Vietnam to return remains

BANGKOK, Thailand — Vietnamese authorities prepared today to return 21 sets of human remains believed to be those of American camps, reports a missing air cadet during the Vietnam war. U.S. and Vietnamese officials said.

We have informed the American authorities with hand over 21 remains for identification, said Nguyen Van Quan, spokesman for the Vietnamese Embassy in Bangkok.

He said only some of the remains have been positively identified as American, but all were to be given today to a team of U.S. officials led by Dr. William Hensley of the U.S. Army Center for Human Remains Recovery at Hanoi's Song Bien airport.

The remains were recovered from two caves during the days of the 1970s-1980s American occupation. They were buried in the caves to protect them from the weather and to keep them hidden from the enemy.

Sexual battery charges dropped

SANFORD — A charges of sexual battery filed against Michael Andrew Fisher, 22, was dropped Monday after the woman who accused him of raping her Aug. 8 in Winter Springs failed to show for a Monday hearing in Sanford. The charges were dropped because of a "lack of information," records show. Fisher, who resides at 1215 Mills St., was accused of taking the woman to an apartment and raping her at knifepoint after they left the Post Time Lounge in Caselberry together, police records show.

Man arrested for entering woman's room

LAKE MARY — A report of a burglary in progress brought the arrest of a Lake Mary man who is accused of entering the room of a woman who lives at the same location and taking a fan and television control box. Lake Mary police said Stephen Tom Peacock, 37, of 294 Lake Mary Boulevard, told them those items belong to him. Peacock is charged with burglary and trespass for allegedly entering the room of Karl Joyner, of the same address, to take the items. The arrest was made at 6:24 p.m. Tuesday at the Lake Mary police station. Bond is $5,000.

Man faces several charges

SANFORD — A man charged by Sanford police Tuesday for collecting and keeping $900 in payments intended for the lawn service he worked for has also been arrested on other charges, including escape, police report.

Francis William Smith, 41, of 1404 S. Palmetto Ave., Sanford, was charged with grand theft in the first case at the police station at about 1:20 p.m. Tuesday. At that time he was also charged with burglary and grand theft in connection with an Oct. 25 burglary to the Sanford Elk's Lodge, during which $300 was stolen.

While Smith was in a holding cell at the police station, police said he escaped and was captured at about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday on Celery Avenue. He is also charged with escape and resisting without violence. Bond is $2,000.

Knife threat leads to arrest

GENEVA — A Geneva man, whom Seminole County sheriff's deputies report threatened to cut his neighbor's throat with a knife, has been jailed.

Willie Galloway, 63, of Cochran Road, Geneva, was arrested at home at about noon Wednesday. He is charged with aggravated battery with bond of $1,000.

Dawn Marie Gale, 18, of 655 Cochran Road, accused Galloway of coming to her house at about 11:50 a.m. Wednesday. She said he has threatened her over the last few days and in the latest incident brandished a knife. She fled and called for help following the Wednesday incident.

Intruder charged a burglar

WINTER SPRINGS — A man who entered a Winter Springs house, calling the name of a resident while a companion waited on the patio, was arrested by Winter Springs police after the homeowner reported the incident as a burglary.

Thomas William Clerc, 20, of 900 S. Wildmere St., Longwood, was arrested along with his companion, Sean Patrick Dusing, 18, of 80 S. Fairfax St., Winter Springs.

Winter Springs police report the arrests came after Kenneth William Bailey, 44, of 91 S. Edgemon St., described Clerc as an intruder who had just left his house after a confrontation with Bailey.

Bailey said he was at home when he heard Clerc enter his house, while Dusing waited on the patio. Bailey said Clerc walked through the house and called the name of Bailey's daughter, before he confronted him in the kitchen and the suspects fled. Police located Clerc and Dusing on Edgemon St. at about 11 a.m., 10 minutes after the intrusion. They are charged with burglary. Bond is $8,000.

