Meat, Eggs, Butter Form 'Terrible' Diet

DEAR DR. LAMB— What do you think of this diet? Best diet with all the fat, hamburger meat—very fat, lots of butter and mayonnaise. For example, she eats ground hamburger and adds four or five eggs, fries it in lots of butter and puts it on the plate with a big chunk of butter on top and loads of mayonnaise all over it. She eats it grease and all—no sugar, no salt. She's not allowed any breads, fruits or vegetables, no milk, coffee, tea etc. She's been on this diet for over a month and has lost 25 pounds. Other readers who want his issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR READER— I really don't care where it came from—it's a terrible diet. First, it's grossly deficient in calcium. Since she's taking a sensible exercise program, the adjustment in lifestyle should be permanent. The weight loss should be slow and gradual. In the process a person learns to eat properly and live properly so that he can avoid obesity. Crash diets are the ones that usually cause the most trouble. The more oddball a diet is, the shorter length of time a person should be on it if he wishes to maintain his health. Excessive loss of water or salt or both can cause a person to be fatigued. It can cause mental confusion and disorientation. This is sometimes mistaken for senility when it happens in an older person. Salt and water disturbances, particularly potassium salt loss, can contribute to serious heart irregularities. This is apparently one factor in the deaths from the liquid protein diet that were reported.

There are many ways to lose weight. Some of them are very safe. The only safe and same way to lose weight is to go on a well-balanced, regular diet combined with a sensible exercise program. The adjustment in lifestyle should be permanent. The weight loss should be slow and gradual. In the process a person learns to eat properly and live properly so that he can avoid obesity. WIN AT BRIDGE

The search is on all over the city of Sanford and the area for housing for the four-generation and four-member Campbell family evicted from their apartment at Magnolia Avenue and Eighth Street at noon Monday.

But none can be found, according to Louise Crawford, equal employment opportunity and civil rights officer for Seminole Community Action (SCA). Also assisting in the search for an available rental apartment or house for the family are the "We Care" organization, the Salvation Army and SCA outreach worker, Sandra Gaines.

The Salvation Army came to the rescue of Mrs. Geneva Campbell; her daughter, Mrs. Annie Argyle; granddaughter, Neddrill Campbell and great-grandson, nine-month old Marcus, by storing the family's furniture and other belongings in the city's public housing.

The city's public housing agency is currently in the process of demolishing the old building and is expected to have a new building ready by the end of the year.

23 Presumed Dead In Tampa Bay Ship Collision

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)— Divers searched the sunken wreckage of the Coast Guard buoy tender Blackthorn today for more victims of a grinding collision with a 560-foot oil tanker in the Gulf of Mexico.

The Coast Guard said today that 23 crew members of the Blackthorn were presumed dead. The tanker, the Sunlight Skyway, was carrying 150,000 gallons of bunker C oil into the bay.

Authorities said the Coast Guard was eastbound toward Tampa Bay with a harbor pilot on the bridge and the Blackthorn was steaming westward toward the Gulf of Mexico when they collided in the 200 to 300-yard wide channel about a half mile from the concrete and steel Sunshine Skyway Bridge that spans the bay and links St. Petersburg to Bradenton.

LI. Steve Venckus, operations officer of the St. Petersburg Coast Guard base, said it appeared the ships were "either trying to pass port-to-port or they just didn't see each other."

The Coast Guard mounted a massive rescue effort minutes after the Blackthorn sent a brief Mayday call saying it had been in a collision and was sinking. Coast Guard and civilian vessels, helicopters and teams of divers rushed to the scene and began the grim job of searching for survivors.

Divers, hoping some crewmen had found air pockets inside the sunken ship, tapped the steel hull, but got no response.

One survivor, Specialist 3rd class D. B. Mark, 23, said the Blackthorn's 30-man crew was warned five seconds before the accident to "stand by for collision."

After 10 hours of negotiations Monday, Seminole County staff saw to it that the gross value of the county's deal with Hospital Corporation of America (HCA) increased from $6.9 to $9.35 million.

"Not a bad day's work," said Assistant County Administrator Jeff Etchberger, the county's principal financial negotiator.

"Doug Lewis, HCA's director of domestic development, said he came away from the marathon session feeling he 'gave away' plenty.

The agreement calls for HCA to pay—

- $5.2 million in cash to the county
- $1.16 million (estimated) to clear the hospital's federal Hill-Burton obligation
- $3.0 million for the old hospital building and land if the county is unable to sell them.

