Make-A-Wish doesn't solicit contributions by telephone

Special to the Herald

LONGWOOD--The Make-A-Wish Foundation of Central Florida is informing area residents that the organization never solicits donations over the phone. The Foundation has received several calls this past week from consumers who are being solicited by phone, and are asking for clarification as to whether the campaign is being conducted by Make-A-Wish.

"Make-A-Wish does not conduct telephone or door-to-door solicitation. However, we are often confused with organizations that do." the local chapter.

Foundation recognizes telemarketing is a legitimate way of marketing and selling products and services. However, said Kinney, consumers can be confused, and Make-A-Wish wants to ensure that consumer's donations are going to the charity of their

"It is important for the public to ask questions of anyone who calls on the telephone soliciting for a cause," Kinney said.

Exchange students eager to find American home

By KELLIE WERNER Herald Staff Writer

For centuries, people from foreign countries have come to America for various reasons.

Long ago, thousands died crossing the seas that surround this country's borders so they could live in a free society. Some come to America for a chance at the American Dream of wealth and prosperity. Still others come just to see the beautiful landmarks and learn a little more about the history of the United States.

Today, many students from other countries are waiting to come to America to experience the culture and spend a year in the educational system. International Cultural Exchange Services is trying to help them have a chance to do just that.

Howard and C.J. McNeal, of Lake Mary, and their daughter, Jenny, opened their home to Milena Munsch from Germany for the past school year. Milena came to the McNeal's through the ISEC pro-

Jenny, an only child, found suddenly having another student in the house both exciting and frustrating at first.

Lending a helping hand

Teens from Group Workcamps, a national program consisting of youth ministry groups from across the country, were in Sanford this past week helping residents in need with home repairs. More than 100 young people were housed at Indian Trails Middle School in Winter Springs. The project was sponsored by St. John Lutheran Church in Winter Park. In addition, the church done!ad $8,500 in materials and provided more than 100 volunteers who organized and supervised the effort. The team of young people shown here replaced an existing porch and painted and caulked the home of Sanford resident Louis Mack. Volunteers, from left are Craig Tippie, David Mullins, Leah Rockwell, Josh Harper and Eric Linden.

A day to take it slow and easy

Things may be heating up here in Seminole County with temperatures soaring into the 90s and above, but there's not much exciting happening in the way of historical events or historical events-to-be.

This is the second day of Nude Recreation Week

We probably won't have any celebrations of that here in Seminole County with the adult . entertainment codes and all, but elsewhere in the country. naturists will be promoting the acceptance of the human body and the understanding of made recreation.

Promoters say that involvement in recreational activities in our birthday suits is "a natural solution to many problems of modern living."

If you're interested in that celebration or the whole naturist lifestyle, you can find the Naturist Society on the internet at www.naturist.com

If you're an equestrienne, you might be interested in this event from the early part of this century

first time

While several colonies and municipalities had proclaimed their desire to be tree of linglish rule, the Declaration drafted by the Declaration Committee of the Continental Congress and written by Thomas Jefferson, was the official document.

When Col. John Nixon stood on the steps of Independence Hall in Philadelphia and read the document to the assembled residents of that city, the reasons for the war which had been raging for nearly a year. and the desire to be free from England were put into words

The year before, on this date in 1775, representatives of the colonies of New Hampshire. Massachusetts Bay, Providence. Connecticut, New York New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina signed a petition from the Congress to King George III The petition, called the Olive

Presbyterians find common ground at New York confab

By LURLENE SWEETING Herald Correspondent

Friday, June 13, 1997 was a very lucky day for all of the Commissioners, Advisory Delegates and others who came to the 209th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (USA) Dr. John M. Buchanan, moderator of the 208th General Assembly had invited great messengers to share in word and music. The Pre-Assembly Conference featured: Walter Brueggemann, Dr. Marian Wright Edelman and Paul Winter - concert artist.

Dr Brueggemann is a minister and professor of the Old Testament at Columbia Theological Seminary. Dr. Brueggemann "Is a major voice in the conversation between the Bible and contemporary life

Dr. Marion Wright Edelman is founder and Director of the Children's Defense Fund, the premier Child Advocacy Organization in the land which is based in Washington. DC. Dr. Brueggemann stressed that the entire Old Testament was deeds will we import to our moving from Genesis I. You shall have no other God" was a demand from God that there would be no graven images on wrongful use of God's name Obedience as to God was the desired goal "All right knowledge of God is born of obedience in discussing Psalm 139 1-6, asserts that God knows all about us; verses 7-12. God is everywhere: Verse 13. the mystery of life (woman's approach) and verses 19-22, prayers that God should kill my enemies

The Third Commandment is violated when anyone equates their program with God, it only proves how little the personknows about himself or herself Our objective in life should "not be to get our brothers and sisters straight, but to communicate with God vengeance does not give closure, hospitality does.

