Feather Wants Opponent To Back Out Of Primary

Republican County Commissioner Robert G. "Bud" Feather has called on his opponent in the upcoming September GOP primary to withdraw from the race in the interests of unity within the party.

But Fred Streetman, who announced his candidacy for the District 3 seat on the county commission more than a year ago, declared today he has no intention of withdrawing.

"The number of supporters and contributors that have come forward to encourage me give me every reason to think I will win the nomination," said Streetman, who has been actively involved in the local Republican Party for the past 12 years or more.

Feather, who called a breakfast meeting with party leaders — James Weinberg, James Stelling and Maryanne Morse — more than a week ago, sent a letter to Mrs. Morse after calling for Streetman's withdrawal.

In his letter, Feather said, "I want to make it perfectly clear that I have no intention to slander any officeholder during the campaign as you charged at the meeting. You know that my record as a public servant over the past 12 years is impeccable from a conservative, Republican point of view."

Feather served eight years on the school board and is completing his first four-year term on the county commission.

Mrs. Morse denied she had accused Feather of using slander in a campaign. "In some remarks he implied it might be necessary to comment on other elected officials and I asked him if he felt it would be necessary to slander any elected official," she said.

Feather's letter said he reviewed actual board decisions with the three and cited the example of his colleagues "giving away for $1 per year a prime piece of commercial property for 60 years to a special interest group that will cost each of us as taxpayers over $300,000 in lost revenue over that period..."

Feather is referring to the county's 30 year lease with an option for a second 30-years of a parcel of county-owned land in the Five Points area to the Seminole County Humane Society.

Feather said another example of his colleagues' activity was scheduling the $20 million library bond issue for the October primary two years ago when it was known that the issue would pass due to poor voter turnout.

"My vulnerability, if any," Feather said, "is the number of voting conflict forms I have filed. Although legally required to file only five, my personal policy is to reveal any and all possible conflicts either real or imagined."

Streetman, however, did not take even five lightly.

"I believe someone, with the number of conflicts that Bud Feathers has, including conflicts that enabled him to make personal profit through his motions and votes, should rethink whether it is a service to the citizens of Seminole County or his party to try to continue in his office."

Feather said, "Given my accomplishments over the past 12 years it's ridiculous that a Republican, especially one who should have the well being of the party at heart above his personal ambition would promote a Republican primary election. —Donna Estes

Williams Quits School Board In Career Move

Roland V. Williams, the first and only black ever to serve on the Seminole County School Board, has submitted his resignation to Gov. Bob Graham, effective June 27 at the close of the school board meeting scheduled that day.

In his letter of resignation, Williams said he has accepted "a career opportunity with a corporation in Atlanta."

Roland Williams

Ron Boeth, SEA executive director, said today, "We are in process of working on a recommendation and will be forwarding that on to the governor."

Boeth said the SEA leadership is talking to several people about being prospective candidates to succeed Williams. He declined, however, to name any special candidate under consideration, saying the SEA will be recommending a candidate "who will continue to represent the full county including minorities."

Williams, 36, will not only be leaving the School Board where he has served for the past six years, and the Martin-Marletta Corp. where he has been employed for the past 11 years as an engineer, he will also be resigning an alternate delegate post to the Democratic Party's national convention to be held in July in San Francisco.

Williams was elected an alternate delegate pledged to former Gov. Reubin Askew in Florida's March Democratic presidential preference primary. In that primary, Williams carried the highest number of votes cast in Seminole County for any delegate or alternate.

And he was considered a shoo-in for re-election to the school board this year. No one has announced intentions to run against him. After he was appointed to a vacancy on the school board in the summer of 1978, Williams successfully ran for election later that year and for re-election in 1980.

A native Floridian, Williams and his family live in Longwood. Their two children — Elaine, 13, and Roland Jr., 9 — are students in the Seminole County district.

Williams said although he was proud of his election as an alternate delegate and had planned to attend the convention, that will not be possible because he will be in a transition stage with his new job.

