BRIEFS

Traffic slowed on I-4

DELTONA — Westbound traffic on Interstate 4 will be slowed tonight in the vicinity of Saxon Boulevard while crews begin lifting beams in place for the new interchange. Between 9 p.m. and 7 o'clock the next morning, traffic will be periodically slowed to about 20 mph at State Road 472, Exit 54, through the construction site. The slowdown will grant crews 10 to 15 minutes to place beams without completely stopping traffic, said Steve Homan, spokesman for Florida Department of Transportation District 5.

The "rolling barricades" will resume July 11 during the same hours first in the westbound lanes, then the eastbound lanes, beginning at the Deltona Exit 53. Beam placement and the slowdowns will be completed July 12. Construction of the interchange will be completed this October, Homan said.

SANFORD — Playwright, musician and actor John Barracuda, is presently teaching theatre arts, at the Sanford Housing Authority during its summer program.

The announcement was made by the authority's executive director, Phyllis Richardson.

Home at last

OVIEDO — One of approximately 100 Central Florida residents will claim their home at 1920 Turnberry Rd., in Clubhouse Estates at Twin Rivers in Oviedo, on Saturday morning at 10:30.

The new $135,000 home will be given away as part of a promotional effort, which was started on April 18, by Gooding's Supermarkets and M/I Homes. The 100 names chosen from the many entrants were announced by Magic 107.7, an Orlando radio station which was assisting in the promotion.

Saturday, keys will be brought to the location by an armored car and the winners will select a key.

The one who's key opens the door to the house will be able to keep the four-bedroom two-bath home with a covered lanai and two-car garage. The house has over 2,100 square feet and is landscaped.

Deputy chief tapped

First black named 2nd in command of Sanford cops

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Former Commander Joe Dillard has become the first black to rise in the ranks to second in command of the Sanford Police Department.

Chief Ralph Russell pinned the Deputy Chief stars to Dillard's lapel during a brief ceremony at police headquarters this morning.

Dillard, 50, was selected from among five officers holding the rank of commander, who were considered for the promotion.

Sanford City Commissioner Bob Thomas said he is delighted with the decision to upgrade Dillard. "It shows the city is growing and the leaders are beginning to relinquish that good-ole-boy attitude."

Thomas added, "I'm very pleased to see Afro-American leadership come on the scene. It's not that I have any complaints against any of the others who may have been under consideration, but I think this is a good move in obtaining quality people."

Dillard has been a Sanford resident since 1970 following his discharge from the Navy, with which he had served for eight years, part of the time in Sanford.

He has been with the Sanford police continuously for the past 16 years, but has been on the force for almost 22 years, having left briefly for a job with the state beverage department.

"I see this as a definite challenge," Dillard said. "This shows that we have a police chief who is

Will your city taxes go up?

Lake Mary probably won't change millage

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The preliminary budget has been completed for Lake Mary. Workshops and public hearings have been set.

During the July 15 city commission meeting, City Manager John Litton will present the initial proposed budget and deliver his annual budget message.

"I believe it's a progressive budget," Litton said this morning, "yet very conservative. We have to structure it to deal with the continuing growth in our city."

Litton is suggesting the tentative millage rate remain where it has been during the 1992-93 fiscal year, 3.7648. "This was lowered last year," he said, "after five years at the higher level of 3.8991 mills."

Longwood administrator: budget is fair

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

LONGWOOD — City commissioners will begin reviewing the proposed 1993/94 Longwood budget tonight tackling the requests from the police and fire departments.

City Administrator James

McFellin describes the nearly $8.9 million Longwood budget as a fair one. If approved as presented, McFellin said taxpayers would pay the same $5.12 per $1,000 assessed value property tax rate they paid this year.

"I think it's a fair budget. It's bare bones. It's a very fair budget," McFellin said. "It's fair to the employees. It's fair to the commission. It's fair to the residents."

OVIEDO — From asparagus to zinnias, a Seminole County Master Gardener helped some elementary school children learn the ABCs of gardening and won a national award in the process.

Irwin Bowsher received one of only 100 awards presented nationwide by the American the Beautiful Fund. Nearly 20,000 projects were considered for recognition. The Washington D.C.-based organization cited Bowsher for achievement and creativity in developing the Lawton Elementary School Dividend Program on organic gardening. Dividend Karen Johnson asked Bowsher to help with the school program after visiting his Oviedo home and seeing his gardening handiwork.

FPL budget cuts include layoffs

From Staff and Wire Reports

MIAMI — Fresh competition from independent power producers has prompted Florida Power & Light Co. to announce a $100 million cost-cutting plan, including further layoffs.

FPL department heads have been instructed to cut the funds from their undisclosed 1994 budget proposals just two years after a major restructuring eliminated 2,300 employees from the state's largest utility.

"It's leading to a lot of apprehension throughout the system," said John Schantzen, assistant business manager for the union that represents about 4,700 of FPL's 14,000 workers.

Spokesman Dale Thomas said FPL executives won't know how many employees will be laid off until late August. The first reductions will occur in January, Thomas said.

The company employs 55 in Seminole County and 117 at the Sanford power plant in DeBary. The company serves 27,000 customers in Seminole County and 135,000 in Volusia County.

FPL Chairman James Broadhead warned Tuesday in a letter to the company's 14,000 employees, "It is unlikely that adequate savings can be realized without significant reductions in personnel."

FPL took a $90 million restructuring charge in 1991 for a major overhaul. The new cuts will

Sailor makes connection with TWA

HOMESTEAD — A sailor attempting an Atlantic crossing in a bathtub-sized boat startled a TWA flight engineer with an unexpected radio transmission.

Hugo Vihlen has been afflicted with a balky ship-to-shore radio and had been unable to reach his family for 12 days when he spotted a jetliner's contrail. As a retired pilot, Vihlen knew the crew would be listening.

"Aircraft at 40 degrees west, this is the sailboat right below you," Vihlen said over his VHF radio.

After 20 days at sea in a 5-foot-4-inch boat, Vihlen asked the engineer to deliver a message on his whereabouts to his family in Homestead after the Boeing 747 landed in New York.

He did, and the family learned Saturday the solo sailor was about 500 miles into his 1,823-mile trans-Atlantic voyage to Falmouth, England. He expects the voyage to take another month.

Vihlen, 61, is trying to reclaim a record he set 25 years ago for navigating the smallest boat, then a touch under 6 feet, across the Atlantic. The record was broken in May when Tom McNally of Liverpool, England, sailed a 5-foot-4 1/2-inch vessel from an island off Africa to Puerto Rico.

Teacher shot during purse-snatching

MIAMI — A Sarasota schoolteacher was shot in the chest when she came to the aid of a fellow teacher during a purse-snatching, police said.

Linda Pine, 49, who was attending a teachers' convention at Barry University in Miami Shores, was in good condition Wednesday after surgery at Jackson Memorial Hospital.

Police and witnesses gave this description of events: Pine went inside a Texaco station with another teacher to pay for gas Tuesday night while Mary Hopkins, a Cape Coral teacher, pumped gas in their rental car.

The woman pumping the gas resisted a gunman trying to steal her shoulder bag, and Pine ran outside when she noticed. She was wounded on the step outside the station door, and the gunman got away with the purse. Police said Wednesday they had made no arrest.

Correction

TALLAHASSEE — The Associated Press reported erroneously July 7 that telephone companies are allowed to round off long distance bills to a higher dollar figure.

The error occurred in a story about the Public Service Commission's refusal to reexamine the companies' billing records.

The story should have said that companies are allowed after the first minute to round off to the next highest minute when calls run even one second over.

Church firebombed following arrest

WEST PALM BEACH — An empty church was firebombed after a television station broadcast a police officer arresting a man police said was suspected of selling crack cocaine outside.

The fire at St. Matthews A.M.E. Church gutted the inside, turning wooden pews, the altar and choir loft into a charred skeleton.

