1,000 walk for charity

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

The morning was cool and breezy, perfect for walking, though it warmed quickly.
At 7:30 Saturday, a crowd of nearly 1,000 gathered outside the gymnasium at Seminole Community College amid blaring music and hundreds of balloons to start the 10 mile trek through Lake Mary neighborhoods to raise money for the March of Dimes.
"We were very excited to see all these people out here this morning," Meggen Wilson of the March of Dimes, said shortly after the throngs took off.
Some walked rapidly, others lumbered along at a leisurely pace. There were bicyclists, roller skaters, joggers and little ones being towed in strollers and wagons.

Hundreds take part in Lake Mary race

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary Rotary Club celebrated the environment by bringing as much of the community as they could entice out of doors for their Earth Day celebration on Saturday.
"This has been a great opportunity for us," said Roger Campbell, president of the club. "We're able to bring people together from all over the community to just spend the day outside having fun."
The celebration began early in the morning with a 5K run through the Timacuan community. More than 400 racers donned their running togs and laced up their running shoes for the short course.
"That was a big fun raiser for us," Campbell said. "We had all kinds of people involved in that."
The festivities moved to the Siemens Stomberg-Carlson complex later in the day where a tent filled with various displays, including the art work of Lake Mary school children, based on an environmental theme.
"The children were invited to show off their talents for us," Campbell said. "We will judge the art work later and present some."

Yard trash gone, county mystified

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County officials have a mystery on their hands.
They've done some sleuthing. They've written letters. The mystery: What happened to millions of pounds of yard waste?
In March, only one truckload of yard waste was brought to the Seminole County dump for disposal. Residents were beginning to cut their lawns and start their Spring clean up. About 623,400 lbs of yard waste was brought directly to the county dump by residents or commercial haulers, said county recycling coordinator Sherry Newkirk.
Another 1.3 million lbs was taken to the Sanlando transfer station near Altamonte Springs.
But county officials find it difficult to accept only one truckload of yard waste was picked up by one of the county's five franchised haulers. Nearly 2.4 million pounds was brought to the dump in February.
"It's very interesting," said County Manager Ron Rabun. "It would be improper to assign a characteristic to what is going on here. We're just investigating what is going on."
Wednesday, the county sent letters to the five haulers asking for details on their yard waste collections last month. They were given 10 days to respond.
"If there's a reasonable reason, we want to hear it," said Rabun.
Rabun said county solid waste staff even followed one yard waste truck to a Longwood tree service that accepts yards waste, but said they weren't sure if the truck was a county franchise hauler.
"We're not set up for that kind of thing," Rabun said when asked about "undercover" detective work. "We saw one truck go to the place in Longwood, but we're not sure whether it was one of our trucks or not."
The tree service said it does accept yard waste, but not in bags.
The county's garbage haulers say there's no secret, residents just aren't placing their yard waste by the curb and paying the $1 per bag rate.
"We only sold 677 tags during the entire month of March," said Tom White, of DisposAll, Orlando. "That's about one truck load. I know where it is. It's in people's back yards, piling up. They're waiting for the county to drop the one dollar charge then they'll dump it all on us. I get calls every day. They say 'I'm not going to pay for any tags, I'll just wait.'"
County commissioners are considering changing the current $1 "bag tag" program to including yard waste with the regular monthly charge. Too many residents have complained about the expense and they decided last month their three-month-old program is a failure.
Ornella McFadden of Sure Sanitation Service agreed with White.

Best of county math pupils to compete

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The best and brightest mathematicians in Seminole County elementary and middle schools will be competing against one another at Seminole Community College on Monday.
The top five students from each district school in grades one through six will be represented at the Math Superstars competition.
"These are the best of the best," said Dede Schaffner, director of the district Dividends program which sponsors the Math Superstars program. "They have competed at the classroom level and at the school level and now they're going on to the top."
Schaffner said that the students in the Math Superstars program are coached by community volunteers who help the students with everything from exploring the basic concepts to finding innovative ways of solving problems.
The volunteers work in conjunction with the classroom teacher to supplement lessons.
Every student in first through sixth grade is eligible for the Math Superstars program, but those who successfully complete the most problems each week are eligible to go on to the higher levels of competition. The math work is voluntary for the students.
Schaffner said that those students who do participate in the program show improvement in their math skills.
There will be more than 700 youngsters participating in the contest on Monday.
Schaffner said that the Math Superstars program has been in use in Seminole County schools for many years. It is a response to the state's math enrichment programs.

Downtown Sanford theater 'saviors' to meet today

By NICK PFEINAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Old-time theater goers will gather Sunday. Of singular concern is the remembrance of the old Ritz Theatre at 2nd Street and Magnolia Avenue in downtown Sanford.
Rod Loyer, of Triangle Productions, has been working for weeks to establish a meeting of people who can recall what the theater looked like, inside as well as outside, in the days when it was the entertainment center of Sanford.
The meeting is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce conference room, 400 E. First Street.
In addition to obtaining information regarding the former appearance of the building, Loyer wants to hear from people who might be willing to work on the project. "We will be needing people to serve on committees to look into grant programs, and entry in the historical register," he said.

Loyer observed, "In order to get this listed on the register, we must have the building at least 60 percent restored into its original condition." He added, "This is going to be difficult."
He explained, "For example, we couldn't use it for live entertainment as it is at present because there are no dressing rooms. We have to look into establishing them without using more than the allotted 40 percent for changes."

Loyer said he would like to have some committees established that would have some expertise on these problems as well as other needs. "It would be a shame to lose our ability to obtain grants if we don't fully adhere to the requirements," he said.
At the present time, the theater is owned by David Pearlman, but Loyer said, "Mr. Pearlman still intends to donate it to us for use as a theater, but we have to establish everything we will do with it first."
In addition to Triangle Productions, Loyer also operates Triangle Players, a separate non-profit company that puts on theatrical performances which Loyer believes would be an excellent use for the old Ritz Theater once it is restored.

SANFORD — The Seminole County Boys and Girls Club will be presenting a variety of low cost programs this summer.

"We try to have a variety of things for kids to do when school is not in session," Nona Grampp, communications director of the Central Florida Boys and Girls Clubs. "There is a real need to have the children occupied during the time when school is not in session."

Though Goldsboro Elementary School, 1300 W. 20th St., Sanford, will go to the modified school calendar and begin classes on July 20, the West Sanford Boys and Girls Club will have programs as well.

The West Sanford Club is located at 919 Persimmon Ave., Sanford.

Youngsters will enjoy supervised activities like arts and crafts, sports, games tournaments, movies and health activities.

In addition, they'll take field trips to places like the Central Florida Zoo, Wet 'N' Wild, Loch Haven Park in Orlando and the Train Museum in Orlando.

"The cost is subsidized by the United Way so we can keep the cost low for the families," Grampp said.

At the West Sanford club participants, ages six to 15, must pay the $1 annual membership fee to participate. The cost for the programs is $5 for each two week session, which includes free breakfast and lunch for each child.

The program at Midway Elementary School, 2251 Jitway Ave., Sanford, is available for children six to 12 years old, for the $1 annual fee. Free breakfasts will be served daily.

The Winwood Extension at New Bethel AME Church, 307 Marker St., Altamonte Springs, will have the same program.

"Children are ensured a safe, fun environment all summer long," Grampp said. "The clubs are staffed with full-time professionals and trained part-timers."

Phony gift

In his State of the Union message in January, President Bush announced that he was altering income tax withholding tables to put a few more dollars in workers' paychecks.

