Leader Of Red-Directed Huk Rebels Surrenders In Luzon

MANILA (AP)—The surrender of Luis Tarcue, colorful leader of the Communist-directed Huk rebels, was hailed today as a major step in President Ramon Magsaysay's campaign against the Huks.

Army combat teams surged through the jungles of southern Luzon seeking the remnants of Tarcue's elite guard while Carlos P. Romulo, a top presidential aide, hailed the surrender as the end of the rebellion.

Chief target now is Jesus Laya, whom the army considers the top Communist in the Philippines.

Tarcue, 40, who repeatedly has slipped through army traps in the past six years, surrendered to a Manila Times reporter, Benito Aquino, who carried a letter from Magsaysay. The meeting on a dusty road north of here climaxed months of negotiations.

Terms of the surrender were not disclosed.

Tarcue had no alternative but to surrender, Magsaysay commented. "He was cornered by the armed forces."

Unless granted amnesty, Tarcue here in San Francisco.

Repair and painting of the well held facilities were not begun on schedule because of a shortage of aluminum paint in the city stores.

The work which was to have begun Friday, has been postponed until an indefinite time this week, according to City Manager Warren Knowles.

Ike Places Restrictions On Info Given Probe; McCarthy Hits Move

Group Recesses Behind Closed Doors To Decide Course To Take

WASHINGTON (AP)—A presidential order clamping secrecy on executive branch actions in the McCarthy-Army row brought a denunciation from Sen. McCarthy as a "cover up" today. He proposed suspending Senate hearings while the issue is threshed out.

Sen. Svinin (D-Mo) objected to halting the hearings, even for the day.

The Senate Investigations subcommittee fell into argument over what course it would take.

In the upshot, the group recessed at 11:55 a. m. (EDT) to decide behind closed doors their course in view of what McCarthy denominated as the "Iron Curtain" imposed by the President. Public sessions were scheduled to be renewed at 8 p. m. (EDT).

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today personally barred government officials from telling Senate investigators about their private conversations with McCarthy, Army row, or giving them confidential documents relating to it.

And Atty. Gen. Brownell, acting on the principle laid down by the President, refused to accept the McCarthy-Army row, or giving them confidential documents relating to it.

French Threaten Bombing If Strip Is Not Repaired

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—The French announced today they would resume bombing of the Communist-led Vietnam's 70-mile "hospital corridor" unless the rebels agreed to repair the Dien Bien Phu airstrip to evacuation of French Union wounded can be speeded up.

A French high command broadcast to Communist Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap gave the rebel commander until midnight to accept the ultimatum. Otherwise, the French said, they would resume all-out air attacks on the rebels streaming eastward from the fallen fortress toward the vital Red River Delta.

Only 11 of the French casualties have been evacuated. The Vietnam had agreed to let 753 "seriously wounded" go but the French said they refused to repair the fall.

Police Recapture Escaped Prisoner

City police today reported that a prisoner, Nathaniel Wadley, who escaped from a city work gang while the group was cutting weeds from a Goldsworty roadside last Monday, wasn't Nathaniel Wadley at all, but Dewey O'Clark.

Thousands Watch Parade On Armed Forces Day Here

Thousands lined First St. Saturday morning to witness the annual Armed Forces Day parade.

The lengthy parade took in marching military units, service club representatives, school representatives, floats and several bands. Snappy salutes were given to military officers and other dignitaries who were standing on a reviewing stand at First St. and Magnolia Ave.

The chief speaker of the day was Capt. J. E. Vose, commanding officer of the Sanford Naval Auxiliary Air Station. His speech was as follows:

"Citizens of Sanford, the fifth annual Armed Forces Day. It is a good time for us here at Sanford to take a look at our defense team: Army, Navy and Air Force, and to check up on ourselves, and the job we're doing to keep America strong and free.

"As in previous years on this day we will hold open house so that the citizens of Sanford may see what their tax dollars are paying for. It is of interest to note that the open house being held here in Sanford is the largest ever held in the world. These will be: Ex-King parks, Arab robes, and Japanese kimonos as well as conventional European dress sprinkled among the uniforms of American servicemen and women in many lands. But the thing to keep in mind is that Armed Forces Day, 1954, will be most of all a time to emphasize how we as

One of the slain was former Colquitt County prison warden W. F. Howell, who personally appeared before the parole board to obtain the Negro's release from prison.

L. W. E. McDuffie of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, who captured the killer, said Williams admitted fatally slaying the 70

Tribunal Points Out Top Law Says Separate Schools Unequal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court today unanimously struck down segregation in the nation's public schools. The tribunal said that to separate Negro and white pupils violates the constitutional guarantee of equal protection of the laws.

Chief Justice Warren read the court's opinion which declared: "We conclude that in the field of public education the doctrine of 'separate but equal' has no place. Separate educational facilities are inherently unequal."

"Therefore, we hold that the plaintiffs (Negro parents) and other similarly situated persons whose action has been enjoined today are entitled to relief without delay."

The 14th Amendment was abridged after the Civil War, primarily for the benefit of slaves freed by President Lincoln. It says no state may deny any person due process and equal protection of the law, nor abridge their privileges or immunities.

The cases decided today—with the court's finding that segregation is unconstitutional—involved five states: South Carolina, Virginia, Kansas, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

But lawyers said a ruling against segregation would affect a total of 17 states which have laws re-

Rezoning To Be Aired At Meeting

A public meeting of the city planning and zoning commission will be held at 8 p. m. today at city hall to discuss rezoning of blocks 45 and 42 which are located east of Summerline Ave. to 20th St.

Ozzy Weller, local contractor, has requested the rezoning of the areas from its present R-1 rating to that of R-1X which would lower building site requirements.

Present regulations require a minimum of 800 square feet of lot including garages, patios, etc. If the rezoning request is passed by the board standing requirements will be lowered to 600 square feet.

Mr. Weller is currently erecting low cost pre-fabricated homes in the Sanford area.