The net value of these three items is $6.8 million, Etchberger said. Negotiations started at $4.7 million for the three items.

When the cost of the replacement hospital is added to the gross proceeds from the hospital lease and transfer of other monies, HCA's commitment to Seminole County is for $28.25 million, Etchberger said.

Under the contract, and HCA's original proposal, the county may pay back the replacement facility at any time between the end of the third year of operation and the end of the fifth year of operation. Purchase price would be based on HCA's costs and an inflation factor.

The county also expects to receive a share of $373,000 HCA is expected to pay in property taxes to the city of Sanford and school board.

"We just don't have emergency housing," said a Housing Authority spokesman. "We also have a moratorium on renting housing units. Those which are vacant, according to U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development regulations, must be kept vacant until the federally funded modernization project is completed."

The vacant apartments are used on a temporary basis by families as their units are being renovated.

The Sanford city commission voted Monday night to attempt to rescue a project that they were at first opposed to.

"We've been trying to build up a housing bank at Community Action," Mrs. Crawford said, adding the effort has not proven successful. And while the city sponsors public housing through its Housing Authority, which now has 480 units, no apartments are available at this point and 2,000 names are on a waiting list.

Sanford Ponders Housing

With preliminary approval from a federal agency for construction of 60 housing units for the elderly in hand, the Sanford City Commission Monday night began the move to gain 60 more units for low-income persons.

The commission authorized City Manager Warren Knowles to confer with county officials, including County Administrator Roger Newslander, about the city taking over the county's failing plans for 60 units of public housing.

Knowles told the commissioners that the county is having difficulty with the paper work necessary for federal approval and funding for its proposed project. He said the county wishes to use the city's reports, impact studies and statistics to apply for the federal construction money from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The manager said if the county received federal approval for those units they would be in the city or immediately adjacent to the city limits. He said this would be necessary because the information to be used concerns Sanford. Commissioners some time ago took the position that it would not seek additional public housing approvals until other governmental units in the county began to shoulder "their share of the responsibility" for providing public housing for the poor.

Commissioner John Morris said Monday night, however, that the goal is to provide public housing wherever it can be provided. Knowles was instructed to assist the county and any other municipal governmental agency in Seminole County in formulating its paper work to begin the federal funding process.

Knowles said there is no time frame set as yet on when federal approval for the 60 public housing units for the elderly will be approved. All paper work submitted to date, by the city, has been approved on a preliminary basis, he said.

He told commissioners Monday night that Sanford's public housing currently has a waiting list of 2,000 applicants—700 of whom are city residents.

He said the city currently has 488 units of public housing; 107 rental supplement housing units and 188 units for the elderly at Bram Towers. "There are 753 total units supported by the city," he said.

Deal For Hospital Jumps $2.4 Million

And while the city sponsors public housing through its Housing Authority, which now has 480 units, no apartments are available at this point and 2,000 names are on a waiting list.

Several federal Hill-Burton Act grants totaling $1,688,023 provided funds to build and expand Seminole Memorial Hospital. Under stipulations in the act, a pay-back of a portion of these funds is required if the hospital is sold to a profit-making entity. The amount of the pay-back is determined by first calculating the "now" value of the hospital. The government would want repaid the same percentage of the "now" value as they provided when the building was under construction.

Lewis said in December the value of aging Seminole Memorial Hospital is so low the payback would be minimal. But the amount remains to be negotiated.

Etchberger tried to convince Lewis to agree to pay more than $500,000 for the old hospital if it cannot be sold, but he refused.

Lewis said HCA agreed to buy the old building and land to get it off the county's hands. He said it probably could sell for more than $500,000, but that was all HCA would pay.

"We don't want it," he said.

For the time the building will be leased to HCA. County Attorney Nikki Clayton asked the HCA assume all responsibility for repairs and upkeep and accept the building "as is."

Lewis said HCA agreed to share the risk that the building might need major repairs while leased to HCA.

Currently, the hospital board believes it will be able to obtain $60,000 in Medicaid payments by refiling the claims, Etchberger said.

"I want it," he told Lewis.

But Lewis refused to add the amount to HCA's payment to the county. He said the hospital may not be able to get it and so, the funds would be passed through HCA's expertise.

Both sides in the negotiations agreed to make Dec. 31, 1979 the effective date of the contract, although the hospital board of trustees is still in control.