Early in his career, Williams was a school teacher in the Seminole County schools.

He said he would like his replacement on the school board to be a person, "who is open-minded, willing to work hard, dedicated to the students and the public, and willing to follow through on programs initiated by me."

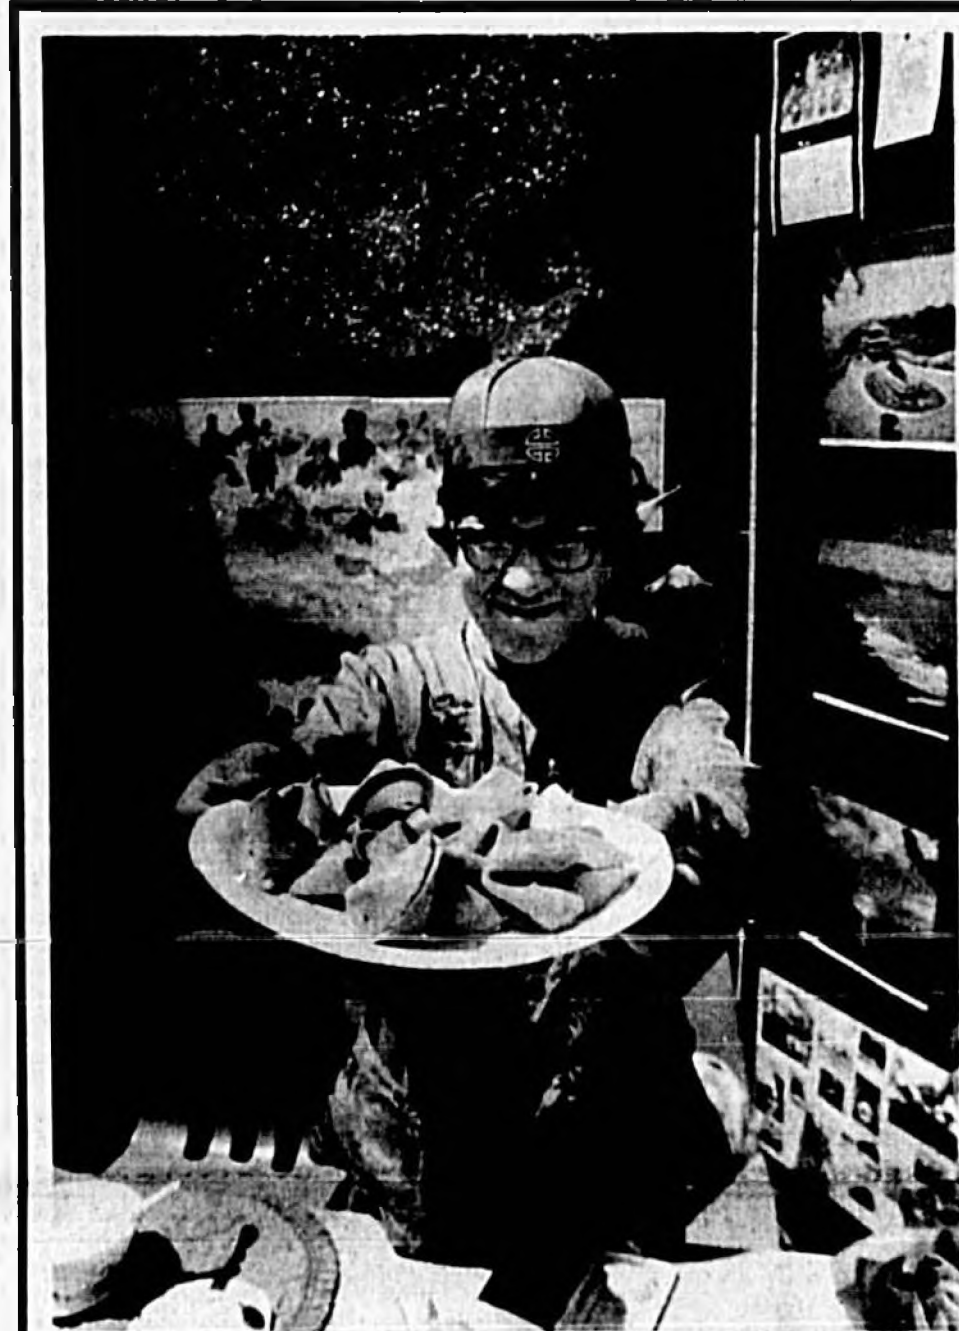

"There are many potentially good candidates out there," he said.

