

U-BOATS TO BE KEPT AS NAVAL WAR WEAPONS

France and Japan Win Out In Demands For Keeping Submarine As Defensive Force

LONDON, Feb. 11—(AP)—Submarines were virtually agreed of a new lease on life as weapons of war during a historic debate the plenary session of the naval conference today in the course of which the five great naval powers of the world presented their views as to the abolition of these "terrors of the deep."

Out of the wealth of eloquent pleas either for or against the retention of these weapons proved formal resolutions which were generally taken as meaning that submarines will be continued but that their activities will be "humanized" and that an effort will be made to restrict their size and number.

There was an air of tensely but seen as the delegates of the sea powers faced each other in the Queen Anne's room of St. James's Palace to make their declarations regarding it.

The days when the Lusitania was sunk with all aboard, it was the United States and Great Britain for the abolition of a submarine and France and Japan for their retention holding to their thesis that they would not surrender the arm of their navy. Italy agreed in principle with America and Great Britain but with reservations which would safeguard her interests as compared with those of other powers.

After Prime Minister MacDonald had formally opened the session, the American first head of the admiralty, gave a message of peace and in measured tones declared Great Britain believed that submarines should be wiped from the maps of the world. The French and Japanese delegations listened with cool indifference as he declared with emotion that submarines were "not defensive but inherent offensive weapons."

There are many croakers who still have much to learn about their native state, while the tourists who are down here spend practically all of their time learning to know Florida.

Chicago has had a lot of late news with crime. Nine hundred and seventy-five arrests have been made in a drive to rid the city of gangster warfare. Police sufficient to back it up, and whenever the people become there, they are enough to get them out of anywhere. We asked for a Chicago-style jacket and a new England Atlanta before long.

The Florida National press on the interest of the 27 information in the state's municipal bond debt: Alford, $4,000,000; Orlando, $4,000,000; Lakeland, $3,500,000; Deland, $1,662,000; Miami, $2,128,750; St. Petersburg, $2,622,770; Jacksonville, $1,761,000; Gainesville, $1,100,000; and Tallahassee, $875,000. These cities all apparently are in pretty good financial condition. West Palm Beach, with a bonded debt of $1,750,000, looks pretty tight.

A Problem For The People

The editor of the Tampa Times wrote at length recently on the subject of horse and dog racing in Florida and his words contained bits of wisdom which we think just at this time should be passed along to the residents of Seminole County. Here, we have the spectacle of a dog track being operated in our midst, with such accompanying features as constitute a direct violation of law.

This condition is not confined, of course, to Seminole County but is one which prevails to a large extent all over the state. If it is not in the form of racetrack gambling, it is in the more insidious guise of punchboards, slot machines, or roulette wheels. Sheriff's forces either cannot or will not do anything about it. The Governor himself refuses to act. The only logical conclusion to draw from their inaction is that, if the people want these things, they should have them.

This of course is true. This is a country "of the people, by the people, and for the people", and, if they want racetrack gambling, they should have it. But the question arises, do they want it? If they do, why did not their representatives in the 1927 and 1929 sessions of the legislature, where every possible effort was made by racetrack promoters to gain favorable legislation, pass laws approving such forms of public gambling? But read what the Tampa editor has to say:

"It remains to be said that betting on races is quite strongly prohibited by Florida law and that the last legislature refused to change this law, though strenuous effort was made to have it done, as well as that in the past racing has been conducted in Florida in direct violation of the statutes bearing upon what is in question. Announcement has been made by those interested in both of the tracks named that the races it is proposed to stage will be conducted in entire accord with the state laws. If that is true here will be neither cause nor need for an injunction, for the running of races—dog or horse—is not legally taboo in Florida. They can be run the full 24 hours of every day, if there are no betting features in connection with them. It is a generally accepted fact, though, that racing track and programs cannot be maintained without betting.

"It is time for this matter to be settled in Florida and for it to be settled one way in all Florida. As it is, racing has been legally prohibited some places in Florida and left to run wide open other places. In Florida, such a situation is farcical and adds one more to the things that make for contempt of law. If we are to have racing, the reference being to racing with all its accompaniments—we should say so by repealing such laws as now stand in the way thereof. If we are not to have it then, as a matter of course, we should not have it. There should be an end to the doing and the suffering and inaction which has marked the past. The issue should be squarely faced and our course definitely charted and kept."

Personally, we have no objection to public gambling. We think that is just as good a method of throwing your money away as any we have yet seen. What we do object to is the spectacle of Florida's laws openly violated and no one doing anything about it. This condition has existed in Florida for several years, and we have about reached the conclusion that the only sensible thing for the people to do in 1930 is to elect legislators with nerve enough to repeal the anti-gambling laws, or to select law enforcement officers who will enforce existing statutes.

Chicago Crime

The blood-thirsty shooting down of seven men in a row by a gang of racketeers using machine guns, the killing of a district attorney who had threatened important disclosures, the repeated "taking for rides" of various members of the underworld, failed to move Chicago citizens to any form of clean up action, but when a sudden and slightly unusual flare-up among the gang leaders, resulted in a murder a day for a whole week, big business in Chicago decided that it was time to take a hand.