Wife said she was battered

FOREST CITY — Seminole County sheriff's deputies reported that when they arrived in response to a call they saw a man holding a woman against a wall at a Forest City service station at about 8:55 p.m. Wednesday.

The woman told deputies that her husband had knocked her to the ground and hit her in the head several times during an argument. That led to a charge of battery-spouse abuse against Bradd Charles Wespahl, 24, of Apopka. He was arrested at the Texaco station, Bear Lake Road. Bond is $500.

Man arrested on multiple charges

SANFORD — The arrest Wednesday of a Geneva man closed three Seminole County sheriff's cases.

George Edward Hamilton, 20, of 151 Ave. C, P.O. Box 982, was arrested at Wednesday morning at the sheriff's department.

Hamilton is charged in two burglaries and one auto theft. Hamilton and a 13-year-old boy, who was arrested in October, are charged in connection with the Oct. 26 burglary of the Geneva Elementary School, from which $3 was stolen.

Hamilton is also charged in the Sept. 1 burglary of the Geneva General Store, State Road 46, from which 200 Florida Lottery tickets, beer, cigarettes, cigarette lighters and condoms were stolen.

He and the co-defendant are accused of stealing a Ford Ranger Sept. 1, and abandoning the car when it became disabled after trips to Sanford and Orlando to cash $40 worth of winning, stolen lottery tickets. Hamilton is held without bond.

Prison officials meet with Chamber

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald city editor

SANFORD — Two representatives of the Federal Bureau of Prisons gave their final presentations to area groups Wednesday and answered questions that, for the most part, had been raised at earlier presentations.

Nevertheless, appearing before a noon luncheon of Chamber of Commerce members, Patricia Sledge and Larry Long from the facilities procurement division of the Bureau met some questions they could not answer.

Several members wanted to know what level of medium security the proposed prison southeast of Sanford would be — level two, three, or four. The federal prison system is organized along levels of security, with one being the lowest and six the highest. Five and six are maximum security levels, two, three and four are medium security, and level one is minimum security.

Sledge said the bureau does not determine what level a new prison is until about six months before it opens, but said the local prison would be a medium security facility with an adjoining minimum security camp. "It will take six months to complete an environmental study, a year to complete the plans and two years to construct the prison," she said. "We cannot predict now what level of prison will be needed three years from now."

Sheriff John Poik questioned how a prison could be built without knowing what security level it would be. "I assume different levels of security require differences in physical facilities," he said.

Sledge said the differences between levels two, three and four are mainly in the types of sophisticated electronic surveillance, in the amount of razor wire between the two fences that surround the compound. In the number of motorized patrols around the perimeter, and the amount of freedom of movement the inmates have inside the compound.

Poik also asked why it would take so long to draw up plans for the prison. "Why can't the Bureau use plans of other recently-built prisons and just modify them to suit local needs? Why re-invent the wheel each time?" he asked.

Sledge and Long said, being in the site acquisition section of the Bureau, they were not qualified to answer the question.

Also asked at the Chamber meeting were questions concerning a federal prison's affect on a community's ability to attract industry.

"In most communities, visitors to the community don't even know we're there and local people soon don't even notice us except for the money the facility pumps into the local economy," Long said.

Sledge urged Chamber members to contact members of communities where federal prisons are located and ask them how it has affected their communities. "As far as the ability to attract industry, I'm sure they will tell you the prison had no affect one way or the other," she said.

State Rep. Frank Stone, R-Casselberry, asked Chamber Executive Director Dave Farr if the Chamber would have endorsed the prison project if it had been proposed for the Sanford Regional Airport instead of near Geneva and outside the city limits.

"Definitely," said Farr. "In fact, the airport was considered as a site by the Chamber, but there isn't enough land there," he said.

A final decision on whether to build the prison here will be made by the director of the Bureau after the study is completed and public hearings are held in this area.

