Boston Braves Are Trying To Swing Trade Deal With Pipp Of Cincinnati Reds

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service
Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Mar. 28.—Having got what they thought they wanted in Lester Bell and what they thought they had no reason to expect in Rogers Hargbass, the Boston Braves apparently still are of a mind to bicker and barter a bit. The writer is informed today that the Braves are trying to swing some kind of a trade for Wally Pipp, first baseman of the Cincinnati Reds.

If the deal is made—and nobody seems to know how far they have gone with it—the Braves would find themselves in possession of an infielder for the first time in years. If it isn't made, the Reds still have two first basemen in Pipp and George Kelley, and the Braves virtually none at all—unless Dick Burris comes back to the place he knew in 1925. Burris' position is the outstanding weakness in the Boston Club at the moment.

Frankly, it is a bit difficult to see Cincinnati's position in the proposed trade. The Reds don't need Pipp and probably would be glad to do business for him. But the trouble is that the Braves have exactly what the Reds don't particularly need.

According to Jack Hendricks' story, he is satisfied with his pitching, catching, outfielding and at least two positions in his infield.

He undoubtedly would welcome a first class man who could play on the left side of his infield. If the Braves have a man like this they need him themselves.

Walter Gautreau might answer the purpose and maybe this week he will be willing to send Burris along too, provided Hendricks decided he wanted a man like that around to fill in for Kelly while the latter was indulging his flair for versatility. But Hendricks is a hard boiled trader and might be expected to look down the barrel at anything that didn't give him more than fifty per cent the better of it. According to his probable way of figuring, Gautreau isn't good enough for the Boston infield, and therefore couldn't be good enough to help Cincinnati.

Perhaps the Braves hope to get a third club into the transaction and thus enable everybody to get what they want. This will be an excellent trick, even if it isn't done.

However, that is their problem, not mine. All I know is that Boston wants to start something for Pipp and the better, while Cincinnati has no objection to doing it. The Reds are confident of friends that he would be better pleased if he could go to a club where he would be certain to play every day. Unfortunately, that may be the way the proposed deal will end every body satisfied with it except Jack Hendricks.

BOTTLERS OF CARBONATED BEVERAGES TURN TO NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING FOR NATION-WIDE TRADE PROMOTION DRIVE

The advertising columns of more than 800 newspapers will be used this summer by the American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages, the national association of the manufacturers of "soft drinks," in a nation-wide campaign to increase the consumption of their products. The selection of newspapers as the best medium for reaching the homes of America is announced at the National Headquarters of the organization, 725-727 Bond Building, Washington, D. C., by President C. H. Chesterman, of Sioux City, Iowa, and Carl A. Jones, of Bristol, Va., chairman of the Advertising Committee.

C. H. CHESTERMAN

CARL A. JONES

"The selection of newspapers as the medium for our national advertising campaign," President Chesterman said in making the announcement, "is the result of careful consideration. The national campaign, beginning in May, will require that 800 newspapers be used as advertising space, a quarter million dollars. It will consist of educational advertising appearing weekly throughout the summer."

Mr. Jones has been elected chairman of the campaign. Mr. Chesterman said, because that also is the best method by the organization's Advertising Committee for "Bottled Carbonated Beverages Day," which will be celebrated by the manufacturers of "soft drinks" all over the country. These celebrations will include receptions to the public at leading plants, parades of the combined industry in each city and town, and various other publicity features.

Carl A. Jones of the A. B. C. B. Advertising Committee declared that the selection of newspapers this year was made with the conviction that they were the best medium to reach the homes.

NEW RULING PUTS SCREWS ON CAFE OWNERS OF LAND

CHICAGO, Mar. 28.—Cafe owners who charge exorbitant prices for bottles of ginger ale and small cups of beer are "submitting" they are violating the prohibition law under the "observation" evidence being and are liable to have their establishment closed for one year by federal injunction.

This ruling, deemed of paramount importance by cafe owners throughout the country, was made by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley in Chicago recently in the case of the "Plantation" restaurant.

"Set-Up" Is Evidence

"The sale of set-ups, day after day and night after night at the outrageous price of $1.25 or $2.00 for a 15 cent bottle of ginger ale is in itself an admission of guilt that the restaurant is used as a place of 'promiscuous drinking,'" Judge Lindley said.

