Accident with injuries

SANFORD — An accident involving a truck and a car sent three people to the hospital on Monday, but no one was seriously injured, Sanford Police said.

According to Cmdr. Dennis Whitnire, a 1995 Buick, driven by Dr. Robert J. Smith, 64, of 103 Country Place, Sanford, was struck by a truck driven by Geoffrey Lange Baker, 29, of 1936 Lake Street, Oviedo.

Whitnire said Smith, the husband of Sanford's mayor, was travelling east on 20th Street and saw the car in front of him turn on to U.S. Highway 17-92. Because the rising sun was in his eyes, he told police, he did not see that the light was red and he failed to stop before crossing the intersection.

Baker, who was travelling north on U.S. Highway 17-92, slammed into the passenger side door of Smith's car.

There was heavy damage to both vehicles. An unidentified passenger in Smith's car was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital by ambulance, the police report noted. Smith and Baker went to the hospital by other means, Whitnire said.

All were released by the end of the day on Monday.

Smith was charged with running a red light.

Pre-registration is required by phoning as early as possible to 323-2500, ext. 5558 or 5561.

Hamilton meeting tonight

SANFORD — Parents and faculty members at Hamilton Elementary School in Sanford will meet with principal Mamie Bingham tonight to discuss what they perceive as problems in the school's leadership, communication difficulties and low morale at the school.

Bingham has been at the helm at Hamilton, a school working to "break the mold" with the majority of at-risk students, since February 1995. There have been some complaints to the teachers' union regarding Bingham's tenure. There have been no complaints prior to this week to the district administration.

Complaints to the district office by members of the PTA and by some teachers prompted the scheduling of this evening's meeting.

The meeting will take place in the school's multi-purpose room at 7 p.m.

Watch your TV

SANFORD — The CBS Television movie Our Son, The Matchmaker will air at 9 p.m. on Wednesday, May 8.

The movie, starring Ann Jillian, was filmed exclusively in Central Florida. Much of it was made in Sanford.

Many of your friends and neighbors were used as extras in the film and there will be many locations from throughout the area that you will recognize.

The movie will be shown locally on WCPX-Channel 6.

Carving new Congressional District 33

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Congresswoman Corrine Brown says she intends to continue representing citizens of Congressional District 3, regardless of how it is restructured. The district, which has involved parts of 14 different counties, has in the past, basically snaked from Jacksonville, through part of Sanford, into the Orlando area.

Earlier this month, a three-judge federal panel in U.S. District Court in Washington declared that the Third Congressional District is unconstitutional because the structure of the district was drawn primarily to elect a black lawmaker.

The court subsequently ordered the Florida Legislature to come up with new districting. The matter came up before committee meetings

Paralyzed anglers' tournament ends Bass Trail PVA Nationals

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The three-day U.S. Open Bass Tournament in Sanford came to a conclusion late Sunday afternoon. Opening Friday with a pig roast, the tournament ended as might be expected, with a fish fry.

Team competition, with teams consisting of a fisherman and boat operator concluded Saturday. Gary Rudolph, with Capt. Hank Gallagher took first place catching eight fish, weighing a total of 21.58 pounds. For their accomplishment, they took the $1,000 first prize.

The Open Division, with only the handicapped fishermen competing was held Sunday. Kurt Glass of Georgia was the big winner with a total weight of 12.34 pounds caught. Glass, 50, was named second place in the Angler of the Year competition for the 1994-95 season.

Steve Sensakovic of Sanford, who took third place in the Open Division, caught the largest weight fish of the event at 5.46 pounds.

The Bank Division, along the shore of Lake Carola, was held both days.

In standings obtained this morning, Rod Stroh took first place in the Bank Division, with a total weight of 6.92 pounds. Chris Whitley with 6.78 pounds was second, and John Hill at 5.3 pounds was third.

The Angler of the Year award went to Scott Greiger of Virginia, who came up with a total point score of 332. He was presented with a full-rigged 17 1/2 foot bass boat as the grand prize.

One of the Bank Angler leaders in Sanford this weekend was James Mealor, of Nashville, Tenn. Going into this weekend's tournament, Mealor stood in first place so far this year in the PVA National Bass Trail point standings at 632, a total of 110 points more than second place. Last year, Mealor finished third in the total nationwide competitive Bank Angler events.