At 11:19 p.m., WPEC-TV aired a two-minute segment on drug deals in the neighborhood. The segment showed Officer Randy Masie watching alleged drug deals through binoculars from inside the church, then arresting Wilfred Arnold Mayes, 38, who was charged with possession of cocaine with intent to sell.

Less than 20 minutes later, witnesses heard an explosion after someone dumped flammable liquid in the church and set it on fire, fire officials said.

Firefighters contained the flames within 15 minutes, but not before fire ripped through the roof and left holes in the floor. Investigators were still looking into the blaze Wednesday, but they speculated that the fire was linked to the news broadcast.

Since February 1991, police have visited the church about 91 times, records show. The calls include aggravated assault, fights, drug arrests, disturbances, accidents and break-ins.

City receives Kissinger's fireworks

DESTIN — Fireworks intended for former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger ended up in Destin in a mix-up that forced city officials scurrying around for more bang.

The Panhandle city had ordered $12,000 in fireworks from Fireworks by Grucci in New York. But when the Grucci team arrived Friday, city officials discovered only half of their order was filled.

Instead of the 1,100 shells city officials were expecting, there were only about 500. Missing were the 8-, 10- and 12-inch diameter shells for the 20-minute show's finale.

When frantic Destin officials were trying to find out what had gone wrong, Grucci's Florida representative, Tony Augello, told them the city had been shipped Kissinger's display.

"He was telling us we got Kissinger's show," said City Administrative Assistant Nancy Lee. "Maybe he was just schmoozing us."

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Jaycees want you

Junior Chamber is looking for a boost in its membership

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — After a successful fund raising drive for the July 4th Peoples' Fireworks display, the Sanford/Seminole Jaycees are seeking to expand.

During the 1970's, the membership of the Jaycees (Junior Chamber of Commerce) reached as high as 200. By the late 1980's, however, the organization almost collapsed.

"I remember the Sanford Jaycees," said Rick Russi. "When I came into the area, they were the real powerhouse organization in the city. They were bigger than any other group, and did more things for the city."

"The year I was president in the late 1960's," commented Sid Vihlen, Jr., "we had about 230 members, all young men, plus about 50 wives which were then known as the Jayceettes. The men had 78 separate projects we worked on that year, and the women had another half-dozen."

"We were, far and beyond, the largest and most powerful organization in the entire northern Seminole County area," Vihlen added. "The people who served as President eventually went on to become some of the most outstanding business and professional leaders of today."

Among projects undertaken years ago by the Jaycees were the annual Christmas parade, and a fishing rodeo with which money was raised for various children's projects.

Henry Hardy, the present vice president of the club is also acting as membership chairman. "At the present time," he said, "we want to do so much more for the area, but we have only six active members." He added, "There are between 20 and 30 registered members, but only a half dozen of us show up for the meetings on a regular basis."

"We want to operate the Jaycees in the way it was intended," he said, "with business leaders of the community being our guest speakers, and helping our members become better acquainted with the community and its needs."

This year's fireworks display was the largest drive headed by the Jaycees. They also conduct an annual Easter Egg hunt in Jaycee Park for children of the local area.

"Right now we are considering establishing some type of haunted house for Halloween," Hardy said. "It's in the planning stages right now, but we haven't had much time to work on it being so involved in the fireworks display and other events that took place over the Independence Day holiday event at Fort Mellon."

To be a member of the Sanford/Seminole Jaycees, the state Jaycee requirements, specify ages 21 to 40. "The state is considering the possibility of lowering the limit to 18," Hardy said, "but right now, we have to stick to their requirements."

Males and females may join the organization. There are no specific business connections required. Annual membership dues is $35.

For the past months, they have been meeting on a weekly basis, each Tuesday beginning at 5:30 p.m., at the Jaycee Building, 427 S. French Avenue in Sanford.

For information on the club, contact Henry Hardy, at 322-1068.

Tourism grew in April

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — April tourism statistics gave Florida officials hope that the state's reputation as a vacation spot wasn't badly damaged by violence against visitors last fall and this spring.

"It looks like now the hysteria of trying to build on the story has stopped. People are beginning to look at Florida again as a great state, a safe state," Gov. Lawton Chiles said of the figures released Wednesday.

The Department of Commerce reported the state's busiest April for tourism in three years, with 3.9 million visitors, up 7.7 percent from 3.6 million in April 1992, and up 2.6 percent from 3.8 million in April 1991.

Chiles cited various moves to calm tourists' fears, from road signs they can understand more easily to license tags that don't draw attention to rental cars.

The most recent widely publicized violent incident, the slaying of German tourist Barbara Meller Jensen in Miami, occurred in April, too late to affect travel plans for that month, Commerce Secretary Greg Farmer acknowledged.

But Jensen had been the sixth Florida tourist murdered since December, and tourism had suffered other black eyes such as last summer's rock-throwing and sniper-fire reports on Interstate 295 in Jacksonville, and Hurricane Andrew's August devastation in South Florida.

"April was sort of the height of the worst. We had months of headlines," Farmer said.

He said he'll continue efforts like a May trade mission to Italy and Germany, where he assured tourist industry leaders of Florida's safety.

"No one is taking a complacent attitude," Farmer added.

Rental car companies still have telltale sign for thieves

By Associated Press

MIAMI — Criminals have once again discovered a telltale sign on rental cars that may indicate tourists on board — the word "Manatee" at the bottom of the license plate.

Thousands of rental cars now have the tags issued from Manatee County that were replacements for "Y" and "Z" tags. Those license plates were banned because officials felt they were beacons to thieves that tourists were aboard the car.

Two Manatee-plated rental cars were involved in robbers' latest attacks on visitors in Dade County. A Sarasota teacher was wounded by gunfire Tuesday and a French family was fired upon in south Dade County.

Manatee County is a small Gulf Coast county with a population of 211,707. But it has 111,325 rental cars registered there. Rental car companies flocked to the county to register their cars because a private auto tag agency gives discounts on the plates in Manatee.

Earlier this year, the rental car companies stripped their stickers off cars and exchanged their license plates after several tourists were killed while being robbed.

But the burst of Manatee County tags issued earlier this year could undermine the concept of making for hire cars less conspicuous, said state Commerce Secretary Greg Farmer.

"The people who prey on tourists know," Farmer said. "They know X, Y and Z, and they know Manatee. This was just the result of the introduction of the Manatee tags into the system."

South Florida legislators had tried to get the Legislature to replace county names with "Sunshine State" on license plates.

But the measure was defeated because lawmakers from North Florida wanted the county names because of pride and it helped residents to spot drivers from heavily populated South Florida.

"Our main issue was safety. But also, South Florida licenses are targets for being pulled, over and ticketed in the north part of Florida," said state Sen. Mario Diaz-Balart, R-Miami.

• $275 in cash and food stamps were reportedly stolen in a business burglary in the 2400 block of Sanford Avenue early Wednesday.

• A vehicle was reportedly burglarized during daylight hours while parked in the 100 block of E. First Street in downtown Sanford Tuesday. Police said the window was broken on the passenger side of a car, and an attempt was made to pry open the door with a screwdriver. Nothing was immediately reported as having been stolen.

• A residential burglary was reported Tuesday, in the 1000 block of S. Park Avenue. Police said entry was gained by removing an air conditioning unit from a window. Items taken included a microwave oven, VCR, TV set, rolls of coins and cash.

• A brown 1982 Toyota Celica was reportedly stolen from a complex at Pine Ridge Circle on Monday. The vehicle's license was listed as 1M4-41Y. Police said the vehicle has three UCF stickers on the back.

• Several gas powered generators and an arc welder were reportedly stolen between Saturday and Monday from the Traffic Engineer shop at 140 Bush Loop.

• A 45 caliber handgun, cellular phone and tools were reportedly stolen from a vehicle in the 100 block of Long Leaf Pine Court, between Saturday and Monday.