Dr. Edelman championed the motto of the Children's Defense Fund "to leave no child behind". She reminded us that we are embarking on a new century and a new millennium. What legacies, principles and children? How will progress be measured? What are the real measures of success? Corporate mergers are rendering people obsolete How much the few at the top can get is not the real measure. of progress.

The modern age has ended and we are in the throes of a transitional period thousand years ago the United States did not exist. One thousand years from now will humankind remain? Will our foundry principle, "Created Equal" stand the test of time and become deed not just creed? Protecting children is the moral litmus test of our humanity.

What is happening to us when three million children are abused or neglected and we stand for it. Children go without food and health care in this country. Why? By what measure is our nation strong if our children under 15 have a higher mortality rate than those in 25 other nations? We have a million divorces annually. How strong is our sense of family when $54 billion dollars is to be cut from health care and will impact mainly the working past-is the measure of our success as a nation spiritual rather than material? When God wants something done the great events of this world are babies. Now each child comes with a message "I don't believe what I used to believe, but I wish I could. There is great moral confusion and spiritual hollowness in the land.

Today in America one third of pregnant women receive no pre-natal care. Ten million children have no health insurance, although nine out of ten live in working families of whom 70% are white and 60% are two parent families. Dr. Edelman urged that we support Senator

Ted Kennedy's Children's Health Insurance Bill. She concluded that a country that does not stand up for its children doesn't stand for anything. We have to undergo a hearing process to make sure we are good stewards, because our job is to love the children God has sent us.

Knowing what organization is all about, getting clear and direct answers and understanding some of the techniques of telephone marketing are ways to avoid confusion.

The Washington, DC-based National Consumers League has formed a special department known as the Alliance Against Fraud in that Telemarketing has outlined several ways for consumers to handle telemarketing calls, Kinney said They are

. Don't allow yourself to be pushed into a hurried decision Always request written information, by mail, about a product, service, investment or charity, and details about the organization that is offering it Investment or purchase that you don't understand

* Ask what state and federal agencies the firm is regulated by and/or required to be registered with.

If an investment or major purchase is involved, request that information also be sent to your accountant, financial advisor, banker, or attorney for evaluation and an opinion...

 Ask what recourse you would have if you make a purchase and aren't sattsfied.

Don't provide personal financial information over the phone unless you are absolutely certain the caller has a bona fide need to know

* If necessary, hang-up Kinney said that it is important to be wary of telephone solicitation, but to remember that many legitimate organizations telemarketing to support Important and worthwhile causes Any questionable Don't make a donation, actions by a telephone solicitor should be reported to the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services at (800)435-7352

A public apology

I am writing this letter in regards to an article that was printed on your front page of the Sanford Herald. Yes, the famous escapee of the Altamonte Police. Donna Lynn Davis!!

I would first like to say you had a picture of the wrong woman. The picture you have is of a woman posing to be me, Donna...

She was arrested under my name and later it was corrected, within the courtroom. So, I am not serving any of her charges!

Anyway. I wanted to write this letter in hopes of apologizing to everyone for the mistake I have done by jumping out of the officer's car. My background is not a good one and I am not proud of any of the decisions I have made. But, I know I am not as bad of a person as I have been made out to be!

I am a very friendly woman with a big heart who has made bad decisions such as turning to drugs as comfort. Trust this . If I was not on drugs I wouldn't have ever been in any of these situations that I am in now. I apologize to my "om and dad and all of the rest of my friends and family. Especially my two hearts who I will always love no matter what: Willie (exboyfriend and my baby's father) and my baby daughter.

You see. I was in such a deep depression of hurt, guilt and shame. I felt as if my world had left and there was no meaning to life when I lost my little girl and then when Willie left. that took the cake. I felt nothing, I cared about nothing, but drugs!!

