Top lawmakers grade Chiles' conduct, staffwork, agenda

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE - Top Democratic lawmakers have given new Gov. Lawton Chiles his midterm marks. Although his conduct has been good. legislators said the governor has suffered from an overly ambitious agenda and sloppy staffwork.

However, Chiles spokeswoman Julie Anbender said Monday the new administration has fared well considering its initial challenges.

"It looks like a whirlwind of activity, but believe it or not there is order to the madness."

"It's like a moving ball going in a number of different directions," she said, "and it's sometimes hard to keep track of it if you're not in the game."

House Speaker T.K. Wetherell rated Chiles between a 6 and 7 on a scale of 1-10. Senate President Gwen Margolis and Senate Appropriations Chairman Winston "Bud" Gardner gave the new governor a 7.5.

House Appropriations Chairman Ron Saunders, who called Chiles a "living legend." countered Wetherell's assessment with an 8.5 rating in Monday's Tallahassee Democrat.

Like Chiles, all are Democrats.

Magazine recycling begins for residents of Seminole

SANFORD - Seminole County has begun a test program to recycle magazines, trying to find new ways to reuse the unrecyclable paper.

Because magazines are treated with a clay to give them the "slick" or shiny texture, most paper recyclers cannot use them for making the pulp for new paper. Also, the clay-coated paper actually has less paper fibers per pound than uncoated newsprint, so paper recyclers find the slick paper is less economical to recycle than uncoated paper. County recycling coordinator Sherry Newkirk said United States Gypsum, the same company that recycles telephone books each year from Seminole County, will accept magazines brought to the Sanlando TransAltamonte Springs, located off Douglas Avenue. The station is open daily from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Magazines will not be

The upholatery program, for example, is only one of its kind in the state. No other program offers instruction in both upholstery basics and reupholstery, a certificate and job placement networking assistance to those who complate the required work.

"This is only depleting the variety of vocational classes available to the public," Williams said. "And that is not good."

Williams has taught at SCC for 16 years. Morabito and Reko each have a dozen years invested in the college.

SANFORD - While vocational programs have always been a mainstay at Seminole Community College, recent belttightening measures have caused the school to propose the elimination of three teaching positions in that area.

Only a finalizing vote by the board of trustees during their April 9 meeting is needed to make the cuts official. According to those involved, there is little doubt the board will consent to the cuts.

Joe Williams, who teaches uphoistery at the college and is chairman of the Seminole County school board, is one of the instructors whose program will be eliminated.

Instructors in the welding and culinary arts classes will also be looking for other employment at SANFORD - The Seminole County Expressway Authority will appeal a decision by Seminole Circuit Court Judge Robert MacGregor who ruled last month that reservation of a couple's home for the expressway path caused them economic hardship.

Expressway director Gerald Brinton said he is confident the decision can be overturned.

Christopher and Janet Bullet sued the expressway authority in January, saying the authority's reservation of their home and land west of Upsala Road in 1987 was direct cause of their losing their home to foreclosure in 1990. Because of the reservation, the couple was unable to sell their home and avoid foreclosure, they claimed in the lawsuit.

The Bullets claimed the reservation amounted to creation of a

Anti-crime

There's not much difference between the crime bill President Bush has just reintroduced and the one that he couldn't get Congress to agree to last year, except the new postwar rhetoric in which he has wrapped it.

"We stood by our troops, and today it's time to stand up for America's prosecutors and police," the president proclaimed. He failed to mention that he is opposed to the provision that Democratic Sen. Joseph Biden wants to tack onto the measure that would actually give new financial support to local law enforcement.

Others have suggested that the federal anti-crime effort ought to include a seven-day waiting period for anyone purchasing a handgun and a ban on the domestic manufacture of assault weapons. Both also are opposed by the president.

Our veterans, Bush said, "deserve to come home to an America where it is safe to walk the streets." But the real question is - as it was last year before our veterans even left home - what government can do to that end. Trying to reduce the heavy weaponry n the streets of America would seem to be a useful step. Extending the death penalty to 23 additional federal crimes, as the president is proposing, can't have anywhere near the impact, particularly since almost none of the crimes that make our streets unsafe are federal; it's mostly state laws that are being

The president's bill includes other gestures. too, that appeal to the emotions but promise little positive practical effect. His drastic limit on the time allowed for federal death penalty appeals, for instance, would hardly be noticed on the street or. for that matter, in the courts but it would be disastrous in those rare but inevitable cases in which evidence exonerating an innocent person surfaces more than a year after a state sentence is upheld.