Does anyone have any parkas, bear skin rugs, snow-shoes—any of the things that are needed for the Arctic?
We are staging a fine play called 'Petlicot Fever' in the very near future. By the way, this is our final production of the season. We also need one man to take the part of Captain Landry, who has an indispensable part in the play, although he has but 10 very easily learned lines. Any help will be most appreciated, we can assure you. If anyone does have any of these articles, please contact Harriett Smart, at 817 W. First St., or call 1017.

Joan Foster, Bride

By Alice Ross Colver

SYNOPSIS
Like any young couple ordinarily in love, Joan Foster and Todd Hunter are engaged to be married. But Todd has not yet been able to get a job in his chosen profession of teaching, and the little money which Joan earns by working is not enough to maintain a home. Todd had thought of going to college for the education which qualified him to teach German, but there seemed to be no call for teachers of the German language now. Arriving at the Foster home for lunch, Todd promised to accept some teaching work in a nearby school, when they are alone. He says he is disappointed. He can get a job teaching fourth grade in a nearby private school, a mark far short of his hopes and dreams.

CHAPTER FIVE
TODD continued telling Joan about his job offer.
"Honey, Gilly said they would pay me twenty-three hundred dollars. It's not a great deal—" He struck a folded slip into the palm of the other hand. "The policeman here in town who gave me only a high school diploma got as much as that. But it's all a green teacher can expect. I couldn't do any better anywhere, not even in a college. In fact, I might not do as well."
"I know."
"I don't mind the small salary. I knew what I was up against when I decided to go into this game. It's well—it's the thought of handling kids so darned young. I'm not prepared for that kind of work. I'm just not prepared."
He unclenched his hand, looked down at it for a moment, then reached over and laid it on one of Joan's.
"Somebody there's a great shortage of grade-school teachers but plenty for prep schools and colleges." He looked at her. "It's our chance, Jo Jo. The first real one that's come our way."
"Yes, she said."
"We could get married in June. He'll send me a contract and we'll be all set."
"Yes," she said again.
"Well," he said, "I know that being engaged was going to involve making decisions like this. Never had she not the slightest notion that planning to be married could mean such a divorce of feeling. She had always imagined that once you had discovered you were really in love and had an engagement ring slipped on your finger, everything was then practically settled. All you had to do was to choose the day and walk up the aisle. What a young man! Actually, what happened was that you ran plump into economic problems, and there involved a conflict of dreams with facts which, in the end, demanded a compromise."
"Because that's what it would be. If Todd took this job, he would be teaching—yes—but not what he wanted to teach. He would be getting experience—yes—but not in his chosen field."
"Todd, I can't say what I think, because I don't know. It's a matter of what you think and want and feel. It's well—I'm just going along on this proposition. Or not going along, if you decide against it."
She looked at him with a sorer face, waiting for his reply.
"That's it. That's the thing I want you to go along. I want you both to go along—together—from here." He folded her hand in both of his and held it tight while his voice deepened with his emotion. "I've waited as long as I'm willing to wait, Jo Jo. Practically all my life, you know."
"I know."
She was silent then, her head against his arm. It did not matter to her, personally, really. She was just terribly disappointed for him. And a little afraid for him, too, since he would be teaching something for which he had had no training. She said slowly, "I don't want to put any pressure on you. That would definitely be wrong. All I know is that you mustn't get started wrong. You mustn't get into a groove you can't get out of. It's your whole future. And it's all ahead of you."
"No, you're wrong. My future is here, now, today. Every day in my future and every day it becomes my past. You can't look too far ahead, I think. No, this is what I've decided. I'll take the job. If I haven't written all those letters—if they hadn't given me a pretty clear idea of the chance I have, or rather, absent of teaching (German) in a prep school or college, I'd hesitate longer. But they told me, Jo Jo! All my interviews have told me, too. And high schools are out because I'm not qualified. What choice is left? Nothing except grade work in some private school. None, that is, unless I decide to abandon the idea of teaching altogether. And I'm not quite ready to do that—yet."
"You don't think if you wait until June—or even later in the summer—"
"The Columbia agency suggested that, too. They said something might turn up then. But they wouldn't guarantee it. And"—he turned toward her and she saw his gray eyes flash with an impatience he rarely showed—"as I said a minute ago, I've waited for you as long as I'm willing to wait."
She could feel her heart beginning to beat a little faster. He meant it. Her wedding day, that only a few hours ago had seemed out of reach, was right ahead of her.
He finished quietly, "Teaching this job that Gilly's offering me means an end of waiting, together. It means a beginning of life together, at last."
She lifted her head and looked at him, her brown eyes clear and steady and warm with her love. "Well, Todd, if that's the way you feel—if that's the way you want it—I'm ready."
Wonderful to have it settled. To be able to plan definitely for the event about which she so long had dreamed. The details of it were all quite clear in her mind. She wanted—and so did he—to be married in the little church across the street where his father had been pastor for the past fifteen years. And, of course, Dr. Hunter would perform the ceremony. She wanted an afternoon wedding, too, not too formal but at an hour late enough so that she could appropriately wear a white dress with a veil and a train—a tiny one—even though the ushers wore business suits. Betty Andrews was going to be her maid of honor and—well, she had not fully decided about the rest of the bridal party.

these questions to me personally," Johns said, "but I will be satisfied if he will answer them from wherever he may be."
Collins retorted that the questions were "phony" and had "nothing to do with the real issues. This tactic just proves his desperation."
"One of the questions, Collins indicated, was whether Collins was a member of the Ku Klux Klan. He said that "makes no more sense than for me to ask him (Johns) if he ever has been a communist."
Although Johns and Collins will not get together on another TV program, the two candidates will be on the same speaking program Wednesday at the annual watermelon festival in Leesburg. Both men will be in Leesburg for several hours and each will speak for 30 minutes.

He replied to Johns' statement that Collins is a supporter of World Federalism, an organization which Johns says would have the United States drop its nationalism and subordinate itself to a world organization.
Collins explained both he and Johns voted in 1948 for a bill to let Floridians vote whether this nation could participate in some form of world government.
At the next session, Collins added, he was co-sponsor of a proposed amendment to a bill on the subject. He said the amendment, which never came to a vote, "was to make sure that the legislature did not commit itself to strict isolationism such as followed World War I and which in effect caused World War II."