I believe that since I have been in jail, the main person I owe an apology to is ME!! For letting go and putting myself into the situations I have. I would like to say to the younger and even the older adults that are on

Doctor-assisted suicide

The Supreme Court upheld laws giving states the right to ban doctor assisted suicides. What a stupid decision! The justices fail to face the fact that everybody dies without exception. It seems the government feels that it is up to Uncle Sam to choose the method of how ones life will end.

When we have an old sick pet that is suffering we have compassion on the poor beast, and we put it out of it's misery because it is the humane thing to do. We don't want our beloved pet to suffer a torturous and hideous death. How do we as a society deny people the same dignity and compassion that we give to our animals?

I think it's time that we citizens tell the government that unless they have a compelling reason, that our personal decisions are none of their business. Even if choosing doctor assisted suicide is the wrong decision, it's my life and it's my wrong decision to make! Marc Perkel Sanford

China divides an American town

The Connecticut town of Westport has a sister city, Yangzhou, in China. As a gesture of people-to-people understanding. Yangzhou has offered "a gift of friendship" to Westport .. an ancient-style pavilion, 20 feet tall and nine feet

Officials of Westport visited Yangzhou and were delighted with the gift. Folks at home would be equally delighted, they thought. As Second Selectman Betty Lou Cummings emphasized. This gift has nothing to do with politics."

Word started to go around Westport about the pavilion -- and its being built at a location in town called Liberty Point. A number of residents objected strenuously to accepting anything from a country with so repellent a human-rights record. As for no politics being involved, Amnesty International pointed out that the mayor of the sister city could not have been nominated for office without the approval by the Central Party. Candidates advocating individual rights do not make the cut.

What also fired up the dissenters was that the pavilion had been unanimously accepted by the Board of Selectmen and the Parks and Recreation Commission without testimony from the objectors. As flerce letters to the editor appeared in the Westport News -including one by this summer resident and year-round taxpayer -- the Planning and Zoning Commission decided to let supporters and protesters express themselves at a meeting .. but without the commission taking a vote on the issue.

I spoke briefly, asking whether in the 1930s, Westport would have allied itself with Nuremberg as a sister city. And I quoted from a current State Department China Report: "All public dissent against the party and government has been attenced by intimidation, exile, prison terms ... or house arrest."

A much more powerful witness was Elfriete Lafferty: "My family was in a concentration camp in Germany. Human rights issues are precious to me. I am offended as a taxpayer that I am to live with a symbol that is so destructive. No matter what, it will always be dripping with blood."

Another speaker, Carole Donenfeld, raised the laue of democratic rights in Westport itself. Aside from town officials having ignored the human-rights issue, she said rank-and-file Westporters had been left out of the decision-making process. "Where is the democracy in Westport?" she asked. How dare anyone tell us we have no rights about what we are doing in our town?" In vigorous agreement, Westport News editor Woody Klein is calling for a full-scale debate before the Representative Town Meeting.

The rulers of the town have already begun to Why prohibit prohibition?

There is a missing word in the great tobacco debate now going on: P-R-O-H-I-B-I-T-

Why is the P-word taboo? In some large measure, it is a residue from our experience with the constitutional prohibition of alcohol from 1919 to 1933. After all, as we all know, Prohibition caused speakeasies, gangsters, bathtub gin, murders in Chicago, and anyway, Americans kept right on drinking. We are told that "prohibition doesn't work."

Wrong, Here is what Mark Moore, professor of criminal justice at Harvard University. reports about the Prohibition years: American consumption of alcohol declined by 30 percent to 50 percent. Cirrhosis death rates for men declined by two-thirds. Arrests for public drunkenness and disorderly conduct decreased by 50 percent. It figures: Such are the quite logical results from making a product much less accessible. This all came about through a rather weak set of laws that did not prohibit use or production for one's own consumption, and gave people a year to stock up before banning commercial manufacture distribution.

During Prohibition, violent crime did not increase, says Moore. Organized crime? It existed before and after Prohibition. And what happened when Prohibition was repealed? Alcohol consumption increased substantially.

Another reason prohibition seems to be out of the current dialogue relates to the thought that cigarettes always were, and therefore always will be. Wrong. According to Dr. Elizabeth Whelan's book "A Smoking Gun: How the American Tobacco Industry Gets Away With Murder" (Longman Trade/Caroline House, 1984), tobacco has been around for a long time, but cigarettes as we now know them were not an item of mass consumption until about 1915. Interestingly, a major factor in their emergence was the advent of the portable safety match. Suddenly, using tobacco didn't involve fussing with pipes or cigars, which are nicotine-delivery aystema not associated with inhalation of the weed. More interesting is this: Cases of lung cancer were extremely rare before cigarettes came along. Professors in medical schools would tell students that if they heard of a case of lung cancer -- go visit the patient quickly because they wouldn't likely ever see another.

