Citizens Familiar With New Gun Law

Seminole County residents in an area shopping center were approached by Sanford Herald photographer Louis Raimondo and asked about their understanding of, and reaction to, the new gun law in Florida. All had opinions, though not all the same.

Questions posed to each respondent are indicated by number, and the responses are shown with the number designation.

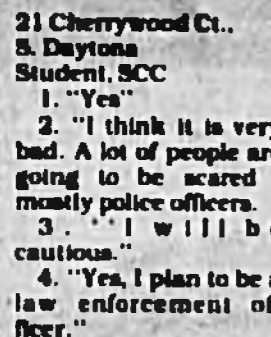

1. Are you aware that Florida's new gun law allows citizens to carry unconcealed weapons, including handguns?
2. What is your opinion of the new law?
3. How or what will you feel if and when you see someone carrying an unconcealed weapon?
4. Do you plan to carry a weapon?

Theodore Smith

Oak Hill Security Guard

1. "Yes."
2. "I think it was a very bad decision, because it is allowing people to carry weapons and that is going to increase crime."
3. "I feel that they are displaying it to let you know that they will use it. In what way, who knows?"

Sean Rooney

Student, SCC

1. "Yes"
2. "I think it is very bad. A lot of people are going to be scared, mostly police officers."
3. "I will be cautious."
4. "Yes, I plan to be a law enforcement officer."

Ryan R. Evans

1. "Yes."
2. "It was passed too quickly. Apparently, legislators were too busy with taxation issues to attend to all of the details and ramifications of the law."
3. "Like an endangered species."
4. "No."

Heather Hancy

1. "Yes."
2. "It doesn't bother me either way."
3. "I don't think I'd feel any different than if I saw someone without one."
4. "For now, no; maybe later?"

Law Brings Out The Guns In People

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

"I can point this at you anytime you get me upset. It's a new law." That's what an Altamonte Springs woman heard from a woman who threatened her and her brother with a handgun while in a drive-through lane at a McDonald's restaurant in Fern Park about 9:45 a.m. Thursday, the first day restrictions on carrying firearms were lifted by state law.

The state law that went into effect Thursday, removing the control of concealed weapons permit from county governments and giving it to the state, also eliminated former restrictions on carrying unconcealed weapons.

The incident in the drive-in in Fern Park was one of four reports of persons carrying unconcealed weapons in Seminole County Thursday, but was the only report of a person brandishing a weapon. Three of those four reports were in Sanford.

Police Chiefs Association continues to push for a revision in the law at the special session of the state legislature

—Langwood Chief William Liquori
President, Police Chiefs Association

Shannon Duncan, 21, said she and her brother, Joseph Harper, 20, were approaching the drive-through window of the McDonald's at 7080 U.S. Highway 17-92 when their vehicle, with a trailer in tow, had trouble passing a truck that was blocking access through the parking lot. As Harper drove around the truck, its driver made an obscene gesture and Harper and the truck driver got into a dispute, which ended quickly when the truck driver left, Duncan said. Duncan and her brother took their place in line and a woman drove up behind them, blew the horn of her car and Duncan yelled at her.

Duncan said the woman told her: "If you want to kick somebody's butt, kick mine." Duncan warned her brother to stay away from the woman, who then pulled a gun from the glove box of her car and pointed it at them.

The woman said "I can point this gun at you any time you get me upset. It's a new law."

Duncan said, "No it's not!" and the woman quickly put the gun back into the glove box. The woman then claimed it was a water pistol. "It wasn't a water pistol," Duncan said today. "It was a big gun."

The manager of McDonald's called Seminole County sheriff's deputies to the scene, but the suspect had fled. Duncan gave deputies the license number of the car the woman was driving and described her as being white, about 25 years

This Ford pick-up rests on its side as early morning commuters today had to swing around it to continue their westward trek on I-4 near the Deltona exit. Drivers were detoured from the I-4-Deltona entrance ramp to U.S. Highway 17-92. The accident caused a traffic back-up of more than 1/2 mile past the exit. FHP trooper Joe Joyce investigated the accident and charged Kent Alderman, driver of the pick-up, with careless driving. The report states that vehicles were slowing to avoid another accident and Alderman swerved to avoid hitting the vehicle in front of him, crossed the right lane and hit a bridge railing causing the truck to flip.

Not 'Big One,' But Big Enough Worst Earthquake In 16 Years

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The experts said it was only an average earthquake, many times less powerful than "the big one" they say still lurks beneath California, but to the millions who felt the earth shake in the state's worst quake in 16 years, the jolt was anything but run-of-the-mill.

Seven deaths were blamed on Thursday's quake, including a man who was buried alive in a tunnel and one who fell from his second-story apartment. More than 100 people were injured and about 280 were left homeless.

In widely scattered sections of the vast Los Angeles Basin, several old, unreinforced brick and masonry buildings crumbled under the force of the earthquake, which measured 6.1 on the Richter scale.

The quake jolted an area populated by 16.3 million people at 7:42 a.m., and residents, some terrified, some merely jittery, awaked through at least 16 significant aftershocks measuring 3.0 or higher, with the largest reaching 4.4.

Many thought the long-predicted "big one" had struck as the tremors rumbled across the landscape like a locomotive. Seismologists said the quake was only "marginal" in terms of its power — the quake that devastated San Francisco in 1906 was about 100 times stronger — but it happened in a densely populated area, which amplified the effect.

Experts cautioned that aftershocks could continue over the next several days, and warned there was a 5 percent chance of a 6.0 quake occurring in the first 24 hours after the initial jolt.

"This clearly is not the big one," Dr. Clarence Allen of Caltech said in referring predictions that a great earthquake will strike California sometime in the next 30 years. "It potentially could have been more damaging, but based on other earthquakes this is a marginal event."

