Cost To Build New Lake Mary School In Doubt

By GARRY GRAU
Herald Staff Writer

Just how much it will actually cost to build and finish the new Lake Mary High School remained anybody's guess today, but it will exceed the $11,250,000 base bid recently accepted by the school board.

The speculation over actual total costs for the project arose Wednesday at the school board meeting when Supt. William Layer informed the board there were 10 to 12 items not included in the original specifications on which the $11.2 million bid was issued.

However, Layer said today there is no way to determine just how much more will be tacked onto the base contract but until the school administration confers with the architect and contractor.

There also is a possibility the entire contract may have to be relet to include the items left off the original specifications that is unlikely. He said, there is a stronger possibility the school district will be able to tack onto the base holder's contract the additional work to be done if all can agree on an acceptable cost.

Layer said it was Hugh Carlson, director of auxiliary services for the school district, who brought the left-out items to his attention. The items include certain types of carpentry or casework, such as a built-in check-out counter in the library, Layer said.

As it stands today, construction costs for the lease bid are at $11.2 million; $1 million more for furnishing the school; $300,000 more for sewer and water hook-up, plus whatever it will take to pay for the 10-12 items left out of the original specifications.

The board is expected to get a report on how much that additional work will cost at its next meeting Wednesday.

A spokesman for the architectural firm, Carl Gutmann, said today those additional costs for the deleted casework items could be $300,000 to $400,000.

At the previous board meeting Roger P. Kennedy, 406 Live Oak Blvd., Casselberry was awarded the base bid contract but the contract cannot be signed till the unspecified items are looked over, Layer said.

Layer fully blamed the deletion of items on the architectural firm, Gutmann, Dragash Associates—Architects Planners, Inc., of Sanford. Layer said he did not know the 10-12 items were missing from the bidding package prepared by the architects and "did not agree" with deleting them "under any circumstances, but it happened anyway."

Robert Feather, chairman of the board, asked why the architects failed to include all items. Layer responded firm spokesmen said "They didn't have time to draw specifications for interior work."

Gutmann said he saw no reason for the confusion since the firm's contract with the school board did not include furnishings and equipment.

"We broke all kinds of records to get the plans done," Gutmann said. The plans were completed in seven months rather than a year. Gutmann stated was usual for an $11 million project.

Gutmann gave two reasons why case work or fixed equipment such as assistance laboratory tables, was deleted.

The firm needed time to coordinate with the school staff about the specific equipment needed and the district would save money through sub-contracting such work.

William Kroll, board member, questioned the excuse and asked how much time did the firm have. Layer replied the architects worked on drawing up the final plans from July to Aug. 15.

Allan Keith, vice chairman of the board, proposed the school relet the high school. Layer said he would have a total list of missed items from the architects by the next board meeting on Oct. 10 and then a decision about reletting could be made. Keith pressed Layer saying "We were put in a position where we did not know what we were going to put up for."

'Coil' Test At Sanford Plant?

By GEOFFREY POUNDS
Herald Staff Writer

Florida Power and Light Co. officials have selected the Sanford generating plant as the test site for an experimental coal-oil mixture designed to reduce the company's dependence on high-priced fuel oil.

The experimental fuel, nicknamed "coil," is expected to be tested here sometime next year, but Scott Burns, Sanford FPL manager, said he has not been told when the experiment will begin.

Burns said the Sanford plant was likely chosen due to its access to coal from nearby railroad lines. Coal has never been burned at the Sanford plant and Burns said the burning will be strictly a "test thing."

Company officials in Miami said the testing of coil will be done for about four months. But before they can begin, they must be given approval by the Department of Environmental Regulation. The emissions from the plant when it is used are expected to exceed those when straight fuel oil is used, but FPL spokesmen say they feel the problem can be overcome.

"We know it can be done without exceeding the ambient air conditions. We are doing some modeling right now to see what the impact will be," said Buzz Barrow, FPL environmental affairs official.

According to Barrow, if the experiment with coil at the Sanford plant is successful, it could have widespread significance to the utility industry. He said plants which have been burning 100 percent fuel oil could cut that consumption in half.

