Iran Resumes Oil Production With Shipment To Japan

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) - Iran resumed pumping oil to the world today for the first time in 69 days, loading a supertanker bound for Japan with 230,000 tons of crude in the government's most tangible demostration of its

But the symbolic return to normal contrasted with the execution of seven more top officials of the ousted royal regime, including four generals, two officials of the SAVAK secret police and a member of the defunct government.

The resumption of oil exports was timed to coincide with the 12th anniversary of the death of Mohammed Mossadegh, the anti-shah premier who nationalized Iran's petroleum industry in 1951.

More Than 6,000 Expected To Welcome 'Columbia'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) - The Kennedy Space Center is scheduling a rousing welcome for the arrival Saturday of "Columbia", the first Space Shuttle destined to be blasted into orbit.

Officials at the center are preparing for a crowd of about 6,000 persons — mostly space program employees and contracting firms and their families - to watch the scheduled 3 p.m. EST arrival, March 10. Speakers scheduled at the arrival ceremony include Astronauts John Young and Robert Crippen, who are scheduled to pilot the first shuttle flight, and Administrator Dr. Robert A. Frosch of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Carter Gears For Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Carter has not yet said he will seek re-election next year - but he's doing the preliminary work for a campaign.

In a major step, the president authorized creation of an "exploratory" campaign committee to be headed by Democratic National Committee Treasurer Evan Dobelle, a Democratic source said Sunday. Asked when Carter would announce his candidacy formally, a party source said, "I wouldn't expect it until the end of the year."..

Safety Caps Unsafe For Elderly

CHICAGO (UPI) - The safety cap that keeps junior from opening pill bottles also may be preventing seniors from taking their medication, the Journal of the American Medical Association reports.

In a commentary in the March 9 issue, a New York based group of physicians who specialize in geriatrics agreed, "with the introduction of child-resistant medication containers, the geriatric patient had suffered another setback in an already poor record of medication

Studies show a good number of elderly patients would rather skip the pill than deal with the frustration of losing a fight with a bottle cap. Or, if the battle is won, the cap may be left off for easier access next time, causing many medicines that should be tightly capped to lose strength.

Breweries Dwindling But...

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The number of brewing companies in the United States has dropped from 404 in 1946 to fewer than 50 today, and more than half of those are unlikely to survive, a Federal Trade Commission report savs.

But, the study concludes, competition remains so fiero among the successful beer makers that there is little likelihood the survivors will wind up with an oligopoly that could affect quality and prices for beer drinkers. An oligopoly is the concentration of a specific industry in the hands of a few companies cooperating to set prices

James Webster, the Agriculture Department director of governmental and public affairs, said the farmers do not have the votes in Congress to significantly change farm

Convictions A Warning

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) - Federal prosecutors hope that a federal court jury's conviction of four Houston men on charges of oil price fixing and conspiracy will serve as a warning to other oil executives. The jury convicted the four Texans Saturday on all seven counts against them in connection with the so-called "daisy chin" conspiracy to artificially boost the price of oil sold to St. Petersburg-based Florida Power Corp. during the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo. However, the jury acquitted a co-defendant, former Florida Power executive Richard E. Raymond.

these events will be based in large part on the adequacy of the intelligence assessments received from the Central Intelligence Agency. Faulty intelligence will yield faulty decisions. And how goes the CIA? It isn't necessary to break any secret codes to discover that the agency continues in terrible disarray. A new wave of resignations and early retirements reflects the sagging morale in CIA

Taken together with last year's purge of more than 800 officers of the CIA's cladestine service, the most recent turnoil must further reduce the effectiveness of an agency whose performance has long been suspect. The Senate Select Committee on Intelligence has labored for the last two years to draft an "Intelligence Reorganization and Reform Act." the chief purpose of which is to prohibit the CIA from exceeding Marquis of Queensbury rules in gathering information.

Granted there is a need to exert some control over the activities of agents whose zeal has sometimes surpassed the boundaries of propriety. But in a world of mounting threats to the security of the United States, there is a far greater need to nurture a CIA that can and will provide information essential to this country's survival.