Collins also spoke today of Daytona Beach and is to make a night broadcast from Jacksonville tomorrow. He will leave Orlando after a morning speech and then to Miami.
Yesterday Collins spent the day resting, taking a long walk and conferring with aides at a hide-away spot.
Johns will spend the day in Palm Beach County, then fly to Orlando for a Thursday breakfast meeting. He will leave Orlando after breakfast for St. Petersburg to spend the rest of the day stamping Pinellas County. After his appearance Wednesday at Leesburg at the watermelon festival, he will go to Sanford, Winter Haven and Orlando.
His Thursday schedule calls for a quick tour of Polk County and visits to Manatee and Sarasota.

NEW HAZARD FOUND
WATERTOWN, Mass. (AP)—If there weren't enough hazards on the course already, golfers at the Oakley County Club yesterday found a new, small pond left smack in the middle of a fairway by a 24-hour rainstorm.
And gliding placidly across the newly-created hazard were a half dozen wild ducks who stopped for a visit en route north.

Segregation

quiring separation of the races in schools, plus three other states having laws which permit—but do not require—segregation.
The court was told the 17 states and the District of Columbia had 70 per cent of the nation's Negro population, or 10,322,495 Negroes out of a 15,014,682 total. States with permissive segregation had an additional one percent.
States whose laws require segregation were listed for the court as Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.
States with permissive segregation were listed as New Mexico, Wyoming and Kansas.
In an apparent effort to preclude any advance leak of today's historic ruling, the court took the action of withholding printed copies of the decision until it had been read in full from the bench.

Ordinarily, pages distribute the printed opinions to reporters in the courtroom just before the justice who wrote the majority view begins to read. This several minutes went by today before it could be determined how the court had decided the cases.
After reviewing a long line of decisions bearing on the "separate but equal" doctrine, Chief Justice Warren wrote:
"We come then to the question presented. Does segregation of children in public schools solely on the basis of race, even though the physical facilities and other 'tangible' factors may be equal, deprive the children of the minority group of equal educational opportunities? We believe that it does."
Warren said the court's decision "cannot turn on merely a comparison of these tangible factors in the Negro and white schools involved." He added:
"We must look instead to the effect of segregation itself on public education."
In approaching the problem, Warren said, "we cannot turn the clock back to 1868 when the (14th) amendment was adopted or even to 1893 when Plessy vs. Ferguson was written."

"We must consider public education in the light of its full development and its place in American life throughout the nation."
"Only in this way can it be determined if segregation in public schools deprives these plaintiffs (Negroes) of the equal protection of the laws."
"Today, education is perhaps the most important function of state and local governments. Compulsory school attendance laws and the great expenditures for education both demonstrate our recognition of the importance of education to our democratic society."
"In these days, it is doubtful that any child may reasonably be expected to succeed in life if he is denied the opportunity of an education. Such an opportunity, where the state has undertaken to provide it, is a right which must be made available to all on equal terms."
"It was at this point in the opinion that Warren said the court believed segregation denies Negro children equal educational opportunities."
In the District of Columbia case, Chief Justice Warren said the decision announced in the case of the states also would apply to Washington but under a different section of the Constitution.
"We hold," Warren said, "that racial segregation in the public schools of the District of Columbia is a denial of the due process of law guaranteed by the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution."
The Fifth Amendment applies in the federal government and Congress makes the laws for this federal district.
As the chief justice noted, the District of Columbia case hinged on the "due process" clause of the Fifth Amendment rather than the "equal protection clause" of the 14th Amendment, on which the state cases were based.
"The court has ruled that the Fifth Amendment applies only to the federal government—not to the states."
In the District of Columbia case, Warren said:
"Segregation in public education is not reasonably related to any proper governmental objective, and thus it imposes on Negro children of the district a burden that constitutes an arbitrary deprivation of their liberty in violation of the due process clause."
Atty. Gen. Brownell, who was in the courtroom and heard the reading of Warren's opinions, said he had no comment. Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, also in the courtroom, told newsmen the court had delivered a "great and statesmanlike decision."

Diplomatic Break

Here are the events which led up to the breaking off of diplomatic relations between Russia and Australia.

Vladimir Petrov, a Russian diplomatic functionary in Australia, decided to break with Communism and seek political asylum. He gave the Australian government a great deal of information about a Soviet-directed spy ring in that country.

The Russians immediately declared that Petrov was kidnaped and demanded his return. His wife made a public statement saying that she thought her husband had been kidnaped. Several days later authorities were taking her to Russia on a plane, obviously against her will, when her cries for help precipitated a near riot at the airport from which her plane was departing. Australian officials at a later stop disarmed her guards and granted her asylum. Then the Russians changed their tune and issued statements calling Petrov an embezzler. The Soviet government formally broke off diplomatic relations with Australia.

The ending of diplomatic relations by Russia was a face-saving step. The embarrassment of the defection of two members of its diplomatic staff within a few short days was hard to take. The information Petrov gave to the Australians probably smashed a spy ring that it had taken years to build and train.

Russia acts as if it were the aggrieved party in the dispute. Actually it is Australia who has the right to feel injured. A supposedly friendly country used for espionage purposes those granted diplomatic hospitality—a clear violation of any rules of diplomatic decency.

Soldiers Complain Of Treatment

NEW YORK (AP)—During the American Revolution a considerable number of Frenchmen, following Lafayette's example, came over here as volunteer fighters for freedom.

Many of these Gallic idealists, however, were sadly disillusioned by the treatment they received in frontier America. They wrote long letters of complaint back home to their friends in France, the gist of which was roughly as follows:

"What a crude and ungrateful people these Americans are! Here we have crossed an ocean to help them fight for and win their liberty."

"And how do they show their appreciation? These farmer patriots refuse to give us hay for our horses unless we pay in advance. The American storekeepers are all robbers—every one. As soon as they find out we are French, they immediately double the price on everything. They seem to think every Frenchman is a millionaire."

"Believe me, my dear Andre, if you are still planning to come over to help in the struggle for independence, you would do well to abandon such ideas at once and remain where you are in our beloved Paris. These Americans are a race of bandits. Far from desiring their freedom, they should in my opinion all be thrown in jail until they learn a little honesty."

