Scholarship semifinalists are named

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - High school seniors work hard to gain recognition and to earn scholarships to college.

Happy birthday

The National Merit Scholarship competition has named the 15,000 semifinalists for the 1996 scholar-ships. The semifinalists are selected from the approximately 1 million high school juniors who took the Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) in 1994.

The semifinalists are the highest scoring program participants from each state, representing about one half of one percent of the high school seniors in the state.

Wednesday afternoon, after the students had raced from the classrooms and made their way out the doors at Lakeview Middle School, a group of teachers from that school and some from Seminole High School gathered in the media center to find out what they need to do to keep those students who are at risk from dropping out of school.

SANFORD - Allegations of favoritism, fraud and possible misuse of public funds surfaced in mid-June against Sanford public housing executive director Phyllis D. Richardson.

An anonymous letter to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development area office in Jacksonville outlined five specific points including the director's son purchasing a truck originally purchased by the housing authority for $4,500 less than book value and giving friends and family members preference on waiting lists for public housing as well as putting them on the payroll. Further, the allegation was made that housing authority personnel, equipment and materials were used at the director's home.

Richardson flatly denied each of. the allegations of wrongdoing. Her only comment about the letter was "it's not true." She added, "if this goes any further, it may require some legal action because we are being accused of fradulent activities. I also realize when you are a public servant, there are times you will be subjected to these kind of accusations."

Closing arguments delayed in trial

KEY WEST - A federal judge has given prosecutors until Friday to make closing arguments in the bribery trial of suspended Mayor Dennia Wardlow.

Closing arguments were originally scheduled for today but prosecutors sought the delay in order to fly in a witness from the Dominican Republic.

A grand jury indicted Wardlow in June on bribery and conspiracy charges. Wardlow, 51, has denied he accepted $7.700 worth of bribes from John E. Bigler Jr., a local attorney and former water sports operator.

On Wednesday, prosecutors cross-examined Wardlow for more than an hour and a half.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Bruce Udolf suggested Wardlow tried to bury Bigler's payments on his tax forms, intentionally failed to list Bigler's name or Ridley Turtle Water Sports on financial disclosure forms and tax returns, voted for Bigler as a vested rights hearing officer as a thank you for payments, and kept the payments secret at City Hall.

Wardlow testified Tuesday he was paid for consulting work. and he did not feel that voting on water sports-related issues or Bigler's hiring represented a conflict of interest. Bigler also faces charges and is awaiting trial.

Two inmates captured

LAND O' LAKES - Two escaped inmates were captured in central Pasco County after being spotted by some ranch workers, sheriff's officials said.

The inmates did not resist when they were found separately Wednesday at the Cross Bar Ranch, about four miles north of the Land O' Lakes Detention Center, said Pasco County sheriff's spokesman Jon Powers. The escapees were not armed. John E. Pegulia, 37, of Hudson, was hiding in heavy woods, and John Jospeh Porter, 43, of Port Richey, was spotted in a swamp area after it appeared a cow herd had been disturbed by something. Powers said.

The two inmates escaped Tuesday evening from the recreation area in the jail's medical wing by getting through the wire security mesh. They shimmled up to the roof and jumped from there, Powers said.

Both had been held since August. Porter for violation of probation for dealing in stolen property and Pegulla on charges of armed robbery and attempted murder.

Voters reject sales tax increase

TAMPA - Anti-tax sentiment overwhelmed anti-crime feelings as voters rejected a half-cent sales tax increase intended to raise $158 million for law enforcement. An identical increase for schools also was defeated.

'If people are unwilling to pay a haif-cent for children and public safety. It pretty much sets the tone for other things we want to do," said Tampa Mayor Dick Greco.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers are considering seeking public support for a new stadium, but the twin 60-40 votes Tuesday may alter those plans.

"It is going to be extremely difficult for public dollars to be spent on that when we need police, fire and emergency vehicles," Greco conceded.

Computer pedophiles lured by FBI in undercover probe

By LAURA MYERS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The FBI has turned the tables on a dozen pedophiles and pornographers using the America Online computer service, luring them into the hands of undercover agents as part of a nationwide two-year investigation dubbed "innocent images."

The probe monitored America Online, the nation's largest computer network, to catch suspects distributing child pornography and arranging sex with children. It ended Wednesday with at least 12 arrests, and more are expected from the search of more than 120 homes that began Aug. 22, the FBI said.

The raids marked the first time federal agents investigated the misuse of such networks for exchanging typed conversation and other material from computer to computer.

"We are not going to permit exciting new technology to be misused to exploit and injure children," Attorney General Janet Reno said.

U.S. child protection laws make it a crime to Violators face up to 10 years in prison and a

The raids were conducted in 57 of the nation's 94 federal districts, concentrating on the East Coast, where the investigation began in 1993, the FBI said.

The Justice Department confirmed that cities involved include Miami, New York, Dallas and Newark, N.J. The FBI refused to release any further details.

Carlos Fernandez, an FBI spokesman in Washington, said federal authorities wanted to wait until arrests were completed. "We're not giving out much more at this time," he said.

America Online claims 3.5 million subscribers nationwide.

Pam McGraw, a spokesman for the Vienna. Va.-based service, said the company has always cooperated with the FBI in turning in people who use the computer network to transmit purse-graphic material. An on-line "neighborhood watch" program also encourages users to report illegal activity, she said.

"We're very troubled that'some of the mem have used the service for illegal activity." McGraw sald.

Elderly Tax break sought

By JOAN THOMPSON Associated Press Writer

MIAMI - Jose Montero, who at one time held down three jobs to support his family, finds retirement a struggle.

The 71-year-old Montero and his wife. Margarita, have 10 more years to pay on their three-bedroom suburban Hialeah home. Their property tax this year is $1,359, which is 10 percent of their annual in-

Some state and local officials want to cut property taxes for elderly residents on fixed incomes like the Monteros, who came to the United States from Costa Rica 30 years ago. He has worked as a janitor and a mechanic, while she has cleaned homes and done factory work to support their eight children.

"All they have done in this country is work," Dade County Commissioner Alex Penelas said at a news conference Wednesday announcing the statewide "Save Our Seniors" campaign.

Pencias and state Sen. Mario Diaz-Balart, R-Miami, are pushing for a constitutional amendment that would allow local governments to give tax breaks to low-income people over 65 years of age.

"We are taxing our elderly out of their homes," Penelas said. "There is no doubt about it."

If the plan makes it through the state Legislature and is approved by voters, counties and municipalities could increase the homestead extension by up to $25,000 for people 65 years or older whose annual income does not exceed $20,000.