This was supposed to stimulate spending and boost the economy. But millions of Americans are having nothing to do with it. They are besieging personnel and payroll offices, adjusting W-4 forms to keep their income tax withholding at the old levels.

They recognize Bush's gift for what it was: a politically inspired invitation to borrow from tomorrow to spend today. Changing the tax withholding tables reduces the amount taken out of each worker's paycheck but does not lower anyone's tax liability.

It means that people who typically come out even when they file their tax return or who owe money to the government, are being given money to spend now that they will have to repay come next April; those who usually get refunds can get the money piecemeal, a few dollars a week, instead of in one chunk next spring.

The White House has greeted the march to revise W-4 forms with a sneer.

"It's a sad commentary that people would rather give the government an interest-free loan because they don't have the self-discipline to put the money in a savings account," a White House spokesman said.

But it was the president himself who was counting on lack of self-discipline to buoy spending before the election and make the economic numbers look better in November. The pile of W-4 forms on the payroll clerk's desk is a sign that Americans have more self-discipline and common-sense opinions about how to save than the White House thinks.

Ice-free for air safety

The cause of the crash of a USAir commuter jet that killed 27 people at New York's LaGuardia Airport has yet to be firmly established, but a dangerous buildup of ice on the wings is strongly suspected to be, if not the primary cause, at least a contributing factor. Just a light dusting of snow or a thin coating of ice on an aircraft's wing can distort its shape, sharply reducing lift during take-offs.

This was not the first such crash believed to have been caused by ice on a plane's wings. Over the past decade more than 100 people have died in 29 ice-related airline accidents. Thus, the Federal Aviation Administration's invitation to airlines, governments and technical agencies from around the world to attend a conference on aircraft icing in May is welcome.

Critics of the FAA say that for many years European airlines have used a more effective de-icing fluid than the one most commonly used in this country. A Canadian commission that studied a 1989 ice-related accident similar to the LaGuardia crash recommended using the more powerful fluid.

The panel also called for de-icing facilities at airports to be moved closer to runways so that, during snowy or freezing weather, there's less chance for ice to form while a plane is waiting to take off.

The Airline Pilots Association makes that same recommendation, and has objected to what it considers undue reliance on visual inspection by pilots to ensure that aircraft wings are free of dangerous ice buildup.

The USAir pilot, who died in the LaGuardia crash, was expected to be able to determine from his cockpit, at night and in a snowstorm, whether his wings were ice-free. For three years the pilots' association has urged airlines, airports and the FAA to station inspectors at the end of taxiways during inclement weather to help pilots check for ice.

The FAA says that some of the remedies proposed by its critics pose safety and environmental hazards of their own. Nonetheless, the agency's acting administrator, Barry Harris, concedes, "There's a lot of information out there and nobody's brought it together."

May's conference is meant to do that. Before winter comes again, the public deserves more assurance from the airline industry and the air safety regulators that everything possible is being done to maximize the safety of flight crews and passengers when temperatures drop and the snow starts to fall.

Oviedo is growing and changing

Evidence of Oviedo's growth is also apparent in the political arena. Prior to redrawing the precinct lines Oviedo had two precincts, 5 and 55. However, with the dramatic increases in population three additional precincts have been created. They are precincts: 85, 98 and 100.

Mayor David E. Knickerbocker indicated that Oviedo's population expansion has surpassed that of Apopka, Longwood and Mattland. Oviedo plans carefully for growth to avoid many of the pitfalls other communities have experienced. Concomitant with growth is the recognition of the need for additional city services, recreational activities and educational facilities. Oviedo's population is less than 15,000. Of that number 10 percent are African-Americans, 5 percent Hispanic and 85 percent caucasian. It is anticipated that Oviedo's population will reach 50,000 by the turn of the century.

In January 1992, the city of Oviedo observed its first official Martin Luther King holiday. A parade and service at Antioch Baptist Church marked the observance. Activities were organized by Oviedo's Black Ministerial Alliance.

The young population speaks to the need for increased educational facilities. Stenstrom Elementary School is practically new and Partin Elementary School opened in November. Jackson Heights Middle School was originally a school for African-American children, grades K-12. The advent of school desegregation transformed Jackson Heights to a middle school.

SEMINOLE OPINION

LURLENE SWEETING

Jackson Heights has been nationally recognized for the excellence of its educational programs. Oviedo High School is also a source of community pride. This year, Oviedo's basketball team won the state championship.

John Overstreet, C.L.T., is the Recreation and Parks director. Overstreet is a graduate of the University of West Florida, Pensacola. He majored in health, leisure and sports science and minored in accounting and information systems.

Knickerbocker affirms that the young staff members they have assembled are performing extremely well. Linda Dennis, C.P.A. is the city's financial director and was recently certified as a "government finance officer," one of eleven in the entire state.

The new recreation facility was built on land donated by one of the developers. The center serves all age groups. Seven regular employees comprise the center's staff. During the summer this number increases to approximately forty counselors and lifeguards. Health and Rehabilitative Services requires a ratio of one adult to every twelve children

Mindful of cost, the recreation program's goal is to be self-sustaining. Consequently, user fees are charged for most activities. The user fee for residents is less than for non-residents.

Riverside Park is a beehive of activities by the Recreation and Parks Department. Some of the activities are: Children's Luncheon Theater, Tot Drop-in the Park, Kids in the Kitchen, cheerleading, karate, baton lessons, Pee Wee (ages 4-5), basketball, basic tumbling (pre-school to 3rd grade and creative dancing for the same age group.

Continuing: aquatics, Red Cross lifeguard training, Red Cross swimming lessons, Blue Dolphin swim team and Team Night at the Pool. The pool is very popular and is used by the high school. They have been requested to host the Golden Age Games swimming contests.

Adult activities are: tennis, racquetball league, aerobics and senior series of movies and dinners.

The state-of-the-art baseball complex is the single largest in central Florida and from July 6-10, 1992 will be hosting the Metro-Orlando ASA Men's Class C Tournament.

Knickerbocker believes that Oviedo's growth and services to its residents will not only continue to meet their needs but provide the very best for all of the residents.

Leona Helmsley due mercy?

BOSTON — In the wee hours of April 15, when the average mathphobic American taxpayer was still desperately rummaging among little piles of receipts for some last-minute reduction, a car pulled up to a prison gate in Lexington, Ky. Out of it emerged Leona Helmsley, the most famous and scorned tax-evader since Al Capone.

If you think the timing of Mrs. Helmsley's incarceration was an accident — a mere astrological coincidence — take a rebate for credulity. What the hell, take two, they're small.

The April 15th date for Leona's appointment in Lexington was designed to send a chill up the pen of any taxpayer who has ever thought about charging lunch with mom as a business expense. It was a pre-emptive strike against any deep, dank, dark suspicion that the very rich do not pay taxes like thee, me and a White House canine author named Millie.

After all, the most famous line attributed to Leona in every story about the hotel magnate's trial and conviction was that "only the little people pay taxes." Now the big lady was in the slammer. Gotcha!

Well, forgive me if I don't join the cheering squad at the prison gate. I am no card-carrying member of the Leona Helmsley Defense Committee. I am grateful that I never worked for her. I thought the ads she ran as the self-styled queen of the Helmsley Hotels were a tacky tribute to one woman's hubris. Even worse than Lee Iacocca's.

But I never thought one woman's comeuppance — or should I say come-down-ance — would be a cause of such celebration. It's as if everyone but her lawyers got high on seeing Leona brought low.