The quake was centered in Montebello, 9 miles east of downtown Los Angeles, and was the first major temblor along the Whittier Fault since 1929. The jarring was felt as far away as Las Vegas, Nev., 300 miles to the east.

It was Southern California's worst quake since a 6.5 temblor killed 64 people and caused more than $1 billion in damage in the San Fernando Valley on Feb. 9, 1971.

Dr. Lucy Jones, a geologist at Caltech in Pasadena, said the temblor was "one of the most significant we have had in the last 50 years," and said it was the closest such quake to downtown Los Angeles.

Seismologist Dr. Kate Hutton called it a "classic California quake" but it happened in a

Local Jobless Rate Steady, Nation Drops

From Staff And Wire Reports
Beating out the national jobless rate, which itself measured a drop in the number of America's unemployed, Seminole County's unemployment rate remained at 4.5 percent and Florida's rate remained at 5.7 percent for August, according to the latest local figures available.

The national September civilian employment reports released today put the national rate at 5.9 percent. The national figure cracks the six percent barrier for the first time this decade, according to the Labor Department.

The number of workers nationwide actually fell by 309,000 during the month to total a seasonally adjusted 112.77 million people, the government said, but the rate improved because the number of people in the labor force fell even more, by 441,000.

In Seminole County 147,262 persons were reported as working during August. The number of unemployed was listed at 6,905.

State figures show that 5,519,000 people had jobs in Florida during the same period. Reported as unemployed were 332,000 residents.

Both the county and state employment figures are seasonally adjusted, according to Robert Monroe, a Job Service of Florida economist in Orlando.

The nation's civilian jobless rate represents a drop from August's 6 percent and has not been this low since November 1979. The unemployment rate has plummeted 1.1 percentage point in a year.

The government's survey of households in September found 119.86 million workers in the labor force, 7.1 million of whom were looking for a job. A separate survey of establishments, which does not include all workers but gives a better count of the types of jobs involved, found that non-farm employment grew by 132,000 jobs during the month, all but 27,000 in service-producing jobs.

The average number of hours worked per week in all private jobs fell 0.3 hour to 34.6 hours. The average number of manufacturing hours worked fell 0.8 hour to 40.4 hours a week, but the amount of overtime worked dropped 0.2 hour to 3.6 hours a week.

The civilian unemployment rate excludes members of the armed forces living in the United States. Counting them, the unemployment rate dropped from 5.9 percent in August to 5.8 percent in September and also represents the lowest rate since November 1979.

The rate for adult men and for blacks dropped.

Seminole Ready For Dr. Phillips' Field Initiation

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

As strange as it may seem, Seminole's heartbreaking 23-17 overtime loss to Lake Mary last week may turn out to be a blessing in disguise.

"I can't tell you how frustrating it was to lose that game," Seminole linebacker Earnie "Sackman" Lewis said. "But we are going to use the experience to our advantage. If that loss did one thing, it gave us a lot more incentive to win."

The Seminoles, 2-1, will be looking to take out their frustrations tonight at 8 when they travel to Orlando Dr. Phillips in a District 4A-7 contest. Although Dr. Phillips is currently in the district, it will be moved to 5A since the enrollment is more than 2,800, a FHSAA spokesman said.

"I don't think that we will remain in the district for very long," Dr. Phillips Coach Gary Preiser said. "But we know that we are in for a monumental test, and we are treating it as a big game because it is."

The Panthers are 2-1, with victories over Orlando Oak Ridge and Stuart South Fork. In between, they were beaten, 14-0, by Oviedo. Seminole is 1-0 in the district while Dr. Phillips is 0-1.

"This is their (Dr. Phillips) first home game ever," Seminole coach Roger Beathard said. "And we are going to initiate the stadium."

"I really hope that we can come back strong tonight," Beathard continued. "These kids have character, and I think that they will show some of it tonight."

Preiser said Seminole is the best team on his schedule. "They are simply awesome," Preiser said. "I saw them last week, and I can't tell you how impressed I was."

"If we are to win this game, we are going to have to put two solid halves of football together," Preiser continued. "We haven't had a full game as of yet. This will be the first game ever played here, and we are sure hoping for a big night."

Seminole offensive coordinator Emory Blake said his team is ready to explode offensively. "It's tough to come back after losing such an emotional game like that," Blake said. "Tonight, we are simply going to try to get back on track."

"We aren't taking these guys lightly at all," Blake continued. "They have a lot of good athletes on the team even though they are in their first season."

One player who was derailed last week is quarterback Jeff Blake who misfired on 20 of 28 pass attempts last week. "That was my worst game so far this season," Blake, who has thrown six touchdown passes, said. "But I'm going to put it behind me. You can't dwell on the past, and I'm looking forward to playing these guys."

Beathard said the Panthers on film. "They are just as quick as we are," Beathard said. "They are an extremely aggressive bunch of kids, and I'm expecting a tough game from them."

"We need to get a win right away," Beathard

Tigers Creep Closer

United Press International: In one night, the Detroit Tigers moved from longshots to slight favorites in the American League East.

By beating the Orioles 9-5 Thursday, Detroit cut Toronto's lead to one game and sent the team into this weekend's three-game series against the Blue Jays at Tiger Stadium needing to win two games instead of three.

"I think they realized they HAD to have that ball game," Tigers Manager Sparky Anderson said after Walt Terrell pitched an eight-inning shutout. "To beat them (the Blue Jays) three straight, I think they can, but they didn't want that as a present right off the bat."

Detroit can force a one-game playoff by taking two of three and can win the division with a sweep. All the elements point toward the Tigers winning.