Thousands of Americans who, more than a century and a half later, served in France during the second world war were equally disillusioned—and on the same point.

They felt more like victims than liberating heroes.

"We figured the French would roll out the welcome mats," they wrote back home, "but you have to count your fingers every time you shake hands with these yokers."

"As soon as an American uniform comes into sight, they jack up the prices sky-high. They clobber you for a week's pay for a bottle of wine full of bubbles, and if you ask me I think we ought to pay Germany to take the country back."

This same sentiment now also seems to prevail among some American servicemen stationed in Great Britain. A poll of 5,000 U.S. soldiers and airmen there by a British newspaper showed that more than 8 out of 10 believe shopkeepers, landlords and cab drivers are gouging them merely because they are Americans.

Taken at its face value, this poll might be viewed as indicating a serious rift between our servicemen and our British allies.

It is unlikely, however, that the poll really proves any such thing. Soldiers—ever since the Romans—have been firmly convinced that wherever stationed, the civilians take them for suckers and hike the prices on them.

A poll among troops at most bases in this country would show probably a majority of the men are firmly convinced the storekeepers in the area are engaged in a mass plot to overcharge them. Certainly they felt that way in war time, and it must be admitted that often they were right, they were gouged by many a pinch-penny profiteer.

There is undoubtedly justification for the complaints made against British shopkeepers, a number of whom are convinced all Americans are rich and that the U.S. motto is "Fun at Any Price."

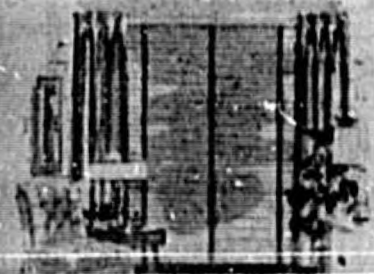

But it is also true, as the paper which made the poll pointed out, that the longer American servicemen stay in Britain the better they like the country. Most of our men who serve in Britain have a good time there and make firm friends.

Looking at the other side of the picture, it must be realized that it is difficult for a people to have foreign troops quartered among them, even though they are allies and speak roughly the same language. Britain, it has always seemed to me, meets this problem with more grace and hospitality than any other nation. One measure of this hospitality is the fact that between 1946 and 1950 American servicemen returned home with $5,468 British pounds.

A U.S. soldier has one simple way to deal with a British shopkeeper he feels has swindled him. He can always marry the guy's daughter and demand his dough back in the form of a dowry.

After a gelatin salad is partially set, you'll need to allow about four more hours of chilling before it will be firm enough to unmold.

Famous Murder Trial

One of the most sensational murder trials in our history is recalled by the death in the Idaho state penitentiary, of Harry Orchard, convicted in 1907 of the murder of ex-Gov. Frank Steunenberg. Steunenberg, when governor, had called out state troops to keep order in a miners' strike. Some years later he was killed by a bomb fastened to a garden gate.

Orchard confessed the crime, but maintained that he had done it at the instructions of Charles H. Moyer and William D. Haywood, president and secretary, respectively, of the Western Federation of Miners. Orchard's testimony failed to convict either, and he himself went to jail for life. The prosecuting attorney was Senator William E. Borah, whose 33 years of service in the Senate ended in 1910; the defense attorney was Clarence Darrow, one of the most famous of all defense attorneys.

Haywood was later convicted of sedition in World War I. Out on bail pending an application for a new trial, he fled to Russia and ended his days there. He never became an important figure there, despite his previous notoriety in this country.

Violence such as the Steunenberg murder is happily now rare in our labor disputes. One reason may be that there is less opposition to labor's organizing.

The Newark Battle

If a county prosecutor threatened book-shellers with criminal action for displaying books supporting the political party which the prosecutor opposed, or attacking his church, the community would, or should be up in arms. Even if the criminal prosecution failed, resistance would cost much money, and small shops might prefer to yield their rights rather than fight.

Something like this might happen in Newark, N. J., if not headed off. A prosecutor tried to stop a publisher of pocket-sized books from distributing a particular publication within the county. The local court ruled that he had no right to do so, or to delegate such authority to amateur censors. The state supreme court upheld the decision on this particular book, but took no general stand against violations of the right to print.

Now the publishers are trying to get a ruling from the high court. They say the Newark prosecutor, and his successor, who continues his policy, might, if not restrained, extend their invasion of rights and act to suppress political, economic or religious books that they disliked.

The time to stop encroachments of freedom is before they start.

Did Ike Call McCarthy's Hand?

WASHINGTON (AP)—The No. 1 question now in the Senate hearing on the McCarthy-Army row is whether President Eisenhower had a direct part in calling Sen. McCarthy's hand.

It's a question the administration may never permit to be answered, on the ground that a Senate committee has no right prying into what goes on in the inner councils of the White House.

It was Army Counsel John G. Adams who last week opened a new trail which leads right into the White House and stops just short of Eisenhower's door. Adams didn't pursue it across the threshold.

If it was Eisenhower who pulled the trigger, it would explain a couple of things about Secretary of the Army Stevens, who took on McCarthy in a public showdown:

1. Through all the questioning and needling by McCarthy at the hearings, Stevens remained mild. That may be his natural state. But he hardly acted like a man who thought his public career might be decided by the outcome of the hearings. If he knew Eisenhower was behind him, he had nothing to fear.

2. Some of the Republicans, led by Sen. Dirksen of Illinois and with the agreement of McCarthy, sought to bring a quick end to the public view of the hearings which can't hurt the Republican party. But Stevens said they should go on to the bitter end.

Stevens, a Republican himself, must have been under pressure to go along with Dirksen. But if the White House wanted this to be a real showdown with McCarthy, he could calmly insist on going on.

Counsel John Adams said that when McCarthy pushed the Army he sat down and talked it over last January with three men who are among Eisenhower's closest advisers and who, perhaps more than any others, steered him in the 1952 campaign.

These were Sherman Adams, Eisenhower's assistant and his right hand in the White House; Atty. Gen. Brownell; and Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., American ambassador to the United Nations.