"How the mighty are fallen from penthouse luxury to the prison cell," said one wire story. "Leona Helmsley won't find mints on her pillow when she checks into federal prison," gloated another.

There were loving reports about the rich lady's new designer wardrobe — blue top and blue pants or white blouse and black skirt. There were details about her decidedly spartan accommodations: a room for 32 with a bunk bed, a desk, a locker and chair to call her own. Even the warden helped by suggesting that Leona's hotel experience would qualify her to mop floors.

Come on. Nobody's gotten this sort of treatment since Marie Antoinette lost her crown the hard way. And she wasn't around to see it.

Admittedly, when any wealthy person clashes with the law, somebody thinks the rich and famous get off easier and somebody thinks they have it harder. Willie Smith's supporters believe he never would have been indicted if his middle name weren't Kennedy. The detractors believe he was acquitted for the same reason. Mike Tyson fans are sure his money was the real target. The rest are relieved that he got convicted despite it.

In fact, the rich are not treated like the rest of us. They get better lawyers and worse publicity. They rarely end up on death row, getting executed. They often end up on page one, getting trashed. Add Leona to the bin.

There is nothing more popular in a democracy than a story of the rise from rags to riches. Unless it is a story of the fall from riches to prison. And unless it is the story of the fall of an uppity woman to a name, and serial number: 15113-054.

Do I think Leona dunnit? Yup. But do I think there is more than a soupcon of sexism in the way the IRS made an example of her, and in the way the public takes joy at her come-down-ance? You betcha.

It is not just gender police who think that the threshold of arrogance is lower from women. Or who think that one gender's "tough bitch" is another gender's strong, demanding leader. Women are judged more on relationships, and Leona flunked that course in personnel management.

"My one crime," she said, "was being Leona Helmsley." Well, not quite. But in the end it was the crime that counted the most in the public arena. It got her the most hate, the least mercy.

Leona Helmsley tried to get away with $1.7 million. She paid it back, in dollars — and in spades. She's 71 years old. She lost her only child a while back. Her husband and partner was protected from prosecution because he's ill. She's got hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure and a four-year sentence in the can.

So how about a little charity? Why not? It's tax deductible.

It got her the most hate, the least mercy.

Former speaker's journal sensitive

FORTH WORTH, Texas — The private journals of former House Speaker Jim Wright suggest that in the U.S. Congress all politics is personal.

Over the years, for example, Wright heaped more scorn on fellow Texan Phil Gramm than his public nemesis, Newt Gingrich, R-Ga. Wright viewed Gramm as traitorous for bolting the Democratic Party to run for the Senate as a Republican.

On the other hand, Wright reveals that he was rooting for Republican leader Bob Michel's re-election from Peoria in 1982 because he was a man whose word was his bond. It was this breakdown in trust between colleagues that Wright laments most loudly over the decade in his writings. He recounts commiserating with former Speaker Tip O'Neill about the new breed taking root in politics.

They don't seem to honor the same code that he grew up with.

"I think the Speaker (Tip O'Neill) is baffled," one journal entry reads. "He doesn't understand what makes these fellows tick. They don't seem to honor the same code that he grew up with and that I grew up with. Betty (Wright's second wife) tells me this is a problem of mine. I really ought to cultivate a closer understanding of the way these young fellows think if I'm going to be a leader for them."

Since his forced resignation in 1989 after an ethics probe into his dealings with savings and loan operators, Wright has been a visiting professor at Texas Christian University with an office in downtown Fort Worth.

Wright recently allowed our associate Dale Van Atta unprecedented access to more than a decade of his private journals, including his tenure as Speaker of the House. Most have notations that they are to remain sealed for another 20 years. They offer a kind of perspective for sitting congressmen, dozens of whom are bolting back to private life.

Not surprisingly, Wright singles out Gingrich as a danger to the institution of the House of Representatives, a man lacking respect for its traditions, a man who needed to be tamed. But in one benign entry, shortly after he became Speaker of the House, Wright waxed magnanimous:

"He has made something of a career of being anti-institutional. He lays back in the weeds and snipes at the leadership sometimes. But he is a brilliant fellow; he is sharp. He has a keen mind and tactical skills. ... I guess I have a feeling that I would like Newt, if I knew him better. I have that feeling about a lot of people." Gingrich lodged the original ethics complaints against Wright.

Wright's portrait of would-be Gingrich-tamer Tom Foley suggests he is not the man who can do it. In Wright's journals, Foley is viewed as a man who perfectly "complements and supplements" then-Speaker Wright's exuberance and sometimes impetuosity. The worst he says about Foley is that the man is "cautious," which Wright considered a compliment.

The journals indicate that Gingrich might have been handled more harshly if not for House Minority Leader Bob Michel, whom Wright singles out in almost saintly praise.

Wright's journal entry for Nov. 1, 1982: "Let me say something quite frankly and maybe it would be misunderstood by some people. I hope Bob Michel does win. Not that I have any ill feeling toward his opponent, the Democrat. (But Michel) is an honorable man and if he tells me something, he will do it. I like to work with a man like that. I trust him. I think he is a thoroughly honorable and decent person."

Wright even served as Michel's apologist when he turned acrimonious.

At Friday's graduation ceremony at Seminole Community College in Sanford, 275 students were awarded their associate degrees in a variety of academic subjects.

Woman, 72, finally earns a degree along with 274 other SCC grads

By VICKI BOESCHNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — It has been a long, difficult journey for Beverly "BJ" Southwick, but she has reached a victory and is going on to others.

At 72, Southwick, a resident of Bram Towers in Sanford, earned her associate of science degree cum laude from Seminole Community College on Friday night.

She was one of 275 graduates to walk across the stage to receive her diploma. The gymnasium was filled to capacity with family and friends of the graduates many with video cameras to record the event.

Seminole Community College has one graduation ceremony a year though students may complete their work throughout the year.

Southwick, with a major in marketing and a minor in geriatric psychology, said she is ready to help the people who care about her and, some day, to earn her bachelors degree in geriatric psychology from the University of Central Florida.

Southwick said that she knows a lot about psychology. As an openly-acknowledged incest survivor who is schizophrenic and who until a year ago suffered multiple personality disorders, she said her battle to find herself has been a long painful one.

"When you have the kind of background I do," she said, "you learn to think very little of yourself."

She said that her father sexually and physically abused her from the time she was four years old and her mother often verbally abused her as well.

She said that at a very early age she learned that she could create a better reality for herself by allowing several other personalities, four in all, to emerge within herself. Still, her self-image was not good.

She said that abysmal self-esteem caused her to attempt suicide in 1960. The failed effort left her partially paralyzed and with some brain damage.

"I have some learning disabilities that make it difficult for me to retain some information," she said.

Southwick said that the learning disabilities forced her to attempt no more than two classes at a time.

She began classes in 1988 in order to update her knowledge of accounting to help her in her job as an accounting specialist for the package store at the Orlando Naval Training Center.

"And I wanted to prove my mother wrong," she said. "She always called me stupid and bad."

What she lacked in love at home throughout her life, first with her parents, then through two failed marriages and a strained relationship with her two daughters, she has found among her friends at Bram Towers.

"I've never felt the kind of love that I have experienced the four years that I've lived here," she said. "I can't describe how good it feels."

On Friday her friends hosted a party for her at Bram Towers in honor of her graduation. She was presented with cards and letters of encouragement and a photo album decorated with lace, flowers and the Seminole Community College logo.

"I'm going to get photos of everyone here," she said. "After all, they helped me find myself."