Evidence against the cafe which was closed for one year was obtained by two prohibition agents. The agents testified they had brought into the cafe a quart bottle containing whiskey and had set it on the table. With a woman companion they took three drinks from the bottle and were not cautioned or warned by the waiter. They then went into court and said the restaurant violated the prohibition law.

In granting the injunction Judge Lindley scored the federal prohibition department for its tactics in obtaining the evidence.

Admonishes Agents

"In the future," Judge Lindley said, "I shall not accept testimony of agents who absolutely violate the law to entrap cafe owners. These agents brought liquor into the premises of this cafe and willfully drank it. They did not buy the liquor. They abused their privileges. If it were not for the other evidence introduced in this case I would discharge the injunction petition. And, in the future, I may even hold prohibition agents in contempt of court if they ever do such a thing again."

Fight Over Picking Tunney's Opponent Grows In Violence

NEW YORK, Mar. 28.—(INS)—The greatest long distance telephone heavyweight elimination continued today with unabated violence and mounting odds. Wires between New York and Miami were strained to the limit with conversation expended recklessly in the effort to prevent a breach between champion Gene Tunney and the New York State Athletic Commission.

The commission demands that Tunney make formal acceptance of any one or all of his challengers—Tom Heeney, Jack Sharkey and Johnny Risko. If he selects Risko, the man or agrees to fight the winner of a June fight between Heeney and Risko his standing in New York will not be endangered. If he makes no choice by next Tuesday or insists on Richard making it for him Tunney may be confronted by a challenger selected by the commission. He must then stand and fight that man or be banished from his native state this year.

Megawhile Charlie Harvey, Heeney's manager, is on his way to Florida to make one last appeal to the champion for a Tunney-Heeney bout. He hopes to carry his point with the champion, but Richard wants the Risko battle placed in front of Heeney.

Richard is advancing the price for the next heavyweight championship bout and the dean of promoters is going to select the next opponent for Gene Tunney at his leisure. This is virtually the answer of Richard to the New York State Boxing Commission's demand for his next combat before next Tuesday or be declared ineligible to fight in New York State.

"Tunney is willing to fight any one I name," Richard said today. "He is under contract with me and the responsibility of naming the next challenger lies with me alone. I do not think that the New York State Boxing Commission has the right to demand that I name the challenger at this time."

Turns Wood Into Metal

That he has perfected a process for turning wood into metal is the claim of Waldimir J. Einstein, who has been demonstrating his discovery before the Air Ministry of England. If his claims are substantiated it is proposed to construct of his material the engines of the new British aircraft, the design now being designed. Einstein claims that by his process any substance dipped into a metal bath and become five to 10 times as strong as the original, waterproof and of three times greater durability.

New French Shoe Makes Legs Long

PARIS, Mar. 27.—(INS)—Facing the American invasion of "shoemaking" the ladies, a Parisian shoemaker has just produced a shoe which elongates the leg of the back by means of a flesh-colored ink of latex from where the shoe meets the ankle. The shoe is made of a material which is both soft and elastic, and is made together with the heel and sole by applying a coat of colored latex to the inside of the shoe.

Wagon wheels, which are made of leather, make the feet look longer. The sole and the heel are of wood, leather, or gutta-percha or painted in any desired color. The straps of all our colored leathers are also in any color.

Gene Tunney's Next Opponent Will Be Determined In June

NEW YORK, March 28.—(INS)—Gene Tunney's rival this September, barring accidents, will be either Johnny Risko, the Cleveland baker boy, or honest Tom Heeney, the blacksmith from down under.

Today Jess McManamon, Tex Rickard's matchmaker, will go before the New York State Boxing Commission and tell them that he has the consent of both Risko and Heeney's managers to the battle, and that the winner will be given the Tunney shot. He may take the signed contracts of the two managers before the fistie fathers to back up the statements.

Risko and Heeney will meet at the Yankee Stadium on June 17, and the much maligned heavyweight elimination tourney will at last produce an opponent for Tunney, even though there may be folks who disagree with calling either man a fit challenger.