John Adams said he told them two things:

1. McCarthy, in his search for Communists in the Army, said he wanted members of the Army's loyalty review board to answer questions. John Adams said he was advised at this meeting to refuse to let McCarthy quit the board members.

2. That McCarthy and his staff had pressured the Army for special favors for Pvt. G. David Schine and that McCarthy's chief counsel, Roy M. Cohn, threatened vengeance on the Army if Schine didn't get preference. John Adams said Sherman Adams told him to write down the times and places.

It was such a chronology, later made public, which was the basis of Army charges against McCarthy and Cohn which, when McCarthy denied them and cried blackmail, brought on the Senate investigation.

Eisenhower and Stevens' lives tipped around each other. Neither has criticized the other by name, although McCarthy has ripped into the administration itself. Eisenhower criticism of McCarthy has been oblique, not direct.

The President has gone out of his way—publicly, even to pulling the rug last year from under Harold E. Stassen, head of the Foreign Operations Administration.

Stassen told McCarthy he was undermining the administration's efforts to shut off trade with Red China, but Eisenhower quickly

Of Whales And Men. By R. B. Robertson. Knopf.

Shipping aboard a whaler as a doctor, this author spent eight months in the Antarctica. Whalers are "mighty fine liars," says one character, as of course ought to be the case if the biggest whoppers go with the biggest fish. But everything in this book may be taken for the gospel, I am sure, if not the gospel according to Noah, and it is an absorbing tale which the title describes perfectly.

The men are interesting enough material to both doctor and author. Numbering 600 plus, they have ailments from asthma to ulcers, get mangled in machinery, catch the line or spar without improving her appearance," though the far southern base of Leith Harbour is "the foulest place I have seen in a far-travelled life," still, the men road Melville, quote T. S. Eliot, take along guitars, and "are not happy doing anything else."

But the whale itself—no fish, of course, but mammal—is fascinating. It is as long as a railway car; an elephant could walk under its up-ended jawbone; every person in Boston could have a hamburger out of one carcass—if he wanted one. Whalebone, once the most valuable part, is now thrown away; everything else except flukes, stomach and intestines, is kept. One creature is worth $4,000.

To most of us the Antarctic seems inhospitable, still and deadly white. But there are color, life and the intensest drama.

No Decision Is Made In Trial About Election

TALLAHASSEE—Two lawyers seeking to have Florida's runoff primaries declared unconstitutional ran into such a flurry of challenging questions from Supreme Court justices today that the state lawyer opposing them didn't bother to argue.

The court did not announce an immediate decision on whether to consider the suit by Maurice F. Wagner of Daytona Beach and Daniel L. Ginsberg of Miami.

They want the runoff primary of May 25 declared invalid and nominations given to the high men in the first primary voting.

The most prominent beneficiary would be Acting Gov. Charley E. Johns but he has disclaimed knowledge of the suit and said he would not accept the Democratic nomination without a popular vote between him and his opponent, state Sen. LeRoy Collins.

Ginsberg told the court "I represent no candidate, no politicians." He brought the suit in the name of Wagner as a taxpayer and voter.

They maintained that a long-standing state law requiring a majority vote with a run-off if necessary, to win a party nomination is counter to a constitutional provision that a plurality of votes is sufficient to elect an official.

Their contention was that, in Florida, the Democratic Party primary to nominate candidates is the real election and the general election is no more than an opportunity for the people to "rubber stamp" the nominee.

Chief Justice B. K. Roberts and Justices T. Frank Hobson, John E. Mathews and E. Harris Drew repeatedly questioned that position.

The chief justice remarked that Pinellas County officials are predominantly Republican and the present state senator from Palm Beach County defeated the regular Democratic nominee in a gen-

THIS IS A GOOD YEAR FOR AN ELECTRIC RANGE!

Florida's a wonderful place! There's more sun per square foot here than anywhere else on earth... if you have time to enjoy it. That's where Sunshine Service comes in! With Reddy Kilowatt to do the chores, you'll have that extra leisure to enjoy even happier Florida living.

And this year is a good year to add time-saving, labor-saving electric servants—new, improved models... new low terms. See your dealer, now!

ELECTRIC RANGE
Better meals, with less work, at lower cost... in a kitchen that's cooler, cleaner, easier to run!

ELECTRIC FREEZER
Perfect team mate for your electric range... cuts food bills and shopping time... adds variety to meals and leisure to living.

COMMERCIAL FREEZER
Your food dealer deserves a salute, too... His commercial freezers assure you of seasonal delicacies... frozen at peak goodness... packaged properly and priced right... another important part of better living—electrically!

You'll be amazed at how little it costs to operate additional electric appliances in a typical Florida home... just pennies a day!

Here's why! As you "step-up" your use of electricity, you "step-down" the average rate you pay. Operating even major appliances adds only a few pennies a day to your electric bill... your biggest bargain in better living!

Paraguay To Pick New President Soon

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP)—Paraguay will hold elections to select a new president July 11. He will succeed Federico Chaves, who was overthrown by an army revolt last week.

The nation's sole political party, the Colorado, has chosen as its candidate Gen. Alfredo Stroessner, who played a major role in last week's revolution. Stroessner's election is assured since he will be the only candidate.

MACHINE-BIGGERS FRENCH SCHENKEL, N. Y. 7.—The trouble, the woman explained to firemen when they came roaring up, was with her washing machine. It wouldn't run. She said she didn't know what to do so she called the fire department.

Seminoles Overwhelm Pierson In Sub-District Finals Cardinals Lose Third Straight CFL Baseball Game

Scottmen Pick Up 13th Win By A 16-3 Margin

By TOMMY KUHN

Hacked by the combined pitching of Jim Hawkins and Ed McCall the Sanford Seminoles won the Group I sub-district finals Friday afternoon by a one-sided score of 16-3. The team that suffered the defeat was Pierson.

The Pierson warriors were only able to touch the Sanford pitching for five base hits, of which one was a two base blow.

Seminole ace sophomore hurler, Jim Hawkins was right on the money in the first two innings. Ed McCall, who pitched for five innings, did his best to keep the ball in the park.

Threats to two double plays and a pick-off, Hawkins sent the first 11 batters down in order. Also to add to his prestige, Hawkins hit the only extra base blow of the day for the Seminoles, that being a long double.

