

Casselberry Council Actions Red Bug Road-SR 436 To Get Light

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

CASSELBERRY—A unanimous vote of the Casselberry City Council Monday night approved a resolution to install street lighting on Red Bug Road from the intersection of Bell Avenue and Winter Springs to the intersection of the Red Bug Road and SR 436.

Mandell also committed to provide dedicated easements for installation of water and sewer lines in both phases two and three. He said he "is" for payment of the remaining costs are being worked out by County Commissioner Mike Hattaway. He added developers of land on Red Bug north to Tuslawville will share in the 50 per cent cost he committed to.

Despite vigorous objections by Winter Springs Mayor Granville Brown to what he termed "spot zoning", the council on a four-to-one vote approved annexation of a seven-acre parcel adjacent to Bell Avenue and Winter Springs with land industrial zoning. Brown also insisted land developers were turned down by his city and the county when requests were made for similar zoning. Brown also pointed out the 10,000 square foot planned warehouse will abut $25,000 to $30,000 more and no paved access is provided.

The board required Dermot Rogers, purchasing the parcel, A $500 contribution to the Sanford Crime Lab, which serves the law enforcement agencies of 23 counties, was approved by the city council unanimously.

Councilman Richard Wirz, who made the motion to grant the contribution, said, "I see no more worthy cause than to retain the crime lab facilities."

The money will be paid into the $100,000 fund being raised to match a $300,000 federal grant, sometime after Nov. 1, beginning of the new fiscal year.

Approval was given for a commercial development on seven acres located on the south side of SR 436. The project is named Stockdale Gardens.

Sanford Council Actions

By ROH LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford city commissioners Monday night signed a contract with Seminole County for housing of city prisoners in county jail.

The contract, calling for the city to pay $4 a day per prisoner housed, goes into effect July 1, 1974 or at completion of the present county jail expansion program, whichever is later.

During the interim city officials say they expect no problems in housing the few city prisoners now booked at the city facility since the number has dropped to about three places with the implementation of judicial revision that places the majority of prisoners directly under the sheriff.

The city-county contract holds the city responsible for all medical, dental, hospital or other major expenses incurred by city prisoners in county jail. Billing to the city and payment will be on a monthly basis.

If the number of county jail prisoners reaches more than 200 at any given time the contract provides for the sheriff to farm the excess prisoners out to surrounding counties and the city to pay all costs of such housing of its prisoners.

Sanford is the first municipality to contract with the county for housing of prisoners. If and when other cities make the change the cost of housing prisoners will be shared among the cities participating.

Either the county or city can call for recomputation of the prisoner housing cost each six months and the per day housing cost figure can be adjusted up or down according to actual cost to the county.

SEEKS GASOLINE

City Manager Warren Knowles told commissioners he has advertised for bids on 50,000 gallons of gasoline as a supplemental fuel supply for city vehicles. Bids are to be opened July 6 at 2 p.m. at City Hall.

The bids call for installation of necessary tanks and pumps for the separate facility.

LIGHTS SHELVED

Commissioners shelved plans for installing street lights along U.S. 17-92 south of Airport Boulevard after Knowles reported the costs will be at least $300 per light.

Knowles said the high cost is because state Department of Transportation requirements call for breakaway safety poles and 18 foot setbacks along the highway. Street lights are allowed in the median strip and Knowles said the long swing arms required to position the lights over each side of the four lane highway double the cost of conventional units.

BUS SERVICE?

Knowles said he's invited a south Seminole man interested in providing bus service in Sanford to apply for a city franchise.

"The remark you made while drinking your 'suds' aroused my ire. You referred to places that sell beer as 'joints.'"

"Mr. Spolski, let me enlighten you. Not all beer joints are joints."

For Our Classrooms

Is Educational Research Necessary?

Seven years ago, the U.S. Office of Education established research and development centers and regional laboratories nationwide to bring educational research closer to the classroom.

After seven years, however, teachers, school administrators, principals and other in education do not believe this effort has done much to improve the elementary and secondary education of the nation's 52 million pupils.

In a recent Phi Delta Kappa (PDK) poll of its members, 40 per cent said they were neutral when asked if the centers and laboratories "have been successful in effecting improvement in educational practice at the public elementary and secondary school level."

Thirty-seven per cent disagreed and 23 per cent agreed. When curriculum or education specialists in PDK were asked the same question, 52 per cent disagreed.

PDK, the national honorary education fraternity, has nearly 86,000 members and 1,020 were polled.

These results are particularly important in light of the Nixon administration's request to spend $162 million on the fledgling National Institute of Education, a super-R&D outfit that will bring most of the research back to Washington at a time when the administration is emphasizing decentralization.

One of the many disturbing things coming from the Watergate hearings is the way top Nixon Administration officials such as Maurice Stans, campaign finance chairman and former commerce secretary, seem to consider it routine to keep large bundles of cash around for campaign purposes.