• A cellular phone valued at $200 was reportedly stolen Tuesday from an unlocked vehicle in the 100 block of Centennial Avenue.

• A business office was reportedly ransacked between Friday and Monday, in the 3000 block of Mellonville Avenue. Police said three computers and computer parts were thrown down in the office, the area had been ransacked, and the phone wires ripped out. Items taken included a Tandy lap-top computer and assorted computer repair tools.

Auto leasing company expands

New airport location is Enterprise's third in Sanford

By NICK PFRIPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A second auto leasing company will begin operations at the Central Florida Regional Airport terminal soon. The matter was approved this week by the Airport Authority.

According to Director of Aviation Steve Cooke, "Enterprise Rent-A-Car has requested to establish a manned counter location in the terminal, for the purpose of renting automobiles to the public."

Budget car and truck rentals presently operates from the airport's main terminal building.

Cooke commented, "The addition of Enterprise is considered a benefit by providing the public a second rent-a-car option, and by freeing up the time of service counter personnel to provide a more responsive level of fuel service during peak periods."

Enterprise would pay the Airport Authority five percent of its gross receipts, based on the present expected customer service. If business increases, the Authority has stipulated that the rental could be subject to re-negotiation.

Rhonda Wood, manager of the Sanford Enterprise car rental service at the Center Mall on highway 17-92 said the additional operation at the airport would not change the present facilities.

"We will continue having our office in Sanford," she said, "and our satellite offices at Toyotaland in Sanford, and Longwood Lincoln Mercury in Longwood."

"The airport operation will be fully manned," she said, "and we will have a full complement of cars available at the site."

Wood added, "With the expected growth for the airport, we look at this as an excellent move for the Enterprise company."

The Central Florida Regional Airport is working on plans to increase the number of passenger flights into and out of the airport. Several scheduled flights are already underway and others are being discussed.

The Enterprise car rental operation would be in the recently renovated terminal facility. The authority is also looking into preparing plans to proceed with the further improvements which would provide an international arrivals building.

Woman warrior First female Air Force fighter pilot ends training

By EDUARDO MONTES
Associated Press Writer

HOLLOMAN AIR FORCE BASE, N.M. — 1st Lt. Jeannie Flynn wrapped up seven weeks of training Wednesday to be the first female Air Force fighter pilot the same way she began — surrounded by the media.

"Given my choice, I would have come in low-profile," Flynn said.

Flynn leaves Thursday for water survival training in Florida before moving on to Luke Air Force Base in Arizona, where she will spend about seven months learning to fly the F-15E Strike Eagle, the world's most advanced fighter-attack aircraft.

"She's a great officer, a great American and certain to be a great fighter pilot," said Brig. Gen. Lloyd "Fig" Newton, commander at Holloman, which has two other women pilots beginning fighter training.

Flynn, 26, began training at Holloman in mid-May, shortly after Defense Secretary Les Aspin ordered the military services to drop restrictions on women flying combat missions.

Flynn acknowledged that the initial attention she got made it a bit difficult to settle in. "But it was something that was unavoidable," she said.

She requested an assignment as an F-15 pilot upon graduating first in her pilot training class at Texas' Laughlin Air Force Base in January.

But since Air Force policy at the time did not allow women to fly combat aircraft, she had to opt for another assignment.

Aspin's decision changed her future, although Flynn, who was promoted from 2nd lieutenant last week, doesn't know where her career will take her.

"Truthfully," she said, "I take this one assignment at a time."

Mississippi River town learns more rain to fall

By BILL VOGRIM
Associated Press Writer

KEITHSBURG, Ill. (AP) — Convicted armed robber Andree Liggan spent hours filling and stacking sandbags along a levee on the west edge of town, laboring with fellow inmates and volunteers from town in a battle against nature.

Nature won. Floodwaters poured over the sandbags and through the levee, putting part of this Mississippi River town of 750 under more than 20 feet of water Wednesday.

"It started out about 3 foot wide, then 6 foot wide, and just got wider from there," said National Guard Spec. Jeff Tinder, who was about 50 yards away when the levee gave way. That forced about half of the town's 750 residents to move to higher ground.

With more rain in the forecast for the rest of the week, residents and emergency workers along the upper Mississippi Valley labored to avoid a fate similar to Keithsburg's. The flooding has claimed 16 lives so far and caused widespread damage to property and crops.

The swollen river has sprawled seven miles outside its banks north of St. Louis and forced the evacuation of thousands of people from their homes in Illinois and Iowa. Up to 2,000 families living on flood plains along the Missouri River in St. Charles County, Mo., were ordered to evacuate Wednesday night.

"With the continued rain, we're going to reach very serious stages, higher than in the last 20 years or better, and we want to give these people as much time as we can," said Mark Echele, a spokesman for the St. Charles County Emergency Management Agency.

In West Alton, Mo., just north of St. Louis, a levee broke early today. Most of the residents had already evacuated the area.

President Clinton has declared parts of Wisconsin and Minnesota federal disaster areas, and inspectors assessed damage in Iowa, Illinois, Missouri and South Dakota.

Federal officials promised help would be on its way in a matter of days.

Tall people preference: each other's company

By KATHARINE WEBSTER
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON — Ane Ryan Cohen is walking tall, and with good reason.

She is attending the annual Tall Clubs International convention this week, a federation of 54 groups in the United States and Canada. The only membership requirement is women must be at least 5-foot-10 and men 6-foot-2.

"There's a level of comfort when you all come together like this," said Cohen, 42, a 5-foot-10 resident of Philadelphia. "It's real nice to look someone in the eye when you're wearing 4-inch heels, which I would never give up."

Tall Clubs has a serious side, like raising money for research into Marfan's disease, a disorder that causes some people to be unusually tall or have elongated hands, feet and other body parts. Still, it's mainly a social organization.

"I originally went to meet a tall guy, but the best thing is the friendships I've made," said Jan Bielefeldt, a 6-footer from Dallas.

Several years ago, Bielefeldt's mother saw a newspaper ad for the Towering Texans of Dallas and encouraged her daughter to attend.

"I was too shy to go by myself, so my brother went with me," Bielefeldt said. "Now I have the confidence, through this tall club experience, to walk in anywhere and meet people."

Paul Conley, 42, of Boston, enjoys the club's camaraderie and being around people closer to his own height of 6 feet 5 inches.

"You don't feel like you're overwhelming a person in a physical way," he said.

Still, he notes, "I enjoy being tall. It's nice having a physical presence and being able to see parades."

"The biggest disadvantage for me is trying to find clothes and shoes that fit."

Tall Clubs International encourages manufacturers to make clothes, shoes, cars and beds for unusually tall people.

"We've worked a lot with J.C. Penney's to improve their catalogue," said Melon LaBonte, 43, of South Weymouth, who's 5 feet 11 inches. "The manufacturers are considering discontinuing the California King bed and we're petitioning them so that doesn't happen."

For many of the 400 people attending the convention, hosted by the Boston Beanstalks, it's a week to stand tall without being subjected to comments about their height.

"People ask us if we play basketball," said Larry Heller, 42, of Wayland. "We say, 'Do you play miniature golf?'"

Jaycees are a worthwhile organization

Young men and women in the work-a-day world can learn much from their boss or supervisor. They can also gain experience through expanding their formal education.

There is an additional need however. Becoming aware of and involved in working with the community. While it may often occupy hours of leisure time, it can be most rewarding.

For young men and women from the age of 21 to 40, the opportunity presents itself in the Sanford area, through the Sanford/Seminole Jaycees.

Present Vice President Henry Hardy said the club wants to do much more in the community, but is limited because of a lack of membership.

He had only recently learned of the Jaycees, and after joining in April of this year, has become vice president.

Several decades ago, the Jaycees were depicted as one of the most outstanding organizations in the area. Their projects provided support and financial assistance to many people, especially children.

Some of their past work, such as setting up the Christmas parade has been taken over by other organizations. Those who are involved in the group see many more ways they can participate in the community, and at the same time learn more about the business world.