MARINE DISASTER CAUSES BUILDERS TO PERFECT SUB

German Mechanician Invents Device Which He Declares Will Prevent Repetition Of S-4 Naval Catastrophes

BERLIN, Mar. 24. (INS)—The loss of the United States submarine "S-4" with numerous hands aboard has stimulated many engineers in their efforts to build a reliable submarine rescue apparatus.

Herthold Faack, Berlin mechanician, who served in the German merchant marine for many years, has invented an apparatus by which he claims, disasters like the one that befell the S-4 could be averted with almost a hundred per cent certainty.

Faack does not propose to save the boat, but to rescue the crew. He has constructed a cigar-like tube made of duraluminum, which could easily be installed in old or new submarines at the comparatively cheap price of about 1500 dollars. For safety's sake two tubes would have to be installed on the boat, one astern and another on the foredeck.

At Any Depth As soon as the submarine sinks and cannot rise again two men enter the tube from the inside of the boat, close it, unscrew the cover fastening the tube to the deck and at the same time forming the cover of the tube and shoot up to the surface.

Arrived on the surface they signal the crew to haul the tube down by means of a wire rope fastened in the lower end of the tube and to the deck. In parties of four the whole crew could thus be saved and brought to the surface. The tube is equipped with electric light, a telephone and oxygen masks.

Faack claims that the tube can stand an atmospheric pressure of about 26 atmospheres, so that the inmates do not run the risk of being blown to pieces or severely injured by the terrific pressure exerted on them when they shoot upward from depths of about 50 to 60 meters.

The inventor even claims that his apparatus can be applied in any depths, while other apparatuses employed by the German submarines during the war, and later on, by private firms can only be applied in certain depths.

In 45 Minutes Faack proposed to rescue, within about 45 minutes, the entire crew of a modern submarine, that is about fifty men. Informed weather the crew could remain afloat by means of rubber boats for a week or so, but even in stormy weather Faack believes that the saved crew could remain afloat for at least four or five hours.

Faack offered his invention to the German navy, but since the Versailles Treaty stripped Germany of submarines and forbade her to build new ones the Reichswehr ministry rejected his invention.

After learning of the disaster of the "S-4" Faack has made up his mind to offer his invention to the United States Navy. He is ready to go to the States and supervise the construction of the tube. Also he is willing to prove the feasibility of his invention by making the first trial shoot himself.

Men Make Giant Snowman

During a snowstorm in Barmen, Germany, two men conceived the idea of making a giant snowman in one of the public squares. After six hours work the two, one being an artist, completed the modeling of the head and bust of a typical German father. The figure was nearly 10 feet high, and was decorated with hat, necktie and cane, while a tiny tot in snow stood beside it. It was a work of art and "lightbeers" from many parts of Germany journeyed to see it. In spite of rain it lasted three weeks.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover On The Importance Of Food

"As truly as food is, first and last, our most important concern in life—so perhaps governing, in one of its forms or another, is the second in importance."

Mrs. Herbert Hoover makes the above statement in an interesting foreword written for the new Congressional Cook Book, recently published in Washington by wives of the President, Vice-President, members of the Supreme Court, Cabinet, Senate, House and Governors of the various States.

"Our cooking, like our governing, is done for the people and by the people," Mrs. Hoover says. "It is astonishing how closely each of the great majority of us keeps to the food and cooking habits of his own line of ancestors and how little given to experimenting to see if her neighbors and compatriots near and far have better ways." With recipes from wives of foreign legations, Mrs. Hoover suggests that Americans may fancy they are dining in an embassy in the Capitol or in some representative home in foreign country.

To get the best results with these dishes, as with all dishes, it is important to use quality food for the ingredients. You will find new table delights and find that a real food economy can be had while choosing for quality. Just as no two peas are alike in our gardens, different grades of canned peas on the market differ, and the best quality of peas are best for most dishes. It is not necessary, of course, to use the best grade of peas for pea soup or a purée. The large peas of standard grade are the proper ones for these purposes.

Distinguished Dishes Here are some of the dishes described by members of the diplomatic corps.

Tomato Pie. (From Hon. Alexander W. Weddell, Consul General of the United States at Mexico City.) Line a baking dish with eight layers of breaded tomatoes, may be used. Mix one cup tomato pulp, one small can corn, one cup ripe olives, cut in pieces, one-half cup chili sauce, one table-spoon olive oil, one table-spoon Worcestershire sauce, and two cups cooked chicken cut in large pieces, and salt to taste. Pour into dish and cover with one cup grated cheese. Bake in oven for 30 minutes.