Southwick said she hopes to be able to work with the residents at Bram Towers and with other seniors who have experienced some trauma in their lives and who are lonely and need some help.

"I want to help them find who they are and help them live with that," she said.

Before she returns to school to pursue her bachelors degree, Southwick said she has decided to complete her autobiography. The work is part of her therapy.

She said her psychiatrist recommended that she do it, she said. "And I find that it has helped me complete my search."

"I get this great attitude from him," she said with a smile.

Southwick said she has come to accept herself for what she is and is glad that her neighbors are doing that as well.

"I am very happy at this point in my life," she said.

Housing for low income tied to planned to Heathrow mall

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

HEATHROW — Developers of Heathrow Town Centre may be required to show that 580 apartments and homes for low- and very-low income residents are available for their proposed 1.2 million square foot mall north of here.

Attorneys for the mall developers, including Jeno Paulucci and The Hahn Co., are reviewing a settlement proposal put forth by the Florida Department of Community Affairs to end their January 1991 appeal of the proposed mall.

The FDCA, later joined by the Sanford Housing Authority Resident Council Inc., asserted the developers did not prove there was adequate affordable housing near the mall to serve the mall store employees. Another January 1991 appeal by the East Central Regional Planning Council will be dropped after council members decided two months ago to enforce a regional policy that led to the appeal.

Attorneys for the developers rejected an earlier FDCA proposal to have the Florida Atlantic University-Florida International University Joint Center for Environmental and Urban Problems conduct the study. The center is directed by John DeGrove, "guru" of Florida's growth management legislation.

"They provide a wonderful planning tool," said mall attorney Harry Stewart, former attorney for Orange County. "But in the past, they have been oblivious to the cost to the public. We'd like to have someone who's a little more sensitive to the needs of the private businessman."

Stewart said the FDCA proposal is still under review by mall consultants, but he expects a settlement within a period of weeks.

The proposal calls for the developers to assure there are at least 369 affordable housing units available for very-low-paid employees and 221 units for low-income employees. Very-low income was defined as less than a $19,450 annual income for a family of four. Low-income was defined as $19,450 to $31,100 annually for a family of four.

Stewart said a similar study completed two years ago by developers of nearby Seminole Towne Center showed there was adequate affordable housing in the area for that mall. The study also indicated there may be enough additional affordable housing for the Heathrow mall, Stewart said.

"What they're requiring of us goes way beyond what they required for the Sanford mall," said Stewart. "We may have to pay something, but it will be fairly small."

Chiles' wife's hiring of aide questioned

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's first lady Rhea Chiles hired a family friend as a $19,000-a-year personal aide despite a hiring freeze ordered by the Legislature, but a spokeswoman said Saturday the vacancy was created by a transfer and needed to be filled.

Mrs. Chiles passed over 22 other applicants, including several who met or surpassed the minimum requirements for a bachelor's degree and a year of administrative experience, to hire Kimbel Parker Orr.

Ms. Orr, 36, went to high school in Lakeland with Ed Chiles, the governor's oldest son.

She is married to Charles Orr, whose sister is married to Bud Chiles, the governor's youngest son.

She has three years of college and about nine months' previous experience working for Bud Chiles and for her husband, who manages the Governor's Inn. Bud Chiles owns the Tallahassee hotel and his father has a financial stake in it.

Senate Republican Leader

Ander Crenshaw of Jacksonville called Ms. Orr's hiring a blatant example of cronyism.

"This action raises a lot of questions about priorities in government," he told The Orlando Sentinel for Saturday editions. "I'd say it certainly sounds like it violates the hiring freeze."

Ms. Orr was hired Jan. 2, a few weeks after the Legislature met in special session to fix a budget deficit.

Medical inventor quits USF over his fake degree

Associated Press

TAMPA — An acclaimed inventor of innovative medical devices resigned from the University of South Florida after a credentials check revealed a master's degree listed on his resume was a fake.

Stephen Kovacs, assistant professor of surgery at the public university's medical school, had been credited with creating one of the world's smallest artificial heart pumps, revolutionary plastic blood vessels and a new breast implant material.

But he was forced to resign from his $67,500-a-year post last month after school officials realized he didn't have a master's degree. A University of Alabama master's diploma had been doctored from a bachelor's certificate.

Kovacs admits faking the 24-year-old diploma but blamed someone else for listing a master's degree on his resume.

He said Friday that school officials knew the year he and the university unveiled his heart pump that he didn't have a master's degree.

Junior engineers honored

LAKE MARY — A team of Lake Mary High School students recently won first place honors in both regional and state competition in the Junior Engineering and Technical Society (JETS) annual competition.

Lake Mary High School is located at 655 Longwood-Lake Mary Road, Lake Mary.

The team members include William Huttner, Douglas Johnston, Douglas McLean, Kyle Morrison, Mark Neri, Kristopher Schmidt, Vivian Shih and Naunihal Virdi.

The team coaches are chemistry teacher Clyde Hayes and physics teacher Margerite Terwilliger.

The JETS competition is a unique interdisciplinary test which includes problems incorporating math, physics, chemistry, biology, visual interpretation of information, computer science and English.

The test imitates real-life engineering problems which are addressed by teams of scientists rather than individuals.

The team will compete at the national level this weekend.

Young Authors celebration planned

High school report

Lake Mary

Allison Slater Senior

Rams have much to look forward to

LAKE MARY — Students at Lake Mary High School were reluctant to return to the old grind this week after a blissful week of Spring Break, but they found solace in their anticipation of things to come in the next month.

Seniors may be more excited than anyone at the moment. First, the senior girls are pumping up for the big showdown with the juniors at the first-ever Powder Puff football game planned for May 1.

Seniors also don't have much longer to wait for the 1992 Grad Nite at Disney World on May 8, the senior banquet, and prom, not to mention graduation and Project Graduation on June 9.

However, underclassmen have their share of things to look forward to as well, planning for the 1992-1993 school year.

Try-outs are being held soon for the new cheerleading squads, Flag Corps, Mariquette team and chorus show groups, and the elections for the new Student Government. Class offices will be held May 11-15.

It's not too early for juniors to start worrying about SAT scores and college applications while the freshmen and sophomores can soon begin rejoicing at their new, more established status in the school.

Yesterday, the LMHS Debate Team sold vidalia onions in a fund-raising effort to help pay for the overwhelming costs of attending various competitions.

If there are onions left, the team will continue to sell them this week. Interested parties should contact Mrs. Barbara Roth at the school.

Also the Future Business Leaders of America traveled to state competition this weekend in the hopes of qualifying for Nationals in Chicago this summer. Last summer, FBLA sent representatives, including the Parliamentary Procedures team, to Nationals in Anaheim, California.

Powder puffs and wills make smiles

Seminole High School's annual powder puff football game is set for May 14. This event is full of laughs, fun and lots of action.

The guys and the girls reverse traditional roles where the girls are football players and coaches and the guys are the cheerleaders! That's where the laughs come in. It's hard work and plenty of practicing, but well worth it, because such a good time is had by all. The actual kick-off time will be announced soon.

Usually, people have to pass away before their will is read, but here at Seminole, the class of '92 will have their senior wills published and read while they're still alive and kicking as they anxiously await graduation day and the departure from their alma mater.

Senior wills give seniors a chance to leave behind experiences, memories, and traits to others such as giving away the position of being a certain teacher's pet or a prime parking space. Also, the chance to be the new class clown, assign a locker, or even become the new motor mouth.