Postal Promise

The U.S. Postal Service thinks it just might break even perhaps go as far as showing a profit — by the end of September. This is a goal the service, and the Post Office Department before it, has been seeking since 1948, to no avail. And the blame for the red ink shouldn't be laid to the postal Every time things start looking up, Congress makes more demands and refuses to allow cuts in service which would have postal ledgers showing profits. The current optimistic forecast comes from Postmaster General William F. Bolger, who says the $17.5 billion agency could have a $180 million surplus by the close of the fiscal year in The agency, which has lost billions in past years, sees sunnier skies ahead because of increased productivity and a stabilization of postal rates. Bolger says the service carried 97 billion pieces of mail last year and predicts the total will reach 90 billion this year. Eighty percent of the mail is from business. The Postal Service has been taking raps for years over sloppy service, computerized equipment that doesn't function properly and a tendency to raise rates far too often.

Let's hope things are turning toward the better and if a profit can be shown, that's good news, too.

of Sanford's bus stop signs are back in place after a couple of weeks in the county's maintanance department.

The signs were taken down a couple of weeks ago when City Manager Warren E. Knowles determined they were in violation of federal regulations in that they were attached to regulatory signs. The city commission did not fully concur with Knowles' interpretation of federal guidelines and told the county, which put the signs in place, it could put bus stop signs on parking sign posts.

The main benefit from this whole exercise of county workers posting the signs, city workers taking them down and county crews again posting them; seems to be to the respective crews themselves. Undoubtedly their physical condition has been greatly improved by the lifting and stretching for such sign work.

With cooperation like this between city and county, Sanford and Seminole County could soon become legend for their healthy workers.

The Institute of Medicine, an arm of the National Academy of Sciences, is finishing up the second of two reports ordered by Congress in late 1977 when the lawmakers suspended for 18 months the Food and Drug Administration's move to ban saccharin from the market-place as a potential cancer-causing agent.

In its first study, released last November, the Institute confirmed that saccharin is indeed a carcinogen — albeit a relatively weak one — in humans. Under existing law, the FDA has no choice but to ban any food additive found to induce cancer in man or animals.

However, the Institute's second report is expected to urge greater flexibility in the government's review and regulation of food additives, including some assessment on a case by case basis of the relative risks and benefits of the ubstance involved.

It is understood the scientists will emphasize the complexity of the safety issue and the degree to which technological advances have made it SCIENCE WORLD possible to identify even minute traces of carescaped detection 20 years ago when the rigid Delaney Amendment to the food safety law was

One might think that a federal government structured to permit a few citizens doing business with the government to make fat profits denied most among us would rapidly become a public issue. One might think that in this era of equal rights and cost of everything consciousness there would be pressure on the people's representatives to rectify the inequality and to require the government to give all citizens the same financial breaks.

That's what one might think. But that's not what has happened in a specialized corner of the market dealing in six-month federal certificates.

The certificates are essentially short-term loans by private citizens to the government Make that private and well-heeled citizens. Technically anyone may buy the certificates, but in actuality only the reasonably affluent can do so. No one with a bit left over from household income and outgo or a modest tax refund need apply to the Treasury, since the minimum ienomination for a certificate is $10,000.

That makes this a great place for the young people to come and participate in an organized sport, the kind of people who I care to have an influence on my children.

"There are many people who give of their time to come out here and make this program possible from the free unpires to the men who installed the sprinkler system to make this park possible. The coaches who give nearly every evening to not only their own sons if they have one playing ball but to all the other youngsters who are a part of this group."

John Culver, eight years old, when asked why he played Little League baseball replied, "I love it. It's fun." Ralph Cochran, league president, echoed the sentiments of young Culver as he explained his involvement in the program by saying, "this program does one important thing besides the physical development of our children-it gives them an activity that keeps them off the streets. As far as a direct benefit from Little League baseball it is the development of hand and eye cordination, team participation and how to get along with others, that I feel is a big benefit for having organized baseball or any other sport here in Seminole County."

"I am involved in Little League baseball because when I was a child Little League was available for me. I played Little League ball in New Jersey and now I have a son interested in playing ball, so here I am," said Raymond Orlando, coach of the Giants in the T-ball league.

Opening day appeared to be a huge success as mom and dads took their turns at the special concession stand for the Little League fund raising, and scurried back and forth to watch their youngsters play ball. There was a mound of chocolate brownies for sale that was a cookie monsters delight. A mound that could easily represent a pitchers mound but it was all brownies and cookies. There were three grills going constantly fixing and trying to fill the mammoth request for hot dogs and hamburgers. It seemed to be an almost impossible task to provide food fast enough to keep over 2,000 people fed.