Currently, Florida homeowners get a $25,000 homestead exemption.

Dade County residents like the Monteros would see an average savings of $345 to $536 under the proposal. The maximum revenue loss in Dade's $4 billion budget would be $14.2 million. The county's cities would see a total revenue drop of $6.8 million, if all 27 municipalities adopt it. Vivian Zaricki, interim execuitive director of the Florida Association of Counties, said her group has not yet had a chance to study the plan.

Grass roots groups hold key in preventing child neglect

By JORDAN BRESSLER Associated Press Writer

MIAMI - For those who believe child neglect is an insurmountable problem, there's the example of the low-income lvy Green housing project in Riviera Beach.

Counselors there don't attack problems of abuse and neglect with punitive measures there. Rather, they provide parent education and support and later help for the emotional problems at the root of such behavior.

"it's a very gradual process," said Dr. Adam White, director of outpatient services for the Parent-Child Center which is helping fund the project. "It works more like a dimmer switch than just an on-off switch, because the parents often were abused or neglected themselves, and they have a distrust of people offering aid."

Officials say community-based programs like the one at Ivy Green may hold hope for a future free of such stark neglect cases as Tuesday's drowning death of an infant left alone in a filthy Dade County apartment.

The bizarre death has Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services officials acknowledging they simply cannot be held responsible for all aspects of child welfare.

"We have to be very clear with the public what our limits are, and I don't think we've always done that," said Ed Feaver, the agency's acting director. "We're not going to succeed by ourselves. That just can't happen."

The agency's charge is to act in a sort of "last resort" capacity in cases of abuse, says Anita Bock, administrator of the agency's Southern Florida district.

"A safety net should be our only function," Bock said. "But those other layers of help are nonexistent. Everybody's failing straight down and hitting my agency head on."

Bock and other state officials are using the death of 23-month-old Arquetta McGee as a call to action to church groups, corporations and neighborhood organizations who wish to get involved.

A Dade County circuit judge denied ball Wednesday for Arquetta's mother, Tiffany McGee, 24, and roommate Chiquita Jackson, 20. Both are charged with first-degree murder and aggravated child abuse for leaving their five children, ages 1 to 8, alone while going on a 10-hour shopping spree.

Arquetta, the youngest of the children, drowned after one of the others attempted to give

Police said the children had been locked in a bedroom of the apartment without food, water or access to a bathroom. The oldest child, McGee's 8-year-old son, has cerebral palsy and is confined to a wheelchair.

Though records show that HRS social workers had visited McGee's apartment more than 10 times since February. Bock defended the agency's handling of the case.

We could have been in this home every day. but we don't have the manpower for that," said Bock, who added that the agency had no grounds to remove the children based on the earlier visits.

State Rep. Lois Frankel, D-West Palm Beach, the head of the House committee on child neglect. agreed: "We're asking HRS workers to handle problems that we could probably send Sigmund Freud to if he was still alive."

And I asked if he could do an even trade with me. And he said, 'I don't know, Mrs. Richardson, I'll see what I can do for you. He said, but you know I'll do whatever I can.'

"I said, 'OK," Richardson recalled, "because I've gotten myself in a situation here that's not working." "He called me and he told me he had a buyer," Richardson recounted. "He took the truck and said. 'I'll do you even better.' The utility truck was a '94. He says, 'I'm going to put you in a '95 and raise you up from a 5-passenger to a 7passenger.' I was clated," she continued. "And when I learned. my son was the buyer, I had nothin' to do with that. Nothin' at all." The Ford was traded for a Dodge van, Richardson said.

The investigation concluded: The 1994 Ford Explorer was purchased in violation of the

Sanford Housing Authority procurement policy. The 1994 Ford Explorer was sold in violation of the Sanford Housing Authority procurement policy, for approximately $4,500 below fair market value, in a private sale to the Executive Director's son.

The 1995 Chrysler Caravan was purchased in violation of the Sanford Housing Authority procurement policy.

Synopsis: On Oct. 1, 1994. Richardson purchased a $21,904 Ford Explorer for the PHA. No records of the required three (price) quotes exist. Her son, James Kevin Richardson, was with her when she selected the truck at McInerney Ford.

"Almost immediately after purchasing the Ford the Executive Director began making comments to various individuals about the Ford not being the right vehicle for the Sanford Housing Authority." In February, 1995, she told her friend and car salesman Evans Bacon III she was interested in selling the truck and getting a van. Bacon had the truck appraised at Richardson's request. The used car manager of Seminole Ford told Bacon the truck would wholesale for $16.800 to $17,000. Bacon told Richardson at her home with her son present the truck's value was $15,800. "...James Kevin Richardson was present and indicated his desire to purchase the Ford."

"On Friday, March 24, 1995 the Executive Director, who was on vacation, called Tim Hudson (PHA finance director) at the Sanford Housing Authority and directed him to meet her son.

James Kevin Richardson, at Barnett Bank on Airport Boulevard in Sanford with the title to the Ford Explorer. She further directed Tim Hudson to sign the title on behalf of the SHA and convey title to her son. He resisted, but the Executive Director ordered him to follow her instructions. When the title was transferred with a lien in favor of Barnett Bank, the Sanford Housing Authority received the $14,500 check for the 5-month old truck. The NADA Blue Book retail value for a used 1994 Ford Explorer in March 1995 was approximately $19,000.

On Saturday, March 25, Bacon called Richardson at her home and adviced her that a van was available for $16,806, less a $1.500 dealer rebate and the $14,500 truck check, Richardson wrote out a personal check for the $806 remainder.

No records of the required three quotes exist for the van purchase.

Compleint: Waiting lists

Family and personal friends of the director are moved ahead of all applicants on the Section 8 and PHA preference waiting lists when they need housing.(Under the Section 8, housing assistance payments, qualified individuals rent housing in the private sector and get rent as-sistance from federal (HUD) and state programs. Low-income indevelopments where the dwellings are owned and maintained by the housing authority. There are long waiting lists for the programs.)

Richardson replies

Richardson: "That's not true. We are audited every year by HUD and independent auditors. If I might add, Sanford is a very small community, and I don't think there's anyone that works within the agency, at least very few of us, who do not have a relative or an extended relative who's a recipient of housing assistance payments. So just because someone is related to ua, if they qualify, then we cannot deny them assistance."

Re: Keesha Peterson Richardson and James Kevin Rich-

"On June 22, 1991, Keesha Peterson married the Executive Director's son, James Kevin Richardson, who was in the U.S. Marines. Shortly after the marringe the Richardsons' established a home in Jacksonville, North Carolina."