Seniors leave their mementos to friends and not so nice ones to enemies. The wills are sold as a fund-raiser and many rush to buy the first copy to see if they're fortunate enough to have inherited something. The wills go on sale towards the end of May.

The big night is a mere week away and it seems to be the main topic that keeps arising on campus. Students are making last minute plans to make Prom '92 a special night to remember. Prom is being held at the Stouffer Resort in Orlando where dinner will be served followed by a night of dancing.

It has taken a long time to plan this night in hopes of making everything picture perfect. The '92 prom theme may be "If Only For One Night," but the memories of this special event will be cherished for a life time.

Pain relief during child birth

Contrary to the teaching of some "natural child birth" advocates, labor pain is not the result of societal pressures but is physiologic, normal in origin. Obstetric analgesia-anesthesia, i.e., pain relief during labor and delivery, is unique in that it involves two lives, the mother's and that of her unborn child. Both must be considered in the selection of drugs and techniques of administration for the treatment of pain.

Although labor pain is unavoidable, severe pain should be considered a labor complication that needs treatment because it adversely affects both mother and fetus. Comparing labor pain to other types of pain it was found that it is similar in intensity to traumatic digit amputation pain.

When labor pain is severe the mother hyperventilates (breathes faster) during contractions. By so doing, she blows off too much carbon dioxide which may cause hypoventilation (slow breathing) between contractions, leading to maternal and fetal hypoxemia (lack of oxygen) and fetal stress.

Stress is a manifestation of a body and mind. In this case two of each, that are suffering. This reaction to pain is measured by the production of substances called catecholamines (adrenalin) that produce an increase in blood pressure and a faster heart beat. If this situation is not corrected it may lead to dysfunctional labor and problems for the fetus.

Therefore, pain relief for obstetric patients is becoming a routine part of anesthesia care. Parturients are assuring a more active role in the management of their pregnancy and labor, including decisions regarding anesthesia. The trend is no longer for "twilight sleep" during labor but toward anesthetic that are safe for both mother and infant and that allow the mother to participate in the delivery process.

Pain relief during labor and delivery, is unique in that it involves two lives, the mother's and that of her unborn child.

-Orlando Garcia-Piedra

There is also a barrier between mother and fetus, the placenta, which connects mom with baby allowing her to provide nutrition for her offspring and for the fetus to rid himself/herself of excrement and products of metabolism. The drugs that help the mother deal with labor pain have seductive and analgesic (pain relief) properties and most of them are capable of crossing the placenta and reaching the fetus. Some of these drugs, because of their chemical composition and the infant's inability to break them down (immature metabolic enzymes) may accumulate in the baby and lead to the birth of a depressed newborn who may not "perform" 100 percent.

There are non pharmacologic (no drugs) methods of pain relief during labor that take advantage of the ability to attenuate the perception of pain by altering levels of anxiety, diffusing attention away from painful stimuli. There are several different psychophysical techniques, but the most commonly used ones are natural and prepared childbirth. These methods all involve educating women about childbirth and teaching techniques of distraction (e.g. breathing exercises during contractions). Anxiety reduces pain tolerance so by decreasing anxiety the perception of pain may be lessened. This method however requires lengthy prenatal preparation and frequently may require the supplemental use of drugs to relieve pain. In this case, it is essential that this is not viewed as a failure by the parturient to deal normally with her labor.

Only regional anesthesia can completely remove labor pain. As a result, epidurals have been called the Cadillac of obstetric anesthesia. An epidural block is accomplished by inserting a thin catheter through a needle placed in the lower back of the parturient after rendering the skin numb with the subcutaneous infiltration of a small amount of local anesthetic.

For more information on painless labor contact your obstetrician or family physician.

Contraceptives

Female devices said to offer better disease protection

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Contraceptive sponges and diaphragms used by women provide much better protection than male condoms against some sexually transmitted diseases, according to a report in the Journal of Public Health.

The study of 4,162 women was conducted at the private research organization Health Decisions Inc., in Chapel Hill, N.C.

"Although STD (sexually transmitted disease) prevention efforts have emphasized condoms to the virtual exclusion of other barrier methods, there is a need to identify methods that women can use independently of their partners," wrote Dr. Michael Rosenberg, president of Health Decisions and principal investigator for the study.

Rosenberg is a professor of epidemiology and obstetrics and gynecology at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

He and his colleagues said they found less gonorrhea and trichomoniasis among women using female-controlled methods of contraception. Incidence of chlamydia was also down, but the article said so few women in the study had this infection that the reduction was not significant.

Gonorrhea, trichomoniasis and chlamydia account for 75 percent of the 12 million new cases of sexually transmitted diseases in the United States each year.

The authors said it was particularly important that the women most at risk of contracting sexually transmitted diseases have the information, because they are often young and disadvantaged and may lack the skill to persuade male partners to use condoms.

"Identifying methods that are available without prescription is especially important for adolescents, who are at highest risk of pregnancy and STDs," the article said.

According to the study, diagnoses of gonorrhea were 71 percent less likely, for trichomoniasis 74 percent less likely and for chlamydia 13 percent less likely among women in the study who used sponges than would have been the case had they not used a contraceptive.

For women who used diaphragms, the reduction was 85 percent for gonorrhea, 71 percent for trichomoniasis and 72 percent for chlamydia.

Diagnoses of gonorrhea were only 34 percent less likely, of trichomoniasis 30 percent less likely and of chlamydia 3 percent less likely among women whose partners used a condom.

Chlamydia and gonorrhea can damage the female reproductive tract, the study said. Trichomoniasis does not usually result in such severe consequences but causes pain and other symptoms that require medical attention.

Afghan rebels take over Kabul

KABUL, Afghanistan — Muslim guerrillas chanting "Long live holy war!" seized the capital Saturday, hardly firing a shot in the final victory in their 14-year battle against the communist government. But rivalries among rebel factions still threatened to flare.

Red and yellow rockets and tracer bullets lit up the night sky from every part of the city as the mujahedeen, or Islamic holy warriors, celebrated.

Convoys of trucks loaded with gun-waving rebels roared through the city, and jubilant residents and fighters paraded through the streets carrying the green flag of the mujahedeen. Deposed President Najibullah, ousted nine days earlier, was believed still in the city, in hiding.

Peru shoots down U.S. anti-drug plane

LIMA, Peru — A Peruvian military aircraft strafed a U.S. Air Force drug-surveillance plane, and an American airman fell from an open door in the attack. A Peruvian official today called the strafing an accident and said the U.S. plane was off course.

The White House said that a search had been launched for the missing airman. The incident occurred on Friday off the coast of Peru and involved an unarmed C-130.

Two other airmen were injured, one superficially, Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said in Washington. He said that he did not know how many were aboard.

USDA ready to unveil new eating guidelines

By DIANE BUSTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Agriculture Department has decided to use a pyramid to illustrate what Americans should eat every day. And knowledgeable sources say it's only slightly different from one criticized by dairy and meat groups.

Agriculture Secretary Ed Madigan will unveil the new pyramid on Tuesday, according to an industry and a USDA source who asked that their names not be used.

The pyramid will replace the old food wheel that showed the four equal slices representing the basic food groups: Meats, fish and legumes; fruits and vegetables; grains, and dairy products.

The government recommends that people eat more grains and fruits and vegetables and less meat, fat and sweets. The pyramid's positioning of meats in a narrowing section of the drawing made the point painfully clear.

Meat and dairy groups objected and Madigan withdrew it a year ago and promised further study.

