The stack expression "as every school shild knows" may be wearing a bit thin. It is supposed to imply that if every school shild knows seme-thing to be a fact, it maturally follows that all adults must be equally well-informed. The limity truth is, of course, that the school shild may be several jumps ahead of his parents in knowledge about important affairs. Ranking high on the list of important affairs that should be receiving wide consideration, now that the dust of the recent election has settled somewhat, is the question of revitalizing the U. S. Merchant Marine. Many school children may be more familiar

Many school children may be more rammar than a lot of older, supposedly well-informed people, with the need of a first-rate U.S. Mer-chant Marine. This is because each year thous-ands of teenage students enter the national maritime poster contast under the co-operative sponsorship of government and the maritime in-

The 1968, $500 award winner was a New Jersey high school student. The theme of his poster was "America's Ships Deliver the Goods." The young winner was awarded the prize at a colorful ceremony on the steps of the national Capitol in Washington.

An official representing a group of U.S. steamship lines, co-sponsors of the maritime poster contest, observed, "Through the years we have had about 100,000 teenagers—boys and girls-participate in the contest. This expanding dustry-government grassroots program tends to have a continuing effect on the lives of tens of thousands of young people, their homelife and the schools they attend. The Maritime industry is indeed fortunate to bring to students, through this contest, an awareness of the Merchant Marine's vital role to commerce and ceremet." The 1969 maritime poster contest will offer an opportunity for more thousands of school students to become aware of the U.S. Merchant Marine and its essential place in the life and security of the nation. Hopefully, some of the awareness may rub off on less informed adults.

INV THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The nation's roads, rails and skies are getting more crowded every day as Christmas approaches and thousands of Americans head for home or vacation spots. There are indications, however, that the outbreak of Hong Kong flu may ease travel congestion. An Associated Press survey showed airlines, bus companies and railroads in most major citles expect record crowds during the Christmas season. in several areas, however spokesmen for travel companies said the passenger load has been spread out somewhat be cause of early school and college closings due to flu. "We're all getting a break with the flu epidemic," said Virgin McKibben, assistant regional manager of Greyhound Bus Co. in Washington, McKibben said the flu is "scattering the travel over an extended peri-od."

He expects the congestion to get worse, however, "The day we're all dreading is the Sunday after New Year's when every body is going to be returning at the same time," McKibben said. "Lord help us. It is going to be something out of this world." In most cities, the question is not whether there will be record holiday crowds, but simply how high the records will be. An Eastern Airlines spokesman in Philadelphia said the carrier expected a 60 per cent increase this year in travel to Florida and Puerto Rico. United Airlines said it has added 14 extra sections on flights from Philadelphia, expecting 33 per cent more passengers than usual. Harry K. Malone, Jr., assistant manager of the Atlanta Airport, said he expected extreme congestion, but did not know whether the crowds would be worse than last year. Malone said much of the crush was due to military personnel from nearby Fort Benning and other installations.