In August 1993, in anticipation of his discharge, the couple returned to Sanford to locate housing.

"Keesha Richardson states that she had made an application for Section 8 housing in 1990. She states she contacted Thelma Mungen in August of 1993 to determine her status.

Mungen, SHA Programs Coordinator, testified that the Executive Director approached her in June of 1993 and said, 'I want you to put my son on Section 8." Mrs. Mungen stated she did not think the Executive Director was serious and did nothing. A few weeks later the Executive Director reproached Theima Mungen and said. 'I want my son on Section 8, he's getting out of the Marines, he's a taxpayer and he's entitled to Section 8.

The Executive Director obtained an application from Mungen back dated the application to Nov. 1991 and issued a Section 8 voucher. Mungen stated she was intimidated by the director who had earlier tried to fire her.

From Sept. 1993 until April 1995, Keesha Richardson lived at 3291 S. Sanford Ave. Apt. 102, Sanford on Section 8. The Executive Director's son left the Marines in Nov. 1993 and moved in with his wife.

Keesha began working parttime at the Orlando Sentinel in mid-1994 bringing home approximately $450 bi-weekly. In Sept. 1994, the Executive Director brought Mungen Keesha's income information and asked Mungen to calculate the Total Tenant Payment (T.T.P.). Mungen calculated the T.T.P. to be slightly over $100. The Executive Director said. "No that's too much. Give me all that information back." Mungen re-turned it to Richardson, including originals. Later the director returned with new income information showing a lower income. Mungen recalculated the T.T.P. to be approximately $80.

The Executive Director, the Richardsons and the landlords Ronald Nelson and Phillip Shaw. met at the SHA offices to sign the lease. Keesha Richardson testified that the Executive Director had known from the beginning that her son and daughter-in-law were on Section 8. although the Executive Director told Linda Williams as late as Saturday, Aug. 26, 1995, that she did not know her son lived in Section 8 housing.

James Kevin Richardson currently draws VA benefits and unemployment compensation. Their combined income approaches $1,500 a month. This income has not been reported to the SHA, although at approximately 9 a.m. this morning (Sept. 5, 1995), James Kevin Richardson called the SHA and stated 'I have income now.' He did not report how much income he has.

Keesha drives a 1995 Toyota Tercel. James traded the 1994 Ford Explorer for a 1983 or 1984 BMW 3181.

Mungen testified that on Aug. 21, 1995, the Executive Director came into her office and asked to see her daughter-in-law's Section 8 file. She then asked Mungen to change the date on the application to pre-date the Richardsons' marriage license in June, 1991. Mungen refused.

The Executive Director directed Mungen to not place the Keesha Richardson Section 8 file in the regular file cabinet. It was stored in a separate file cabinet. The Executive Director had access to this file at all times. Mungen testified that an af-

Scheduling meetings

The Seminole County Commission began public hearings at 7 p.m. on Monday. There were only four items listed on the agenda, yet the meeting lasted until 2 a.m.

Items scheduled for discussion and/or consideration included the tentative fiscal 1995/96 budget, the non-ad valorem assesment roll, plan developments for the Oviedo Crossings Mall, and large scale plan amendments for target industry areas.

Most city governments have ordinances requiring that meetings extend to only a certain time, such as 11 p.m. at Lake Mary, without approving a motion for extension.

The county has no such stipulation.
Meetings could drag on all night and into the

The plans for the Oviedo Crossings Mall produced a great turnout of spectators and persons wishing to be heard. There were many pros as well as cons regarding the mall and, as is proper, many were allowed to speak their minds prior to a formal decision by commissioners.

There were also many people who spoke regarding the non-ad valorem assessment, basically on garbage pickup matters.

The proposed county budget and setting of the millage rate was first on the agenda. There was no large-scale outburst of objections or complaints about the budget, but that is not to say this could be counted upon.

Certainly, the county commission meets ery often. There are workshops, discussions, plantific meetings and many others. Yet we believe an agenda for the public hearings such a presented this past Monday, deserves to be given additional consideration. We believe there should not be so many items with potential controversy scheduled for the same meeting.

Either the meeting should be started earlier, or held on two or even three separate dates.

Think of people who may have been interested in the high intensity planned development target industry area. They had to sit and sit and sit, waiting until midnight for those items to be brought forward.

The same often holds true at various city commission meetings. There are often too many public-input items listed at the same time. At other times, controversial items are placed near the conclusion of a lengthy agenda, where people may not be as numerous when the matter comes for public hearing.

Commissions say then wish more people would turn out for their meetings. They say the public would be better informed if they participated. Yet we often must question whether they really want public input, judging by the ways agendas are set up.

This 2 a.m. adjournment is a rarity, we agree. But we believe it should never have been necessary.

We urge governments to make agenda listings more suitable for public participation. Items which may receive large scale comments from the people should be placed high on the agenda.

Meetings which may contain several highly-controversial subjects should begin earlier, or be scheduled for additional days.

Thanks

Many thanks to Shari Brodie for sending Tommy Vincent over to photograph our bromeliads. He was very friendly and very pleasant. We were again very pleased with the results. Once again we heard from many people we don't see any more. We also had people drive by and were disappointed that the blooms were all gone. They only last about one week. But Shari and Tommy brought joy and beauty into our lives.

Marching down the middle of the road

Excerpts from Colin Powell's memoirs are now being published, and it seems dishearteningly evident that the popular general is preparing to march into politics, and if possible into the White House, by coming out foursquare for motherhood.

On the one hand, he makes it clear that he simply can't abide the sort of forthright conservatism that has been the dominant tendency in American politics for the past 15 years. His misdescription of it adds force to his point: "I am troubled by the political passion of those on the extreme right who seem to claim divine wisdom on political as well as spiritual matters. God provides us with guidance and inspiration, not a legislative agends. I am disturbed by the class and racial undertones beneath the surface of their rhetoric."

On the other hand, he at least tries to sound equally contemptuous of the liberal alternative, which has dominated the Democratic Party for more than 60 years: "I am put off by patronizing liberals who claim to know what is best for society but devote little thought to who will eventually pay the bills. I question the priorities of those liberals who lavish so much attention on individual license and entitlements that little concern is left for the good of the community at large."

Surveying this unsatisfactory state of affairs. Gen. Powell allows that perhaps it is time for a fresh approach: "I distrust rigid ideology from any direction, and I am discovering that many Americans feel just as I do. The time may be at hand for a third major party to emerge to represent this sensible center of the American political spectrum."