Event Director Brian Terwilliger said the Sanford event had 40 Bank Anglers and 66 persons entered in the open competition. There were several hundred persons accompanying the participants as well as many volunteers and PVA officials involved.

This was the final tournament in the 1995-96 Bass Trail PVA Nationals. The events started last July with the Potomac River Classic in Waldorf, Md. Others took place in September in Oklahoma and California, with the Southeast Classic at Augusta, Georgia this past October.

This was the 10th annual event held in Sanford. In the printed event program were words of welcome to the paralyzed veterans and their families from Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith and Tournament Director Brian Terwilliger.

Terwilliger said in his welcoming message to the tournament participants, he expressed the feelings of many people "A special thanks to our boat captains, volunteers, donors and sponsors," he wrote, "without your help an event such as this would not be possible."

James Mealor of Nashville, Tenn., competes in the bank division of the Tenth Annual U.S. Open Bass Tournament.

County extends thanks to 1,200 volunteers

From staff reports

SANFORD — The Seminole County Board of County Commissioners hosted a Volunteer Appreciation Reception and buffet last night at the Sanford Civic Center. Over 1,200 volunteers were invited to attend.

This is the sixth year that counties across the nation have observed National County Government Week.

in an effort to educate the public regarding county services.

A part of the annual celebration is the acknowledgement of contributions by individuals who volunteer their time and expertise to assist in making Seminole a better county in which to live.

The theme for this year's observation is "Bridging the Generations." It will have a special meaning.

USF shut down by threat

TAMPA — Sal Palma never believed a terrorist would blow up a university building. So he stayed at his on-campus apartment and studied at the school library on a day when the University of South Florida virtually shut down because of the threat.

"I'm not too concerned about it," the accounting student said. "But I will admit, when you see these police officers and bomb squads running across campus with their testosterone levels up to here, you start thinking, 'Well, maybe ...'"

The university was under tight security and virtually empty Monday because of a threatening letter sent to the editor of the student newspaper. In a one-page typed statement, received by the Oracle on March 25, the unidentified author threatened to bomb a building at the university, kill a white, female professor and set off a fake detonator in a crowd on April 29.

The threats weren't carried out. Monday was the second day of the three-day Islamic holiday Eid al-Adha, or the Feast of Sacrifice, the faith's holiest feast, but the letter did not indicate why April 29 was chosen for the threatened attacks.

In response, the university increased security and rescheduled exams to empty out the campus. Final exams were moved up a week so most of the 30,000 students were back home by Monday. Faculty and staff were encouraged to take a vacation day or work from home. Only about 1,000 students and staff were on the 1,700-acre campus.

The university also turned away all mail and packages, and barred visitors. They offered bodyguards to worried administrators, but officials knew of no one who accepted the offer.

"I don't like the feeling that we could be intimidated as a university," said Betty Castor, the university's president. "But if we had ignored it, we would have been severely criticized. We had to address it."

The need for a strong response was partly tied to the history of recent terrorism, both nationally and at the university.

In October, a former USF professor surfaced in Syria as the new leader of the Palestinian terrorist group Islamic Jihad, just months after leaving the Tampa university on sabbatical.

Affidavits unsealed this month indicate federal agents believe an Islamic think-tank once connected with the school and run by another professor was a front to bring terrorists into the United States.

The letter that set off the frenzy was signed, "The One, the Leader of the War Purgers." Its author demanded the newspaper print the letter and that the "biased, racist, liberal American press" apologize to former professor Ramadan Abdullah Shallah.

Frog hunt hurting preserve

BIG CYPRESS NATIONAL PRESERVE — Using a loop hole in regulations at Big Cypress National Preserve, hunters are killing thousands of frogs for cash and destroying a crucial rung in the wetland's food chain, environmentalists say.

The harvesters' atboats are also tearing up sawgrass needed for the survival of two endangered birds of prey, according to the activists.

There are regulations that govern hunting Everglades pig frogs inside the preserve. But there aren't any restrictions on the number of frogs a person can carry off, even though it is illegal to sell the meat.

Unless a park ranger sees someone selling the meat, the regulations can't be enforced, Chief Ranger Bill Carroll said.