And then there are provisions Bush is proposing that no doubt would put more people behind bars, but at too high a price. Particularly after viewing the infamous videotape from Los Angeles, it's hard to agree with the president that the exclusionary rule, which discourages police abuses by making most illegally obtained evidence unusable in court, should be further weakened. It's harder still to agree that such abuses should be left to the police agencies themselves to control.

By and large, what the Bush bill sets forth is an old approach that most of the states have already learned is ineffective. Tougher rhetoric and longer sentences have done more in the states to increase prison costs than to reduce crime. The preventive programs that seem more promising - from drug treatment to beefed up community policing —" could all use a federal boost in either funds or legislation. That's not, however, what the president is proposing.

Bureaucracy intimidates

Is there too much government? Have its priorities become distorted? Are there too many taxes? Has the sheer size of bureaucracy reduced it's efficiency to an intolerable level?

Each time we pay our gasoline tax, license tax, drive license tax, sales tax, income tax, utility tax, social security tax, eigarette tax, liquor tax, road tax, recreation tax, application tax, impact tax. etc., do we just walk away feeling cheated? Is not a tax by another name still a tax?

Do we feel that tax increases are far out-pacing increases in income?

Do we feel these additional taxes will provide us and our children with a more secure future? Are they increasing our "quality of life"?

Am I alone in feeling intimidated and helpless against an all-powerful bureaucracy?

Watch out for code officers

Gestapo, Red Guard, or Code Enforcement

As we have the flag of freedom for a Job well done in a far away country let's watch what is going on in our own back yard. Our Seminole County Commission may be on the verge of ordaining a citation system ordinance. Under this system various department heads would appoint certain employees under them as code enforcement officers. It would be their duty to find individuals, -companies or organizations on public or private property violating a county code. It is within their duties to write a citation which could result in a court appearance, a fine of up to $500 or a lien placed against their property! Some of these codes include (creation of nuisances), (dispensing of flammable liquids into unapproved containers).

and (occupying a tent without approval). It is claimed this whole new system of bureaucracy will increase revenues. Could it's purpose be to create more revenues?

Germany's Gestapo was not a good thing! Iraq's Red Guard did not work! Nor will this!!

If you said the drunken lout, you've qualified for a highly rewarding career as a politician, college administrator or ethnic activist. Your job will be to legislate, administrate and agitate as if most of your fellow citizens were unreconstructed bigots, ready to don white robes and conical hats at the first approach of twilight.

As a virgin college administrator, for example. your object will be to enforce a New Mc-Carthylsm of politically correct thinking on campus. As a lawmaker, on the other hand, you will be charged with approving "hate crime" statutes that adjust criminal penalties so that assaults against some Americans (those apparently targeted because of their race) are considered more significant than equal assaults

Fear not: You will have plenty of ailies when promoting the myth that ethnic relations have stalled or slipped into reverse. Writing recently in The New York Times, Amanda Foreman, a senior at Sarah Lawrence College, described the present atmosphere in higher education: "Stu-

Hate crime statutes, which have cleared a host of state legislatures and Congress, are further evidence of this mindset. Their advocates insist that America has been enguifed by clones of David Duke, and that violence toward minorities is epidemic.

But is this really the case?

Mere empty talk? Not at all. Americans are also acting on these beliefs. Every year a growing percentage of people who marry choose someone of another race: more minorities rise (or are elected) to positions of prominence; more blacks and Hispanics slip into the vast mainstream of the middle class.

There is even good news in the area of interracial violence. Professor William Wilbanks of Florida International University compared National Crime Survey reports for a three-year period in the 1970s with a similar period in the 1980s and found a drastic decline in white-onblack crime, especially cases in which individuals were set upon by mobs - like the Bensonhurst and Howard Beach affairs in New

President's advise is basic

WASHINGTON - Take it from the elder statesman of economic advisers: most of the advice he and his colleagues provide to presidents and the power structure is based on freshman economics, not cutting-edge

But Herbert Stein says that's neither confession nor failure, just plain fact about the kind of economic advice that is practical and usable at the top of the government.