The illustration being released Tuesday is a modified version of the original pyramid. But it wasn't immediately clear if modification meant slight changes in the color or size of the food drawings or flipping the pyramid on its point so the most recommended foods would be at the top.

The industry has now withdrawn its objections.

"USDA has really done its homework," said Sara Clarke of the American Meat Institute, adding that they were now ready to support whatever the department chooses.

The original illustration put the greatest emphasis on grains — bread, rice, pasta and cereals — and showed them at the wide pyramid base. It recommends eating six to 11 servings a day from that group.

The next level up had vegetables — three to five daily servings — and fruits — two to four servings.

Food guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is what the government believes Americans ought to eat every day to stay healthy. These recommendations, from the Agriculture Department's Food Guide, will be featured on a new pyramid illustration being unveiled on Tuesday.

BREADS, CEREALS, RICE and PASTA — 6 to 11 daily servings. A serving could be one slice of bread, half a bun or bagel, one ounce of dry cereal or a half-cup of cooked cereal, rice or pasta.

VEGETABLES — 3 to 5 daily servings. A serving could be one cup of raw, leafy greens or a half-cup of any other vegetable.

FRUITS — 2 to 4 daily servings. A serving could be one medium apple, banana or orange; a half-cup of fresh, cooked or canned fruit; or 3/4 cup fruit juice.

MILK, YOGURT and CHEESE — 2 to 3 daily servings. A serving could be one cup of milk, 8 ounces of yogurt, 1 1/2 ounces of natural cheese or 2 ounces of processed cheese.

MEAT, POULTRY, FISH, DRY BEANS AND PEAS, EGGS, NUTS and SEEDS — 2 to 3 daily servings. That totals 5-7 ounces of cooked lean meat, poultry or fish a day. Could be 1/2 cup of cooked beans, one egg or two tablespoons of peanut butter as one ounce of meat.

The third level had two groups — meat and dairy — recommending two to three daily servings. At the top were fats, oils and sweets with the suggestion that they be eaten sparingly.

Some health groups criticized the positioning of sweets and fats at the top, saying people might misinterpret this as a signal they should be eaten first or were the most important part of the diet.

But Ellen Haas, executive director of Public Voice for Food and Health Policy, said Friday, "my feeling was that it needed some refinements but the basic objective was right."

The department ran 26 focus groups in five cities with children to senior citizens from various ethnic groups and income and education levels. They were shown a modified version of the original pyramid and several other images, including a cereal bowl, a shopping cart and a tablecloth with food on it.

The pyramid proved most popular.

Thunder booms in Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany — Joe Howard Johnson had nine catches for 156 yards and two touchdowns, one a "Hail Mary" from Scott Mitchell at the end of the first half, as the Orlando Thunder beat the Frankfurt Galaxy 38-0 Saturday.

After being held to just 25 yards of offense in the first quarter, Orlando (5-1) struck for 173 yards and three touchdowns in the second period, including a 38-yarder on the half's final play to Johnson. Johnson is on loan from the Washington Redskins. Mitchell from the Miami Dolphins.

Johnson also caught a TD pass from Kerwin Bell with 2:27 left in the game.

Orlando made it 28-0 in the third quarter when Todd Krumm blocked Robbie Keen's punt and Tommie Stowers scooped it up and rambled in 29 yards.

A crowd of 38,104 jammed into Wald Stadium to watch Frankfurt (2-4) lose its fifth straight at home, dating back to last season.

New World Record

PHILADELPHIA — The Santa Monica Track Club, triggered by Carl Lewis and Leroy Burrell, set a world record of 1 minute, 19.11 seconds, Saturday in the 800-meter relay at the Penn Relays.

In addition to Burrell, who ran the second leg, and Lewis, the anchor, Mike Marsh and Floyd Heard completed the Santa Monica quartet.

They bettered the world mark of 1:19.38, set by Santa Monica in 1989.

Lewis is the world record-holder in the 100 meters, with a time of 9.96 at the 1991 World Championships. Burrell had the second-fastest time, 9.88, in history in that race.

Marsh ran 9.93 this year, and Heard was No. 3 in the United States in the 200 last year.

Blake set to prove himself all over again

By TONY BOGNER
Herald Sports Editor

What's a guy got to do around here to get a little respect?

All Jeff Blake has done this year is lead the East Carolina Pirates to an 11-1 record, a victory in the Peach Bowl and a No. 9 ranking in the final Associated Press football poll, finish seventh in the Heisman Trophy balloting and be voted the outstanding collegiate athlete in North Carolina.

Yet, when discussion turns to which quarterbacks will go where when in today's NFL Draft (ESPN, 11 a.m.), Blake is hardly ever mentioned. At best, he's considered a "sleeper."

As far as Blake, a graduate of Seminole High School and the son of Seminole football coach Emory Blake, is concerned, that's just fine with him.

"I'm always out to prove myself," said Blake in a telephone conversation Thursday night from his apartment in Greenville, N.C. "People don't believe the talent I have. It was the same predicament I was in when I left high school.

"Somebody is going to draft me, I don't know when. But whoever does, they're going to get somebody who really wants to play quarterback."

And if his senior year is an accurate indication, someone who can play quarterback.

On Aug. 31, 1991, Blake and Pirates scared the life out of Illinois, nearly rallying for a victory in Champaign, Ill., before losing 38-31 in a nationally televised game on ESPN.

While they came up short that day, it would be the last time Blake and the Pirates would, winning their next 11 in a row. Along the way, ECU beat Memphis State, South Carolina, Syracuse, Pittsburgh, Southern Mississippi, Virginia Tech and North Carolina State (in the Peach Bowl).

Seminole claims 3A-5 baseball title

By BILL KERNS
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Seeming at times either ready to fade or a team of destiny, the Seminole High School baseball team took its first steps toward fulfilling the promise of its ability Friday afternoon at Sanford Memorial Stadium by beating Leesburg 6-2 to capture the 3A-District 5 tournament championship.

The victory is a sort of rebirth for the Tribe diamond program, which dominated play during the 1970s but floundered the 1980s.

"That's right, we are being born," said Seminole coach Mike Powers. "I think we were born this year or last summer. Our (American) Legion program helped us out last summer since we had 35 games. Plus some other kids played 17 games in the (Pony) tournament to get to the World Series in Indiana.

"They've gained a lot of experience. They know what it is to play under pressure and how to come back. We need to win three games to reach the state championship game at Baseball City (on May 9), but those are three tough games. We'll go as far as our pitching can carry us. They've been carrying us all year."

This is Seminole's first district championship since 1980. The Tribe will travel to Merritt Island Tuesday night for the Region 3 championship.

OVIEDO — Good things come to those who wait.

With a sophomore Todd Bellhorn toiling a no-hitter, the Oviedo Lions found this to be true Friday night as they beat the Lake Brantley Patriots 3-0 in the 4A-District 9 championship game.

The win marks the first time the Lions have won a district baseball title as a Class 4A school. They won a 3A title in 1988.

"Lake Brantley is the standard that the other teams try to measure up to," Oviedo coach Mike Ferrell said. "We have been taking a back seat to them for the last four or five years and we worked to play them, we wanted to play them. I have nothing but respect for them. We earned it against a very hard team and I'm proud of it."

Bellhorn (3-1) blanked the Patriots, who were district champions two of the last three years. Last year, Lake Brantley lost in the district finals to DeLand.