Stans appeared to consider it not at all unusual that persons in the White House could report $500,000 in cash to go on hand for financing "special polling."

There was no indication what kind of "special polling" the White House crowd had in mind, but if it were a reasonable and responsible campaign operation, why would it have to be financed by cash?

Apparently Stans used $5,000 of that — he didn't explain how — then returned $45,000 to Kalmbach when he asked Stans to come up with as much cash as possible to meet a White House request "not connected with the campaign" a few days after the Watergate bugging incident.

Stans said he also happened to have on hand at the time $30,000 in cash that had been given him by a Philippines citizen as a contribution to the Nixon campaign. He hadn't deposited this in any campaign accounts because he was speaking to lawyers to check out whether it was legal for the Committee to Re-Elect the President to accept money from foreign nations. So he, said, this $30,000, which he gave,

The poll asked, "The recently established NIE holds promise for improving American education." That is the basis on which it was sold to Congress. Seventy-three per cent gave a neutral response; 20 per cent agreed and seven per cent disagreed.

Responses to other questions are interesting for their contradictions and deviation from what the education lobby reports as the views of school people.

Fifty-seven per cent agreed that the middle school (a combination of two or more grades between 5 and 8) "has the potential for improving elementary and secondary education." But when later asked to respond to the statement, "The replacement of the junior high...by the middle school...is merely an organizational change and is unlikely to produce any noticeable improvement..." 49 per cent agreed; 38 per cent disagreed and 15 per cent remained neutral.

Few ideas are more upsetting to most leading education spokesmen than contracting with a private organization to teach a subject, with payment based on pupil performance or giving parents a cash voucher for tuition at the school of their choice.

There was a split on performance contracting. Fifty per cent disagreed that it could improve education; 37 per cent agreed and 15 per cent were neutral. Only 48 per cent disagreed about cash vouchers; 37 per cent agreed to their potential to improve education and six per cent were neutral.

Individualized instruction received strong support as did the concept of nongraded schools.

Situation Disturbing Campaigns Need Attitude Change

COPLBY NEWS

Kalmbach along with the $45,000, was not campaign funds. He said the $45,000 was later given back to the Finance Committee advised that contributions from foreign citizens should not be accepted, but he didn't say if he got $30,000 back from Kalmbach, paid it out of committee funds and took it out of his pocket.

Why a Philippine businessman would be contributing $30,000 to the Nixon campaign and why it would be cash are other intriguing questions left unanswered.

The shocking thing to us is that Stans seemed to regard it as not at all out of the ordinary for all this cash to be floating around in the campaign, which indicates such things were old hat to him. He said defensively that cash transactions amounted to only 2 per cent or so of the money taken in and of the money spent in the campaign. Nevertheless, $50,000 is a lot of cash to be lying around in one bundle, and altogether around $1 million was being changed in cash.

Changes in the law regarding reporting of contributions and accounting for contributions which took effect in the middle of last year's campaign, undoubtedly will have some good effect. If large gifts have to be reported, there is little reason for them to be made in cash.

However, there has been little attention given to eliminating abuses in the spending of campaign funds. We question that much will really be done until there's a change in attitude by people like Stans. So long as it's accepted practice that thousands of dollars or hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash can be shuttled back and forth among campaign personnel for secret uses, there can be no cleanup of campaign abuses. And the people will be justified in continuing to believe politics is a dirty business.

Man's Faith In Man Revived

Charles Conrad, Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz have revived man's faith in man. The Skylab 1 crew has demonstrated that the human element remains supreme to the computerized heart of the space program.

The Skylab 1 crew has demonstrated that the human element remains supreme to the computerized heart of the space program. A series of disasters that plagued the nation's first orbiting laboratory has been offset by American ingenuity as practiced by the three astronauts and their talented guardians on the ground below.

The crew erected a giant parasol to relieve 100-degree heat inside the eight-room workshop.

The men have conquered an erratic docking system, helped in the correction of propulsion solar telescopes and rigged up a makeshift cooling system to replace non-working factory-installed equipment. Conrad was moved to command at one point. "Half of every piece of normal gear doesn't run right," he said. "But Kerwin, surveying the patchwork accomplished, added, 'It's a pretty wonderful machine for all that.'"

And on the ground at the Houston Space Center, projected manager Kenneth Kinnick could only say in admiration that the crew had "proved that man is the most adaptable, non-specialized computer conceivable."

Would a computer show the same concern for tidying up for the next tenants?

RAY CROMLEY Possible China oil is a big thing

WASHINGTON (NEA) The development of stronger economic relations with Peking may enable the United States eventually to escape from a risky dependence on oil from the Middle East, says Moscovici's military might and influence have been growing these past few years.

Almost equally important to the United States politically and militarily is China's oil resources. If they prove as greatly as expected, could provide major alternate sources of supply for Japan and U.S. allies in Europe.

