Eisenhower's Talk Thursday To Deal On Peace Chances

Address To Newsmen Will Be Televised

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower's speech in Washington tomorrow will deal with "the chances for peace for all the peoples of the world in 1953."

James C. Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, announced the theme of the President's speech in Washington today. The address at a luncheon meeting (1 p. m., EST) of the American Society of Newspaper Editors will be televised and broadcast by radio on all national networks.

"It will be a major speech on foreign policy and the chances for peace for all the peoples of the world in 1953," Hagerty said.

Eisenhower worked on the speech last night after a round of golf with Ben Hogan, who won the annual Masters tournament here Sunday with a record 274 for 72 holes.

Hogan and the President dined up at the Augusta National Club with Byron Nelson, who was Hogan's Sunday partner, and Cliff Roberts, retired New York investment banker and chairman of the golf club.

"They all said they had a very nice social game and that nobody shot very well," James C. Hagerty, the President's press secretary, told newsmen today.

Eisenhower will fly back to Washington tomorrow morning to speak at the editors' luncheon meeting.

After the address he will go to Griffith Stadium to toss out the first baseball at the game between the Washington Senators and the New York Yankees.

Then he will board the presidential plane for the return trip to Augusta, stopping on the way at Salisbury, N. C., for the 20th anniversary celebration of Iowan County.

Running On War With Slowdown Order Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) said today it appeared the Army had been planning for the Korean War under Defense Department instructions which virtually amounted to a slowdown order.

Byrd's reaction came after Lt. Gen. George H. Decker, Army comptroller, told senators that each budget since the war began carried with it a directive that the military chiefs "for budgetary purposes only" were to assume the war would be over by the following June 30.

At the outset, this meant budgeting figures were based on the assumption it would be over in six months or so. In subsequent years that it would be over in the 12 months of the fiscal year beginning each July 1.

Byrd insisted such a directive amounted to a fact in a policy determining the conduct of the war. And Decker said it had played a major part in the ammunition shortage.

Decker was the main witness as a Senate Armed Services subcommittee resumed hearings on Korea today, admitting shortages as reported from the field.

Decker said the directive first came to the Army from Gen. George C. Marshall, secretary of defense in 1950, and a similar directive had been handed down during the time that Robert A. Lovett was secretary of defense.

Decker said he didn't know how "far back" the responsibility for the directive went, but that it possibly went as far as President Truman.

He said the directive to assume the war would end on each June 30, in preparing the military budget, was cancelled when Charles E. Wilson took office.

A SAD SIGHT, Christopher Partridge, 27, and Chester Olsen, 29, look up at New York City skyline from a high-rise building. Partridge and Olsen were allegedly spotted at a safe address. When they arrived, the two men ran across a yard to get to their apartment in the building. They were only slightly injured in the explosion.

Red Buildup Is Seen On Heels Of Immunity

Advantage Taken Of Guaranteed Safety

SOME scores of Red supply trucks moved openly and safely toward the Korean front today as the communists took advantage of an apparent immunity granted the route of motor cars carrying disabled Allied war prisoners toward Pannington. Reconnaissance pilots said the road from far northern Korea was crowded with the trucks. They said the drivers apparently knew they were safe.

It appeared Allied warplanes had been ordered not to attack Red vehicles along the route the Communists are using for the armististion.

The communists didn't return any immunity, however. An anti-aircraft fire pinned an Allied plane that flew low to take a close look. Allied planes spotted two truck convoys, including one and wounded a U. S. war prisoner, to ward the gate to freedom at Pannington.

There was no report of a third convoy. The Reds said also is moving south through North Korea.

The three convoys are carrying part of the disabled U. S. troops to be traded for 5,000 Red captives, the communists said.

At Pannington, the U. S. command and control convoys are being guarded by 250 more than the 700 the Allies told Red forces officers at Pannington would be returned as sick and wounded. There was no more late information for the higher headquarters.