If this sort of otherhandedness sounds familiar, that is because it is. It is, in fact, the mating call of the Political Bird of Paradise, political

Bird of Paradise, politicus equivocus, and it is summed up in that old political aphorism: "There are two sides to everything, and if you want to be popular take both."

There are two sides to everything, and if you want to be popular take

In normal times, there would be a good deal to be said for following a leader who has made a distinguished career for himself outside of politics, who distains the grubbler aspects of the political arena, and whose attitudes, insofar as they can be identified at all, are high-minded and judiciously centrist.

But these are not normal times. In the modern conservative movement, Americans have found -- and many have endorsed -- a serious attempt to save this nation from destruction. Conservative principles worked, and worked brilliantly, in the field of economics, and in the long cold war against the Soviet Union. Now they are being applied to the still deeper problems reflected in the collapse of family values, the loss of individual self-discipline, and the confusion between liberty and a self-indulgent libertinism. On the outcome of that effort depends, quite simply, our survival as a society.

It will not be enough for Gen. Powell — or President Powell — to reflect the standard American virtues in his own life and conduct. He is going to have to be ready to lead a troubled nation back: back to its roots, wherein reside its fundamental strengths. And of such readiness I find very little evidence in those of his views that have thus far been vouchsafed to us.

Lessons on knowing ourselves

WASHINGTON — The phone call from my exhausted-sounding best friend reminded me: Too often, we think we know people who we've never met.

We all do it — claim intimate knowledge of what drives neighbors we hardly know, celebrities and politicians whom we've never encountered. It's absurd, considering humanity's most basic truth:

Few of us even know ourselves.

Mireille, whom I've known for 15 years, is no different. We speak almost daily, sharing a brief prayer for loved ones and the world. It puts crises into perspective, steeps us — temporarily anyway — in peace.

The difference between Mireille and me is that she hardly seems to need it.

The other day, she needed it. "I just had an auto accident," Mireille began wearily. "You won't believe the week I've had."

The daughter of Caribbean immigrants, Mireille grew up in Queens, N.Y., attended public schools and worked her way through New York University. Now a high-ranking newspaper manager, she had always lived in neighborhoods similar to those she grew up in — black, urban, working and lower class. A few years ago, she moved, rather warily, to a New Jersey suburb halfway between her job and her husband's.

Recently. Mireille decided she wants children. Perhaps that's why she arranged a beach vacation with her sisters, their husbands and three kids, ages 4, 7 and 13.

Expecting "a quiet week at the shore," Mireille instead got "a carnival, a zoo, a nightmare." she told me. "I can't even describe the noise; I cooked and cleaned more in this one week that I have in the past five months—this is a vacation?"

Most disturbing was what the trip suggested about herself and children. "I was so short-tempered. ... It amazed me, how easily I got mad at them for being what they are.

mad at them for being what they are.

"And I thought: Maybe I don't want kids," she said. "I like coming home and not having anybody hanging, literally, off my neck. ... Maybe I'm just not supposed to be a mommy. Which bothers me, because I always prided myself on knowing myself.

But her lessons weren't over. Hours after she got home. Mireille drove into Philadelphia to get her hair done.

Deep in the 'hood — surrounded by an abandoned lot, a boarded-up gas station and several decaying row houses — she pulled over to buy a newspaper. Suddenly, a big, burgundy Buick slammed into the rear of her BMW, then screeched away.

Mireille sat stunned, her neck aching. Gathering herself, she called the police on her car phone, then roadside assistance and her husband.

The second the police left, they appeared.
"I was surrounded ... by people saying, 'Are you OK?' By brothers saying, 'Hey, I got a body ahop — wanna come?' and a guy who says, 'I'm hungry, can you help me out?' A guy on a hot-rod motorcycle hung around, tapping my window, ... The car was like an uncapped jar of honey. ... So I'm spacing, feeling vulnerable, scared."

Then a middleaged man walked up and said, "Roll down your window." For some reason, she did.

"My name is Myers
... I live across the street," he told her.
"My wife and I are
barbecuing out back
— if you need the bathroom, a glass of water — come on over. Listen to me, it's OK."

it's OK."

"I said, "Thank you, God." ... That's when it occurred to me that everything was OK. I realized that I was braced for the worst. But nobody had done anything menacing."

Leaving the car, she asked Mr. Myers if she could sit in the sun on his porch. He brought her a brown vinyl dinette chair in which she sat until the tow truck arrived.

The second the

Recalling the incident, she sighed. "I lived my whole life in the 'hood; thought I had this streetwise, 'I can deal with whatever mentality. ... Is this what three years in the suburbs does? I felt like Leslie Uggams in the South Bronx.

"And I didn't like that everybody I saw was suspect. That it took so long to realize there were really cool people in this not-cool part of the city. ... I needed to reflect on how I'd bought into stuff that I had no idea of, stereotypes that I knew better than."

Most of us learn over and over that we don't know ourselves. We think we've gained control over our tempers, and then one rude salesclerk has us screeching; we vow to limit our kids' TV watching and, at the first emergency, plop Junior in front of it. We long for things we may not truly want; forget that most people — despite the ugliness blared daily by the news—are good.

Most of us need reminding. Too often, it takes an accident or a tragedy; an unexpected kindness or a rotten vacation before we admit what Mireille finally decided:

"I needed the lessons."

Cal brings heroism back to sports

Sometimes, you find your answers in the strangest places.

For several years now, and especially in the past two or three months. I have been pondering the Cal phenomenon.

I don't have to say Cal who, do I? Surely, the intelligent and curious consumers of this stimulating page know that I am talking about Calvin Edwin Ripken Jr., the Baltimore Oriole who recently broke Lou Gehrig's amazing record of 2.130 consecutive games played. For people who cherish the game of baseball, as 1 have for almost 50 years, there is no other Cal at the moment.

Top. Origie, fams. M. seems as if Cal has-always been there. The son of a former Original County of the county of the clubhouse. We read about Rip's kid tossing balls and horsing around with our Hall of Fame heroes, pitcher Jim Palmer, third baseman Brooks Robinson and out fielder Frank Robinson.

We followed Junior's exploits through the minor league system. We recall the day the Streak began -- May 30, 1982 -- as if it were yesterday. We cheered each of his 300-plus home runs, his subtle but incredible glove work, his two Most Valuable Player awards, his 12 consecutive All Star starts.

We Orioles fans know these things. But how did this national obsession come about? What is it about Cal that endears him to so many millions across the continent?