"We don't break no rules," said frogger Eileen Yates. "We just don't tell them anything they don't need to know."

Yates, with her husband and two other couples, sold a total of 226 pounds of cleaned frog legs last week. She said they've been getting $5 to $7 per pound, which translates to $1,130 to $1,582.

The preserve says 67 boats last month took 4,489 pounds of the pig frogs — known for their explosive grunt and juicy legs — worth $13,300.

"What's happening in the preserve this year is nothing short of an amphibian clear-cut," said Brian Hunt, a Fort Lauderdale activist. "This kind of unregulated activity is bound to have an impact on the ecosystem."

The plunder comes as Congress is considering opening all 508 preserves and wildlife refuges to hunting, fishing and trapping. The House of Representatives last week passed a bill that would allow such recreational uses with little regard to their impact on natural resources.

The preserve is reluctant to stop the throngs of people, some grossing $700 or more a night, because they don't want to anger sportsmen opposed to regulation.

Scientists don't know for sure what impact the heavy frogging will have on the preserve. Frogs lay thousands of eggs at a time, and their abundance is critical to ecosystems in Florida.

Small fish and insects eat the eggs. Tadpoles get eaten by fish and birds. The frogs are a favorite of big birds, snakes and alligators.

Boaters arrested

Sheriff's deputies said they were flagged down Saturday near the Wekiva River bridge west of Sanford. They said a man told them he had been involved in a dispute with two men in a boat while he was swimming, and said one of the men pointed a rifle at him.

The deputy said he spotted the boat and called it in to shore. Douglas Jobe Dougherty, 45, of 234 Coachman Court, Sanford, was charged with operating a boat under the influence.

•Nelson Eddy Scott Jr., 23, of 4310 Nolan Road, was charged with aggravated assault with a firearm.

Better yourself

At the peak of his career, Nat King Cole recorded a song called "Lost April." It wasn't well known because it was on the reverse side of one of his million selling records and disc jockeys seldom played it.

The opening words said, "Lost April, where did you go, you left me standing..." While this may come as a surprise to very few, we have just run out of April, 1996. If we were going to do something in April, forget it. It's lost. Starting at midnight, it will be May.

Some employment experts in Washington, D.C. have said that May is the best time of the year for people to examine possible career improvements. They say this is an excellent time to seek an upgrading both in status and financial levels.

The suggestion may or may not be a good one. That's for the individual to determine. But upgrading one's self for that career improvement is important. It must be done first. Few will be able to find a higher-paying job without additional education and experience.

Back in the 20s, 30s, and even 40s, people were joining the labor force with a high school education and in many cases, even less. Many were able to obtain better jobs through additional training while in military service. A few even took advantage of government sponsored veterans' education opportunities.

But this is the late 1990s, and we are fast approaching, not only the next month or year, but the next century. For many people who are of the age where employment will be needed for several more decades, we believe it's time, not to look for a better-paying job, but to look at how this might be accomplished.

To that end, we are recommending continuing education. We will direct our specific attention to Seminole Community College, although we have many other fine higher education institutions which are available.

Continuing education courses at SCC are scheduled to begin the next semester on Monday, May 6. Even though it's getting late, there is still time to investigate the opportunities, then get enrolled.

While SCC, of course, offers college courses during the day, people who are holding down regular jobs may not be able to take that time. It was with this in mind, when SCC first started operating, that the nighttime continuing education courses were instigated.

By going, just at night, for as little as one or two nights a week, a person can bet an Associate Degree. SCC offers many areas of education, and regardless of what a person does, chances are good that courses are available.

Even if one decides not to pursue the AA degree, even one or two courses will be of great help in improving one's lot in the business world.

Naturally, the continuing education courses aren't free. They cost money. But consider it as an investment in the future, rather than a waste of dollars today.

Phone 328-4722 as soon as possible and look into the SCC night courses. Or, contact any other area college or university. They will be more than happy to help you get going on the right road.

We have lost April, 1996, but there is no reason why we must lose May before accomplishing something. With some concentrated efforts beginning now, we can look forward to brighter months, years, and decades ahead.

LETTER

Feed the hungry

Our Government sends farm equipment overseas to teach poor people how to grow their own food so they won't go hungry; but what do they do over here, they pay farmers not to grow certain things.