"This could be a very viable solution. It is something the Department of Energy asked us to experiment with. The Sanford experiment will be a pioneer project. There have been successful tests with the coal-oil mixture in coal-fired plants, but this will be the first time the mixture has been tried in oil-fired plants," Barrow said.

Barrow said if the Sanford experiment proves successful and oil usage becomes widespread it is likely coil would soon be mixed in refinery plants. Large-scale production of the fuel, he said, could ultimately reduce the price of energy.

President Carter's energy plan calls for the reduction by 50 percent in the amount of oil used by utilities by 1980. The conversion to coal from oil could be done as a means to meet that goal, but such conversion would be difficult and expensive, according to energy officials. FPL estimates it would have to pay as much as $8 billion to complete the conversions.

The company believes coil could be used without having to make excessive plant modifications.

In addition to the Sanford experiment, the Department of Energy has announced a similar test of oil will be conducted at a utility plant in New England. However, FPL claims the Sanford experiment will be "the largest of its kind ever attempted."

Although no timetable for the experiment has been set thus far, Barrow said Feb. 1 would be the earliest possible starting date.

Pope Declares No Women Priests

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — U.S. trip mentioned the volatile issue of women priests.

Before flying to the nation's heartland at the midpoint of his ambitious seven-day, six-city journey for peace, the pope Wednesday warned more than 1 million worshippers against a "lastly regarding the Christian view of sexuality" and the "moral anarchy" of extramarital relations.

And today, at a mass for priests and seminarians at the Civic Center, he issued a vigorous papal defense of the requirement for priestly celibacy and said God himself had decreed only men should be chosen for the priesthood.

Liberal theologians both inside and outside the church have criticized the Vatican for failing to reform traditional church dogma in the face of the changing moral climate of the 20th century.

John Paul met head-on the problem of the ordination of women, a subject that has caused heated debate and touched off protests in cities on the papal tour.

"The fact that there is a personal individual call to the priesthood given by the Lord to the men he himself had decided on is in accord with the prophetic tradition," he said.

"It should help us, too, to understand that the church's traditional decision to call men to the priesthood, and not to call women, is not a statement about human rights, nor an exclusion of women from holiness and mission in the church."

National TV Show May Film Golden Age Olympics

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

The prospect of the historic opposition of the Roman Catholic church to women priests, declaring it is not a question of human rights but of God's will. Continuing his efforts to heal the rift in the church in America that has seen fewer priests ordained and mass attendance drop sharply, John Paul for the first time on his U.S. trip mentioned the volatile issue of women priests.

Executive Manager Jack Horner told the Golden Age Olympics executive committee Wednesday, "and it looks like they'll be here — thanks to Art Grindle! Grindle was featured on 'Real People' last season as one of the country's outstanding TV car salesmen and he contacted representatives of the show about the Olympics.

The NBC show seen locally on Channel 2 on Wednesday nights features ordinary people doing the most extraordinary things. This year's honorary hostess will be marathon swimmer Stella Taylor. Youthful by GAO standards (she's still in her 40s) she swam the Nile River, the English Channel twice and set a world's record last year in swimming from Bimini to Florida a distance of 160 miles in 51 hours.

Horner said that Stella has agreed to swim Lake Monroe from the Volusia side to the Sanford Marina, a distance of a 3-mile 100 yards.

A check was presented by GAO chairman Jim Jernigan by Dan Moss, manager of the Zayre Department Store in Sanford, for $600 from Zayre to cover the expenses of bringing Ms. Taylor to Sanford for the week.

Miss Florida will also be present for the opening ceremony to be held at 9:15 a.m. Monday, Nov. 5 at the Sanford Civic Center. The lighting of the Olympic torch will be by last year's champions, Miss Florida's appearance will be sponsored by McDonald's.

One of the highlights of this year's Golden Age Olympic week will be Friday night during the halftime of the Seminole-Lyman football game at the Seminole High School Stadium. The SHS Band will feature an Olympic theme and the 55-yard dash event of the GAO will be run and medals presented to the winners.

The rest of the track and field events, which are sponsored by the Sanford Kiwanis Club, will take place Saturday beginning at 9 a.m. at the stadium.