Longwood Drainage Cost: $472,000

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Engineers Jerome Kelley and Ralph Eng of Sverdrup & Parcel and Associates, Gainesville, presented a report to the Longwood City Commission Monday night on the firm's comprehensive drainage and building impact study.

The study was done at a cost of $78,000 to give the city commission an overall understanding of the city's drainage problems and possible solutions and a better background in making decisions on future building projects.

The report centered on nine major drainage basins in the city: Interstate 4 North, Interstate 4 South, Lake Myrtle, Lake Kathryn, Island Lake, Lake Wayman, Lake Ruth, East Lake and Lake Florida and pointed out 19 localized areas of drainage problems.

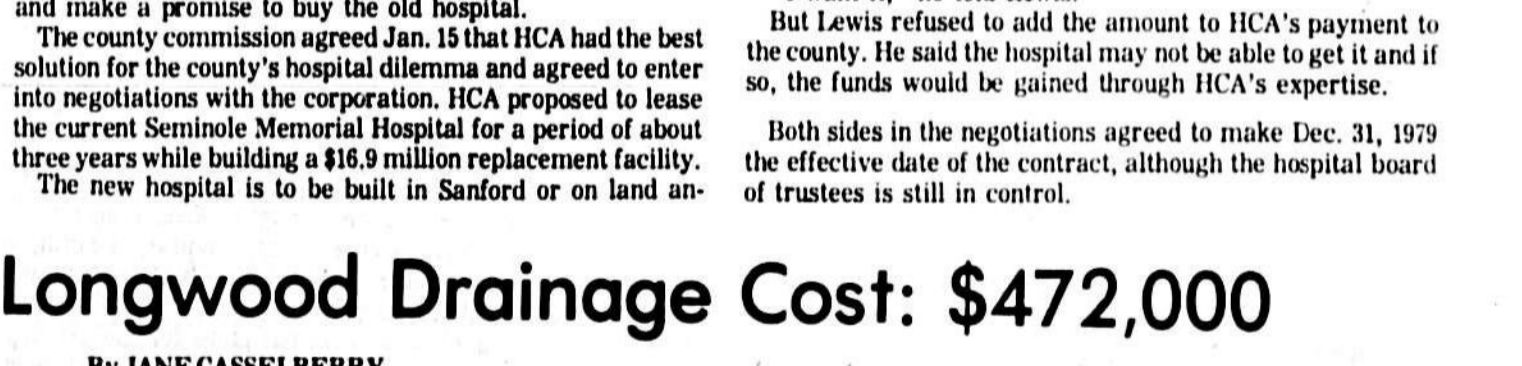

Cost of proposed drainage projects was estimated to total $747,790 by the engineers. Considered highest in priority by the city for now are the Island Lake and East Lake basins which will total $192,500. Specific costs are $44,500 in structure improvements for Island Lake and $12,200 channel improvements and $85,500 structure improvements for East Lake.

City Administrator David Chacey, who said money has been budgeted in the general fund and Federal Revenue Sharing funds to start the project, said the first step will be to have engineering plans drawn up for the project.

"We'll go for a grant," Chacey said, "and if that fails we will do as much as we can this year and do rest in phases." Chacey estimates the engineering fee to draw up the plans will be between 8 and 10 percent of the cost. He said Sverdrup and Parcel are the logical ones to continue with the drainage project.

Eng offered free use of Sverdrup and Parcel's in-house computer system that is tied in with government computers to assist in finding grants.

Commissioner J.R. Grant complained that International Systems Inc. is being paid $10,000 a year by the city to help obtain grants and should be utilized.