There are hungry people here. Although I wrote a letter to the Editor about helping people by giving some food to the hungry, what do they do? There was a reduction of funding for this food. "Do unto others as you would want them to do unto you." How would they like to go hungry?

The Food Assistance Program cannot be eliminated!

Pay attention to the hungry over here!
Do you want to be re-elected? Then do what is fair.

A workplace friendly for disabled

For people with every kind of disability, whether sensory, cognitive, motor or communication, technology can provide tools to speak, hear, see, learn, write, be mobile, work and play-in short, to live as fully and independently as possible. --Sen. Bob Dole.

Ordinarily, I might not have paid much attention to Dole's little Senate speech last week. It provided no particular insight into his political philosophy. It didn't "define" his candidacy. It broke no new ground. Indeed, he gives some version of last week's remarks this time every year, around the anniversary of the World War II injury that cost him the use of an arm.

But, as it happened, I had just seen a Pentagon display of some of the same technology Dole was talking about: computers with Braille terminals, computers that can read or respond to vocal commands, talking scanners, keyboards that amplify finger movement so that people with greatly reduced range of motion can operate them.

What I really saw, though, was what Dole was talking about: men and women--deaf or blind, or mobility-restricted--holding down good jobs and doing useful work for their employers, the Department of Defense. One deaf young man told me his productivity had been increased a hundredfold by the use of Defense-supplied technology.

This is CAP--the Pentagon's Computer/Electronic Accommodations Program--and it's one of the more encouraging things I've seen come out of the government recently.

The program was set up six years ago as a response to new laws requiring that computer and telecommunications systems be made available to the disabled. But, according to Edwin Dorn, undersecretary of defense for personnel, it quickly became clear that the technology spawned by the program was a boon for the department as well as for its disabled workers.

"There is so much knowledge, skill and experience that we are now able to tap with this technology," he said. "It's easy to see how it allows disabled employees to feel useful. What I can't stress too much is that it works for employers, too. Employers need to learn to make the best use of the people they have--or can get."

The costs are surprisingly modest. The talking scanner--complete with monitor, soundboard and software--goes for about $5,000. The Braille terminal and software that allows a blind operator to read what's on a computer screen costs about $13,000. The most in-demand item on CAP's growing list is the teletypewriter for the deaf, available for $1,300 each. The entire budget for the technology is $2 million a year.

Much of the focus on making the workplace friendlier to the disabled has been on the removal of architectural barriers, including such often-expensive "retrofitting" as elevators, ramps, wide doors or special toilet facilities--even where there is little or no current demand. That's why such progressive legislation as the Americans with Disabilities Act remains controversial.

What I really saw, though, was what Dole was talking about.

Chamber's role with airport

I just want to share all the wonderful things that the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce is doing in conjunction with the Orlando-Sanford Airport, Central Florida Terminals and Airport, the new international arrivals facility.

Several months ago, I went out to the airport to meet with Steve Cooke, Executive Director of the Airport, as well as a few of our Chamber members, to discuss what the Chamber could do to get involved "from the ground up". We were informed, that at that time, there was nothing that we could do, as the tour operations were working diligently trying to get the incoming flights started on schedule.

A few weeks ago, I received a telephone call from Steve Cooke, who informed me that Central Florida Terminals had made a decision to donate space to the Sanford Chamber of Commerce for the sole purpose of managing an information/visitor booth. This booth is to be used to promote Sanford to the thousands of British tourists that will be arriving into Sanford.

With no real resources to (1) purchase an information booth and (2) to hire a staff person to run the visitor booth, the Chamber, with open arms accepted this challenge and began to secure ways to make this dream a reality. Please understand, the Chamber only has three (3) staff people, and it would be impossible to remove one of these individuals from the Chamber offices, and place them out at the airport for a minimum of 15 hours per week.

To date, several local companies have been gracious and donated architectural renderings, and Steve Cooke has secured a local company to build and donate the information booth. The next step is how we create enough funding to hire a person to manage the booth.

On Monday, April 8, I received a faxed request that the Sanford Chamber participate with the first international arrivals on Tuesday, April 9 from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. Six volunteers were needed for a four-hour period to meet and greet our new visitors. This was the inaugural flight for AirTours and all wanted to make sure it would be a flight that would be remembered.