There are actually two needs. More membership, and more active participation. They have a membership roll of approximately two dozen but only six members actively participate.

We see this as missing an opportunity. The more people at the meetings, the easier it will be to obtain guest speakers and establish meaningful programs.

The other need is the overall membership. The drop from over 200 back in the 1960's and 1970's to the present number has not been prompted by a lower population.

The only way to resolve the situation is to become a member, and get involved.

The cost of a membership is $35 per year. A small amount to spend for the impact it could have if the group regained the prominence of years past.

Contact a member of the Sanford/Seminole Jaycees and put your service to work for a better community.

Mother's response

A response to a Mrs. or Miss Jane Johnson's letter. (Coach Emory Blake suspended) What difference does it make if Phillip "Duke" is 19. He was out there to get his education, not to be picked up over Coach Blake's shoulder more than one time and slammed to the floor. Or to be choked by him. Wouldn't you have taken a swing at him after all this had happened to you? The cussing that he did was bad on his part. I know for myself that when a person gets mad, cursing plays a big part in their emotions. And I know myself that a lot of teachers cuss students all the time. And, anyway, when have you known it to be a fact that age has anything to do with a person getting his or her education.

Have you heard about the mules that went to the pond to get water? One fell in and the other one stood on the bank. The one that fell in didn't use common sense. I must say that the attitude that the coach's actions were justified is like one of a mule dipping snuff. And this is from his mother, Lula King.

Pull U.S. troops out of Somalia now

It's time to admit that this country's military intervention in Somalia, to ensure the delivery of humanitarian supplies to its suffering population, has been a gigantic fiasco.

True, we have probably saved, if only temporarily, hundreds of thousands of people from death by starvation or disease. But we have nevertheless quite clearly worn out our welcome. Americans and other non-blacks in the U.N. "peacekeeping" force are hated as alien invaders by most Somalis. In any case, they can't stay there forever. When they leave, the dying will resume at full blast. All that we will leave behind will be hatred of America: "curses, not loud, but deep."

How did we ever get into such a mess? From time to time in this column I have stressed that American troops ought to be put in harm's way when, and only when, a "vital interest" of the United States is at stake. Desperate as the plight of the Somali people was (and remains), nobody has ever suggested that an American vital interest is involved there.

But some people would apply exactly the opposite test. Strangely enough, many liberals will resist bitterly any U.S. military intervention in support of a vital American interest. Such an interest, if it exists, is for them actually an argument against intervention. For these people, the test of the desirability of intervention is precisely the reverse: There must be no American interest involved.

Only then, you see, is the cause pure enough to warrant the loss of American lives.

That was the weird mentality of the liberals who egged President Bush into sending our forces into Somalia. CNN's pathetic shots of dying Somali children provided the fuel.

The Lord forgive me, I even wobbled myself. In a column in early January, I applied the "vital interest" test to the case of Bosnia, and came out against U.S. military intervention there; but I admitted there were "borderline cases," and conceded that "perhaps Somalia is one." I ought to have known that a principle doesn't stop being a principle merely because it may be painful to

But we have nevertheless quite clearly worn out our welcome.

We can't even plead that we weren't warned. In a diplomatic cable to Undersecretary of State Frank Wisner, our ambassador to nearby Kenya Smith Hempstone, told his superiors at the State Department exactly what would happen if we sent troops to Somalia to protect relief shipments.

Hempstone is a crusty old newspaperman with a trim white goatee who has long been an expert on Africa. He has probably forgotten more about that complex and fascinating continent than most of the striped-pants brigade in Foggy Bottom will ever know. At his post in Nairobi, to which George Bush named him in an uncharacteristically inspired moment, Hempstone annoyed the State Department and the Kenyan government about equally by his blunt condemnations of the latter's undemocratic behavior.

To a New York Times reporter, a State Department powderpuff "who asked not to be identified, disputed Mr. Hempstone's assessment that the Somalis would take up guerrilla war against the Americans. ..." Tell that to the Marines.

We should pull out of Somalia — now.

Halting gridlock monumental job

The Washington Monument stands about 6-feet tall, and has been a permanent fixture here for as long as anyone can remember.

He is called Robert Strauss. Strauss, the Monument, has served Democratic presidents as all-anything (party chairman, confidant, ambassador, trade czar); he also has served Republican presidents (publicly as ambassador to Russia, privately as confidant-on-the-QT). Now, just the other night, Strauss managed to serve the leaders of both parties simultaneously — and, in the process, he served the larger interests of We-the-people.

He brought together Washington's grenadiers of gridlock — President Clinton and Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole — for a dinner in the semiprivate neutral territory that is Duke Zeibert's Restaurant. (Duke's place is itself something of a monument, a glass-and-giltter shrine rising in what you'd call the heart of Washington's lobbyist ghetto; except we all know a ghetto of lobbyists is heartless.)

Strauss' soiree was a night of matchmaking, peacemaking and (dare we hope?) perhaps even policy-making. It was born out of the frustration that for months eroded the spirits of the monumental host — and all of us — as a politics of paralysis crippled our economic and budget policy-making when we urgently needed action.

The Clintonians entered the White House primed to dictate to — not consult with — the Republicans; the administration wouldn't even compromise with moderate Democrats. The Republicans entered a new era as an out-party primed to sabotage Clinton's policy rather than shape their own. So Clinton's first economic stimulus package was met with a Republican filibuster and died — a victim of Gridlock by Gab-lock.

Next came a budget battle that resembled a poli-sci food fight. Even good-faith gestures were covered with slung political hash. By the time the Senate Finance Committee met to mark up its bill, the Republicans registered their complaint at being excluded from consultations. They entered the room wearing large get-acquainted name-tags, as if the Democrats had forgotten who they were.

The problem was really larger than that. The Democrats had forgotten what winning is really about. In the economic and budget battles so far — and in the preliminary health policy joustings — the Clinton White House seemed to have lost sight of the essential methodology of good governance. It is incumbent upon the incumbent to: (1) Set policy goals; and (2) determine the broad areas of common agreement, first within your party, next among Democrats and Republicans; (3) only then should the president look at the goals that are in dispute — and decide which are worth fighting for and which can be bartered and brokered.

That is what was eating at Bob Strauss when he decided he and his wife, Helen, ought to invite the Clintons and Doles for dinner at Duke's. (Elizabeth Dole was out of town on business and missed the dinner.) Strauss says he figured he could get away with this bipartisan matchmaking. "Helen and I are old enough to be the parents of the president and first lady," says Strauss. "Each understood that it is important to be there — important for the country to see that they do agree on a number of issues and that there is a civility between the number one leader of the Democratic Party and the number one leader of the Republican Party."

The dinner table talk among the president, the first lady, the minority leader, and the Monument ranged from reminiscences about Hubert Humphrey to policy discussions on the important North American Free Trade Agreement with Mexico and on health reform.

At evening's end, Dole said to the venerable host: "It's rare to see you pick up a check. Strauss — when are you going to take us to dinner again?" And a departing Clinton was heard to call out to restaurateur Zeibert: "Good night, Duke! We'll be back!"

Perhaps — just perhaps — Bob Strauss' soiree will mark a new era in the way Washington works: The end of gridlock and gab-lock, the beginning of a new bipartisan spirit.

The Washington Monument stands about 6-feet tall, and has been a permanent fixture here for as long as anyone can remember.

Get these irritating things off my chest

It is my solemn duty as a certified crank to call your attention to some things that ought to be irritating you to a fare-thee-well. I will begin with some everyday items.

Did you know, for example, that NASA's newest space toilet — excuse me, "Improved Waste Collection System" — cost $30 million to develop? Think of it this way: After it has been used a thousand times, we'll only be paying $30,000 per flush.

