

Due To Costly State Regulations

Sanford May Increase Sewer Fees

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Developers in Sanford may soon be paying more to connect new homes to the city's sewer system.

And Sanford homeowners could be paying three times as much for sewer service.

The reason for the cost increase would be that the state Department of Environmental Regulation is standing firm in its refusal to issue new permits to let Sanford continue dumping treated sewage effluent into Lake Monroe, city officials say.

If Sanford cannot dump into the lake it will be forced to begin a costly spreading process.

Even though a study by Dr. Donald O'Connor, a nationally recognized environmental biologist, has shown that the quality of the effluent is higher than the water currently in the lake and that the presence of the effluent doesn't materially add to the lake's pollution, DER has refused to budge from its position.

The result is that the city will have to spend an estimated $11 million to upgrade its sewer plant, to purchase approximately 2,100 acres of land for land spreading purposes to dispose of effluent and to buy and install the piping necessary to connect the land-spreading site to the plant. Property to be used for the land spreading has not yet been selected.

Land spreading involves the reduction of waste into a liquid and spraying it in the air so that it falls to earth and filters down through the soil.

City Manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles believes some of these costs should be picked up by new development in the form of higher connection or impact fees. But revenues from increased fees won't pay all the costs.

Also, once the improvements are made, operating the plant will also be much more expensive and the only source for these additional costs is the sewage system's customers.

City Commissioner David Farr first opposed charging developers higher connection or impact fees.

Farr insisted the city ought to continue trying to grow in an acceptable fashion "without gouging anyone," thus increasing funds for impact by natural growth. He quickly changed his position after Knowles explained the city's plight.

Knowles said the state has mandated land-spreading as the preferred method of disposal and "if we want to meet the state mandate, it will cost $11 million without adding a single customer."

"What the state mandates the people of Sanford will have to pay. We do not have the reserves to meet the needs of advanced waste water treatment or the no discharge (into the lake) mode," Knowles said.

Commissioner Eddie Keith noted that increasing connection or impact fees seems reasonable inasmuch as Sanford is charging much less than the surrounding areas.

Currently, the city is charging $575 for water and sewer connections of single-family homes to the city's utility system. A survey of surrounding areas showed this is the second lowest charge in Seminole, Orange and Volusia counties.

The only utility charging a lesser fee for connection to

1 In County, 16 In State Are Killed On Roads

At least 16 people lost their lives on Florida roadways so far this Fourth of July weekend, including at least one in Seminole County, the Florida Highway Patrol reported today.

An Orlando man was killed early today when the car he was driving struck a pickup truck on State Road 436 near Longwood.

A spokesman for the Florida Highway Patrol said David Matamoros, 42, of 700 S. Grove Ave., Orlando, was driving his 1977 Plymouth east in the westbound lane of SR 436 at 4:50 a.m. when it collided head-on with the truck driven by Brian Shanle, 36, of Apopka at the intersection of SR 436 and Hunt Club Boulevard.

The highway patrol spokesman said an investigation is continuing into the cause of the accident.

The patrol has predicted at least 27 fatalities among motorists during the 78-hour holiday period, which began at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight today.

At least 251 persons have been killed on highways throughout the country.

At least three pedestrians in Florida have lost their lives.

At least two of the fatalities occurred in accidents that were alcohol related, a patrol spokesman said.

Police throughout the country beefed up patrols and ran spot checks for drunk drivers today as they sought to keep traffic deaths down on the final day of the Fourth of July holiday.

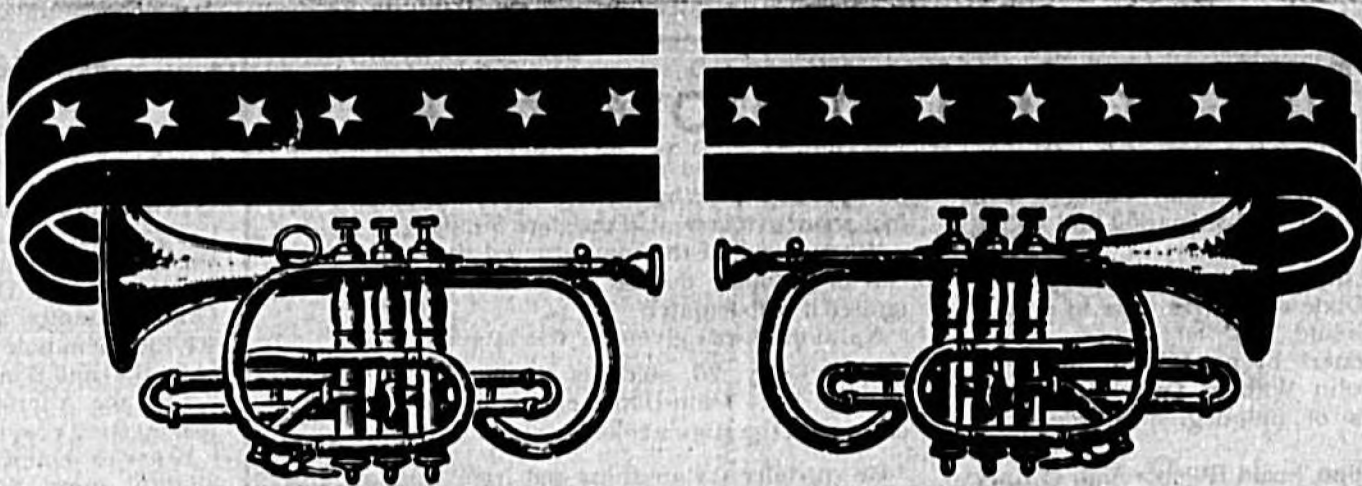

Seven people were killed in a single crash in southern Illinois when a man taking his grandsons to visit relatives apparently fell asleep at the wheel.

A UPI count showed 251 traffic deaths, including 35 in Texas, 28 in California, 11 in Illinois and New York and 10 in Georgia.

The National Safety Council estimated 420 to 520 people would die in traffic accidents this weekend. The council said another 20,000 to 24,000 will suffer disabling injuries.

Last year, 470 people died during the Independence Day holiday.

Massachusetts police credited tough crackdowns on drunk drivers with holding the state's toll well below the average for a holiday weekend. As of early today, only two fatalities had been reported in Massachusetts.

Liberty For All

There is no more appropriate time than this July 4th celebration, to remind ourselves of the basic fact that freedom is an ongoing goal. Two hundred and seven years have passed since the document that proclaimed freedom for Americans was signed. Some Americans since that day in 1776 have had to fight in order to secure freedom for themselves and others throughout the world today are fighting for freedom. The importance of this day of fireworks and festivities is that the process of securing freedom continues.

Education

Representatives Seek Voters' School Views

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer
(Second of two parts)

How do the local school officials and the public feel about Gov. Bob Graham's veto of appropriations for schools this year, putting on the pressure for new taxes?

Local legislators are interested in knowing and state Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, chairman of the Seminole County Legislative delegation, is trying to schedule a meeting for Thursday to get school officials' opinions as well as those of the public.

Brantley who said his biggest disappointment is the way Gov. Bob Graham has portrayed the work of the Legislature this year, says in some ways the educational system in Florida has gotten a "bum rap."

The governor has portrayed the Legislature "as failing to do anything for education," Brantley said.

"That's not true. Education has fared better than any other department in state government. It got more than $600 million over and above last year's budget. Some good improvements were called for in legislation such as upgrading requirements for graduation that ultimately will assure students are better qualified to go into the job market or college system," Brantley said.

"What has happened is that the education system in Florida has in a lot of ways gotten a bump rap. Some have drawn the conclusion that every student graduating from high school is illiterate," Brantley said.

Many of those in the system who want a good education can get one, he said, noting that society, meanwhile is changing, moral standards are changing and personal values are changing.

While society and values have been changing, the state has reduced requirements for teacher certification and that is causing problems, the Longwood legislator said.

With increased requirements for graduation and with additional dollars placed into the system by the Legislature, "that's about as much as the Legislature can accomplish this year," he said.

Brantley said the Legislature was faced with opposition to making other reforms in the system.

"Those leading the bandwagon for more money are the teacher unions who have opposed increasing standards for graduation and teacher certification. And without making some changes, the majority of the Legislature is opposed to putting additional dollars into the system. Most agree the system currently is not working as adequately as it should. It doesn't make sense to increase taxes and increase spending for more of the same," Brantley said.

State Reps. Carl Selph, R-Casselberry, and Ari Grindle, R-Altamonte Springs, say Graham's push for more taxes illustrates how out of touch he is with the electorate.

Selph said in speaking appearances before Sertoma and other organizations like the League of Civic Associations, chambers of commerce and manufacturers associations, "I have asked whether the groups would support some sort of tax increase and found no support."

Grindle said the governor "is certainly out of touch with people in general."

"People across the state are upset, particularly constituents," Grindle said, noting he tries to keep in close contact with those he represents in the House.

"The only group I have heard from that is for raising taxes, are those directly affected, teachers or teacher unions," Grindle said. "There is general support for improving the system, but people are upset that they haven't seen a good education system," Grindle said.

State Rep. Tom Drage, R-Orlando, sees the fight for new taxes for education coming from Dade County Democrats.

"They could well be putting pressure on Republican colleagues down there and it could have a snow ball effect in the upcoming special session," Drage said.

Selph says the comments he gets at fraternal and civic organizations are identical to those he gets at the gas station and the hardware store. "People feel the tax burden is heavy enough right now," he said.

Selph said veterans in the Legislature call taxes of the sort which are being pushed now after other matters have been funded "sucker taxes."

Is 'C' Grade Rule For Extra Curricular Activities Good?

Seminole High football players may have to hit the books more if some coaches have their way.

By Diane Petryk
Herald Staff Writer

Requiring students to have a 'C' average to participate in sports or other extra curricular activities is "an idea whose time hasn't come" according to Seminole County school district officials. But coaches and teachers appear to favor it wholeheartedly.

Brevard County school officials recently adopted a policy, the first in Florida, stipulating students must have at least a C-minus average in their academic work to be allowed to participate in extra curricular activities. A similar requirement has been a policy of Los Angeles public schools.

School administrators here reacted warily. School Board Chairman Roland Williams said such a policy would have to be studied.

"We're not doing students a favor by letting them participate in athletics if they're not getting an education," he said. "But I would not dare say we shouldn't have students below a C-minus average participating in these activities."

Seminole schools now permit students to participate in sports if they have grades as low as four Ds and an F. Other activity, such as clubs and cheerleaders, may set individual standards or they may have none.

Ralph Ray, school district spokesman, said he took an informal poll of three administrators and they all said they would be reluctant to change the policy.

Assistant Superintendent Dan Dagg, Director of Secondary Education Andrew Bracken and Coordinator of Testing Robert King all indicated to Ray they feared a C-minus requirement would result in more dropouts because it would discourage students whose primary reason for coming to school is to participate in sports or their special after-school interest. The administrators indicated such a rule might be feasible "as we strengthen academic standards" Ray said.

But coaches and teachers are more positive. "Instead of looking at the negative side that they'd drop out," said Seminole High School drama coach Jane Epps, "We should think maybe they'd do better. We should have standards."

Football and girls' track coach Emory Blake, also of Seminole High, agreed. "Potential dropouts are those students not involved in sports," he said. And in the case of a student who may be involved in a sport but doing poorly academically, Blake said a stiffer grade standard wouldn't hurt.

"His love for the game is motivation to do well in both aspects." As a standard, "four Ds and an F is terrible," he said.