Being that the request came in so late, I was only able to secure five individuals who took four hours off from their own businesses to assist the Chamber and the city with welcoming these flights. What a wonderful experience. The visitors thought that Sanford was great... we distributed cookies and orange juice, sun visors, sun glasses, beach balls and literature on Sanford.

We were pleased to have been able to assist on such short notice, and the Sanford staff people from area businesses and attractions thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

On the morning of Tuesday, April 16, I received a second fax requesting that the Chamber provide an additional 12 individuals to meet and greet the inaugural flight for Thompson. For this incoming flight, we were asked to work two shifts--from 10 a.m. until 12:00 noon and 12:00 noon until 2:45 p.m., two Chamber members were present for each shift to distribute memorabilia to those leaving on a return flight.

WANDA F. KELLY

During the afternoon two additional incoming flights were scheduled. The Chamber was asked to provide four people to assist from 12:45 p.m. until 2:30 p.m. and four people from 2:45 p.m. until 5:15 p.m. Again, the area businesses were gracious and assisted the Chamber on short notice. All shifts were filled and all visitors welcomed.

It was my understanding that with the inaugural arrivals of AirTours and Thompson, the arrival times and dates were kept somewhat confidential. The media, political figures and local citizens were not invited to participate, nor to come out and welcome the incoming visitors. The information was kept somewhat "hush-hush", as an actual grand opening event is upcoming in early May. This accounts for the reasons that very few people were actually on hand when the flights touched down.

The Chamber, our community and Sanford businesses have been available to participate and assist with any area that we have been solicited to lend a hand. Therefore, I feel that we should let everyone know what is being done on behalf of Sanford for the incoming visitors.

The Chamber will also be on hand when the actual Visitors Center is up and running. We are currently completing the "leg work" which will be vital to having a first rate visitor and information center at the Orlando-Sanford Airport.

In closing, I wanted to make sure that the media is aware that Sanford is awake, especially the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. We are extremely enthusiastic and we are working behind the scenes to assure that our community and our area businesses get the overdue publicity that they deserve. We are also working together to make sure that we get as many visitors as possible into the North Seminole County area.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Again, we're at wit's end

Boston--It was 1970 and I was a 20-something reporter in a rented car looking for a hill in Bellbrook, Ohio. My editor had sent me out to interview Erma Bombeck, this housewife-humorist, this anti-Heloise, this funny lady of the home pages.

The 40-something Bombeck had given me these directions: You head for Ohio and turn left. You take another left at the traffic light. You go down the road until you come to mailbox 3875 only the 7 is missing. Then go to the top of the hill.

A New Englander looking for a hill in Ohio, I passed the RFD mailbox three times before I figured it out, and turned up the five-degree incline to the rambling white farmhouse. There at the top--was a pond with large ducks and two dogs named Kate and Harry.

These were the first words that Erma Bombeck said to me: "Come in, come in. Harry you stay out there, you've got bad breath. Please don't look at the mess, they're tearing apart the kitchen and there's this brown dust that settles every-day all over the house. You must be hungry but the hamburger is absolutely refusing to defrost. Take your coat off."

It was vintage Erma Bombeck, the same in person and in print. She was the mistress of controlled chaos, the head of the house of absurdity. She was a warm and generous woman whose body gave out on Monday--so much sooner than her spirit.

On that distant March day, over bologna sandwiches and Bugles, over coffee from a percolator that sounded like John Henry's sledgehammer, she talked about mothering and loneliness, about deadline humor and deadly seriousness.

It was the height of the Vietnam War and some reporter had asked how she was going to observe the day of protest. "I told them I had three weeks of laundry I was going to do." Now she worried, "Am I just sitting here writing a funny column while Rome burns?"

It was the beginning, too, of the women's movement and she said, "I had a member of the Women's Liberation Movement write to me and say, 'Lady, you are the problem.'"

Erma Bombeck, the problem? I wonder now if that young feminist thought that after the revolution, washing machines would stop eating socks as a gesture of solidarity? Or husbands would stop watching football?