The Tigers play at home, where they are 51-27, and they have their two best pitchers going in the first two games — Doyle Alexander tonight and Jack Morris Saturday.

The Blue Jays, who are on a four-game losing streak, counter with Jim Clancy and Mike Flanagan before going with ace left-hander Jimmy Key Sunday against veteran Frank Tanana.

"This is no longer a shot," Anderson said. "It's a showdown. If we are any good as a club, two out of three isn't much. Then it's down to one game, and you couldn't even venture a guess what might happen."

If a playoff is necessary, the game will be played Monday at Tiger Stadium. Detroit will come back with Terrell, who pitched a complete game despite being unable to move his head because of a pinched nerve in his neck.

Red Sox: At New York, Marty Barrett singled home Spike Owen with the tying run in the eighth inning and an error by New York reliever Dave Righetti allowed Ellis Burks to come home with the go-ahead run.

Cards Fall In Place After 8-2 Triumph

United Press International: With many of the Mets looking on from the stands in Busch Stadium Thursday night, the St. Louis Cardinals crushed the New York Yankees' last hopes of repeating as World Series champions.

The Cardinals' 8-2 triumph over the Montreal Expos clinched St. Louis' third National League East title in the last six years, and rendered meaningless the season-ending, three-game series against the Mets. After a memorable race, the Cardinals proved the most resilient team in the division.

"We knew the Mets were going to be tough to beat," St. Louis second baseman Tom Herr said. "We didn't want to give the Mets any hope at all coming in here, not even a game. Because they're the world champions and we didn't want to leave it to chance."

Although the focus was on the Cardinals and Mets, the Expos were the most surprising team of the season. Picked by most for the bottom of the division, they scrapped their way into contention and were eliminated with only three days remaining in the regular season.

The title was especially sweet for St. Louis, which overcame numerous injuries and several slumps. At one point, they led by 10 1/2 games, but withstood a Mets charge that cut that bulge to 1 1/2 games Sept. 10.

"If you're going to win, you've got to win in September," said New York first baseman Keith Hernandez, one of about 20 Mets players and coaches who watched in person. "And we didn't win in September."

Danny Cox pitched a five-hitter and Dan Driessen's two-run double was the key blow in the clincher. The crowd of 48,783 showed its appreciation by chanting "Go Home Mets."

Driessen, recalled from the minor leagues Aug. 31, doubled into the right-center gap in the fourth inning, snapping a 1-1 tie and sending the Cardinals to the NL playoffs against the San Francisco Giants.

Cox, 11-9, pitched his second complete game and tied Bob Forsch and Greg Maddux for most wins on the staff. Jay Tibbs, 4-5, lasted only three innings and took the loss.

N.L. Baseball

At Los Angeles, Bob Welch, 15-9, allowed only one hit — a sixth-inning single by Mike Aldrete — in his ninth complete game and fourth shutout of the year.

At Houston, Terry Puhl singled with two out in the ninth inning to drive in the winning run off Jim Acker, 4-8.

At St. Louis, the Cardinals' four-run fifth inning, so were some of the Mets, no doubt doing a little cursing of their own.

NBA Players Cannot Sue

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — The chief negotiator for the NBA said the players' union must settle its differences with the league at the bargaining table and not in court.

The NBA and the Players Association have been working since the end of last season on a new collective bargaining agreement. Nine meetings have yielded no breakthroughs and Thursday the union filed suit, claiming the college draft, right of first refusal and salary cap violate antitrust laws.

Russell Granik, executive vice president of the NBA and head of the league's negotiating team, said the players can strike, but they can't sue.

"Under labor laws they are required to live under the same agreement until a new one is signed," he said. "Under normal labor situations they can negotiate or they can strike, but they can't file a lawsuit to resolve this. The courts can't resolve labor disputes, they must be resolved by negotiating."

Larry Fleisher, the union's general counsel, said the suit was filed against the NBA and its 23 teams to prevent the work stoppage that has occurred in the NFL. He disagreed with Fleisher that this was not a matter for the courts to decide.

McDowell: Ham Missing From Georgia Southern's 'Bone'

By Scott Bender, Herald Sports Writer

If the University of Central Florida football team is going to establish itself as one of the NCAA Division II powerhouses, it is going to have to win some of the close games that it plays against Division I-AA opponents.

The Eagles (2-2) are coming off a 16-13 setback to Division I-A foe East Carolina last week. The contest will mark the sixth time that the teams have met. GSU leads the series, 4-1. With the score 20-14 in last year's game, the Eagles scored 13 fourth-quarter points to edge the Knights, 33-23.

nicknamed "The Hambone." McDowell said that Southern is a different team without Ham. "They are trying to run the 'Hambone' without the Ham," McDowell said. "They are still a very good football team, but I don't feel that they are as strong as strong as they have been the last two times that we have faced them."

beat a top NAIA school (Elon), yet we lose by a touchdown to a top I-AA school and fall six spots. I can't understand it." The Knights have put on an aerial show this year that would make the Blue Angels proud. Quarterback Darin Slack, an all-stater at Lake Howell in 1983, has thrown for 789 yards and five touchdowns. Slack has thrown six interceptions, though. "Darin has looked sharp," McDowell said. "We are strictly a passing offense, and he has handled himself with the utmost composure."

yards. "I don't really have any desire to run the football," McDowell said. "We are a passing offense, and we are going to throw the ball every game." One reason that the Knights are throwing the ball so often is their inexperienced offensive line. "It doesn't take as good a football player to pass block," McDowell explained. "With the personnel that we have, pass blocking is our best bet."