Why is the administration reluctant to change it then? "Administrators don't deal with kids," Blake said. "They think a coaches main desire is to win. We like to win but we still want to create success with a kid. In

Group Says Safety Agency Ignoring Auto Defects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration is not aggressively searching for defects in automobiles and is not telling the public about potentially dangerous defects it does find, a consumer group charges.

"The NHTSA under the Reagan administration has both reduced its efforts to gather consumer complaints and ignored the ones that do come into the agency," said a 17-page report released by the Center for Auto Safety Sunday.

The group charged that at least one person died because potential defects were not made public.

A Transportation Department spokesman said he had not seen the report and could not comment. In Detroit, General Motors spokesman Tony Gagliardi said he could not comment until he sees the report.

It also noted that under the Reagan administration, for the first time in 12 years, the number of auto recall campaigns dropped below 200. Recalls totaled 196 in 1981 and to 175 in 1982, the center said.

Lava Slows To Crawl

KALAPANA, Hawaii (UPI) — A glowing river of lava from the Kilauea volcano consumed an eighth building but moved out of a sparsely populated housing subdivision and slowed to a crawl as the volcano quieted down, officials said.

Scientists at the U.S. Geological Survey's Hawaiian Volcano Observatory said the spectacular 200-foot fountains of molten rock from the vent on the volcano's eastern slope died out Sunday and the flow was pulled downhill by gravity.

The eighth structure in the sprawling Royal Gardens housing area was ruined three hours after the volcano slipped back into inactivity.

The streams of lava had consumed seven other structures earlier in the weekend and isolated three others in new walls of rock.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: More than a dozen tornadoes — nine in Wisconsin — and a slew of thunderstorms chewed a trail of death and multi-million-dollar damage across the upper Mississippi Valley. Downpours caused flooding today on Kansas streams. Strong northwesterly winds ushered cooler weather into the northern and central Plains and upper Mississippi Valley. One child died and 40 were injured in Minnesota tornadoes Sunday, four people were missing and feared drowned after tornadoes swept across waterways in northwest Wisconsin, and hundreds of buildings were destroyed or damaged in those states and Iowa. One tornado in Wisconsin carved a path a mile wide and 6 miles long. Thunderstorms blew down trees around Bessemer and Marquette in Upper Michigan, downed trees and power lines in western Pennsylvania and at Calhoun and Cartersville, Ga. Five hours of rain pushed water more than a foot deep on some streets in Wichita, Kan. Police set up evacuation centers in case water from Gypsum and Cowskin Creeks pushed into two nursing homes, but Captain Rick Easter said there was "no big emergency." Tourists at Glacier National Park in Montana sat out Sunday in mountain chalets, pinned indoors by 3½ inches of snow. One of the worst storms — forecasters argued about whether it was a tornado or just high winds — ripped northeast across the northern suburbs of Minneapolis and on toward the Wisconsin border Sunday afternoon. It killed a child, injured about 40 people, destroyed two dozen homes and damaged more than 300 buildings, among them a supermarket and drug store in a shopping center where 18 cars were flattened or overturned. Witnesses said the storm blew a large tree onto a house trailer at Taylors Falls northeast of Minneapolis, pinning a woman to the floor with two of her grandchildren lying beneath her. One of the children, 1-year-old Karen Marie Schnell, died before rescuers could cut their way to the victims with a chainsaw.

Efforts Begin To Repair Her

Statue Of Liberty Falling Apart

Through the storms of winter and the shimmering heat of summer, she has stood majestically for nearly a century as a symbol of America's independence and strength.

For millions of immigrants fleeing hunger, turmoil and oppression in the Old World, the Statue of Liberty was their first glimpse, after a long journey, of a New World that promised freedom, hope and opportunity.

Now nearing her 100th anniversary (1886), Liberty poised on her lofty pedestal at the entrance to New York harbor has experienced the ravages of time and the elements. Her gigantic iron framework is corroded and structural problems require extensive renovation. The 200,000 pounds of hand-hammered copper sheathing that cover her iron framework are in serious disrepair.

But once again the American people, whose forebears earlier gathered contributions to build the pedestal on which the Statue rests, are being called upon to help raise money to restore her and nearby Ellis Island where immigrants were processed until 1954. A total of $230 million in funds is being sought, equal to only about one dollar from every American.

On May 18, 1982, President Reagan and Secretary of the Interior James G. Watt announced the formation of the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Centennial Commission and appointed Lee A. Iacocca, Chrysler's chairman and chief executive officer, as its chairman.

The Commission's goals, in addition to raising the money for the restoration of the Statue and Ellis Island, are to advise the National Park Service and Department of Interior in establishing a lasting memorial to the immigrants who built America; to plan and implement centennial commemoration events and to develop plans for the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island National Monument after the centennial celebrations.

Of all the symbols of U.S. freedom and independence, the Statue of Liberty undoubtedly ranks second only to the American flag throughout the world. Although known universally as the Statue of Liberty, the official name of this national monument is "Liberty Enlightening the World." The 151-foot-tall statue was presented to the United States in 1884 as a gift from the people of France.

The idea of a monument to Franco-American friendship was the brain child of Professor Edouard Rene LeFebvre de Laboulaye, a distinguished legal scholar. It was designed and executed by Frederic Auguste Bartholdi, a French sculptor.

Bartholdi began work on the statue about 1875 and his first design, in plaster, was a little over four feet high. The model went through a number of changes before the 151-foot Statue of Liberty was constructed from a new nine-foot model.

The engineering problem for the Statue was formidable and for this Bartholdi called upon an engineer, Alexandre Gustave Eiffel, for calculations and structural advice. Already well recognized, Eiffel later was to gain added fame for the tower he would erect on the banks of the Seine.

In December, 1884, the statue, which had been dismantled and packed in 49 mammoth wooden crates along with her iron framework in 36 others began her trip to America. Special trucks hauled the 500,000 pounds of metal and wood to the Gare Saint-Lazare from which a train of 70 cars carried it to Rouen where the following May, Liberty sailed aboard the warship Isere to the United States.

The site for the Statue of Liberty was Bedloe's Island, a 12-acre tract lying 2,950 yards southwest of the tip of Manhattan. On Aug. 3, 1956, President Eisenhower approved a congressional resolution changing it to Liberty Island.

On Oct. 28, 1886, President Grover Cleveland presided over the colorful ceremonies at the statue that now towered above New York harbor on a pedestal 89 feet high, which in turn rested on a 65-foot, 11-point, star-shaped base that had been part of an abandoned fort.

It was not until after the turn of the century that the Statue of Liberty became closely identified with the great flow of immigrants who landed on nearby Ellis Island. In 1903, a bronze plaque carrying a sonnet "The New Colossus," composed in 1883 by Emma Lazarus, was affixed to the statue. It strengthened the tie between the statue and immigration in the following final lines by the young poetess:

"Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore,
Send these the homeless, tempest-tost to me,

I lift my lamp beside the golden door."
Immigrants were originally processed through Castle Garden on the tip of Manhattan but public outrage over the scandalously inadequate facilities it provided forced its closing in 1890.

Following the closing of Castle Garden, Ellis Island, a site near Bedloe's Island became the official east coast entry point to American in 1892 when the government assumed responsibility for immigrant processing. In the ensuing years up until 1954 when it was closed, Ellis Island was host to some 70 percent of the 24 million immigrants entering the United States.

In 1965 Ellis Island was declared a historic shrine and added to the Statue of Liberty National Monument in recognition of its role as the nation's foremost immigration gateway. The Statue of Liberty had been declared a national monument in 1924 and placed under the jurisdiction of the War Department until 1933, when it came under the supervision of the National Park Service of the Department of the Interior.

Drifter Jailed In Store Fire

TAMPA (UPI) — A drifter with a history of bizarre activity was held without bond today, charged with setting fire to 18 people in a supermarket and killing two of them.

Of the 16 people injured in the Saturday night incident at a Winn-Dixie store, five were in critical condition, authorities said.

Described as a "loner" by police and "nuts" by family members, John William Ferry was jailed Sunday on charges of first-degree murder and first-degree arson.

"We feel he's the one," said Hillsborough County Sheriff's Detective Natalie Bodine.

Ma. Bodine said the husky, mustachioed Ferry, 30, was identified by witnesses. He was arrested on foot about a mile west of the store Sunday.

Witnesses said the man entered the store with a can of gasoline, doused bystanders with fuel and ignited it with a match.

No motive was given for the attack.

Scott Ferry, 20, said his brother held a grudge against the Winn-Dixie chain of supermarkets because of the store's colors — red and white.

He considered "anything red from Russia," said Scott Ferry.

Bush Sees Breakthrough In Arms Talks By Summer

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (UPI) — Vice President George Bush told Danish leaders a breakthrough in the U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms reduction talks in Geneva may come this summer.

Bush's optimistic assessment of the long stalled Geneva negotiations came Sunday during talks with Danish Prime Minister Poul Schluter at the Marienborg Government house in Copenhagen.

Bush and the Danish prime minister also reviewed Denmark's official NATO policy. Denmark is the only member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to modify its stand on plans for the deployment of new U.S. missiles in Europe while maintaining talks with the Soviets on reducing the number of medium-range missiles on the continent.

Denmark's position is that the deployment of the new missiles should be delayed as long as the U.S.-Soviet negotiations are under way. NATO plans to begin deploying the first American-made Pershing-2 and cruise missiles in December.

Kohl Backs U.S. Missiles

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl stressed his support for the deployment of U.S. missiles in Europe on the eve of his visit to Moscow for meetings with Soviet leader Yuri Andropov.

The NATO decision to station medium-range range missiles in Europe was expected to be one of the main topics during Kohl's four-day trip to the Soviet capital.

Kohl said Sunday he would make it clear to Andropov that he fully supports NATO's plans to deploy 108 Pershing-2 and 96 cruise missiles in Europe if the Soviets do not make concessions at the Soviet-American nuclear arms talks in Geneva.

Kohl, in interviews published Sunday in West German newspapers, said he wants good relations with Moscow but is determined to accept the missiles in West Germany despite Soviet objections.

Shultz Bound For Syria

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz turned to the political deadlock in Lebanon in a new Middle East mission to clear the battered nation of foreign troops.

Shultz, in the midst of a 13-day, four-nation Asia tour, today planned to leave Pakistan for Saudi Arabia, where the oil-rich royal family supports Syria and its 40,000-man army in Lebanon with millions of dollars in aid.

Shultz also will stop in Lebanon and Israel but the Soviet-backed government of Syrian President Hafiz Al Assad is his chief negotiating target.

Arafat Bows To Rebels

United Press International

Yasser Arafat bowed to demands from rebels in his Fatah guerrilla group and a dissident leader said a breakthrough was imminent to end the 2-month-old mutiny in the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Nimr Saleh, chief political leader of the revolt, said late Sunday he was "optimistic" Arafat would yield to all rebel demands and that an agreement would "preserve the PLO's armed presence in Lebanon so as to defeat the Israeli forces there."

A source loyal to Arafat said the embattled guerrilla chief offered to share leadership of the PLO, issue an unequivocal rejection of President Reagan's Middle East peace initiative and repudiate any contact with Egypt, which signed a peace treaty with Israel.

Cuban Hijackers ID'd As Boatlift Refugees

MIAMI (UPI) — Two Cubans who forced a Pan American jetliner bound for Disney World to Havana with 61 people aboard were identified as refugees from the 1980 Mariel scallift, more in an apparent pattern of hijackings by refugees, FBI spokesmen said.

The hijacking Saturday was the fifth time a U.S. jetliner was ordered to fly to Cuba since May 1 and the second time since the Federal Aviation Administration announced May 27 it would put federal marshals on random flights.