Williams gained support from his colleagues in asking for a commitment to work toward raising the state test scores of blacks and other under-achievers in the school system.

Williams had said that the average test scores of blacks before the latest results were issued were no better than those achieved in the segregated schools of the 1960's.

He also urged a human relations program to be undertaken so that teachers, principals and administrators could better communicate with minority students.

"I want to see 'I can' type programs in the school," Williams said. "If we put high expectations on the children we will help them develop a belief in self and self-worth achievement will follow." —Donna Estes

Mini-World Showcase

Fifth grader Steven Wilbur, above, offers Chinese Fortune cookies to passersby at Southside Elementary School's International Fair. The 10-year-old was in the fair's China exhibit. Snake charmers Beth Ross, 9, with flute, and Samuel Moran, 10, with snake, both fourth graders, right, were part of the India exhibit. The fair climaxed a three-day international event at the school last week which included a film festival, dancers, slide shows about many nations and guest speakers with first-hand knowledge of foreign countries.

$10 Million Development Planned For Lakefront

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

An 11.6 acre tract of land with 1,000 feet on the Monroe lakefront in Sanford, across the street from and north of the Evening Herald building, has been sold to a group of Houston developers for $1.3 million and a $10 million commercial-residential development should begin construction there by summer's end.

Sanford attorney William Hutchison, who closed the sale on behalf of his clients, Lakefront Development Ltd., said the sellers of the tract are a group that was encouraged to purchase the property by the Banker's Committee of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce 12 years ago. After the purchase the city rescinded zoning which would have allowed a fuel tank farm there.

Mayor Lee P. Moore, who said he knew little of the proposed development today, added, "It sounds great."

The tract, on Seminole Boulevard between French and Maple Avenues with some frontage on Fulton Street, was used as a tank farm when the old Navy base was located at the Sanford Airport.

Hutchison said development plans for the property, expected to cost $10 million, include construction of 256 luxury rental apartments, 24,000 square feet of retail space and a "first class" restaurant. Preliminary plans are nearly completed, Hutchison said. The buyers, who will be developing land in Central Florida under the name of Lake View Limited, expect to present a site plan to the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission later this month for approval, he said.

The Florida firm is a subsidiary of the Robert F. Bland Development Co. of Houston, Tex.

"The Houston area is overbuilt like hell," Hutchison said. "This company has made millions there and they want to put their money somewhere. And they have decided this is the place."

Meanwhile, the Houston firm has also purchased a 40-acre site off Hattaway Drive in Altamonte Springs for $5 million and plans to spend $25 million to develop that parcel.

Their plans reportedly are to break ground within 90 days for construction of 300 rental apartments and possibly 200 condominiums on the Lake Orienta lakefront section of the tract.

Fred Anderson, vice president of Robert F. Bland Development Co., will be heading the firm's Lake View Ltd. subsidiary in Central Florida.

Consumers Lose Milk Price Battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, voting 8-0 Monday, ruled that consumers do not have the right to challenge a Department of Agriculture system for setting the price of milk products.

The decision, a blow for consumer groups fighting to keep down the cost of milk, said Congress only approved participation of the federal agency, producers and processors in the price regulation process.

"Handlers and producers — but not consumers — are entitled to participate in the adoption and retention of market orders," Justice Sandra Day O'Connor wrote for the court. Justice John Paul Stevens did not participate in the case.

Consumers challenged the 1937 Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act, passed to end price wars in the dairy industry.