Stein gives his appraisal in an essay in "The American Enterprise" on what it is that economic advisers do for a living. He's made his living that way for more than 52 years. 13 in government jobs. Stein served on the Council of Economic Advisers during the Nixon administration, and as its chairman from 1972 until 1974.

"It may seem a shocking thing to say, but most of the economics that is usable for advising on public policy is at about the level of the introductory undergraduate course," he says. According to Stein, now a senior fellow at the American Enterprise Institute, a Washingion think-tank, that's because of the limits of what he calls "advisable economics," meaning tested, reliable concepts and propositions. many of them dating back nearly 200 years to Adam Smith.

The most sophisticated economists, he says. use only the most elementary principles when they advise officials about economic policy.

The more arcane, advanced theories are of little use to advisers who have to make their lessons understandable to the politicians they counsel. Nuclear physicists can give official advice without explaining how they came to it. Stein says, "but economists do not have this privilege.

That keeps them closer to the basics.

"Elementary economics may seem to outsiders a trivial contribution to the decisionmaking process, but it is not," Stein writes. "... The fact is that few non-economists are accustomed to it or would arrive at it without the advice of economists."

Still, he lays no claim to wizardry for economic advisers, summing up two lessons of a long career as a Washington economist this

"Economists do not know very much. "Other people, including the politicians who make economic policy, know even less about economics than economists do.

Other people, including presidents, don't always concur. They have tended to complain about the either-or counsel of economic advisers. Harry S. Truman once said that if all the people who advised him on economics were laid end to end, they would form a perfect circle.

According to Stein, that's not all bad. He says his lour at the Council of Economic Advisers convinced him that "the highest product and best test of an adviser was the options paper," offering decision-makers a list of the most promising choices and the best arguments for and against them.

"Advising, of course, is a two-sided process." he says. "... Harry Truman is quoted as saying that he wanted a one-armed economist who couldn't say 'on the one hand and on the other hand.

Politicians

know even

economists

do.

"But a person who thinks that way cannot get good economic advice. because the essence of the matter is uncertainty and the need to consider different possibilities."

Stein served on President Reagan's Economic Policy Advisory Board, and says he got the impression "that there were subjects on which he could not be advised, such as the desirability of raising taxes. ... Not that it didn't happen, repeatedly.

ing the Reagan years. They just didn't talk about it.

To get good advice, an advisee must want it." Stein says.

But it doesn't come in tidy packages.

"One might imagine an economic adviser to be like the mad scientist in his laboratory. cooking up the ideal prescription and giving it all to his principal," Stein writes. "It is really not like that at all."

Instead of economic answers, advisers try to outline the best alternatives a president has. After that, It's up to the boss.

Nest egg awaits House retirees

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - House members who spurn another term - or simply get defeated next year — can leave Congress with a substantial pension increase, thanks to the 29.5 percent pay raise lawmakers gave themselves for 1991.

And House members who began serving before 1980 can walk away with a second benefit: they can convert any leftover campaign cash to personal use.

The pension increase is triggered by the raise that boosted House members' salaries from $96,600 to $125,100 this year.

Pension calculations for House members are based partly on the average of the lawmaker's three highest-salaried years. Thus, the salary increase for 1991 and 1992 provides a big jump in the pension to which they are entitled.

Members of Congress can start collecting a pension at any age with 25 years of service and at age 50 with 20 years of service. At age 62, members can collect with five years of service.

The right to convert unspent campaign money to personal use is available to House members who were in office before Jan. 8, 1980, and applies to money in their coffers as of Nov. 30.

That means 165 senior House members are eligible to convert $41 million in campaign surpluses to their personal use if they leave Congress by Jan. 3, 1993.

Departing senators will receive much smaller pension increases because their salaries rose just 3.5 percent this year to $101,900. And senators never have been permitted to keep leftover campaign money for themselves.

"The (House) pensions are ridiculously gener-ous," said David Keating, executive vice president of the anti-spending, anti-tax National Taxpayers Union.

What's particularly unfair about the pay raise is it turns a pension into a gold mine for incumbents who hang on for two more years." said Keating. He said the House should have changed its pension formula to avoid the windfall.

The pension increases for House members depend on years of service, the average of their three best years' salary and which of two retirement plans they have joined.

A 12-year House member departing after the current two-year Congress would receive $34,641 annually, according to the Office of Personnel Management.

A 12-year House member who retired after the last Congress - before the large pay increase would have received $27,521.