Dawn collision

Sanford rescue workers remove Laura Walker, 69, from her Buick early today after an accident with the pickup truck of Steven Robert Frana, 34, of Deltona. The crash occurred just before 7 a.m. when Walker pulled from Mangoustine Avenue onto State Road 46, into the path of Frana's westbound truck. The truck also hit the 1979 Thunderbird of Stephanie Tredway, 23, of DeBary, stopped at the northside Mangoustine stop sign. Charges are pending against Walker, who along with Frana suffered minor injuries, police said. Both were taken to the Sanford hospital.

Correction

Lon Howell, who has filed nomination papers to run for the District 1 city commission seat, was appointed to the planning and zoning commission to begin serving on July 1, 1988. He was replaced on April 13, 1987 by Joe Dennison after attending only about half of the meetings, according to Brent Carl, chairman of the commission.

The location of the beating of two persons and arrests of three men reported in Tuesday's Police Briefs is 114 Cory Lane, Winter Springs, not 114 Lori Ann Lane.

Donations sought to help Suggs' family

By CAROL J. RUSSEY
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Drivers in Sunday's Seminole County road rally will be doing more than deciphering course routes; they will be raising money to help the family of Chuck Suggs pay medical bills.

Suggs is the Lake Mary youth who died recently when his newly transplanted heart and lung rejected his body.

The rally will begin and end at Reggies Nightclub in Sanford. It will take nearly two hours to complete and cover up to 70 miles. Organizers describe it as a scenic route, but say little else. This is because figuring out the course, adhering to speed limits, and correctly answering questions along the way will help determine a winner.

Registration will be accepted up to 12:30 p.m., with race time scheduled for 1 p.m. Road maps will be distributed to drivers at a 12:30 meeting Sunday.

To enter the contest, a $35 fee is charged for individual sponsorship, or $105 for corporate sponsorship. There is a $5 discount if you register in advance. Participants are also entitled to three raffle tickets, with the winning ticket receiving ownership of a condominium. The raffle will be held at a later date.

For those not interested in driving, Reggies will be open for lunch, and live music available for dancing. A $10 fee will be charged and is to be donated to the Suggs fund. Organizers have also arranged for a bake sale and free snacks.

Fund raisers hope this will be the last event needed to pay the $25,000 in remaining medical bills.

Dale Barnett, a Florida representative of the Children's Organ Transplant Association, said Florida is a tough state for fund raising. She does not know why this is.

Donations to the Chuck Suggs Fund can be mailed to Sun Bank, P.O. Box 3838, Orlando, Fla.

Hughes deserves re-election to post

Robert W. Hughes has served Seminole County as its Superintendent of Schools during the past eight years and deserves an "A" on his report card.

His tenure has paralleled a period of rapid growth in the county and the attendant demands on the school system. The stresses of over-crowded schools, budgetary pressures and changing curricula demands have been soothed by the efficiency and leadership Mr. Hughes has demonstrated. Though underfunded and understaffed, the school system provides educational opportunities for which parents can be proud. Mistakes have happened but Mr. Hughes has used these as learning experiences and remedial actions were promptly taken.

There remain many challenges to the county's education system and creative thinking and planning will be required. Mr. Hughes has the experience and intellect to guide our schools in meeting these challenges.

The Herald recommends the re-election of Robert Hughes as Superintendent of Schools.

Moore for Secretary of State

Tom R. Moore, Democrat, and Jim Smith, Republican both seek to serve Florida as Secretary of State. Mr. Smith presently holds that cabinet post by gubernatorial appointment.

Mr. Smith, was elected Attorney General of the state as a Democrat but during his tenure made no secret his sights were on the governor's seat. He was considered the front-runner for the Democratic nomination until he withdrew from the race. Then he reconsidered and decided to join another's campaign as the candidate for Lt. Governor. Then he decided he wanted to be governor after all. Even through the vacillations, Mr. Smith made the Democratic primary run-off but lost to Steve Pajic. He refused to back the Democratic nominee, then buddied up to the Republicans. Gov. Bob Martinez, the Republican nominee, was elected, gave Mr. Smith a job in the governor's office, then named him Secretary of State after Mr. Smith decided he would become a Republican.