After going without a catch in the first two games, tight end Don Grayson, a Lake Mary High product, hauled in seven balls for 59 yards. "When we get zone coverage, we will be able to get the ball to Don more often," McDowell said. "But when we get man-to-man coverage we will be trying to get the ball to the wide receivers because we think that our wideouts can beat anybody."

Gardening

It's Time To Plant Colorful Fall Annuals

October is the beginning of the fall gardening season and there's lots to do in your gardens this time of year. Some of the gardening chores to consider are general clean-up of the home grounds, seedbed preparation and planting of a vegetable garden and annual flowers, planting hardy shrubs and preparations for overwintering your lawn. Also keep watching for disease and insects on lawns and ornamentals since they will continue as long as the warm weather lasts.

If you want a fall flower garden, start preparing a good planting bed. Locate the plot in an area that receives full sun at least half of the day, and stay away from large trees. Tree roots are competitors for fertilizer and water so it's good to locate the flower or vegetable garden away from trees to avoid the competition.

Hardy annuals will survive cold weather, and ones that you can plant in early October include alyssum, calendula, dianthus, gerberas, pansies, petunias, snapdragons and verbena. There are many other types to select so visit your favorite garden center to see what is available now.

There are other fall garden tasks that can be done now as well. Poinsettias should have received their last pinching back earlier in September for they start to set their buds for flowering around Oct. 10. They could also benefit from a light fertilization, but stop when they begin to show color.

Hibiscus and hydrangeas might be looking leggy now. Trim and shape them by cutting them back. This gives them time to grow and toughen up for the colder weather ahead.

Roses should be sprayed for black spot and aphids if they are present. Weak canes can be removed. A fall application of fertilizer is recommended. Additional roses can be planted in November and December so you might think about new varieties to add to your garden. Be sure to select varieties that do well in Florida to ensure the best success.

Fall is the time to plant bulbs for spring flowering and there are many types to choose from. Easter lilies will bloom for Easter if planted now. Daylilies can be planted, too, or divide those already in your garden to increase your plantings. Amaryllis can be raised and replanted so the tops protrude above the soil. They prefer an alkaline soil so add a small amount of lime.

Strawberries are planted in September for berries in December and January. Purchase plants at the local garden center and select varieties for Central Florida like Florida 90, Tioga, Sequoia or Florida belle. Strawberries prefer an organic soil, so add sawdust or shavings before planting.

Chrysanthemums will provide bigger and better blooms if you pinch some flower buds off now. Keep a watchful eye out for mildew, mites and blackspot and spray or dust if you see some indications.

Cool weather vegetables like broccoli, cauliflower, cabbage and lettuce go in the ground in fall.

Plants are available at local garden centers if you did not start some of your own. Prepare the vegetable garden soil well before planting and incorporate some fertilizer into it as well.

Lawns continue to harbor insects like sod webworms and fall armyworms so continue to inspect them as long as the weather stays warm. A fall fertilization of 6-6-6 at rate of 1-2 pounds per 100 square feet is recommended. Some people overseed with ryegrass later in the fall so you might start planning for that.

As you can see, there are plenty of fall garden chores to fill up your weekends, but don't put off the jobs because there will be more to do next month if you do.

Mom A Wreck Over Son Playing With Her Undies

DEAR ABBY: A few days ago I found out that our 11-year-old son - I'll call him Sidney - has been playing with my panties and bras, and I've been a wreck ever since. Now I'm afraid to leave him in the house alone. He doesn't know that I know. I haven't told his father yet. (Do I have to?)

Is this normal behavior for a boy his age, or do you think he needs to see some kind of counselor? Do you think if he just ignore it he may outgrow it? He's always shared a room with his 7-year-old brother. Just last night my husband suggested putting Sidney in a room alone, but I quickly vetoed the idea, so we dropped the matter. It's sure to come up again soon, so please rush your answer to me.

I also found Sidney trying to tie his feet together with a pair of socks a couple of times. Is this normal?

DISMAYED IN DALLAS

DEAR DISMAYED: First, tell your husband, Sidney is his son, too. Don't ignore it; it's not normal behavior. Sidney needs counseling, but don't approach him as though he's committed some kind of terrible crime. He hasn't. Your family doctor can recommend a family therapist who will make Sidney comfortable with his behavior, and help you handle the problem you're facing.

DEAR ABBY: Seventeen years ago, when I was 18, I had a brief love affair with "Billy Bob," who was also 18 at the time. I became pregnant and his parents paid my hospital bill on the condition that I would seek no further support from them or their son. With the loving support of my family, I kept my baby boy. When "Jackie" was 7 months old, I ran into a high school sweetheart who had just come back from Vietnam. We fell in love and married four months later, and he added his name on Jackie's birth certificate. (In our state this procedure was less expensive than adoption.)

Now that Jackie is nearing adulthood, don't you think he has the right to know the truth about his parentage? Billy Bob still lives in this area. He's married and has a family of his own, but I've never contacted him, and he never contacted me.

By telling Jackie who his biological father is, I know I run the risk of opening a can of worms, but some people already know the truth, and I would rather have Jackie hear it from me than someone else.

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: I think you should tell Jackie who his biological father is, and the sooner the better. You don't need Billy Bob's permission to disclose the truth, but I advise you to let him know that you plan to do so. I doubt if he would seek parental rights after all these years, since he has ignored all parental responsibilities. But consult a lawyer to make sure.

DEAR ABBY: Doesn't anyone believe in knocking on the door anymore? I don't appreciate people just walking through my home till they find us. I wouldn't dream of doing that. I don't mind their calling through the door to see if we're home, but I think it's not only rude, it's frightening to have someone walk in unexpectedly.

MAD IN OHIO

DEAR MAD: You are foolishly trusting to leave your door unlocked. An open door is an invitation to unsavory characters to walk in and help themselves. People who do not lock their doors get robbed a lot. Or worse.