I got the answer at the drug store. I went in for the morning papers, and the clerk behind the counter, a woman I see often but with whom I have never talked baseball, just blurted it out: "What do you think of Cai?"

Well, I responded, I think he's terrific. I was at Camden Yards the night he tied the record, and I don't think I've ever seen a more passionate crowd at any event. They were positively glassy-eyed. They cheered until they were hoarse.

He's just like us, she said. He goes to work every day. He does his job. He never tries to show off. He never complains.

It has been said a thousand times before, but it never really registered with me until that moment: Cal Ripken is a working person's hero. He is down-to-earth, self-effacing, loyal, honest, hard-working. He honors his mother and father. He loves his wife and children. He is a spokesman for milk and Chevrolet -- and he drinks and drives what he endorses.

This is not to say he is a Joe Sixpack, trudging to work in the morning and slumping home at night. He is a complete professional. He goes about his day in methodical fashion, every move designed to help him do his best on the field that night. Preparation, his peers call it. Cal is renowned for it.

Speaking of peers, is it not wonderful to see a professional athlete who exudes humility and grace, one who is so confident of himself that he doesn't have to wear 20 pounds of gold to prove his worth, one who doesn't feel the need to tattoo his body and dye his hair to demonstrate his cool?

Speaking of tattoos and garish locks, is it not revealing to read, on the same pages exalting Cal's selfless demeanor, a story about San Antonio Spurs forward Dennis Rodman's complaint that he has been "discredited, treated wrong, abused the last several years"? Dennis only makes $2 million a year, and that discommodes him. He wants "to be respected and paid."

"A 14-year old female runaway was in the vehicle during the trip and witnessed the fatal beating," said sheriff's public information officer Ed McDonough. "She eventually ran from Mayes vehicle and was picked up later in Volusia County by deputy sheriffs.

Since it is not known which county the victim died in during the trip from Tampa to Titusville, Mayes may chose to be tried in either Hillsborough, Polk, Osceola, Orange or Seminole counties, McDonough added. If Mayes opts not to have his case tried in Seminole County, another hearing will be scheduled to decide where the case will be heard.

Goodman's parents decided to have a birthday celebration that would include all of his little friends, family, and the police officers from the Sanford Police Goodman's mother. Department.

After several phone calls to the police department, going through the proper chain of command. Goodman's dad. Steven, finally ended up with Sgt. Aaron Keith of the Community Relations Division. Keith mulled the idea over with Cpl. Rick Poovey, who also heads up the department's D.A.R.E. program. Since the police department is not in the habit of hosting birthday parties, this request presented needed a bit more investigation. Sgt. Keith and Cpl. Poovey decided that this might very well be a good way to have the youngsters in the area establish an even better rapport with their police department and the officers. With all of this in mind, the wheels of progress were turning.

It was decided that the department's training room would be the best area to provide the space and accessibility needed with the least interruption to others. The Goodmans provided all of the goodies. There was plenty of pizza, sub sandwiches. fresh veggles and fruit as well as different kinds of chips, dip, popcorn and an abundant amount of Kool-aid, soda pop and fruit drinks for them to wash the goodles down. Goodman's birthday cake was appropriately decorated with a they (Sanford police officers) are law enforcement theme much to an bunch of wonderful guys. They

As the 30-plus friends and family arrived for the festivities so did a surprise visitor provided by the police department, Officer McGruff. McGruff mingled with the children and made sure they received coloring books and other literature which they could enjoy and which would also inform them of several protective measures. Needless to say, McGruff was a big hit at the party. "This is simply a wonderful and friendly way to introduce the kids to the law," said

As the afternoon progressed, many of the other police officers stopped in and talked to the kids. "I was so impressed with the police department and the officers." They spent time with the kids and answered their questions in a very understanding fashion," said Goodman's mother.

As far as any future endeavors with some type of program for the youngsters in the community, Poovey said, "This is an avenue that will be studied to ace if there could be something to offer the young people on a regular type basis.

Lynn Goodman was pleased with the party. "I would like to comment on the fact that some of the Sanford police officers that were not directly involved with putting this all together, took the time to stop in and talk with the children, also wishing Cody a happy birthday."

Sgt. Keith added that the Sanford Police Department welcomes ideas such as Goodman's. "If a citizen has an idea that would be for the betterment of the city, we will gladly listen."

he said. Cody had his special party. His friends enjoyed all of the goodies offered and had a wonderful time mixing fun with learning.

Bad news for the pudgy Study finds very thin women live longer

By BAMEL Q. NAMEY AP Science Writer

BOSTON - When it comes to good health, thinner is better. Just how thin? Positively willowy, it seems. A study in today's New England Journal of Medicine concludes that the average middle-aged woman weighs too much for her own good. Being even a little bit plump increases the risk of death. The very thin live longer.

"It's a fairly simple message. said Dr. JoAnn E. Manson, who directed the study of American women. "Even mild to moderate overweight is associated with a substantial risk of premature death."

The average woman in her middle years is 5-foot-5 and weighs between 150 and 160 pounds. This falls within federal weight guidelines, which say her safe range is between 126 and

However, the latest research finds that anything over a svelte 119 pounds is hazardous excess baggage for someone this height. in fact, the extra 30 or 40 pounds increase a woman's risk of death by 30 percent.

in general, the researchers found that those whose weights are at least 15 percent below average have the lowest death

Manson cautioned that the new data should not encourage people to become anorexic thin. And smoking to stay thin is clearly a bad gamble, since skinny smokers have an increaned risk of death.

The researchers estimate that weight is to blame for onequarter of all deaths among middle-aged women. If the findings apply equally to men - and the researchers believe they probably do - that adds up to 300,000 weight-related deaths annually in the United States.

Manson said this makes weight second only to cigarette smoking as a cause of untimely deaths among Americans.

The report suggests that weight kills largely by increasing the risk of heart attacks and cancer, especially cancer of the colon, uterus and breast. In the study, nearly one-third of the cancer deaths among the middle-aged women were due to being overweight.

"This is a good study that demonstrates Americans have an even bigger problem than they thought they did," said Dr. Theodore Vanitallie of Columbia University.

The research, conducted at Harvard Medical School, was based on the Nurses' Health Study, which has followed 115,195 women nurses since 1976. The new work challenges the belief, held by some, that very lean people die sooner than those who have more average builde

Some earlier research found that when mortality figures are put on a chart, they follow a J-shaped curve. In other words, the death rate is a bit elevated for the thinnest folks, drops and levels off for ordinary-size people and then climbs steeply as people approach obesity.