Games were of a practice nature, but the big winners were the raffle drawing winners. Ray Blanchfield won a new color TV, G. Crotty claimed a gas grill, Doris Milan won $100 worth of groceries and Henry Albert won a 10-

To Gain Sarasota Title

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) - Sally Little - a selfdescribed slow starter - has her first LPGA victory of the year a lot sooner than she expected. The slender South African posted her second 67 in four days Sunday to run away from the field in the $100,000

Bent Tree Classic. "I peaked a little early here," Little said after she pocketed $15,000 for her 10-under-par finish of 278, two shots ahead of defending champion Nancy Lopez.

"This is very early for me in the year. I am a slow starter and I had prepared my game for California," The LPGA moves from Florida to California Thursday for the Sunstar Classic at Los Angeles. But even though she has been looking ahead to the California portion of the tour, Little will sit out next week - a move she had scheduled even before the season began. Little, Lopez and Dale Lundquist were tied at 6-under-par going into the final nine holes of play. But Little, playing in the same threesome with Lopez, quickly put the match out of reach with birdies on 11, 12, 13 and 14. Lopez responded with a birdie on 11 but put herself out of the running with a bogey on 13, despite finishing with birdies on 15 and 18.

Lundquist, playing in the final threesome behind Little, Lopez and Jo Ann Washam, birdied 11, but then fell by the wayside with back-to-back bogeys on 14 and 15.

MIAMI (UPI) - David Irving and Gary Jones each scored first half goals and Maurice Whittle and Nico Bodonczky added one score apiece in the second half to give the Fort Lauderdale Strikers a 4-1 exhibition victory Sunday over the Memphis Rogues. The win was the Strikers' third in four preseason

Ismail Hialeah Champion

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI) - Haroon Ismail of Rhodesia won the Hialeah Tennis Classic Sunday by defeating Australia's Junior Champion Brad Drewitt, 6-4, 6-1. Ismail, best known in Rhodesia as the national ping pong champion, displayed quickness and strong return of serve in capturing $1,260 in prize money at the Hialeah stop on the USTA-PENN national circuit. He could be following the footsteps of Johann Kriek of South Africa, who won last year's Hialeah tournament and now is ranked 25th on the world tennis list.

Patriots Set Exhibitions

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The New England Patriots Sunday announced their 1979 four-game exhibition schedule, which includes games against three playoff teams and a fourth against the Oakland Raiders.

New England, which has lost the services of Head Coach Chuck Fairbanks, will kick off against Los Angeles and Oakland at Schaefer Stadium in mid-August. They also will play Atlanta and Denver on the road. Exact dates and times for the games have yet to be

Cedeno Faces Another Start

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) - Manager Bill Virdon, who at 47 probably can still do it better than most of them because he learned how before coming up, was putting some of his Houston players through a sliding drill and one by one, all of them hit the one he tore up so badly eight months ago. This was last Friday and it was the first time Cedeno had tried sliding into base since he ripped a ligament in his left knee so badly sliding into second base against the Cubs last June 16 that he had to undergo surgery the very next day. "I thought about it a lot," Cedeno says, talking about the trauma of sliding for the first time after making his way back. "It stays in your mind. I knew how serious the injury was when I hurt my leg. The first thing I wondered was whether I would ever play again. It's a natural thing. You can't help thinking about it." Cedeno's knee has a long lateral scar where he was cut. It swelled up on him a bit after he tried sliding the other day but he

The 29-year-old Domincian-born center fielder started out last season as if he was going to do all those things people have been saying he could for the past nine years. He batted .347 in the Astros' first 12 games. Having stole 61 bases the season before, he looked like he might steal 75 this time. When he got hurt, he already had 23.

Cedeno spent 10 days in the hospital after he was operated on and no sooner did he gt out when he landed right back in again. "I was on crutches and my knee was in a cast, and when I was walking to my seat, this little boy, about eight or nine years old, came running right into me. He broke my crutches and my cast. Laying there on the ground, I said to myself the little bugger didn't even bother to stop."

Another cast was placed around Cedeno's left leg and he was outfitted with a new set of crutches. "That was the first of seven times the cast snapped," he says. "I'd kick in my sleep and all of a sudden it would come apart
