Krickstein out with injury

HEATHROW — A 20-year-old Stanford student has made it to the quarterfinals of the Prudential-Bache Tennis Classic.

Alex Hombrecher had already made plans to fly home Thursday night, figuring that a loss to second-seeded Aaron Krickstein was inevitable.

However, Hombrecher was forced to cancel his travel plans after a hamstring injury forced Krickstein to the showers.

Preston execution delayed

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court granted a stay of execution Thursday to convicted killer Robert Preston, who was scheduled to die Saturday for stabbing and slashing the throat of a store clerk.

The indefinite stay was to give the court more time to study Preston's appeal. His attorneys said they have new evidence casting doubt on Preston's guilt and that a previous conviction was improperly considered by jurors during the sentencing phase of the trial.

The action was the second this week by the Florida Supreme Court staying Preston's execution.

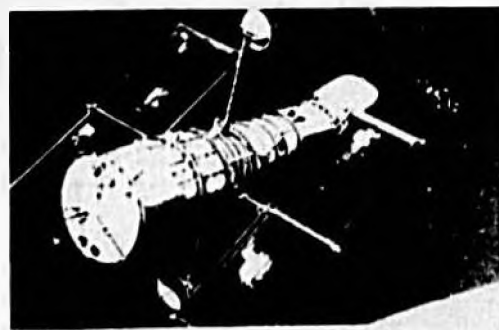

Preston was convicted of stabbing and slashing the throat of convenience store clerk Earline Walker Nov. 9, 1978. A Seminole County jury convicted him of first-degree murder and recommended the death penalty Nov. 6, 1981.

COMING SUNDAY

An historic shuttle mission

NASA is readying the shuttle Discovery for blastoff Tuesday on a long-awaited flight to launch the $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope, considered by many to be the showcase payload of the shuttle era.

Operating high above Earth's obscuring atmosphere, the telescope is expected to revolutionize optical astronomy, allowing scientists to peer deeper into the cosmos than ever before.

The telescope will be used to study the epoch of galaxy formation, to search for distant quasars and to perhaps find direct evidence of planets circling other stars. Its sophisticated cameras will be able to take high-quality photos of Jupiter and other planets in the solar system and capture light emitted from stars and galaxies shortly after the big bang explosion scientists say created the expanding universe.

The historic mission will be outlined in detail in Sunday's Perspective section.

Another sunny day

Mostly sunny today with a high in the low 80s and a light north wind at 10 mph. Becoming mostly cloudy tonight with a 20 percent chance of showers. Low near 60.

P&Z approves mall plan

By J. BRADLEY DILLING
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Plans for the large regional mall at Sanford's western border got another nod of approval last night from the city Planning and Zoning Commission.

The commission unanimously approved rezoning and development plans for the mall. The board will recommend the project to the city commission, who will consider the proposal Monday.

Melvin Simon & Associates, of Indianapolis, presented commissioners plans to build the $100 million mall at the intersection of Interstate-4 and State Road 46. It was annexed into the city last month. Construction is planned in three stages, with final work scheduled for completion in 1997.

Parcels of the 214-acre mall site last night were rezoned to commercial use from various other zoning designations, primarily from agricultural use.

Lottery-education proposal endorsed by school official

From staff and wire reports

SANFORD — A Seminole County school official today applauded the approval by a state House committee of a bill to ensure state lottery money being used to enhance the education budget, not pay for growth and inflation or replace money from other revenue sources.

"We're really happy there is movement in that area," Dick Hofmann, director of community relations for the Seminole County school district said this morning.

"That kind of legislation would be a definite benefit to property-tax-poor counties like Seminole County."

A similar bill died on the Rules and Calendar agenda last year.

"I know it's going to be an uphill battle" this year, said Rep. Michael Langton, D-Jacksonville, the bill's sponsor.

Langton's bill would ensure that lottery money was not being used to camouflage the amount of general revenue being taken out of education by requiring at least 62 percent of recurring general revenue funding to go into education.

According to Hofmann, Seminole County received $13 million from the lottery last year. "All of it had to be used for programs," he said. "Our hands are tied in what we can use it for."

Hofmann added that if only half of last year's lottery contribution could have been used for construction projects in Seminole County, there would have been enough money to build one elementary school.

"We are happy that the legislature is looking at the importance of this issue," Hofmann said.

The same committee voted 12-11 Thursday to permit owners of horse tracks, dog tracks and jai alai frontons to open and operate off-track betting facilities. "Even though this passed by only one vote, I think we'll pick up more votes as we go

See Proposal, Page 5A

The mall, if built as proposed, would benefit the area by providing thousands of jobs and substantially boosting the city's property tax revenue.

Many concerns also have arisen.

Bruce Scott, a paralegal for Central Florida Legal Services representing Sanford's low-income residents, last night said he was not satisfied that the mall developer had met the requirements of a state statute requiring developers of large projects to address affordable housing needs in the area.

According to the statute, a developer must address the impact of the development on the housing market, and make allowances to redevelop a slum or blighted area, Scott said.

Scott recommended that Melvin Simon and Associates include the Goldsboro area in their project and that the firm construct 250 to 300 housing units on the proposed mall property.

"Are you asking the city to impose restrictions on a developer as to how he can develop his land?" Commissioner John Morris asked.

"No. That's not what I'm saying," Scott said.

"I'm just saying that we want the affordable housing issue addressed."

In a letter sent to City Planner Jay Marder, Scott said, "We base this recommendation on the already documented study that was commissioned by the city of Sanford that identifies 75 percent of the houses in the nearby Goldsboro area as being either deteriorated or dilapidated."

Scott also cited a Florida statute that says, "The public and private sectors shall increase the affordability and availability of housing for low-income and moderate-income persons..."

"Who have they got for tenants out there?" Scott asked. "The turtles?" Scott referred to a large population of gopher tortoises environmentalists say will be lost to development on the site.

Asked if the project might include the housing Scott proposed, Jim Willard, attorney for Melvin Simon and Associates, said, "I don't think that is a likely possibility. We only have 214 acres. We can only develop what is ours."

Scott would not say what measures, if any, Central Florida Legal Services would take if the affordable housing issue were not addressed.

People are lining up to purchase tickets to what may be the largest Lotto jackpot in the two-year history of the Florida lottery.

A projected $53 million jackpot may rise to more than $58 million by the time the six numbers are drawn at 11 p.m. Saturday, according to lottery officials. The jackpot will be paid in 20 annual installments of approximately $2.5 million.

Sheelah Ryan of Winter Springs won $55,160,000 in September 1988. To date, Ryan's jackpot has not been surpassed.

"It looks like it may come close to that this week," said Ed George, director of communications for the Florida Lottery. "Maybe it'll go even higher."

George added that as the jackpot estimates

Lake Mary commissioners shoot down Southland proposal

By LACY DOMEN
Herald People Editor

LAKE MARY — City commissioners last night turned down on first reading Southland Realty and Investments application for land use change from rural residential, one home per acre, to low density residential, 2.5 homes per acre.

Southland intended to develop the site at Country Club and main roads by building five homes on half acre sites. Before the vote, City Commissioner George Duryea said, "I might be crying in the desert, but I think we should leave it like it is."

Only Mayor Dick Fess voted in favor of the land use change. He said he considered Southland's plan well thought out and an improvement of the site. "I voted for the exact same thing on the property adjacent to my own, folks," he said.

Jim Wineberg, representing the developer, presented an artist's rendering and charts outlining the improvements slated for the site. Landscaping, a fountain, and a buffer zone were included in the plan. A dangerous retention pond was to be reshaped. "Although it's rural in character, it's dangerous," Wineberg said of the wooded site where a garbage-laden retention pond breeds snakes and draws area children to play.

Speaking against the change,

Sarabeca Rozier said the pond is dirty because children in Cardinal Oaks subdivision litter the area. Cardinal Oaks residents signed a petition and spoke in favor of the land use change. "It sounds real nice, but it's a lot of baloney," Rozier said. "They're trying to push it for financial gain."

Other concerns of citizens against the land use change ranged from decreased property values to in-

Ceremony at Rollins marks historic past of prominent family

WINTER PARK — A guide to the collected papers of Sydney O. and Joshua C. Chase was presented to Florida historians and researchers at a luncheon yesterday afternoon at Rollins College.

Though the Chase papers, written between 1883 and 1940, were donated to the University of Florida's P.K. Yonge Library of Florida History about eight years ago, Rollins was chosen to host the debut of the guide because much of the Chase family lives in Seminole County.

The Chase Company, which is now known as the Sunland Corporation, is one of the most successful business operations in Sanford. Sidney Chase came to Sanford from Philadelphia in 1878 after reading about the citrus industry in a magazine. Determined to make a career in the fledgling agricultural business of oranges, he went to work for Gen. Henry Shelton Sanford, the city's founder, who was experimenting with orange trees in Central Florida.

Chase wrote many letters about the trials and tribulations of the industry and kept detailed records of the agricultural business that he and Joshua turned into an empire.

FSU disbands 'little sisters'

TALLAHASSEE — Florida State University's 24 fraternities have voted to disband their all-female "little sisters" organizations, which critics have long contended promote sexist attitudes.

The decision to disband the affiliates came last month in a vote of the university's Interfraternity Council. Members of the council said that charges of sexism were a consideration in their vote.

"We realized that (sexism) is an important aspect when we made it, although we didn't discuss it specifically," said Jayson Penn, the IFC's vice-president.

Its primary objective in banning the groups, however, arose from concerns about liabilities that often arise with affiliate organizations, ranging "from house disputes to maybe incidents of a criminal nature," said Brad Vaughn, an IFC adviser.

On Wednesday, 18 fraternity members were expelled from Florida Memorial College in Miami amid a police investigation into allegations they committed sexual battery at a initiation party for "little sisters."

Martin asks UCF to fire Crawford

ORLANDO — Gubernatorial candidate Anthony Martin called Thursday on the University of Central Florida to fire public relations specialist Candice Crawford, sister of Florida Senate President Bob Crawford.

She was hired in December to a newly-created $70,000-a-year job that includes coordinating the inauguration of university President Steven Altman.

Martin, a Fort Lauderdale lawyer challenging Gov. Bob Martinez for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, called Crawford a "$70,000-a-year gofer."

Martin said the state was in the midst of an education funding crisis and Crawford's hiring sent the wrong message.