Even so, the announcement that the Red trucks had been ordered to leave the road home established the fact that the Red trucks are being guarded by 250 more than the 700 the Allies told Red forces officers at Pannington would be returned as sick and wounded. There was no more late information for the higher headquarters.

There was no report here on any further action toward removal of the full Red armististion talks.

The Communists have been accused of exchanging 250 more than the 700 the Allies told Red forces officers at Pannington would be returned as sick and wounded. There was no more late information for the higher headquarters.

Dr. Morgan Talks Bizarre Tale Of Murder Told By Trapped Father

NEWARK, N. J. (AP) — An officer worked Saturday by a trail from Los Angeles detective's report and to police a story of how he killed his wife with a dagger and in California dumped her body in the Yacht Club last night.

Dr. Morgan stated that since it is impossible only when detected in the early stages and then treated off her hands, he had to behead her and dump her body in the Yacht Club last night.

The confession yesterday came as a surprise to police because they had called in the examining officer, Hickey, to look for a man to answer some routine questions about his wife, who had been reported missing in January.

Instead, they heard Frederick's tale that he was "extremely" jealous of his wife, Ruth Hill, and suspected her of carrying on with other men.

Frederick, 38, a former member of the Los Angeles Police Department, told police he had an affair with his wife on Jan. 10, 1952, and that he had been with her on Jan. 11, 1952, and that he had been with her on Jan. 12, 1952, and that he had been with her on Jan. 13, 1952, and that he had been with her on Jan. 14, 1952, and that he had been with her on Jan. 15, 1952, and that he had been with her Pastry Cook Slays Girl For Two-Timing

MIAMI — A hotel pastry cook killed his sweetheart early today because she was seeing other men, nearly shooting her head off with a blast from a 16 gauge shot gun.

A second blast hit the woman in the chest.

Homicide Detective J. K. Lewis said Miss Katherine Wolfington, 47, was killed instantly in her northeast section hotel room.

Lewis said Leopold August Murrie, 34, identified as a pastry cook at the Honey Plaza Hotel, Miami Beach, called a police and admitted the shooting.

MAY BE KEY TO LEUKEMIA

Discovery Of "X" Chemical Seen As Promising Clue In Fight On Disease

Stiff Penalty For Dope Peddlers Is Contained In Bill

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Discovery of an "X" chemical which may be a key to leukemia, dread cancer of the blood, was reported today.

The "X" was described by Doctor Thomas F. Dougherty and Jules A. Frank of the University of Utah medical school to science writers on a tour sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

It causes production of millions of white blood cells within minutes. The white cells fight off invading germs, among other jobs.

It helps make up for a terrific loss of white cells within minutes. The stress can be cold, heat, fear, emotional upsets, allergies, infection. The stress makes your adrenal glands turn out more cortisone, a hormone that destroys white cells.

The hormone and "X" work together, like thermostat controls, to keep the number of white cells more or less in balance. Actually, your white blood cells do a roller-coaster ride and fall all through the day, with big dips when stress produces a "jolt" of cortisone.

Substance "X" brings a quick rise in white cells or lymphocytes, especially one kind called "leukemic" white cells. It is resistant to destruction by cortisone. Normal white cells are easily destroyed by cortisone.

There is a possibility that the stress cells stimulated by the "X" stuff might somehow change to become leukemic white cells, which also resist cortisone destruction. Leukemia means too many white cells, and overgrowth of blood-forming organs.

In animals, Dougherty and Frank produced a leukemia-like condition in mice by subjecting them to repeated stress.

Something going haywire in humans because of repeated stress might lead to leukemia. Learning why leukemia occurs could lead to better controls of it.

It is not yet known what the "X" stuff is, or where it is made. It could be histamine, the chemical released when allergies strike; something like histamine; or one of a number of other things.

The studies promise a gauge of how well a patient with tuberculosis, rheumatoid arthritis, allergies, jaundice or other ailment is responding to drugs, or how sick he is. For by checking on the stress cells, and hormones in the blood, it can be known which ones are over-acting.