The first inning went fairly fast, any scoring in the line of the second the Seminoles blew the game wide open, when they scored five runs off five hits, two errors and a walk.

Again in the bottom of the fifth Pierson drew more blood from the Seminoles, when Herman Hastings sent a long double over the Sanford left fielder's head. The hit drove in two runs, and then soon afterwards, the Pierson threat died.

Finally the game ended with Sanford winning its 13th game in 16 tries. The Seminoles will now meet the winner of one of the three other sub-districts. It has not been decided where the game will be held.

OUCH CORNER! Randy Ferrell broke his poor hitting streak by getting three singles in four times at bat... It was the fifth straight ball game that Sanford has won... Randy clobbed walked five times and got one base hit... Ross Hannan got four runs batted in... The game lasted only one hour and 37 minutes.

Pinecastle, Longwood Collect Wins In CFL

Longwood Blue Caps and Pinecastle Airmen continued their winning ways Sunday as they each collected a win in the Central Florida League.

The Blue Caps came from behind to win their third CFL contest of the year and defeat Orlando 5-1. Longwood now has a 3-1 record in the league.

Pinecastle won its fourth straight CFL game, beating the Longwood 4-0 and still remains unbeaten with a 4-0 record over the Cleveland nine by a one-sided 10-0 score.

The Airmen were out in force in their victory over the Blue Caps. They had a 10-0 record in their last five games.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK—The office kept up when we lean heavily in evaluating the day-to-day coinidence in the sports world, is far from convinced that the Boston Red Sox really needed to postpone 10 of their first 14 home games because of bad weather.

"If Ted Williams hadn't been out with the lame shoulder, I'll bet they would have managed to get some of them in," he says darkly.

Needless to say it was warm in Detroit and the big guy went to town—8 for 9, with a double, two homers and seven RBIs.

Ted Williams Returns To Baseball In Style

DETROIT—Magnificent Ted Williams wrote one of baseball's richest chapters with a flaming bat, but left the ball park and outsmiling.

And the cause for his concern is a stainless steel pin—a larger than a cigarette.

The gleaming steel pin, which he inserted in a cut of his left shoulder, and it burned hot pain into him everytime he swung his bat yesterday.

"It hurt like hell every time I swung," muttered the 33-year-old slugger, who is recovering from a sprain of his shoulder.

In playing as regular for the first time since fracturing his shoulder in spring training, the splendid outfielder awed a crowd of 42,952 by pounding out eight hits in nine at bats in a doubleheader against the Detroit Tigers.

Williams hammered three singles to right, center and left in the first game, and came back with a perfect 5-for-5 in the nightcap, including a double and two towering home runs.

It mattered little—except to the Red Sox—that Detroit won both games, 7-0 and 8-0.

Actually, Williams played for the first time this season Saturday in Baltimore. Entering the game as a pinch-hitter, he batted twice and failed to hit safely.

He didn't fall against the Tigers, knocking in seven runs and scoring three in a tremendous one-man effort to pull the last place Red Sox out of their hitting slump.

Collared by reporters before entering a taxi cab, Williams said: "I'm going to decide in the next three days whether to have the pin taken out or not. If it hurts like this, I'll never do it. I'll play tomorrow (Monday) if it doesn't hurt too much. The pin, it would require a minor operation. His shoulder would have to be cut again, and that could keep him inactive for several weeks.

"That's what Williams fears. This is going to be his last year in baseball, and he wants it to be the best.

Truck Flattens Slacks Platform

COLUMBIA, S.C.—If State Rep. George Davis tells voters he's got a new projection platform, they can be sure it's true.

The legislator's campaigning platform—not the political one—was flattened by a truck that went out of control and turned over on top of Davis' campaign platform car.

Sports Car Is Built By Local Auto Salesman

By EVELYN JONES

An added attraction to Central Florida racing is a hand made sports car just finished by Charles Harlow of Sanford Motor Company.

The car has a sleek one piece, double steel body, painted a new color called sunset red. The body flares into a continental style trunk, with dual exhaust pipes coming out above the bumper, while on each bumper is a radio aerial.

The interior is just a little different from most hand made sports cars. Covering the floor, walls and ceiling is an egg shell ivory plastic covering with the seat covers in a woven basket material of satin gold and ivory.

Mr. Harlow used a 1953 Studebaker two-ton truck engine and all new parts for the vehicle. A piece of flat steel made into a unique style makes up the front dash giving the car a sporty appearance.

The next lining neither team was able to score, but the Cardinals started one of the best threats this season in the top of the fourth, however, they were only able to score one run. The first three batters singled and the pitcher Charley Thomas was hit by a wild pitch, that forced in Red Hires from third base. The next batter hit a soft roller to the third baseman. In turn he threw the ball to the catcher and forced out the runner trying to score. The next two batters were put out and the inning ended.

The Cardinals scored their last run of the game in the ninth inning when Red Hires struck out and went to first when the catcher dropped the ball and then they tied. Later Hires went to third when Hugh Carlson singled. It was Pete Schildrath's fielder's choice that drove Hires across the plate. The game ended shortly afterwards with the Navy still remaining unbeaten in Central Florida League Competition.

Chennault flew in for a reunion of the "Flying Tigers" of his World War II command. He is now president of a transport company that had 50 pilots ferrying supplies to French troops in Indo-China. Chennault stressed the importance of holding that country, recommending "atom bombs to stop the aggressors."

Court Edict Causes No Fast Effect

Officials Suggest Matter Can Wait

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—The U. S. Supreme Court's decision outlawing racial segregation in the public schools has brought no immediate repercussions in Florida.

Acting Gov. Charles E. Johns said his present inclination is to call a special session of the Legislature to take action on the matter but he has made no definite move.

Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin and state school Supt. Thomas D. Bailey suggested the matter can wait until the regular 1953 session of the Legislature.

Bailey called for "sober and careful thinking" on the subject and urged avoidance of hysteria. Ervin foresees no immediate change-up of the school system. He said he expects plenty of time will be given for states to discuss with the court conditions under which the changeover must be made.

