.

"I went to the University of Edinburgh to study music," Hazel said. "This is where I met Graham Hardy."

"We met at a Radio Broadcast Service. There were two fellows there and one of them happened to be Graham Hardy, and the other one, believe it or not, was a boy by the name of Donald Duck. I was singing in the university choir. Graham had already graduated and I was trying to avoid him, but finally did meet up with him when we were performing. We became engaged while I was in my senior year at the University."

Not long afterward, the two became engaged. Graham went off to New York on a postgraduate course. While he was gone for 10 months, Hazel finished college and earned a bachelor's in music.

"I was glad we were engaged because the young man who went with Graham came home with an American wife."

When Graham came home, he went back to the assistantship at the church he had left. He was there for six months, preaching with a minister named James Stewart, before he and Hazel were married in that church.

They then went to their first parish, located in the country, and stayed there for five years.

Graham is also very talented in music, Hazel said. "We both decided we would take a course at the Royal Academy of Music. You must go to London to take the test." Graham played the piano and Hazel sang. "We both got our diplomas," she said.

"In this little parish called Alyth, we started a choral group which turned into a Gilbert and Sullivan chorus, which is still going strong. The people there just loved it."

The Hardys almost came to the States twice, but something always happened before they came over. Graham was called unexpectedly to a very large church in Edinburgh, where they were to stay for 14 years. "It was a very fulfilling experience," Hazel said. "I helped a bit in the church there. But with two small children and Grandfather coming to live with us, I found it most difficult to do more. We have two wonderful children who both stayed behind in Australia."

Their son, David, 30, is in the hotel business and enjoys surfing. He is single and keeps busy, especially during the tourist season. Their daughter, Heather, 26, is married and works as a registered nurse who works with the mentally handicapped. "She is a very patient young lady," Hazel said. "She is also quite musically talented. She enjoys playing Australian folk songs with a band in Sydney, and she also plays the violin."

Grandfather was 85 years old when he came to stay with the family and stayed until he passed away at age 93.

One day Graham answered a phone call from a church in Sydney, Australia, asking if he would look them over while they looked him over. Mr. and Mrs. Hardy were gone for three weeks, returned to Edinburgh, and reared Grandfather, their 8-year-old and their 4-year-old for moving. "We had twenty wonderful years in Australia. It was the most exciting ministry you could ever imagine. The Australians are terribly kind. I discovered that in Australia a minister's wife must take a very active part in the church. Fortunately I enjoy doing things for the church, and the more you do, the more there is to do. In Sydney I did everything from A to Z."

Several Americans attended the Sydney church, Hazel said. "So they celebrated certain holidays such as Thanksgiving and they always observed the Battle of the Coral Sea—so vital to the Australians because, without the help of the Americans, Australia would have been overtaken by the Japanese."

Graham retired at age 65 from the church in Sydney, but with nothing to do, he was like a caged animal who can't sit still, Hazel said. He had been to the

MICROWAVE MAGIC

Fish doesn't need deep fat frying

Why is it that for most of us it seemed that fish and a frying pan just went together? No matter that it was messy to prepare, difficult to digest and certainly not good for dieters.

Breading and frying in deep fat is not the only way to prepare fish nor is it the easiest. As you may have already discovered, the moist, fast cooking accomplished by the microwave prepares flavorful fish to fork-tender perfection. The flavor is best when fish is cooked for just a short time—usually about 4-5 minutes per pound of fish using a 650-700 watt microwave oven.

Many of you who fish for trout in North Carolina might like to try this easy steamed trout.

STUFFED TROUT

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/2 cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped onion
3 slices bread, cubed
1 teaspoon dried parsley flakes
1 whole trout (about 16 ounces)

Midge Mycoff

1/2 teaspoon salt
2-3 slices lemon
Combine butter, celery and onion in glass bowl. M/W on 100 percent power 4-4 1/2 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Stir in bread and parsley.
Rinse trout; pat dry. Sprinkle cavity with salt. Place on glass serving plate; spoon stuffing mixture into cavity, letting excess stuffing overflow. Place lemon slices on stuffing inside cavity. Cover with plastic wrap. M/W on 100 percent power for 6-7 minutes or until fish flakes apart easily with fork. Let stand covered a few minutes before serving.
Halibut is a favorite fish of many because it has a delicate "unfishy" flavor and meaty firmness to the flesh. This simple recipe has mushrooms and a sour cream sauce.