In addition to the competitive events to be held during the daytime hours, this year's Jubilee events will be presented at night to entertain and occupy the participants.

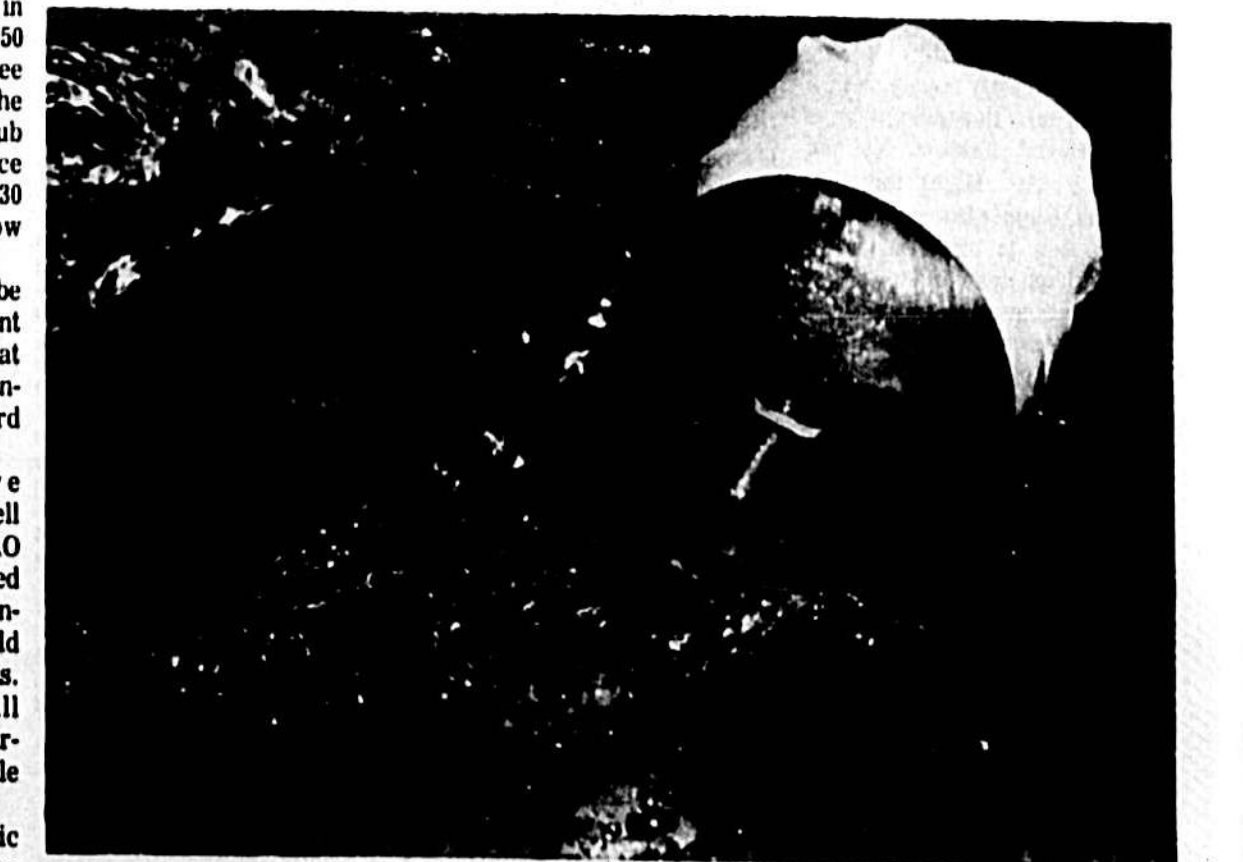

On Monday, Nov. 5, a Uni-Sex Jubilee Beauty Contest will be held at 7 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center under the sponsorship of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber Executive Secretary Virginia Longwell reports 60 entries for the GAO have already been received mostly from out of town, including one from a 77-year-old swimmer in the Virgin Islands.

Insurance coverage will again be available to all participants to cover them while they are competing.

A new addition to the aquatic sports, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will be a triathlon.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — For 23 years of age, state mental hospitals were the only homes Gloria Bohannon had — "We have never felt she was psychotic. It's one of those cases that everyone's kind of got aggravated with and shoved her off to a state hospital."