The reason that prohibition ought to be in the dialogue is health. Cigarettes cause 450,000 P-R-E-V-E-N-T-A-B-L-E deaths each year, according to U.S. government estimates. That's from intended use, as opposed to about 100,000 such deaths from abuse or misuse of alcohol. Half of the P-R-E-M-A-T-U-R-E deaths In America are caused by cigarettes. Once called "coffin nails," cigarettes cause 38 percent of cancer cases in the United States. Cigarettes are the leading cause of preventable pancreatic cancer and male Impotence at ages over 60. Nearly 200,000 deaths per year from heart disease are caused by cigarettes. Cigarettes are a cause of colon cancer and linked to metastasized brain cancer. Cigarettes are often implicated in kidney failure. The list could go on and on. They are P-O-I-S-O-N.

If cigarettes didn't exist until relatively recently, if prohibition works, if cigarettes are so harmful -- could we un-exist them? Why don't we at least talk about prohibition?

Lots of folks think prohibition would be terrible. Libertarians think it's antilibertarian, and worry about an intrusive Nanny State. Plaintiffs' lawyers would lose their clients. Big Tobacco would have to peddle its poison plants overseas. Federal, state and municipal governments would have to find huge new sources of revenues. Social Security would be harder to fix because people would live longer. Many politicians would need new sources of cash. Smokers need the weed, although several tens of millions have wisely stopped. Farmers, retailers and distributors need the money. Advertising agencies need the commissions. Most consumerists and environmentalists. prepared to pump up just about any other nutty scare story, aren't quite ready to say what they really want about cigarettes, even though they cause more harm than all the other stuff put together.

The argument is made that the government shouldn't prohibit private behavior which doesn't harm other people. But preventable premature death deeply scars the souls of family and friends. The argument is made that we ought to concentrate on preventing teenagers from smoking eigarettes. But it is not teen-agers who are dying prematurely.

I am not (yet) endorsing a constitutional amendment to prohibit tobacco. There are plenty of cuts and passes in the argument. I do not favor the prohibition of alcohol. I do not favor the legalization of marijuana and other allegedly recreational drugs. I have not seen plans for various forms of phased-in prohibition.

JOSEPH SPEAR

Wimps get what wimps deserve.

Where were the Democrats?

This is the sound of a Democrat who has just learned that the prosecutor who is probing their president is a voyeur:

Peep, peep No, really. The Washington Post reported on June 25 that Kenneth Starr and his battalion of FBI agents and attorneys. heretofore believed to be engaged in the investigation of a real-wate scardar, have questioned the Arkansas state troopers who claimed to have knowledge of Bill Clinton's extramarital affairs. Starr's army has also talked to perhaps a dozen women with whom Clinton may have had relationships.

And how did the Democrats react? Sen. John Kerry of Massachusetts said, "I just think this crosses the line of decency." Sen. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska allowed on NBC's "Meet the Press" that "it's completely inappropriate and unacceptable for Starr to be doing that sort of thing." Sen. Richard Durbin of Illinois said "it's time for (Starr) to step aside and to concede that we've wasted a lot of money."

Oh, so you think that's a little more than

OK. Chirp. chirp.

I know what Starr said in defense of his prurience. He was using 'well-accepted law enforcement methods," he said, and that includes "seeking to identify and examine witnesses with whom the subjects of this investigation have been associated and who therefore may possess relevant factual information."

What we are supposed to believe, in other words, is that Starr and his storm troopers were trying to find out if Bill Clinton and his putative paramours may have engaged in pillow talk about a complex financial scandal that the public has been reading about for four years and still can't comprehend.

One of the troopers. Roger Perry, told the Post: "They asked me if I had ever seen Bill Clinton perform a sexual act."

Does that sound like a "well-accepted law enforcement method* to you? What we've got here is either a moral inquisition or a passel of Peeping Toms, and neither of these things has anything to do with a realestate scam.

This is only Kenneth Starr's most recent incarnation, and that takes me back to the Democrata' tepid reaction. Where have they been since Aug. 5, 1994, when the independent counsel was turned into the investigative arm of the Rabid Right?