Mr. Moore served four years in the Legislature and demonstrated a commitment to the environment and vision for the state's schools, both responsibilities he would face on the cabinet.

The Secretary of State runs that department but service as a cabinet member has more impact on Florida residents. Law enforcement, schools, environment, growth management are problems and challenges facing the cabinet members.

Based on assessment of the two candidates with focus on the chameleon-like qualities and indecisiveness of Mr. Smith, the Herald recommends Tom R. Moore as Secretary of State.

Let's redefine today's liberalism

The Democratic/Dukakis counterattack against the charge of "liberal" has gone from terrible to half-right — the easy half.

When Bush charged that Dukakis is a liberal, what did the Democrats do? They said Bush is running a negative campaign, without issues, with undertones of racism; that Bush lies; that the nasty polls are preordaining the results; and that the campaign sets a terrible model for future elections.

The charges are hypocritical, or silly, or exaggerated. These are the folks who mugged Robert Bork by peddling outrageous falsehoods. Meaningful campaigns are often negative — Roosevelt vs. Hoover, Johnson vs. Goldwater, Reagan vs. Carter. "Racism" has terrible connotations, but it has become a whip-word, so debased and promiscuously used that it typically yields only a backlash. Labeling opponents ideologically — like "liberal" — is not the mark of an issue-free campaign, but of an issue-oriented campaign. (In 1980 Democrats charged, "Ronald Reagan is too conservative.")

But what about the charge itself? What's the answer? For a long time — there was no answer. After all, the central deception in this campaign was set into motion at the Democratic convention when Dukakis said the race was not about ideology but about competence. Competence to move in what direction? Sorry, the Democrats said, we've got "unity," and by the way, we're ahead in the polls. (Those are the polls that may have cost Dukakis the election!) What did they expect the Republicans to do, applaud?

Finally, behind by double digits, Dukakis responded. There are four ways to deal with the L-word charge — ignore it, deny it, defend it, amend it. To ignore it is not an option, as Dukakis learned. Nor should it be ignored — a new form of liberalism has arisen in America since the 1960s: it has disturbed many voters, and it merits debate.

The Duke can't deny it; he is a liberal. The wise strategy is to defend it and amend it. He finally defended it. He has not yet amended it.

He has defended, properly, the old liberalism of Presidents Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy and Johnson. The liberal impulse yielded Social Security, Medicare, civil rights, collective bargaining, health research, environmental protection and much more. It's been so good that Ronald Reagan was forced to run a campaign saying "I saved the social safety net," although for decades he had trashed it.

But Dukakis must clarify. Has some recent liberalism gone too far? Yes. Principles of tough internationalism have often blurred into mushy isolationism. Merit has sometimes been transmuted into quotas. Traditional values have sometimes given way to permissiveness. Roosevelt-Truman-Kennedy-Johnson have been followed by George McGovern, Jimmy Carter, Ted Kennedy and Jesse Jackson.

But Democrats and Dukakis (so far) will not admit that liberalism has gone too far. Their lack of recognition is stunning and repetitive. In 1968 when the phrase "Law and order" came into political vogue, many liberals said, "Law-and-order is a code word for racism" — and lost the election. Twenty years later — today — crime is properly raised again as an issue. Murder rates soar. And the knee-jerk, nouveau-liberal response appears again — "The prison furlough issue has racist overtones" — and they're losing again.

GEORGE F. WILL

Luck, not fluency will win

BERLIN, N.J.—Members of Local 1360, United Food and Commercial Workers, have tucked, with feeling, into lunch and now are ready to hear the candidates. He, coatless, as candidates often are to show solidarity with the sons and daughters of toil, tells them, in the fractured syntax of a campaign's final phase, "You are the people about which this country functions." They agree.