FBI spokesmen said no sky marshals were believed to have been on the flight.

Pan Am's Flight 378, a 727 carrying 55 passengers and a crew of six to Orlando, was hijacked about 10 minutes after takeoff from Miami at 11 a.m. It landed in Havana at 12:05 p.m. and returned to Miami at 3:31 p.m., the FAA said.

State Pay Below Average

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Florida leads the nation in personal income growth rate, according to a new study at the University of Florida.

Nevertheless, Florida's pay scale remained below the nation's average, according to the UF Bureau of Economic and Business Research.

The study showed that the average earnings per job — the total number of both full- and part-time jobs divided by the total income paid — in most parts of the state were below the national average of $16,454 in 1981, the last year complete figures were available.

Personal income statewide increased by 14.7 percent in 1981, compared to the national rate of 11.7, the study said.

Iranian Jailed After Tussle With Deputies

A Seminole County sheriff's sergeant was injured early Sunday in a melee at the scene of a traffic accident. Two men were arrested at the scene, one an Iranian student at UCF.

Sgt. Richard O'Dell was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital for treatment of minor abrasion and a possible broken arm following the 5:20 a.m. incident at State Road 436 and Howell Branch Road.

Kamran Hassein Therani, 29, Apt. 30, 6915 Aloma Ave., Winter Park, a student from Tehran, Iran, and Timothy Dean Tronson, 26, of 1189-C Calle Del Ray, Casselberry, were charged with interfering with a police officer and resisting arrest. Therani was charged with resisting arrest without violence; Tronson with violence. The pair were released from the Seminole County jail on $5,000 bond each.

According to sheriff's Lt. William Hogan, here's what happened:

Therani began interfering with a traffic accident investigation by yelling and flinging his arms about. He would not let the wrecker driver remove a damaged car, becoming a danger to himself by impeding other traffic.

Because of the July 4th holiday, there was no further information from the sheriff's department on who was involved in the accident or details of the incident.

But according to Hogan's sketchy report, while he was in the process of arresting Therani, Tronson jumped on his back, causing him to lose Therani momentarily. Hogan then turned Tronson over to Sgt. O'Dell.

While Hogan was attempting to place Therani in the back of a patrol car, Tronson broke loose from O'Dell and began interfering with him again. Lt. Hogan reports he then put Therani in the vehicle, pushed the door closed and grabbed Tronson, who was then struggling with O'Dell.

During the fracas, O'Dell was struck in the throat and arm and his uniform was torn.

While Tronson was being pinned to the ground, he continued striking O'Dell with his fists and feet. Eventually he was overpowered and placed in the rear of another patrol car.

POT AND $10,000 SEIZED

Ten pounds of marijuana and $10,000 in cash, along with a Mazda RX-7 allegedly used to transport the pot, were seized Friday by Seminole County Drug Task Force undercover agents. Arrested in the incident was Stephen Ray Friend, 29, of Rt. 2 Box 494B, Apopka.

Friend was released from the Seminole County jail on $5,000 bond.

Agents said the investigation began in early June. After numerous telephone conversations with a suspect concerning the sale of marijuana, agents report they arranged a transaction that was to involve 25 pounds of marijuana at $400 a pound for a total of $10,000.

Agents met with the man Friday at the Albertain's store on State Road 434 and Wekiva Springs Road, Longwood, where they discussed the transaction further and agreed to meet again later to complete the deal.

. . .Grade Rule For Extra Activities Debated order for a kid to be a winner he needs to pass his classes. If he can't do that he's going to be a loser in sports, too."

Lake Howell High School basketball coach Greg Robinson said academics should come first, athletics second. A tougher requirement for participation in sports would be a good policy because "our first obligation to the kids is to educate them and get them ready for the working world."

Robinson agreed with the administrators that athletics may be one avenue for keeping students interested in school, but he said higher academic standards should deter any of them.

"Once we put the regulation on, that in order to participate you must maintain a certain grade point average, I don't think we'll have a problem getting students to do it," he said. "We may have to give a few of them individual attention (to help them in their academic work), but I think we can do it. I think it would be a success."

Robinson added that new regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association require a student to have a 2.0 grade point average coming out of high school to go into college athletics and they have to have attained a 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT). Four Ds and an F, he said, is a .75 grade point average.

It wouldn't be doing the kids any favor to let them get away with that and think they're going to participate in sports in college, he said.

Such a student might get admitted to college, said Seminole High girls' coach Donelyn Knight. "But they won't be able to get a degree. Then the student finds himself in a real hole.

"If you look at it, you'll find it was probably some coach's fault earlier down the road."

Miss Knight, who has coached a number of championship teams and individuals in sports such as volleyball, tennis and swimming, said a good athlete has to be self-disciplined and is usually so in every other area of life, too, including the classroom.

"I want to see a student succeed in life, not just a narrow field," she said. "If anything, a grade point average requirement is an incentive to do better. And then you have a total, well-rounded person, not one overdeveloped in just one area."

High school band members, such as at Lake Mary, would have to watch their grades closer if a grade rule for extra curricular activities was imposed in Seminole County.

Sometimes athletics are exploited, she said, by colleges who strain to keep them eligible to play by being too lenient on their academic record.

"And then one day that comes back on them (the athletes). Sometimes it's not always their fault."

Some blacks took offense when a stricter standard for participation was suggested as part of a state education bill.

"They took it as an insult — like someone was trying to erase blacks from sports participation at the college level," Robinson said of his black colleagues. "And their chance for big money in pro sports. But I don't think this is true."

Robinson said only one out of 15 million people become professional athletes, but everyone can benefit from a good education.

Blake also disagreed with some of his black colleagues and said making standards more strict is not a black-white issue.

Most Opposed To Second Reagan Term

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More Americans approve of President Reagan's job performance than disapprove, but a majority does not believe he should serve a second term, a new nationwide poll shows.

The New York Times-CBS News survey released Sunday reported 47 percent of the 1,365 people interviewed said they approve of Reagan's overall job performance, while 39 percent disapproved. That was a reversal from a January survey when 41 percent approved and 49 percent did not.

But only 42 percent said "yes" when asked if Reagan has done well enough to merit re-election in 1984, while 51 percent were opposed.

The poll also asked Democrats to rate the party's prospective 1984 candidates, with Sen. John Glenn of Ohio edging past former Vice President Walter Mondale.

Glenn was viewed favorably by 53 percent and unfavorably by 11 percent. Mondale got an unfavorable rating from 19 percent, against a 51 percent favorable reaction.

One surprising figure emerged when Democrats were asked about potential 1984 candidates. Black civil rights leader Jesse Jackson turned up a 23 percent favorable rating, placing him ahead of Sens. Alan Cranston of California, Gary Hart of Colorado and Ernest Hollings of South Carolina.

"That's what happens after every dollar in the budget is spent. Education got 100 million new dollars but other areas of state government got the other $400 million.

"Now if the state wants to spend more money on education it has to raise taxes. If those in power really felt there was such a need and it had such a high priority, they would have taken the $500 million in new revenue and allocated more than $100 million for education and raised taxes for administration or new buildings. But the governor didn't do that," Selph said, retelling the story told him by an old-timer in the Legislature.

"Everywhere people are adamantly against new taxes. We hear nothing about performance in the classroom, all we hear is more money," Selph said.

The Casselberry Republican said discussions in Tallahassee on new taxes have revolved around an increase of 40 percent in corporate profits taxes; 5 cents per cocktail tax, additional taxes on cigarettes and package liquor, 1/4 percent to 2 percent tax on insurance premiums; removing the sales tax exemption on advertising, allowing county school boards to increase property taxes by $1 per $1,000 assessed valuation and taxing the trade in value of used cars.

Selph said he doesn't see anything in new taxes passing during the special session. "I don't see a mood for more taxes," Selph said.

Grindle said the people of Florida have been generous in their support of the state's school system.

But he said new taxes at this point might be the last straw and further push taxpayers overwhelmingly toward the citizens choice amendment slated for the ballot in November 1984.

That bill calls for rolling taxes in government throughout the state back to the 1980 level.

"The kind of attitude displayed by the governor is one feeding the fire," Grindle said. "Rolling tax revenues back to the 1980 level might not be the thing to do, but if he is successful in getting taxes raised I'll be strongly in favor of that amendment," he said.

Of a possible override of the governor's veto of the Legislature's education package, Grindle said, "I don't think there are enough votes in the House to override. One count I got was 62 votes for override and we need 80 in the House," he said.

Grindle called Graham's pushing for more money for education "putting the cart before the horse." Right now, he said, teachers in continuing education can pass with a 1.5 grade point average, a C- or D+. "That's not upper quartile, the Altamonte legislator said. "I think it ought to be at least a C average, but we don't have a standard for teachers."

"Right now a teacher could get a D and teach that specialty course. In graduate school a student must have a B average and I don't see why a teacher should not have to get a B. The way it is now is allowing mediocrity," Grindle said.

"In Seminole County we are blessed with a better school system than other counties and many people in Seminole County have a community interest in education that is not going to be improved by throwing more money at it," he said.

"I don't see any need for going to Tallahassee to spend more money. I don't think Graham is going to get what he wants. The people will make enough noise to stop him," Grindle said.

"My guess is that the House will not override the veto, but it is possible the Senate will," Drage said, adding it will take both Houses. "At this juncture there is not enough votes to pass a tax if that is what the governor wants," Drage said.

"There are not enough votes there to pass a tax," Drage said. "The governor may keep calling us back, but if there are not enough votes, there are not enough votes," he said.

At that meeting, they arrested Friend, seized 10 pounds of marijuana, $10,000 and the car.

Friend was charged with possession and possession with intent to distribute marijuana.

NOISY ATTACKERS

A 25-year-old Midway resident got a possible brokent nose and several deep facial lacerations when he went outside his residence to check on noises.

Seminole County deputies said David Sweet, 3621 Main St., asked four men outside his house at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday what was going on and the subjects attacked him with their fists and feet.

Sweet charged that while he was being hit one of the men tried to stab him with a knife.

Sweet said the men also stole an extension cord valued at $30.

BOUNCED, ARRESTED

When Seminole County sheriff's deputies arrived at the scene of a disturbance at the Fern Park Station nightclub, they found the store's manager outside sitting on top of a 24-year-old Longwood man.

The man, Edward Ray Schulze, 734 Pine Avenue, had been thrown out of the bar about 2 a.m. and was arrested for disorderly conduct.

FIREWORKS SEIZED

A Maitland man has been released from the Seminole County jail on $500 bond after his arrest for possession and sale of fireworks.

According to Seminole County sheriff's deputies, Robert Joseph Rolly, 49, of 201 Ranch Road, was attempting to sell the fireworks to employees at Southwestern Municipal Supply Co., State Road 427 and Lyman Avenue, Longwood. Three boxes of assorted fireworks were confiscated.

branch of the NAACP, looked at it from another angle.

"If the kid is good enough to play sports, he's certainly, no dummy," he said. "I don't care what sport it is — mumblepeg or what — you can't be a dummy and master any sport. That means if a coach is out there helping him master the game, why can't there be someone helping him master academic subjects?"

King, too, cited giving passing grades to kids who don't deserve them, just because they're good on a playing field as a form of exploitation.

"We've had a number of bad examples lately of pro athletes who got through college not being able to read," he said.

Mrs. Epps, who has taught for 14 years, said kids involved in extra curricular activities such as plays learn to use their time wisely. If they have 15 minutes to study they use that time, she said, because they know they'll be at play practice after school.

"I've seen grades go up many times when students are involved in a play," she said. "They know they'll have limited time. It's so intense, they work harder."