Six-year House veterans who retire in 1992 would get $11,778, compared with $9,357 for those who retired two years earlier.

The National Taxpayers Union said a survey of 283 House members last October found that if those lawmakers had retired after the last Congress, the average lifetime benefit would have totaled $1,098.735.

If those same members serve two more years, the average lifetime benefit increases to $1,523,263.

The survey did not include those who announced their rettrement for Jen. 3, 1991, or members who ran for the Senate.

Senators won't get the pension boon because of their smaller pay raise. The Senate kept its pay lower because senators still are permitted to receive $23,068 a year in fees. The House banned speaking fees and other honoraria. The difference is crucial in pension computation, because only salary - no honoraria income is counted toward retirement pay. The annual pension for a senator ending 12 years of service next year would be $30,153, compared with $27,521 for a senator with the same years of service who left after the last A senator who leaves after six years would get $11,778 next year, compared with $9,357 for those who departed after the last Congress.

Dance revolutionary Martha Graham dies

By PAUL GEITNER Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK - Martha Graham, the dancer and choreographer whose flerce and erotic ballets marked a revolutionary departure from classical forms and defined modern dance, has died at age

Graham, who died at home Monday of congestive heart failure, first danced at age 21 and performed until she was 76, then choreographed ballets long after that in a career that embraced nearly the entire 20th century.

The most recent of the 180 works she choreographed was "Maple Leaf Rag," which had its debut Oct. 2 in New York.

Her early work was compared to Picasso's paintings and Stravinsky's music.

Graham's technique was "on a par with ballet dancing, which took 400 years to develop," said ballet choreographer Agnes de Mille. "You have to go back to people like Michelangelo to get this kind of achievement." Her students and dancers became stars, among them Pearl Lang, Merce Cunningham and Paul Taylor. But none surpassed Graham in the extent of her contribution to the uniquely American art form that broke from 19th century classicism.

Graham, a thin, fragile-looking woman whose arched eyebrows, vividly painted mouth and tightly wound chignon gave her an appearance as dramatic as her stage heroines, created gripping depictions of lust, greed, jealousy, joy and love.

Sex and violence intermingled in her dances. which drew on such divergent sources as Greek mythology, the American frontier and a rebellion against her own puritanical heritage that was years ahead of the '60s sexual revolution.

Graham's virgins, goddesses and madwomen disturbed and mesmerized audiences with raw emotion as they whirled across bare stages in bare feet to relentlessly dissonant scores.
"Every dance is a kind of fever chart, a graph of the heart." Graham once said. "The instrument through which the dance speaks is also the instrument through which life is lived ... the human body.'

Graham was born in Pittsburgh, a direct descendant on her mother's side of Miles Standish. Her father, a doctor, moved the family to Santa Barbara, Calif.

THIS Salon, The Hair Emporium, Inc. Is Definitely Different From The Rest.

Just what Sanford needs: ANOTHER HAIR SALON. So what is it that makes THIS salon different from all the rest, you might ask.

Jone Porter, and daughter, Suzy Melton, purchased The Hair Emporium from former owner, Sharon Adams, who now works at The Hair Emporium, earlier this year. When Sharon owned the shop it was called "The Cut Shop" and was located in its current location in the Stenstrom Center. She ran the shop for two years.

Jone and Suzy have totally remodeled the shop from the ground up. New carpet, tile, paint, wallpaper and furniture. They feel this reflects their committment to making you feel beautiful as well as look beautiful. You have to be comfortable with your surroundings in order to appreciate all the services that are available to you in THIS shop. Having your hair styled effects more than just the exterior you.

The attitude at The Hair Emporium is different, too. Jone, Suzy and Sharon are not in a hurry to see you leave. They take time with you, they pay attention to your needs. As a matter of fact, they offer evening hours, as late as 10:00 PM for scheduled appointments, to work around busy work schedules. Jone, Suzy and Sharon also understand that there are somethings you just can't rush. A new perm takes time to develop, to set the curl just right. And while you're sitting there, dripping with solution, Jone, Suzy and Sharon want you to feel free to snack on cookles or crackers that are always available or relax with a fresh brewed cup of coffee.

Speaking of accomodations, THIS shop has toys and games available for children to play with while mom or dad is getting their hair done. And, The Hair Emporium, will do cuts, styles, coloring and perms on kids and men as well as women.