A highly competent and respected Republican prosecutor named Robert Fiske was moving the Whitewater probe right along, but he wasn't coming up with findings that were damnatory enough to please the zealots. The two right-wing senators from North Carolina, Jesse Helms and Lauch Faircloth, met with the rightwing judge and Helms protege, David Sentelle, who prestdes over the panel that appoints independent counsels. Next thing you know. Fiske is gone and the ideologue Starr is appointed.

Where were the Democrats when this ambush came down? Starr has maintained a private practice that earns him 82 million a year, and his clients have included tobacco interests, the Republican National Committee, and a foundation conservative that underwitten some of Clinton's rancorous critics.

Why weren't the Democrats screaming about these conflicts? Sec Spear, Page 5A

There were several inside and several outside the club." Skiba said of the arrests that were made. "There were undercover officers in and around the rave area."

According to Skiba, the Sanford Police undercover officers and CCIB and MBI agents had been prepared to deal with a crowd of some 5,000 partiers. but when word got out that the rave would be shut down at 2 a.m., only about 300 young people decided to party in Sanford.

"Unfortunately...or fortunately. for us...there weren't more than 300 kids there or we'd have had more arrests." Skiba said.

The full arrest list was not yet compiled, but the Sanford Police were able to provide the names of four of the eight who were taken into custody:

Sarah Entrekin, 18, of Bonita Springs was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia.

The spinning answer from the Chinese bearer of his country's culture was: "You're American, so you wouldn't be affected. But in any case, it's a very complicated question." Westport teachers going to China will not be imprisoned for speaking freely in the sister city, but a degree of self-censorship is likely to take hold as they avoid bringing up, say, Tiananmen Square. Volunteer of the Week

She earned her name: 'Amazing Grace'

SANFORD -- Grace O'Brien is known at the Sanford Christian Sharing Center as "Amazing Grace" according to Director Irene Brown. Her faithfulness to her duties, her undying love of the clients and her dedication to God and her work has earned her a name to treasure.

Brown told of a recent experience with O'Brien and her unwavering faith. When our pallets get low or empty we like to move them and clean under them," said Brown. "They were too heavy for us to lift. Grace said to me that she trusted that God would send someone to move them for us. Within a few hours a man came to the center to help with some other things and we were able to use him for the job. She was right. He was sent. It's her attitude and her faith that keeps us all calling her "Amazing Grace."

O'Brien is quick to point out that she is a daughter of God first, the proud wife of her husband (now deceased) next. mother to her children, proud grandma and a servant to others. She noted that her volunteer work "gives a reason to get up in the mornings."

She added, "It helps me know that I am needed. It makes me feel I am still important and still needed."

Although O'Brien does enjoy her times of gardening and crafts her time at the Sanford Christian Sharing Center is a highlight. She cited that the only exception is baby-sitting her 2-year-old grandson. Tyler. "He's the joy of my life." she said. "There's nothing like looking at a flower through the eyes of a two year old when they see it for the first time."

Since 1991, after retiring from the food service department at Lyman High School, O'Brien has assisted the center. Even after the death of her husband in October of 1996.

Grace O'Brien at Senford Christian Sharing Center.

she has kept her commitment to the organization.

"I needed something to do." she said. "My husband was a master gardener. When Irene Brown said they needed the help there I wanted to do it. First I started in the pantry. then the computer. I don't type very good. I just type the biblical way, you know, seek and ye shall find. I also work in the clothing part. I work at the center three to five times a month for 3-hour shifts. We're open 9 a.m. to noon daily. It still gives me time to work in the yard and to play with my grandchild."

She emphasized her strong desire to give to others. "When my husband and I first moved here in 1969 we weren't sure if we could afford the house we bought. People told us we could sell the fruit from the many citrus trees for money. We told them that if God lets us have the house and fruit trees, then we have to give it away to people who need it. And, you know in all these years, we have given it away and we have only lost one tree to the frost. Every year God gives us more fruit to give Sharing another example of her feelings about giving to others, O'Brien said, "For example too with our gardening. people ask us all the time what away. We always get three plants in the place of the one given away. Life is the same way. The more you give of yourself, the more you get back. The more love I give to God and my community. I get it back 100 fold."