Eustis Ex-Mayor To Seek Langley's Senate Seat

Jim Martin of Eustis, a former city council president, mayor and lobbyist, has pre-pled to run for the Florida Senate seat held by Sen. Richard Langley, R-Clermont.

A Democrat and a retired marine engineer, Martin, 56, says he will run for the senate seat because "the incumbent's voting record is not representative of the voters of the district."

Martin said he believes he is qualified to serve in the state senate because of his previous public service and because of his experience as a lobbyist for highway safety improvements.

He estimates his campaign will cost between $50,000 and $60,000 and he is gathering campaign contributions from voters in the district which includes all of Lake and Sumter counties and parts of Seminole, Marion and Volusia counties.

'Harvest Of Dust' Feared As Deserts Spread

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A United Nations report warns that a rapid spread of deserts around the globe is destroying millions of acres of once-productive farm and rangeland.

Cautioning that drought is not the root cause of desert expansion, the U.N. Environment Program study, entitled "Harvest of Dust," concludes drastic measures are needed to attack the principal causes — bad farming and grazing practices, improper irrigation and forest destruction.

"We have found that a total of 3.475 billion hectares (8.6 billion acres) of the world's range, rain-fed cropland and irrigated land — an area approximately the size of North and South America combined — is affected by desertification," wrote Mostafa Tolba, executive director of the U.N. Environment Program.

Tolba's report found that each year 51.9 million acres on the planet are "reduced to a state of near or complete uselessness."

While desert expansion is most severe in Third World nations of Africa and Asia, the study said the problem is cropping up in industrialized nations, including the United States, the Soviet Union and Australia.

The Worldwatch Institute, a

Washington-based research organization, reported this year in a book-length study of global resource trends that overgrazing by cattle, sheep and goats is a major cause of desertification.

Worldwatch cited U.S. government statistics showing a third of U.S. rangeland, outside of Alaska, is in "poor condition" and another third is in "fair condition."

The U.N. Environment Program's research was done to assess the state of the problem since the agency drew up an international "action plan" in 1977 — agreed to by 94 nations — to combat the spread of deserts.

Tolba noted that nations have contributed less than $50,000 to a U.N. account that funds the "action plan" to attack desertification. Against that sum, the United Nations estimates mankind must spend a total of $90 billion during the next 20 years to stop the spread of deserts.

The report also warned of a link between desertification and the urban problems of poor nations.

"Loss of land productivity has forced villagers into the towns." It said, "It has also caused food shortages which result in food riots and other forms of unrest."

Would-Be Robber Takes Store Manager's Advice

It was not gun, nor knife, that caused the bandit's flight, just a steely woman of true grit who told a would-be-robber: "Don't even try it."

All it took was those four words from store manager Brenda Moore, 34, of Sanford, who was tending Sunshine Liquors Sunday at 4:52 p.m. to thwart a man who entered the store with robbery on his mind.

Ms. Moore said there were women customers in the 1810 W. 13th Street store when the man entered. He was a tall and slim, she said, perhaps 6-foot-3 with faded blue jeans, no shirt and a hairy chest.

She said she walked up to the counter, slammed a 32-caliber blue-steel revolver onto the counter, looked her in the eye and said, "give it up."

Ms. Moore said she looked the man in the eye and said, "Don't even try it."

The man then picked up the gun and ran from the store, she said.

He left empty handed, less for Moore. —Deane Jordan

WORLD IN BRIEF

Sakharov's Daughter Will Seek Visa To Russia

LONDON (UPI) — The stepdaughter of Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov, concerned by reports the physicist had died on a hunger strike, said she would try to visit the Soviet Union to get a "truthful answer" about his fate.

Sakharov, 63, was banished into internal exile in 1980 for his outspoken stand on human rights in the Soviet Union. He went on a hunger strike May 2 in an effort to force Soviet authorities to allow his wife, Yelena Bonner, to get medical treatment in the West.

The Sunday Times of London, citing "reliable but unofficial sources in Moscow," said the Nobel Peace Prize winner died Thursday in a hospital in Gorky, 250 miles east of Moscow.