In a $60 million damage suit that claims she was wrongfully confined simply because she suffers from spinal bifida, a debilitating physical handicap, she alleges she endured endless "atrocities" while institutionalized from 1955 to 1978.

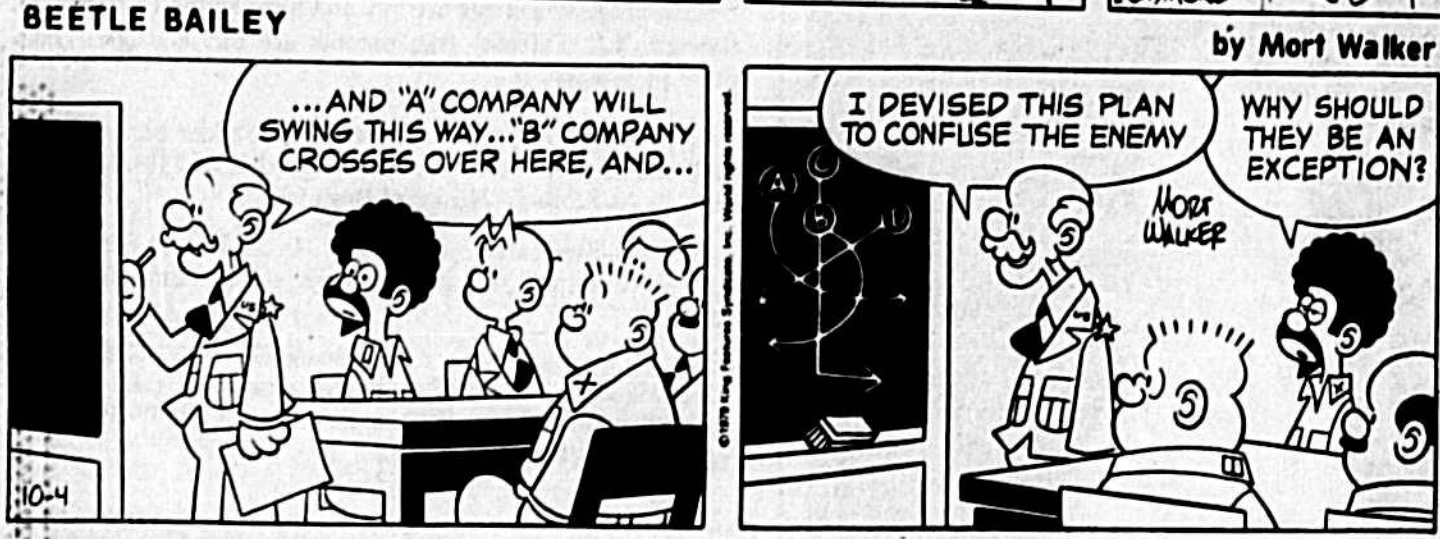

No hearing date has been set, but Himelewski said the suit may not be heard for 1 to 1 1/2 years because of a backlog of cases. Swallowed Air And Foods Produce Gas

DEAR DR. LAMB—Perhaps you can help me with what I consider a serious problem. It may not be serious compared with some others but it is to me. I produce more natural gas than the local gas company and I'm getting better at it all the time.

I just turned 50 and am in perfect shape physically. I'm active and live a busy life. I really don't know what to do about this problem. It's not the kind of subject that's discussed at cocktail parties but after three hours at the theater, I'm ready to pop.

DEAR READER—It's a common one. About 10 percent of the general population has difficulties because of trapped gas in the digestive system. There are two major sources of gas. In many people, it's swallowed air. Some patients object when they're told that they swallow air but a careful analysis has been done by withdrawing the gas and chemically analyzing it. When the gas is mostly nitrogen and oxygen, it is air. The other major source of gas is from fermentation from undigested foods.

To give you a more complete understanding of the gas problem, I am sending you The Health Letter number 68, Controlling Gaseousness. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1051, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101.