Not sure what kind of style you want. Well, THIS salon has all the latest style books on hand for you to look over. And THIS salon is run by "local" folks. Jone has lived in Sanford since 1969 (22 years). Suzy grew up in Sanford and attended Seminole High School. Sharon grew up in Lake Mary and also attended Seminole High School. Sharon and Suzy have been stylists for seven years. Both Sharon and Suzy attend hair shows

The Blue Devils ended six years of frustration with a 72-65 victory over Kansas Monday, their first national title in five championship-game appearances and nine trips to the Final Four.

The scoring and rebounding of Christian Lacttner and the passing and court smarts of Bobby Hurley gave Duke (32-7) the victory one year after a 30-point loss to UNLV in the championship game.

It also capped a run of five Final Four appearances since 1986, including the last four years in a row. No school had been to the Final Four as many times as Duke without taking home a title.

The Blue Devils led 42-34 at the half. After Kansas closed within to 44-40, they took off on a 9-3 run, the final points coming on a dunk by Brian Davis off an alley-oop pass by Hurley, who had nine assists and played all 40 minutes as he had in the last three tournament games.

They were able to extend the lead as Kansas repealedly missed shots inside. The lead reached 14 points three times, the last at 65-51 with 6:10 to play, appropriately on a rebound basket by Laettner on a missed 3-pointer by Luettner finished with 18 points, including 12-12 at the free-throw line, and 11 rebounds. Bill McCaffrey had 16 points, Hurley 12 and Grant Hill 10 for Duke.

Mark Randall had 12 points for Kansas (27-8) and Adonts Jordan 11.

Lions lose tourney opener

ORLANDO - Hitting woes continued to haunt the Oviedo Lions Monday afternoon as they dropped a 2-0 decision to Coconut Creek High School in the opening round of the Colonial Jefferson and Ron Kiffle, outfielders, on alvers for the purpose of granting them self-unconditional releases. All WAUKEE BREWERS — Sent Tim Senior right-hander B.J. Calapa suffered his first loss of. McIntosh, catcher, and Brian Fisher and Jeff Kalser, pitchers, to their minor league camp for reessignment. Released Rick Wrons, catcher, and Mike Compbell, pitcher. NEW YORK YARKEES — Placed Pasquel the season despite allowing just four singles.

'We've gone into a hitting slump," said Lion coach Mike Ferrell. "B.J. pitched one of his Perez, pitcher, on 15-day disabled list. Waived Sleve Balberi, infletter, for the purpose of granting him his unconditional best games of the year and the defense did a good job but we just didn't hit." DAKLAND ATHLETICS - Sent Reggie

> The loss drops Oviedo, 13-5, into the consolation bracket of the Colonial Classic. The eight first round losers will play a single-elimination tournament of their own. Today the Lions will play Cathedral Prep of Pennsylvania at 6 p.m. Cathedral dropped a 5-0 decision to host Colonial Monday night.

> "We challenge our guys to play a lot of games." said Ferreil. 'And they will get a chance the rest of this week. If we keep winning we will play tonight. Thursday and Friday. It should be a good experience."

Oviedo's best scoring opportunity came in the fourth inning. Pete Arcomone led off the Inning and was hit by a pitch. Rufus Boykin then laid down a perfect bunt for a single. With Ryan Alkire at the plate, the Lions pulled a fake bunt and double steal to give them runners on second and third with no one

Alkire, who is hitting .500 this season, then hit a chopper to third and was called out on a bang-bang play at first base. On the throw to first Arcomone broke for the plate and was just nipped at the plate on a good throw by the first baseman. Bubba Fore made the third out to end the threat. "When you aren't hitting sometimes you have to force things," added Ferrell. "We went against the book by not having Aikire bunt, but with him hitting so well and Fore on deck we felt pretty confident we could score.

"The fake and double steal worked perfectly. If Ryan hits the ball anywhere but third we would have scored. But they have a very good team. I told the team that the loss hurts right now but the experience will help us in the long run. I think we will start getting some of the breaks later in the season."

Getting the four hits for the Lions were Arcomone (double) and Boykin, Fore and Kevin Twiggs (one single each).

Following a win in game one of the third set by Pereira, serve was broken four straight times: the intensity level had been raised by all four players. At five games apiece, serve went to Sampras.

The question was which Pete Sampras would step to the line this time, the one who slugged his way to the 1990 U.S. Open Championship or the one whose serve had just been broken on three of his last five games? Sampras answered quickly.