Optimists Install Vinci President

The Sanford Optimist Club held its annual installation of officers' banquet Sept. 29 in the dining room at Howell Place.

A.J. Vinci was installed as president for the ensuing year. Herb Saylor was installed as secretary-treasurer. Other installed officers were vice presidents Bud Tobin and Jeff Monson and sergeant at arms Bill Nuckles.

Al Greco, governor, Optimist International, was the installing officer.

Retiring president Ken Hicks announced a new youth project, tailor-made to recognize individual students' improvement in their department and study programs.

A.J. Vinci stated he will lead the Sanford Club to continued honor status and that it is his full intention to increase membership two-fold.

Bud Tobin was elected to life membership for his devoted service.

Baking Class Set For Youth

Seminole County 4-H has scheduled a Youth Bread Baking Class for Oct. 3 at the Seminole County Agriculture Center Auditorium. The class is scheduled from 10 a.m.-noon. Each participant will make a loaf of bread to take with them. In addition there will be demonstrations on preparing breads in the food processor and quick bread preparation. Cost is $1 per person. The program is open to any youth 8-18 years of age.

Elks To Sponsor Circus In Sanford

Elks Lodge 1241 of Sanford will sponsor a three-ring circus Oct. 26 in the open area at the southeast corner of State Road 46 and Bevier Road just west of downtown Sanford.

James L. DeLong of the Elks Lodge said two performances by the Alan C. Hill Circus of Sarasota are scheduled, one at 4:30 p.m., and the other at 7:30 p.m.

Proceeds from the circus will go to support Elks projects, including the Florida Elks Children's Hospital in Umatilla, DeLong said.

Adult tickets are $5 each before the performance and can be purchased from any Elks Lodge member, or by calling the Elks Lodge at 322-2703, of DeLong at 322-1646. Children under 14 years of age will be admitted free. DeLong said tickets ordered by telephone will be delivered, if the purchaser requests them to be. Tickets sold at the performance will cost $7.50.

The circus will include various animal acts, including lions, tigers and elephants, DeLong said. Also performing with the Hill circus is Tiny Tim, who gained fame several years ago with his rendition of "Tiptoe Through the Tulips."

Last year the circus was staged behind the Armory and DeLong said the area was too small for the 500 x 300-foot big top. The field along SR 46 is large enough to accommodate the tent, and parking, he said.

Surgery Is Needed To Unpinch Pinched Nerve

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have a terrible pain in the palm of my hand, like a red-hot spike being driven in. One doctor told me it probably is a pinched nerve. How does a nerve get unpinched?

DEAR READER — By surgery, as a general rule. Not all pain is due to pinched nerves but, when pinched, a nerve will certainly cause pain. Nerves often follow the same paths as blood vessels in the body. In the palm, for instance, penetrating wounds will often injure nerves as well as arteries. Nerves can be knicked or pinched by abscesses, tumors or swelling of adjacent tissue. Under these circumstances, an operation to remove the source of irritation will often cure the pain.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Not long ago, it was believed impossible to transplant an organ when the donor and recipient had incompatible blood types. Then a baboon's heart was transplanted into a human. Are corneal transplants from animals to humans possible?

DEAR READER — Cross-species transplants become increasingly difficult (and unsuccessful) as the complexity of the transplanted tissue increases. However, some animal tissues can be pre-treated to reduce the risk of rejection by the human host. For example, the baboon-heart transplant was a failure: Baby Fae died. The primate heart could not be treated before implantation and the baby rejected it. On the other hand, porcine heart valves are routinely implanted into human patients with malfunctioning cardiac valves, because pig tissue can be cleaned to the point where it causes little rejection response.

Usually, patients' bodies will destroy tissue that is transplanted from another, incompatible human source. Conversely, in some transplant situations — using bone marrow, for example — the foreign tissue may actually begin to destroy the host's cells.

Even with immunosuppressive therapy, problems with cross-species transplants are enormous. Medical science has yet to progress to the point where animal-to-human organ transplants are feasible on a large scale.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
There is increasing parity in the world of tournament bridge, which means that aspects of top-seeded teams are becoming more common. Here is a deal on which declarer Richard Colker brought in a difficult four-heart contract against Norman Kay and Edgar Kaplan to gain 10 international matchpoints (IMPs). His team went on to defeat the Kaplan-Kay team by 9 IMPs, so today's deal was crucial. Norman Kay led the jack of clubs, ducked all around. He was reluctant to play a second club, fearing that declarer might originally have held A-9-3, so he switched to a trump. Colker could see that the game would depend upon a spade finesse, but the failure of the defenders to cash out two diamond tricks gave him the extra option of developing spades. Dummy's spade spots (8-7) did look attractive. If he could catch East with the spade queen, it would not matter where the 10 was located. Further, by playing East for the spade queen, he might create a favorable swing in his team's favor. So he drew trumps ending in dummy and led the spade jack. East covered with the queen. South took the king and led back to dummy's ace. Now came the eight of spades from dummy. Even if West held the 10, declarer would be home. On the eight of spades he would throw a diamond. West might take the 10, but the defenders would be able to take only one more trick. Instead, East played the 10, and declarer ruffed and got back to dummy with a trump to score up the fourth spade for his contract.

Bicycle Built For Two ...Wheels, That Is

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer
Photos By Tommy Vincent

Ovidde's Carter Wilson's favorite mode of transportation brings old meaning to the label "big wheel," when he pedals along seated atop his Penny Farthing bicycle, circa 1877.

Like the Pied Piper, when 41-year-old Wilson takes to the road in his neighborhood or on an area parade route on his classic velocipede, he draws an admiring crowd of youngsters, most of whom have never before seen such a rare machine.