The new study concludes that the hook on the J is a mistake. The only reason very thin people appear to have a somewhat higher risk is that they are more likely to smoke or to have ilinesees that made them lose weight. When only healthy nonemokers are followed over time, the thinnest live the longest.

Of course, death is rare among middle-aged women, no matter what their size. In this study, there were just under four deaths for each 1,000 participants each year. However, the researchers say the health risks of being overweight will become even more pronounced as the

The researchers found that the death rate for a 5-foot-5 woman is lowest if also weighs below 120. If she weighs 120 to 140, the risk of death rises 20 per-cent. It is 30 percent higher than that of the thinnest women for those who weigh 150 to 160, and it was 60 percent higher for those who weigh 161 to 175. For women this neight who weigh over 175, the risk of death is 100 percent that of the thinnest

Just how fat is too fat is controversial. The government issued weight guidelines in 1980 that were up to 20 pounds higher than those listed in the Metropolitan Life tables, which had been the standard since 1960. The federal guidelines are being revised, and the recommended weights are likely to fall. But staying lean is tough. In the nurses' study, only 13 per-

"Because we ride to work, and we are not ill with infectious diseases that lower our weight, and we don't work nine hours a day in the fields, it may be very difficult to get down to some ideal," Williamson said.

Delicate balance First-time jobless claims up last week more than expected

By JOHN D. McCLAIN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The number of American workers filing first-time claims for Jobiess benefits shot up by 21,000 last week to the highest level in nearly two months.

The Labor Department said today that new applications for unemployment insurance totaled a seasonally adjusted 362,000, up from a revised 341,000 during the week ended Sept. 2. The Sept. 2 total originally was estimated to be

Many analysts had expected new claims to edge up only by about 1,000 last week after falling by 7,000 a week earlier, the first decline in five weeks. Still, they remained below the 375,000 range that existed from May through July.

But despite a week that included the Labor Day holiday and thus fewer days in which to file applications, last week's advance was the largest since a 32,000 gain during the week ended Aug. 8. It marked the highest level of initial claims since 372,000 were filed during the week ended July 22.

The four-week moving average of new weekly jobless claims rose by 6,000 during the period ended Sept 2, to 349,750 from 343,750, it was the highest since the average reached 360,250 during the period ended Aug. 5.

Many analysts prefer to track the less-volatile four-week average because it smooths out the spikes in the weekly reports.

In the state data, 33 states and territories reported increases in initial claims during the week ended Sept. 2 and 19 recorded declines. State figures are reported one week later than national totals.

States with the biggest gains were Michigan, 3,796; Arkansas, 1,706; Virginia, 1,078; Wisconsin, 924; and Delaware, OHilda Clifton, a SHA employee discharged in a downsizing. Richardson directed that Clifton be put on Section 8 to "soften the blow. Clifton was not on top of waiting list. Mungen says this is not true, she was directed to put Clifton on Section 8. Clifton's file was also Richardson directed that Samuel Fuller be placed in SHA public housing when he was released from prison although he was not on the waiting list. Sanford police suggested he not be put in public housing. "According to the Sanford Police Department, Fuller began dealing drugs from his public housing unit and was arrested.

•In Nov. 1993, Richardson brought Latonya Peterson to the office the day before applications were to be taken for Section 8 housing vouchers and told Mungen to take the application and put her on Section 8. Peterson is a cousin of Keesha Peterson Richardson, Phyllis D. Richardson's daughter-in-law. When Mungen mid it wouldn't look good, the woman was eventually placed on the County Tenant Based Rental Assistance Program, at Richardson's direction, aithough she was not at the top of the waiting list

Toucan Willies rally falls short

OVIEDO - Toucan Willes came within a great play of rallying from a huge deficit as it lost its first game of the season, 10-9, to Bruce Masonry in the Oviedo Fall Slowpitch Softball League at the Oyledo Softball Complex.

"I was really pleased with what I saw," said Seminole coach Beth Corso. "We pulled it out when the going got tough. We got into the groove in the third game and pushed it through. That's what is Important.

Lyman took a 6-1 first game lead. and later led 12-5 behind the serves of Fenney, Bruce Vizquenta, Mike Green Mike Naes and Scott Davis. Bradshaw, David Campbell, Greg Pegram, Erick Ho, Sam Jiunto and Chris Louwsma then collaborated to serve the Tribe to a 15-13 game one

The Greyhounds then returned the favor by taking a 7.2 lead in the third game before the Tribe tied the score at 8-8 and 9-9. Jiunto, Louwsma and Pegram then combined to close out the match for the Seminoles.

LAKE MARY - The Lake Mary Rams tuned up for a rematch with Dr. Phillips with an impressive 15-5, 15-13 victory over a strong Lake Brantley squad in a Seminole Athletic Conference boys' volleyball match Wednesday night at Lake Mary High School.

The win was the second straight for Lake Mary after its first loss of the season last Friday to Dr. Phillips and raised the Rams' record to 5-1 overall and 2-O in the SAC. Lake Brantley fell to 5-2 overall and O-2 in the conference.

The Junior varsity contest went to the Patriots by the scored of 15-13, 15-13.

"This was a real good match for us." said Lake Mary head coach Bill Whalen. "We were not looking past Lake Brantley to Dr. Phillips, they

(the Patriots) give us a good-match every time We were looking for a good game so we could build some momentum and confidence heading into the rematch with Dr. Phillips on Friday and things worked out pretty much the way we hoped."

Lake Mary will play the Panthers prior to Friday's varsity football game at Dr. Phillips with the juntor varsity playing at 5 p.m. and the varsity at 6 p.m. The football game is set for a 7:30 p.m. start.

Whalen got 12 different players into the game and everyone who went in played well-"I think this trial under the will help," said

Whalen. "Now if they have to play later in the season, or hope to start next year, they should be

The Rams were led by the middle blocking tandem of 6-foot-6 senior Darrell Dillmore and 6-foot-5 sophomore Jason Hawkins. Dillmore had nine kills and 11 blocks, while Hawkins had four kills and five blocks.

"Darrell (Dillmore) was a blocking machine tonight," comented Whalen.

Other top performances for Lake Mary were turned in by Devin Hale (three kills, one block). Will Jipscomb (six kills, five blocks) and Erik Larsen (five kills, two blocks).