She also said. "I enjoy letting others know that there are people out there that care about them. I enjoy seeing people realize that they can be helped and I tell them it's Gods help. Like in Matthew 25 when the Bible talks about Jesus saying, 'I was naked and ye clothed me, sick and you visited me.' Most all of us at the Senford Christian Sharing Center feel this way that we're doing the Lord's work. I don't know where else I can touch this many lives in that few hours. Like today we touched 40 people in that three hour block of time. It's a short length of time that we're touching people's lives. I was always active when my children were growing up. I was leading the Cub Scouts or working the stand at little league games. Now I can help others since my children are grown.

O'Brien is the mother of four sons, John, Craig, Shawn and Patrick and has four grandchildren. She has been a member of Upsala Community Church for three years where she also volunteers with the nursery program as needed and is a member of the financial committee.

She is active with Senior Friends, the Sanford Senior Center and is a zoo-fari walker and mall-walker with the group. The groups attend numerous outings together such as dinners, shows and science center trips, as well as, a 3-day excursion to Tallahassee.

'Medfly' world's most widespread citrus fruit fly pest also called the "medfly", is lion annual business, with citprobably the world's most important and widespread citrus fruit fly pest. This fly is not known to be permanently established in Florida but was detected on May 28, 1997 in Hillsborough County. The implications of this finding for the State of Florida is that this insect infests more than 250 different plants, many of which are economically important, including citrus, tomatoes, peppers. The medfly tolerates colder climates better than most other species of fruit flies, making it even more difficult to control. Previous detection's in Florida: The medfly invaded the State of Florida from April 1929 to July 1930, from April 1956 to November 1957, from June 1962 to February 1963. from June to August 1963, and from August 3 to 14 in 1981.

Economic Importance: rus and vegetables representing more than 40 percent of the total figure. Florida's 81.5 billion citrus crop will be in danger if the medfly becomes established in this area, as well as, other economically important crops such as tomato, peppers, and some tropical fruits. The damage to the fruits is not the only problem caused by the medfly, because of quarantine restrictions. Florida growers would not be able to ship many fruit occurs in the Western Hemiand vegetable products to foreign and domestic markets.

Hosts: Preferred hosts include akee, apple, citrus, coffee, fig. guava, loquat, mango, peach, pear, persimmon, plum, roseapple, star apple, Surinam cherry, tropical almond, and white sapote. However, the known hosts of the Medfly number well over 250 species. Other hosts in Florida include avocado, carissa, papaya, pas-sweet pepper, and tomato. Distribution: The medfly sphere in Argentina. Bermuda. Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costs Rica, Ecuador, El Salvador. Guatemala, Hawaii. Honduras, southern tip of Mexico. Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Surinam, Uruguay, and Venezuela. It occurs in western Australia, in many countries in Europe and Africa. and in Asiatic countries in the Mediterranean area such as Is-sion-flower, sapodilla, soursop,

Identification: Typically. eggs are laid under the skin of the fruit which is beginning to ripen, 1-9 at a time, and will hatch in 2-3 days. Larvae feed for 10-12 days and pupa last 10-12 days in the soil. The life cycle averages 21-30 days under Florida's summer conditions. Adults can live up to one year, but will die within 4 days if they cannot find food. Adults early in the morning during not considered toxic to humans during their lifetime. Up to 800 eggs may be produced by a female over her life, but normally, about 50 percent of the flies die during the first two months after emergence. Control: The common control measures after detecting the presence of the Medfly is the use of insecticide sprays such as malathion. Malathion has been used since 1950 for emerge in largest numbers control of fruit fly pests and is diterranean fruit fly. Florida agriculture is a 86 bilsome other insects in the environment such as cockroaches.

> wasps, grasshoppers, dragonfly, lacewings, beetle grubs, flies, ants and Lees. Fish in water I foot or less deep, honcybees, and earthworms will be affected by bait sprays. Sterile male released have been used successfully in the past to control this pest in other countries and here in Florida.

Teen's descent into drugs is testament to addiction

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "Mike," the young man who told his friend's parents about their sen's drug use, that he did the right thing. May God bless him for it.