Four blistering serves. Four unanswered points. Six to five lead for Pereira-Sampras.

"When I get my serve broken. I'm just a little too predictable," explained Sampras. "At the end of the natich, I started changing Derrick Rostagno.

the spin and the pace a little bit and it seemed to work."

Davis and Pate scratched their way back into the match and into a tie-breaker, but serve again came to Sampras with his side leading 2-1. Following two more first serve rockets, the tle-breaker stood at 4-1, the match all but decided.

Today, the tournament truly gets into full swing at noon, with singles matches featuring Sampras against Brad Pearce, followed by defending champion Brad Gilbert versus Pedro Reboiledo. Night matches pit number one seed Andre Agans against Brian Garrow at seven p.m., followed by sentimental favorite Jimmy Connors against

Jennings graphic in allegations of sexual harassment in House

Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - A portrait of rampant sexual innuendo and harassment by the politically powerful is being drawn by a former House staffer in public testimony before a committee of the Florida Legislature.

"I am here because I was pushed too far." Kathle Jennings told the six-person committee Monday. "I know there are other victims watching to see what happens to me. What if I become a symbol of why victims should keep their mouths shut and take it?

Ms. Jennings, 36, claims she was harassed from 1983 to 1986, while she worked as an analyst for the House Regulatory Reform Committee, then chaired by Rep. Fred Lippman. D. Hollywood. Her claims are against Lippman and Ken Sarvis, the former committee staff director who is now a Tallahassee lobbyist.

committee is to decide whether there is good reason to believe Lippman is guilty of misconduct. for which he could be censured, reprimanded or even removed from office. Its findings, however, will go to Speaker T.K. Wetherell, who will decide if anything further should be done.

Lippman, 55, and his wife Judy were present Monday to hear Ms. Jennings' testimony. Lippman, a 12-year House veteran who was forced from his majority leader post because of the scandal. is scheduled to attorney's investigation that

Sarvis, who is also scheduled to appear before the committee later this week, has previously denied all of Ms. Jennings' harassment claims.

found no wrongdoing.

In 1988, Ms. Jennings signed a secret agreement approved by former Speaker Jorr Mills paying her $47,000 to hush her claims and prevent her from filing a lawsuit. A grand jury in February issued a report highly critical of the secrecy and the gag order. which has since been volded by a circuit judge.

In graphic testimony, Ms. Jennings said Lippman was obsessed with her, repeatedly rubbing her long red hair and on two occasions trying to convince her to have sex with him.

"What he ended up saying was that he wanted us to be together, forever," she said. "He said. 'I'll get rid of my wife - she doesn't mean anything to me."

Ms. Jennings described a 1984 birthday party at which Lippman put a piece of ice down the front of her shirt and attempted to fondle her, then went outside and began pushing other women into a swimming pool. Finally, she said, Lippman himself jumped in fully clothed.

The next morning, Ms. Jennings said she was awakened by "a commotion" and peeked out of her upstairs bedroom to see Lippman and Sarvis standing at the bottom of the stairs.

Lippman charged up the stairs, came into the room and declared, "You're beautiful to me. I've always loved you and you know that," Ms. Jennings said.

Chris Holland Giblin, the committee's staff director before Sarvis, confirmed the stairs incident in her testimony and said the party at her home was one of the reasons she decided to quit working for the House.

"I felt very uncomfortable when Rep. Lippman ran up and down the stairs. If this type of behavior was going to continue, there was really nothing I as a staff director could do to stop it." Mrs. Giblin testified.

Mrs. Giblin said Ms. Jennings had complained to her up to 20 times that she had been sexually harassed by Lippman and Sarvis, but she saw no evidence of it until the party.

Ms. Jennings also said Lippman forced her to manage a Tallahassee town house he owned, with some work done on state time.

Much of Ms. Jennings' testimony concerned Sarvis, whom she said continually made sexual lokes

Diet can elevate the level of uric acid husband and I were both recently diagnosed as having high uric acid levels. Neither of us is on medication, and we aren't sure what to do to bring our levels into line.

DEAR READER: Uric acid is a normal byproduct of protein metabolism. We all have a certain amount of it in our bloodstreams (3.5-7.0 milligrams per deciliter).