Martin suggested Crawford was hired because of her political connections.

"I certainly knew that her brother was president of the senate," said D.R. McGinnis, UCF vice president of university relations and Crawford's boss. "I hired her because I was convinced she could do the job I needed done."

Judge dismisses hypnosis as evidence

MILTON — A witness in a murder trial will not be able to testify about anything she recalled after she was hypnotized by a sheriff, a judge ruled Thursday.

Circuit Judge Nancy Gilliam, ruling on a defense motion, said everything authorities obtained from witness Leah Thai post-hypnotically is inadmissible, but information she recalled prior to that will be allowed.

Defense lawyer Randall Etheridge had wanted Gilliam to prevent Thai from testifying in the first-degree murder trial of Tony Owen Dupree on grounds that hypnosis performed by the sheriff "tainted" Thai's memory.

Dupree, 29, is to be tried April 25 for the December 1988 slaying of Clara Lawrence.

Grand jury declares rap obscene

PALATKA — A grand jury has effectively banned the sale of two albums in Putnam County by Miami rap group 2 Live Crew by ruling the albums obscene, and prosecutors are urging other Florida counties to do the same.

Meanwhile, the National Association of Recording Merchandisers announced Thursday that it will begin labeling records, tapes and compact discs containing explicit lyrics.

The Putnam County grand jury ruled Wednesday that the double-platinum-selling album "As Nasty as They Wanna Be" and the earlier album "Luke Skywalker, The 2 Live Crew," were obscene.

The grand jury said the albums violated existing community standards.

The judgement effectively bans sales of the albums in Putnam County, and state attorney John Tanner of Daytona Beach said he will seek similar rulings in St. Johns, Volusia and Flagler counties — the three other counties in his district.

Jury deliberates student mother trial

TAMPA — A jury began deliberations Thursday in the trial of an 18-year-old student accused of drowning her newborn baby in a dormitory toilet after hearing defense lawyers assert once again that the woman was insane at the time she gave birth.

The jury deliberated for about two hours Thursday evening before retiring for the night. Deliberations were scheduled to resume Friday morning.

Earlier in the day, the lead prosecutor in the celebrated case called Claire Moritz's insanity defense and her contention that she never knew she was pregnant "a smokescreen designed to confuse."

Moritz knew what she was doing when she submerged the 6-pound 9-ounce baby boy headfirst into a toilet about an hour after giving birth Oct. 28, Assistant State Attorney Steve Crawford said.

CCIB reports fake cocaine sale

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — City County Investigative Bureau agents report buying $20 worth of counterfeit cocaine Wednesday night and arresting the accused seller on Anchor Road, rural Altamonte Springs.

Archie Lee Cuyler, 31, 1238 Dunbar St., Altamonte Springs, is charged with sale and delivery of counterfeit cocaine.

Seminole County DUI arrests

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

• Richard L. King, 22, of Orlando, was arrested Wednesday after his car failed to maintain a single lane on State Road 436, Casselberry.

• Lisa DuBois Jenkins, 21, of Longwood, was arrested at 10:23 p.m. Wednesday after his car was in an accident on State Road 436, Casselberry.

Three accused in cocaine deal

SANFORD — A couple who allegedly supplied cocaine to an accused street dealer who sold $20 worth of cocaine to a City County Investigative Bureau agent working with Sanford police, were arrested last night.

The accused seller, Willie Eddie Ports, 34, of Orlando, was also arrested on the same charges of sale and delivery and possession of cocaine, and conspiracy to sell cocaine.

Arrested with him were Walter Eugene Cain, 27, 1000 W. 13th St., Sanford, and Mildred E. Cain, 33, 1225 Lincoln Court, Sanford.

Sanford police reported Ports allegedly went to the Cains' car on 10th Street to get the $20 worth of cocaine and to give the serialized money used in the transaction to the occupants of the car. The $20 bill was recovered during the arrests, police said. The arrests were made at 2:38 p.m. on 10th Street at Pecan Avenue.

Fake cocaine and pot tossed

MIDWAY — City County Investigative Bureau agents who recovered a packet a man discarded in the parking lot of the Cool Breeze bar, Sipes Avenue, Midway, when agents arrived, recovered the packet.

Agents said the packet contained fake cocaine and fake marijuana. They arrested Freddy Lee Williams, 22, 2050 E. 21st St., Sanford, for possession of a counterfeit controlled substance. The arrest was made at the scene at 9:35 p.m. Thursday.

Sanford woman alleges battery

SANFORD — Tina Adkins, 500 Oak Ave. 19, Sanford, accused her husband of hitting her in the face and pushing her into a playpen as she held her 11-month-old baby, Sanford police report.

That led to a charge of battery-spouse against Ronald Wayne Adkins, 21, at home at 7:34 p.m. Thursday. He was also charged with resisting without violence.

Two accused in struggle with police

SANFORD — Two of four men confronted by Sanford police investigating a reported fight Thursday night were arrested at the scene outside a house at 2509 Highland Ave.

The arrests were made just after midnight, after David Wayne Hulker, 18, of that address, allegedly walked away from police and then struggled with them. He was charged with battery on a policeman, resisting with violence and disorderly conduct. David Alex Ernest III, 22, of that address, who allegedly grabbed a policeman and struggled, was also charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Woman charged in forgery, theft

SANFORD — A woman accused of stealing and cashing three checks drawn on the account of J & W Concrete, and totalling $700, has been charged with forgery, uttering a forgery, dealing in stolen property and grand theft in that case.

Mary Ann Smith, 32, 138 Drew Ave., Sanford, was also charged Thursday in Sanford in connection with the cashing of a forged check drawn on a Stromberg-Carlson account.

The concrete company checks were misused between June 16 and June 23, 1989, and were cashed at the Sun Bank in downtown Sanford, police said. The suspect has reportedly said she used the money to buy cocaine.

The Stromberg-Carlson check for $393 was cashed at the Ideals Grocery Store, 13th Street, Sanford, Dec. 8, 1989. The suspect was reportedly photographed during that transaction, police said.

IRS seizes $2.5 million in prostitution receipts

United Press International

TAMPA. — State and federal agents unveiled a nationwide undercover operation Thursday targeting pricey massage parlors and escort services that accept credit cards for sexual favors.

Internal Revenue Service agents seized financial records and documents during raids in 18 cities Wednesday on 36 high-priced prostitution businesses, said Maurice Dettmer, IRS chief of criminal investigation.

During the two-year sting operation, authorities created two phony businesses, one in Atlanta and another in Tampa. The massage parlors and escort services unwittingly sent 25,000 credit card slips worth $2.5 million to the bogus businesses, he said.

"(The credit card receipts) average $800 to $900 per charge slip. This is not a street level escort service or street-level prostitution ring," Dettmer said during a morning news conference in Tampa.

While state and federal agents were going over details of the investigation, managers from escort services called in, warning Tampa police officers posing as money launderers that "the feds" seized their records.

Dettmer said agents are also scanning the documents for evidence linking the call-girl businesses with other money laundering activities designed to hide up to $12 million in gross earnings from the IRS.

Officials said the escort services take credit cards because traveling businessmen deduct the service, using the bogus company's name, as a business expense.

Court rejects sentence

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court threw out Thursday the death sentence given Johnnie C. Bouie Jr. for the murder of an Orlando woman, but it rejected his claim she was killed by two strangers in a racial incident.

The court ruled there was sufficient evidence linking Bouie to the Sept. 3, 1984, murder of Barbara Ann Smith in Daytona Beach. But the justices said Circuit Judge Kim Hammond did not fairly weigh mitigating circumstances against those demanding his death.

"We therefore follow the statutory mandate and reduce Bouie's sentence to life imprisonment with no possibility for parole for 25 years," the unsigned 5-2 ruling says.

According to Court records, Smith offered Bouie $10 to drive her from Orlando to Daytona Beach, but on the way one of his car tires went flat. Bouie claimed that while the car was disabled, she initiated amorous advances toward him.

But as they walked along the road for assistance, Bouie contended, two white men drove up and began hurling racist epithets at Smith, who was white. Bouie is black.

Bouie said he fled into nearby woods while the two white men began beating her while he fled into the woods.

Midway seeks lower water rates

By J. MARK SANFIELD
Herald staff writer

MIDWAY — Representatives of this small community east of Sanford will meet with State Attorneys Office prosecutors today in an effort to get answers to what they say are unreasonable water rates.

"For the money I'm getting, it's high," said Mattie Evans, a long-time Midway resident.

Residents complain they pay water rates to the Midway-Canaan Community Water Association that seem too high. The president of the association says the complaints are stirred by trouble-makers and those complaining residents probably have leaking water pipes.

Indeed, determining the association's rates is difficult. Association president Willie Cummings, a founder of the non-profit water association 22 years ago, said association users pay $12.20 for the first 1,000 gallons of water each month and $1.70 for each additional 1,000 gallons used during the month.

During the month of February, Evans said she used 5,580 gallons of water in her small home. She paid a bill of $15.70. According to Cummings' rates, she would have paid $22.06.

In the city of Sanford, where the association purchases its water at a wholesale rate, residential customers pay a monthly fixed "base rate" of $1.78 and $1.18 for each 1,000 gallons they use. If she lived in the city, Evans would pay $7.09 for her water.

Other rates in the community seem different. Community activist Johnell Jackson shows recent bills from other association customers that show billing amounts of $30 or $40. Cummings said those bills represent people with leaking pipes.

Paul Moore, director of the Sanford water department, says the association pays the same rate as all other whole customers, a fixed monthly rate of $178.15 and $1.48 for each 1,000 gallons. For using a little more than 3.9 million gallons of water in March, Moore said the association paid $8,047. In February, the association paid $7,904 to use 4 million gallons.

Based on Cummings' declared rates, the 600 association water users would pay about $13,000 collectively in March, more than enough to pay Sanford and what Cummings said is about $3,000 per month in expenses. The money also does not account for residents paying $30 bills or more for using similar or less amounts of water as other residents paying less.

Another complaint is residents have no say in the association. Cummings said the only people who can vote for directors and officers are the nine directors themselves who are the only members of the association.

Users of the water system are not voting members of the association, Cummings said.

Of polls and polls and public policy

It's normal for politicians to cherish popularity, but the wiser ones know it isn't a reliable guide to governance. The results of two recent public opinion surveys underscore our point.