And what a machine! It's a kissing cousin of the unicycle, with its giant front wheel. A wheel so tall that when Wilson, who is six-foot, four-inches tall, steps down from the bike's high seat, the wheel measures up almost to his shoulders.

The Penny Farthing does have a second, rear wheel that is dwarfed by the big wheel, but which takes the machine out of the unicycle class.

Long legs are a plus for the Penny Farthing rider, along with a good sense of balance, Wilson said. Getting onto the machine is easier than getting off.

There is a small step, mounted near the rear tire, where the left foot is placed as the rider pushes off with his right foot and then pushes up onto the top-mounted seat as the bicycle begins to roll. The procedure is reversed when dismounting, Wilson said.

The ride can be a bit shaky because the rider sits in the center of gravity of the bicycle.

"You can ride down hill at great speeds, but if you hit a pothole or an obstacle it flips over," Wilson said. "It wasn't safe enough, so that brought major design changes. It was built for speed, but is very dangerous because you sit almost in the center of gravity."

The bicycle, a two-wheel vehicle propelled by pedals, was developed in Scotland in 1839. It was modeled after earlier pedalless machines operated by thrusts of the rider's feet upon the ground.

By the 1880s developments included larger front wheels, hollow-steel frame, ball bearings and tangential metal spokes.

The safety bicycle, with equal-sized wheels and sprocket chain drive, was first manufactured in 1885 in England, two years before Wilson's Penny Farthing was made.

The safety bike displaced other models following introduction of pneumatic (air-filled) tires in 1888. Later improvements include free wheel, coaster brake and hand brake. Cycling fans in 1880s and '90s stimulated road construction.

Penny Farthing bicycles were in their heyday in New England in the late 1880s, Wilson said.

The Penny Farthing has no chain. It has a direct drive, with the seat mounted above the center of the big wheel and the pedals located in the center of that wheel. The pedal is connected directly to the wheel. It has a hand operated brake that is pushed down onto the front tire when a stop is made.

Wilson's unique bicycle was passed along to him from his father who bought it 47 years ago. The price was $100 and the bicycle, despite being over half a century old, was in top shape. Today, at age 100, it is valued at $4,000 to $5,000, he said.

The only repair needed on the Penny Farthing since the Wilson family has owned the machine has been the one-time replacement of its solid, rubber tires.

That job was done by a Winter Park bicycle repairman, Wilson said.

Wilson's father rode the bicycle in parades in New Hampshire. That's a tradition that has continued with Wilson, who began riding the black, metal-framed Penny Farthing about 25 years ago.

His public debut as a parader with his Penny Farthing was in the mid 1970s in Tombstone, Arizona, in a celebration in which the shootout at the O.K. Corral is re-enacted. His bicycle was recognized as the oldest antique entry in that parade in both 1974 and '75.

When tooling around on his old-time velocipede, Wilson likes to complete the look of the bygone days by dressing as the first rider of his bike might have dressed — with dark-colored knickers and vest, low shoes, a riding cap, and garters on his sleeves. His handlebar mustache helps complete the picture.

Riding his Penny Farthing brings out a bit of the showman in Wilson, who is a Martin-Marietta engineer.

His satisfaction in owning and displaying his old bike comes from the pleasure it brings to children. "Young children get a thrill out of seeing it," he said.

"Just the idea of something that large and unique, yet something they can relate to," make youngsters follow along when he rides through his neighborhood about once a week, Wilson said.

And when he's riding in a parade and spots youngsters on the sidelines he tries to travel over to their territory so they can get a closer look at his odd, old machine that is as much fun today as it was 100 years ago when it first rolled onto the scene.

TV Steals Sequel Page From Films

By Vernon Scott

UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sequels traditionally have been a mainstay of the motion picture business going back to silent days. Now television, a copycat industry, is stealing another page from the movies.

Reruns are as much a part of TV as commercials, but sequels to old series are relatively new to the tube.

This season "Sea Hunt" is coming back after 26 years, but it won't be Lloyd Bridges donning face mask and flippers. Ron Ely, a one-time "Tarzan," will be blowing bubbles underwater.

"Sea Hunt," in black and white, was a hit series for four years in the 1950s and has been rerun worldwide in syndication ever since.

Also returning with a new cast is "Star Trek," the hit cult series that ran from 1966-69 on NBC. It disappeared and resurfaced with the original cast as a movie with several film sequels and another on the drawing boards.

There is a sequel series, too, of "It's a Living," a non-hit that ran from 1980-82. It was a sexy comedy about five waitresses and is now in first-run syndication.

It would appear to be good business to revive a hit series and quite another thing to try to exhume a mediocre show as a sequel.

There is the new "We Got It Made" series sequel currently showing on the NBC owned and operated stations and syndicated in 90 other markets, mostly in the 7:30 p.m. primetime access slot.

That takes guts. It's almost as if Universal Pictures decided to produce "Howard the Duck II," basing a sequel on an original flop.

"We Got It Made" survived only the 1983-84 season. But the series had a worthwhile asset, an actress named Teri Copely who played the traditional Hollywood dumb blonde to perfection.

Fred Silverman, one of TV's most successful programmers, a former network president and current independent producer, had enough faith in Copely and the sitcom to bring it back this year.

Copely herself was stunned when Silverman called earlier this year to say that "We Got It Made" was being dusted off after three years on the shelf. The series was typical sitcom stuff, a pair of bachelors hire a sexy maid to keep their apartment clean. Their girlfriends, of course, go bananas.

During the three-year hiatus, Copely appeared in a pair of TV films. "I Married a Centerfold" and "Gus Brown and the Midnight Brewster."

