the premier began his speech by saying he would not discuss either foreign or domestic affairs, for "we would offend our dead and if we did not know how to conform ourselves to that love of country that united them in their sacrifices and in their tombs." He appealed to everyone to forget differences and merge themselves in "national fruternity."

"Nevertheless," M. Herriot added, "it is a hard road that leads from the war out of which that leads to the peace we have not yet attained." He cautioned his hearers to remember that "we are all sons of the same country, whose population is not so large that it can afford to be divided."

The premier then recalled the war spirit and allied unity that had made victory possible at the battle of the Marne, "the greatest battle in history," but he regretted that since the battle "difficulties and competitions have caused a slackening, at least in appearance, of those ties that bound us together."

"These ties," M. Herriot continued, "is my thought to reinforce make lasting. This association of everywhere were clairvoyant for peace. Mr. MacDonald said to the correspondents:

"And we will never really get peace until men like M. Herriot and myself put ourselves in each other's shoes and understand each other's geographical, economic and general national problems. We will never attain that concordance of mind which is an essential condition of world peace until Mac-Donald can speak to Herriot and Herriot to MacDonald."

WOULD STAY WITH ALLIES.
Looking around at the allied military attaches present, including the representative of the United States, the premier asked them to convey to your governments the assurance that we are resolved to remain attached to them as we were in the fight that led to victory."

Marshall Joffre, whose order at the battle of the Marne, "hold out or die!" was frequently mentioned during the series of ceremonies in connection with the dedication of the monument to Gallieni, attended all of them and was everywhere acclaimed.

Many Americans came to Tri-bordou and took part in the procession to the statue which General Nollet, minister of war, dedicated with a eulogy to Marshall Gallieni, whom he described as the great general who saved Paris and helped to save France.

HERIOT STATES FRENCH POSITION ON DISARMAMENT

Says There Can Be No Laying Down of Arms Unless There is Security to Insure Safety; Receives Ovation

MEAUX, France, Sept. 8.—France's determination that "there can be no disarmament without security" was proclaimed anew by Premier Herriot and cheered during a banquet Sunday preceding the dedication of a monument to Marshall Gallieni at Tribordou in commemoration of the tenth anniversary of the battle of the Marne.

"I said it to the whole world, today and shall be greatly astonished if the importance of this manifestation in which I participate does not cause some humiliation among those who pretend that it was Belgium that leaped at Germany's throat."

As National Fraternity. The premier began his speech by saying he would not discuss either foreign or domestic affairs, for "we would offend our dead and if we did not know how to conform ourselves to that love of country that united them in their sacrifices and in their tombs." He appealed to everyone to forget differences and merge themselves in "national fraterninity."

England Alone. England stands virtually alone in wishing to divorce it from military sanctions and penalties. By the side of France almost all the others have ranged themselves, adopting the cryptic French slogan that arbitration, security and disarmament are one and inseparable.

Today begins a week when this great problem will be attacked in the assembly.

A review of the first week of the assembly, which many orators characterized as one of the greatest gatherings in the history of mankind, shows that despite the divergence of views as how best to rebuild the structure of international society, good will, conciliation and fraternity between people dominated the entire discussion. No word of hate was pronounced.

New Spirit Abroad. Speakers from all lands led by Premiers MacDonald and Herriot expressed their conviction that a new spirit was abroad in changing the world and that the people of everywhere were clairvoyant for peace. Mr. MacDonald said to the correspondents:

"And we will never really get peace until men like M. Herriot and myself put ourselves in each other's shoes and understand each other's geographical, economic and general national problems. We will never attain that concordance of mind which is an essential condition of world peace until Mac-Donald can speak to Herriot and Herriot to MacDonald."

This is regarded here by the delegates as a fair representation of the spirit of collaboration between the governments pervading the present assembly.

M. Herriot said he and Premier MacDonald for France and Sir David Lloyd George for Britain had decided to exert all the influence which their respective national civilizations stand for in a ceaseless effort to reach results by assuming some responsibility in the settlement of international problems.

All Must Help. M. Herriot's declaration that all the countries must help in the new work by taking some responsibility was one of the outstanding features of the debate. In this connection and in view of the important strides the cause of arbitration has made, according to various orators, on the American continents, great interest is expressed among the delegates as to what part, if any, the United States will play in the new program to set up obligatory arbitration among the keynotes of international law.

Several speakers paid high tribute to what the United States had done in recent months toward the reconstruction of Europe. The Latin-American representatives especially dwelt upon how many serious questions had been settled on the American continents by arbitration.

The structure, which will cost approximately $15,000, will just about double the warehouse capacity of the Clyde dock, Mr. Shinhouser declared. The addition will be practically as large as the present dock and is being built to care for winter traffic.