Erma Fiste, the daughter of a teenage mother, was a reporter in the 1950s when newspaper women were few and far between. Later she would write that as a young mother at home in suburbia with three children, "I hid my dreams in the back of my mind--it was the only safe place in the house. From time to time I would get them out and play with them, not daring to reveal them to anyone else because they were fragile and might get broken."

She began to work again from home in 1964, just one year after Betty Friedan's book was criticized as the ranting of a neurotic and probably frigid woman. Bombeck's column was pegged--or dismissed--as "housewife humor." But it was, in its own way, wonderfully deliciously subversive.

When she started, suburban housewives were still pictured vacuuming in high heels in immaculate homes with perfect children.

A lot of columnists write words to end up in the Congressional Record, or on the President's desk or at the Pulitzer Committee's door. But Erma Bombeck went us all one better. Her words won her the permanent place of honor in American life: the refrigerator door. Now we are again at wit's end.

It was vintage Erma Bombeck, the same in person and in print.

yesterday, but the arguments were mostly divided between black and white lawmakers.

Three separate suggestions were advanced for the restructuring, with all three still including the area of Jacksonville to Orlando, but each different in size and shape than the other.

The Senate is scheduled to consider one of the proposals today. It would slightly reduce the area covered in the district from 14 to 12 counties. It would also reduce the percentage of black population within the district from the present 55 percent to 45.

The Florida House is scheduled to bring the matter up for discussion and/or a decision Wednesday.

If the state should reach a final decision, the suggested restructuring of the district is expected to go back to the federal panel at the district court for final determination.

When the court initially called for the district to be redrawn, it distributed what Brown said was a 175-page document. She attempted to have the decision delayed so that this fall's elections could continue under the present congressional plan.

Now however, the district will not remain as it has been, and Brown has indicated that she intends to seek re-election this fall.

Meanwhile, the legislature is working hard to try finalizing the regular 1996 session, which is to end this Friday.

Unless both houses come to an agreement on the restructuring of the district within the next two days, the legislature may be forced into an overtime session, or for recall to a special session.

In Memoriam

In Loving Memory and Thanksgiving for,

ARAMETHA E. ARMBRISTER

"MENTHA"

July 1, 1909-April 30, 1995

God looked around His garden, and found an empty place
He then looked down upon the earth and saw your tired face
He put His arms around you, and He lit a fire to root
God's garden must be beautiful He only takes the best
So He closed your weary eyelids and whispered, "peace is thine"
It broke our hearts to lose you but you did not go alone,
A part of us went with you the day God took you home.
Though the smile is gone forever and your hands we cannot touch
We will always have sweet memories of the one we loved so much.
The Family, Earl E. Minnet,
Naomi E. Ford, Winifred Martin, Denise R. Andrews

Treating attention deficit disorder

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

In encouraging you to have close supervision, including annual mammograms (which are not usually recommended routinely for women under 50).

Women do not get breast cancer from calcifications. Rather, the pattern of calcium deposits acts as a "marker" for cancer.

Your calcifications appear benign. However, if over the years you exhibit the typical, clustered pattern of malignancy, you'll need a biopsy and/or more extensive surgery. Follow your physician's recommendations.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Breast Cancer and Disorders."

© 1996 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 7-year-old grandson has been diagnosed with attention deficit disorder and has been on Ritalin. Because his heart was beating too fast, he was changed to Zoloft. How will this change affect him? I'm concerned that he is simply too young to be placed on medication and wonder if he will outgrow the condition.

DEAR READER: Attention deficit/hyperactivity disorder, a subject I have previously written about and which affects both adults and children, is marked by a disability in processing information. Although usually of normal IQ, ADHD sufferers have difficulty learning, particularly with respect to the written word. This handicap leads to poor attention span, frustration and — on occasion — behavioral abnormalities, including hyperactivity.

This brief description is by no means complete; it is a "short take" in answer to your question.

ADHD can be helped by stimulant drugs, such as Ritalin and others. The reason for this is unknown, but many experts believe that the medications re-establish a more normal balance of brain chemistry. However, being stimulants, the medicine used to treat ADHD also has potential side effects, such as high blood pressure, rapid pulse and insomnia.

In patients who cannot tolerate stimulants — because of side effects — anti-depressants, such as Zoloft, can be the next line of defense. Evidently, this was the case with your grandson.