"But the important thing was doing two plays, 'Bus Stop' and 'Genuines,'" Copely said. "They legitimized me as an actress."

Copely's blonde hair was touseled. She wore a sweat suit and sneakers during a rehearsal break.

"The new show is pretty much the same as the old one, but it's better written," she said. "It only took me a couple of days to feel at home playing Mickey McKenzie again. She's less naive than she was in the first series, but she is still sweet and vulnerable."

Tom Villard returns in his role as one of the bachelors. But newcomer John Hillner has replaced Matt McCoy as the other swinging single. The roles of the jealous girlfriends have been dropped altogether.

"The original series was criticized by some women libbers because they thought Mickey was offensively dumb," Copely said. "I'm a liberated woman and I didn't think so. Being a maid may not be the best job in the world, but she is at least working and paying her own way. Mickey could have been kept, you know."

"Her basic character is the same in the new series, but there are some slight changes. She's smarter. And the show has a different look. The set is more '80s and with it."

"Before we started this show I looked at five old episodes and I realized Mickey would have to be less innocent now. She was untouched by time and didn't live in reality. So that's been changed."

"Unfortunately, they haven't changed my hairstyle. I still wear it long like Farrah Fawcett used to."

Cable Revives Dead TV Shows

VIDEOT Guy MacMillan

It's the ultimate in recycling. Thanks to cable-satellite TV, practically nothing that's broadcast on a commercial network is discarded any more.

Sometimes it's difficult to understand why, except that cable channels need something to fill the spaces between commercials. Is there any need to bring back "Alias Smith and Jones" (Arts & Entertainment), "Daktari" (CBN), "Hardcastle and McCormick" (CBN) or "Kay O'Brien" (Lifetime)?

Or, for heaven's sake, "Amanda's," the 1983 ABC series that's been running recently on A&E. "Amanda's" was an unusually brash exercise in plagiarism, ripping off the BBC's "Fawlty Towers" right down to the act. The only difference was that "Fawlty Towers" was funny.

But scavenging the network archives does have its rewards. Last year, A&E brought back "Breaking Away," the delightful series about growing up in Indiana. It lasted just three months on ABC in 1980-81, but in many ways the unpopular TV show was better than the popular film it was based on.

More recently, A&E resurrected "Skag," a fine series that lasted less than two months on NBC in 1980. Karl Malden played what may have been television's only sympathetic, non-goofy working stiff.

The Disney Channel has found another gem from 1980: CBS's "Palmerstown USA," created by Alex Halky and Norman Lear. It's a rich production set in the rural South in the 1930s. Everything about it is perfect: the atmosphere, the acting, the deceptively simple stories with their economic and racial undertones — and it's the first series which featured Michael J. Fox.

Disney will be running one episode every Tuesday evening for a while. Stay home for this one.

And CBN is airing the superb "Paper Chase" series on Friday evenings, beginning with the CBS episodes from 1978 and continuing with the Showtime pay-TV episodes that haven't been seen anywhere else. This series about law school is another TV effort that surpassed the film from which it was adapted.

Other dead series of note currently shown on cable-satellite channels are: "The Adventure of Ozzie and Harriet" (Disney), "Buffalo Bill" (A&E), "Car 54 Where Are You" (Nick at Nite), "Fridays" (USA), "Mr. Ed" (Nick at Nite), "My Three Sons" (Nick at Nite), "The Odd Couple" (WPXI) and "Remington Steele" (CBN).

However, several really fine series are still languishing on network shelves somewhere. Among them:

"The Defenders" was Reginald Rose's seminal legal series that ran on CBS from 1961 to 1965. Some of the issues may be dated, but the quality of the presentation should make this a prime candidate for revival.

"Gibbsville" was a loving adaptation of John O'Hara's stories about small-town journalism. It ran on NBC for six weeks in 1976.

"Holmes and Yoyo" seemed a bad idea, a comedy about a policeman and his robot partner.

Reader Hungry For The Lowdown On Laurel

Dear Dick: I have always enjoyed the films of Laurel and Hardy. Did Stan Laurel have any children? Are any of them in show business? When did he die? There is a dinner riding on your answers. — M.F., Hollywood, Fla.

Dear M.F.: Stan, of Laurel and Hardy, died in 1965. He left a daughter, Lois, who was born in 1928 and married an actor named Randy Brooks. Stan's biography mentions that they were in the ambulance business, but she never acted. Stan also had a son, Stanley Robert Jefferson (Laurel's real name was Jefferson) but he died when he was only 9 days old.

Dear Dick: Perhaps you can answer something that has been bothering me concerning a short, white-haired actor who plays a priest on "Falcon Crest." I am sure he is Father Bob. I have seen him on TV in Los Angeles, my former home, on a religious program. He was a priest on that program, not an actor. Is he both a priest and an actor? Is this possible? — J.W., Knoxville, Tenn.

Dear J.W.: Yes, it is possible and, yes, you are right. Bob Curtis, who plays that role, is the Father Bob of various religious TV shows. Actually, he is Jane Wyman's priest, which explains how he happens to be part of the "Falcon Crest" cast.

Dear Dick: Are Tracey Gold and the girl who played the governor's daughter on "Beacon" sisters? If so, how old are they? — P.D., "a concerned teenager," Houston.

Dear P.D.: Don't be concerned, it will turn out all right. Tracey and Missy Gold are sisters. Tracey is currently 18 and Missy is 17.

Ask Dick Kleiner

Dear Dick: I am writing to ask a question that some friends and I are having a disagreement over. On the show "The Little Rascals," what type of dog appears? In order to avoid any disputes among ourselves, I am not mentioning any breed. — M.A., Centerville, Mich.