Did you know there is a conspiracy afoot to make Americans dumber? Consider: Dan Quayle is writing a memoir, and the Federal Communications Commission is mandating that cable companies carry the Home Shopping Network. It can probably be proved mathematically that it is impossible to read the former or watch the latter without significant loss of brain cells.

Some things have been annoying me so much lately that I got out the old Curmudge-O-Meter, a high-tech device that calculates in OLMs (Outrage Level Measurements) precisely how obnoxious, ridiculous, absurd or asinine something is. A few of the events that triggered high readings included:

A General Accounting Office report that the Justice Department spent $29,233 copying thousands of documents for former Attorney General Richard Thornburgh's personal collection; the Catholic Church's tardy admission, 359 years after it formally condemned Galileo, that the earth does in fact revolve around the sun; a Federal Highway Administration study which shows that one in every three of the lumbering, weaving, smoke-belching trucks on the highway has safety defects.

And these particularly outrageous items:
• A Washington Times interview with former lounge singer/Penthouse model Jennifer Flowers in which she allowed that Bill Clinton had botched the nomination of Lani Guinier as his assistant attorney general for civil rights. "What I heard him say is absurd," she said. "Bill is way in over his head. ... I don't think the presidency is a learning ground." The outrage is not what she said, but that the Times deemed the story worthy of 13 paragraphs.

• The fact that banks have been getting filthy rich at the expense of savers, particularly senior citizens, and no one is screaming about it. The banking industry raked up a record $32 billion in earnings last year, yet they persist in paying piddling interest rates on savings accounts, money market accounts and certificates of deposit. Millions of retired folks depend on interest income for their survival, and the banks are gouging them. Why? Because all too many bankers are heartless, rapacious creeps, that's why.

• The way the left wing civil rights community has fallen in behind Lani Guinier and mindlessly marched lockstep behind her as she wails that because her nomination was pulled she was denied a forum to expound on her ideas. Two things come to mind: 1) She was dumped because her ideas were anti-democratic, if not subversive; and 2) she's been on network news shows, "Nightline," the op-ed page of The Washington Post and numerous other soapboxes, and what the hell are those if not forums?

I especially liked the "open letter" to the American people that ex-heavyweight champ and convicted rapist Mike Tyson issued from prison about Guinier: "As one who has been through this type of Wild West justice, I know how it feels to be denied a chance to adequately tell your side of a situation."

The Curmudge-O-Meter blew a gasket on that one.

Did you know there is a conspiracy afoot to make Americans dumber? Consider: Dan Quayle is writing a memoir.

Chiles names social services veteran Towey to lead HRS

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Incoming state social services chief Jim Towey is taking over a huge agency with some big problems. Gov. Lawton Chiles announced Wednesday that Towey, 36, would take over the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services on July 16. He inherits an agency shaken by problems with its supercomputer, errors in welfare programs and numerous stories about people failed by the safety net.

Towey will continue the job of decentralizing HRS by shifting authority to 15 new districts, which are closer to both taxpayers and welfare clients.

"The job of HRS secretary is as challenging as any in state government," Chiles said. "Jim is a passionate advocate as well as a professional administrator. Some saw the job as hopeless, but Jim saw it as an opportunity."

Towey will replace Lt. Gov. Buddy MacKay, who was named temporary HRS head when Bob Williams resigned in March amid a huge computer error in the Medicaid program. That problem cost taxpayers $28 million when 235,000 ineligible people were mistakenly left on the rolls.

HRS, the nation's largest social services agency with a $10 billion budget, has many other problems with its $173 million computer, including a grand jury investigation into hardware purchases and a lawsuit filed by the original contractor.

Towey said he would deal with those problems directly while continuing to decentralize the monolithic agency. He said he would work to change an agency culture that has tended to hide its mistakes.

"We've had a tendency to circle the wagons, suppress candor and also flinch from public scrutiny. Those days are over," he said. "We intend to do everything in our power to make HRS operate in the light of day."

One of his first actions will be to ask people to write with suggestions for a new name for HRS to symbolize its dismantling into a more local-oriented agency.

"Changing the name will not fix the problems," Towey said. "We need to address the product. We're going to see a better agency, a better level of taxpayer satisfaction."

For the past 18 months, Towey has run the HRS district in Dade and Monroe counties. He has been credited with directing a solid response to Hurricane Andrew, including an emergency food stamp program that provided thousands of people with aid soon after the August storm.

He once stood on a truck to calm an angry crowd outside a food stamp office, then persuaded police to keep it open. He regularly visited hard-hit areas and said he's more comfortable working with the needy than sitting behind a desk.

not afraid to accept change. He is running a very progressive type of administration, and I am proud to help manage the operation."

Russell said each of the five commanders who were eligible for consideration, were given a written exam and personal interview. "Dillard showed an excellent history of involvement," he said. "He has an excellent record with the department and communicates extremely well with not only the general public, but with persons here in the department."

"Actually, we have worked with each other for many years even before we joined the police force," Russell commented. "Both Joe and I were stationed at the same time, back in 1963, at the Sanford Naval Air Station."

Mayor Bettye Smith said she congratulates Dillard on the appointment and is very pleased over the decision. "I believe he will do an excellent job, and I'm looking forward to working with him," she said.

worked with children throughout his life. Bowsher said, "I'm so proud of the children."

At the end of the school year, some of the 120 students who participated drew pictures and wrote letters thanking the gardener for his time and effort. He instructed them on how to prepare the soil, plant the seeds, and care for the garden until harvest. The vegetables, flowers and herbs were given to the children and teachers at the end of the school year.

"We grew everything from A to Z," Bowsher said, proudly. The school increased the garden area from four to six plots and now even boasts a butterfly bed and trellis. Beets, corn, beans, carrots, peppers, squash and watermelons are just a few of the vegetables grown by the children along with herbs and a wide variety of flowers.

During the program the "young" 73-year-old, also demonstrated how to grow pineapples and banana trees. Bowsher took the gardening lessons from seed to table by sharing some recipes on how to prepare the garden bounty. Occasionally, Bowsher said children recognize him during chance meetings as "that man who helped us in the garden at school."

Originally from Ohio, Bowsher jokes he has retired "two or three times" during his life. After retiring from the R.F. Goodrich Company, Bowsher opened a recreation park and lifeguard school. He has been an avid swimmer for over 50 years.

Bowsher also did private landscaping for a trucking company owner and at the Roadway Express headquarters in Ohio. He has been a master gardener for 10 years, beginning in Ohio and continuing with the Seminole County Master Gardener program.

come primarily from its operating and maintenance costs, which accounted for $1.2 billion of $4.3 billion in total 1992 expenses.

Charles Benore, a Paine Webber analyst who follows FPL, called the announcement commendable and said he expects the cuts to be spread over many areas of the company.

"Given the company's commitment and dedication to reducing costs and becoming an increasingly competitive company, I'm not going to sell them short on their ability to achieve these savings," Benore said.

"It's certainly going to be a challenge," Thomas said. "But we have to accommodate two things. We have to be competitive, and certainly the utility industry is becoming a competitive industry; and we have to guarantee an adequate return to our shareholders."

He said it was premature to speculate the amount of layoffs because the budget review was in its initial stages.

Like many other utilities, FPL is facing increasing competition from waste-to-energy producers and even their own customers who launch power generating projects to cut their electrical costs.

With 3.3 million customers in 35 counties along the Atlantic coast, FPL has gone without a rate increase since 1985.

While Litton said he had prepared a balanced budget based on the continuation of the present millage rate, he said he plans to ask the commission to at least consider a slightly higher millage in order to handle the major capital improvements expected during the coming year.

"Let me explain," he said. "I'm not asking for a higher millage, it's just that I want the members of the commission to at least discuss it."

"Because the departments have all submitted good budget proposals," he said, "we don't expect any reduction in service. In fact, we plan to expand the services."

Litton said a number of major projects were completed last year, and money may now be available for new projects this year. Among them he listed consideration of a new fire truck, the addition of another police officer, and involvement in the DARE (anti drug) campaign in the elementary schools.