Police and other public officials had apparently been able to do nothing with a disreputable situation which had been a blot on Chicago's otherwise stainless reputation for more than five years. Either they were in league with members of the underworld, they feared for their own skins, or they were not of sufficient intelligence to know what to do. The most charitable conclusion for the public to adopt would seem to be that city officials got a split of the racketeers' profits.

However, incensed over the state's attorney's failure to get a single conviction out of hundreds of indictments, Chicago people are at last aroused. They have decided to appoint a secret committee of "five courageous men" who will head the fight. They promise cooperation with the police and other law enforcement officers if that cooperation is wanted in a drive for law enforcement. But they promise the appointment of vigilantes, if necessary to supplement the work of the regular police.

The generally aroused public indignation seems to be having its effect already. Sunday morning police got busy and by midnight nearly a thousand of Chicago's most notorious things were behind prison bars. While none of the big guns were actually seized, members of all their gangs were taken, and police promised to continue their work until the very last one of Chicago's racketeers had been driven from the city or safely confined.

Chicago industrialists undoubtedly hope that the police will be able to cope with the situation, but additional week-end killings, in spite of the campaign, are an encouraging indication. Two youths were shot to death by a group of negroes during a theatre disturbance. Two Detroit men were shot while attempting to "kidnap a politician". There were other indications that all the things have not yet been rounded up.

A Vigilance Committee is not a pleasant thing to contemplate, but Chicago, like San Francisco, in seventy five years ago, may yet have to come to it.

TELLING THE WORLD

The Life of Perry Joyce
I was born in Virginia, thirty years ago, but not to many. My father was simple in the time. It wasn't until I was seventeen years old I knew the difference between articles and anchors. Early in life I fell in love with David Albert Patrick, Georgia. My name is Henry Thomas Michael. William Frederick Windsor, who is called Prince of Wales, is short. I realized I could never marry him, but determined I could at least have as many names. At present I am Margaret Perry Joyce Moore. She was Joyce Moore, with a couple of husbands to go. All catch up with the Royal Highness, yet. I entertained her thoughts of marriage till I was ten or eleven years old, but I did have a pair of earrings. I decided if I had enough pearls on the half shell I might find enough pearls to

The World's Window

A Canadian saint, Dr. Samuel Mercier of the University of Toronto, is on his way to America with special photographic apparatus to make copies of certain old Coptic manuscripts in the possession of Ethiopian authorities. These manuscripts contain the major part of the Gospels. They are being photographed, because Bible critics have long believed that the Coptic manuscripts are from an earlier date than those now known. Mercier's manuscripts that are to be found here and there in Europe. Afterward Dr. Mercier is to cooperate with the famous Professor Loague of the University of Upsala in the translation of the documents. Some concern it is felt as to whether the Canadian scientist will be permitted to see the originals in the monastery of Abba Abdalla, in the Abyssinian mountains, in their homeland anything like the Abyssinian monks need for an appreciation of the subject at all. In the Holy City, important manuscripts are kept in the Coptic monastery of the roof of the Holy Sepulchre Church. On a visit to the Jerusalem monastery last year I was permitted to inspect the most precious of them, which show the painstaking work and the devotion of the monks of Abba Abdalla. Although verbal communication between myself and the monks was impossible, I was still permitted to see their church on a Sunday morning, and to my intense surprise was given a seat next to the Patriarch himself. In the course of the service I saw beautiful scenes of the Patriarch taking off his ancient priestly vestments and placing a moment I was asked to hold a scroll in my hand. Reading the significance of this gesture, and the traditional value I carried with me, the hands of the monks symbolized of Christ and brotherhood. The scroll contained a "Te Deum" in the original language of the monks of Ethiopia. The scroll was for that nobody ever goes to the Abyssinian, that they are native, uncultured folk. I cannot believe if they treated me royal, and I will always regard a happy memory of my visit to these black brethren.

Buddy Rogers Stars In Picture Coming To Milane Wednesday

Youth and experience is the rare combination that Paramount has assembled for Charles (Buddy) Rogers' newest starring picture, the all-talking romantic melodrama "Half Way to Heaven," which will show at the Milane Theatre Wednesday and Thursday. "Half Way to Heaven" is an adaptation of Henry L. Gates' best-selling novel "Hills Come the Landsgom," and in it, Rogers has donned Arthur, a lovely heroine of "The Gayne Murder Case" and "The Mysterious Dr. Pi Manchou," for his part.

Rogers, himself is the youngest star in motion pictures today. Yet, he has a long string of outstanding records to his credit. "Wings," "Alibi," "Irish Rose," "Close Harmony," and "Illusion" are only a few of the pictures in which he played leading roles and which have brought him universal favor. Jean Arthur was recently seen with Charles in "The Saturday Night Kid."

Another youthful player who has extended his two continents is Paul Lukas, popularly known as "The Harrymore of Hungary." Lukas was famous as a stage actor in Hungary before he

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*
By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—men who would keep that trim, proper figure, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before.

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.