In Helsinki, Finland, Sakharov's stepdaughter was distressed but skeptical about the report, saying she would seek a visa to the Soviet Union to see what had happened to her parents.

Mideast Fighting Rages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A fierce rocket and mortar barrage today engulfed neighborhoods near the presidential palace and the U.S. ambassador's residence, leaving at least three civilians dead and five wounded.

The nightlong violence shattered plans to open two new Green Line corridors where civilians could cross between the Christian and Moslem halves of Beirut.

The corridors were scheduled to open this morning, but as the deadline passed, rival gunmen faced off against each other behind their heavily fortified barricades, police said.

"There still are many differences which the rival factions need to resolve before the two corridors are opened," said sources in the office of acting Interior Minister Joseph Skaf.

While at least 30 rockets crashed down around the palace of President Amin Gemayel and the home of U.S. Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew in the eastern suburb of Baabda, neither was hit, police said.

Peace Efforts Threatened?

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Diplomats feared the presence of Nicaraguan rebel leader Eden Pastora, in quarantine at a Caracas clinic today, may impede the efforts of the Contadora group to avert a full-scale war in Central America.

The willing participation of Nicaragua, the best armed and only left-wing government in the region, is essential to the efforts of the so-called Contadora group which has sought contacts with all sides in the various Central American conflicts to press for a negotiated peace. It was feared the harboring of Pastora could undermine Venezuela's ability to sustain a neutral role.

Gulf War Iraqi Attack Signals Tanker War Resumption

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (UPI) — An Iraqi warplane attack that left a Turkish tanker in flames signaled a resumption of the Persian Gulf "tanker war" between Iran and Iraq.

The Turkish tanker hit Sunday was ablaze hours after the strike in Gulf waters south of Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal. Iran said it rescued all members of the crew.

Iraq said it hit two "large naval targets" during the air raid, but shipping sources who pinpointed the attack on the Turkish vessel about 50 miles from Kharg Island could not confirm a second hit.

Iran's official news agency IRNA said the tanker, the 153,000-ton Byuk Hun, was hit by an Exocet missile fired from

"The tanker, which was on its way to load in the Kharg Island terminal, was hit from a relatively long distance," IRNA said.

IRNA said Iranian firemen worked late Sunday to extinguish a fire aboard the Istanbul-registered tanker. The agency said all crew members had been rescued, although earlier reports from Turkey and Gulf shipping sources said three seamen were missing.

It was the first independently confirmed strike by either side on a merchant ship since May 24, shipping sources said.

At least 27 oil tankers and general cargo vessels reportedly have been hit in the Gulf by Iraq and Iran since late March in an expansion of the 45-month war between the neighboring countries.

The United Arab Emirates' Gulf News newspaper said the attacks have caused serious disruption of shipping schedules and there have been "frequent postponements and cancellations" of vessels due to call at Gulf ports.

In another development, IRNA reported a senior Iranian diplomat flew to Moscow Sunday for talks with Soviet officials.

Diplomats in the Gulf said the visit of Muhammad Sadr, political director in Iran's foreign ministry, could be aimed at seeking a reduction of Soviet arms deliveries to Iraq.

Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati repeated Iran's condemnation of a recent U.N. Security Council resolution that demanded a halt to raids on neutral shipping and indirectly blamed Iran without mentioning Iraqi raids.

A statement carried by IRNA said the U.N. vote "turned a blind eye" on Iraqi reports of attacks on ships in the Gulf, providing Baghdad with "official permission to continue its attacks on the oil tankers."

Iraqi attacks have been targeted on shipping in a war zone declared by Baghdad in the northern Persian Gulf in an effort to cut off Iran's oil exports, which fund the Iranian war effort. Iran has responded with attacks on Saudi and Kuwaiti shipping outside the zone.

Search Continues For 18 Lost At Sea

HAMILTON, Bermuda (UPI) — A U.S. Navy vessel and Canadian warships searched the Atlantic today for 18 crew members and passengers missing from a British square rigger that sank in 12-foot seas during a race of Tall Ships. Nine survivors and the body of an American were recovered.