In a poll conducted for a Democratic group, only 61 percent of voters could volunteer and answer when asked which issues the Democrats in Congress are handling best, and less than half had an opinion on what the Democrats were handling poorly. Moreover, the poll respondents tended (if they had any opinion at all) to think the Democrats weren't as good as the Republicans at handling economic issues.

Yet a Wall Street Journal-NBC poll showed a sharp increase since September in the percentage of citizens planning to vote Democratic in this year's congressional elections.

Some Democratic politicians interpret the results of the first poll as evidence that their party lacks a clear identity. That has been the rap against the Democrats for years, and it has some validity. But then how does one explain the party's apparent rise in popularity?

Polling error doesn't seem to be the answer, since the surveys were taken by organizations of high repute. A more likely explanation, albeit incomplete, is that many voters don't pay close attention to what is happening in Congress. Their impressions of political parties and congressional candidates are shaped by many things, some of them extraneous.

From a good-government point of view, it would be better if more voters stayed abreast of issues facing Congress and adjusted their evaluation of candidates accordingly. The knowledge wouldn't necessarily change many voters' party preferences, but it would make for greater accountability in government.

Until that happens, however, good senators and representatives will continue making their policy decisions mainly on the basis of their own best judgment. And those who navigate by the wavering compass of public opinion will be likely to lose their way.

Protection needed for pensions

WASHINGTON — The future of tens of thousands of workers and retirees depends entirely on the financial health of a little known company that some experts believe is in deep financial trouble.

The company in question is the Los Angeles-based First Executive Corp. Many companies, including several that have been the target of corporate raiders, have been terminating their traditional pension funds for employees and replacing them with annuities purchased from First Executive's Executive Life Insurance Co. subsidiary. In this way the corporation — or the raider — is able to remove and use excess cash originally in the pension fund.

Corporate raiders and cash-strapped companies have been able to raid their pension funds because of a controversial ruling by the Reagan Labor Department in 1982 that any surplus in a corporate pension fund belongs to the company, not to its workers and retirees. As long as the company, or raider, provides for the pension fund's future obligations through an annuity, the excess funds can be removed for any use.

Since the ruling, it is estimated that more than 2,000 pension plans — covering 2.3 million employees and retirees — have been terminated and replaced by annuities with companies removing more than $20 billion in excess assets from the terminated funds. This has left employees and retirees of these companies wholly dependent on First Executive's future financial health. First Executive's condition is now being brought into question because, more than any other large insurer in America, its assets are represented by junk bonds. The bottom has fallen out of the junk bond market since the collapse of Drexel Burnham Lambert, the principal junk bond underwriting firm.

First Executive currently has 45 percent of its total assets in high-yield, high-risk junk bonds. The insurance industry as a whole has only 3.8 percent of its investments in such bonds, and the insurance regulations of many states forbid an insurance company from having more than 20 percent of its assets in less than "investment grade" corporate bonds.

However, it is the very fact that First Executive does have such a concentration of high-return junk bonds that has allowed it to offer annuities at a relatively low premium rate. This is what has made First Executive so attractive to companies such as Pacific Lumber, Revlon, Bulova Watch, Cannon, Coleman and National Forge. First Executive has already announced a charge against assets of $515 million in the fourth quarter of 1989 to reflect the decreased value of its junk bond holdings. It is also expected to announce a 1989 loss of around $300 million. The company admits that things will probably get worse before they get better.

So far all the monthly checks of retirees covered by a First Executive annuity have arrived on time, and the company insists it will continue to operate "normally."

"This company is in very robust financial condition," Executive Life's Senior Vice President Allan Chapman recently told a reporter. "Any suggestion we won't perform on obligations is far-fetched."

DAVID S. BRODER

Voters want campaign reform

WASHINGTON — Dan Hammes, the publisher of the St. Maries, Idaho, weekly Gazette-Record, had a visit last month from a Democratic aspirant for the Senate named Ron Twilegar. Hammes later wrote: "Mr. Twilegar ran so fast from the only issue he was asked to specifically address, one wonders why he bothered to visit...It's one thing for the Joe Citizen to be stymied about an issue. But when a man decides he's this state's best person to serve in the U.S. Senate, he better damned well know what he stands for — and against. Eventually Mr. Twilegar and his advisors will decide what he thinks. It's our job to ensure he does it before the primary."

A thousand miles away, in Altoona, Pa., the Altoona Mirror ran a caustic editorial, based on reporting by its Washington correspondent, Bob Mitchell. The editorial questioned why Rep. Bud Shuster (R-Pa.), who has not had an opponent since 1984, found it necessary to spend $191,968 on campaign expenses in off-year 1989 to get ready for an election in which it turns out, once again, he is unopposed.

Down in Stuart, Fla., Palm Beach Post reporter Stephanie L. Jackson got space in her paper for a piece meticulously dissecting the truth and fallacy of a "fact sheet" distributed by opponents of the bridge project that became the center of the hot local election.

How do I know these things? Because, thank goodness, you readers took seriously the offer a few weeks ago to make this column a clearinghouse of conspicuous examples of good and bad campaign practices and, especially, the way the press handles campaign lies and distortions.

Readers in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, Hollidaysburg, Pa., and Palm City, Fla., furnished these examples of commendable whistle-blowing by the press. And many others of you sent in instances where you thought the candidates were getting away with murder — or at least making it hard for the voters to exercise their franchise responsibility.

The continuing response to the series of columns on empty campaigns, negative ads and the money that fuels them convinces me that it is the year a genuine rebellion against the cheapening of our politics may take place.

That's what the New York Times said in the first-rate series of front-page articles last week. It's what Jack W. Germond and Jules Witcover, who were on to this issue early, wrote in their nationally syndicated column about "Trivia in Texas," a deserved knock on the pettiness and meanness of the recent gubernatorial primary in the Lone Star State. Cable News Network, the Philadelphia Inquirer and many other large news organizations are getting on the case.

What's more impressive to me is the way local papers are taking on the challenge of giving citizens better information about the candidates and are putting the heat on contenders to deal responsibly with the voters' concerns. The Aberdeen, S.D., American News used two reporters and a page-and-a-half of space for a study of the record and reputation of Sen. Larry Pressler (R), a candidate for re-election, that would have done my paper, the Washington Post, or any other proud Milwaukee Sentinel columnist Kenneth R. Lamke jumped on the gubernatorial candidates in his state for camouflaging the tax issue, and gave his readers ammunition for probing questions of the contenders.

The journalistic momentum is going to be boosted by conferences on this topic scheduled by the Joan Shorenstein Barone Center of Harvard's Kennedy School and the Annenberg School of Communication of the University of Pennsylvania. The Center for Responsive Politics is starting a series of six regional conferences to train journalists on the coverage of money in politics.

Meantime, citizens are taking the bit in their teeth. Let me mention just two of the projects you've brought to my attention.

In Minnesota, the League of Women Voters and the Jefferson Center for New Democratic Processes plan to expand on a technique they tried out in last year's St. Paul mayoral election. They will create "electoral juries" of randomly selected citizens to conduct "hearings" on the candidates, analyze their views, and report their findings to the press and public.

On a national scale, the Center for National Independence in Politics, with former Sens. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) and William Proxmire (D-Wis.) heading its board, is mobilizing to "end these negative, issueless campaigns." It is preparing "voters' self-defense manuals" for each state, telling them how to get information on the candidates' stands and the identity of their financial backers. (The address of CNIP is 734 E. University Blvd., Tucson, Ariz., 85719.)

Some candidates and campaign consultants are also getting into the swing of things, as I'll report soon.

It is the year a genuine rebellion against the cheapening of our politics may take place.

Cabinet 'fat cat' lives high on hog

WASHINGTON — Most Americans would be honored simply to carry the title of a Cabinet secretary. But Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher has a taste for finer things.

An oil baron by trade, Mosbacher was accustomed to the life of a corporate fat cat before he signed on as a public servant. Evidently some habits are hard to break. For instance, Mosbacher had a bright red canopy installed outside his private entrance to the Commerce Department building in Washington. That cost $6,300 — perhaps the amount you paid in federal income tax last year. Now you know where your money went.

On an official trip to Canada last year, Mosbacher wanted the red carpet treatment. A high-level Commerce Department source said Mosbacher had his staff ask the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to meet his plane and bring along a band. The Canadians declined the honor.

Mosbacher is arguably the most glitzy Cabinet secretary in recent history. His blue eyes and mane of gray hair make a striking impression. He is said to be charming and gracious. He made his fortune — estimated at more than $200 million — as an oil and gas prospector. Mosbacher and his wife Georgette, a cosmetics executive, had heavy advance billing as the couple that would take Washington by storm. That didn't pan out. They give lavish parties, but Mrs. Mosbacher now spends much of her time taking care of business in New York instead of making the soiree circuit in Washington.

Cabinet secretaries don't work their way up through the ranks as career civil servants, and Robert Mosbacher is no exception. But in a sense, he earned the Cabinet job. He raised millions of dollars as finance director of George Bush's 1988 campaign. Mosbacher doesn't apologize for winning a Cabinet post because he is a generous Republican party supporter who can wring big bucks out of his friends. In fact, after he became Commerce secretary, he complained that not enough prime political appointments were going to those who had paid their dues by contributing heavily to Republican campaigns.

A spokesman for Mosbacher told us the secretary gets a bum rap because he is a millionaire and a friend of the president.

On Capitol Hill, Mosbacher has received a mixed reception. He is accessible and likable. He won points last year when he persuaded Bush to keep certain technological secrets from going to the Japanese in the joint manufacture of the FSX warplane.

But Mosbacher has not lived up to that early billing as a defender of American business interests. Some congressional sources told our associate Scott Steek that they had expected Mosbacher to be at the forefront of solving America's competitiveness problems. Instead, they said, he has taken a back seat to Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady and Trade Representative Carla Hills.

In the last few weeks, Mosbacher has picked up some momentum. He made a high-profile trip to Japan to discuss trade problems. And his defenders point out that Bush recently endorsed a concept pushed by Mosbacher — the softening of anti-trust laws so government and industry can collaborate on high-tech developments.

And what about that canopy? Mosbacher's office told us that the secretary has lots of important people coming to visit him and he wants to make an impression.

Mosbacher is arguably the most glitzy Cabinet secretary in recent history.