When our son was 16, two of his friends told us about his drinking. We tried for three years to get him to stop, but he continued and went on to hard drugs. We were always grateful to those young men, even though we were unsuccessful in get-ting our son clean. Tell Mike that he did everything he could, and now it's up to the parents to do their

I encounter parents all the time who can't accept the fact that their child could be a "user." My son was a functional addict, so getting him to realize his problem became impossible. We kept trying but we I'm enclosing a letter our son wrote in 1989 to the high school students in our town. In 1990, he was convicted of murder and sentenced to life without possibility of parole. JUDITH P. IN CALIFORNIA DEAR JUDITH P:: Thank you for allowing me to share your son's letter with my readers. I hope his experience will provide a warning to others. Read on: "My name is Daniel. I celebrated my 20th birthday in the Los Angeles County Jail. I've been here for the past nine months awaiting trial. I have been charged with robbery and murder. If I'm found guilty, I could be sentenced to life without parole, but that's not why I'm writing to you. I'm writing to talk about drug abuse. I'm a recovering addict. Just because I'm in jail doesn't mean I can't get drugs. DRUGS ARE EVERY-WHERE.

"I read someplace that two out of five people who try drugs become addicted. I think it's much higher than that. When people told me that alcohol and marijuana would lead to harder drugs, I just laughed. I started smoking weed in 10th grade, and in the 11th grade I did everything from sniffing glue to LSD. A few months before graduation, I dropped out of school. I was working and having a good time; that was all that mattered. I never thought about the future. I didn't realize that the decisions I was making in high school would affect the rest of my life.

"If you become addicted you will have a crippled future, if you even have one. You could be one of the lucky ones who get help and never go back. "My first two weeks in jail I received medicine for with-drawal. Nothing in the world is worth the high. It feels good, but let me tell you I don't feel good now. Many of my friends have told me they wish they could stop. I tell them to get out of the fast lane, get help, and start facing reality before they hit their brick wall. Rams are movin' on up

High school seniors head for college scholarships

By JEFF BERLINICKE Herald Staff Writer

In just a few weeks, the Lake Mary High School athletic fields will be packed once again, but there will be some familiar faces missing.

It doesn't mean their athletic careers have ended, though, as once again, Lake Mary athletes will be moving on to college campuses to continue on in their careers.

The Lake Mary football team continued its history of placing athletes with major Division I schools when Kris Kessler signed on to kick field goals for Louistana State University. He'll team up with his brother Chad on the Tiger football team.

Kessler is the latest in a long line of recent Division I football players from Lake Mary including Chris Haney (Georgia Tech). Lake Travlos (Georgia) and Scott Bryan (Florida).

On the Division I-AA level, there will be a family reunion of sorts at the University of Connecticut where quarterback Shawn St. Dennis will meet former Rams' teammates Recollen and Ronel Jumpp to possibly form an all-Lake Mary backfield.

Also, dominating offensive lineman Danny Johnson, just back from the Florida-Georgia all-star game at the Georgia Dome in Atlanta, will stay closer to home. He'll suit up for the University of Central Florida to block for all-America candidate Daunte Culpepper. One of his first college games will be in September at Nebraska.

other fall sports. Debbie Duber, a three-sport athlete throughout her bake Mary career. signed on with Manatee Junior and teammate Sarah McWeeney committed to Georgia Southwestern University. The pair was part of the Lady Rams' Final Four volleyball team last season.

In basketball, center Matt Townsley ended the recruiting wars

early by signing with Rollins College in Winter Park. Townsley led Seminole County in most offensive departments and notched a 4.2 grade point average.

Lake Mary's state final girls' basketball team had only few seniors but one will continue her career. Maggie Reedy will go to Methodist College in North Carolina on a basketball and softball scholar-ship. Reedy's defense keyed the Lady Rams on their run to the finals despite a wrist injury.

Groninger picked up a scholarship to Emory College in Atlanta. He almost decided to take up golf over baseball but his decision paid off. Outflelder Jimmy Smith will be the 39th round. Softball player Carissa Sicn will join the West Georgia State University team next spring. Sica was also a member of the final four basketball team.

Also, wrestler Anthony Bravo will grapple for Virginia Military Insti-tute in the fail. Bravo leaves for North Danous for a national meet

Yankees make noise on and off field

Lake Mary softball champs earn cheers for success

By JEFF BERLINICKE Herald Staff Writer

When anyone says the Yankees make a lot of noise on the field.

they aren't kidding.
Not only was the 8-12-year-old softball team from the Lake Mary minors virtually unbeatable, but they let their teammates know it.

. Even after the end of the regular season, the players could recite the chants they used to spur on their teammates as the season

One of them was dedicated to their teammate Amanda "Little Man" Edelman who suffered an injury during the season.