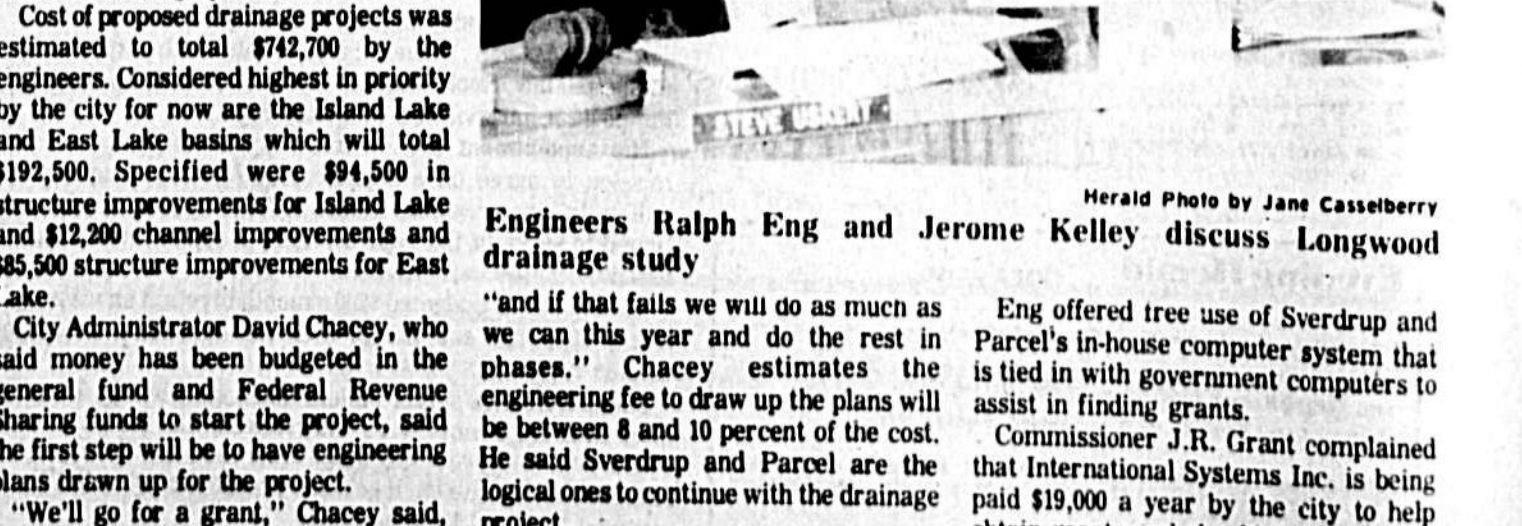

Engineers Ralph Eng and Jerome Kelley discuss Longwood drainage study.

Performing Groups Can Get Funds Through Program

TALLAHASSEE - Dance, music and theater groups throughout Florida now have an opportunity to enrich audiences beyond their home cities through the recently-established State Touring Program.

The Department of State's Division of Cultural Affairs is now accepting applications from performing arts groups for funding to receive funding for the 1980-81 touring program season, Secretary of State George Firestone announced today.

Initiated in 1979, the State Touring Program gives wide exposure to Florida-based performing arts organizations, and assists them in breaking into the regional and national performing scene.

But more importantly, says Firestone, the program allows more Florida residents and tourists to sample the work of the state's top performing organizations.

Family Embarrassed Over Gifts They Cannot Match

DEAR ABBY: How do I go about telling the girl our dates to please stop buying our family expensive gifts for every occasion? It embarrasses us to accept them since we can't afford to reciprocate.

She comes from a very large family and because she gave everyone in our family she ever said hello to a Christmas gift last year, my son felt that he had to do the same for her family.

For Valentine's Day she gave me a present and also my husband. On Mother's Day, another one, and she's not even engaged to my son.

Narcolepsy Disease Causes Fast Sleep

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have a close relative who has narcolepsy. The doctor decided this after he had had several hospital stays and every conceivable test made on him, including brain waves, spinal taps and the works. I'd like to know something about the disease. The doctor said it wasn't very well known and that they really weren't sure how to treat it but that it was possibly caused by hereditary factors. This is to be distinguished from hypersomnia which means just prolonged excessive sleeping. For example, sleeping 14 hours continuously. DEAR DR. LAMB—It's hard to describe it but you can experiment until you see what I mean. Just your lower jaw or act like you are clenching it in a stiff position, you can pull on muscles that are underneath the jaw. We call this the platysma muscle. It's not always well developed and there is a lot of individual variation in it. It's really part of the facial muscle that runs under the neck area. You can see cords of muscles stand out in the neck sometimes when you tense them. You might want to strengthen these muscles and that might help a little bit but I'm doubtful that it will solve your problem. Usually when a person has quite a bit of excess fat, there's only one way to get rid of it and that's a surgical approach. A plastic surgeon who does cosmetic work can do this and give you a good clean cut jaw and neckline. If there's excess fat in this area, he can remove the fatty tissue. I should add that it will probably come back if you eat too much and allow yourself to be overweight. DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 34-year-old man and have a chin and neck of a 60-year-old man. I am a few pounds overweight but no more than 10 to 15, yet my chin and neck look like someone twice my age. My neck is so wrinkled and my jaw has a bulldog look. Are there any exercises I can do to tighten the skin in these areas?