Watchdog says waste firms' records poor

United Press International
RALEIGH, N.C. — A national watchdog organization lists three companies vying for the contract to construct and operate a regional hazardous waste incinerator in North Carolina as less than desirable.

Brian Lipsett, a researcher for the Citizens Clearinghouse for Hazardous Waste, said Thursday that the companies named as contract candidates have histories of environmental violations.

The N.C. Hazardous Waste Management Commission Tuesday named OSX Chemical Services Inc. of Columbia, S.C., American NuKem Corp. of Mahwahy, N.J., and Ogden Environmental Services Inc. of San Diego, Calif., as the top bidders for the $60 million facility.

According to information compiled by Lipsett at the non-profit research group in Arlington, Va., OSX officials were fined for price-fixing in Los Angeles County and American NuKem's parent company was cited in West Germany.

Ogden Environmental, founded in 1986, has been cited for 10 violations but not fined.

Despite the violations, hazardous waste companies continue to operate because of lax enforcement of environmental laws and indifference by government commissions, said Lipsett.

"Dumping toxic wastes illegally and poisoning children is less of a crime than selling drugs according to some people," said Lipsett.

Darrell Hinman, commission executive director, in response to the watchdog's information, said the panel would examine the companies' backgrounds before it selects one by May 1.

"The commission feels it needs more information about their environmental compliance history and it will be getting that," said commission spokeswoman Marge Howell.

Proposals submitted by the companies required them to list in detail their environmental compliance history.

"Now it is time for the commission to look into the compliance histories itself," said Howell.

But it is doubtful the commission will reject all three companies and start the process again.

"There probably is not a waste company in existence today, in keeping up with the changing environmental regulations, that has not had some history of violations," said Howell.

North Carolina must have a regional hazardous waste incinerator operating by Dec. 31, 1992 under an agreement approved by the General Assembly. The incinerator will burn 50,000 tons annually, a solvent-recovery plant will handle 18,000 tons of waste each year and a landfill will store 10,000 tons of ash annually.

along," said Rep. Ron Silver, D-North Miami Beach, the bill's sponsor and chairman of the pari-mutuel subcommittee.

Silver said the measure would inject some much needed revenue into an industry that has been suffering ever since the state lottery began, especially the greyhound tracks.

The bill would levy a 3 percent tax on the pari-mutuel operations that would go to the state and a 2 percent tax benefiting the local government where the facility operates.

In other committee actions Thursday:

• The Senate Rules Committee voted 13-1 to permit a floor vote on Senate President Bob Crawford's proposed constitutional amendment to extend open-government laws to the Legislature.

As originally drafted, Crawford's plan would have declared that any meeting between two or more lawmakers to discuss legislative business would be open to the public. The House and Senate would be permitted to draft guidelines to give the public advance notice of such meetings.

But committee members complained that would permit reporters and others to show up at their offices at any time and demand entrance. So the panel voted to amend the proposal to extend the public notice requirement only to meetings of a majority of any committee, subcommittee or conference committee.

• A House Health and Rehabilitative Services subcommittee approved a measure allowing the state to take babies away from cocaine-addicted mothers.

House Bill 2921 would require doctors to give a drug test to newborn babies if medical evidence indicates the mothers had used controlled substances while pregnant.

If a child tests positive, the doctor must report the results as neglect so the state can determine whether to terminate the parents' rights to raise the child and deem the child dependent.

Budd Bell, coordinator for the Clearinghouse on Human Services, said lawmakers did not seem to realize the potential consequences of the bill.

"Pretty soon, we're going to have a lot of little children institutionalized," Bell said, adding that drug-addicted women who need natal care the most would stop going to hospitals to have their babies delivered.

• A House Criminal Justice subcommittee approved a bill that says references to a rape victim's clothing should not be a legitimate defense for a rape suspect.

HB 1383, sponsored by Rep. Elaine Gordon, D-North Miami, is a direct response to a Broward County rape case last year in which the jury acquitted the suspect, ruling the alleged victim had "asked for" the assault because she was wearing a larr miniskirt and no underwear.

Coler tells Congress of critical need for better social services

United Press International
TALLAHASSEE — A funding shortage is depriving abused children and their families of critically needed help in Florida and throughout the nation, the head of the state's social service agency said Thursday.

"There is now both acknowledgment of and consensus that we must forge a national policy for children and families," state Health and Rehabilitative Services Secretary Greg Coler told a congressional subcommittee in Washington.

"We must commit ourselves to improving the lives of children and back that commitment with strong political, social and financial investments," he said.

Coler testified on behalf of the America Public Welfare Association about the critical shortage of children's services before the U.S. House of Representatives Ways and Means Subcommittee on Human Resources. His report, based on a nationwide survey, also was released in Tallahassee.

Only 23 states reported that drug treatment for children was available statewide, and only 25 states said drug treatment for parents was available, he said.

"These serious limitations on the full availability of necessary services are real evidence of what we had surmised: That our system serves primarily those children who are victims of the most obvious, serious abuse and neglect," Coler said. "Clearly, they are a priority, but the other needs are there and real."

Children in the system are increasingly troubled by poverty, drugs, sexual abuse, physical and mental health problems, AIDS and developmental disabilities, Coler said.

"The common problems facing families and children today stem from a multitude of sources and require shared problem solving," Coler said. "Unfortunately, what we have found is only sporadic cooperation between the public child welfare system and other public and private agencies and institutions."

Among the problems Coler cited were:

— Low salaries for social service workers, including those who respond to 2.2 million reports of abused and neglected children annually.

— Funding shortages and a lack of qualified job candidates, which kept 32 states from filling all their authorized case-worker positions.

— Inadequate computer systems to handle the paperwork for tracking clients and cases.

— Foster care reimbursements that averaged less than $340 a month, too low to entice qualified people.

— A lack of accountability for clients in the system, including children who sometimes suffer and die under social service management.

Hotel fire claims two

United Press International
MIAMI — Fire broke out in a hotel in South Miami Beach early Friday, killing at least two residents and injuring others, authorities said.

The roof of the three-story Fontana Hotel, which housed a mixture of elderly residents and young people, collapsed in the blaze. The cause of the fire was not immediately known.

The Red Cross set up a shelter near the hotel and took in 170 people as firefighters swarmed the hotel. Officials thought the blaze was nearly out at one point but it flared up again.

The adjacent Prince Michael Hotel, another residential hotel, was evacuated.

created traffic.

"You'll set up a precedent for all of us to come back and ask for a land use change if you consider this spot zoning," resident Doc Jore said.

After the vote, Wineberg said he thought he had prepared as well as he could have for the meeting. "A picture is worth a thousand words," he said of his artist's rendering of the site.

Developer Jim Mack said Lake Mary is a good city to build in and he would be back. "We're considering asking for three houses on one acre lots," he said.

Water restrictions less severe than thought

United Press International
TAMPA — The most restrictive water measure ever to be imposed in west Florida will begin Wednesday, but water managers say those restrictions will not be as tight as first anticipated.

People living within the southern portion of the 18-county Southwest Florida Water Management District will be allowed to water their lawns twice each week instead of the once-a-week, as was suggested last month, officials said Thursday.

Word of the decision reached area water suppliers Thursday morning, a district spokesman said.

Under the new plan, residents with even-numbered addresses in the Tampa Bay area will be allowed to water their lawns during the morning and evening on Tuesdays and Saturdays.

People living at odd-numbered addresses will be allowed to water Wednesday and Sunday.

"It seems to be the next logical step in the progression to go from irrigating three days per week to two days per week, rather than go from three days to one day," said district spokesman Jay Davis.

"If people use all three days they're probably overwatering their lawn," Davis said. "Two days may still not be necessary for their lawns. If we get some rain, irrigating once a week would probably do it."

Farmers also face tougher irrigation restrictions next week, but Davis said officials have yet to work out details.

Last month, the district's governing board directed its staff to hammer out so-called "Phase III" water-use restrictions.

A 14-month drought in west and south Florida has starved many water wells, forcing record low levels.

Papers

The donated papers are the most extensive collection of material on the subject, according to experts. The guide to the Chase papers, written by Dena Elizabeth Snodgrass, calls the papers a "large and important collection."

Thirteen descendants of the Chase brothers were in attendance at the dedication ceremony. Several told stories of what they recalled about their ancestors and others pulled favorite anecdotes from the papers.

"They chose the University of Florida because we have a large research library as well as extensive records in the agricultural school," explained Barbara King, development officer at the University of Florida library.

Deborah Walk, an archivist with the Rollins College library noted that Rollins was most interested in preserving the history of the college, the oldest college in the state. "We'll leave the state history to the bigger research libraries," Walk said.

The guide organizes the business and personal records and correspondence of one of the pioneer families in the Florida citrus industry.

"There is all sorts of information in these papers that just couldn't be accessed because they (the Chase family) saved everything and it was too confusing," Florida historian Dr. Jack Lane said.

Helen Chase, daughter-in-law of Sydney Chase, said that when she first saw the voluminous collection, it was stored at her husband's Uncle Joshua's house in orange crates marked with the Chase and Company Cluster Brand logo which now adorns the cover of the guide.

"It (the collection) was all over the library," she said. "Aunt Mary complained that he saved everything."

It is because the Chases were so careful to save all their correspondence that historians will be able to do new research into the agricultural history of Florida.

Lane added that he looked forward to being able to research the papers with the help of the new guide. Lane said the papers are a "treasure trove" of information that can now be accessed thanks to the "map" provided in the guide.

"It was so exciting to get the whole Chase family together for this event," King said.

ON YOUR FEET
DR. MICHAEL LALIBERTE - Podiatrist
SIGNS OF TROUBLED FEET
 If you're having a problem with your feet, you may think it's minor until the discomfort and foot fatigue get out of hand. Any limiting of activities on the job or at home can be a serious problem until your feet get the treatment they need.

There are many signs of troubled feet, and here are a few to watch for. CORNS AND CALLUSES are caused by friction and pressure that may be attributed to defects in the foot's bone structure. WARTS may be mistaken for calluses, but they are really quite different. A wart is a skin growth which has its own blood and nerve supply and tends to spread if left untreated. BUNIONS are caused by misaligned toe joints, usually the big toe, and can become swollen and tender. FUNGUS CONDITIONS, such as athlete's foot, tend to attack the feet in the warm, moist areas between the toes. TOENAIL INFECTION, sometimes caused by improperly trimmed nails, can also be caused by structural defects.