When the new part is completed, the offices and waiting rooms will be moved into it at the east end and the entire remainder of the dock opened into a large warehouse. Where formerly, during the winter season, the warehouse has been crowded with freight, making it practically impossible for a merchant to find his goods or shipment, it is planned to have adequate room to place every merchant's goods in a separate pile so that it may easily be found. Mr. Shinhouser states that heretofore, many local dealers have had to search several hours before finding a shipment when they should be able to go in and have it pointed out to them immediately.

The Clyde people are anxious to give this better service, he said and for that reason are adding to their facilities here. They hope to give better freight service to and from Sanford during the coming busy season than ever before.

FLORIDA TO HAVE 2 FASHION SHOWS WITHIN 6 MONTHS

First to Be Staged at Florida State Fair at Jacksonville; Other Will Be in Tampa at The South Florida Fair

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Sept. 6.—Florida is to have two fashion shows within the next six months, of more than ordinary significance according to Miss Flavin Gleeson, director of home demonstration club work in the state. Every club girl who has done two years of club work will have an opportunity to compete.

One of the shows will be staged at the Jacksonville state fair and the other at the South Florida fair in Tampa. Girls that will enter the Jacksonville fashion display will, it is expected, represent North and West Florida, while those entering the Tampa show will come largely from South Florida and the West Coast territory.

Every article worn by the contestants will be made by the girls themselves, except hats, shoes and hose. These articles must be made or selected by the wearers.

The shows will be the culmination of training and practical experience the girls get in their club work, which is so arranged as to give them progressive instruction in thrift and economical home-building.

During the first year of training the club girls are taught to work over bed rooms, make furnishings, such as curtains, dresser scarfs, table runners, coverings for box furniture, rug rugs, making sheets, dyeing and working up worn sheets into curtains for bedrooms. They are also taught the art of darning, patching, and making underclothes. The essentials of being a well dressed club girl, making the club uniform consisting of cap, apron, and dress, constitute a large part of the second year's training, which also calls for button hole contests, remodeling of dresses and the renovation of a hat.

Third year work consists of making a complete set of underwear, keeping textile charts in a study of different materials and the use of each; making a budget showing the cost, time of making and value of all garments required in this budget.

Training and practical experience in shrinking materials and setting of colors, dyeing and remodeling of dresses, making a simple hat, making of club girls' graduation dress are among the requirements for the fourth year.

At the close of each year each club girl is required to write a story describing the work she has done. Supervisors of demonstration work believe that by keeping this record, the girls are taught business methods.

Among other activities in which club girls participate is the definite duty of beautifying the grounds of some particular school. Each club has its own community song and community yell, by which it is believed the community spirit is engendered.

Before entering state contests, however, the club girls must first hold county elimination contests and the two most successful ones from each county are then permitted to contest for state prizes.

Dairy Association Endorses Ordinance

MIAMI, Sept. 6.—The Dairy Association of Dade county, through action of its directors, has unanimously endorsed provisions of a new milk ordinance prepared by Dr. A. W. Ziebold, state food and milk inspector. Under provisions of the ordinance, all wholesalers must pasteurize their milk by keeping it at a temperature of 142 degrees for 30 minutes, and other regulations are called for that are designed to purity the milk produced in this county. It will cost the dairymen an average of $300 each to prepare themselves to comply with the ordinance, it is estimated.

Warfare Is Declared On Chinch In Orlando

ORLANDO, Sept. 6.—Warfare has been declared by this city on the chinch bug, an insect that feeds on St. Augustine grass. The declaration is the result of invasions made by the insects on the lawns surrounding some of the city's most beautiful homes. The chinch bug infests many parts of the country, it is said, with the first record of its appearance being in North Carolina in 1783.

Pinellas Lays Claim Largest Citrus Tree

CLEARWATER, Sept. 6.—Pinellas county lays claim to what it believes the largest citrus tree in the country. It stands in the old Hamm Grove three miles east of this city. The tree is 46 feet high, has a spread of 40 feet, and is about 60 years old. Records show that 75 boxes of fruit have been taken from this monarch of the grove in one season, and that from the crop of this tree and two others near it $700 have been received in one season.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

IN PLEASANT PLACES
The Lord is in the portion of mine inheritance where my cup is filled; and my lot is in pleasant places; I have a kindly inheritance—Paul 16:6.

KEEP A-GOIN'

If you strike a thorn or rose,
Keep a goin'!

If it hails, or if it snows,
Keep a goin'!

If you no use to sit and whine,
Keep a goin'!

When the weather kills your crop, keep a goin'!

When you trouble from the top,
Keep a goin'!

Spouse you out of every dandy,
Keep a goin'!

Tell the world you're feelin' prime,
Keep a goin'!

crop, keep a goin'!

Draw the switches from the sun,
Keep a goin'!

See the wild birds on the wing,
Keep a goin'!

Hear the bells that swells ring,
Keep a goin'!

When you feel like singin' song,
Keep a goin'!

The Boys' Friend

It's instinct in a woman that causes her to touch her husband's pants even right.