What freshman Sen. Frank Lautenberg lacks in fluency he makes up for with something far more formidable: luck. Last spring, Republicans were licking their chops, regarding him as the most vulnerable of the 15 Democratic senators seeking re-election. Then his opponent took the lead.

At first glance Pete Dawkins, 50-football-nerd, Rhodes scholar, retired general, Wall Streeter-seemed perfect. But campaigns involve many glances and soon Dawkins seemed, in Lautenberg's derisive phrase, sent from central casting: an exercise in make-believe. Dawkins quickly diminished his greatest asset, and in the process magnified Lautenberg's asset.

Lautenberg's asset is his utter identification with New Jersey. He is a self-made millionaire, son of immigrant parents who had to scrimp to buy him a bus ticket to the shore in the summer. Dawkins' asset was his glittering resume. Inexplicably, he gilded the lily, making the resume an object of ridicule.

Dawkins' advisers may be blamable for a mailing that said he served two tours in Vietnam and was wounded. (He served one, and was not wounded.) But he said, inaccurately, that he had been a "combat commander." He called himself "one of the formative people" in transforming investment banking. He said he knew of no one as important as he in "one of the definitive reformulations of the industry." That assessment of his brief stint in investment banking was called "laughable" by the man who hired him.

Dawkins did not move to New Jersey until last year. It may not be demonstrable that he shopped around for a state (Michigan, New York) to run in, but his late arrival left him vulnerable to Lautenberg's taunt that he is treating New Jersey as "a political pit stop."

Because Dawkins lived in Manhattan while working on Wall Street, Lautenberg wonders if Dawkins has heard of the Lincoln and Holland tunnels and the George Washington Bridge. When Dawkins said he stayed in the city so his daughter could attend her Manhattan school, Lautenberg called this an aspersion on New Jersey schools.

New Jersey's senior senator, Bill Bradley, is 19 years younger than the junior senator, and is intergalactically famous. Meanwhile, Lautenberg, 64, has elevated provincialism to a principle. His campaign is a reprise of his 1982 "New Jersey First" campaign, which taps the prickly chauvinism of a state weary of being considered just a jumble of toxic waste dumps and bedrooms for New York and Philadelphia.

It was more Lautenberg luck that this put-upon feeling was inflamed last summer when New Jersey beaches were closed because of gunk floating ashore. Some of it came compliments of New Jersey, which dumps sewage sludge 100 miles offshore.

In a year of nationwide nastiness, New Jersey's race may be the most unrelievedly negative. Lautenberg has tried to blame Dawkins for environmental damage the Army did to California while Dawkins was stationed there. Dawkins, who says he is going to "stomp" Lautenberg like a "swamp dog," has been even worse. He recently had to withdraw an especially smarmy ad that was a tissue of innuendos about Lautenberg's integrity regarding financial matters.

Dawkins' people say Lautenberg is just five points ahead; Lautenberg's people say it's up to 17. Split the difference. Lautenberg has a double-digit lead, so Dawkins needs to surf on the Bush wave. (The Dukakis campaign has disintegrated here and Bush is up 20 points.)

But New Jersey voters are accomplished ticket-splitters. On Nov. 8 they will vote for a Republican President for the sixth straight time. But they have not elected a Republican senator for 16 years. In 1984, while Reagan was winning New Jersey by more than 670,000 votes, Bradley's winning margin topped 900,000.

Dawkins' aides hope, say and may even believe that 1988 is more like 1980 than 1984. According to this theory, Reagan's 1984 campaign was themeless and hence coastless. But the 1980 campaign, which pulled in a Republican Senate majority, had a highly specific ideological content: tax cuts and strong defense. However, the 1984 campaign message was "more of the same," and that about exhausts Bush's 1988 message.

Lautenberg, 64, has elevated provincialism to a principle.

Engineers enjoy frivolous travel

WASHINGTON — Army engineers and their spouses have jetted around the globe, using government-owned planes for trips that look more like pleasure than business. In the process, Army Corps of Engineers officers have broken their own rules against frivolous travel and have misused three Army jets that are supposed to be reserved for "emergencies."