If you have any of these signs of troubled feet, see your foot specialist for examination and treatment.

Seminole County residents are contributing.

"I've bought 10 tickets every day this week," said Janice Gorrick who was in line at the 7-11 on First Street and French Ave. in Sanford. Holding the green official lottery pencil above the pink and green card, she placed it on numbers randomly and filled in the rectangular spaces. "They pick the numbers blindly so why shouldn't I?"

Mary Beecham laughed. She has a much more scientific approach. "I use my grandchildren's birthdays," she explained.

Gorrick, who has "no idea" what she'd do with the money if she won, said she'd probably quit work so that she would have time to work on a plan. Beecham, on the other hand, is retired, but thinks she might start her own business if she won. "I'd like to open a children's clothing store," she said.

She added she would share some of her winnings with her grandchildren since their birthdays would be her ticket to wealth.

Most of the people who come through the line to buy tickets have said they usually play the lotto game, but they are gambling extra money this week because of the big jackpot, according to Mark, the clerk at the 7-11 on 17-92 and Collins St. near Lake Mary.

"I guess we have a few more people than usual, but a lot of the regulars are buying more tickets than they normally would," he said.

Jon Dorsett said he has been buying tickets with every spare dollar he has this week.

"I've even spent some of my cigarette money," he said with a smirk, adding that if he wins he'll have time to quit smoking because he will have his job and go fishing "someplace quiet... maybe I'll buy the Everglades and go fishing there."

Dorsett adds the two tickets he purchased to a half inch thick pile held together with a rubber band in his shirt pocket.

"There's got to be a winner in here somewhere."

Sandy and Lester Small are filling out a card. "I think I'm gonna be lucky this week," she said patting Lester on the back. Lester, smirking, crosses his arms across his chest. "I'm gonna win and take this old guy on a world tour with me," Sandy added.

"Lotto, Schmotto," he said rolling his eyes back. "I'd rather spend that money on some popcorn at the movies."

Pegasus rocket hailed

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — The successful launch of an unconventional winged rocket from a high-flying B-52 bomber opens the door to low-cost access to space for small military, commercial and scientific satellites, officials say.

The privately developed Pegasus rocket successfully drilled a military research satellite into an orbit around Earth's poles Thursday in the program's maiden flight, the first time a satellite has ever been fired into orbit by an air-launched booster.

"Today's Pegasus launch is an important milestone for America's space program and, I think, it's a triumph for our country's commercial space industry," said David Thompson, chairman of Orbital Sciences Corp., the company that spearheaded the development of the new rocket.

Pegasus, Thompson said, "represents a new class of space systems seeking to substantially reduce the cost of putting satellites into space."

Musburger lashes at CBS officials

NEW YORK — Sportscaster Brent Musburger lashed out at his former employers at CBS, claiming the network never intended to re-sign him and saying his firing was a "personal vendetta" on the part of two CBS executives.

In his first interview since his stunning release from the network Sunday, Musburger told Sam Donaldson on ABC's "Primetime Live" Thursday night that his CBS bosses conspired to drive him out.

"In my opinion, CBS didn't fire me," Musburger said. "It was not a network firing. It was a personal vendetta on the part of two people ... President of the (Sports) Division, Neal Pilson, and the Executive Director Ted Shaker. They conspired to get me out of CBS. These two men had decided I was just too big for my britches and that they were just going to take me down a peg or two."

Shaker and Pilson did not comment on the specific allegations by Musburger but said they were saddened by the sportscaster's comments. "It was disappointing to watch," Pilson said. "I wish to remember Brent the way he was Monday night, gracious and professional." Shaker said, referring to Musburger's sentimental farewell broadcast at the NCAA men's basketball finals.

Kodak plea deal a 'slap'

ROCHESTER — State Attorney General Robert Abrams defended a $2.15 million plea agreement with Eastman Kodak Co., saying it included the largest criminal penalty New York ever assessed a business for environmental abuse.

Kodak pleaded guilty Thursday to two misdemeanor counts for mishandling hazardous chemicals at its Rochester plant and agreed to pay $1.15 million in fines and penalties, as well as a criminal fine of $1 million.

City Judge Herman Waltz, who presided over the case, lambasted the plea arrangement and said he questioned the wisdom of allowing "white-collar criminals" like Kodak "to go free."

Chapman wins five Doves

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Steven Curtis Chapman won five Dove awards, including artist of the year, at Thursday night's Gospel Music Association's ceremony.

Chapman, 27, also collected the male vocalist, songwriter, inspirational recorded song and Southern gospel awards. "I pray that I can represent gospel music in a way that will honor you all — but also honor our Lord Jesus Christ," Chapman said after receiving the artist of the year award.

Singing siblings HeBe and CeCe Winans picked up four Doves, winning group, contemporary song, contemporary black recorded song and contemporary album.

De Klerk, Mandela agree in historic negotiation

United Press International

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — President Frederik de Klerk and African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela emerged from three hours of talks declaring the negotiation process back on course after settling differences that led to the suspension of peace talks.

The first face-to-face encounter between an ANC delegation and a South African president in 42 years of National Party rule began Thursday just hours after another crisis for the government: a bloodless military coup in the northern black homeland of Venda.

It was the second homeland in a month to fall to rebellious black soldiers with the blessing of the ANC.

Meeting at the presidential offices, Mandela and de Klerk agreed on a new date for talks originally scheduled for April 11 that were intended to clear obstacles to formal power-sharing negotiations. They said a date would be announced soon.

The ANC suspended the talks last week to protest the deaths of at least 11 blacks in police gunfire and the wounding of 450 others during an anti-government demonstration in the township of Sebokeng, near Johannesburg.

Both men, each accompanied by three senior aides during the talks, emerged expressing satisfaction. De Klerk said the meeting was "very fruitful" and sealed an agreement that peace in the violence-torn country was essential to negotiations. Mandela described the three-hour meeting as "productive."

"The meeting will have exactly the same aims as that of April 11," de Klerk said. He described the killings in Sebokeng as "a matter of concern" and announced that a judge would handle the inquest — a task normally assigned to a magistrate. He also said the Cabinet would consider appointing a judicial inquiry.

"I and my delegation got the impression that the government would address the problems which led to the suspension of the meeting," Mandela told a news conference later. "Generally speaking, we welcome the steps the government is taking."

De Klerk, who tried to meet earlier Thursday with moderate black leaders of six self-governing territories but faced a boycott by four who canceled after seeing Mandela Wednesday, accused the ANC of trying to ride roughshod over the power-sharing negotiations.

De Klerk rejected ANC efforts to "form just one umbrella and polarize the discussions" and said he was "disappointed" by Mandela's intervention. The issue was raised during the talks Thursday night but Mandela denied government's charge.

"Nothing could be further from the truth," Mandela said. "Negotiation is our basic policy. We do not intend excluding anybody."

Japan helps American business

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Japan presented major commitments to change its economy and legal practices in order to reduce its stubborn $49 billion trade surplus with the United States, ending almost four days of intense trade talks between the two economic superpowers, American officials said.

In Tokyo, Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu acknowledged the proposals Friday during a nationally televised address, declaring Japan must bear the pain of opening its closed markets.

"It is my conviction, however, that they are essential in furthering Japan's own national interest, and that they are the kind of duties Japan must discharge as a responsible member of the international community," Kaifu said.

White House aides said Kaifu telephoned

Kaifu warns of pain

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu called on Japan Friday to bear the pain of opening its markets to the world but he encountered resistance from those most likely to suffer under a new U.S.-Japanese trade agreement.

American and Japanese trade negotiators reached an interim agreement in Washington Thursday on several steps to open Japan's markets and improve American competitiveness.

President Bush at 7:45 a.m. EDT Friday. There were no details of the conversation, which apparently dealt with the Japanese trade talks.

White House reaction to Thursday's historic trade developments was measured.

but supportive of Kaifu.

"Because structural problems are deeply ingrained in both economies, complete results will not come quickly," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said in a statement.

"We believe that the Japanese prime minister will continue his assertive leadership on these issues and that this will greatly facilitate the work on remaining economic and trade issues."

The officials told a State Department news conference Thursday that Japan promised changes in six areas that contribute to the sea of U.S. trade red ink, including saving and investment patterns, land use policies, distribution and retailing, exclusionary business practices, interlocking business groups, and pricing mechanisms.

Michael Farren, undersecretary of commerce for international trade, called the Japanese promises "a down payment and a blueprint" for further action, but warned

Rapid change helped boost early summit

By GERALD HADLER

United Press International

MOSCOW — President Mikhail Gorbachev may have wanted an earlier than expected summit in Washington because of rapid developments in the Soviet Union, a Foreign Ministry official suggested, adding that the Lithuanian crisis had nothing to do with setting the date.

"The pace of our life is accelerating," Kiril Kasatkin said Thursday. "Life itself put forward new questions and they need new answers."

Kasatkin stressed that the May 30-June 3 summit announced Thursday will cover various questions, and he said the Soviet Union was receptive to a broad forum. Observers had predicted the summit would be in late June.

Gorbachev will leave for Washington at the end of May with the Soviet Communist Party shorn of its monopoly on power and the Baltic republics openly clamoring for secession. Lithuania's unilateral declaration of independence March 11 set off a crisis with Moscow that has spilled over into the international arena, with Bush and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher cautioning Gorbachev to avoid using force against the republic, which was annexed by the Soviet Union 50 years ago.

Kasatkin was adamant that the Lithuanian crisis played no role in setting the summit dates.

"I do not think that scheduling the summit for an earlier date is in any way connected with the Lithuanian issue," he said. "It is not ruled out that the issue will be raised by the American side."

Reminded that it had been assumed the summit would be in late June, Kasatkin said, "The timing of the agenda was fixed so as to satisfy both sides."

In Washington, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater refused to pinpoint the reasons why the summit will be begin at the end of May.

Unconfirmed reports surfaced some time ago that Gorbachev had accepted an invitation to speak at Brown University around the time of its May 28 commencement.

Dates set for U.S.-USSR summit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet and American diplomats doubted a major arms treaty would be signed by President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev when the two meet this spring in the United States for their second summit.

The May 30-June 3 summit was announced Thursday, but neither the Kremlin nor the White House disclosed the precise meeting dates or the summit site.