Chicken Salad. (From Senatoria Carmen Teresa Grisanti, daughter-in-law of Dr. Carlos E. Grisanti, Minister of Venezuela to Washington.) One chicken, clean, pour a small amount of boiling water over it and cut up the chicken. Parboil the chicken and cut into very small pieces. Put in a bowl and add a little oil to it some vinegar and salt. Turn off the tips of the asparagus and keep for trimming. Slice some mayonnaise and mix one-half with the chicken. For peas, use an asparagus. Place in a hot dish cover with the remaining portion of the mayonnaise and adorn with the asparagus tips.

Mr. Taxpayer:

*Paid taxes mean safety
for you and yours*

HAVE you ever stopped to think this matter of paying taxes to its ultimate reality, Mr. Taxpayer? Have you ever considered what your tax money buys for you, where it goes after it leaves your pocket?

WHAT protects you when fire glares its red menace at your loved ones in the deep of night? What withholds the hands of the sneak thief, the burglar and the murderer from your home? What makes it safe for your children and women to walk the streets of the city? What protects you from stealthy encroachments of disease? Your tax money does just that for you every day, Mr. Taxpayer! That and a whole lot more.

Think that over! Your very LIFE hinges on the payment of these taxes

PERHAPS you will say "We taxpayers can't stand this burden. Let the city borrow money to run on until we can pay." Very well. Grant that it is possible for the city to borrow this money. Then what? Only one thing. Your taxes, that you think are high this year will be higher next year for borrowed money bears interest and must eventually be repaid.

BESIDES, Mr. Taxpayer, the city's borrowing power, its credit, depends upon the payment of your taxes. If your taxes aren't paid, the city's credit is impaired. Bond houses will not buy refinancing bonds from cities whose citizens are not willing to help themselves out of a tight place by paying their taxes promptly. If the bond houses will not buy the City of Sanford's bonds, Mr. Taxpayer, you're going to suffer. Just what will happen? No one knows.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

IN PLEASANT PLACES:—The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup; thou maintainest my lot. The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage.—Psalm 134.

PRAYER:—Lord, Thou makest us to lie down in green pastures, Thou restorest my soul.

The political pot is boiling. Cattle last week, Carson Tuesday, Carlton Wednesday, Martin Thursday! Next!

We can't see but what Senator Martin is about as euphonic as Senator Trammell.

If you can't get out and hear the candidates you might at least register and pay your poll tax.

Wonder what George Merrick could say if he knew Burton Rank is posing as an official of the Gables.

If Jim Carson keeps on chasing cats around the state someone liable to accuse him of being one of the hounds.

The Science Department of the Daytona Beach Tub has reached the following solution: "Knock news may be few, but they're not far between."

Some people are just beginning to realize what all those mortgage transfers to Sidney J. Catts for the Seminole Court Bank, just after it closed, indicate.

They are raising celery west of Titusville and the Star Advocate says that it is good. Other sections are beginning to experiment with Sanford's white gold.

Dr. W. A. MacKenzie of Leesburg is wondering if Mr. Catts' alliance truck has a racing engine. He fears it has, and it is also making tracks all over this state.

He does delight to bark and bite. The little birds to sing; but men delight to work and fight. And brag like everything. Bradenton Herald. Ain't it the truth?

What Sanford would like to know is: "Who got all those fifty dollar bills fast before the Seminole Bank was turned over to the late examiner?" Orlando Reporter Star.

Sure enough the market crashed Tuesday and the day after General Motors made its last climb of four points, it suddenly dropped eighteen at the first hour of trading. If you were lucky, you sold Monday.

We find among local candidates some promising tax reduction who are notorious for their former extravagances with the people's money. It's an interesting study in psychology, these campaign promises.

Down in Miami they are having a gas war and are selling the bid for fifteen cents a gallon. In that case, we suppose the profiteers are the profiteers. Gainesville Sun Getting down to the prohibition phase, huh?

Billy Sunday has recommended that he be killed when he dies. His bid to get off and tanned and then drum home. He has a few other desires, that these drums made from his hide, be beaten by his followers, up and down city streets, until the devil trying to beat in Hell is driven crazy by the noise. Doesn't it beat the band now Billy goes on sometimes?