"We found some deficiencies in our coverage and passing against Dr. Phillips," said Whalen. "So we've been working hard with the players to correct the problems and they have responded very well. If we do that (make corrections) it is one more thing that will make us a real good ball

First leg of triple crown to Anderson

By PAUL MARSEGLIA Special to the Herald

ORLANDO - Wildwood's Wayne Anderson bested a strong late model field to win the first leg of the Florida State Late Model Triple Crown Championship hosted Friday night at Orlando Speedworld

Anderson, set the evening's last qualifying time and by virtue of the draw started the race from the sixth position.

Anderson, working his way through traffic, moved around David Russell for second place on lup 46. Within a few laps he ran down race leader Gary Balough The lead duo raced nose to tail with Anderson taking the lead on lap 75.

Once in command, Anderson pulled to a comfortable lead, but six caution periods in the last 25 laps tightened the field for new restarts.

On lap 93 Balough, Russell, Eddle King and Tony Ponder lined up with Anderson for a drag race to the green flag.

Anderson withstood all challenges on his trip to victory lane.

"First of all I have to thank George Pils from St. Pete for letting me borrow an engine and then the excellent job my crew did." said Anderson, the 1993 Triple Crown Champion. "This is one win I feel like I really earned, if you pass Gary (Halough) and get to keep the lead you carned it. The wrecks at the end of the race were something else. I was lucky to miss them."

Russell, who led the first 24 laps of the race, was not as lucky. With seven laps remaining in the race Balough and Russell made contact coming out of turn one. Russell smacked the outside wall and would go behind the wall on the wrecker. Balough was able to continue.

The race was restarted on the same lap with nearly the same results. Ponder, going into turn two, got sideways collecting Steve Avinger and Kevin Lawrence in a three car pileup. All three drivers, sporting beat and battered race cars, remained in the race.

The lap did not officially count so starter Johnny Bass gave them a new green flag. Racing into turn one. Ponder got loose on the bottom of the race track. Once again he was drilled by Avinger and Lawrence. All three cars, with dangling sheet metal, finished the race.

"I had a good second place car tonight, I knew I didn't have anything for Wayne (Anderson)," said Ponder, last week's feature winner a New Smyrna Speedway. "I just got too anxious and made a lot of dumb rookie mistakes. I'm glad we at least got to finish the race. After 55 minutes of racing and nine caution periods, Anderson took the checkered flag and a winner's check for $2,000. Balough was second ahead of Longwood's Jason Burkett, who notched his best ever finish in a long distance race, Ponder, Avinger and Lawrence.

This was really a good race for me," said Burkett. "It's the first time I finished a 100 lap race, in the last three or four races we've been breaking with about 10 laps to go. To finish this race is great but to finish behind Wayne (Anderson) and Gary (Balough) is real exciting."

Other feature winners were Mike Todd (limited late models),

Saturday night racing action at New Smyrna Speedway was cancelled doe to heavy rains.

THURSDAY'S PRIME TIM

Don't 'toy around' with marriage

DEAR MR. STEWART: I have been toying around with the idea of getting married. Finally, as one of the two women that I go with is putting some pressure on me to make a decision. Which would be the better of the two # ! designate them as A and B? With your psychic ability, you should be able to help me make the best choice ... "I hope"! I need to make a decision before the end of the month.

LAKE MARY

GART: The candor, your question(s), your lack of sensitivity, your disregard for natural selection, your timing, your attuation, your indifference, your inability to articulate intelligently, your demeanor. doesn't deserve an answer in the manner of formality that would indicate that I was "being a good columnist" and answering your question accordingly. You don't need a psychic, "you need help," and have probably needed it for some time. Do yourself and your future a favor and get some ... "immediately"! Now, I have fulfilled my responsibility to you at this time.

ESPoolatty

JERRY STEWART

DEAR JERRY: I can't sleep at night and I worry about death. Does this mean that something to going to happen to me? I worry about omens, walking under ladders and spilling salt too. I think I get this from my late grandmother as she used to tell me things when I was young, and I thought that I had forgotten about the things she used to tell me. Now it seems that my life is haunted. What do do?

DEAR S.L.E.: When we are young, yes, we are very impres-sionable and it sometimes isn't until our later years that certain memories come back to remind us of many things about our pasts. No, you're not really haunted by anything, it's more your active mind is reaching into the future and the best way to get to the future is to remember our pasts. When we are young, everything is brand new, bright and shiny, and we take it all in until we can start to make decisions about what we want to remember and when, it seems that as we get older everything starts to slow down and our retention dips a little bit. This is more due to the regularity of responsibility and normalcy ... some might call it boredom. Imagination to funny. It makes a rainy day sunny! Don't ever stop to think too much ... you can't and won't. By the way, I remember my grandfather telling me that he could tell when I was not telling the truth as the lightbulb was coming loose from the socket. He died some 15 years ago and he is still with me in my heart, my mind, and my soul ... and I'm careful to look at the lightsocket as I speak.

DEAR MR. STEWAR Psychics, psychics, psychics! Aren't we getting a little bit

Dial a psychic, 976 this and 800 that, and even your column? isn't enough, enough already?

DEAR JIM: I agree, there can be over representation in this field or anything that is advertised. Look at it this way though, you get choices, and the chance to make a selection of what you want if you have the inclination to think you might need a psychic. However, I do agree that this phone stuff "sucks"! As for psychics in general, I welcome the opportunity, anytime, to take on any challenger that purports to be or claims to be psychic. The forum I suggest would be a "public performance" of ability and "all proceeds to charity." Who knows, maybe we can get those psychics over there in Casadega to take me up on my challenge. I don't think they will though!

Missing books on shelves is a burden to librarians

DEAR ABBY: You could do us librarians an enormous favor if you would print this to help us retrieve some of those books that have wandered away.

Summer is over, and many school librarians, like me, have completed the dreaded "inventory" chore. This is always disheartening as we tally the books that have disappeared. Some moved with students, some were honestly misplaced, and others simply "walked off" in pockets or backpacks. Meanwhile, book prices soar, school budgets plummet, and replacing these books is next to impossible.

Parents, you can help, too. If you find a book with a library stamp in your child's room, return it. If, while unpacking the moving boxes, you uncover a book from your old school, mail it back. We will be happy to receive it, no questions asked, no fines imposed. Be aware that if a book looks like a library book, it probably is a library book.

Please don't sell these books at garage sales, give them to friends, throw them away, or assume that the librarians won't care one way or another. We do care. Books that have gone astray will be welcomed back with open arms by the young readers who have yet to enjoy

I say, don't confuse the children with all these "grandmothers"; it's tough enough to know the players without a scorecard. Abby, don't you agree she should think of another name for my grandchildren to

anger is probably justified, but if you're wise, you won't quibble about what the children call your ex's new wife. Technically, she is their step-grandmother.