WIN AT BRIDGE

The defense started with three rounds of diamonds in which West played his queen, jack and 10. South had to ruff that third diamond and go after trumps.

With trumps breaking 3-3 he was sure to make the contract if East won the first or second trump with his king. He couldn't beat South with a fourth diamond lead. Then how did South go down?

Jean simply let South's queen and jack hold the first two trump tricks.

Now, South thought that West had to hold the last two spades so South just went after clubs. On the third club Jean discarded his last diamond. West ruffed with the seven of spades and led the last diamond whereupon Rescoe scored the setting trick with the king of spades.

A really beautiful hand whether it was actually played or merely devised by Jean's fertile brain.

Pride HCA Founder Preaches His Hospital Concept

It was Dr. Thomas F. Frist's dream to create a hospital different from the usual, a hospital that emphasized warmth, compassion and kindness toward patients, that was meticulously clean, served excellent food and had the finest and latest equipment.

In 1960, more out of necessity than any other reason, Dr. Frist opened a private hospital in Nashville, Tenn. He was then Associate Professor of Medicine at Vanderbilt University and, as a cardiologist and specialist in internal medicine, had no hospital available for his private patients. Parkview hospital, following Dr. Frist's philosophy, quickly grew from a 50-bed facility to an institution of 413 beds.

"Our experience showed that a private enterprise could run a hospital more efficiently and at least as economically as the non-profit system," Frist told Seminoke County commissioners and local members of the medical profession Tuesday.

By 1969, Hospital Corporation of America was formed with 11 member-hospitals. Today, the corporation includes 148 managed or owned hospitals, including over 20 in foreign countries, and is growing at the rate of 26 percent per year, according to executive vice president, David G. Williamson Jr.

Frist, Williamson and Dr. Thomas Frist Jr., joined their negotiator, Doug Lewis and John Wade, in Sanford in an effort to get acquainted with the community and answer questions.

Meeting with the county commission and county officials at noon, Dr. Frist assured them that HCA "is paying its way in the world and accepting no federal or county financial help."

Frist, 68, said he still makes hospital rounds everyday, although he is "almost" retired from private practice. He told Commissioner Sandra Glenn, the only commissioner who voted against HCA's proposal to build a new hospital, that 10 years have seen little improvement, if any, in tabacco, cars or houses.

"But 10 years ago we did not have cardiac care as it is now, we didn't have nuclear medicine, ultra-sound, gastrointestinal labs, pulmonary-function labs and other special laboratory procedures," Frist said. "Today hospitals need all this specialized equipment."

Frist promised to equip Seminoke County's new facility with the best of everything allowed by the government.

Although he had open heart surgery and a new stroke three years ago which impaired his speech, Frist managed to delight the hospital medical staff with his stories.

He emphasized his belief that warmth and compassionate care for the patient is one of the most important things a

Hospital Corporation of America Proposes Name For New Facility: 'Central Florida Regional Hospital'

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

Top officials of Hospital Corporation of America (HCA), in town Tuesday to meet with county and medical leaders, announced that the name of Seminoke County's new hospital will be: Central Florida Regional Hospital.

Doug Lewis, HCA's director of domestic development, said the company decided to not use Seminoke or Sanford in the name because "we want to be thought of as a regional hospital."

Dr. Thomas Frist Jr., president of HCA, told the doctors their aim is to be a regional drawing center.

"But I don't want a patient in the hospital who shouldn't be in the hospital and I don't want any patient in the hospital an extra day," he said.

HCA's vice president for real estate has been in town several times, Frist said, in an effort to be down several sites on an option basis. After this has been accomplished, he promised Seminoke Memorial staff and county officials HCA would "get with everybody" before making their final site decision.

Frist predicted HCA could get a Certificate of Need, the required state approval, for the new hospital in 90 days at the earliest. Sometimes, he said, Certificate of Need negotiations take three to six months.

"But HCA has the strongest Certificate of Need negotiation team in the nation," he said. "We'll go before the HSA (Health Services Agency) with a strong case."

"And when we get the approval we'll hit the ground running."

Although HCA has no prototype hospital and consults with each community individually on its medical specialty, before each community in designing a hospital, Frist said with the corporation's experience, it might have the hospital completed in 15 to 18 months.

"I told them it's Lewis said.

"Well, with your wealth down here, we should beat that," Frist said.