Smattering Of Knowledge Dangerous

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for urging readers to take a course in cardiac-pulmonary resuscitation, review the written instructions periodically, and later take refresher courses in order to know exactly what to do for victims of cardiac arrest. Perhaps neither you nor your readers are aware of what can happen when well-meaning people don't know what they are doing. A smattering of knowledge is worse than none. CPR instructions half-forgotten put me in the plight I'm in today at age 60.

Last year my husband, 65, had a heart attack on the golf course. His buddy, who had a little CPR information, patted him into breathing again. My husband lived, but he has no memory, is unable to work at all, and is totally disabled in just about every way. You see, oxygen in those few seconds after the heart stops beating, severe brain damage can occur. The heart can be made to resume beating, but the brain damage is permanent. So I was left with $6,000 worth of hospital bills (no Blue Cross, either) — and had to go back to work to take care of our family. My advice is — if you aren't sure of what you're doing, in case of a heart attack, do nothing. I'm sure my husband isn't thrilled to be just "breathing" for the rest of his days. He talks constantly but makes no sense at all. Sign me — HALF A WIDOW AND UNGRATEFUL.

DEAR WIDOW: Thank you for writing. I learned something today, and so did my readers: A little learning is a dangerous thing! DEAR ABBY: Your column about the 14-year-old boy who thought he had VD and didn't know where to go for help might have shocked some of your readers, but it came as no surprise to those of us who work in public health. It is common. It may be helpful to youngsters, parents and educators alike to know that here in Virginia, VD treatment is FREE at Public Health Department clinics. There are no age limits for patients. Treatment is confidential.

Surprise On Unemployment - It Went Down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate fell to 5.8 percent of the workforce during September, the government reported today, a development that may ease immediate pressure on the administration to shore up the sluggish economy.

The decline from the August level of 6 percent cut the unemployment rate for the rest of the year as the recession, which many economists believe started in the second quarter, began to take hold.

The fresh statistics from the Labor Department also could be viewed as cheering news to President Carter, who has been fighting a losing battle against inflation and has been severely criticized by political opponents and the public over his handling of the economy.

The unemployment rate had hovered in the 5.7 percent for a year until August, when it suddenly jumped to 6 percent. The administration predicted that the rate would climb to 6.6 percent by December.

But the September jobless figures showed that the number of persons with jobs advanced by 610,000 last month to 97.5 million after falling by 310,000 in August.

Virtually all of the over-the-month reduction in the unemployment rate took place among adult women, particularly married women, the Labor Department said.

The unemployment rate for part-time workers dropped slightly while all other categories showed little or no change from August. Here is a category-by-category breakdown of the unemployment picture over the past three months:

—All workers: 5.8 percent in September, 6 percent in August, 5.7 percent in July.

—Adult men: 4.2 percent in September and August, 4.1 percent in July.

—Adult women: 5.5 percent in September, 5.9 percent in August, 5.5 percent in July.

—Teen-agers: 16.4 percent in September, 16.5 percent in August, 15.3 percent in July.

—Whites: 5.1 percent in September, 5.3 percent in August, 4.9 percent in July.

—Blacks and other minorities: 10.6 percent in September, 11 percent in August and 10.8 percent in July.

—Fulltime workers: 5.4 percent in September and August, 5.3 percent in July. The unemployment decline may help to still calls from Capitol Hill for an anti-recession tax cut.

The White House hoped for no new glum news. It received enough of a jolt Thursday when the Labor Department reported wholesale prices had jumped by 1.4 percent last month for the biggest advance in almost five years.

Gasoline and home heating oil costs surged upward again, and food prices, particularly beef, rose at the fastest rate since last winter.

The advance represented 18.2 percent inflation at an annual rate. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, labeled it appalling, and said the nation would be lucky if inflation is held to less than 12 percent this year.

But the White House expressed hope there will be some price moderation by December.

Press secretary Jody Powell said Carter will continue to hold firm on the anti-inflation policy of holding down federal spending.

The White House predicted in July unemployment would climb to 6.6 percent by the end of the year. It had hovered in the 5.7 percent range during the previous 12 months, allowing the administration to concentrate its attention on inflation without worrying about unemployment.

However, the economy turned sour during the second quarter to raise new concerns over loss of jobs.