There was strong speculation Washington would be the site, with Gorbachev and Bush meeting on three of the five days.

Soviet spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said the meeting would be a "no-nonsense working visit" by Gorbachev, who is embroiled in the politically explosive events in the Soviet Union's independence-minded Baltic republics.

Lithuanians OK conciliation

MOSCOW (UPI) — Lithuania's Parliament, in a conciliatory statement, overlooked the Soviet army's seizure of the local prosecutor's office and for the first time acknowledged the Soviet constitution should be considered in any independence talks with Moscow.

The concession was contained in a statement, adopted nearly unanimously late Thursday, responding to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's demand that the legislature annul its March 11 declaration of independence.

Deputies voted hours after Soviet troops toting automatic weapons seized the Lithuanian prosecutor's office, according to an urgent dispatch by the Lithuanian government.

Balance key to Piston charge

Even without one of their main cogs, the Detroit Pistons are making a strong run at repeating as NBA champions.

Joe Dumars has been out since March 24 with a broken hand, but Detroit has enough balance to cover his loss. Mark Aguirre scored a team-high 25 points off the bench Thursday night to lift the Pistons to a 104-99 victory over the Hawks in Atlanta.

Elsewhere, Chicago topped Orlando 111-104, Seattle upset Utah 101-91, and the LA Lakers stymied Sacramento 110-103.

Tribe loses another close one

SANFORD — The Seminole High School baseball team just can't seem to shake its bad luck. On Thursday, they lost another close game, this one a 4-2 decision to Mainland.

Seminole (6-13) didn't swing the bats until the last inning, but by then, the Buccaneers had built a 4-0 lead. "We didn't hit the ball tonight," said Seminole head coach Mike Powers. "We were very impatient at the plate."

Mike Senechek gave up eight hits as he threw a complete game for the Seminoles.

Seminole scored its runs in the seventh on hits by Ricky Eckstein, Joe Adcock and WL Gracey as well as a sacrifice fly by Jeff Derr.

Rams tough second time around

MAITLAND — Opponents of the Orangewood Christian softball team had better watch out. They're no pushover the second time around.

Mount Dora Bible became the third team this year to lose to the Rams after beating them earlier. And Orangewood Christian was missing four starters in their 16-1 romp on Thursday.

Christa Hogan and Rebecca Green each had two hits and four RBIs.

But it was Lisa Gable's pitching which made the difference. Last time against Mount Dora Bible, she walked over 20 batters — this time she walked one.

Whalers surprise Bruins

The first playoff matchup of the NHL's New England teams produced the biggest upset to cap two nights of opening game surprises.

The Hartford Whalers, who finished fourth in the Adams Division, went into Boston Garden and knocked off the regular-season champion Bruins Thursday night 4-3 in one of four matches between Wales Conference opponents.

In the other series, Buffalo defeated Montreal 4-1, the New York Rangers nipped the New York Islanders 2-1, and Washington upended New Jersey 5-4 in overtime.

Tribe sweeps Optimist

Seminole's Carlo White registered a new state-best in the shot put with his winning toss during the Optimist Invitational at Seminole High School Thursday. The throw 60-11 is 3-8 short of the Class 3A state record.

SANFORD — The Seminole High boys and girls track teams proved to be inhospitable hosts Thursday night as they dominated the action in the 15th annual Optimist Invitational at Buddy Lawson Memorial Track.

The Seminole girls won nine of 17 events to outdistance Haines City 162-109 while Carlo White tossed a state-best 60-11 1/2 in the shot put to lead the boys to a 112-79 triumph over Winter Haven.

"We did very well," said Seminole girls coach Nate Perkins. "But we got a little cocky in the mile relay and got our butts beat. Now we know we can't take anyone for granted. It brought our heads back down to normal."

Seminole boys coach Ken Brauman was just as impressed with his team.

"Everything went great for us," said Brauman. "We really performed well. Even the ones that didn't place ran well."

"But everyone was also looking forward to the spring break, including the coaches. It gives us time to relax, practice a little and let the little niggling injuries heal. We hope to have Eric Walker and Joe Merthle (out with minor hamstring injuries) back next week."

Mechelle Toombs and Yolanda Baker of Seminole were named the most valuable field event performer and most valuable runner, respectively. Toombs won the triple jump with a leap of 36-1 and placed sixth in the long jump as Baker won the 100 meters (11.7) and the 220-yard dash (24.9).

The remainder of the wins for Seminole were by Keelia Ward in the long jump and the 440-yard dash, Sheri Reddicks in the shot put, Nadrian McGill in the 330-hurdles and both the 440-yard and 880-yard relays.

Also placing in the top three spots in events for Seminole were Kay Kay Mullins (third in the 100-meters) and Keelia Lawrence (second in the 880). The mile relay team scored a second place finish and the two-mile relay finished third.

"Yolanda (Baker) ran real well in the 100 and 220," said Perkins. "Her best event is the 220 and she's just starting to get into track shape. I think by the SAC meet (in two weeks) she will be down to 24.0. Now if we can just come up with a better combination in the mile relay, I think we'll be ready to go."

The Lake Brantley girls scored 57 points to finish in a tie for fourth. Amy Ginnette won the one-mile and two-mile runs and Joyce Tullis finished second and fourth in the same events. The Patriot two-mile relay team also came home victorious.

The Lyman girls finished seventh but was just a single point behind Lake Brantley. Janet Greenberg won the 880-yard run and the mile-relay team also took home a victory. Melissa Lewis was second in the triple jump.

On the boys' side, White was the field events MVP while sprinter Robert Scott of Winter Haven took home the running MVP.

Seminole picked up three firsts, six seconds and one third to claim the team trophy. In addition to White, others scoring wins were Robert Moore in the triple jump and Maurice Thomas in the 330-yard intermediate hurdles.

Second place performances were turned in by Moore in the shot, Henry Williams in the triple jump, Eldonte Stile in the 440, Dalvin Davis in the 880 and the 440- and

Hamstring injury stops Krickstein

By ROBBIE STOCK

LAKE MARY — Going into his second-round match with No. 2 seed Aaron Krickstein on Thursday night, Alex Hombrecher already had a reservation for a midnight flight so he could return to California in time for him to play UCLA and USC.

But the 20-year-old Stanford student was forced to cancel those plans after earning a spot in the quarterfinals of the Prudential-Bache Classic being played at the Heathrow Racquet Club, thanks to an injury default by Krickstein.

"I feel bad for Aaron," stated Hombrecher. "But I'd take any break I can get."

This afternoon, Hombrecher played unseeded David Pate at noon in his first-ever professional quarterfinal match. This is only the second pro tournament in Hombrecher's career.

"I am really upset that I had to withdraw," said Krickstein. "It is very unfortunate for the tournament and I'm really disappointed because I was playing so well. But by playing tonight, I would have risked serious injury."

"The way I was playing, I felt really confident about my chances against the field, but I had to consider the long-term effects."

Krickstein suffered an injury to his right hamstring while practicing Thursday morning with Christo van Rensburg, the tournament's No. 3 seed.

Only three seeded players remain in the draw — top seed Brad Gilbert, van Rensburg and fourth-seeded Scott Davis. All three will play in this afternoon's quarterfinal round.

Gilbert needed only 54 minutes to polish off unseeded Jimmy Brown, 6-2, 6-2. After breaking Gilbert in the first game, Brown (ranked No. 118 in the world) could do no more as Gilbert's pressure game caused him to make many unforced errors.

"Playing at night is an advantage for him (Gilbert)," See Classic, Page 2B

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — By the time you read this, the Seminole Athletic Conference tennis tournament will already be over.

After playing until about 10 p.m. on Thursday night, the SAC brought everyone back to Sandloto Park at 8:30 a.m. this morning for the 10 singles finals. Immediately following will be the doubles semifinals and finals.

Typically, each match will be crucial as there are three teams in both the boys' and girls' standings within a point of the lead.

In the boys' competition, the Lake Mary Rams ended play last night with a one-point advantage over both the Lake Brantley Patriots and Lyman Greyhounds. But when play resumed this morning, Lake Brantley was in the strongest position to make a run at the team title.

Jordan helps Bulls hold off Magic and claim 50th win

United Press International

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan led a balanced attack Thursday night with 38 points, including 16 in the fourth quarter, as the Chicago Bulls turned back the Orlando Magic, 111-101, to reach the 50-victory mark for the sixth time in franchise history.

The Bulls' sixth-straight win kept them four games behind first-place Detroit in the Central Division. The setback was the Magic's seventh in succession and 23rd in the last 25 outings.

Jordan converted a 15-foot baseline jump to increase the lead to 106-102 with 53 seconds left. After a pair of Orlando misses, Horace Grant split two free throws for a five-point advantage.

Sidney Green's follow-up shaved Orlando's deficit to 107-104, but Scottie Pippen and Jordan hit two free throws in the final 12 seconds to ice the victory.

Jordan and Grant scored eight each in the third quarter as Chicago held a 83-76 lead it never lost.

Otis Smith paced Orlando with 21 points, while Green added 20, Scott Skiles 19 and rookie Nick Anderson 15. Bill Cartwright scored 15 and Grant and rookie B.J. Armstrong 14 each for Chicago.

As Chicago emptied its bench in the second quarter, Anderson ignited a comeback with nine points and four rebounds. Orlando shot 56 percent in the period to take a 57-56 lead at halftime.

Acosta saves DAV in seventh

From staff reports

SANFORD — Alexis Acosta blasted a two-out, three-run home run in the seventh inning as the Disabled American Veterans Royals came from behind to drop the First Union A's 16-13 and remain undefeated in Sanford Little Major American Division play at Roy Holler Field Thursday night.

In the other game, the Seminole Ford Red Sox moved into second place with a 17-6 shellacking of the SunBank Orioles.

With the first round of divisional games, over DAV is 3-0, Seminole Ford 2-1, First Union 1-2 and SunBank 0-3.

This Saturday will mark the first of the interdivisional play as DAV takes on the Rinker Dodgers at 8 a.m., the Railroaders Cubs tackles First Union at 10 a.m., Sun Bank squares off with the Sunland Pirates at noon and Seminole Ford challenges the First Federal Cardinals at 2 p.m.