BAKED HALIBUT

1 pound halibut steaks, thawed if necessary
Salt to taste
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 2 1/2 ounce can of mushrooms, drained, or 1/2 cup fresh mushrooms
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon dry sherry or lime juice
Paprika
Sprinkle halibut with salt. Place in a greased shallow baking dish. M/W on 100 percent power for 2 minutes.
M/W butter on 100 percent

Don't guess about food safety; phone Uncle Sam

WASHINGTON — Florida will be one of three states in on a three-month trial of the "Food Safety Hotline," offered through a joint program of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Residents of Illinois and Massachusetts also will be able to contact the new consumer service in June, July and August by dialing 1-800-426-3758 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

The hotline, which is to address any aspect of food safety, will be staffed with USDA home economists who currently handle the thousands of calls received annually by that agency's Meat and Poultry Hotline (1-800-535-4555), a tollfree service launched in 1985.

Among questions the government anticipates on the Food Safety Hotline are:

"I plan to cook three chickens for a big dinner party, but I keep hearing so much about Salmonella and chickens. What should I do to make sure there is no problem of food poisoning?"

"My son likes to take leftovers back to college with him after a weekend at home. It's a three-hour drive. How can he transport these foods safely?"

United States several times to preach and remembered a program called Interim Preachers, providing a temporary preacher until a permanent one can be found. So the Hardys moved to America and Graham was accepted by a church in Charleston, W. Va.

After 10 1/2 delightful months there, it was time for the Hardys to move again. This time, Sanford was the destination chosen for them. "We are just loving it here," Hazel said. "It is really a very lovely town and the people here are terrific. We are encouraging our friends to come and visit us here. This is our third homeland, and I couldn't think of any place else I would rather be. Of course, we miss our children very much and hope to see them one day soon. Whether they will come here or we shall go see them we will just have to wait and see."

Hazel enjoys meeting people and helping them in any way she can.

"My philosophy is in this little prayer called 'The Best Recipe.'" she said.

The Best Recipe

"Take a heaped cup of patience. One heartfelt love. Two handfuls of generosity. A dash of laughter. One handful of understanding. Sprinkle generosity with kindness and plenty of faith. Mix well, spread over a lifetime, and serve everybody you meet."

Among Hazel's more edible recipes are the following:

POTATO SCONES (Scottish)

8 ounces cooked old potatoes
Pinch of salt
Enough all-purpose flour to bind
1/2 ounce butter
Milk
Sieve (mash smoothly) potatoes and add salt; knead as much flour into this as will take it up and add enough milk to make a stiff dough. Roll out very thinly on a floured board. Cut into rounds and prick with a fork. Bake on a hot griddle or heavy non-stick frying pan for about 5 minutes, turning when half cooked. When baked, butter the scones; roll up, serve very hot—right away.

Lake Mary High senior-cadet wins Navy League scholarship

LAKE MARY — Carlos Urbina, a graduating senior at Lake Mary High School, has been awarded a $1,000 scholarship by the Navy League, Orlando Council.

The annual award is presented to one outstanding cadet in any of the five Naval or Marine Corps Jr. R.O.T.C. units in Seminole and Orange counties.

Urbina holds the highest cadet rank possible in his unit—cadet major. In four years at Lake Mary, he advanced from private to cadet captain and finally major. His academic grade average is 3.56 and he is a member of the National Honor Society.

At an award program at Lake Mary High School, Commander W.C. Spratt, USNR-Ret., presented the cadet with the award.

Final disbursement of the scholarship is based on attendance in college in September, 1968 with enrollment in a program leading to a commission in the Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard.

Cadets are nominated for the award by the Senior Navy or Marine Corps instructor in their unit.

The Navy League, with councils throughout the country, is the so-called "Civilian Arm of the Navy."

DEAR ABBY

Woman sees dilemma: Smoke or gain weight

DEAR ABBY: I am currently dating a good-looking, 33-year-old woman who has a medium frame and a shapely figure. She smokes and would like to quit, but she's afraid if she quits she will gain weight. I do not want her to lose her shapely figure, nor do I want her to smoke.

Can you list some possible solutions to win in both departments?

GENE IN JASPER, IND.

DEAR GENE: Your good-looking friend is not alone. There are many people who smoke to stay trim, but few will admit it.

If she really wants to quit, she should get in touch with her local branch of the American Cancer Society and latch onto the stop-smoking program. She'll be given tips on weight maintenance at the same time. The longer she smokes, the harder it will be to quit. Many have learned too late that it was a terrible price to pay for a shapely figure.

DEAR ABBY: My family tells me I'm abnormal because I eat only one item at a time. I dish out three or four items on my plate and eat them separately. Just because I don't take a few bites of this and a few bites of that, they say I'm abnormal and peculiar. My family is always putting me down and degrading me for the way I eat.

So what's wrong with the way I eat? Please put your answer in the paper so they can see it. Then maybe they will get off my back. Thank you.

J.M.B., MARYLAND

DEAR J.M.B.: I wonder what's eating your family. Your manner of eating is neither abnormal nor peculiar. Many others prefer to eat one item at a time.