Physicians were able to tell which ones were very ill, which had recovered, and which were responding to treatment.

Plane Crash

...out was Pvt. Odell Matthews of Washington, D. C. All the others were carried to a tiny helicopter landing strip less than a mile from the wreckage and in trucks which followed bulldozers up the mountain to within a quarter mile of the cold and pain-racked survivors.

One of the survivors who spent the day awaiting rescue was Pvt. Howard Wormuth, 21, Carbonate, Pa. who said the plane had an engine trouble out of Chicago and had to return there for service.

Later, he said, "it seemed to me that the engine was missing. All night long, I didn't think we were going to make it. A lot of the other boys felt the same way. We were on only one engine when the plane crashed. First thing I knew was I was blown out on the snow."

"After the stewardess and Matthews left to find help the rest of us tried the best we could to make the seriously injured comfortable. It was a bitter cold. My feet were frostbitten."

"We shouted to one another, trying to find out who was alive."

"This rescue operation was a darn good job. When they carried me out by stretcher from the wreckage to the truck, the going was really hazardous."

"I never saw such a steep mountain in all my life."

Rescuers followed Mrs. Long's trail of blood through the snow to come upon what Capt. Wallace M. Baker of the Civil Air Patrol said was a sight "of complete and utter destruction. We couldn't believe that anyone had lived through it."

He said paramedics who had parachuted in to the scene and civilian loggers had already started the slow process of getting the injured out of the plane.

"They were taking them down the hill on stretchers to where the Coast Guard and Navy helicopters could fly them out."

"The plane's wings were torn approximately 150 feet back from the fuselage. The nose and cockpit were completely demolished and either the pilot or co-pilot was still at the controls—dead."

"The other member of the crew had been thrown about 20 feet and he was lying dead in a shallow ditch, his face torn and bloody against the snow."

"The survivors were huddled dazed and in terrible pain about the wreck. Some of them were screaming as the rescue squad attempted to give them first aid. It was a nightmare of pain and blood in five feet of snow."

One by one the injured were brought away from the wreckage. At daylight, waned the helicopters were grounded after 10 persons had been flown out.

Police Escort Will Guard Doctor Hero

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP)—Special relays of highway patrol cars were ready to escort a courageous polio-stricken doctor on a 300-mile dash for medical care today.

They will clear the way for an ambulance carrying Dr. Duncan Holbert from Santa Cruz to Rancho Los Amigos respiratory center at Honda in Los Angeles County.

Dr. Holbert was stricken in 1949. Although at first paralyzed from the neck down he has fought his way back to partial health and now holds regular office hours as an allergy specialist.

Dr. Holbert is going to the Los Amigos center for a general check-up and two weeks of treatment.

Because he can stay outside his room long up to 12 hours, no difficulties were foreseen on the trip. However, just to forestall delays by traffic jams or mechanical breakdowns, the highway patrol escort was arranged.

Mass Resignations Of Scientists Are Seen As Probable

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Scientists engaged in some of the nation's most important research have indicated they are considering mass resignations in protest against dismissal of Dr. Allen V. Astin as director of the Bureau of Standards.

Astin resigned 10 days ago at the request of Secretary of Commerce Weeks, following a dispute over the testing of a commercial product. Craig Sheffer, assistant secretary, has said there were other reasons which he did not disclose.

Sen. Ellender (D-La.) proposed today that President Eisenhower undertake a personal investigation of the Astin dismissal.

Asked about reports that many scientists at the bureau had turned in resignations in protest, Sheffer said: "We are not aware of any mass resignations and we do not think those people would treat their obligations in that manner."

No one at the bureau was talking for publication, at least by name. But a source staff member is known to have told a friend: "Under the circumstances, the appointment of any new director, from inside or outside the bureau, would not be acceptable to the staff and would result in irreparable losses."

The dispute which led to Astin's dismissal arose from the bureau's testing and unfavorable report on a powder made by a California firm which claims it will rejuvenate tired batteries.