This listing of Peking as a future alternate source of petroleum assumes Mao Tse-tung's government will put oil profits above ideology and that the China-Soviet cold war will continue unabated. Analysts here say the odds are good on both these counts.

Preliminary studies indicate there are major petroleum resources in the seas off the coast of China. In meetings with businessmen recently, U.S. government officials have reported Peking has now given priority to the development of national oil resources — including exploration, drilling, refining and the manufacture of petrochemicals.

Likewise, Japan, Korea, Taiwan, South Vietnam and Indochina are looking for ways to exploit their own offshore petroleum resources, also believed to be quite large.

Talks between Peking and the other governments mentioned above with Washington and with private American businessmen indicate that these lands will be interested in considerable U.S. technical assistance and — to some extent — participation by U.S. companies.

Though the Chinese headed by Mao are said to be fearful of the participation by American concerns and by any outside agency or government as a result of their shattering experience with the Russians some time back, this reporter knows from his own experience that Mao himself, and Chou En-lai, were at one time greatly interested in private American investment. Mao's men will find some way to rationalize cooperation with U.S. industry.

Though Chinese oil, if it comes, is something for years in the future, politically and psychologically that still-buried petroleum can have a real importance today in restraining some of the latter belligerents in the Middle East. Already, some Middle East leaders have suggested strongly that their oil will be used politically in the future to need arises. They have referred pointedly to the United States and to West European countries as the nations which must be kept in line.

Some of the enormous income from Middle East oil is being used by some states to fund the activities of terrorist groups in the Mediterranean region. Unverified reports suggest that some undergrounds in Asia are also being assisted with these oil revenues.

BRUCE BLOSSAT Watergate Strikes Fear in Governors

LAKE TAHOE, Nev. — (NEA) — The nation's governors, answering questions about Watergate at every turn, are still only dimly aware of one of its potentially most perilous consequences.

Every now and then its outlines emerge when a reporter in a press conference suggests that, whether they are looking ahead to the next presidential race or contests for high state office, they are going to have to find "Mr. Clean."

That notion, carried to its utmost limits, could be more troubling to U.S. politicians than any other aspect of Watergate they could face. For it could mean imposing on politics some possibly high standards.

As upset as these governors and other political figures are about this massive scandal, they can respond fairly easily to some of the problems it raises for them.

They can deplore the misuse of the public trust and the attempted undermining of the political process.

They can call for the fullest inquiries, even as they have done here, to the point of demanding that President Nixon submit himself to long, repeated searching cross-examination by the press on his role in Watergate.

They can complain about the dangers and inequities of the present system of campaign financing.

They can argue plausibly that the scandal was the work of particular men, and that neither major party should be asked to bear special responsibility for it. Most Republicans were not involved and the Democrats, of course, were the intended victims of the Nixon administration's elaborate espionage-sabotage network.

They can argue that it is improper and unfair for the President to assert that Watergate is just a more spectacular example of tactics common to all politics, and should be seen that perspective.

But as they point their fears take over. Regardless of party, these governors are terrified at the possible runoff off on them and their political colleagues. They don't like the assumption that all politicians are dirty or crooked or both.

Yet, as indicated at the outset, their dilemma in this regard may be even greater than they realize.

The rising call for "Mr. Clean" may reflect so wide a public revulsion as to put them to impossible tests of sparseness.

Perfect conduct is not to be found in politics, business or anywhere else. Most people have minor brushes with the law, or the tax authorities, etc. Even the most deeply honest politicians can be victimized and have their records sullied by faithless aides and grasping influence seekers.

Is it forgotten that the late Adlai Stevenson had two scandals to deal with while governor of Illinois? Or that Nelson Rockefeller, who hardly needs extra cash, had to shake off a key aide early in his long tenure?

Astronauts Alan Bean, Owen Garriott and Jack Louman will be shot into space July 27 for a 36-day outing in the 100-ton laboratory. Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz have vowed to clean up the quarters to save time for the next crewmen.

Would a computer show the same concern for tidying up for the next tenants?

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The State Parole Board, after months of being at odds with the Parole and Probation Commission, has established guidelines for granting paroles.

"Paroles should be sparingly given," Gov. Reubin Askew told the board Monday. The board consists of the state Cabinet and Askew.

The governor directed Commission Chairman Armond Cross meet with board staff members within the next 30 days to develop the guidelines.

"I don't think a person is entitled to a full parole because they haven't broken the law over a number of years," Askew said.

The board denied the seven of eight recommendations for paroles Monday. The only one granted was to John Robert Bruce of Fayetteville, N.C.

Bruce was convicted of grand larceny in 1972 and released nearly a year later from state prison.

The board also held a meeting with Louis Paul Bennett, director, 24, of Miami for pardon of a drug selling conviction.

Both sides, who was 19 at the time of the conviction, had the board been had been rehabilitated, served time in prison and learned an art most of their grand-children have already mastered — swimming.