WIFE TO STAY. Florida is a state now remind us. We should be at our roads to stay. And depart, leave behind us. Finds that rains don't wash away.

When our children pay the mortgage. Fathers must to hand their heads. They'll not have to ask the question: "How?"

Here's the bug, but where's the road? GEORGE H. VAN PELT

The Issues Presented

Sanford citizens have within the past few days had the pleasure of hearing three of the four leading candidates for the office of governor. Within the next week Foss Hathaway will in all probability arrive to present his side of the case. The issues of this campaign are gradually becoming clearly defined and assuming proportions which to say the least are interesting.

The disgusting spectacle presented last Friday by that asthmatic performer, Sidney J. Catts, when he, with revolting bombast and sordid allusions, made his appeal for vote on the strength of promiscuous lies, has, we have every reason to believe, eliminated that candidate from the race so far as Seminole County is concerned. Our citizens are not enclous enough to approve such conduct, or stupid enough not to see him exactly as he is.

On the other hand, the two gentlemen who have spoken here in behalf of their candidacies, have left the people a very favorable impression. They have appealed to almost everyone with the marked degree of their sincerity and with the importance of the issues which they are raising. They are both logical thinkers and fluent speakers.

Mr. Carson in his address on Tuesday night very ably disposed of the "big, bad man from the wide open spaces" of western Florida. And he proved beyond all question of doubt that the races, while amusing and harmless enough in themselves, create a dangerous situation ruinous to the people in their vicinity and disastrous to the city where they are located. He has also shown that races and their attendant evil of gambling is an issue of this campaign.

The gentleman from Tampa turned his big guns on the Road Department. He did not charge graft and corruption, only waste and extravagance. But if the figures he cited are correct—and he has the reputation of being an honorable man—Mr. Hathaway's cars must be enameled with gold and the stones of our roads must come from diamond quarries. We are told, for example, that it cost more to repair a car than to buy a new one.

No doubt, Mr. Hathaway has some explanation for this. We cannot believe that, during a period when the people of Florida have been depressed on account of unstable financial conditions, the Chairman of the State Road Department would be careless with their money. The people of Sanford will wait patiently and anxiously to hear the other side of the argument before they pass judgement on the Road Department Chairman.

Modesty In Politics

Time was when the egotist was deplored. Conceit was regarded as a fault comparable to deceit, and modesty was something of a quality. As in everything else, it seems, times have changed. We hear men talking about themselves, boasting of their prowess in athletics, or their great mental capacity, or their something or other, and we think nothing of it. We have become hardened to it.

But sometimes a man comes along who is of the old school. He does not think that because he happens to be outstanding in one particular field of endeavor that he is better than anyone else. He does not think that because he happened to be a precocious child that he is a genius as a man. Or because he is a lawyer or a doctor of unusual ability, that he knows more about everything than anybody else.

Such a man is Senator Tom Walsh of Montana. Walsh is one of the foremost Democrats in the Senate, in fact in the whole country. He is chairman of the Senate Committee investigating the sordid scandal of the Teapot Dome affair. He has done more than any other one man to free our country from corruption and to bring to justice those responsible for this revolting blot on the pages of our history.

Yet Senator Walsh is not "Big I, Little You." He thinks no more of his achievement than we would of walking to town. He made a speech recently in Columbia, South Carolina. This is the way the Columbia State Journal reported what he said:

"What kind of people inhabit Montana?" "A strange kind of man, a senator, came here from Montana and delivered a strange kind of political speech."

"He spoke an hour and 10 minutes. No one left. Frequently he was applauded. Young people, as well as old, listened and can tell what he said."

"In an hour and 10 minutes not once did this United States senator say 'I'."

"He did not speak of himself at all."

"He did not mention his 'record'."

"He did not mention his 'enemies'."

"He did not use the word 'liar' or 'scoundrel' or 'robber'."

"He did not tell a joke."

"He did not 'pay a tribute to the ladies.'"

"He tore no passion to tatters. He scarcely used a figure of speech. He made no clever phrases, no epigrams."

"He did not denounce, or mention 'Wall Street,' or the 'Money Power.' He did not denounce at all."

"Not roaring, he spoke at times with vehemence, with gesturing, easy and graceful, not extravagant."