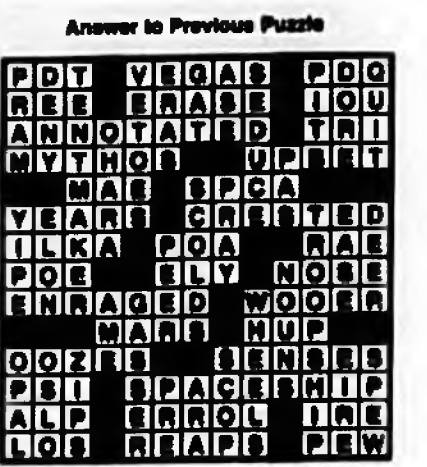

At this point, the boy's doctor will have to monitor him closely by watching his level of academic performance and his behavior. Adjustments in dosage may be necessary, especially if your grandson exhibits some of the side effects of Zoloft. These include dizziness, tremor, nausea, diarrhea, fatigue, sleepiness, visual problems, and others.

He will not outgrow his ADHD, but — with medication and special attention to his learning needs — your grandson should be able to compensate for his disability. In other words, drugs and modification of the academic environment usually permit ADHD children to function relatively normally.

Don't forget that environmental alterations — such as special classes and learning procedures — are as important as medication in helping patients with ADHD. You should notify your son's school authorities about his diagnosis.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 30-year-old female with a family history of cancer. I have a calcification in my left breast and a smaller one in my right. Mammograms are benign, yet my doctor suggests annual mammo-

Advertisements that mislead

By Phillip Alder

Are there laws against advertisements making ridiculous claims? For example, a supermarket chain near my home runs ads claiming prices have been cut. Maybe one or two prices are lower, but far more have been raised. My favorite yogurt used to be two for 99 cents, but a few months ago went up to 69 cents each. That's a 39.4 percent increase, with inflation running at about three percent.

Defenders advertise their holdings with signals. The hard part is deciding whether the signal being contemplated is canny or capricious. In today's deal, East should have been more extravagant. Defending against three no-trump, West led the spade queen: four, three, king. South played a low heart to dummy's king and ran the club 10 to West's king.

Worried that South still had the ace-10 of spades, West returned his second heart. But declarer won with dummy's ace and drove out the diamond ace. The defense had four tricks (two hearts, one diamond and one club), but South had the rest. If only West had persisted with spades, the contract would have gone down.

"I'm sorry it was only the three, but didn't you notice the two was missing?" asked East. "Yes, strangely enough, I did," replied West with a discernible sarcastic tone to his voice. "However, ask yourself this question: What would I have led from the four or five cards to the queen-jack without the nine?" "Your fourth-highest, I suppose," replied East.

"Right. So when I lead the queen, you know I've got the nine. You should drop the 10, clarifying the position."

HOROSCOPE

Wednesday, May 1, 1996

There are strong indications that more good things than you experienced in the past year may occur in the year ahead. However, do not take your new opportunities for granted.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take care not to be influenced by an individual who exercises faulty judgment. If you want to be on the safe side, make all the decisions by yourself. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In regard to a contentious family matter today, let the majority rule. If everyone tries to have things his way, that matter may become complicated.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you do not remain alert today, you might slight an old friend unintentionally by giving too much attention and praise to someone you met recently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A great opportunity might develop unexpectedly today and it will require a quick response. Do not make the mistake of thinking that you have unlimited time to act.

VIROO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) Your extravagant impulses and prudent qualities might be engaged in serious combat today. You will regret it later if your wastefulness emerges victorious.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, it will not be wise to try to take credit for something if someone else worked harder than you did. At least, you should share the applause.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) This morning, some of your ideas might not represent your usual crisp thinking. In the evening, your mind will work logically again.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In your financial affairs today, guard against the inclination to complicate a simple situation. Instead of building a maze, try a simple model.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You should not expect too much from a business contact who has promised you some great deals. This person will not make good on his promises.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Outside obstacles might disrupt your intentions today. Free yourself from these entanglements as soon as possible.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Try not to label or categorize a person you meet for the first time today. When you get to know this person better, you will discover his or her hidden talents.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can achieve a meaningful objective today, but perhaps not as easily as you might think. Prepare to make a strong second effort.