DEAR ABBY: I sincerely hope the Minnesota son takes your advice and asks his father how he can help him. He is young and has many years ahead of him. Happiness doesn't thrive on hatred and bitterness. Forgiveness is much more satisfying. I should know.

Medicines for diabetes are powerful drugs

DEAR DR. GOTT: I currently take Sinequan and Tegretol for diabetic neuropathy. Do I need a vitamin/mineral supplement? I've heard that these two drugs deplete one's body of certain vitamins.

DEAR READER: Neither Sinequan, a tricyclic anti-depressant, nor Tegretol, an anti-convulsant, has been reported to cause vitamin/mineral deficiencies. They are potent drugs, however, and can induce a number of side effects, including low blood pressure, jaundice, depression of blood-cell formation and confusion. As a diabetic, you must be especially careful to obtain a balanced diet, containing adequate vitamins and minerals, and to follow your doctor's advice about general health measures.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My son, 7, has been having a very vivid recurring nightmare and is now afraid to fall asleep. I've tried to reason with him and have tried to get him to "think happy thoughts" at bedtime, but my psychology has not worked. What can you suggest?

DEAR READER: Nightmares are common in children and may reflect tensions and stresses of which you are not aware. I suggest that you address this problem with your son's pediatrician; a doctor who is familiar with your son can offer the best advice.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 14 years old. How do you get rid of warts?

DEAR READER: Warts are caused by a particular virus infection of the skin. They often disappear on their own, without treatment. Commercially available wart-removing compounds, such as Verru, may be useful if the warts persist. Finally, you might ask your parents to take you to a dermatologist who could remove the warts or give you further information about getting rid of them.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother says that contact lenses will scratch my eyes and blind me. Is she right?

DEAR READER: Not exactly.

When properly fitted, cleaned and maintained, contact lenses are safe and will not impair vision. However, such lenses can cause problems. If they are poorly contoured to the eye or are worn too long, they can scratch the cornea and produce severe discomfort. Furthermore, people sometimes become allergic to the lens' cleaning fluid; this can cause pronounced eye irritation.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

In standard bidding, new suits by the responder below game are forcing bids (unless responder has passed originally). A very useful extension of this concept is that when responder bids two new suits, then supports opener's suit, opener cannot pass until at least a game contract is reached. This understanding was useful to North-South in arriving at the best contract in the current deal.

After responding one diamond and then bidding two spades, North was happy to bid three clubs with the knowledge that South could not suddenly pass. If the heart strength in South's hand were K-Q-J or K-J-10, or even A-J-x or K-J-x, South might continue with three no-trump, but with only the ace for a heart stopper. South was right to cue-bid the heart ace. When North showed a second control in the spade suit, South showed his king of diamonds. That was enough information for North, who then bid six clubs. But what if South had the same hand with the K-Q of clubs rather than the A-K? In our view, with only 12 high-card points he would not bother to show the king of diamonds. He would simply bid four clubs over three spades, and North would settle for five clubs.

On a bad day, six clubs would be unlucky since West might hold three to the queen. Fortunately this day the sun was shining and the slam made.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
JUNE 2, 1988

In the year ahead, an interesting chain of events will lead to fortuitous developments where your career is concerned. Things could occur that will give you an inside track towards gratification of your ambitions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone privy to inside information may try to help you further your ambitions today. Protect your source so that this channel will remain open. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what is needed to restore the relationship. Mail #2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Diplomacy and tact will have more impact today than aggressiveness will. Keep this in mind if you have to negotiate a rather delicate matter.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you feel the urge to serve your fellow man today, by all means yield to it. Your greatest gratification will come when working for noble ends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you are promoting something special today, do it with a flair. A little showmanship will distract your audience's attention from your competition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Give credence to your hunches in financial matters today. You'll have a sixth sense operating that can serve you well when it comes to buying or selling.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Any project that permits you to utilize your imagination could turn out to be very rewarding for you today. Concentrate on the mental and leave the muscle work for later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Sometimes the pump must be primed in order to generate a flow. Seed money might be required today in order to stimulate a commercial arrangement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.

19) Proper associations are essential today. If you attempt something with a person whose ideals are in harmony with yours, there should be mutual benefits.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A secret ambition that you've been nurturing has excellent chances of being fulfilled today, provided you don't prematurely broadcast your intentions to others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Positive conditions may soon replace influences that have caused you anxiety and concern. These favorable happenings can be accelerated if you envision positive results.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't let matters develop in an uncontrolled, random fashion at this time where your career is concerned. Specific objectives can be achieved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An alliance that you already treasure looks like it is going to be strengthened over the next few days. Specific events will provide the catalyst.