With a blue scarf wrapped around her head, Mrs. Lando, 63-year-old Sadie Lando, eased gingerly into the hydro-pneumatic pool and said, "I feel like a Mack Sennett bathing beauty."

Nervous cries filled the air around Monday as some 40 other golden agers between 60 and 70 stuck tentative toes in the water.

It wasn't so easy when you get older, I guess it's fear of the water. And the older you get, the more silly you feel trying to do something your grand-children do so easily," she said.

The swimming program is part of a summer camp for young citizens sponsored by the Senior Men's and Women's Citizens Association.

Clinging to a rope stretched across the pool while she kicked her legs furiously in the water, Helen Goldberg panted, "Wow, it's a lot better than I thought."

Mrs. Goldberg, who moved to Miami from Detroit last

January, said she was learning to swim because "we have a pool at our house and I want to be able to enjoy it."

"I never learned to swim because when I was a kid a relative held me under the water as a joke and after that I was too frightened to get my face in the water," Mrs. Goldberg added.

Kolman Rosenberg, 24, the other golden ager, said his course was scaled down to take into account the old people's health problems ranging from Parkinson's disease to arthritis.

"They won't stay in the water too long and we have full medical records on everyone," he said. "I'm a nurse standing by in case anyone over exerts themselves."

Fanny Atlas, 91, formerly of Mount Vernon, N.Y., enrolled in the class last Monday. She is originally from Cleveland, Ohio, as he took a few hearty strokes through the water.

"That's right," his wife, May, 63, said. "Who ever heard of living in Florida and not being able to swim?"

Ann Herrmann, 36, owner of the Guy and Della Billiard parlor in Tampa, her daughter, Lynn, 18, and Mrs. Herrmann's mother, Georgia Tully, 53, of Atlanta, Ga., were found strangling in their home June 17.

Beard said Alvord had been charged with three counts of first degree murder in connection with the killings.

He said questioning of patrons at the billiard parlor revealed that Alvord threatened to kill Mrs. Herrmann after argued with a companion of Alvord's over payment for games and barred him from the parlor.

Beard said witnesses quoted Alvord as telling Mrs. Herrmann, "usually kill people who treat my friends like that."

Beard declined to give further details.

Dear Abby

Centerfolds are unstapling marriage

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Since the beginning of our marriage four years ago, I told my husband I wouldn't tolerate "Playboy" or any other such magazine in our home, and it was wanted to read that kind of stuff he would have to leave it at his office.

We moved recently and I found a stack of these girls' magazines in the attic. My husband laughed about it and said he read them when I was asleep or out.

Now he continues buying these magazines which he keeps in his drawer. I told him to remove them or I would throw them out. Well, he didn't, and I did. Now he tells me I owe him $8 for his destroyed magazines, and he refuses to give me his paycheck until I pay him the $8.

Am I wrong, or is he? He knew my feelings, and he was warned. He says those magazines belonged to him and I had no right to destroy them.

If you want to publish this, go ahead. There must be others with this problem.

HATES FILTH

DEAR HATES: You are wrong. Your husband has a right to read "at a distance" and to keep whatever he wants in his drawer. And if you don't want to see his privacy and destroying his property, it could cost you more than $8.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl with a big problem. My favorite cousin is getting married in two months and my parents won't let me go to the wedding unless I take off 10 pounds! That is so awful to lose in two months, but my mother said she talked to the doctor and he said I could do it if I tried. Abby, I would have to live on practically nothing to lose all that weight in two months. I'm afraid I would get so weak I couldn't do as well in school, etc.

I have enough money in the bank to fly to the wedding which is across the country, but my parents say I can't go at all unless I lose 10 pounds, and if I do, they will buy my ticket.

Why are people so prejudiced against overweight people? It's as if we were not human.

Are my parents being unfair to me, Abby? I just want to go to that wedding. I pray a lot and it makes me feel better but it doesn't get me there. Please help me.

HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Five pounds a month is not too much to lose, and if the doctor says you can do it, you should try. Quit looking for excuses why you CAN'T, and start on a diet right now and you'll make it. Good luck.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FEELING FOOLISH IN MINNEAPOLIS": No need to move. The ad in an evening paper that we were they could purchase false families.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Dyeing For an Answer To Her Jacket Problem

DEAR POLLY—I have a handmade Chinese red cashmere jacket that was ruined on while it was outside airing. Now every time I wear it, the red dye gets all over me and my clothes. Does anyone have a solution?—MRS. P. S.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is for the newspaper advertisers who put in an ad for a sale that is to be held the next day. Often the ad is in an evening paper that we read two days before the event.

DEAR POLLY—I am writing concerning Pat's orchid plants that seem to be dying. I have found that orchids need more drainage than any other houseplants. I think an orchid pot with slotted sides is really best for them, but the roots must be kept fairly moist. A plastic pot seems to keep the soil at a warmer, more constant temperature than a clay one.