The Townsend-Greenspan jobless forecast said the rate will probably level off for another few months and then soar to above 7 percent by spring.

Quick Action Led To Bank Robber's Fall

The Sanford policeman who within 60 seconds of a bank robbery at Atlantic National Bank of Seminole on First Street Thursday arrested a suspect today praised his chief, Ben Butler, for having initiated a special training program to deal with such circumstances.

Jack Davis, an officer for three years, said it was his first bank robbery and he "just happened to be the first officer who got there."

Davis was on routine motorcycle patrol on North Park Avenue near the Seminole County Courthouse when he heard the alarm at 12:39 p.m.

The story picks up with what had happened at the bank just before Davis heard the alarm.

A man had walked into the bank and joined in a line of customers heading toward tellers. As the man approached one of the women tellers, he placed his hand in a brown paper bag and told her: "This is a stickup."

The man, walking as casually as he could, and shortly afterwards Officer Davis came on the scene.

McLain, following a bank behind him and shortly away from the bank, Davis recognized the suspect as matching the broadcasted description and treated him.

The suspect carried a brown bag under his right arm, officer Davis said.

Davis did not know what was in the bag, he said. The suspect was reported armed. Using his training, Davis observed the suspect at a distance, checking for positive identification and a weapon. When he was sure the suspect matched the description he got off his motorcycle, drew his revolver, and approached the suspect, he said. Davis shouted "Halt" and ordered the suspect to put his hands over his head.

The suspect surrendered without an incident, Davis asserted.

All the money reported stolen, about $500, was recovered from a pocket in the suspect's pants, police said. No weapon was found.

Police arrested David King, 35, 1821 Summerlin Ave. He was charged with armed robbery and was being held in lieu of $10,000 in the Seminole County security head, Dary McLain, said.

Hodges said there were about 15 customers in the bank when the robbery occurred. "I certainly don't remember any of the quick actions by Mr. McLain and the other bank employees. Things could have been a lot worse, but everyone reacted perfectly, including the Sanford police."

The teller, police said, gave the man about $500 and he "walked quietly, but hurriedly out of the bank at the First Street exit," according to police.

Soon after the man exited, the teller triggered an alarm, and a head teller notified the bank's security head, Dary McLain, who quickly took command of the situation, according to bank president Howard Hodges.

Hodges said McLain immediately took off his tie and coat and exited the bank on the Park Avenue side, then was met by another bank employee who pointed in the direction of the bank suspect who was walking away. McLain began to follow

Those arrested were: Kobbie Spivey, 18 of 1200 W. 22nd St., Sanford, charged with possessing a controlled substance; Susan Lynn Brooks, 18, of Orlando, charged with possessing a controlled substance; Donna Marie Galinda, 18, of 421 Boxwood Circle, Winter Springs, charged with possessing a controlled substance; Steve Neighbor, 19, of 2831 Grove St., Sanford, charged with possessing a controlled substance and resisting arrest with violence; Bonny Jean Wernette, 19, of Orlando, charged with possessing a controlled substance; Jerry Lynn Jones, 26, of Orlando, charged with possessing a controlled substance; and Daniel Leon Rente, 18, of 415 Navarre Way, Altamonte Springs, charged with interfering with a police officer and battery to a police officer.

The Joint In The Woods - Site of ten arrests

Ten Arrested In Night Raid At The Joint In The Woods Disco

Seminole County Sheriff's deputies accompanied by state beverage agents swept through the parking lot and building at the Joint in the Woods discotheque off Highway 17-92 north of Longwood Thursday night, arresting 10 persons on charges ranging from marijuana possession to resisting arrest with violence.

"The action was a response to a continuing problem that had to be resolved," sheriff's department spokesman John Spolaki said.

Spolaki said the raid at Joint in the Woods came in response to a two-month pattern of complaints received from persons in the area. He said complaints of marijuana use, traffic accidents and unruly conduct in the parking lot of the establishment had been reported. The raid was not a drug raid per se, Spolaki said.

The manager of the discotheque, Craig Demange, said the action of the deputies amounted to "harassment." He said he has asked for a meeting with Sheriff John Polk to gain an explanation of the events of Thursday night.