He also assured the doctors the hospital would be built with expansion in mind.

"We learned from experience," he said. "We build all departments with room to expand, as well as plan for expansion in the electrical and other power systems."

"We're going to draw a lot of patients that are now going to Orlando," he said.

Frist also said HCA would help in recruitment of doctors.

"We're not here to force anyone on you," he said. "But out of 40,000 employees worldwide, we can find anybody you need."

Years ago, he said, the fact that a hospital was a profit-making entity was something people were ashamed of. But things have changed, he said.

"Now you can hold your heads high, that in this day and time it's possible to run an organization on a sound financial basis."

"There wasn't a multi-hospital industry 11 years ago," he added. "So we have to go to Procter and Gamble and Xerox and similar companies to study their practices. Some of the same tools can be used within the health care industry."

As long as HCA has a sound financial base, Frist said, it won't be forced to cut back services or raise costs so high. It may just be those few percentage points gained from quantity purchasing and negotiations, he said, make the difference.

Iran Vows Canada To Pay For Smuggling Americans

By United Press International

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh today vowed that Canada "will pay" for smuggling Americans out of Iran and will be "directly responsible" for any harsh treatment of the U.S. hostages still held in Tehran.

He called the rescue of the six a "flagrant violation of international law, a betrayal of Iran and a brutal act of espionage."

The foreign minister offered the first official Iranian reaction to the incident, adding that "we did not have the slightest idea" that the diplomats were hiding in the Canadian Embassy in Tehran for three months.

"We vowed that their rescue would have consequences for the hostages, who now have been held in the U.S. Embassy for 88 days."

The rescue "happily now gives us a reason to justify the taking of hostages in the American Embassy," he told a hastily summoned press conference in Tehran, Western press reports said.

"Because of what they have done here, the Canadian government will be directly responsible for any harsh treatment meted out against the hostages," Ghotbzadeh said.

"The Canadian government sooner or later will pay for its involvement in this 'international affair,' for its duplicity and cheating."

The foreign minister said the six Americans would be freed as hostages, since they were outside the U.S. Embassy when it was seized by Iranian militants Nov. 4, and would have been free to leave Iran at any time.

Ghotbzadeh, clearly angry by the Canadian move, said he had not been informed of the action by the Canadians, but had learned of it through foreign correspondents and an unnamed third country.

He accused Canada of agreeing to help the Americans out of Iran for domestic political gain, an apparent reference to Prime Minister Joe Clark's campaign for re-election, in which he trails opposition leader Pierre Trudeau.

Western diplomatic sources denied reports the Americans left Iran using Canadian diplomatic documents. One source said such behavior would be a clear violation of the Vienna convention of 1970.

He admitted, however, that it would be difficult to otherwise explain how the Americans obtained an exit visa to leave Iran. They left the country over the weekend and were reported to have been taken to a U.S. Air Force Base in West Germany.

Earlier, Iran rejected any compromise on the release of the 50 American hostages.

Afghan Rebels Slow Russian Troops

By United Press International

Red Army occupation forces in Afghanistan reportedly are bogged down by stepped-up Moslem rebel attacks, sniper fire and anti-Soviet unrest in the cities.

"Under every category, the people of Afghanistan are rebelling against and opposing the Soviet occupation of the country," U.S. State Department spokesman Holding Carter III said Tuesday in relating the reports reaching Washington.

The reports of the Soviet battlefront reverses came hours after Moslem nations meeting in Islamabad, Pakistan, condemned Moscow's action and called for the "immediate, unconditional and total withdrawal" of the estimated 85,000 Russian troops now in Afghanistan.

Carter said, "Despite increased Soviet activity in northeastern Afghanistan, Soviet activities have slowed."

He noted Soviet press reports "have finally acknowledged occasional rebel successes, but have still not admitted any Soviet role in the fighting."

Numerous reports reaching Washington indicate "the Soviet military operations have been hampered by insurgent attacks, major blockades, destroyed bridges, sniping and unrest in the cities," Carter said.

No Ship Survivors Found - But Search Continues

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — The Coast Guard and Navy intensified a search today for survivors of a buoy tender-oil tanker collision, but admitted chances were "very slim" any of the 17 missing crewmembers of the tender Blackthorn were alive.

The Blackthorn sank Monday night four minutes after it collided in the Mullet Key Channel, near the mouth of Tampa Bay, with the 360-foot tanker S.S. Capricorn. It was the worst peacetime accident in Coast Guard history.