Specific details of Litton's proposed budget and his budget message are expected to be revealed by next week.

During a special called meeting set for July 22, the commission will have its first dis-ussion of the budget, consider the roll back rate for ad valorem taxes, the tentative millage, and officially set dates and times for public hearings on the budget.

During regular commission meetings on August 5 and 19, the city commission will meet beginning one hour earlier than normal, at 6 p.m., to start budget hearings. A special meeting has been set for August 26, if necessary, to conclude the hearings.

The first public hearing for the tentative budget and millage will be held Sept. 9, and the final hearing and approval will be Sept. 23.

employees. The raise was the first item on the administrator's explanation of the $8,898,292 budget proposal.

McFellin said the most important asset the city has is its employees.

One of the major items expected to be closely scrutinized is $650,000 for a new fire station next to the Longwood Police Department. The new fire station would be paid for either by bonds or by a mortgage. The project would have to be approved by a voter referendum in the fall election. The proposed station would replace the fire station at Millwee and Warren Avenue, McFellin said.

A $70,000 item to refurbish a 1983 fire truck and $35,000 a year for three years to replace the fire department ambulance are in the fire department requests. Six new patrol cars for the police department totalling $81,000 ($13,500 each) have been requested by the department.

In order to fund some of the requests for next year's budget, McFellin said some capital improvement projects should be eliminated or deferred. One of the major projects in that category is $255,000 for water and sewer projects. Of that amount, $175,000 was for the relocation of water and sewer lines prior to the widening of County Road 427 by Seminole County. Another project deferred would be installation of water lines along Dog Track Road, under the proposal.

"We just don't have the money to do it now," McFellin commented, referring to relocating the lines along CR 427.

Id. the parks and recreation department budget, two new baseball fields have been proposed in the Columbus Harbor area for $21,311 while a soccer field and goals, racquet ball courts and bike paths on the long-range park plan did not make it into next year's budget.

The only planned change in city personnel calls for the hiring of a building inspector and changing an administrative secretary position in the planning department to a regular secretary.

McFellin has proposed $182,647 for a reserves and contingencies fund in the new budget.

"This city cannot go on indefinitely providing an adequate level of municipal services without raising additional revenue," McFellin said in his explanation of the budget requests. "In 1983/84, the City of Longwood will have to face reality it cannot afford to provide the same level of service presently enjoyed by the City of Longwood."

Government finds fewer jobs for needy youths

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — For thousands of disadvantaged youths, this is turning into a summer of disappointment.

The Clinton administration announced Wednesday that the government had come up with only 700,000 federally funded summer jobs for youths living in low-income areas — just half the 1.3 million that President Clinton had proposed last winter and fewer than the 790,665 created last summer.

Antoine Gray was one of those who came up empty-handed.

"I was kind of disappointed," the 15-year-old sophomore said in a telephone interview from his East Point, Ga., home.

Gray had expected a job working "like a P.E. teacher" in a recreational program paying $4.25 an hour. He had not heard differently since applying for the position in March.

But he got the word that the job was not available last week — two weeks after school let out. "I wasted two weeks that I could have been looking for a job somewhere else," he said.

A Labor Department survey in late May and early June suggested that twice as many youths had registered for jobs as the government would have available.

The jobs include clerical work in city offices, maintenance work for public properties, recreational work at parks, nursing assistance in hospitals and supervising and tutoring children at day care facilities.

In announcing the survey results last month, Labor Secretary Robert B. Reich called on private businesses to help bridge the gap.

In Seattle, businesses did provide some jobs, according to LaVonne Douville, director of the Division of Family and Youth Services. But she added, "There still is going to be a lot of youths who won't have jobs this summer. ... Our overall economy is not awful, but it's not really good either."

The private sector in Los Angeles, where idle youths joined riots in the spring of last year, wasn't able to take up much slack either.

"The private sector effort just fell apart in Los Angeles," said James Secley, federal legislative representative for the city here. "They just didn't have any jobs."

Reich still is urging business and industry to provide youth jobs.

"Providing our young people with the opportunity to work and learn over the summer continues to be a high priority of the Clinton administration," he said.

"The summer jobs program translates to meaningful work assignments, labor market experiences and, last but not least, real earnings for thousands of low-income youth who want and need a chance to be part of the labor force."

The Labor Department on Wednesday began distributing the final $166.5 million in federal funds for the Summer Youth Employment and Training Program. The money was part of a $1 billion measure passed last Thursday — all that remained of Clinton's original $16.3 billion request last winter.

That request last winter included $1 billion alone for the summer jobs program. When added to $868 million already available from previous appropriations, it would have created 1.3 million slots for disadvantaged youths.

What survives now is the $166.5 million and the $868 million, which includes the current appropriation plus unspent funds from last summer's program.

Clinton's $16.3 billion jobs request was killed in a Republican-led Senate filibuster. As a result, the program this year is funded at about the same level as last year, the final summer of the Bush presidency.

Fewer jobs were created this year because of increased costs.

Funds for the program are distributed to the states according to a formula based on such factors as unemployment and poverty levels. States then allocate the money to cities and counties using the same criteria.

The additional funds now being distributed range from about $408,000 for states such as Delaware, Hawaii, North and South Dakota, Vermont and Wyoming, to more than $21 million for California.

In addition to the states, the supplemental appropriation contained money to expand summer jobs for native American youth and for those in U.S. territories such as American Samoa, the Virgin Islands and Guam.

Class differences in death rates may be widening

By DANIEL G. HANEY
AP Science Writer

BOSTON — A government review of deaths rates over 2½ decades found the gap getting worse for the poor and poorly educated than for other Americans.

Experts believe that healthier living habits — not more health care — is the main reason why those with good educations and comfortable incomes do better.

"The data provide an important critique for the health care reform proposal," said Dr. Gregory Pappas, who directed the study published in today's New England Journal of Medicine. "The implication is that even in a perfectly equitable health care system, these problems will persist."

The study compares the death rates of Americans under age 65 in 1960 and 1986. During this time, Medicaid was established to improve care for the poor. Despite their better access, they fell farther behind.

An editorial published with the study agreed that the class differences in death rates cannot be explained simply by better care for the privileged.

"Despite the importance of socioeconomic status to health, no one knows quite how it operates," wrote Dr. Marcia Angell, the journal's executive editor. "It is perhaps the most mysterious of the determinants of health."

Pappas, a researcher at the National Center for Health Statistics, based his findings on two nationwide surveys that covered 44,216 Americans ages 25 to 64 in 1986. He compared the results to a similar study conducted in 1960.

He found that over the 26-year period, the differences in mortality rates attributable to education levels increased by over 20 percent in women and doubled in men.

Among white men who did not finish high school, there were nine deaths for every 1,000 people in 1960. This had fallen to 7.6 by 1986. However, for white male college graduates the decline was much sharper — from 5.7 deaths to 2.8.

Similar comparative statistics are not available for white women and blacks. However, the 1986 survey shows the sharp difference in mortality rates that persist.

The figures show there were 3.4 deaths per 1,000 people among white women who failed to finish high school, 13.4 for black men and 6.2 for black women. Among college graduates, the death rates were 1.8 for white women, six for black men and 2.2 for black women.

The differences were even more dramatic when people were divided according to income. There were 16 deaths per 1,000 people among white men

West Virginia	17.2%
Kentucky	17.0%
Texas	17.0%
South Carolina	16.2%

Most of the 10 states with the highest poverty rates are located in the South. Mississippi is worst off — one out of four people live in poverty.

who earned under $9,000, 6.5 for white women, 19.5 for black men and 7.6 for black women. Among those with incomes over $25,000 there were 2.4 deaths for white men, 1.6 for white women, 3.6 for black men and 2.3 for black women.

The study did not attempt to sort out why these disparities exist and are growing. However, Pappas said he suspects that class differences in heart disease play a big role.