The biggest litigation reservoir using the Grand water is at Elephant Butte, N. Mex.

Convicted Killers Who Flew Dade Jail Arrested In North

MIAMI — Two convicted murderers who fled the Dade County Jail Tuesday were arrested in Indiana, Tuesday, about the time Circuit Judge George E. Holt denied them a new trial.

Pennsylvania state police picked up Joseph R. Albert, 29, and William F. Chapman, 25, in a stolen automobile with Albert's girl friend, Ramona Getchell, 24, also of Miami.

Albert told reporters they stayed in Miami until last Friday, then left in a car which Chapman stole and drove by easy stages in western Pennsylvania.

Albert and Chapman had been sentenced to 99 years each for the slaying last June 23 of Dr. Clifton Springmyer who was shot to death in his office.

Judge Holt said that neither of the prisoners' rights had been impaired although the trial jury, contrary to the court's instructions, had talked to a deputy and self-styled witness when it viewed the scene of the killing.

Albert and Chapman were among seven prisoners who fled

Work Of Dentists Is Seen As Limitless

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—All the dentists in the U. S., even working around the clock, would not be able to fill the cavities American children get in their teeth.

That's the word Dr. Philip Jay, professor of dentistry at the University of Michigan, had for the California State Dental Association yesterday.

Dr. Jay said the best remedy for cavities would be for processors to take the acid bite out of sugar.

Hal Boyle's Column
By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—There is a quick way to beat inflation and cut down on your expenses. Become a borrower.

Many people today see behind the inflation... because they waste money buying things they could borrow.

A good borrower always has a fat bank account because he does not fritter away his take-home pay by purchasing gadgets and luxuries his neighbor owns—and will gladly lend you, if you twist his arm hard enough.

The motto of the successful borrower is: "Don't try to outdo the Joneses. Just keep even with them by borrowing everything they haven't got nalled down."

Let Jones sweat himself into an early grave trying to achieve the better life by hard work and hard cash. If you go to about it carefully, you can get him to share everything he's got except his life insurance policy—and you may even be able to talk him into borrowing money for you on that.

There are tricks to every trade, of course, and if you want to become a skillful borrower you have to develop know-how. Here are a few tested tips:

1. Avoid a pleading, hangdog look. People will resent you. They admire only a borrower with nerve and self-confidence. For example, never borrow one item if you can get two. If you ask Jones for his lawnmower, also ask nicely, "Oh, that reminds me. My lawn is getting a little bald. You don't have a couple of extra pounds of grass seed and a little fertilizer, do you?"

2. If the fellows at the office you much cigarettes from use the wrong brands, don't sneer. Just enough and remark, "Do these ever bother your throat a bit?" Then tell them how your favorite brand cured you of lumbago, arthritis, and sinus—just when you were at death's door. They'll change to the kind you like.

3. Tell neighbor Jones you're in the market for a car and a delivery man, but you can't make up your mind which to buy. Jones will take you for week end rides to brag up his car. He'll invite you over to see what a swell TV set he has. While you are there, naturally, he will wine and dine you—and that is also a good time for you to borrow his phone for an hour of social calls on his list.

4. Little leaks will sink a great ship. So never fork out your own dough for things people lend and never really expect to get back—such as stamps, magazines, books, magazines, cigarette lighters and pocket combs. They all add up, you know. You can pawn umbrellas if you get so many they clutter your closet.

5. If you develop an ailment, find somebody with the same one. Then see what his doctor is doing for him, borrow his medicine. Everybody is happy to lend you pills to a fellow sufferer. However, if he gets worse, stop borrowing his medicine immediately, unless you are absolutely sure it is curing you.

6. Never play the stock market except with the money Jones lends you. If the stock goes up, you can pay him back. If it goes down, you go to work for a few days and pay him back. "Look, Jones, old boy, if I thought you were going to be shy about this, I'd have gone to my bank." That'll shut him into silence for another half year. By then he may be dead—and, of course, since you gave him no 100's, what have you got to worry about? You may even be able to borrow more from his widow.