"Everyone wants to see education standards go up," she added. "But it's hard to make a blanket rule." Perhaps each coach or activity sponsor could set his own standards, she suggested.

"Sometimes, there's just too much emphasis on the athlete," said Miss Knight. "It does more damage in the long run. The standard now is not a standard. A 'C' or 'C-minus' at least, should be required. Otherwise it's exploitation. You're only an eligible athlete a small part of your life. The rest of the time you need to know how to read."

Will Seminole County schools consider adopting a stricter standard?

School Board member Nancy Warren said the matter has been discussed. Superintendent Bob Hughes, she said, wanted to wait to see what the state was going to do.

"I personally believe that to participate in athletics you shouldn't be failing your courses," Mrs. Warren said. "I would favor raising the standard that impinges on eligibility for extra curricular activities."

"If we're going to strive for excellence we should strive for it in all areas. Where we draw the line is the question. Quality has to be demanded. And in most cases you get what you demand."

The High Court Curbs Congress

The historic decision recently by the Supreme Court of the United States restores the constitutional system of checks and balances between the executive and the legislative branches of the federal government.

As Alexander Hamilton and James Madison wrote in the 51st Federalist paper:

"To what expedient, then, shall we finally resort, for maintaining in the practice the necessary partition of power among the several departments, as laid down in the Constitution? The only answer that can be given is, that, as all these exterior provisions are found to be inadequate, the defect must be supplied, by so contriving the interior structure of the government as that its several constituent parts may, by their mutual relations, be the means of keeping each other in their proper places."

The Congress in the last 15 years has made excessive use of a device not mentioned in the constitution or considered by the founding fathers. That is the legislative veto. What the court has done is to strike down the device as unconstitutional. And that's good.

The founders clearly understood that "In republican government, the legislative authority necessarily predominates." They sought to check the untrammelled power of the legislature by splitting it into two independent houses, differently elected and serving for different terms, and by giving the executive the veto power over all acts of the legislature.

What Congress has done, starting in 1932 and increasingly in recent years, is reserve to itself the right of veto, by vote of one house or both houses, over executive actions and decisions taken in administering acts of Congress.

Thus, both houses recently revoked a regulation adopted by the Federal Trade Commission which was designed to protect consumers against used car dealers. An unsuccessful effort by Congress to remove doctors from Federal Trade Commission jurisdiction was unsuccessful, but was to be renewed. No wonder Ralph Nader, the consumer crusader, helped the plaintiff in the Supreme Court case overthrow the legislative veto power.

Earlier, the legislative veto was attached to the War Powers resolution of 1973 and other military and foreign affairs measures, giving Congress authority to revoke decisions made by the president in his capacities as commander-in-chief and maker of foreign policy.

Both conservatives and liberals in Congress thus have sought to curb executive powers and responsibility — unconstitutionally.

The court decision will result in greater caution by Congress when it passes laws giving powers to the executive. About 200 laws which provided for the now-nullified legislative veto may have to be rewritten. Laws may become more specific, detailed and complex. There can be no shortcuts in legislative procedures. That will be a burden on Congress.

But the constitutional principles remain valid, after 200 years. The Congress is a cockpit of faction and special interest. Every member of Congress represents a special constituency. Congress is eternally seeking to interfere with the operation of the executive department. But only the president is elected by all the people and speaks for the entire nation. His independent authority must be preserved, if he is to act with the requisite firmness and resolve.

The court has spoken against the dangerous encroachments of the legislative department upon the rights of the chief executive.

BERRY'S WORLD

"More money is needed just to maintain the present level of service. So another hike in postal rates is on the way..."

By Jane Casselberry

Fourth of July celebrations in Sanford are tame in comparison to the old days when the citizenry all around poured into town for an entire day of one exciting event after another.

Sanford began its Fourth of July celebration in 1887 with a bang. "Old Beelzebub," as the city's cannon was affectionately known, was fired at 6 a.m. from its vantage point on the city wharf shattering the early morning silence and rousing the Enterprise residents across the lake from their beds.

Later in the day, the city's pride and joy was fired 13 times as a salute to the nation's birthday and causing those who didn't know Sanford had a cannon, to exclaim, "There's the biggest firecrackers I ever heard!"

The old cannon, formerly used to frighten away the Indians who attacked Fort Mellon, later went out in a blaze of glory while celebrating the establishment of Seminole as a separate county in 1913. Overloaded, it blew apart and since nothing but the barrel remained, the ladies of the DAR later had it buried in front of the building — now the Chamber of Commerce — to be used as a base for the flagpole.

The Sanford Daily Journal reported an estimated 8,000 persons poured into the city by rail and river for the grand and glorious Independence Day celebration from as far away as Tampa, Lakeland, Kissimmee, Bartow and DeLand, which was topped off with a Grand Tournament Ball lasting into the wee hours.

Both the South Florida Railroad and the JK & KW were hard put to accommodate the eager crowds and the Journal records the train from Oviedo was filled to capacity. There were 600 rail passengers from Lake Eustis.

Playing off and on during the day in the bandstand and for the parade was the U.S. Artillery Band from St. Augustine. Jacksonville was reportedly missed because Sanford had lured away the band leaving it not available for its Fourth of July fete.

Marshall for the parade was R.H. Whitner and participating were the chief of police, mounted police and policemen on foot, the Orlando Guards, Orlando Band, Sanford Fire Department and the Knights of Pythias.

The Declaration of Independence was read from the speaker's stand on the veranda of the Sanford House and an oration was given by an Orlando judge.

A free dinner was served and special events included a running race, sailing regatta, rowing race, and other aquatic sports, a grand tournament with nine participants on horseback, a glass ball shooting contest on the beach, a glove contest, greased pig and sack race, and a horse race.

One of the most popular activities of the day was a baseball game at the grounds on Sanford Avenue between the local team and the F&W Railroad ball club from Savannah, Ga.

The Sanford team finally defeated the visitors in a fiercely fought 12-inning game variously described by the Journal as the best ever played "in Sanford...the South...and the United States."

The Rev. Felix P. Swenbergh, rector of St. James Catholic Church in Orlando, who conducted services for the Sanford Mission, presided at the laying of the cornerstone for All Souls Church during the afternoon.

One of the day's highlights was the grand display of fireworks at 7:30 p.m. on the Sanford House wharf that coincided with a band concert in the bandstand.

For those not exhausted by previous events, there was a dramatic entertainment presented free at the opera house beginning at 8:30 p.m. followed by the Grand Tournament Ball at 9:30.

Now that was a celebration with gusto!

Balanced Budget Struggle

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The balanced-budget amendment just won't die or fade away — although many politicians fervently wish it would.

Thus far, 32 states have passed resolutions asking that the U.S. Constitution be amended to require a balanced federal budget, with the amendment to be passed either by Congress or by a constitutional convention. Missouri became the 32nd addition to the lineup on May 28, when its legislature passed a balanced-budget resolution.

The Constitution mandates that a constitutional convention be held if two-thirds of the states request it. Since two-thirds means 34 states, the nation is just two requests away from a constitutional convention — its first since the Constitution was written.

This is only the third time in U.S. history that as many as 31 states have called for a constitutional convention. In 1912, 31 states asked that a convention approve an amendment for the direct popular election of senators. In 1967, 32 states called for a convention to approve an amendment exempting one house of any state's two-house legislature from one-man, one-vote representation.

In each case, Congress quickly passed the amendment in question and sent it to the states for their approval — which is the usual way of amending the Constitution.

However, many doubt that Congress will approve a balanced-budget amendment. Congress took up the issue last year in response to the convention calls from 31 states, and last August the Senate passed a balanced-budget amendment by 69-31. But in October, when the amendment was voted on by the House, it received a 236-187 majority — short of the two-thirds required to pass a constitutional amendment.

Leading the fight to pass the amendment is the National Taxpayers Union, a Washington-based lobby that opposes high taxes and government spending. The NTU began its battle in 1975; by 1981, it had gotten affirmative votes from 31 states.

After scoring its 31st state, the NTU switched its arena from the states to Congress. But when the amendment failed in the House, the NTU began a new drive among the states, which led to the passage of the Missouri resolution.

The fight in Missouri was a hard one: The amendment was opposed by organized labor, groups representing almost all minorities, liberal organizations and most groups that receive a great deal of federal funding.

"Missouri is a bellwether state for the balanced-budget amendment," says NTU chairman Jim Davidson.

Latest Thing: Pay Phones At Home?

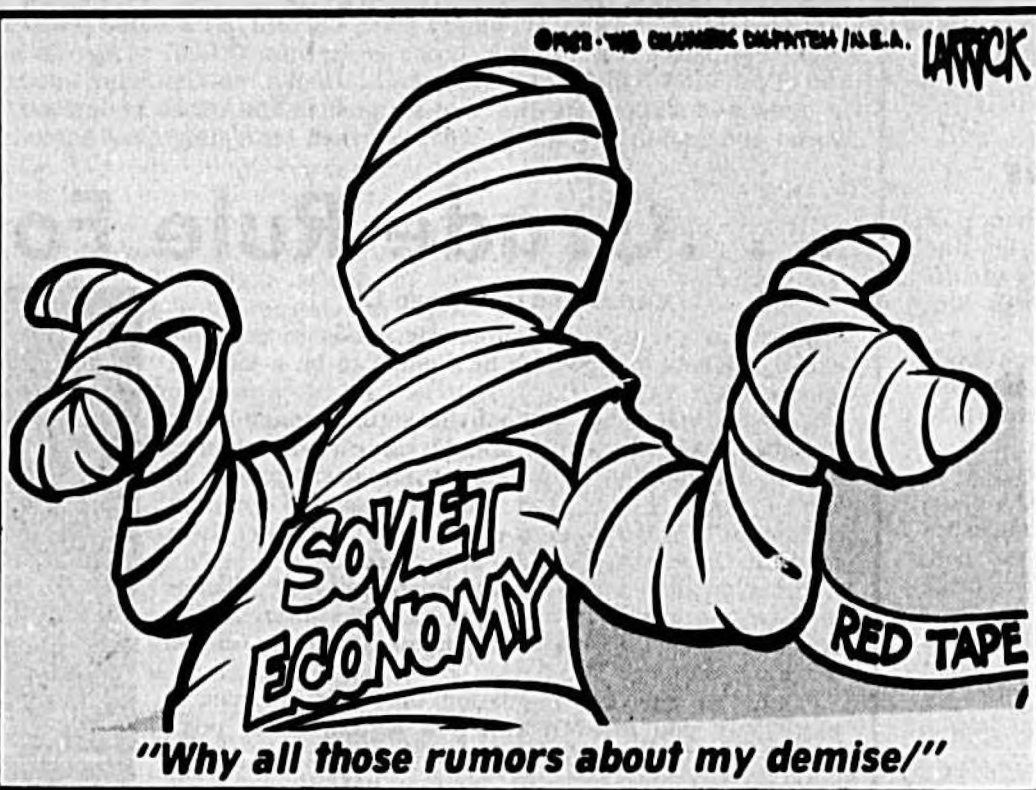

SANTA FE, N.M. (NEA) — A constantly growing number of households in this city are enthusiastically embracing a radical new concept in local telephone service aggressively promoted as a "low-cost alternative" to traditional service.

It's called Local Measured Service and the Mountain Bell Telephone Co. has successfully introduced it to residential customers not only here but also in Albuquerque, Las Cruces, Los Alamos, Taos and other New Mexico communities.

Elsewhere in the country, other Bell System affiliates of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. have faced little or no opposition to the introduction of LMS in thousands of cities and towns in dozens of states.