Dear M.A.: Pete the Pup, as that odd-looking dog was called officially, is of no known breed. According to some "Our Gang" veterans — and the show was filmed as "Our Gang" before it was called "The Little Rascals" — it was just a mongrel of mixed ancestry.

Dear Dick: A friend and I are real movie freaks and often argue about movie stars, etc. Our last argument concerned the movie, "Amityville II: The Possession." He says Linda Blair was the sister of the young boy possessed by the demon. I say it was Ally Sheedy. — O.J.H., Immokalee, Fla.

Dear O.J.H.: Two strikes. It was Diane Franklin.

Dear Dick: Are Linda Gray of "Dallas" and Erin Gray of "Silver Spoons" related in any way? My mom and I have a bet on this — clothes are riding on your answer. — C.H.,

Richmond, Texas.

Dear C.H.: No, there is no relation at all between those two Gray ladies.

Dear Dick: My son and I have been trying to find out who plays the voice of Scott on the cartoon, "Teen Wolf." He says it is Michael J. Fox. I say someone else. — L.M.M., Paw Paw, Mich.

Dear L.M.M.: It's a someone else named Townsend Coleman.

Dear Dick: Are Phil Carey (Ace Bushman on "One Life To Live") and Ben Carey (Loritt on "Barney Miller") related? I know they look like Matt and Jeff in size, but they have similar facial features. — J.M., Amarillo, Texas.

Dear J.M.: Nevertheless, they are Careys from different families.

Dear Dick: Will CBS air the conclusion to the final episode of last season's "Magnum, P.I." and, if so, when? Also, I've heard rumors that Tom Selleck either goes fishing or owns a salmon fishing camp here in New Brunswick. Is this true? If so, where is it? — B.D.A., Moncton, New Brunswick.

Dear B.D.A.: Like so many shows, "Magnum" ended last season with a cliff-hanger. It is all resolved in the first episode of the new season. On your second question: Not only does he not go fishing in New Brunswick, or own a fishing camp in New Brunswick, Tom Selleck says he's never even been to New Brunswick. Rumors about stars owning property are common. They are usually started by real estate agents, to stir up interest in properties.

Sun Doesn't Shine On Leg Work

By Blash Salwood
SFTV Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — At the end of the Pier 62 dock past the hot dog stands and Malcolm Forbes' multimillion-dollar green yacht was Margaret Colin, star of screen and tube, running over her lines for the next scene in CBS' "Leg Work."

In her role as Claire McCarron, a single woman private detective who drives a beat up Porsche, Colin is investigating a suicide. Someone jumped off the pier and Colin is there, a step away from the water, questioning two witnesses.

The gusting winds are bitter-sweet — they blow away the smell of roiling fish but whip in ugly black clouds bursting with rainwater. The wind makes Colin's skirt rise and fall like the tides.

Boats are slipping up and down the Hudson and planes and helicopters buzz overhead, all wreaking havoc for the soundman.

"See this," said soundman Peter Iardi, pointing to his grey beard. "This wasn't here before."

"Leg Work," a new CBS drama series debuting Saturday (Oct. 3, 9-10 p.m. EDT), produces at the nightmare pace of one episode every seven days. Four of those days are spent among the streets and piers and waters that are New York City.

Today, the crew is racing the storm to get one last scene in the can.

"Let's do this please before we're all in the rain," shouts a crewmember.

It is a losing proposition. Thunder cracks in the distance, then the flash of lightning illuminates the black clouds. Here comes the rain.

A giant umbrella is rushed to the scene to cover the crew and equipment — forget the stars. A small umbrella is borrowed for Colin.

"Let's do everything we can to cover this equipment now!" shouts line producer John Starke of Treasure Island Productions.

A small black stationwagon is brought to the edge of the pier and Colin hops in with her script and co-star Frances McDormand. The crew races for cover inside a massive waterfront warehouse.

"Welcome to the sunny side of 'Leg Work,'" jokes Colin.

CBS believes Colin will be a major star one day. She has that special spark that casting directors swoon over, and networks bank on — charisma, chemistry, charm — whatever you want to call it.

She was swooped up from the soaps, CBS' "As The World Turns," and given her own sitcom, "Foley's Square." It bombed in the ratings (CBS takes the blame for failing to promote it) but Colin took her role as a tough prosecutor and made it sing.

Movie offers started rolling in. She played the tart in "Something Wild" and the teacher in "Pretty in Pink." There are more movies about to be released. She is Dudley Moore's girlfriend in "Like Father Like Son" and Tom Selleck's girlfriend in "Three Men and a Cradle."

Meanwhile, CBS gave her another series, this time a drama, about a single woman private eye who must deal with the realities of living in New York City.

It is already written that "Leg Work" will fail, no matter how good it is. It is up against NBC's top-rated sitcoms, "The Golden Girls" and "Amen," and it doesn't have a chance. Well, maybe a slight chance. It is the favorite show of CBS Inc. chief Laurence Tisch.

That's not important. Nobody expects it to be a hit against such competition. Colin likely will do her 13 episodes and by that time two more of her movies will be released. She'll become a movie star and leave behind her days in television.

But first things first. Work goes on on "Leg Work."

Colin loves the fact that "Leg Work" films in New York, as do the scores of actors and actresses pounding the pavement for jobs. Hollywood is fine, but there's nothing like New York City.

The Brooklyn girl has explored parts of the city she never knew existed. While the crew must beg the businessmen of Wall Street not to wave at the cameras, most New Yorkers aren't impressed by stars on the streets.

"They say, 'Just get out of my way,'" Colin said.

The crew is like a guerrilla team attacking the streets. Every day there are problems. Today it was the weather. Yesterday it was the doorman.

"The doorman didn't want us to use his building anymore," Colin said about one exterior shot.