Congressional investigators have uncovered a pattern of waste and abuse in foreign travel by the Army engineers. Those investigators are now calling for the corps to get rid of its three jets promptly, because they are a waste of money.

Staff investigators for the Government Operations subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., will release their report today. The report reveals that the corps, which supervises military construction projects worldwide, has made a joke out of government travel rules. Too many corps employees have been allowed to go to foreign countries. The corps' jets have been used when commercial airline tickets would have been cheaper. Rules against taking trips of marginal value have been violated. And spouses have ridden on the corps' jets, exposing the Army to liability and criticism.

Spouses are allowed to travel on government planes only when there is an "unquestionable" official role for them to play in the business trip, according to Army regulations. The congressional investigators found that Army Corps spouses have engaged in such official functions as shopping, sightseeing and fashion shows.

Gen. Elvin Heiberg III, who recently retired as commander of the corps, allowed his wife, Kitty, to fly with him to more than 30 spots in two years, according to flight records.

Here's an example: In 1985, Mrs. Heiberg tagged along for a conference in Brussels. In five days, she went to one official function — a dinner. The itinerary doesn't show that she had any formal duties. She visited friends and shopped for crystal.

Heiberg would not respond to our phone calls about his travel. But he told a congressional panel that his wife serves an important function — she helps him "understand what is going on with the corps families." The investigators say the Army already has people who do that, and Mrs. Heiberg should not have made the trips.

Some corps officials said it doesn't cost the Army anything for spouses to occupy seats in government planes that would otherwise be empty. But in some cases, they bumped other people out of a seat, and those people took commercial flights, paid for by the taxpayers.

The Army Corps brass spent $439,922 in 1984 on world travel, $619,791 in 1985 and $408,940 in 1986, records show. Some of those expenses were paid for by other agencies — or foreign governments if the corps' services were loaned out. But the big expense is the average of $2.4 million a year the corps spends to keep its three jets.

Last year, Army auditors recommended that the jets be sold because commercial air travel is cheaper, even if the corps has to charter planes for emergencies. The auditors said the corps could save $1 million without the jets. The corps has not followed the auditors' advice.

The three planes are supposed to be used only for emergencies, and to get to remote project sites. But flight records show that in a sample of 254 flights, only one was an emergency.

Stocks open slightly up

United Press International

NEW YORK — Stock prices opened slightly higher Thursday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 5.87 Wednesday, was up 3.92 to 2160.74 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 389-291 among the 1,126 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Early turnover amounted to about 7,287,000 shares.

Stock prices closed mixed Wednesday in moderate trading with blue chips outperforming broader market issues in a session pressured by the weakness of the dollar, higher precious metals prices and lack of investor participation.

"The market is performing reasonably well considering all the rumors and real news going around," said Ralph Bloch, senior vice president and chief market analyst at Raymond, James & Associates in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Oil prices rally higher

United Press International

Oil prices firmed Wednesday after a late rally, but analysts said traders still were waiting for some sign on whether OPEC would be able to shore up sagging world markets by cutting its excess oil output.

West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude for immediate delivery, climbed 31 cents to $13.75 a barrel in trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

In U.S. Gulf Coast spot trading, where oil is sold to the highest bidder, West Texas Intermediate rose 15 cents to $13.55 a barrel.

Analysts said the market remained fundamentally in a holding pattern prior to a joint meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' price and long-term strategy committees set for Nov. 17 in Vienna and the cartel's winter plenary session four days later.

Sushi blamed for increase in parasitic worm disease

United Press International

BOSTON — Doctors have issued a warning to sushi lovers: Beware of a parasitic worm disease that has become much more common as the popularity of the trendy food has increased.

Doctors from the University of California and Food and Drug Administration said at least 50 cases of the disease anisakiasis have been reported in the United States, with a majority of the cases occurring since 1980.