It was not known why or exactly when the 117-foot, 67-year-old Marques sank but the crew apparently knew of the impending disaster and put at least some of those onboard into life rafts early Sunday before the ship went down.

The first seven survivors were rescued from a raft about 8 a.m. EDT by the 20-foot Polish schooner Zawisa Czarny. The Polish vessel later found another survivor and one body, the Coast Guard said. A Canadian frigate, the HMCS Assiniboine, picked up the ninth survivor.

The Marques was among 42 ships that set off Saturday in a race from Bermuda to Halifax, Nova Scotia. Three other ships in the race reported trouble and two of them turned back to Bermuda. The third was repaired and continuing onto Canada.

"It is the first time we've ever had an accident like this since we started this sort of thing in 1956," said Oliver Pemberton, organizer of the 1984 Tall Ships Race.

Danger Of Running And Heart Attacks

DEAR DR. LAMB — I run eight miles on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and five miles on Tuesday and Thursday. I run three miles or race on Saturday.

I was kicked out of the Navy for becoming an anorexic. I've always exercised heavily. Could you please send me your Health Letter on jogging deaths?

DEAR READER — First, a number of excellent runners at the peak of their performance have died from unexplained causes. They were all very thin. There is some evidence that being too thin from dieting or from limited calorie intake and running can be a significant hazard. It may predispose fatal heart irregularities, even if you can run for miles and are a top-notch marathon runner.

The question of heart attacks and running is an interesting one. There are very few cases of deaths while running that occur in anyone who didn't have heart disease. The limited number of people who have heart attacks or die from heart attacks while running suggests it's not all that common.

A number of young men who have died while exercising already had a clot formed inside the coronary artery before they dropped dead while exercising. The point is, the damage had occurred before running, not from running.

Nevertheless, because silent coronary artery disease is common, it's prudent to watch your risk factors are under control. That means until a person's blood pressure is normal, his cholesterol levels are normal and, of course, he shouldn't smoke. Running is very dangerous for the person who has increased risk factors. But exercise helps to eliminate weight and control the risk factors. I'm sending you the Health Letter 13-4, A Perspective on Jogging Deaths, as you requested.

The other factor in many of the deaths is overdoing it, trying to run too fast. Men are particularly bad about this. A slower speed usually accomplishes the same thing without the danger. A very gradual increase in exercise is safest.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 63 years old. Please explain the drug Premarin. What does it do for me? I've been taking it since 1970, just after I had my hysterectomy.

My husband says it's a nerve pill and calls it dope. I'd like to know if I should still be taking it and why.

DEAR READER — Premarin contains female hormones. It's given to replace the loss of hormones that occur when the ovaries are removed or when they fail because of menopause. They help to prevent symptoms such as hot flashes and bone loss, which often occur in women after menopause.

If your husband had his testicles removed and required testosterone (male hormone) replacement afterward, I doubt he'd call it a nerve pill or dope.

You certainly should continue taking your medicine unless your doctor tells you otherwise. New studies suggest that taking female hormones provides far more benefits than harm.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

show an important principle of play. It isn't a difficult play, but it is often overlooked at the table.

Jim: "South starts out by receiving a favorable lead of a spade. Now he can count two tricks in each suit. The best source for the ninth trick is in diamonds. How should they be played?"

Oswald: "He should start by ducking a diamond. If anything but a spade is returned, he simply ducks a second diamond and is now sure of nine tricks."

Jim: "If a spade is returned, he ducks that also. If a third spade is led, he is in with his ace. He leads a second diamond. West plays the 20. Now East can hold no more than three diamonds. If East holds a singleton diamond, declarer is most likely to go down, so he rises with the ace and cashes his remaining tricks to make 10."

Oswald: "Actually if West held four diamonds and five spades, there is a possible heart-club squeeze against East."

Jim: "Squeezes are covered toward the end of Norma's book."