U. S. Sen. Spessard L. Holland (D-Fla.) said he hopes "patience and moderation" will be used. He called the ruling "revolutionary." State Sen. LeRoy Collins, candidate against Johns for governor, said "we should call together the best brains in our state to study the situation and meet it calmly and properly. We still have time for this in view of the Supreme Court's intention of hearing for their arguments this fall on at least two questions still undecided."

In a joint statement, Bailey and Ervin said they believe "that after surveys are made and the determination is made by the Supreme Court of the United States as to the time and period and conditions of adjustment, the 1953 session of the Legislature will then be in a position to deal most intelligently with any problems which may confront Florida at that time."

Ervin and Bailey said school authorities, legislators and citizens groups should study the school system between now and October when briefs from affected states are to be presented to the Supreme Court—to make recommendations on practical problems arising from the court's ruling.

French Reopen All-Out Air Attacks On Vietnam Troops

Authorities Say Believe Agitators Loosed By Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—American authorities said today they are convinced Moscow has turned loose Communist agitators to foment strife and chaos in volatile central Africa.

This belief, U. S. Diplomats said, is based on recent developments in Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Honduras and climaxed now by an apparently large shipment of arms to Guatemala from Communist-controlled Stetin. Once a German port but now incorporated into Red Poland.

The State Department announced late yesterday that arms now are being unloaded from a cargo ship of Swedish registry at the Guatemalan port of Puerto Barrios.

The announcement said that "because of the origin of these arms, the point of their embarkation, their destination and the quantity of arms involved, the Department of State considers that this is a development of grave importance."

For a number of years, the United States has blocked all arms sales to Guatemala. It has repeatedly charged too that Guatemala is the center of Communist agitation in Central America and that its government is "playing the Communist game."

Looking back over unrest in Central America during the past six weeks, American authorities said they believe the signal for this activity came from Moscow late last year.

At that time, they recalled, Guatemala's three top Communist leaders visited Moscow.

French Try To Get Evacuation Resumed

DR. DANIEL BURKE (center), president of the American Little Society, says good luck to Loren V. Narbaum and his wife, Mary, in New York as they prepare to leave for Liberia West Africa. The young missionaries, newly appointed to the position, will open the society's first outpost in Africa below the Sahara desert.

Misson Flies To Dien Bien Phu

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—The French high command reopened all-out air attacks today on Communist-led Vietminh troops streaming southward from Dien Bien Phu along a highway neutralized since Friday as a hospital route for rebel wounded.

The French at the same time kept up their efforts to secure resumption of evacuation of French Union troops wounded in the fall of the northwest Indochina fortress which held out against a general rebel offensive.

As the American command planes rested on the ground against the road leading to the town, French planes flew over the area, dropping supplies and bombs. The French high command said it was ready to accept a five-point evacuation plan, including a French offer to treat and return gravely wounded Vietminh troops.

French broadcasts told the Vietminh the air attack on the 26-mile highway between Dien Bien Phu and Son La—main route toward the Delta—would start again unless the rebels agreed to the French plan by midnight last night.

The high command said 66 planes were received at 11 a. m. today. A massive assault by B29 and Privateer bombers, and fighters from land and carrier bases.

Rollins To Present Navy Relief Benefit Show, "Mister Roberts"

"Mister Roberts," a smash Broadway play from a best-selling book, will be performed Monday night, at Rollins College, Winter Park, at a special Navy Relief Benefit show.

Through the co-operation of Rollins College, all proceeds from the special preview showing will go to Navy Relief. Seats for this performance have been priced at one dollar each on a first-come first-served basis with no seat's reserved.

The Broadway production ran for many months to standing room only crowds. It has just recently been released for production by amateur groups and this will be the first Central Florida performance.

It will in addition be the first time that "Mister Roberts" has been performed on water. Especially for this engagement, Rollins has constructed a replica of the AK 601 and she will be tied up at the campus lake, complete with gangplank and gun tub.

Because it is an outdoor performance, the show will be thoroughly survived for insects prior to curtain time.

The play by Thomas Heggan and Joshua Logan deals with the teenage labors of a cargo ship operating in the back seas of the Pacific during World War II. "With voyages from Toulon to Smyth and back again, with an occasional side trip to Monterey, it tells of the efforts of LTJG Roberts to get in the fight by requesting transfer to a destroyer. Tickets for the play, which cost $1 each, may be purchased at the Herald office.

State High Court Throws Out Attempt To Nullify Election

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—The Florida Supreme Court has thrown out a suit which would have made it unnecessary for Florida to have a runoff primary election next Tuesday.

The suit was brought by Maurice Wagner, Daytona Beach attorney, who said the candidates with the largest number of votes in the first primary held May 4 are entitled to their party's nomination.

"Even a cursory investigation of the laws and history relative to nominations by public office in this state would lead inevitably to the conclusion that the instant suit would be fruitless," Chief Justice B. K. Roberts said in the court's brief and unanimous opinion.

Wagner's case was based on the constitutional provision that Florida candidates getting a plurality of votes shall be elected. He said the democratic primary is Florida's real election and the general election in which candidates of all parties are on the ballot is nothing but a formality.

Chief Justice Roberts took issue with this contention from the bench during oral arguments which preceded the court's decision.

Fiery Cross Burned In DeLand Last Eve

DELAND (AP)—A fire, symbol of the Ku Klux Klan, burned in this city's negro square last night, hours after the U. S. Supreme Court outlawed segregation in public schools.

It seemed to be the work of pranksters, Police Capt. Matt Bessinger said.

The cross, 12 feet high, had been erected on a vacant lot opposite the home of J. J. King, former Negro deputy sheriff. King knocked it down with a hoe and put out the flames.

Three or four white boys, about 17 or 18, were involved, a witness told officers. Battle Lee, who lives two doors south of the lot, said she saw that many "maybe" men.

The woman said she asked two white boys she saw on the street what they were doing and that one of them answered "looking for a ball." Then a voice from the lot cried "Hit me with fire," she said, and the cross, saturated with gasoline, blazed up. The boys she was talking to vanished.