First Union took advantage of the wildness of DAV starter Lloyd Dixon to take a 6-0 lead in the top of the second inning. But Kevin Butler keyed a three-run bottom of the second for the Royals with a long home run to right field.

The A's scored a single run in the third and three in the fourth and DAV two in the third and four in the fourth to make the score 10-9 First Union entering the last two innings.

Al Anderson led off the fifth with a home run for the A's off Acosta, who had come on in relief in the fourth for DAV, to push the advantage back to two, 11-9. Another run by First Union in the sixth gave the A's a three-run advantage going into the bottom of the sixth and final inning.

Dixon and Corey Williams started the DAV rally with doubles before Acosta singled and stole second. Butler's double tied the score. He into the tournament, have representatives in four of the final singles finals this morning. Not only that, but they are the top-seeded player in all four cases. So are both Lake Brantley doubles teams.

By comparison, Lymon has three players in the finals while Lake Mary has just two. Both of Lymon's and Lake Mary's doubles teams are still alive, but the Greyhounds had to play the Rams in the semifinals in both No. 1 and No. 2 doubles this morning.

Competition among the girls is just as close. The Oviedo Lions led their counterparts from Lake Brantley and Lake Mary by one point. But unlike in the boys' play, the Lions also were in the strongest position to build on their advantage with players in four of the five singles finals and both doubles teams still alive.

Going into this morning, Lake Mary had three players in the singles finals and Lake Brantley had two. Both doubles teams from both schools were still alive but as in the boys, the Rams and Patriots were to play each other in both doubles semifinals.

Pairings for this morning's singles finals had Kim Bruno (Lake Brantley) facing Jenny Wise (Oviedo) at No. 1. Jill Wise (Oviedo) playing Amy Smith (Lymon) at No. 2. Kristina Kotsos (Oviedo) taking on Tracy Mutchnik (Lake Mary) at No. 3. Jen Wheeler (Lake Mary) squaring off against Mimi Tran (Oviedo) at No. 4 and Laurie Hahn (Lake Mary) matched with Grimm (Lake Brantley).

mille-relay teams. Taking a third was Thomas in the 120 high hurdles.

Lake Mary claimed third place with 74 points behind first-place finishes from Tyrone Gibson in the long jump and Charles Elberry in the 440. The Rams got seconds from Bob Robertson in the mile and the two-mile relay team while third-place finishers were Alex Green in the pole vault and D.J. Lewis in the two-mile run.

Lake Brantley, which finished seventh, got top-three places from Jason Hobbs (first in the pole vault), Matt Kaiser (second in the pole vault), Clint Johnson (thirds in both the 220-yard and 100-meter dashes) and the two-mile relay team (third).

The remainder of the county top three finishers came from Lymon, which finished eighth in the team standings. Teddy Michell won the mile and finished third in the 880. Kevin Padgett finished second in the two-mile and the two mile relay team triumphed.

"Everything went pretty well," said Brauman about the event. "We had some outstanding performances turned in by several teams. It ran a little long but when you have this many teams and both boys' and girls' teams, it is going to take awhile."

Dale Cockpock of the Sanford Optimist Club was the chairman for this event and said his club would continue its participation. "This is the 15th year we've run this particular event and we have enjoyed it," he said. "The meet used to be for the county championship but with the forming of the SAC we had to change it to an invitational three years ago. We are very pleased with the turnout by the teams."

win came at No. 5, where Ed Blakiston beat Eric Stelten 8-1. In doubles, David and Nace beat Westling and Larson 8-4 at No. 1 while Alvarez and Senell defeated Ramirez and Price 8-2 at No. 2. Orangewood will play again Saturday in their conference meet at Red Bud Bug Lake Park.

Tem-Dale forces playoff with Creative Invasion

From staff reports

SANFORD - It's playoff time in the Sanford Recreation Department Thursday Night Softball League.

Terrell Ervin tripped, Joe Ervin doubled and Jimmy Sheffield singled for two third-inning runs to put the Tem-Dale Company ahead of league-leading Creative Invasion. Joe Ervin made the advantage stand as Tem-Dale scored a 5-4 victory to force a one-game playoff for the league championship.

In the other game, the Wrecking Crew finished the season with a 9-7 triumph over Crazy Wings.

The final regular season standings show Tem-Dale and Creative Invasion at 9-3, the Wrecking Crew 5-7 and Crazy Wings 1-11.

Tem-Dale had scored three runs in the top of the first inning only to have Creative Invasion come back with four runs in the bottom of the first. But Joe Ervin allowed only five hits the rest of the way and retired 18 of the last 24 men he faced.

First Union took the lead back when Eric Smith led off the seventh with a long home run to right.

Marcus Beasley and Donnie Hinson led off DAV's winning rally with walks, both advancing on a wild pitch. After the next two batters struck out, Williams hit a slow roller down the third base line that scored Beasley with tying run. Acosta followed with his shot to left to finish the game.

Acosta only gave up three runs on five hits in his four inning of relief to pick up the victory. He also led the Royals offensively with a home

Applause to shower 'Rainmaker'

Distinguished dean directs romantic comedy

By LASY BOWEN
People editor

SANFORD — Just as April showers bring May flowers, Seminole Community College will bring the play "The Rainmaker" to its Fine Arts Theatre at 8 p.m., beginning April 12 and running for two consecutive Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays. The Sunday performances are scheduled for 1:30 p.m.

Directed by Richard Fallon, founder of the School of Theatre at Florida State University (FSU) and of the State Theatre System of Florida, "The Rainmaker" is a romantic comedy suitable for all ages.

"This is the third or fourth time I've done this play," Fallon said. "It's simple in the sense of structure, but it deals with values young people are exposed to, so it is one of my favorites to direct."

Fallon said the play is about the Curry family: a father, two sons and a daughter, who live in the Midwest on a cattle ranch, and are dealing with a severe drought.

"The drought is symbolic in nature. Rain is that nurturing aspect of nature that makes everything grow, and the play deals with each character's reflections on the way the drought is affecting them," Fallon explained.

The older son Noah is cynical. He feels the drought will never end because he has lost the capacity to dream and envision a different world for himself.

The younger son Jimmy knows that rain nourishes nature and people. He knows the rain will come, just as he knows his world will open up and his dreams will come true.

Lizzie, at a marriageable age with no prospects, is the daughter who compares herself to the land around her; dried up. She is convinced she is plain like the barren land, but she dreams that someday someone special will love her and make her blossom like the rain makes the flowers blossom.

Enter the rainmaker, a young man who says he can end the drought.

"He is a con man with a vision. He believes God has given him a special gift enabling him to make rain, but he's never proven that he can," Fallon said.

The rainmaker represents someone who can make Lizzie's dreams come true. Whether he does or does not can be answered by seeing the play.

Fallon said the play has special meaning to him. During the Viet Nam era, his daughter became disillusioned and restless. He dedicated one of his earlier performances of "The Rainmaker" to her, which she attended.

"She told me she was so moved by the play, it changed her whole attitude by teaching her to hang on to dreams and have hope," Fallon said. "I think the play has helped many people over hard times."

Fallon has been active in theatre and education for 33 years. He retired as Dean Emeritus from FSU's School of Theatre in 1982. He founded the Asolo State Theatre in Sarasota and was instrumental in founding the Burt Reynolds Institute for Theatre training in Jupiter.

Among Fallon's many accomplishments are the receipt of The Florida Governor's Award for the Arts in 1974. He was named Florida Ambassador of the Arts by the Secretary of State in 1982.

Fallon will direct "The Rainmaker" as Artist in Residence at SCC. Call for tickets and reservations at 322-1450, Ex. 399. General admission is $6. Seniors and students, $5. Tickets are also available at the door.

Director Richard Fallon, conducts rehearsal at SCC for 'The Rainmaker.'

Mark Twain has first, last word

DEAR ABBY: You stated that "the person who does not read is no better off than the person who cannot read" was your original statement. Mark Twain once said, "The man who does not read good books has no advantage over the man who cannot read them."

So you see, yours was not an original thought, though the statement is quite relevant to today's literacy program.

ESTHER A. BEHNKE, NORTHBROOK, ILL.

DEAR ESTHER BEHNKE: I wouldn't dream of plagiarizing Mark Twain — only quoting him. I have used that quote several times over the years without crediting anyone because I honestly thought it was my own. Mea culpa.

DEAR ABBY: Never in my wildest dreams did I think I'd write a letter to Dear Abby, but the letter in your column signed "Nobody's Valentine" prompted this response.

The lady was complaining because her super guy never acknowledged St. Valentine's day with a little gift or card, and she felt hurt and neglected. She signed herself "Nobody's Valentine."

You told her never let it happen again — next year leave notes on his pillow or on the bathroom mirror, and stick an artificial flower in his shoe with a note to remind him to at least give her a card.

Come on, Abby! Do you hold

ADVICE

stock in Hallmark or something? If I had to harass my husband for a card, I wouldn't want one.

This year for Valentine's Day, I made my husband a marvelous dinner, followed by a heart-shaped cake, flowers and a loving note. What did he give me? Nothing. I didn't feel slighted. Why? Because I see evidence of his love and appreciation for me every day of the year, and I don't need some commercialized, hyped up, obligatory day to make me feel loved.

My husband surprises me every now and then when I least expect it. One night he came home and told me to go outside and look at the car that was parked in the driveway. I thought for sure someone had put a dent in my fender.

I nearly fell over when I saw the brand-new car I had looked at and admired the day before. What a doll! So you see Abby, not all men want to be pushed into giving a gift out of obligation.

LUCKY LAURIE IN CARLSBAD

DEAR LAURIE: Meet another lucky lady who, after a little soul-searching, came to the same conclusion:

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Nobody's Valentine," perhaps a few words from someone in the same boat will help:

I've been married for 10 years, and in all that time, I received only one valentine from my husband: His mother had bought it for him to give to me! Of course, when I found out, it meant nothing to me.

I tried your suggested approach — reminding him with little hints, pointing out things I needed and wanted in case he wanted to give me something for Valentine's Day. Still nothing.

Finally, after seven years, I sat down and thought of all the good qualities my husband had exhibited over the years. He was honest, dependable, hard-working, affectionate at the appropriate times, good to my parents, and absolutely the best father and husband a family could ever have.

Then, all of a sudden, it didn't matter to me anymore that he didn't buy me a card or a gift just because it was St. Valentine's Day.