In Florida, however, critics claim to have collected approximately 500,000 signatures on petitions opposing LMS. In North Carolina, a state regulatory commission acceded to citizen opposition and rejected LMS. In Washington, D.C., an LMS proposal has provoked a storm of criticism.

The vast majority of the nation's households traditionally have paid for

JEFFREY HART

The Non-Chic Guerrillas

Why are some guerrillas fashionable, even chic, while others slog away in the bush unknown to wall poster and even to Bloomingdale's?

At numerous places around the globe today, guerrilla fighters are relishing Soviet forces or the troops of Soviet allies. By any definition of the word, these guerrillas are anti-imperial. They are at war with the Soviet empire. They have not, however, acquired the chic fashionableness of the Vietcong, Castro and Che, Mao, Holden Roberto, and the other anti-Western guerrillas of the 60s.

The Sandinistas of Nicaragua, on the other hand, are definitely chic. Ask Blanca Jagger, who has started a new career celebrating them. Eden Pastora, who once had considerable chic as Commandante Zero when he was a Sandinista fighting Somoza, seems to have lost all of that sort of glamor now that he is fighting the Marxist Sandinistas in the name of democracy.

The 1960s were a kind of golden age of guerrilla chic. In terms of style, the decade represented the triumph of Castro over John F. Kennedy, of beards and military fatigues and long hair over Kennedy's more Ivy League and even James Bondish mode. When the '60s began, the can-do macho of the Kennedys and their retinue held center stage stylistically, having shoved aside the more prosaic virtues associated with the Eisenhower regime. Norman Mailer seems to have had Kennedy at the center of most of his dreams. But Castro and his hairy guerrillas turned out to own the decade. The sullen visage of Che Guevara gazed down from posters on innumerable dormitory rooms. Replicas of Che, with shoulder-length hair and beards and mustaches strolled along the streets of American cities. It is altogether appropriate, stylistically speaking, that John Kennedy was murdered by a fervent admirer of Castro, Lee Harvey Oswald.

But other guerrillas had their vogue as well. Mao's boiler-suited guerrillas had their influence on style, and the chairman's banal "thoughts" in their little red book became a cult item. The Vietcong, of course, had its fervent admirers here and in Europe, and George McGovern actually went so far as to call Ho Chi Minh the "George Washington of his country."

But guerrillas appear to become fashionable only when they are communist and anti-Western.

In Angola today, guerrillas led by Jonas Savimbi are waging a hard campaign, with some success, against the Marxist regime in Luanda and the Cuban troops that are propping it up. This is surely an anti-imperialist struggle, but Savimbi has no glamor in the West.

In Nicaragua, Eden Pastora played a prominent role in overthrowing the Somoza regime, but when the Sandinistas turned out to be Marxist and totalitarian, Pastora went into exile and organized an opposition force. Today, he and his men are fighting in the jungles, and scoring some successes. But Pastora is a democrat — and for some reason that is not chic.

In Afghanistan, the anti-Soviet guerrillas probably are not democrats but they certainly are anti-communist and what they are fighting for is the independence of their country. They are religious, nationalistic, and anti-imperial — but that apparently isn't very glamorous either.

Cambodia is now run by the Soviet client state in Vietnam and the local Cambodian regime in Phnom Penh a puppet of Hanoi. In the hills, guerrillas led by Son Sann are fighting for national independence. Son Sann has scarcely been heard of in America, and he certainly is not fashionable.

Land Giveaway Invalid?

WASHINGTON — Interior Secretary James Watt has been catching it for leasing federal coal lands at "fire sale" prices. Watt denied granting any bargains, and both sides have marshaled facts and figures to support their claims.

The amazing thing, though, is that Watt's efforts to give away — that's right, give away free of charge — coal leases on nearly 300,000 acres of Western land have gone virtually unnoticed. The land includes proposed wilderness areas, wildlife refuges and priceless archaeological sites.

Destruction of these environmentally sensitive areas would be bad enough in itself. What makes Watt's intended giveaways outrageous is that there is strong evidence the lease applications are invalid under the law. Here's the story:

A loophole in the Mineral Leasing Act of 1920 allowed prospectors who stumbled across undiscovered coal deposits on federal land to claim the coal as their reward. They could submit Preference Right Lease Applications and extract the coal for free.

When Congress voted a moratorium on coal leases in 1970, there were more than 180 of these preference-right applications pending. Since then, environmental legislation has been enacted that protects certain areas from mining.

What the big coal companies are trying to do is push through old lease applications made before the current protections were passed — and Watt is going along with the idea. He plans to grant all but five of the remaining 134 pending applications by the end of next year. But evidence submitted by government agencies and environmental groups suggest that the applications are invalid. For example:

— A study by the Powder River Basin Resource Council found that coal companies "discovered" deposits that had been shown on U.S. Geological Survey maps dating back to 1909 — years before the claims were filed. The findings, supported by the Office of Technology Assessment, show that applications for 90,000 of the 138,000 acres Watt wants to lease in Wyoming are invalid.

— A similar study by the Colorado Open Space Council found that "nearly all" the 82,000 acres claimed for free leasing in Colorado were in "areas where the existence and workability of the coal were well known."

— The Natural Resources Defense Council submitted a study to the Interior Department that identified dozens of environmentally sensitive areas that would be destroyed by Watt's gifts to the coal industry.

Commerce Committee, to accuse AT&T of attempting to "gouge" the public.

In most areas of the country, LMS becomes the bargain the telephone companies claim it to be only after they have restructured their charges to produce huge increases in the traditional flat-rate service.

In the District of Columbia, for example, customers of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. currently can make an unlimited number of calls within the city for $4.51 monthly — but the utility wants to triple that rate to $14.59 per month while simultaneously introducing LMS at the "bargain" rate of $7.23 per month plus an additional charge for every call placed by the subscriber.

Telephone company officials here, in Washington and elsewhere insist that LMS is merely an additional option in a range of services from which consumers are free to choose.

But AT&T Executive Vice President Thomas Bolger is more candid. "Measure service," he says, "can and must be the cornerstone of universal service in the post-deregulation environment."

Psychologists Seek To Match Headaches And Pain Killers

By James Kay
DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Had a bad day on Wall Street? The triplets letting you know they're teething? Perhaps the novice kazoo player in the next apartment is at it again?
Whatever the source of your tension, two clinical psychologists at Iowa Lutheran Hospital think they have a solution.
Drs. Dick Spoth and Dave Dush, psychologists from the Clinical Health Psychology Service at the hospital, say they can teach sufferers of migraine and tension headaches to "break the chain of events leading to headache pain."
The psychologists train their patients in a variety of relaxation techniques in six lessons and a follow-up session. Spoth said the program, developed by Dush last year, pulls together the components of several similar plans being used across the nation.
"Twelve million people suffer from migraine," Spoth said. "Estimates vary for tension headaches but up to 30 to 40 percent (of the population suffers from tension headaches). It's a very common malady."
The first step in dealing with tension pain is understanding its source, Spoth said. The second is matching the "ideal" stress management technique to the patient. The third is careful monitoring of the patient's response.

Each step must be taken with the understanding the program is an "adjunctive" service to regular medical treatment and consultation with the family physician, Spoth said.
"Dush" researched several techniques to aid people suffering from stress associated with headache pain and pain itself," Spoth said. "He found that certain types of headache pain sufferers matched with certain techniques."
"In the initial study, 80 percent of the people matched with the ideal treatment showed a reduction in pain intensity."
There is a variety of pain-stress management techniques, including cognitive pain control imagery, behavioral change response and progressive muscle relaxation, Spoth said.
The cognitive control technique relies on recognizing the source of the pain and then forming a visual image of it, he said.
The theory is the central nervous system operates a "gate-like mechanism" on the spinal column. The intensity of the pain depends on how wide the gate is opened.
"We explain this theory to the patient and suggest they symbolize their pain: Imagine what it looks like. Some see it as a piercing arrow. We then tell them to imagine themselves controlling the opening and closing of the gate and closing it more when they experience pain so the arrows have a more difficult time getting through."

Spoth said the idea is to "aid in coping or minimizing the effects" of the pain.
"We help identify the sequence of events surrounding headaches," he said, "and then (work begins on) breaking the sequence."
An important step in breaking the sequence is changing the way the patient thinks of the pain, a technique known as behavioral change response.
Spoth said the patient needs to recognize "statements of pain," such as blurred vision, as signs of an oncoming headache and then "use pain control or stress control techniques" to ease the pain.
"They have to evaluate what's happening, find out what they're saying to themselves, (analyze) their irrational forms of thinking and identify their unrealistic expectations," he said.
Spoth said many sufferers of tension or migraine headaches are "perfectionists who have to perform to almost unreal standards at work and home. We have to identify those expectations and show how they are out of line."
The progressive muscle relaxation program "systematically relaxes different muscles in the body," Spoth said.

Society Handles 44 Cruelty Cases In May

During the month of May, the Humane Society conducted 44 cruelty investigations throughout Seminole County.
Twenty-two were in the Sanford area and 11 in Longwood, with the remaining complaints in Lake Mary, Maitland, Altamonte Springs, Forest City, Winter Springs, Casselberry, and Wekiva.
The majority were related to animals confined in the heat without sufficient shade or water. Several others were living in extremely poor conditions, in need of medical care, and undernourished.
The Humane Society of Seminole County has a 24-hour answering service, phone: 323-8685, to receive calls for assistance.

Goggles Manufacturer Indicted

MIAMI (UPI) — The head of a Milwaukee firm that manufactures equipment for the Defense Department has been indicted on charges of trying to sell 113 pairs of U.S. Army night-vision goggles to a federal undercover agent posing as a Libyan merchant.
Melvin Gilbert, 37, president of Seco International Corp., was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of plotting to export items on the restricted U.S. Munitions List without a license.
Gilbert's firm specializes in optical equipment such as cameras, goggles and gun sights that allow users to see in the dark. U.S. Customs agents said the firm held accounts in good standing with the Department of Defense and the U.S. Army.

Gilbert came to Miami a week ago to deliver the goggles, complete with pocket-sized instruction manuals and to pick up just over $1 million in return, Customs investigators said.
Unknown to Gilbert, the contact he believed was a cagey international businessman was actually an undercover Customs agent.
Claudio Picasso, a Chilean citizen, was indicted along with Gilbert. Picasso, 49, was still being held in jail Friday.
Customs officials claimed Gilbert planned to ship the goggles from Florida in crates marked "photographic equipment" to circumvent the licensing requirement. The goggles were to be sent to Chile and then shipped to Libya, the indictment charged.

Financial, Speed Reading Courses Offered At SCC

The Office of Community Instructional Services at Seminole Community College will offer a course in "Financial Planning" beginning July 12 at Robinson's Department Store, Altamonte Mall, from 7 until 9 p.m.
This course will focus on overall financial planning with emphasis on fighting inflation with subjects that will cover trusts, wills, estate planning, insurance, stocks, bonds and tax advantaged investments.
SCC also will offer a "Speed Reading" class to begin July 12. The class will meet each Tuesday from 7 until 10 p.m. on the adult education campus, building 38.

Speed reading increases comprehension as well as the reading rate of the normal reader. Speed reading is especially helpful for persons who must cope with a massive flow of paperwork.
Enrollment is limited to 20 people, with a $12 registration fee.