Twenty-seven of the 50-man crew of the Blackthorn survived, including the vessel's officers, and six bodies were recovered. If no survivors are found the final death toll will be 23. None of the Capricorn's crew was injured.

Coast Guard Lt. Steve Venckus told a news conference today four helicopters searched near Egmont Key and off shore and along the southwest area of Tampa Bay along a mangrove swamp in the hope of finding survivors who might have floated to shore. But he acknowledged the chance of finding anyone alive was "very slim," he said.

"The search effort is continuing, basically, because the weather conditions are not so bad that someone could not survive in a state of semi-consciousness," Venckus said.

He said life jackets on the Blackthorn were of a type that would keep the wearer's face above the water even though the person was unconscious.

"Today's search will be a more intense search. We'll be looking not only for bodies but also for any structural damage to the ship," he said.

Warrant Officer Joe Moody, engineering officer for the St. Petersburg Coast Guard Group, who is in charge of the divers, said the Coast Guard and Navy "hard hat" divers will re-search the sunken vessel, including locked store rooms and storage areas.

Jerry Chalmers, who headed a team of St. Petersburg Fire Department SCUBA divers diving into the muddy Mullet Key Channel to the Blackthorn was "like looking at an elephant 3 inches at a time."

However, Moody said, "The reports of this morning show there were no air pockets in the ship. No one can be expected to have survived (inside)."

Meanwhile, the Coast Guard announced its five-member Marine Investigating Board will convene at 9 a.m. Thursday at Tampa's MacDill Air Force Base under direction of Rear Adm. Norman Vantz, commander of the 2nd Coast Guard District, St. Louis.

A Tampa newspaper (the Tribune) reported in Wednesday's editions the Blackthorn originally had not been scheduled to sail for Texas until today.

Ambulance Firm: Hike Rate Or No Service

The owner of the ambulance company under contract to serve Seminoke County threatened Tuesday to stop providing emergency service here unless the county commission grants the company a rate increase. But county officials said they wouldn't consider the increase unless an independent audit of the company is performed.

Under the ambulance service contract, service can be terminated with 90 days notice.

Willis told the commissioners at a work session that he filed the December statement showing an $18,000 loss due to unforeseen costs. Primarily, he said, Herndon told it necessary to increase payroll by about 30 percent since June to keep staff from being hired away by five departments and other competitors.

He asked that the ambulance service's emergency rate be increased from $40 to $60 and help non-emergency rate from $28 to $48. In addition he said the company wants to increase from $1.50 to $2 the per-mile charge that is added to the base rate.

"We have to have some relief right away," Willis said. "Or we'll have to pull out."

The commissioners agreed to discuss the matter next Tuesday. They indicated they did not necessarily object to the rate increase if it can be shown that it is needed, but insisted the independent audit must be the first step.

Willis said an audit by another company would take three months or more.

"In that time I'll have lost not only the $6,000, $7,000 or $8,000 the audit will cost, but another $15,000 to $20,000 in lost fees," Willis said.

"You must think we don't pay our people or we don't buy gas," Willis said.

Willis said he had had more trouble with Seminoke County officials than those of any other county Herndon serves. And he said, the people of Seminoke County are the most satisfied.

He also said he is tired of being "harrassed" by the county.

"You may consider it harassment," Commissioner Bob Sturm said. "But we consider it good business conduct to look into your practices."

Newsweeker said Tuesday evening he hopes private enterprise can continue to provide ambulance service for Seminoke County. There are several alternatives to Herndon, he said.

In 1978 the commission discussed the possibility of a county-run service, but it was felt it would be more costly than contracting with a private firm.

Moslems Lobby For Hostages

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — A number of Moslem countries attending the emergency Islamic Conference on Afghanistan have lobbied privately for the release of the American hostages in Iran, conference sources said today.

The conference, which ended Tuesday, took no formal action on the hostage situation, but it urged Iran and the United States to resolve their outstanding differences peacefully.

"At least two nations I know of, Saudi Arabia and Pakistan, approached the Iranians in the corridors to try to talk sense with them," one conference source said. "But they were very sensitive about it."

Alpa Shahi, conference chairman and presidential foreign affairs adviser for Pakistan, confirmed at a news conference that "some countries did express the view for the settlement of this issue."

He said "perhaps five or six and some others" made references to the hostage issue in statements delivered at the closed door conference. The nations included Iraq, Niger, Senegal and other African countries, he said.