Deputies and two state agents in unmarked cars were dispatched to the discotheque at about 9 p.m. and after an hour of monitoring activities in the parking lot, the deputies began making arrests, reports said.

The deputies then accompanied the state agents into the building and began checking customers' identifications to make sure they were of legal age. While in the course of their checks, some customers attempted to resist, Spolaki said.

Demange said there was no call for the I.D. checks since he has worked closely with police in the past. He said there were no minors found to have been served liquor as a result of the raid. He said the activities outside of his establishment were "out of his control."

Deputies reported that the eight persons arrested for marijuana possession were handing the controlled substance openly when they were arrested.

Sgt. Robert Bishop of the Bureau of Alcoholics Beverages said the reports of his agents were still under review and could not comment whether or not action would be taken against the discontinue.

Councilman Harry Terry said before a rate increase could be considered, documentation showing increased costs should be submitted. Councilman Cliff Nelson said it would be "patently ridiculous" for the city to consider approving higher rates without financial information from the companies.

Councilman Pat Southard said she wasn't sure the city should be involved in rate regulation, pointing out the Superior Sanitation representative said his firm is charging a better price to Lake Mary customers than it is charged in Orange County where the company operates in certain areas under an exclusive franchise.

The Lake Mary franchise is non-exclusive.

Mrs. Southard also reiterated the Superior Sanitation representative's statements that free enterprise and the competition of the marketplace was keeping rates down.

In other business, the council instructed Kubles to negotiate with the Sanford accounting firm of Fitzpatrick and Hartsock for the firm to audit not only general fund financial records, but also utility department accounts.

It was noted that Fitzpatrick and Hartsock have audited the general fund accounts since the city was incorporated six years ago.

Owners Must Notify Agent For Fire Rate

Lake Mary property owners should contact their insurance agents to make sure they receive the savings in fire insurance premiums available under the city's new rating classification.

City Councilman Harry Terry gave this advice at a council meeting Thursday night.

The state's Insurance Service Organization (ISO) which sets fire insurance rating classifications for municipalities has reduced Lake Mary's rating from AAA to A.

Terry told colleagues the resulting savings in the fire insurance premiums for his home is enough to pay all his city taxes this year with money to spare.

"I'm all for that," he said. Mayor Walter Forsman said city property owners will realize a 20 per cent savings if their homes are block and 48 percent if their homes are of wood construction. The city received the improved rating because of improvements and expansion of the city water system and because the city has a dispatching service.

In other business the council granted permission to former councilman DeLorena Lamb to sponsor a Halloween dance for the community's teenagers in cooperation with other citizens and fire department personnel.

The city approved the closing of First Street between Lake Mary and Wilbur from 7 to 9 p.m. for the party on Halloween.

Also, the council agreed to submit recommendations to Mayor Forsman to fill vacancies on both the planning and zoning commission and the board of adjustment.

"The man talks our language," said corn farmer Mike Connor. "He knows how to talk to simple folks like us."

During the four and a half hours he spent in central Iowa, the pontiff told farmers the church "highly values your work." He urged them to conserve the soil and never forget the diversity and preservation of rural America, he said.

"You are stewards of the most important resources God has given to the world," he said. "Therefore, conserve the land well so that your children's children and generations after them will inherit even richer land than was entrusted to you."

Pope In America's Heartland: 'The Man Talks Our Language'

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Pope John Paul II made himself at home in the heartland of America.

He talked about the land and made a duty to conserve it to 38 families in their 11-year-old country church and to a third of a million Midwesterners at an outdoor mass at a 600-acre agricultural museum.

He left behind tears, a feeling of having experienced history in the making, and an agreement on the reason for his the diversity and preservation of rural America, he said.

The pope's words were well received, even if the thrust of his remarks was not strong as his previous advocacy of rural land reform.

"The joy of this pope is just so refreshing," said Valerie Lombardo of Davenport, Iowa, one of more than 300,000 pilgrims who celebrated the papal mass at Living History Farms. "He is so happy in being a priest and being a pope and we don't see that in a lot of the priests and nuns we see."

The pope of the papal visit, which attracted the largest public gathering in the state's history, will be felt for months to come.