DEAR GIRLS—I have never grown orchids but the research I did on them disclosed the following: miniature orchids require more time for adjustment to different surroundings. Some even take several months. Once they adapt they will produce new growth. Some think slotted clay pots best but never put orchid pots on flat surfaces because they need ventilation from the bottom. Artificial lights require bright light but never blaring sunlight.

The larger varieties require a definite rest period, and many say that are the easiest to grow, but miniature bloom more consistently there are so many varieties. You must determine what yours are and ask for directions from the nurseryman concerning the care of the type you are having. This is most important.—POLLY

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN. WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald & James Jacoby

No book by Fred Karpin would be complete unless he showed a couple of hands where someone drew away an ace as the only way to make a contract or defeat a contract, depending on whether or not the hero was defending or playing the dummy.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You do bid four spades and your partner bids five hearts. What do you do now?

Answer tomorrow

Not that we don't all get into some contracts and no one can blame Sonny for his six bid.

West opened the eight of clubs. After a low club was played from dummy, East played the 10. Sonny thought of ducking but decided that the club trump, they do not compel. "What you make of your life is largely up to you!"

Television Networks Do Transmit News

By JAY SHARRITT AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—It may sound odd, but the NBC, CBS and ABC television networks regularly transmit news, feature and sports stories you'll rarely see on the networks' regular evening news programs.

Okay, so where do the stories go? They show up on 379 television stations as part of local news programs that start before or after the "NBC Nightly News," "CBS Evening News" or "ABC Evening News." They also pop up on local weekend news programs.

The networks transmit them at a fee—as a supplementary television news service to help local stations fill their news programs with tape and film stories from other cities, regions and even nations.

Gilbert Estate Files Suit

The administrator of the estate of a Sanford policeman killed in a June 2 collision at Five Points has filed a million-dollar lawsuit in circuit court at Sanford charging negligence by General Motors Corporation, an Orlando auto dealer and the driver of a high performance car.

Hirschel Gilbert, 40-year-old off-duty Sanford policeman, and his wife Yvonne, 36, were killed when their 1971 Chevrolet was struck on U.S. 17-92 at SR 427 by a 1970 Pontiac Trans Am driven by Sidney E. Terrell, 21, of Winter Springs. Terrell also died in the high speed crash.

The civil suit filed Monday by Orlando attorney Charles T. Wells seeks damages in excess of $1 million for the Gilbert estate and his three children from General Motors, Cumble-Heyward Cars Inc., who sold the Pontiac Trans Am to Terrell three days before the crash, and the Terrell estate.

The action alleges the manufacturer was negligent and careless in designing, assembling and marketing the Trans Am that "created an extraordinarily hazardous condition other highway users in the vicinity of the Trans Am."

The suit alleges the Trans Am was manufactured with inadequate headlights, brakes, steering mechanism, tires and shock absorbers to allow control at high speed to safely avoid other cars on public highways and as result Gilbert was killed.

The suit alleges GM and Cumble-Heyward failed to advise the buyer of the "ultra-hazard condition" created when the high-speed car was used on public highways.

The lawsuit claims Terrell was running speeds "in excess of 150 miles an hour" and being pursued by Sanford police when the Trans Am collided with Gilbert's car at 120-miles-an-hour, scattering wreckage and bodies over a wide area.

The civil action also alleges GM was negligent in designing and manufacturing the Gilberts' Chevrolet sedan in that it was unable to withstand the high speed impact of the Trans Am without severe injury or death of occupants.

Kelley Hearing Starts Today

By JOHN CHADWICK Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee was called into closed session today to act on the nomination of Clarence M. Kelley, Kansas City police chief, to be director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The committee concluded three days of testimony Monday. Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said he hoped for a prompt vote on Kelley's nomination and for Senate confirmation before Congress starts a July 4 holiday recess.

Kelley was nominated by President Nixon June 8, and withdrew his earlier nomination of L. Patrick Gray III to succeed the late J. Edgar Hoover.

Lt. Col. Gray, who had no law enforcement experience, Kelley has been police chief in Kansas City for 12 years and before that served 21 years with the FBI.

Gray, who became acting FBI director after Hoover's death in May 1972, resigned April 25 after disclosure that he had destroyed materials taken from the White House safe of one of the convicted Watergate conspirators.

Since then William D. Ruckelshaus, former lead of the Environmental Protection Agency, has been filling in as FBI chief.

The first opposition to Kelley's nomination was voiced at the Judiciary Committee's hearing Monday. But most witnesses agreed his confirmation.

The opposition came from Bruce H. Watkins, a black civil rights leader, and J. Nelson Thompson, a ghetto lawyer in Kansas City.

Both complained of police brutality against blacks. Watkins said that Kelley had added fuel to the city's 1968 riots after the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. He testified the lives of six blacks were sacrificed needlessly.

However, David R. Hardy, a lawyer who headed a 5-member commission appointed to investigate the riots, said the commission agreed unanimously that Kelley had done a good job as police chief.