ON DEATH AND DANDELIONS

On one bright and sunny day,
I passed a field of dandelions on my way.
Nodding their golden heads at me,
They beckled a hungry honeybee,
And reflected the light of the heavens.

A short time passed, then came a day,
When I was walking along that very same way,
I saw petals no longer perky and golden,
Stems becoming limp and old, and
It seemed their lives were at an end.

Their golden heads were cottony white.
It appeared to be a saddening sight
Until I stood and thought some more,
Understanding what I had not before:
Even in nature, God has a plan.

These fragile seedlings floating from withered old stems
Would again transform into golden gems
In another place, in another spring:
And as God's children we shall, too, take wing

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

FROM THE PULPIT

Working together is Holy Week lesson

By WILLIAM S. MCCLLOUD

The story is told of the little girl who became lost in one of those vast Iowa cornfields. The first day of searches ended with no success. The second day, more volunteers were called in, but with no results. Finally on the third day someone suggested they all join hands and walk together.

At the end of the day they found the child...dead. One person later remarked, "We should have joined hands sooner."

Isn't it amazing what we can accomplish when we join hands. This is so true with the Church, as well. Together we can accomplish so much more than we ever could by ourselves. Working together: the secret of success.

The Scripture tells us we are a people of different gifts and different talents. Each of us is given a unique set of qualities that should be used for the good of the whole. Often if we fail to use a talent, we will lose it, or it will be taken away from us.

I think the same is true with the things that we surround our lives with. Have you ever had a possession that was so dear to you, you wanted to protect it at all costs? You never wanted to use it, always wanting to save it? I am reminded of the man who loved his favorite pair of shoes so much that he never wanted to wear them — for fear they would wear out. They did — they wore out through lack of wear. The leather cracking for lack of use. The dust collecting for lack of attention. The insoles molding for lack of a foot upon them. The shoes — like the talent — if not used, will soon fade away.

Working together with our talents for the glory of God is what we must be about. Working together for the common goal of serving our Lord.

Ever since I was a child I have been amazed at how well geese fly. They seem so graceful — they fly effortlessly. Or, so it seems. They migrate for hundreds of miles, in a perfect pattern of organized flight. They make it seem so easy. Their secret: they are working together.

The pattern in which they fly is not just by chance. The pattern of the "V" gives them the least wind resistance for the long journey. And, the leader, the "bird on point," is constantly changing? Each bird takes its turn in giving direction to the group. Working together to reach a common destination.

In the Iowa corn farm, one person remarked, "We should have joined hands sooner." During this Holy Week, let us join hands together, as we seek to do His will, for our community, our world, and ourselves. William S. McCloud is senior minister of First United Methodist Church, Sanford.

Bishops call for women's equality

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI religion writer

WASHINGTON — Arguing the "sin of sexism" has corroded civilization, a new draft of a pastoral statement on women by the nation's Roman Catholic bishops calls for greater secular equality for women, but said ordination to the priesthood remains impossible.

The 99-page document, which declares "the basic equality of all" persons, praises the work of Christian feminists who work to "liberate women from attitudes and actions that stand in the way of women using their gifts and talents for the good of society and the church."

Released Monday, the statement also cautions feminists not to advocate "aberrations" such as "liberation" from the church's teachings on sexuality or "acceptance of abortion as a legitimate choice for women under pressure."

"Fidelity to the example of Christ and to the practice of the apostles requires the church to stand by this tradition" of an all-male priesthood, it said, arguing that exclusion from the priesthood is not "rooted in a view that women are inferior as persons."

And it appeared to back off from a promise in the first draft to "foster a dialogue" in the church with "those who find prohibitions against artificial contraception unacceptable," dropping its call for "a spirit of compassion towards those who in good conscience ... have not lived in accord with the ideals set forth by the church."

Instead, the bishops pledge to promote an awareness of natural family planning and "birth regulation in the light of gospel values and a prolife stance."

In preparation for almost seven years, the new draft, styled a "pastoral response to the concerns of women," was written by a committee of six bishops headed by Bishop Joseph Imedi of Joliet, Ill. It is greatly pared down from a 184-page first draft released in 1988. The new draft is expected to be debated and voted on in November.

"The one clear and universal sentiment that arose in consultations (between the bishops and Catholic women) was this: women want to be treated as persons," the draft said. "They want to be accepted as equals in a world that has been dominated by men, not relegated to 'second class' citizenship."

"They want full participation and inclusion, not just in view of particular 'feminine' gifts and experiences, but in the whole business of life," it said.

In denouncing sexism, the proposed pastoral said women suffer from the "sexism resulting from sin" and that sexist attitudes "can and do foster sins of rape, prostitution, adultery, emotional and physical abandonment and the exploitation of women through pornography."

"The corrosive sin of sexism has seeped into the fabric of our civilization, invading economic and governmental systems as well as social and ecclesiastical structures," the statement said.

Like the first draft, the new statement calls for expanding a number of ministries inside the church — short of the priesthood — to women, including the diaconate (one step below the priesthood) and allowing women to serve as lectors and altar girls. It also said theologically trained women should be allowed to preach.

The new draft also called on each diocese to form a "commission for women that will assure the rights of women on a continuing basis."

The bishops also said they support changes in economic structures "to stem the rising tide of poverty among women," would back legislation "that respond to the needs of women," condemned pornography and urge establishment of affordable day-care centers.

Another reason for the new influence of the central tradition may be that while it has not abandoned its liberal positions, it has shunned the inflated rhetoric and inflated arrogance that characterized liberal religion during the turbulent 1960s.

At the same time, mainline activists on such issues as apartheid, Central American policy, civil rights and child care legislation settled in for the long haul.

Mainline Protestantism remains troubled. It continues to lose members.

Finding the cause of double vision

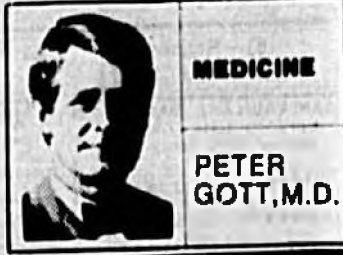

DEAR DR. GOTT: About two years ago, I experienced double vision for the first time. A physician and optometrist stated the problem was caused by migraines. I've subsequently undergone an echocardiogram, arterial scan and MRI, and I was prescribed four Ascriptin daily for vertebral basilar insufficiency. I've now progressed to being off balance, and I get a rainbow effect that lasts about 15 minutes. Where can I go from here with my eyesight?

DEAR READER: Diplopia (double vision) has many possible causes; most are related to an imbalance of the muscles that control eye movement. This can be caused by muscle dysfunction, such as myasthenia gravis, a disease characterized by periodic weakness, or by an interruption of nerve impulses to eye muscles, such as multiple sclerosis, a nerve disease affecting many of the body's muscles. Because migraines are caused by a disruption of normal blood circulation to parts of the brain, they can cause temporary attacks of diplopia or partial blindness. Treatment of the migraine usually relieves the visual symptoms.

Likewise, vertebral basilar insufficiency — a decrease in blood flow to a part of the brain — can affect the eyes. This is not related to migraine and is usually caused by age-related arteriosclerotic blockage within the arteries. I am doubly concerned about your symptoms because 1) you have not responded to treatment, and 2) your symptoms appear to be worsening. Your unsteadiness suggests a malfunction of the vestibular apparatus, the organs of balance in your inner ears. The rainbow effect that you mention may indicate damage to the retina or to the eyes themselves, such as glaucoma.

Although I suspect you are suffering from attacks of circulatory insufficiency, which affect your vision as well as your eye movements, you should be examined by an ophthalmologist, a specialist in eye diseases. I'd want to make sure that your problem is not in the eye itself.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

It's much easier to play a hand if it is presented to you as a problem. In the heat of battle, even the greatest experts fall victim to unlikely contingencies. Here is one of Zia Mahmood's offerings, a deal from last November's team-of-four North American Championship. Although Zia went set in six spades, his team still won the event. When the heart was led against six spades, East played the jack and declarer Zia ducked (the right play, depriving the defenders of discretion as to which might win a heart trick later). Now all of us can see that the hand is immediately set if East plays a diamond, but East tamely returned a heart. Declarer won the ace, played a spade to the queen, ruffed a heart back to his hand and drew trumps. He then played an extra round or two of trumps before going after diamonds. Oops! With East holding all four diamonds, suddenly the contract was one down. It costs nothing for declarer to take out a little bit of insurance. He should play out all his high trumps except one before attacking the diamond suit. Dummy's last five cards will be A-K-10-9 of diamonds and the club ace. Declarer will have 7-4 of diamonds, Q-3 of clubs and a trump. And what will be left for East except Q-J-6-2 of diamonds and now the lone king of clubs. When declarer plays a diamond and sees that East has the suit under control, he will have nothing left to do but cash dummy's club ace and hope that the king drops. And so it does.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 7, 1990

In the year ahead you may finally be able to resolve an important arrangement you've never handled satisfactorily. It will work out advantageously for you and the others involved as well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you're apt to be more adept at handling challenging situations than your peers. In fact, when the going gets tough, they might just stand back and admire your handiwork. Aries, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You can be instrumental today in helping a friend who has a critical outlook search for that which is good in people instead of that which is bad. Take time to do so.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you might have to deal with some changes that will be controlled by external forces rather than by you. Don't get ruffled, because these shifts could be advantageous.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An alliance you establish with an older individual today should work out to both party's satisfaction, even though the results won't be immediately apparent.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Devote your time and efforts now to situations that offer you material gratification. It pays to be industrious today for a profitable purpose.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be more effective today in a leadership role than you will be in that of a supporter or follower. Step out front where you are needed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Things have a way of working out to your ultimate advantage today, so don't be disturbed by early indicators if they don't look too encouraging. It's the bottom line that counts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Companions might overlook personal advantages that can be gained today from a rather unusual development. However, it's not likely you will if you put your analytical powers to proper use.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In a competitive situation today the secret to success is to be more dedicated and persistent than your competitors. Hard work generates good luck.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) We can always learn something of value from others if we keep an open mind. Today you might gain some valuable knowledge from a person you'd least expect.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your greatest opportunities today are likely to come from things others initiate rather than from things you originate. Don't be overly concerned about who authored this or that.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be sure to include a friend of long standing if you are formulating some special type of social program for this evening. In fact, put this pal at the top of your list.