Your energies would be better spent on being the granny who spends quality time with them - reading to them, taking them on outings, etc. Sooner or later they'll figure out who's who and what's what.

How to revive our sex

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a happily married woman in my middle 40s. Why can't I have an organn any more when having sex? This has been going on for almost a year.

DEAR READER: Anorgamia (lack of organm) has many causes, especially in women. Aside from the usual considerations - depression, distractions and fatigue - women may fall to achieve organ because of several physical causes, including pain and gynecological dis-

In addition, technique plays a large role.

You may be interested in the recent reports showing that only a third of healthy women achieve organ through intercourse. This may come as an unwelcome surprise to most men, but it's probably true because a woman's sexual arousal depends less on her physiological cues than on environmental factors.

For example, women are much more likely to "acreen" the situation before taking action; they may worry a lot about pregnancy, sexually transmitted diseases, whether the children are safely asleep, and so forth. Also, they may need more sexual stimulation than they re-

Consequently, you may need to analyze your family situation. Most crucial: Do you share the responsibility for sexual satisfaction? Do you dictate the terms of it or the pace of it? Basically. does your husband take the time to pleasure you?

Many women believe there is something wrong with them if they don't have orgasm through intercourse alone. This is a culturally oriented mispercep-

South steered a spade to dummy's ace and shifted to the club eight. East's discard was a cruel blow. Suddenly a contract that had appeared easy was swerving out of control. West, of course, didn't take his club king on this trick. Or on the next. when South played a club to his jack. Now South could win only three club tricks to go with the five he had in the other suits: one down.

Orand Prix tires cost about $280 each (almost as much as those on a BMWI). They are sticky, becoming very hot and leaving rubber on the road every time they change direction, so they wear down quickly, lasting only about 65 miles. At least BMW tires survive thousands of miles, assuming they don't meet a nail on their travels.

SCORP10 (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It would be best not to spend funds today before they're mafely in your bank account. The cash you're counting on might be subjected to delays. BAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be realistic if you have to negotiate an important matter today. Take off your rose-colored glasses and hammer out a deal in a businesslike manner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Basically, you're an alert person who can recognize opportunities and act upon them in an appropriate manner. However, today this gift might not work.

PIECES (Feb. 20-March 20) with your tendency to forget Unless you are extremely careful things. If you're supposed to and dedicated today, an advantageous business situation may not work out as it should. Do not It could be embarrassing. Step Back in Time

GatorFest welcomes visitors to an adventure into DeBary's and Volusia County's past history. There are several time periods represented along the trails of Lake Monroe Park. The persons that are at each encampment are knowledgeable about the time period they portray and would like to share their knowledge with you.

20th Century Campo:

Present Period, World War II Camp, and World War I Camp. Each camp shows authentic equipment and tells how Volusians contributed to our country's military defenses.

19th Century Camps:

•1891 Spanish American War Camp - During the Spanish American War supplies were shipped by barge along the St. Johns to points south of DeBary.

•Civil War Camp - Confederate and Union forces clashed at Lake Monroe during the war between North and South. The Union force included the 47th Pennsylvania Volunteer Militia. The Confederate force was defending a position in Sanford, FL.

•Florida Militia Camp - In 1836 President Andrew Jackson sent U.S. soldiers here to enforce the removal of the Seminoles to the West. Florida Militia were a part of that force. *Trapper Trader Camp - In the early 1800's Traders such as William Panton and James Spalding conducted prosperous trading with Florida Indians through trading posts along the St Johns. These Indian Traders imported Brass Kettles, Tinware, pipes, vermillion, silver gorgets, blankets, shirts, ammunition, and rum for furs and skins provided by the Seminole Indians.

*Seminole Comp - In 1837 Seminole Chief Osceola was on parole at Ft. Mellen on Lake Monroe. The location of Ft. Mellen is now called the City of Sanford. Florida.

18th Century Comp:

•William Bartram Camp - In 1774 the first botanist to record the diverse plants and animals along the St. John's River was William Bartram. The Seminole Indians who helped him during his journey called him "Puc Puggy" or "flower lover".
•Plantation Period Camp - 1764 to 1783 was the British Colonial Period. The Oswald Indigo Plantation was located where the Tomoka and Halifax rivers join near present day Ormand Beach.

17th Century Comp:

*Buccaneer Camp - From 1690 to 1740 the waters of Florida and the Caribbean Sea were full of "Boucanier" and "Privateers". They were common English and French men who came from the ships that fought during the 1686 War between England and Spain.

16th Century Camp:

*Spanish Camp - In 1565 Pedro Menendez de Aviles settled St. Augustine, the first European colony in North America. In that same year, Menendez sent a group of soldiers by boat up the St. John's River seeking guides and interpreters. They ventured into this area which was full of hostile Timucuans.

Pre-1402 Comp:

*Timucuan Camp - Before the Spanish came to Volusia County in the late 1400's Timucuan Indians inhabited this area of DeBary and lived throughout Central Florida. We know that they and their ancestors lived here on the St. John's for thousands of years.

GatorFest goal to preserve Florida

Florida GatorFest Association, Inc. is a non-profit association char-tered in the State of Florida.

its goal is to promote the growth of the city of DeBary while educating the public on the vital balance between its growth and environmental preser-

Located on the far southwest corner of Volusia County, DeBary is bordered by Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River to its south and the Weldva River to the West. The entire area is an ecosystem that is unique to Florida with its many lakes, rivers, springs, plants and wildlife. The gator, eagle, owl, fox, osprey and manatee still make their home in the area and are frequently seen in their natural habitat. To date, there have been many significant archaeological finds in the area from prehistoric fossils and indian artifacts to a recent discovery of an early European settle-

Original plans in September of 1994 to recognize the old swing bridge being replaced at the time have turned into what we now know as Florida GatorFest. By using the American alligator as our theme and logo, the association hopes to raise the public's consciousness of the impact that we all have on the environment and the important role we can take to help preserve it.

A percentage of the funds raised by the festival this year will go toward the development of Bill Keller Park in DeBary, and an annual scholarship of $500 to $1000 to those students seeking a degree in environmental

Donations are an important aspect of any organization. Without your contributions we would not be able to fulfill our goals each year. Equally important, from your gener-ous donations, is to keep Florida GatorFest a free public annual event. With your financial help today, Florida GatorFest will grow into a Central Florida event for the enjoyment of the entire family year after