Other Avenues Vowed Court Cuts Parochial Aid

By KRISTIN LILJEHOLM Associated Press Writer Parochial school officials across the country say they're disappointed by the Supreme Court's rulings against state tax and tuition breaks for parents of their pupils.

But many indicate they will continue to try other avenues, including a pending federal tax-credit plan.

Civil rights groups praised the decisions, which they said were "more or less expected."

In decisions Monday, the high court said New York and Pennsylvania tuition reimbursement plans and a New York tax-credit program for their non-public schools effectively furthered religion.

Thus, the plans violated First Amendment provisions on separation of church and state, the high court ruled.

Other New York programs to subsidize urban parochial schools in such health and safety expenditures as heat, lights and custodial services and state-required record-keeping also were struck down.

Justice Cardinal Cooke, in a statement through the New York headquarters, called the actions "a step to end freedom of choice in education to all but the affluent."

He said the Supreme Court's rulings were "a terrible blow."

In Ohio, where a similar state-aid law was invalidated earlier, Gov. John J. Gilligan called the decisions a hardship "not only for private schools, their students and families but for the whole public education system as well."

Joan Tuttle of the Massachusetts Civil Liberties Union hailed "the court's continuing determination to maintain the law between church and state."

And Leo Pfeffer, a New York City attorney who helped lead the fight against the state's plans, said he hoped the campaign now was finished.

But Robert Eggold, superintendent of Lutheran schools in Kansas, said he and others would keep pushing for a Nixon-supported federal tax-credit bill for parents of nonpublic school youngsters.

"We're of the opinion that, when Congress passes this and the President signs it, the judicial branch will say, 'This is the law of the land,' and will let it stand," he said.

The bill, which was reported favorably by the House Ways and Means Committee last year but has not been acted upon, again is over that committee as part of an over-all tax reform bill.

No one was predicting the closing of any parochial schools because of the decisions, but Walter Toner, director of Washington State Independent Schools, said it could mean that "schools are in trouble, but no deeper than before."

Sister Maura McDonald of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Santa Fe, N.M. Msgr. William Novick, parochial education superintendent in Cleveland, said he will recommend that tuition be done away with.

"Instead I will ask all of our people to make donations to their churches for the education of children," he said. He noted that donations are tax deductible but that is not.

The summary generally runs about 30 pages with the news days divided into categories: Watergate, Indochina, Economy and so forth. In recent months Watergate has commanded most of the digest's space.

Patrick J. Buchanan, a White House speechwriter and former editorial writer for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, began the summary when President Nixon took office and still supervises its production.

The main editing, however, is done by Lyndon (Mort) Allen, a 32-year-old former history teacher who says he has always been interested in the media.

A review of some summaries for the past year shows that the digests are indeed thorough and generally objective, if usually long-dry.

The same summary that contained the favorable U.S. News & World Report comment on the latest Watergate disclosures and sent the U.S. dollar up strongly today, apparently anticipating that good foreign trade figures will be announced in Washington later in the day.

Monday's testimony by former President Richard Nixon, which carried the theme to "I am not a crook," appeared to have little or no effect on early trading in the exchanges or gold markets.

The price of the metal was unchanged at $118.25 an ounce in Zurich and 15 or more for major news and editorial comment.

Staff Compiles News For Nixon

By JULES LOH Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's most exclusive news publication is put together every day by a staff of five top news keyers: the President of the United States.

Titled simply "News Summary," it arrives at his desk at 8 a.m. each morning in a blue loose-leaf binder. If the President is out of town it reaches him by wire.

The summary, meaty but dry, contains the essence of news and commentary from nearly 50 daily newspapers, about as many magazines and journals, plus the major news services and the three major television networks.

A staple: "US News pages on 'Biggest WH Banquet Ever' w' photos on the 'day of high patriotism' — like a breath of fresh air for scandal-ridden WH" and "a much-needed 'hit' for a beleaguered RN..."

The item, from a May 28 summary, condenses a U.S. News World Report story on the White House (WH) banquet for returning war prisoners. Well-known names, including Richard Nixon, are in the form of initials.

THE GOLD RUSH makes extra heavy work days for the staff at Johnson Mathey in London's Hatten Garden district. This is the weighing room.

U. S. Dollar Shows Gain In Europe

LONDON (AP) — European foreign exchange markets shrugged off the latest Watergate disclosures and sent the U.S. dollar up strongly today, apparently anticipating that good foreign trade figures will be announced in Washington later in the day.

Brezhnev Opens Talks In France

PARIS (AP) — Leonid Brezhnev today started two days talks with French President Georges Pompidou as a follow-up to his trip to the United States.

The Soviet leader was reported ready to offer Pompidou chairmanship of a "super East-West summit" conference here in December. He was readying the offer with the approval of President Nixon, French reports said.

The French see the proposal as a scheme for trying to draw them from their independent stance on nuclear and conventional arms reduction. A government spokesman indicated that France would not be able to consider it until after the end of the second phase of the European security conference beginning next month in Helsinki, Finland.