"Todd has been hurt with tendinitis and was out for a week. Fortunately it was over spring break," Ferrell said. "We were lucky we thought to get him back to where he could play center field because he is one of our better hitters. Todd warmed up before Thursday's game and said he felt fine. We asked him to give us a few good innings and he gave us seven."

LAKE MARY — Lyman High School's girls did enough of the right things while the Lake Howell High School boys did a little everything as they claimed the team championships at the 4A-District 8 track meet Friday night at Lake Mary High School's Don T. Reynolds Stadium.

The top four finishers in each event advance to the 4A-Region III meet next Thursday night at Winter Park's Showalter Field.

Locked in a tight battle for the top spot in the girls' team standings with Oviedo, the Lyman girls parlayed their strength in the distance running events to pull away to a 94-61 victory over Oviedo.

Following the two team leaders were Lake Mary (53), Lake Howell (48), Mainland (31), Deltona and Lake Brantley (both with 26) and Spruce Creek (9). DeLand competed but did not score.

Of the Greyhounds' 94 team points, 45 came in the four distance events: the mile, 880-yard and two-mile runs and the 4 x 440-relay, all of which come in the latter half of a meet. The 880, two-mile and mile relay are three of the final four

Lake Mary High School senior Alonzo Brundidge qualified for next week's 4A-Region III meet in three different events at Friday's District 9 competition, advancing in the long jump, triple jump and high jump.

ALTONTE SPRINGS — If there's ever been a game that no one deserved to lose, this was it.

The Lake Brantley and Lake Mary high school softball teams battled each other tooth and nail over 11-innings Friday night at Lake Brantley Field before the Patriots finally broke through to score four runs in the 12th inning to win the Class 4A-District 5 Championship game 6-2 and earn a spot in next week's Regional playoffs.

"This was the best district game on this field in nine years," said Lake Brantley head coach Reny Betris. "It was like two prize fighters who

Special delivery

Volunteers make meal program work

By LAGY DOMEN
Herald People Editor

SANFORD — He'll celebrate his 70th wedding anniversary soon, but with his wife in a nursing home, he doesn't often cook for himself.

She's fresh-scrubbed and pretty, with a grin that brightens any room. She lost her legs in an automobile accident and can't cook for herself.

Although her sweet manner hasn't changed much in her 89 years, she finds it a little harder to get around now without a walker, so she may not cook for herself.

Henry and Delores Lunsford make sure Guy Dillon, Karen Melvin and Addie Jones eat lunch. As Sanford volunteers for Meals on Wheels, they faithfully deliver 11 to 18 meals a day to residents who are elderly homebound, infirm or unable to stand for long periods of time. Sometimes, the meal the Lunsfords deliver is the only one a client may eat that day. Sometimes, the Lunsfords are the only social contact a client will have.

Volunteers perform a very important job.

"Critical with a capital C," Better Living For Seniors Director Sue Albee says. Meals on Wheels is only one of 12 programs Albee oversees, but it is of particular concern to her because of the need for more volunteers.

"It's just like the mail must go through. Well, the meal must go through," she says.

It's been a struggle. Albee says Sanford accounts for 40 percent of the home deliveries.

"But we have the hardest time recruiting volunteers there, which doubles our problem," she says.

Guy Dillon greets his friends from Meals on Wheels.

"Our volunteers are unbelievable. We don't know what we'd do without them."

Lunsford was prompted to volunteer after retiring from engineering. Delores encouraged the always active senior to get involved.

"I told him he was bored being retired. Go find something. There's Meals on Wheels, call them," Delores says.

Volunteers are usually asked to participate one day a week or one day every other week for the hour to two hours the routes require.

"We deliver meals every day. Once or twice a week we sub on a route that's open," Lunsford says.

On a typical day recently, the Lunsfords were accompanied by their granddaughters, Tiffany, 12, and Diana Tinsley, 10.

"He drives and I run to the door," Delores explains. Soon after Lunsford began delivering meals, Delores decided, she, too, would enjoy volunteering.

Routes are established so volunteers can chat a little with clients. Lunsford climbs the stairs to Melvin's second floor apartment. Although bedridden after the loss of her legs, she always has a smile for Lunsford.

"She keeps a good attitude and helps me keep one, too," Lunsford confides.

Delores offers a sympathetic ear to one client who has been under the weather.

Hats off

Members of the Sanford Senior Citizens Club never pass up the opportunity to have a good time. Recently, the club hosted a 'Spring Hat Contest' encouraging everyone to create one-of-a-kind bonnets. Judged in several categories, Wanda Lee Mahan, left, won in the 'Largest Hat' category for her birds' nest creation. Florence Gilmartin, bottom left, was recognized for wearing one of the 'Craziest Hats'. Members of the Kitchen Band, of which Mahan and Gilmartin are members, entertained. SANFORD — Cinderella married her Prince Charming Monday afternoon.

"He's the guy on the white horse with the white hair. I'm so smitten, I feel like a Cinderella."

Trudy Sturm nee Goodall said Tuesday of her bridegroom, Seminole County Commissioner Bob Sturm. The couple wed quietly Monday, but will host a larger celebration for family and friends next month.

Trudy said she remembers Sturm from her eight years as manager of the Colonial Room Restaurant in downtown Sanford as a "nice friend from a distance. He always had a pleasant word. I knew his wife, Peg, she was a gorgeous lady," Trudy says.

Trudy was working at Shoney's when Peg died last June. Sturm's friends and his four daughters steadfastly stood by him as he mourned. Trudy was no exception.

"I tried to cheer him up. I knew how much he was hurting. They had a beautiful relationship and were so devoted. We just started out talking a lot about everything," Trudy says.

The friendship slowly kindled into romance.

SANFORD — There's no stopping Ruth Hamilton.

The feisty nonagenarian, who turned 94 on April 12, has just renewed her driver license for another six years. "I'm going to take it with me," she chuckled, "and let St. Peter have it."

Ruth says she would like to live 94 more years, and bless her heart, with her positive attitude, if such an accomplishment were possible. Ruth would certainly be a charming candidate.

A former new Hampshire legislator, world traveler, author, lecturer and widow of a medical doctor, let's just say Ruth has been around. Her love affair with Sanford is like a breath of fresh air.

A resident of Bram Towers, Ruth says she looks out over Lake Monroe every morning and toasts Sanford with orange juice. She talks about the beauty of the lake, watching the Rivership Grand Romance and the friendly folks and affirms, "Sanford is one of the sweetest places on the whole globe."

Oh yes, she loves the Sanford Museum so much that she is going to give her collection of icons to the facility.

Plaudits for Shrine ladies' show

Stand up and applaud the Ladies of the Sanford Shrine Club for a recent, successful fund-raising endeavor.

For the first time in the history of the club, according to Betty Giles, wives of Shriners staged a benefit for the building fund.

And what a success it was! The event got under way Saturday, April 18, with a boutique stocked by the women of personal, bed and bath items from their homes. A patio sale also featured items from the homes.

A beautiful luncheon plate was served, beginning at 11:30 a.m. The luncheon included sparkling champagne punch floating ice cubes centered with cherries, chicken salad on a croissant, Waldorf salad and chips garnished with strawberries and grapes.

According to Betty, the women donated everything, including all the food except the Waldorf salad and chips, the only expense for the day. She credited all of the women with working hard to make the event a success. "All the ladies worked hard, got along well together and did a good job," Betty, chairman of the event, said.

Betty said the group started planning the event in January and by the time April 1 rolled around, all the luncheon and fashion show tickets were sold.

SANFORD
DORIS DIETRICH

Long before the scheduled event, the women collected about $1,300 to turn over to the club's building fund in addition to the profits from the boutique and patio sale.