County Commission Approves Money For Youth Counselor

Judge Douglas Stenstrom today reinforced by R. T. Milward, County superintendent of schools, members of the state board of public welfare and County children's commission asked the County board of commissioners to grant money for a paid juvenile counselor to work with the school board and County court.

Judge Stenstrom, in stating that the idea behind the request was to keep children out of the courts if at all possible, brought out the fact that it costs the tax payers $1,092 for each child sent to state correctional institutions.

He stated that someone was needed to go into the homes of children after they are released and work with the parents, and to settle as many cases as possible out of court as not to label children with court records.

The judge enlarged on his presentation by stating several cases where young people made mistakes in early life and later were unable to obtain certain jobs and enter some colleges because of court records.

He asked that the board grant $1,800 a year as its cost of the counselor's salary and stated that the school board had served 1,000 out of the other 2,000 of the $2,400 plus car expenses a year job.

Men Dressed Like Cowboys Hold Up Drive-In Theater

Seminole County Police and Sheriff's Deputies today are hunting for two young men who last night held up the box office of the Frankie Lake Drive-In Theater with shotguns.

Men dressed like cowboys, with blue jeans, sport shirts and long hair, shot, shotguns in hand, and demanded, "Hand over the money." When she didn't comply with the demand, the two men entered the back porch her to the rear and snatched up the money.

The shooter described the gunman as being dressed like cowboys, with blue jeans, sport shirts and long hair, shot, shotguns in hand, and demanded, "Hand over the money." When she didn't comply with the demand, the two men entered the back porch her to the rear and snatched up the money.

Fouraker then recommended that the Commission table the request until such time as the City of Sanford could be contacted on the matter. Before the recommendation could be made a motion, Judge Stenstrom stated that he did not believe this to be a city matter and that each of the counties surrounding Seminole County had counselors that were paid only by the counties.

At this point a lengthy, interspersed conference was held by the commissioners and Fouraker asked if the counselor could be involved with any Negro work needed. He was answered to the affirmative. The board passed a motion made by John Weich that the money be included in the next budget.

Strolling In Sanford

Members of the Broward Adult Sunday School are looking forward to the corn ball planned for tomorrow evening at 6:30 o'clock. The event will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Garrett.

After three postponements caused by the illness and death of Edward L. Smith of Oak Hill, father of Judge M. B. Smith, arrangements of criminal cases before the spring term of the Seminole Circuit Court took place today.

Miss Virginia Lee Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Chapman, of Sanford, will be commissioned as an educational missionary according to the Methodist Church serving the Woman's Division of Christian Service in Latin America, at the Milwaukee, Wis., municipal auditorium, Wednesday, in the first commissioning service ever to be held in connection with a nationwide assembly attended by thousands of members of Woman's Societies of Christian Service.

Approximately 30 Sanford women converged on the summer camp of Mrs. Roy Tillis this morning for the annual picnic of the Sanford Home Demonstration Club, according to Miss Myrtle Wilson, county home demonstration agent. The picnic was originally scheduled to be held last Thursday, but was postponed because of bad weather. Miss Wilson presented a demonstration on how to draft a pattern at the picnic, which combined the group's regular meeting with the annual affair.

The Sanford Cardinals baseball team will visit the Grandstand team tomorrow night at the Memorial Stadium, following the Rotary League all-star game.

Mrs. LePore Taken To Orange Hospital

Mrs. Ida Mae LePore who was severely injured in a three-way automobile accident May 11, was today removed to Orange Memorial Hospital and taken to Orange Memorial Hospital in Orlando for further treatment.

The Sanford housewife and mother of two children suffered a broken pelvis, broken collar bone and fractured skull, when she was thrown from her car while attempting to avoid an accident.

Eliasha Stevenson of Sanford, who was driving a light delivery truck at the time, pulled out of the Fig Whistle parking lot at 4th St. and Park Ave. in front of a 1941 Willys sedan driven by Mrs. LePore north on Park Ave., according to a police report.

Mrs. LePore was forced to swerve into the lot to avoid a collision, the report said and the door of her car flew open and she was thrown to the pavement. Her auto then ran out of control for approximately 30 feet to smash into a parked 1951 Mercury, owned by Charles H. Newman, Sanford.

Tax Lien Is Filed Against Builder

The Sanford Daily Builder yesterday had a notice of tax lien in the amount of $2,251.28 filed against it and its former owners, the East Carolina News Publishing Co.

According to the notice the Builder, which has ceased operations, failed to pay in its state of unemployment compensation to the federal government.

The failure was dated from the first quarter of 1952 until the last quarter of 1953 when the paper closed its doors.

The notice cites $117.19 interest and a $20 penalty against the paper which began as a weekly, became a semi-weekly and jumped into the daily field before closing.

Street Resurfacing Project Is Started

Early this morning, the City street department moved heavy equipment into the Sanford subdivision of Wynnewood to begin general repaving of the area's streets, according to Warren Knowles, City manager.

Many of the streets and roads in the section were severely damaged by last fall's heavy rains and floods.

Through the cooperation of the subdivision's developers, Phillips Properties, cost of the repairs are being held to a minimum. "The developers are furnishing the materials and the City the manpower and equipment," said the City manager.

Notices were received by interested parties that bids for the construction of the proposed Seminole Memorial Hospital to be located on property on East First St. near the station WPHI will be open Thursday at 2 p. m. in the County Court House.

Two Blocks Are Rezoned At Meet

A public meeting of the City planning and zoning commission held last night was the rezoning of blocks six and 11 which are between Sumner and 1st and 24th St. rezoned from a B-1 to a B-1X classification.

Gregg Weller, local contractor, requested the rezoning of the area from its former zoning to the new classification so the firm could erect prefabricated homes in the area.

Regulations for the area which were changed last night stated that no home could be built with less than 800 square feet of lot including outdoor parking area.

The new zoning would allow homes of as little as 400 square feet to be built on a 1,000 square foot lot, according to Warren Knowles, City manager.

Hospital Bids Will Be Opened

Notices were received by interested parties that bids for the construction of the proposed Seminole Memorial Hospital to be located on property on East First St. near the station WPHI will be open Thursday at 2 p. m. in the County Court House.

The notice was signed by T. E. Tucker, chairman of the board of hospital trustees.