Foreign Film-Makers Flocking To Florida

By United Press International
Foreign film producers are harking to the call of Florida officials who are promoting the Sunshine State as a prime backdrop for feature films.
Last year, three foreign films were made in Florida, which now ranks as the third largest film-making center in the nation behind California and New York.
Film making in Florida last year was a $78-million business — up 50 percent over the year before — and officials are hoping for another increase this year.
In order to lure more movie business, state officials are billing the state as a cheaper, more diverse and friendlier place to make a film.
State officials have garnished the support of local authorities, who are bending over backwards to help directors get permission to shoot in special locations or at odd hours.
Last week, a Venezuelan film company flew to Miami and made a whirlwind tour of the area's hotels, malls and specialty shops to shoot a satire called "Adios, Miami."
"This is the first time we've ever shot film in Miami," says Eleanor Raabe, co-producer of the film, "but we have found everyone very accommodating."

That's the kind of reaction officials say could help to promote tourism, the state's No. 1 industry.
Officials say tourism is boosted when potential vacationers see the state's beaches and palm trees on the silver screen in theatres from Venezuela to Sweden.
Both foreign and domestic film-makers say the state offers an unusual variety of landscapes and filming locations, said Charles Porretto, senior development representative with the Florida Department of Commerce.
Another attraction is that as a right-to-work state, Florida gives producers the option of hiring non-union workers to do many chores — which is difficult to do in California and New York.
Last year, a Swedish film entitled "Oldamobile," about a widow who discovers an old boyfriend working at a resort hotel and lures him back to Stockholm, was filmed in Tampa.
The other two foreign films shot in Florida last year were Italian, entitled "Cat and Dog" and "Silent Force." Seven domestic films were shot in Florida as well, including "Body Heat" and "Porky's."

Time For Managers To Unite For All-Star Effort

Now that the Sanford Junior League regular season is over, the players who made the All-Star team can concentrate their efforts on playing as a unit instead of going against each other.

This can also be said for the coaches. The bickering between the managers of the league is over, thank goodness, so manager Al Whitted (Knights of Columbus) and his coaches, Bill Dube (Moose) and Ed Korgan (Rotary) can combine their ideas instead of figuring out a way to beat each other.

In the Junior League City Championship series, between Rotary and KOC. It was pretty obvious that some of the managers would do anything and everything within or without their power to "stop Rotary," as one of the coaches put it earlier in the year. And the victims of these shenanigans were the players.

In many instances this season, some of the coaches in the Junior League neglected their main responsibility — teaching baseball to the players — to lash out at each other. For instance, when Moose, which had the best record in the league at 15-5, saw its chances of making the city series fade, Dube blamed Rotary's manager, Korgan. Dube needed help from Korgan and Rotary because Moose, which had been tied for the second half lead, had just been upset by Kiwanis and needed someone to beat the Knights.

The last two times KOC and Rotary met, the Knights won by forfeit the first time and beat Rotary the second time to clinch the title. Well, before the games even took place, a few casual words were taken seriously. Rotary's coaches were talking about throwing the game against KOC. They were just bouncing the idea around. They hadn't planned to carry it out. Rotary assistant Gary Taylor said "It would be good strategy to keep Moose out of the playoffs, since Moose had beaten Rotary both times they had met. Good strategy? Who do these managers think they are? Sparky Anderson and Whitey Herzog? This is Junior League Baseball, not the World Series. A young man should not be taught to perform less than his abilities regardless of how good the strategy is. Taylor said it never got to the point of where they had to "throw the game." (Moose won convincingly.) But the idea bounced into the wrong ears and Dube accused Rotary of throwing the game against KOC. Dube even said he had a couple of Rotary's players that would testify that Rotary had in fact thrown the game. He said he would take Korgan to City Hall and see that he never coached in Sanford again.

Well, pretty soon it came time for the city series and who should pop up as the assistant coach for the Knights of Columbus but Mr. Dube himself. A nice gesture to help Whitted? Or yet another attempt to get back at Simon Le Korgan?

For the first two games of the series, however, the play between the two teams was so good and intense that nobody cared about the managerial side show. Both games went right down to the wire and had heartstopping endings. Consequently, each team won a game to force a third and final game.

The third game seemed to be going along well and Rotary stormed to a 6-0 lead. But, out of the blue, here comes another irate manager. And, surprise. It wasn't Dube or Korgan. This time, it was Kiwanis manager Pete Courlas looking for a little revenge against — who else — Rotary.

About midway through the game, the Knights' coaches ordered the umpires to check Rotary's bats, as if they were too long or too wide. All the bats were checked and none was found to be illegally altered. The entire scene took about 15 minutes and, had it not happened in the first place, the game might have been over before the rain came pouring down and put a damper on what was one heck of a series. KOC eventually won during the final inning of drizzle, 7-6. Who was responsible for this, you may ask? Well, it was Mr. Courlas who was helping to manage KOC, at least he thought he was, from outside the dugout.

Courlas also thought Rotary caused his team to miss a chance at the playoffs. Earlier in the season, Rotary beat Kiwanis on a strange occurrence at the end of a game Kiwanis thought it had won. But, on a dropped third strike, the ball was still in play when a coach and a few Kiwanis players ran onto the field to congratulate their teammates. The umpires ruled interference and Rotary went on to win the game en route to the first-half title.

So, all the managers, except for Ball Motor Lines' and Elks', two teams that were never in the running, converged on Rotary. They got what they wanted, the Knights beat Rotary for the Junior League Championship. But it was through no managerial maneuver and no help from the outside that the Knights won. It was the players who did it. They chose to concentrate on the game and not the bickering of a few steamed people. They should be commended for showing a maturity definitely lacking among the adults. If anybody came out of this series triumphant, it was the players on both teams. They played hard and fair and learned how fun good competition can be.

As for the managers, well, Whitted is hoping that Dube and Korgan won't be at each other's throats since they are on the same team now. This All-Star team has a chance to be good and I think Dube and Korgan would like to work together on this one. With all the managerial egos slightly bruised, it's time for Dube and Korgan, who are both dedicated baseball people, to put aside their differences, and help make this All-Star team a success.

Sanford Colts Surprise Casselberry, Ruin Trip

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Maybe it's because they don't like to be called rednecks and farmers. Maybe they were jealous of the Casselberry Cardinals' overwhelming success. Or, maybe they didn't think the Cardinals needed to go to Atlanta and play in a tournament before the real season was over.

Whatever the reason, coach Mike Ferrell's Sanford Colts have moved into a good position to win the Seminole Pony Baseball Postseason Tournament today at 3 at the Five Points Complex near Winter Springs.

Casselberry cruised through the league's first two rounds, running up a 16-game winning streak. "They beat some teams by 20 runs," said Ferrell. "No doubt, they have a good team."

Apparently, coach Bruce Bonaventure thought his squad was invincible. He scheduled a tournament in Atlanta for his Cardinals for this past weekend. He felt sure that his team would whip Sanford last Thursday to complete a perfect season and make the playoffs unnecessary.

When Thursday came around, however, the Cardinals found themselves on the short end of a 5-4 score. No perfect season, no sweep of all three rounds, and — sorry, fellas — no Atlanta.

"They were pretty upset during that game," said Ferrell. "Two of their guys walked off the field in the middle of the game, and one started yelling at their coach (Bonaventure)."

It was during the game that Ferrell said Bonaventure labeled the Sanford boys as "rednecks and farmers."

Ferrell already had enough ammunition with the Atlanta trip already on the agenda to fire up his troops for Thursday.

Chad Braden shook off a rough second inning when Casselberry scored all of its runs to post the victory. In the pivotal last inning, Braden struck out Bobby Miller and induced John Cavanaugh to pop out with the tying run on third as

Baseball

Sanford won in six innings due to the expiration of the 2 1/2 hour time limit.

Sanford scored two runs in the second on a single by Ricky Kidd. In the third, Scott Carter stroked a two-out, 3-2 pitch fly ball to right field which the right fielder dropped allowing three runs to score.

Thursday's victory gave Sanford a 4-0 record and the third-round championship which set up Sunday's best two-out-of-three playoff. The two teams split games Sunday to set up today's winner-take-all game at 3 p.m.

Sanford took the first game 11-8 while Casselberry came back to win game two, 8-6.

Donny Gorman and Brian Rogers combined to pitch Sanford to its win. The locals jumped to a 7-3 lead after three innings, then used a four-run sixth inning outburst and strong relief work by Rogers for the win. Larry Thomas and Rogers each had two hits for the winners. Rogers drove in two runs and Roger Mann chased home another.

Casselberry took the second game by pushing across two runs in the top of the seventh. Todd Manotti clubbed a solo homer to lead the Casselberry attack. For Sanford, Thomas had three singles and three stolen bases. Rogers ripped two doubles and a single while Mann added two singles.

Ferrell said he would go with Braden today to try to wrap up the championship.

Amazing Indian

The list of 20-game winners in the Altamonte Little League continues to grow. Joseph DiFrancesco, an 11-year-old with the Altamonte Indians, racked up his 20th victory when he hurled the Indians past the Maitland Astros in Top Team Tournament action. Counting his 10 victories as a 10-year-old last year, the second ten puts the hard-throwing right-hander in with the likes of Mike Schmit and Anthony Laszalec, past standouts at the Major League level.

USFL Playoffs Settled; Bandits Will Stay Home

United Press International

The likely answer to the first trivia question in USFL history is: Philadelphia, Oakland, Michigan and Chicago.

The Stars, Invaders, Panthers and Blitz have qualified for playoff berths in the spring league's inaugural year of competition and no team ended the regular season on a bigger roll than Michigan, which clinched the Central Division title Sunday with a 33-7 home rout of Arizona.

The Panthers started out 1-4 and coach Jim Stanley was wondering whether his first season at the helm would be his last. But Michigan won 11 of its last 13 games to finish at 12-6 and the Panthers play host to Oakland, 9-9, in an opening-round playoff game Sunday at 1:30 p.m. EDT.

Philadelphia will play host to Chicago Saturday in the other playoff clash.

In handling the Wranglers, 4-14, their 10th straight setback, Michigan used some razzle-dazzle as rookie running back Ken Lacy threw a 38-yard touchdown pass and then ran for a 9-yard score. Lacy's halfback option pass went to rookie wide receiver Derek Holloway.

"You have to put something in or they'll get bored," said Stanley with a grin, still reeking of champagne from his postgame shower. "If you could write a script, this is the way you would write it. The chemistry on this team is right — if you get a group of guys who care enough about each other then they certainly have the chance to do something."

Rookie Novo Bojovic kicked a 42-yard field goal early in the second quarter for Michigan and rookie quarterback Bobby Hebert excited the Panthers' second largest crowd of the season, 31,905, with a stunning 68-yard TD pass to Anthony Carter 42 seconds from halftime.

"I think Michigan probably will win the whole thing," said Arizona coach Doug Shively, a close friend to Stanley. "We may have seen the best team in the league right here; they really don't have a weakness."

Pro Football

At Chicago, the Blitz defense registered nine sacks to leave Chicago at 12-6 heading into their playoff game at Veterans Stadium. Don Schwartz and Eddie Brown ran back third-quarter interceptions for TDs to support the furious Chicago pass rush and the Blitz held Oakland to just 62 yards in total offense over three quarters.

At Washington, quarterback Kim McQuilken threw for 208 yards and one touchdown and ran one yard for the winning score to pace the Redskins to a surprising win over the Stars, 15-3. The Redskins erased a 14-6 halftime deficit with two long scoring drives in the second half. Washington, 4-14, finished with three victories in its final four games.

At Boston, Richard Crump and Anthony Steels ran for second-quarter TDs to power the Breakers, 11-7, who were nevertheless eliminated from a wild-card playoff berth with Chicago's victory. Herschel Walker, the league's leading rusher, had 74 yards in 19 carries for New Jersey, 6-12, to finish with 1,812 yards.