Carol Kirchhoff was a special guest representing the Kirchhoff family. Her father-in-law, William Kirchhoff Sr., donated the property on which the Sanford Shrine Club is built.

Seminole County Commissioner Jennifer Kelley was among the guests as well as Lady Jan, wife of Robert Gentry III, Potentate of the Bahia Temple, Orlando.

Over 40 door prizes were presented including 20 floral arrangements, from Seminole Flower Shop.

The club was decorated with potted palms and mums to depict the Easter season and set the stage for a lovely spring and fashion show under the direction of Lois Dycus, owner of Lois' Place.

Models showing a variety of sports, casual and dress-up styles from Lois' Place were: Mary Heflen, Jane Parks, Hazel Cash, Gerri Thurston, Gerri Keeth and Peggy Dixon.

"We really had a good time. We really did," Betty said. "I think it was very successful."

Mycoff speaks to ESO

The Sanora home of Fran Mitchell was the site of the April meeting of the Sanford chapter of Epsilon Sigma Omicron, a reading society of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs. Co-hostess with Fran was Bunnie Logan.

Guest speaker was Midge Mycoff, a certified home economist who heads the Displaced Homemakers Program at Seminole Community College and writes a weekly "Microwave Magic" column for the Sanford Herald.

Midge spoke on the rewards of observing women get ahead under the program. They include divorcees, single parents and other disadvantaged women.

An avid gardener, Midge also told the women about her gardening experiences including dried plants. As vice president of the area Rose Society, she discussed growing roses with the members and said she had about 100 rose bushes. She loves to visit gardens when traveling and suggested a book listing great gardens to visit. The title is "Travel's Guide to American Gardens."

Next season's ESO slate of officers includes: Vida Smith, chairman; Charlotte Smith, vice chairman; Libby Boyd, secretary; Lourine Messenger, treasurer; and Carolyn Cornelius, librarian.

Old-fashioned Easter

Albert Tucker, who was reared in Sanford, was back home from Pasadena, Texas visiting his mom, Deasie King, over Easter.

According to his sister, Betty Giles, the family gathered for some old-fashioned celebrating — just being together, cooking and eating at her mother's farm outside Sanford. Betty said they did simple things like sitting on the porch, talking and home repairs.

On Easter Sunday, about 25 gathered at Deasie's home including four grandchildren and six great, great grandchildren. Deasie has six children living nearby.

Albert is now retired from NASA in Houston.

Brother of the groom, Michael Bacchus, served as best man. Ushers were John Sackett, Steve Mitchell, the bride's brother, and Ken Olmsted.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Treasure Island Tennis and Yacht Club, Treasure Island. Gary Craddock served as D.J. and a special musical event featured soloist John Sackett and guitarist Michael Young, both friends of the bridegroom.

After a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe and San Francisco, Calif., the newlyweds are making their home in St. Petersburg. The bride is presently Montessori Directress at Annaworth Montessori Academy in St. Petersburg. The groom is sales representative at Tech. Data Corp.

Helping hands

Seminole Chapter 30 of the Disabled American Veterans lend a helping hand in the community by aiding those less fortunate. The DAV recently presented a $1,000 check to the Good Samaritan Home to be used for residents' needs. Mrs. Thelma Mike, administrator of the home, accepts the check from Jack Faulkner, DAV treasurer; Kenneth Golden, commander and Samuel Martin, chaplain.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Cool YOUR BIRTHDAY April 26, 1992

New avenues could open for you in the year ahead that could make it possible for you to fulfill a secret ambition. It's more of a pleasurable endeavor than a business one.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In order to be a leader today, you must be genuinely concerned for everyone in your cadre. This will arouse their inclinations for support. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Taurus' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Kind words will be much more powerful today than forceful commands. If you want to attract everyone's attention, speak softly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A close friend might play a little favoritism with you today but won't want you to broadcast the perks showered on you. Keep things to yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A decision you must make today will turn out to be a wise one - if it's predicated on unselfishness. Think of others, as well as yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you can devote some time today to a labor of love you're presently interested in, this will turn out to be a very fulfilling day. Your productivity must have a purpose.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You could be extremely fortunate today in a partnership, especially if your cohort is a member of the opposite sex. Lucky you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is a good day to make some of those little artistic changes you've been thinking about around your abode. Do it now while you're in a creative mood.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone who likes you is currently making some plans of a social nature in which you'll figure prominently. Act sur-

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Getting something you've wanted today will be due to the effort of someone who has a history of looking out for your interests. It will add to your list of possessions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your charm, wit, humor and tact will be the tools you put to skillful use today to win a raft of admirers. Relax and enjoy the limelight. You're entitled.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) today, because your emotions and ambitious objectives will be in sync. Each force will serve to fuel the other.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) What you can't accomplish on your own today can be achieved with a competent partner, provided this individual can benefit from the arrangement as much as you can.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Financial trends will be moving in positive directions for you today, and it looks like you might be able to generate gains from both your usual and occasional sources.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone you know on a purely social basis might be just the person you need today to help you get something important you've been trying to initiate off the ground. Don't be afraid to ask.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A matter that is materially meaningful to you can be concluded to your satisfaction today

By Bernice Bode Cool YOUR BIRTHDAY April 27, 1992

You could be luckier than usual socially and in your worldly operations in the year ahead. Be alert for opportunities in both areas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you require a specific type of favor from an influential friend, this is a good day to make your needs known. Deal directly with your benefactor, though; don't go through an intermediary.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your probabilities for overcoming adversarial arrangements look very encouraging today. You'll be even more effective if you play your trump card last.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There is justification for feeling hopeful today about a new endeavor in which you're involved. It has the potential you believe it to have and, perhaps, even a bit more.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your chances for success look good

-- if you make it your top priority. If you don't, it might continue to remain dormant.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something positive could be in the offing at this time between you and a close friend you haven't seen much of lately. It's a pal who knows how to ignite your ambitions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The aspects tend to favor you today in situations that could produce material gains through traditional channels, not speculative ones.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Important objectives are achievable today; you're not likely to be discouraged regardless of the obstacles you encounter. Thinking "win" is your formula for success.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Attitude is extremely important in your commercial dealings today; don't anticipate rejection or negative developments. Do so, and that's what you'll get.

By Phillip Alder

Mark Twain once wrote, "He always spoke of the strange sagacity of that cat with the air of a man who believed in his secret heart that there was something human about it - maybe even supernatural."

Anyone who has been owned by a cat is aware that cats have a sort of sixth sense. They know when something is wrong, or when you are about to go on a trip.

There are also bridge players with their own type of sixth sense: knowing when it is right to make an abnormal bid or play. On today's deal, East made a farighted play.

West led the heart four: two, king, ace. It is right to lead low from a tripton if you haven't supported your partner's suit.

Declarer had six top tricks. He saw immediately that if the club finesse was working, he would have no problems. But he also appreciated that if he took the club finesse now and it lost, he would almost certainly go down. East rated to have five hearts and the diamond ace for his overall.

Seeing an alternative possibility, at trick two South led his diamond 10 and ran it. His plan was that if the 10 lost to East's queen, he would fall back on the club finesse. However, East did not win with the diamond queen but with the ace.

South ducked the next heart and won the third. Then he led a diamond to dummy's nine. Disaster! East produced the queen and cashed two heart tricks to defeat the contract.

South groaned when he saw that the club finesse was right all along, but then he complimented East on a brilliant play.