7. One final, important point. Never, never borrow another man's wife. It is too dangerous. Sooner or later you might run into a fellow who won't let you return her—and what a nuisance that could be!

Leeburg is planning to host a famous annual Watermelon Festival this year on May 20.

We see where the Eisenhower administration in battling inflation has launched a program for a "sound dollar". We hope they are able to restore the jingle to it.

A new Florida community is growing up some 25 miles south of Miami called Leisure City. Its two principal subdivisions are known as Sun Deck and Sun Tan Villages.

The proposal to double the exemption on Florida's homesteads seems destined to encounter rough sledding. A House Committee rejected the bill by a 10 to 0 vote the other day. But we doubt if we have heard the last of it. There is always considerable support for any plan which would reduce taxes for any special group.

How the tourist industry has grown in importance to the state of Florida is shown by Bob Estimate of Cypress Gardens who has figured it out that Florida now receives annually from this business a billion dollars a year as compared with about five million dollars twenty years ago. Sanford has a great field there in which to work if it wants its share of the tourist dollar.

The State Road Department is considering a number of turnpike proposals, one which would route the highway down the east coast at a cost of $255 million, the other which would bring in down through the central part of the state at a cost of $180 million. The difference in cost is largely accounted for by the higher costs of rights-of-way through the populous cities, or near them, on the east coast.
Under the circumstances it would seem that the sensible thing to do is to route the turnpike where it will cost the least money.

Reps. Surles and Chowder would do throughout the state of Florida what Seminole county is trying to do within its own limits: they would prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages from midnight to 9:00
a. m. on weekdays and from midnight Saturday until 9:00 a. m. on Monday. That would accomplish everything which the Seminole county bill attempts and at the same time would get around the unfairness and other objections to early closing in this county while liquor stores and juke joints are allowed to stay open until the wee small hours in the morning in neighboring counties.

Governor McCarty's recent visit

Johns gives rise to the suggestion that the Governor may be thinking of resigning. He has not resigned from his recent heart at-

The resignation would be, in the normal course of events, in case he resigned the president of the Senate. But Charley Johns who resigned to hold this position at the moment is suffering from a

Investigation Needed

Our representatives at the United Nations should not drop their demands for an impartial investigation of Red charges that we have been using germ warfare in Korea. The Reds have indicated that they would like to forget the whole matter. They want us to ratify the Geneva protocol of 1925 which forbids bacteriological warfare. This the United States refuses to do for two reasons: Signing the document would be tantamount to admitting that we have used germ warfare and are now agreeing to stop. Also, our UN representatives believe the Geneva protocol to be unenforceable.

The Communists started the charges about germ warfare to discredit United Nations efforts in Korea. The issue was exploited all over the world and it has had some effect on gullible people. Only an investigation by an impartial committee can remedy the damage done to the reputation of the United States and United Nations.

If the issue is allowed to be forgotten, if the investigation is postponed or not conducted, the old charges can be revived whenever it is convenient for the Communists to do so. Let the truth be made known to everyone. The United States and the UN have nothing to hide. The charges of germ warfare and propaganda can easily be proved for what they are. If the Reds are convinced that they are telling the truth, why are they so reluctant to have light thrown on the matter?

Going To Paris

In 1927 it was fashionable to speak of the "lost generation," the young men and women who had no idea of where they were going. Many of these indulged in selfpity at their confused state, bemoaning the fact that there were no more worlds to conquer. Some, many of whom later recanted, turned to Communism as a way to give their lives purpose and direction.

In that year Charles Augustus Lindbergh was 25 years old. He could have been just as lost as any of his contemporaries. But he had turned his eyes up and out over the wide Atlantic Ocean. He was one young man who knew where he was going.

Many tried to dissuade the young pilot. Paris was a long way from New York and the idea of a monoplane and a single man conquering that distance seemed ridiculous. It is surprising how often the term "ridiculous" has been applied to dreams and visions. It is even more surprising how often the adjective has been misused.