At Birmingham, Ala., Saturday, Bobby Lane fired a pair of scoring passes to Jim Smith as the Stallions finished 9-9. The Bandits, 11-7, were eliminated from the playoffs with the loss.

Express 21 Gold 14
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Denver Gold's disappointing performance in their season finale prompted coach Craig Morton to wonder if his players hadn't really started their summer vacations before the game.

"You have to call this one of the worst exhibitions of football I've ever seen," Morton said after the Gold lost to the Los Angeles Express 21-14 in a season-ending game for both USFL teams Sunday.

Smith, Ashford Run To World Records

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — On a mild, sunny day at the base of the Rampart Range of the Rocky Mountains, the conditions were once again right for history Sunday.

An early morning chill had turned into an afternoon warmth. But it was not too warm. The wind was blowing gently. But there was not too much wind.

And the thin air at 7,100 feet reduced the resistance for those who wanted to run very fast.

"We finally got perfect conditions," said Evelyn Ashford. "I had a little aiding wind. We had a nice day, nice mountains — perfect conditions."

Ashford and Calvin Smith took advantage of those perfect conditions Sunday to become the fastest runners in the world.

On the final day of the National Sports Festival, Ashford covered the 100 meters in 10.79 to break the woman's world record of 10.81 held by East German rival Marlies Gohr, who a week earlier had defeated Ashford in Los Angeles.

Less than 15 minutes later Smith ran the same distance in 9.93 — a time that erased the 15-year record of 9.95 set at the 1968 Olympics by Jim Hines.

Their performances, combined with a sprint relay anchored by Ashford that missed a world record by .01 of a second, brought the fifth Sports Festival to a spectacular conclusion.

It marks the first time since 1972 that Americans have held both the men's and women's world sprint records and the Ashford-Smith showing is certain to touch off another round of debate among track purists on the quality of marks set at altitude.

It was at Mexico City, almost the same altitude as Colorado Springs, that Bob Beamon set his world long jump of 29-2 1/4. Brazil's Joao Oliveira also set the current world triple jump record of 58-8 1/4 in Mexico City in 1975.

And not only did Hines set his 100-meter mark there, but Wyomia Tyus set a woman's 100-meter record there as well in 1968.

"It's a world record," said Ashford, of Chino, Calif. "I've run well here before (having set an American record of 11.04 at the Air Force Academy in 1981).

Sports Roundup

The altitude probably does help. I'm stunned."

"My eyes have been burning because of the altitude," said Smith, from Bolton, Miss. "But coming here and running at altitude was a real help in getting the record."

The spectacular afternoon of track and field performances almost saw a third world record.

Early in the day the 400-meter relay team of Ashford, Alice Brown, Diane Williams and Chandra Chiesborough ran the distance in 41.61. That was .02 better than the American record that foursome had set last weekend in Los Angeles, but .01 short of the world record set by an East German team in 1979.

"It was a disappointment we didn't set the record," said Brown. "We had two bad passes and the conditions were not ideal (a strong wind was blowing at the time). If we set the record soon we will payche some people out."

The world records overshadowed a host of fine showings, including a time of 47.98 in the 400-meter hurdles by Edwin Moses — his 77th consecutive win in the event.

"It was the first time I had ever run after two world records had been set," said Moses. "The crowd got excited and wanted a third one (his own world mark is 47.13). I couldn't get it, but I am satisfied with my time. By the end of the summer I will be really fast."

In other performances of note Sunday the men's 1,600-meter relay team of Laron Brown, Calvin Brooks, James Rolle and Walter McCoy ran a 2:59.91; Kathy McMillan upset Carol Lewis to win the long jump with a leap of 22-0 3/4; John Powell captured the discus with a throw of 213-4 and Jeff Buckingham cleared 18-7 1/4 to win the pole vault before narrowly missing an American record of 18-10 1/4.

OAK BROOK, Ill. (UPI) — Tom Watson is within reach of his first golf title in a year and a probable berth on the Ryder Cup team but he'll have to endure a grueling 36-hole test on one of the PGA Tour's toughest golf courses to attain both goals.

Watson, who hasn't won since the 1982 British Open, will take a four-stroke lead into today's 36-hole final round of the rain-plagued $400,000 80th Western Open. Because of two earlier postponements, 36 holes will be played today, weather permitting.

A 70 percent chance of continued rain was forecast overnight for the Butler National course with a chance of additional rains later today.

Watson, seeking his 29th PGA tour win and his third Western title, scrambled for a 1-under-par 71 Sunday for a two-round total of 138, 6-under-par.

Three golfers, 1978 Western winner Andy Bean, John Fought and David Edwards, were tied at 2-under-par 142. Six golfers, including amateur Willie Wood, were tied at 143, five strokes back.

"It's going to come down to the final nine holes ... a four stroke lead on this course doesn't mean that much," Watson said. "There won't be much scoreboard watching till then. It isn't that physically demanding to play 36 holes."

Bean, who won the tourney in 1978, said he played as well as he could play but said the title was within his reach.

"I'd much rather have 36 holes to make up four strokes than 18," Bean said. "I'm in good shape, so is Tom. We'll see it up and see what happens. Whoever is hitting the ball the best is going to win."

MONTREAL (UPI) — Hollie Stacy says a disastrous third round gave her the incentive for a superb final round at the $250,000 Peter Jackson Classic.

Stacy won the LPGA tournament Sunday by two strokes after shooting a steady final-round 4-under-par 68 for a 72-hole total off 11-under 277.

Veteran JoAnne Carner and Alice Miller finished tied for second two shots back.

Stacy, of Hilton Head, S.C., said she was appalled at her third round play Saturday, in which she blew a three-stroke lead after a rain delay.

"Yesterday (Saturday) I bogeyed three of the last five holes so I went out really determined," she said. "It made me really mad that I had let it go like that."

STANDINGS

Tim Reines continues to sizzle, but the Expos continue to fizzle. Reines slammed a homer and two singles to lift his batting average to .292, but Montreal lost again to the Chicago Cubs. See Page 7A.

'Mac Attack' Proves Fatal For Lewis

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — "It has been said that my good humor has returned. Don't take that too seriously. You know me better than that."

So said "Gentleman" John McEnroe, for once joking with journalists after regaining the Wimbledon men's singles title with a resounding 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 victory over unseeded Chris Lewis of New Zealand.

McEnroe, the second seed and 1981 champion, produced a masterly display that would have had any of the top ranked players struggling, let alone the 91st-ranked Lewis.

It was tennis without tantrums from the 24-year-old New Yorker, who was so much in command that he could spare the time and effort to control his temper. The three-time U.S. Open champion didn't attempt to question the few calls he thought were dubious or that the umpire overruled.

"I am an emotional person and I cannot be like (Bjorn) Borg, but if I can be myself without upsetting people's feelings, (then) that is my aim," McEnroe said.

"I have started controlling my emotions and, in the long run, I know I can play better if I learn to harness them completely," he said.

The thought that he could have played any better than he did Sunday would make his rivals shudder. He dismissed the third seed, Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, in straight sets in the semifinals. Top-seeded and defending men's champion Jimmy Connors fell in the fourth round to 12th-seeded South African Kevin Curren, who in turn was eliminated in the semifinals by the surprising Lewis.

As it was, McEnroe was in complete control of his match against the New Zealander, who tried to produce his familiar diving volleys at the net. He managed only one, in the first game, when he broke his racket playing a falling block winner against McEnroe's fearsome cross-court forehand.

Lewis was scrambling for the rest of the match, unable to match the strength of McEnroe's tenacious play.

The New Yorker broke Lewis' serve twice in each set, winning handily in one hour and 25 minutes.

McEnroe said he planned to enjoy being Wimbledon champion for the next few weeks before getting down to the task of becoming the world's best player on any tennis court.

"My aim is to play well on every type of surface and if I can take the Grand Slam, four in a row, it would not be a bad achievement," McEnroe said.

In another final Sunday, there was disappointment for one woman who has achieved more than most in the game of tennis. Billie Jean King, partnered by fellow American Steve Denton, failed in her bid to win a 21st Wimbledon title in the mixed doubles final. The defeat also meant that Americans did not achieve a sweep of the five major Wimbledon titles.

John Lloyd of Britain — the husband of Chris Evert Lloyd — and Australian Wendy Turnbull took the title 6-7, 7-6, 7-5, gaining the only service break of a tense, but not particularly exciting match in the final game.

It was a second straight Center Court defeat for the 39-year-old King, who lost there to Andrea Jaeger in the semifinals of the singles Thursday.

Cubs Run Win Streak To 6; Raines Homers

United Press International

The stars may be coming to Chicago's south side this week, but on the north side of town the talk is strictly about the moon.

Chicago's Comiskey Park will be the site of this year's All-Star Game Wednesday night, yet it's at Wrigley Field where excitement is running rampant.

That's because Wrigley Field's tenants, the Cubs, are playing the kind of baseball these days that has their fans dreaming of a September pennant chase, a dream they haven't experienced in more than a decade.

The Cubs won their sixth game in a row Sunday by defeating the Montreal Expos 7-4 in Chicago, behind the hitting of Keith Moreland, Leon Durham and Jody Davis.

Moreland hit his 12th home run in the fourth inning and added a bloop double to ignite a three-run sixth inning. Durham had an RBI single in the first then doubled and scored on a double by Davis in the seventh.

The loss was Montreal's fifth straight and trimmed the Expos' lead to one game over Philadelphia in the National League East.

"We're giving the other club chances to score, that's what's happening," said Expos Manager Bill Virdon. "Somebody has to make the plays and we're not. The Cubs are playing well. They've got it going and they have momentum. They're getting the hits."

Cubs Manager Lee Elia pointed to the Cubs' ability to come up with the clutch hit and the strong relief pitching the team has been getting as the keys to the recent surge.

"We've been getting the big hit; Mel Hall's double was a key one," said Elia, referring to a hit by the rookie outfielder in the three-run sixth. "Our pitching did the job it had to do to wrap it up."

Steve Trout went 6 2-3 innings and allowed 10 hits, including home runs by Chris Speier and Tim Raines, to notch his seventh victory in 14 decisions. Raines also added two singles and stole his 34th base, tops in the N.L. Bill Campbell pitched the final two innings to get his sixth save.

Phillies 4, Mets 3

At Philadelphia, Mike Schmidt led off the bottom of the eighth inning with his 15th home run of the season to lead the Phillies to victory. Willie Hernandez, who took over for starter Charlie Hudson in the eighth, gained the victory to raise his record to 3-0.

Cardinals 4, Pirates 3

At Pittsburgh, pinch hitter Steve Braun hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning to break a 2-2 tie and second baseman Tom Herr saved the game with a diving catch in the ninth inning to lift the Cardinals to victory.

Reds 2, Braves 1

At Atlanta, rookie Nick Esasky belted a two-out, two-run homer in the sixth inning to help the Reds snap the Braves' four-game winning streak. Esasky drilled an 0-and-2 pitch over the left-center field fence for his second home run of the year. The Braves only run came in the first when Brett Butler singled, stole second and third, and came home on a single by Jerry Royster. Atlanta loaded the bases with no outs in the seventh, but couldn't score.

Padres 4, Giants 1

At San Diego, Steve Garvey hit the fifth grand slam of his career in the fifth inning and left-hander Dave Dravecky tossed a five-hitter for his 12th victory in leading the Padres. Dravecky, 12-5, struck out five and walked one in going the distance for the eighth time. Jeff Leonard homered for the Giants.