"The leader and principal actor in the historic rejection of Mr. Warren by the senate, he told it just as though he had been a reporter in the gallery."

"He put into words no conclusion; in orderly, clear, closely articulated sentences, he marshalled facts, leaving his hearers to infer and conclude."

"He spoke as an advocate of the average man against government by wealth, without anger, without harshness, in about the manner and terms that one would expect a lawyer of the first rank representing a great corporation to use in addressing the supreme court with no end in view but to convince the court and get the decision."

"He was master of his subject; he knew what he was talking about. Every man and woman of his audience carried away what he said."

"As interesting as is the senator himself is the inquiry, what kind of people are there, wheatgrowers, herdsmen, copper and silver miners scattered over a mountain state three times as large as South Carolina, who send to Washington an informed thinker and publicist?"

"Would South Carolina rally to a man who did not denounce, or joke, who had too much respect for them and for himself to 'speak down to them.'"

"What kind of people inhabit Montana?"

CAMPAIGN "LITERATURE"

TAMPA TRIBUNE

An obscene card, so vile that it is guilty of this insult to common sense, would be immediately barred from the mails, as being circulated in Tampa, with the heading: "Don't Be Misled; Catts Will Be Governor."

We do not believe that the Reverend Mr. Catts knows of this card and its circulation in his interest. He ought to be advised of it, so that he may check those of his local supporters who are

This card, however, prompts the suggestion that it comes from the class of people to whom Mr. Catts has been making specific appeal recently for support those who have little respect for law, who believe in violating it, and hope that his election as Governor will allow them to violate it. He has himself made the plea to this element that, if elected, he will favor "local option" in horse racing and other things prohibited by the statutes of the state. Making this plea, he should not be surprised if he receives support of the type manifested by the current obscenity.

Mrs. Miller Honors Guest With Party

An unusually lovely as well as delightful bridge party given this season was that of Wednesday afternoon when Mrs. Frank L. Miller entertained at her home on Magnolia Avenue honoring her house guest Mrs. Lulu Clay of Jacksonville. Sharing honors with Mrs. Clay was Mrs. George Camden Conger of Oklahoma City, Okla., the house guest of Mrs. Walter S. Coleman.

The spirit of Spring prevailed in the rooms where the tables had been placed for play. Quantities of pastel tinted Spring flowers, combined with ferns were arranged with pleasing effect in wall baskets, bowls and wicker baskets.

Tables done in Florida scenes were used in keeping with the theme of the progressive bridge. These were distributed by Mrs. James P. Ridge. When the fifth progressive had been concluded, the first prize a lovely green vase, was awarded Mrs. W. B. Zachry. In cutting the consolation prize, a lemon dish and fork, Mrs. L. P. McCuller was the lucky one. Mrs. Clay was given a set of novel bridge score pads and tallies, while Mrs. Conger received a unique powder jar.

At the tea hour, the hostess assisted by Mrs. David L. Thrasher, Mrs. Samuel Palestine, Mrs. Walter S. Coleman and Mrs. Ridge served a tempting salad and tea course.

Enjoying the cordial hospitality of Mrs. Miller were Mrs. Lulu Clay, Mrs. George Camden Conger, Mrs. Walter S. Coleman, Mrs. David L. Thrasher, Mrs. Samuel Palestine, Mrs. L. P. McCuller, Mrs. W. B. Zachry, Mrs. Harold Viole, Mrs. Ernest Housholder, Mrs. Cassandra Schultz, Mrs. Anna Hartzog of Newark, N. J., Mrs. W. J. Thayer, Mrs. Donald P. Drummond, Mrs. A. E. Wallace, Mrs. W. 9 CENT GASOLINE FOR SANFORD

A startling announcement that will be welcomed by the readers of this paper is the perfection of an invention that practically cuts gasoline cost in half. In actual test one gallon of gas has been made to run a car 50 miles. Thousands of cars have been equipped and owners report amazing gasoline savings, more power, instant starting, quicker pick up and disappearance of carbon. So that this invention can be installed on every car. E. Oliver, 2552 N. Third St., Milwaukee, Wis. is seeking men in different localities to handle exclusive territory for him. If those interested he will explain his $5,000 a year offer. Write him for his proposition.