A series of articles by Colonel Lindbergh, entitled "Thirty-three Hours to Paris," is now running in the Saturday Evening Post. Lindbergh tells his own story of the hopes and the disappointments, the trials and the eventual victory. It is almost 20 years since Lindbergh landed in Paris. The story is as inspiring today as it was when it was told under the headlines that made Lindbergh a world hero.

The Forrestal Papers

As long as there is interest in the second world war, there will be interest in the American contribution to its winning, and papers of the chief actors will be studied. Investigators therefore are bound to visit Princeton University, to which the papers of Secretary of Defense James Forrestal have been given.

Forrestal, a Princeton graduate and head of a New York brokerage firm, became Undersecretary of the Navy early in the war, succeeding his superior, Frank Knox, on his death in 1944. When the Defense Department was set up in 1947, he took another upward step, serving two more years. His tireless labors broke him down, and he had to go to a hospital, from which he fell to his death in May, 1949.

Two years ago his papers were published. A few omissions were then noted, some for reasons of national security, some because they contained unsupported reflections on other persons, which Forrestal surely would never have wanted published. So comprehensive was the selection that it is doubtful how much can be gained by examining the original papers. Yet historians, very properly, will want to see for themselves. Discoveries of importance may yet be made in them.

Congressman Herlong Reports

With the House still in recess as this is written, activity on our side of Capitol Hill is limited to a few committee hearings. Members of the House are pretty well scattered, some in their districts, a few in Washington, and a good many taking brief vacations which will probably be their last peaceful hours until Congress adjourns. Everybody feels that when the recess is over the tempo will speed up, work will be heavy and hours long. It will have to be that way to get through the essential legislation by the early adjournment date which the Administration has set as its goal.

The Senate has not taken a recess, and is deeply engaged in debate on the Tidelands issue. The bill being debated is not the one passed by the House, but S. J. Res. 13, known as the "Holland Bill" in honor of Senator Spessard L. Holland, one of its sponsors and long the leader in the Senate in the effort to return to the States the tidelands within their historic boundaries. The Senate will probably be debating on this measure for some time. The advocates of Federal ownership of the tidelands are having their say now, and while they deny that they are conducting a filibuster, they admit they expect to talk plenty before allowing the question to come to a vote.

In the past week the big thing in Washington was the annual Cherry Blossom Festival, held, as sometimes happens when spring comes early, without a cherry blossom

The local B&PW had a special honor bestowed upon it at last Sunday's district meeting in the Mayfair Inn when Mrs. E. J. Booth, past president, was elected District Vice Chairman. It is a great honor to be chosen to this position.

She is quite thrilled over the prospect of becoming president of the B&PW, just as she has become thrilled with railroad business. "You know," Mrs. Booth said, "you really don't realize how fascinating this job is until you actually work with it."

Asked what she likes about B&PW, Mrs. Booth answered, "I like working with the other girls on our projects." "What is the next question—what does the club do?" "We have many projects for community betterment, but there are two which are most important at the moment. One is our state-wide program to provide help and Christmas gifts to girls at the Florida Industrial School at Ocala. The second is our own local program of raising funds for our various worthy projects, that is our cook book."

She handed the writer a bright, liberally illustrated book about the size of a large pocket novel. "All the recipes in the book were compiled by women in our club, and if I say so myself, there are some very good ones." The clever drawings and cartoons which embellish the attractive publication were drawn by Mrs. Roland Doble, a member of the club.

When Mrs. True assumes her position as president of the B&PW chapter here, she becomes president of one of 80 chapters in the

THE WORLD TODAY

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—No one could in fairness expect President Eisenhower, in his less than three months in office, to produce any sensations in the cold war with Russia or the hot war in Korea. He has produced none, and can point to some obvious reasons. In Korea and elsewhere, where the troops have been tied down for winter, the warmer weather which permits larger maneuvers is only just arriving.