Astros 9, Dodgers 1

At Houston, Jose Cruz hit his second three-run homer in as many games and Joe Niekro tossed a three-hitter to lead the Astros. Niekro, 5-7, walked five and struck out six but lost his shutout bid with one out in the eighth when pinch hitter Jose Morales cracked a home run.

Rangers 16, A's 4 (15 innings)

Right now if the Texas Rangers got lost in alligator country, they would walk out with new boots. Everything they do turns out right.

After blowing a two-run lead in the bottom of the ninth, the Rangers responded with a record-setting 12-run 15th inning Sunday in Oakland, Calif., for a 16-4 victory over the A's.

"We always know we're going to win," said reliever Odell Jones, who raised his record to 3-3 with 3 2-3 innings of one-hit relief. "Everybody has that attitude."

Bobby Jones doubled twice and drove in three runs to highlight the inning, which gave the Rangers their 11th victory in their last 13 games.

The Rangers broke the record of the 1928 New York Yankees and 1969 Minnesota Twins for most runs in an extra inning. The Yankees scored 11 in the 12th against the Detroit Tigers on July 26, 1928, and the Twins produced 11 in the 10th on June 21, 1969, against the Oakland A's.

Mariners 4, Blue Jays 1

At Toronto, Glenn Abbott tossed a five-hitter to outduel Dave Stieb and Pat Putnam hit a two-run homer for the Mariners, playing their 1,000th game in the A.L. Abbott, 3-0, recorded his second complete game of the season. Stieb, 10-7, allowed only four hits in losing for the third straight time.

Red Sox 7, Yankees 3

At New York, Gary Alenson hit a three-run homer, his first of the season, and Jim Rice belted his sixth home run in his last four games to carry the Red Sox. Shane Rawley, 7-7, took the loss. Bob Ojeda, 5-3, was the winner with Mark Clear recording his second save.

Twins 4, White Sox 3

At Minneapolis, Ron Washington's bases-loaded single to right with two out in the ninth scored Bobby Mitchell with the winning run for the Twins. Ron Davis, who worked 1 1-3 innings, evened his record at 3-3. Salome Barajas, 1-1, took the loss. Greg Luzinski hit a 428-foot home run for Chicago.

Tigers 10, Orioles 1

At Detroit, John Wockenfuse ripped a pinch-hit grand slam and Juan Berenguer, 4-1, and Doug Babi combined on a three-hitter, helping the Tigers break a four-game slide and snap the Orioles' three-game winning streak. Baltimore starter Mike Boddicker fell in 4-4.

Angels 5, Royals 2

At Anaheim, Calif., Bobby Grich delivered a two-run single in the first inning and Ron Jackson cracked a two-run homer in the fourth to lead California. Ken Forsch scattered eight hits, including a solo home run by Willie Aikens, to run his record to 8-4. Bud Black, 3-3, lost his third straight.

Indians 5, Brewers 3

At Cleveland, Rick Sutcliffe scattered seven hits over 6 2-3 innings and Toby Harrah belted a two-run homer to pace the Indians before a crowd of 50,008. The triumph snapped Cleveland's three-game losing streak, a span in which the opposing clubs scored 25 runs, and Milwaukee's four-game winning skid.

Yarborough Shoots For Daytona Sweep; Al Unser Wins Easily At Cleveland 500

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — Veteran Cale Yarborough shoots for racing history today when he fires up his Chevrolet for the 25th annual Firecracker 400.

Sitting in the pole position, Yarborough is attempting to become the first driver to sweep the Daytona 500 and the Firecracker 400 in the same year twice.

Yarborough and 39 other drivers were to get the green flag in the 6:37 a.m. EDT at the Daytona International Speedway.

Starting on the outside pole was Joe Rutman in a Chevrolet, who along with third-place starter Terry Labonte, also broke Geoff Bodine's old qualifying record of 194.721 mph. Labonte also drove a Chevrolet.

Benny Parsons in another Chevrolet started from the fourth position and the Pontiac-driving Bodine fifth. Rounding out the top 10 starters were Ricky Rudd in a Chevrolet, Dale Earnhardt in a Ford, Buddy Baker in a Ford, Neil Bonnett in a Chevrolet and Ron Bouchard in a Buick.

A.J. Foyt, who qualified sixth Saturday, crashed his Chevrolet into a retaining wall during practice Sunday and was forced to withdraw from the race.

Twenty drivers qualified Sunday to complete the 40-car starting field. Included among Sunday's qualifiers were Darrell Waltrip (24th starting position) and Richard Petty (30th).

Auto Racing

Yarborough, 43, drove his Monte Carlo around the 2.5-mile oval at a speed of 196.635 mph, record time for Firecracker qualifying.

Yarborough, who won the 500 in February with a sling-shot ploy on the last lap, entered the race as a favorite to record the sweep.

"That would be pretty nice if we could do it," said Yarborough, who swept the Daytona races in 1968. "If anyone has the car to do it, we do."

Besides Yarborough, defending champion Bobby Allison, Lee Roy Yarborough and Fireball Roberts have won the 500 and the Firecracker in the same year.

Yarborough entered the race on a hot streak — on the NASCAR circuit and at Daytona.

He's started only nine races this season, but he's driven into the winner's circle three times.

Prior to the 500 five months ago, he became the only driver to wheel his car faster than 200 mph around the high-banked track during qualifying. That time, however, was officially erased from the books when Yarborough crashed minutes later and was forced to qualify another car, which eventually won the race.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Al Unser Sr. has competed in 257 Indy car races covering nearly 20 years, but he has never had a race like Sunday's Cleveland 500.

Enduring in 95-degree heat and sweltering humidity, the 44-year-old Unser won his second straight race by a comfortable 30.6-second margin over Pete Halsmer.

"This is probably the hardest race I've ever run," said Unser, who now has 38 career Indy-car victories, second only to A.J. Foyt's 67. "The heat affected me very badly."

At one point, Unser asked if teammate Rick Mears were still in the race, with an eye on having Mears relieve him. When told Mears was still racing, Unser said he got a "second wind."

Unser, like most other drivers, had cold water dumped on him at pit stops to help him cool off.

"I've always said I'm against that sort of thing, but I had to get something to cool off," he said.

"..our flag was still there."

Throughout our country's history, "Old Glory" has stood as a symbol of our patriotism, our national unity...a rallying point for all who would protect and preserve our way of life.

We believe, therefore, that each of us should reaffirm our patriotism and fly the flag on Independence Day. We should be reminded of our country's beginning...of Thomas Jefferson, who prepared the original draft of the Declaration of Independence, and whose spirit, personality and high ideals are so much a part of that document. We should be reminded of all those determined patriots who joined with him in this first step toward establishing governments that secure the happiness of the people and derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. They started the country in the right direction; it's up to all of us to keep it moving in the right direction!!

Reagan Wins Over Environmentalists

By Robert Sangeorge
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration won an obscure but potentially significant victory over environmental activists in a Supreme Court ruling likely to discourage lawsuits seeking tough enforcement of pollution laws.

In a 5-4 decision, the justices declared individuals or groups bringing such suits against the government cannot win attorney's fees unless they are at least partially successful in their court fight.

While pivoting on the relatively minor issue of legal fees, the decision could have important implications for the continuing battle between the administration and the nation's major environmental groups.

Since President Reagan took office in 1981, conservationists have turned to federal courts with increasing frequency to thwart administration policies they view as relaxing pollution standards and environmental protection.

The ruling was a defeat for the Sierra Club and the Environmental Defense Fund. They had demanded $90,000 in legal fees after losing a suit against the Environmental Protection Agency involving the Clean Air Act.

Japanese Men Live Longest

TOKYO (UPI) — The average lifespan of a Japanese man is the longest in the world and that of a Japanese woman the second longest, the Health and Welfare Ministry said.

In 1982, the lifespan of a Japanese man was 74.22 years — the longest in the world — the ministry said.

The average lifespan of a Japanese woman was 79.66 years, second only to Iceland, where women live an average of 79.7 years, the ministry reported.

The figures represent a 0.28-year increase for men and a 0.29-year rise for women over the previous year. The ministry attributed the rise to a decline in killer diseases such as cerebral palsy.

United Nations statistics show that men, on the average, live longer in Japan than any other nation with a population over 230,000, the report said.

Iceland is next, followed by Sweden, the Netherlands and Norway.

Icelandic women live longest, followed by Japan, the Netherlands, Norway and Sweden, the ministry said.

Heart Palpitations Not Always Cause For Alarm

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 30-year-old male and have heart palpitations. I have had them for eight years. It feels like the heart is skipping beats. My doctor recorded them. I have seen cardiologists and have had a heart catheterization, a Holter monitor, stress tests, an echogram and about everything you could do to study the heart. All have told me there is nothing the matter with me and not to worry. But it is hard not to worry.

Last month I have been very tired and there have been many palpitations a day, like a string of beads when it happens. When I drink alcohol it is worse the next day, or if I get excited from being scared or having sex.

I exercise a lot, lifting weights and playing 160 games of softball a summer. When I do exercise it rarely seems to palpitate.

DEAR READER—Judging from the complete competent evaluation you have had and your continued response I must conclude you have a cardiac neurosis. Getting over it is another matter. You'll stop worrying about it when you are certain you have no heart disease. You may have some psychological reasons for anxiety that is the real cause for your worry. Go one step further and get some professional counseling for your anxiety.

In the rest of your letter you said you smoke. That definitely increases such skipped beats. So does coffee and tea as well as alcohol.

I saw a lot of young men in the U.S. Air Force flying population who had extra beats. Most of them didn't have any symptoms. When they occur in young, healthy people they are not important from a medical point of view even though they bother you.

Improved physical fit, ness does help diminish them and, while they may increase at the onset of exercise, they usually disappear as exercise progresses to higher levels.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I notice you often discuss medicines and operations in your columns. I would like to know if you believe in massage therapy. Massage therapy has been around for 2,000 years and currently there is great progress in therapeutic massage to treat sprains, strains, lumbago, arthritis, headaches and many other problems. I'm sure many would be interested in hearing your ideas.

DEAR READER—I believe treatment should be individualized to fit the individual problem. For instance, as you probably know, if a person is overweight and has high blood pressure I recommend weight reduction. So treatment can be nutritional, improved fitness or medicines as indicated, or, in other cases, lifesaving surgery. Each patient is an individual.

Massage makes many people relax and is useful for people who need to relieve tension. It does make many people feel better and is part of improving flexibility when used with proper stretching procedures. It may, in those circumstances, relieve muscle spasms which may accompany osteoarthritis and many problems. It won't cure appendicitis, cancer, tuberculosis, leukemia, heart disease and so on.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Oswald: "Have you a fireworks hand for today?"

Jim: "Here's one from a rubber bridge game at Bobby Nail's club in Houston. The fireworks display came after South had made four spades. East was mad at West for misdefending, but the real trouble began when North took his partner to task for misplaying a sure thing."

Oswald: "I assume that West started with three rounds of hearts. South ruffed the third with his 10 of trumps and would be sure of his contract if he played his queen of spades and followed up with the jack if West ducked. If West ducked again, South would then play his ace and run off clubs and diamonds. West could trump any time he wished, but South would be home free."

Jim: "That is an old book play, but South didn't use it. Instead he played his ace of spades first. He continued with the queen. West, a firm believer that kings were at their best when they captured queens, promptly won with the king and had no way to keep South from taking the rest of the tricks."

Oswald: "I am sure that East pointed out that if West had just let that queen hold, South would have been left with no way to keep West from collecting two trump tricks and an undeserved 100 points."

Jim: "Yes, indeed, but somehow or other the comments by all players reached the fireworks stage."