About the only time silence is golden is when a fellow's waiting for his girl to answer his proposal.

The little girl down the street wants to know if you call a man a moron?

Hoover wants that United States

Reserve officers are being shown nowadays with letters of recognition as a "good Democrat," and each speaking for himself at a different time and place; eleven men have already met in Florida who are thinking of not voting the Democratic ticket in November. Does this indicate that some important work is cut out for earnest Democrats who are eager to see Davis and Bryan lead the party to victory?

Louis Fipps has been arrested misinformed.

The Fort Myers Press indicates

The Democrats should hurry about Malcolm McAdoo being appointed transfer for the Taft-P.
Party. William G. McAdoo has made it known that he will take the stamp for Davis.

A recent snapshot from Owen D.
Young, former member of the House of Representatives, shows him in Germany, where he expects no difficulty in securing a position. If he doesn't have any trouble, he will be the first full

We read in the Fort Lauderdale Herald that the County Commissioners down there are soon to call a bond election to vote bonds to the amount of $1,000,000 for the building of a new bridge across the river, which will be wide enough to accommodate two tracks of railroad. This is the first time in the history of the county that such a large amount of money has been expended for a bridge.

Grantland Rice calls this the attack. His cite, for example, the hard-hitting and hard-riding of the American polo team, the attack, and certain foods, especially those that maintain that it is a good defense. But this attack is a good defense as well as an offense. The less aggressiveness has spelled success for many a business man.

The Hollywood News in advising old men to quit driving says that "Top Geers," aged veterans of the motor racing field, are getting a mistake in trying to live ON in the sulky." But isn't it altogether likely that Geers if barred from the race track would be more inclined to attack in business as well as in racing?

Nothing is more vexed than the mind of a man conscious of guilt. Plautus things even though they fail. Some Shall There Be "Rivers of Death"?

Those fast-growing towns in Florida which are using nearby rivers and lakes for sewage disposal will pay heavily for their short-sightedness.

The Miami river, once a beautiful stream, is becoming filthy as the sewers emptying into it. Biscayne bay, as lovely as the Bay of Naples, is polluted from the same cause. As Miami rushes forward to big city dimensions, it is possible that within a few years its adjacent waters will become totally unwholesome and dangerous to health.

Other Florida towns are discussing of sewage in the same fashion. Westminister Miami, because its rapid growth is bringing the results of its "cheap system" to the attention of its thinking citizens. Already these citizens see that the proponents of the construction of sewage disposal plants is a glaring mistake which may cause serious trouble.

What Florida should have is a strict law against the pollution of the state's rivers, lakes and bays. The State Board of Health should be strong enough, and interested enough to secure legislation that will require every town either to install adequate sewage-disposal plants or carry their sewage out to sea beyond a point where tides could bring it back to shore.

Is Florida progressive enough to attain such legislation, or must we wait until some Florida river, like Shakespeare's Avon, becomes a "river of death"? The Avon because of the sewage from the town of Coventry has become so foul, that life has ceased to grow in it, its fish have died, and now the branches of trees touching its waters have sickened and withered up. Florida will have rivers and lakes like that, if something is not done to correct the present methods of sewage disposal.

DEMOCRATS SHOULD BE ON THE ALERT

What will the percentage be this year? According to SPEECHES eighty per cent of the voters in the United States cast ballots in 1906; in 1900, seventy-three per cent; in 1912, sixty-six per cent; in 1920, less than fifty per cent.

In Florida, and practically all of the southern states, the November election is usually a tame affair. Having nominated their candidates in the Democratic primaries, the proponents of the "Solid South" have come to regard the general election in November as a mere form through which these candidates are duly elected by such citizens as find it convenient to go to the polls. Having no opposition to fear from other political parties or individuals, the Democrats of the "Solid South" know that their candidates are virtually elected at the time of their nomination.

But should this attitude prevail this year? Isn't there demand for concerted effort to get every Democratic voter qualified to vote in the November election? Isn't it even possible that the "Solid South" will crack here and there, or even split asunder?

The Herald asks these questions advisedly. It has heard from old Democrats made some startling statements relative to the wisdom of continuing the fight for a "Solid South." One of these men happened to find in the same newspaper several weeks ago reports of interviews with Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette regarding their plans for the campaign. Each, it seemed, dismissed the other as already settled for the Democratic candidate, and each believed that he would not make any campaign in the southern states.

Instead of looking upon this as a compliance to the South's soliloquy, this old Democrat declared that it was an insult to the South's mentality. "These New York Democrats think that they could nominate a yellow dog, and that the world would accept it," he said.

Alfred L. Ladd, editor of the Orlando Star, told the Herald that he had been to the office of the Orlando Star and found that Davis and LaFollette were the only ones who had any influence in the office. "I don't know what the people in the office think, but I do know that the people in the office are not going to let the Star be beaten out of the election," he said.