The risk of dying from heart disease has declined dramatically since the mid-1960s. But Pappas said he believes better off Americans have benefited more from this.

Families suffer when pensions of parents are too big for Medicaid

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Ora Lee Ingram knew it was time to put her mother in a nursing home when she began wandering away from their home and into the traffic of a busy highway.

The nursing home promised to keep close watch over the spry, 80-year-old retired postmaster for Mrs. Ingram, who was weakened by her own struggle with breast and bone cancer.

But that was before the nursing home realized Mrs. Ingram's mother, Retha Cooper, earned $33 too much from her pension to qualify for Medicaid in Arkansas but not nearly enough to pay the monthly bill.

"I hope they don't turn her out," says Mrs. Ingram, who is retired from a Waldenburg, Ark., Dairy Queen and does not have the money to cover the difference between her mother's monthly $1,335 pension and

$2,000 in nursing home costs. "I can't take care of her, and she can't take care of herself."

Like hundreds of other families nationwide, mother and daughter are trapped in what Scott Holladay, an advocate for the elderly in Arkansas, calls "the pension penalty."

"These are people who all their lives worked hard and played by the rules, did their jobs from 8 to 5 for 30 years. They got a pension, and now they're cut out of the system. They're not wealthy, they're just over the limit," says Jill Quadagno, a professor at Florida State University who studied the problem in Florida and Texas.

Some families sacrifice savings set aside for their children's college tuition to pay their parents' nursing home bills. Others risk their own health, quit their jobs or strain their marriages to bring an extremely ill or bedridden person into their home, Quadagno says.

The problem occurs in more than a dozen states that do not extend Medicaid, the government's health insurance program for the poor, to elderly nursing home residents when their incomes exceed the state limit but fall short of their monthly medical expenses.

Advocates for the elderly are pressing the White House to address the issue as part of health care reform. A Clinton administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the administration is considering a requirement that all states have programs for the medically needy.

Quadagno estimates that in states lacking such programs for the elderly, 20 percent of retirement-age men and 5 percent of women have incomes that put them at risk of the pension penalty should they need to enter a nursing home.

LeFevre, who insists the suggestion of a move to Orlando is not an empty threat, said the hockey team would not have any problem sharing the Dome with a baseball team in two years. Having both sports, he added, would be "a tremendous luxury for everybody."

"I think some accommodations might have to be made over a period of a month or overlap, but I think it's in the best interests of everybody to try to get that done."

Purvis dominates dirt

By BILL SIEBERT
Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE — Robbie Purvis of Ocala ran strong from the pole position to checkered flag Friday night to power his Chevrolet Lumina to a strong win in the Pro Late Model feature as Volusia County Speedway re-opened the facility's dirt track.

Purvis ran away from the rest of the eight-car field making the 25-lap feature on the first night run on the 3/8-mile clay oval since Speedweeks '93 back in February.

"We've been changing the car all night long," Purvis said from the VCS winner's circle. "I was here during Speedweeks and saw a lot of cars get in trouble going too high. I was just trying to stay as low as I could."

Winners in the other divisions on opening night saw Chuck Bossinger of Jacksonville winning the visiting Mini-Spring Division, Jay Whitaker of DeLand taking the Hobby Stocks, Brian Bales of Holly Hill winning the Pro Stock Division and Tom Mulligan victorious in the Mini-Stocks.

Purvis got an early challenge from Bill Kopka of Holly Hill after Kopka moved up from third place into second on the third lap, but before the race was a third of the way over, Purvis was on his way to the main event feature.

"We just tried to soften the car up just before the race and it seemed to work," said Purvis. Kopka held on to take second, while Glen Bradley of Edgewater battled his way up to third. Colly Woodall was fourth and Mark Paterniti of Daytona Beach rounded out the top five.

Cecil Peacock of Jacksonville ran strong off the pole in the 20-lap South Eastern Mini-Sprint Association feature event and seemed to be the run-away winner until something went haywire on the 16th lap, less than five laps away from the checkered flag.

Bob Schaffer of Ft. Lauderdale jumped into the lead on lap 16 with Peacock's failure coming out of turn four, but a yellow flag and restart with two laps to go was just the move Bossinger needed for his victory.

"The car was real good after it got a few laps on it," Bossinger said. "I thought I was in trouble on the restart, but everything worked my way."

Tommy Denton of Orange Park slipped by Schaffer on the final straight-away to take second. Nick Ramsey was fourth, followed by Perry C. A. u. d. l. e. J. r.

Bales might have started in the back of the pack for the Pro Stock feature, but by the end of the second lap in the 15-lap finale, he had the Kenny's Roofing/A-1 Auto Parts Chevrolet Camaro to the front to stay.

Bales was followed by Charles Hall of East Palatka and Wayne Lockett of Eustis. Chuck Julian of Apopka finished fourth.

Mulligan had his Credit Auto Sales VW Rabbit in the back row of a three-car race in the Mini-Stocks, but was out in front by the end of the first lap on his way to a win in the 10-lapper.

Mulligan led Dan Paterniti of Ormond Beach and Ray Mark of DeLand over the start/finish line. Whitaker was out of wack for the majority of the heat race with Palatka's Chad Kiser, but when the feature race for the Hobby Stocks rolled around, Whitaker's crew had the 1750 North Chevrolet Camaro set up to run.

"This car is set up for asphalt," Whitaker said. "It's totally wrong for dirt, but we had a lot of fun. We did the wrong thing (before the feature) and it worked."

Volusia County Speedway will host the Tampa Bay Area Racing Association (TBARA) Winged Outlaw Sprints this Friday, July 9th, on the dirt track, along with the Pro Late Model, Pro Stock, Mini-Stock and Hobby Stock Divisions.

For more information about dirt or asphalt racing at Volusia County Speedway, contact the race office at (904) 255-2243 or (904) 985-4402.

Nature's inspiration

Deltona community inspired by success of Park on Park

Inspired by Sanford's Park on Park playground and the success of DeLand's volunteer Freedom Playground, residents of Deltona called together the Southwest Volusia Volunteer Playground Foundation and are following suit by building a volunteer playground at Wes Crile Park on Ft. Smith Boulevard in Deltona in 1994, according to Miriam W. Newman, public relations chairperson of the group.

Since many residents of Deltona currently travel to Sanford to enjoy Park on Park and playground-hop from one community to another, the volunteer group is encouraging everyone in Deltona, Orange City, DeBary, DeLand, Enterprise, Osteen and even the community located "just over the bridge," Sanford, to get involved with this project.

"We want to raise $60,000 for materials and volunteers will provide the labor," said co-chairperson Susan Unsinger. "Like Park on Park and Freedom, we want to have a beautiful playground."

A selection committee will be choosing the playground company by Aug. 15, after taking into consideration such things as special needs accessibility, maintenance of the structure, accident rates and more.

The winning playground name, decided during a children's contest that ended June 25, will be announced at an awards ceremony 10 a.m. Saturday, July 10, at First State Bank in Deltona.

Macaroni Noodle, Fun-In-The-Sun, Pippi Longstocking, and Deltona's Best are some of the entries children have submitted for the "Name Your Playground" contest sponsored by the Volusia Volunteer Playground Foundation.

At the ceremony, the winner will receive a $50 saving bond from the bank as well as a plaque with his/her name engraved on it. The Foundation will also accept its two first donations to officially kick-off fund-raising efforts.

For the contest children were asked to think of a name for the playground. The selection committee has finished sorting through hundreds of responses it has received.

"The kids came up with so many good names for the playground that we are having a hard time choosing the winner," said chairperson Stony Sixma.

"The children of Southwest Volusia have great imaginations and we can't wait to get them involved in more activities associated with the playground-to-be," said Unsinger.

To raise $60,000 for the playground, the non-profit foundation has come up with ideas including a spare change contest for the elementary schools, a MusicFest, Swing-A-Thon, spaghetti dinner, KidsFair, Taste of Deltona and more.