The super-summit was described here as a meeting meant to put a definitive end to the Cold War period and was equated to the Congress of Vienna, which closed out the Napoleonic era.

Even before Brezhnev flew in from Washington at midnight Monday, official French sources stated that whatever the Soviet leader had on his mind was expected to sound out the French on cooperating more with one of his pet projects, the Helsinki European security talks.

The French have taken a hard position on insisting that Soviet bloc countries agree to open more to the West. This means freedom of their citizens to travel and unrestricted entry of books, newspapers, and travelers from outside the Socialist world.

The Soviet leader may seek explanations on insisting that Foreign Minister Michel Jobert meant when he seemed to hint in a speech last week that France would cooperate in creating a Western European military force independent of the United States.

On the French side, Pompidou is likely to explore with Brezhnev the Soviet Union's new friendliness with West Germany and what it means for France's place as a privileged Soviet client in the West.

Skiyab's 'Shady' Secrets

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Skylab 1 astronauts report today on how they raised a giant sun shade to cool down their orbiting laboratory, making it livable so they could complete a record 28-day space mission.

That was the highlight of a second day of debriefings with experts which will continue through July 11 for Charles Conrad Jr., Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz.

The astronauts began the step-by-step recollection of the flight Monday, starting with launch day — including the suiting up and entering their spaceship, the countdown, launch and rendezvous with the space station.

They picked up today with the two days they spent activating the laboratory, unpacking equipment, turning on water, lights and air conditioning and setting up medical, solar observatory, earth resources and other experiment equipment.

During that period they raised the umbrella-like sun shade, poking it through an air lock and deploying it into a 22-by-24-foot sheet. It covered an area on the outside that had been exposed to solar heat when a protective shield ripped away during launching.

PUDDLES (12 diapers a day) gets his 4 o'clock bottle from Lori Demp, 9, in Zanoville, Ohio, as Scooby-Doo, the cat, takes a somewhat questioning view. Four bottles a day is the lamb's ration.

Annual Owners' Meetings Tough Week Faces NFL Owners, Players

Maryland Fried Chicken It's Extra Specially Good

By JEAN PATTISON Herald Staff Writer

There must be a pretty good reason why Maryland Fried Chicken is so extra specially good.

Fried Chicken is undoubtedly an all-time American favorite. Every good cook has a special recipe.

John Garza, manager of Maryland Fried Chicken at 2100 French Avenue in Sanford, will tell you there is not just one reason why his chicken is so good — there are several reasons.

It all starts with an idea: serve the customer with quality and flavor. To understand Maryland quality and flavor, it is necessary to sample the big chunks of golden-fried, top grade chicken served with crispy fries or creamy mashed potatoes, and lively coleslaw. Not to mention those melt-in-the-mouth hot buttered rolls.

How does Maryland do it?

The Maryland Fried Chicken routine and secret ingredient for preparing this appetizing fare, yet Maryland Fried Chicken still has the lead when it comes to sheer lip-smacking goodness.

Assistant manager Adolf Garza is chief chef at Maryland in Sanford, and his wife Earlene is the girl up front behind the counter with the happy smile. They will tell you that Maryland uses only fresh, quality ingredients. The kitchens are equipped with the most sophisticated kitchen equipment which enhances the flavor and quality of the food, and only pure peanut oil is used for cooking. Naturally the kitchens are kept spotlessly clean.

Special care is taken to serve the hot food piping hot, and coleslaw will be coming back for more.

Fast, friendly service is also part of serving Maryland Fried Chicken. Doesn't any meal go down better when served promptly with a warm smile?

The Maryland Fried Chicken offers either eat-in or take-out service. You can enjoy your meal in the newly decorated diningroom, or take along a bucket or two of delicious goodies to enjoy at the beach, by the pool, or at your own diningroom table.

Call ahead for orders if you prefer: phone Maryland Fried Chicken at 322-9442, and your order will be ready and waiting for you, neatly packaged and complete with napkins and utensils. For variety Maryland Fried Chicken also offers complete dinners featuring jumbo shrimp or oysters — so delicious you'll be coming back for more.

Entrust your car to Hobbs, and you will be delighted with the efficient and thorough job he performs to keep your car running smoothly.

Assistant manager is Carl Crawford. You will recognize his friendly smile and cheerful service at the gas pumps.

Talking of gas pumps, Fite has good news for his customers. He says he is still getting a steady supply of gas, and should have enough to keep all his customers happy. So if your regular service station is going out of business, this is the time to make the change.