When the blood level of uric acid rises, however, the material may spill over into tissues. notably joint fluid. At such times, the uric acid may crystallize in joints; these tiny, sharp icicles cause swelling. redness and pain - a condition called gout. Patients with gout must take medicine (allopurinol) to reduce the production of uric acid, or drugs (colbenemid) to increase its excretion into urine.

Healthy people without gout often have blood tests showing mild/moderate elevations of uric acid. This requires no treatment. other than avoidance of foods (such as organ meats) that raise blood uric-acid levels.

Whether or not you and your husband should be treated for hyperuricemia (elevated uric acid) is a decision best left to your doctor.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 14-year-old nephew is very small for his age and has been taking one shot a day of Protropin. As a result, he's grown about 3 inches this past year. I've heard negative reports about this drug and would like your input.

DEAR READER: Protropin is synthetic growth hormone. It is used to treat growth failure only in children who have inadequate natural growth hormone. It is not recommended for normal children of short stature.

Protropin has several serious side effects. About 30 percent of all treated patients develop antibodies to the hormone, mean

DEAR DR. GOTT: My ing that the patients manufacture antidotes to Protropin. This can lead to failure of the therapy. In addition, the hormone is associated with diabetes, underactive thyroid and allergic reactions.

WINATERIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Some years ago, quadraphonic sound looked as if it might supersede simple stereo. There were four speakers, you sat in the middle, and the sound surrounded you.

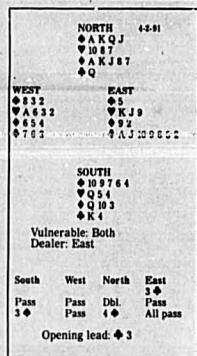

There is an analogous defensive card-play technique in bridge. An example is in today's North has an automatic takeout double when East's opening pre-empt is passe around to him. But should South bid three spades or four? The guideline is in knowing the doubler assumes his partner holds six or seven high-card points. Partner should make a jump response only with noticeably more than that. South therefore bids only three spades. North bids on to game. because that's where he wants to be opposite six points. True. South might have a Yarborough. but the percentages suggest he

West led the club three, low from three low cards as he hadn't supported his partner. East won with the ace and saw that it was time to switch to hearts. But to which heart?

The only card guaranteed to defeat the contract is the jack of hearts. If South covers with the queen. West wins with the ace and returns a heart. East collecting two tricks with the K-9 over dummy's 10-8. II South ducks, East wins the trick with the heart jack, and the ace and king will be cashed.

The key to this surrounding play is that East has two cards (here the J-9) surrounding or bracketing the highest card in the hand on his right (here dummy's 10), and he has another, higher, non-touching honor (here the king). When these conditions prevail, the surrounding play brings home the bacon.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY April 3, 1991

Conditions having an influence on your career may be subject to sudden changes in the year ahead. These alterations could produce unique opportunities of a fleeting nature.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not promise to do things under duress or for the sake of expediency today. If you do, it's likely you'll perform in an irresponsible manner and garner poor results. Aries, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Aries' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your hunches could have a strong influence over your behavior today. Unfortunately, they might not be reliable, so think twice before yielding to these inclinations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If your views aren't readily accepted today, don't try to impose them on your associates. especially if you're involved in a collective venture that's delicately balanced.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something in which you're presently involved needs the support of others in order to succeed. But, if you presume to have their endeavor might fail. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Some of your ideas could be rather clever today, but they may be impossible to implement. Your co-workers won't be too happy if you mess things up by backing without verification, the experimenting. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try not to let your curiosity run away with you today and cause you to poke your nose into a matter that a friend is trying to keep confidential. Your probes won't be welcomed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The desire to do your own thing refusing to go along with the advice of experienced others and leaping into the unknown could create problems for you today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's not like you to lack a game plan before taking on an assignment, but this is a possibility today. Your efforts could TERPRISE ASSN.

prove ineffective, owing to an absence of method.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Any small financial surplus you've accumulated lately might not be intact at the close of the day: your extravagant whims may override your prudent concerns and blow the whole

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have assigned a critical task to another, it's very important that you double-check final results today. This individual may claim that something is completed when, in fact, it's not. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

It's best not to prematurely discuss your intentions with others today; you may have to contend with developments that will prevent you from doing what you had initially intended.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Keep your enthusiasm within reasonable bounds at this time. especially if you are suddenly intrigued by a new interest. There's a chance that its appeal may wane at an equally rapid rate.