If you would like to volunteer and/or make a donation, or if you would like more information about the Southwest Volusia Volunteer Playground Foundation, please contact Stony Sixma at 789-5518 or Susan Unsinger at 574-1131.

The foundation has meetings twice a month and child care is provided.

Talk-show fan asks, where have the older women gone?

DEAR ABBY: In retirement, I am now hooked on talk shows. I enjoy the "make-overs," but they always use thin young women with thick hair, never older women with extra pounds and thinning hair.

I subscribe to many magazines; they often have articles on looking good at 30, 40 and 50 - never 60, 70 and 80. Yet the population is definitely living longer. Women may now have 40 or 50 years to live after their children are raised. I have two sisters who are still vital at 83 and 84.

Ladies Home Journal has a monthly feature, "Can This Marriage Be Saved?" Yet they report only on couples in their 20s and 30s!

The latest Weight Watchers ad on TV in this area shows only young women.

All young women will get old one day - if they are lucky. Why are older women so invisible?

MRS. BEA ZIRK, RETIRED AT 69, RICHLAND, WASH.

DEAR BEA: Where did you get the idea that older women are invisible? A few years ago, Frances (formerly "Mrs. Norman") Lear launched Lear's magazine with the catchy subtitle, "For the Woman Who Wasn't Born Yesterday."

And Helen Gurley Brown, editor-in-chief of Cosmopolitan magazine and author of the famed best seller "Sex and the Single Girl," has recently written another best seller, "The Late Show: A Semi-Wild But Practical Survival Plan for Women Over 50." (It is loaded with practical advice, but if racy language turns you off - as it does me - please consider this a disclaimer.)

On television and in film, setting wonderful examples as role models are: Angela Lansbury, Barbara Walters, the Golden Girls - who have now moved to the Golden Palace - and don't forget Jessica Tandy, Joanne Woodward, Milti Gaynor, Chita Rivera, Rita Moreno and the indomitable Liz Taylor - all over 60.

Gastronomes feast on the creations of Julia Child, and Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis is now a senior editor at Doubleday Publishing Co.

Bea, perhaps you should consider coming out of retirement. Watching too much television can be hazardous to your perspective.

DEAR ABBY: Norman E. Savage of Hickory Ridge, Ark., asked why women stand and men are seated in portrait photographs. You said you didn't know, but pointed out that the wedding photographs taken during your great-grandparents' era showed the men seated and the women standing.

I speak only from my experience as a photographer. Most photographers like to have their husband-wife subjects as close together as possible. It makes for a more pleasing photograph - also a better enlargement. And since most men are taller than their wives, the photographer gets a better picture when the man is seated.

No mystery, no tradition. Pure practicality.

JIM CAIELLA, ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR OF PHOTOGRAPHY, TIMES-DISPATCH, RICHMOND, VA.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ALL PARENTS: Parents who want to train their children in the way they should go should go that way themselves.

VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law drops by at my hour without calling first. My door is usually unlocked. If I don't answer it (knowing it is her), she walks right in and goes looking for me - even upstairs!

She is relentless: mealtimes, family occasions, quiet moments - she intrudes without hesitation. Furthermore, she is obnoxious: her voice is piercing and her laugh can shatter glass!

What can I do? I do not want her dropping in. I would never think of dropping in on her without calling first. Must I move a thousand miles away to have some peace and privacy?

YOUR TRULY IN TULSA

DEAR TRULY: No. First, have you ever asked her to please telephone first? If you haven't, you should.

And whether she continues to drop in or not - you should always keep your door locked. It will protect not only your privacy, but it could save your life.

Lung transplant is risky at best

DEAR DR. GOTT: Since hearing of a young girl who was given a lobe from each of her parents' lungs to correct a longstanding problem, I wonder if I can give my husband one of my healthy lungs to correct emphysema. Has anything like this ever been done?

DEAR READER: Lung transplants are, indeed, being performed at many major medical centers. However, as you can imagine, they are technically difficult. Aside from the surgery (which is a marvel itself), the transplanted lung has to be compatible, meaning that -- like blood types -- lung recipients have to tolerate the new tissue, or the procedure will be in vain. Therefore, transplant doctors must extensively test the recipient and the donor to make sure there is a proper "fit."

Many variables (such as health and age) must be considered before deciding on a transplant. I am not aware of any instance in which a middle-aged adult donated a lung to her spouse. In theory, such a "transfer" is possible, but I believe that the risks would outweigh the benefits, given the fact that organ transplantation is -- if not in its infancy -- at least in its childhood.

Remember that your husband's emphysema, although incurable, may respond to treatment, such as special breathing exercises, oxygen and medicine to open breathing passages. Ask his doctor about this.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is a person exposed to more radiation through a tanning bed than from the sun, and could the continued exposure to tanning beds cause tumors or skin cancer?

DEAR READER: Despite claims by the owners of tanning salons, the hazardous side effects of tanning booths and other similar devices are the same as those caused by natural sunlight: wrinkling, premature aging of the skin and skin cancers. The amount of radiation depends on the intensity of light and length of exposure.

People who imprudently subject themselves to prolonged exposure to artificial tanning rays can look forward to future skin problems as the price of a continuous tan. Don't do it.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Mary McCarthy claimed that there are no new truths, only truths that have not been recognized by those who have perceived them without noticing.

In bridge, if you think the right thoughts, you will find the truth of the deal. The hard part is asking yourself the right questions so that you have the right thoughts.

Take today's deal as an example. How should South plan the play in four hearts after West leads the club jack?

South's two-heart jump overall in the balancing position shows a good six-card suit and some 14-16 points.

There is a lot of information available. West opened the bidding, yet East passed. So East must have fewer than six points. West didn't lead a diamond. Why not? Because he doesn't have an honor combination. It is almost a certainty that East has the diamond king, and West understandably didn't want to lead from a suit headed by the A-Q.

If East has the diamond king, who has the heart king? It must be West. So there is no point in taking the trump finesse. After winning trick one with dummy's club king, lead the heart jack to tempt a cover, just in case. But when East plays low, put up the ace. If your luck is in, West will drop the king -- and probably slide his chair back.

Draw the last trump and cash your other two clubs, discarding one of dummy's diamond losers.

It is rare to be able to read the high-card location so accurately at trick one -- but if you ask yourself the right questions, you will perceive the truth.

Readers are invited to send card-play questions to Phillip Alder, in care of this newspaper. They can be answered only through the column.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

In the year ahead there could be a lucrative market for things you either create or invent. Express your urges for originality in all areas.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Because you're apt to be more supportive than critical of others today, persons with whom you'll have dealings will welcome the relationship. This will put you a step ahead of others. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today it might be necessary for you to outmaneuver others in order to accomplish your objectives. Be subtle, but don't be devious.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Companions will have an enormous influence over your attitude today. The young in spirit will inspire you, morose or negative types will depress you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Small, but significant steps can be taken today towards reaching a meaningful objective. It's a goal that tops your list of present priorities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Generally speaking you're a fascinating person to be around today, but where you will really sparkle will be at social gathering where you'll have a chance to meet and make new friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Rather than spend monies on things you don't need today, look for good buys for your family or household needs. Check the ads and get out your coupons.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your mate's ideas might be superior to yours today, so listen carefully to his/her suggestions. Resolving a problem is what's important, authorship isn't.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're not likely to be undercompensated for work you do perform for others today. They'll get a good deal from you and you, in turn, will get a good deal from them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today in a game of friendly competition you might learn something about sportsmanship that could be of enormous value to you in other areas of your life.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A dear friend of yours who is in need of a confidant today may sense you're the one to whom he/she can reveal innermost thoughts. You're both a good listener and a wise counselor.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is a good day to discuss with friends a new idea or concept that has recently captured your fancy. Your assessment of its potential is accurate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Small, but significant measures can be taken today which could benefit you financially and careerwise. You've been aware of them for some time now.