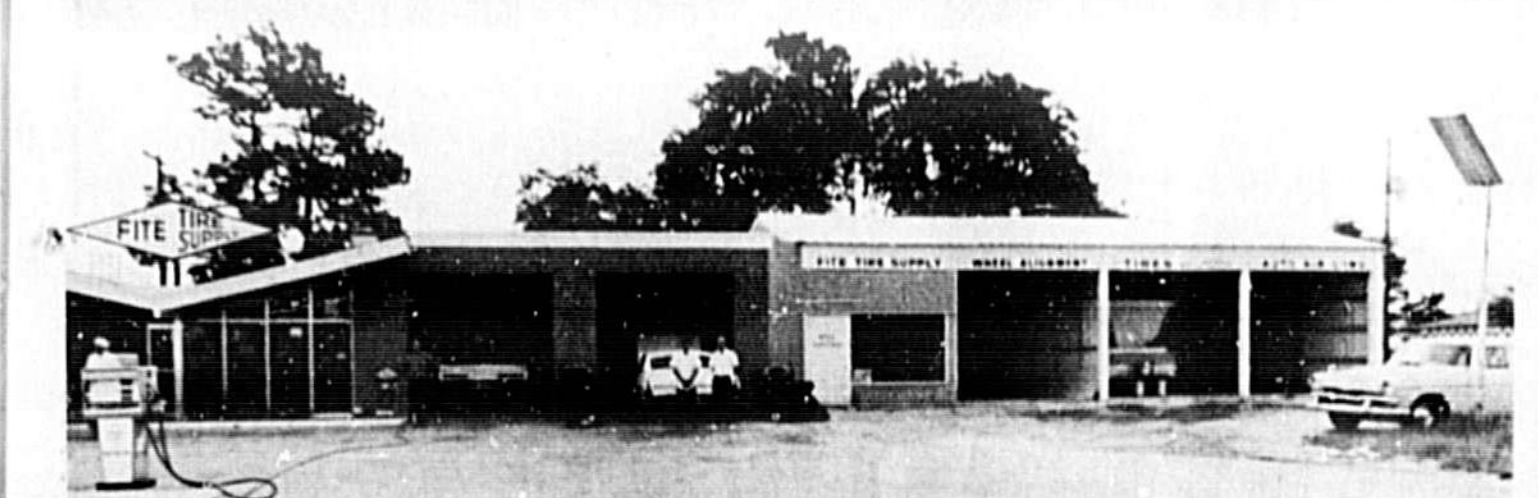

Fite Tire is the place for one-stop complete care service.

Why go chasing all over town in this heat to get things done on your car? A single stop at Fite's can take care of all car check-ups, servicing and repairs.

Does the mention of driving in this summer heat make you wilt? Do you have nightmares of sweating in the 100 degree temperatures inside your car? Obviously you don't have air conditioning. Fite can put that right in a matter of hours. He offers a complete air conditioning service.

Fite has a second business specializing in truck service at the Sanford Airport, operated by Jim DeJor. Major and minor tune-ups on passenger cars are also performed at this branch.

Now you know about Fite Tire Supply, don't missplace this story; it's your passport to those brake, alignment and tire specials.

Check At The Fishing Hole Tell Them 'Gone Fishin'

By JEAN PATTISON Herald Staff Writer

"Gone Fishin'" is the sign you will see posted up on many doors now that summer is upon us.

Before heading for the old fishing hole on the river, wise fishermen call first at The Fishing Hole on French Avenue. There they can get up-to-the-minute reports from owner Freddie Sweet on where the fish are biting best, collect live bait and extra tackle, and even buy watermelons for refreshment when the sun is high.

Fishermen who call in at The Fishing Hole regularly will have noticed how business is booming. Sweet started out at the beginning of the year with the bare essentials in his store — bait rods, tackle and bait. At the same time he had plans for bigger things: he intended establishing a sporting goods store that would offer Sanford Area fishermen a full range of fishing gear under one roof.

Sweet has now achieved his goal, and offers a wide selection of fishing rods and tackle. Live crickets are a new item on his live bait list, and if you go for a worm with a real lively wriggle, The Fishing Hole is the place to get them.

Bait casting nets and shrimp nets are a new addition to Sweet's stocks. He is also now offering sporting caps in a variety of colors to keep heads cool, and eyes shaded, under the burning summer sun.

Sweet stocks the Coleman line of camping supplies, including stoves and lanterns, which are a useful part of every fisherman's equipment.

Don't get caught up the creek without a paddle! You never know when that boat engine is going to cut out on you, so select a paddle at The Fishing Hole before your next trip.

And what about a flashlight? If the fishing is good you won't want to leave the water till late. It would be sad to lose your way home in the dark — especially if you have a prize winning catch with you.

As well as having a full range of fishing gear, The Fishing Hole has become the information center for fishing enthusiasts throughout the Sanford area. Sweet's invitation to "drop by and talk about the day's fishing" has met with enthusiastic response. Fishermen call in at the end of an outing to show their catch, tell where and how they caught it, and sometimes to boast about the big one that got away.

Sweet operates under a "fisherman's hours." He is open from sunrise till dark. "That way I can serve all fishermen, no matter how early or late they go fishing," says Sweet.