The Communists could forestall any bold plans the President has, if he has any, by demonstrating they actually want peace and honestly agreeing to settlements in Korea and elsewhere. No doubt they could forestall him for months or longer by pretending to exhaust every reasonable means before going further. That may be one of their reasons for talking peace now.

But if the Communists play it phony it's anybody's guess who the winner will be. By pretending peace is close and possible they might kid the Allies into slowing down armaments while they built up their own strength. But if the Communists lost their own momentum during prolonged discussions while the Allies kept on arming, no matter how close peace seemed, the West might have the edge.

Eisenhower has not taken any publicly known steps which are basically different from the Truman-Acheson "containment" policy so roundly criticized by Republicans in the campaign. But Secretary of State Dulles recently claimed a strong position taken by the Eisenhower administration was the partly the cause of the Communist peace moves.

He cited (1) Eisenhower's order to the Seventh Fleet off Formosa, an aid program not to start new Asian attacks; (2) the building up of South Korean forces, which was being done under Truman; and (3) plans to increase aid to Indonesia, an aid program which had been carried out under Truman.

China had been raising the mainland in a small way while the fleet was in Formosan waters. No sizable Chinese raids have been reported since the order. This was no surprise, since it was understood he needed more time and help before he could be much beyond a nuisance to the mainland Communists.

The joint French-American warning over the proposal to establish a Medical School at the University of Florida. It is proposed that an appropriation of five million dollars be made to start the project which would be expanded into a 12 million dollar school when completed. The University of Miami has already established a medical school and is now receiving a state subsidy and look on the proposed school at Gainesville as a "luxury the state cannot afford." Governor McCarty, his hands full with other legislative problems, has indicated that this is one fight he intends to stay out of.

The Florida Citizens Safety Council, now operating as an independent agency, in all probability will be merged with the State Department and programs laid down in the Truman-Acheson "containment" policy so roundly criticized by Republicans in the campaign.

But one fact is clear: The Russians and after them the Chinese have started a peace offensive. Dulles has repeatedly emphasized the importance of psychological warfare against the Communists, the kind that would win this country friends and push the Communists into a position of not knowing what to expect next.

But the Communists by their sudden peace talks may be playing Dulles at his own game, a game which he can hardly claim to have developed very far yet. By their new tactics the Communists are keeping the psychological effect of the Eisenhower administration guessing.

Too Late To Classify

By RUSSELL KAY

According to Governor McCarty, Florida is sure enough going to the dogs and he wants the legislature to do something about it. It isn't our going to the dogs he views with alarm, but rather, the fact that the state isn't getting a big enough cut from the profits.

Dog racing in Florida is big business, profitable business, and up to now the dog-racing interests have had enough political influence to keep legislators in line and sidetrack adverse legislation that might in any way handicap their operations or reduce their profit.

This session the dog sledding won't be so easy although dog track operators are still political by powerful, and it looks like a knock-down drag-out fight before the battle is over. If the governor makes his point and succeeds in getting more money from the dog tracks he will have to do so over some pretty powerful legislative dead bodies. My guess is he'll get some additional revenue but not as much as he hopes that might be. Another headache is the school teacher problem. While the Chief Executive is willing to go along with them on the question of increased pay, the legislature is not so willing to do so.

Here again a compromise of some sort can be looked for. The school lobby, like the dog track lobby, is plenty powerful and they will hold out as long as they can for the highest possible figure. A number of legislators have the axe out for the State Milk Commission and the Livestock Sanitary Board. These are highly controversial measures and can be depended upon to take a lot of legislative time. What will happen nobody knows; but my guess is some of the present powers of these agencies will be curtailed but they will not be abolished.

There will be a real struggle over the proposal to establish a Medical School at the University of Florida. It is proposed that an appropriation of five million dollars be made to start the project which would be expanded into a 12 million dollar school when completed. The University of Miami has already established a medical school and is now receiving a state subsidy and look on the proposed school at Gainesville as a "luxury the state cannot afford."