"Birds chirp, snakes hiss, Little Man is who we miss!" they'd spend time yelling from their dugout. There were others, such as "Come on. Yankee fans," and their famous froggle cheer. The Yankees were loud but they had a lot to cheer about.

As the cheering grew louder and they wore their rally caps proudly, the Yankees ran off with the title in the four-team league by beating the Cubs in the finals, 12-8. Ashlee Tabor had some big hits in the finals and Katle Amerson knocked in the game-winning run. Emilee Edelman came in to relieve the Yankee starter and slammed the door so the team could celebrate the championship which ended with a victory lap and postgame party.

From top to bottom, the Yankees all said they played as a team and everyone contributed.

At pitcher for most of the season were Amanda Mann and Edelman. Catcher Tabor said they were a pleasure to catch for.

They strike out a lot of batters and they get everyone out," she said.

Tabor would know best since she's team captain and referred to as "Boss." She's also known as the "Freight Train" and is the fastest runner on the team. She's almost too fast. Earlier in the season. Tabor smacked a long hit and was roaring towards a homer before she just missed passing her own baserunner.

"She doesn't know how to stop," Jessica Stone said.

When either Mann or Edelman are pitching, the other usually plays first. Mann may be the loudest player on the team and is known as "Jabber Jaw."

It's a team of nicknames, actually. Not only are there Little Man and Big Man. D'Amico is known as Speedy Gonzales."

Over at short is Little Man who split time with Melissa Salisbury "Little Man is great at pop flies."

Katie Amberson is possibly the team's best defensive player. Her teammates say she has a cannon for an arm and teamed up for several double plays this season. Jessica Stone was just as effective with at least two unassisted double plays.

In the outfield, Amber Vaughn takes left field. She's a hustler, backing up third on every play, but all the hustling might make her a little bit tired.

"She likes to sit down in the dirt." Mann said. Sarah Kamp is usually in center and Christine DiLorenzo plays a lot at every posi-

"I like to play every position." she said. "I don't complain."

Rebecca Aubut is a backup in right field but is yet another hustler and even recorded an out at first base this season, backing up

Curtis Tabor is the coach of the team and the kids said they like the way he never got angry with them, even after they suffered their two losses earlier in the season.

"He's got the patience of a saint." was the common description of coach Tabor.

There's one other thing you might want to know about these Yankees.

They are a little bit injury-prone. Amanda Mann is still smarting from a black eye she received when she was hit by a batted ball last week. Coach Tabor has been hit by several balls this season, including last week when Vaughn caught him with a shot. "I wasn't trying to hit him," Amber said smiling. "I promise, I wasn't alming."

Emilee Edelman banged a line drive off the coaches' head as well. The coach has also been hit with pitches in the knee but has bounced back strong.

With the Yankees, they rarely have to bounce back from any-

Members of the Lake Mary minor league softball champion Yankees were, from top, Melissa Salsbury,

AT BRIDG

The strangest of the year

By Phillip Alder

Ely Culbertson, the major-domo of bridge 50 years ago, wrote about "the bizarre world of cards." Well, this will surely be the most bizarre slam of the year. And it didn't feature four beginners - it occurred during the quarterfinal of the Vanderbilt, the most prestigious event at the Spring Nationals. Look only at the West and North hands. Against six hearts, you lead the diamond ace. Declarer surprises you by discarding the spade nine from the dummy. What would you do at trick two?

East, Fred Stewart, opened with a modern non-vulnerable pre-empt. West, Steve Weinstein, raised to five diamonds. Now North, Bobby Goldman. had a problem. Usually, one would double with his hand, but Goldman expected his partner, Paul Soloway, to pass. Yet Goldman felt they could five diamonds doubled would be insufficient compensation. So, Goldman bid five no-trump, intending it as "pick a slam." Paul Soloway, though, thinking the bid showed hearts and clubs, preferred his doubleton heart over his singleton club!

This deal exhibits a drawback of a newspaper column. In a magazine, we could set the problem with only two hands visible and put the full deal on a later page. Here, most of you will have noticed the club ace is cashable. Yet Weinstein thought that trick couldn't run away. If the diamond ace was so unpleasant for declarer, perhaps a second diamond would be equally awkward. But as you can see, Soloway won with his king, drew trumps, and ran his seven-card spade suit to land the slam!
Why play with 11 trumps when six