"This is probably only the tip of the iceberg, because the infection is difficult to diagnose," said Dr. James H. McKerrrow, a pathologist at the University of California in San Francisco.

In a letter published in The New England Journal of Medicine, McKerrrow and two colleagues warned physicians to be on the lookout for the often-misdiagnosed disease and urged sushi lovers to be careful what they eat.

"Much of this increase can be attributed to changes in our dietary habits, for example the introduction of raw-fish dishes such as sushi and sashimi and the current trend of cooking seafood for shorter periods," they wrote.

The doctors speculated the increased incidence of the disease also may be due to a rise in the population of dolphins, sea lions, seals and other marine mammals since the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972.

Dukakis denounces 'tough talk'

United Press International

Pressing for political openings as polls show the White House door closing, Democrat Michael Dukakis has seized on a George Bush statement to accuse the Republican again of merely talking a good game in the war on drugs.

With both men campaigning through crucial industrial states, gearing up for another round today in cities such as Chicago and Philadelphia, Dukakis took his rival to task for suggesting this week that foreign policy factors might stand in the way of punishing countries that defy U.S. anti-drug efforts.

"There is no diplomatic consideration that should outweigh the war against illegal narcotics, according to Dukakis, and he made his position clear with uncharacteristically strong language in Chicago, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Wednesday.

"I'll work with other countries but I'll be damned if I'll let those countries send their poison into the United States of America!" he declared to an estimated 20,000 Chicagoans who cheered wildly at a huge downtown rally.

"If a government isn't willing to cooperate with us to keep this poison out of our kids and our neighborhoods, their foreign aid needs to be cut and ultimately eliminated," he said in a largely black Philadelphia area. "It's a fundamental test of values."

Furthermore, he reminded reporters in Pittsburgh, the law demands the withholding of foreign aid when a country refuses to cooperate in U.S. anti-drug efforts.

"When Mr. Bush says he won't enforce the law when a nation isn't cooperating with us, then I think what he's doing is walking away from this problem," the Massachusetts governor said. "I'm not going to do that."

"If a nation isn't prepared to cooperate with us after we provide some assistance ... then the law is clear and the American people have got to take a look at what Mr. Bush is saying. ... We've had a lot of tough talk about the war against drugs. I think ... it's a lot of talk and very little action."

Dukakis's attempt to capitalize on the point reflects his need to find any openings possible with polls showing him well behind Bush nationwide.

The Republican vice president, clearly buoyed by the numbers, stumped through Illinois and Michigan before heading to Ohio late Wednesday, telling crowds in each state "things are moving in our direction."

"I represent the mainstream views and values," he told about 2,500 students and others at a high school in Lansing, Mich. "If I win this election, it will be a rejection of the failed liberal policies of the past and a confirmation of your beliefs in these traditional American values."

At the same time, however, Bush cautioned against overconfidence.

"I need you!" he told a screaming crowd in Grand Rapids, Mich. "Every single vote counts this year and nothing's in the bag. I will not be outworked by the liberal governor of Massachusetts. We are going right down to the wire."

Other Republicans began to dispense with that public pretense in light of the strong polls. GOP Chairman Frank Fahrenkopf, traveling with the vice president Wednesday, went as far as to tell reporters: "If things continue, we're going to have an overwhelming victory."

Fuel boat fire allowed to burn out

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Three of four crewman on a fuel boat that burst into flames and went aground in Cook Inlet were presumed dead but the mishap did not threaten nearby oil production facilities or marine life, Coast Guard officials said.

A fourth crewman was rescued after the 113-foot Alaska Constructor caught fire at 8:45 a.m. Wednesday while approaching a vessel landing site at Trading Bay on the west side of Cook Inlet, 60 miles southwest of Anchorage, said Lt. Matthew Carr of the Coast Guard Marine Safety Office.

The names of the crewman were not immediately released. Coast Guard Chief Warrant Officer Will Marlett said that officials decided to allow the boat, which was carrying 59,000 gallons of fuel, to burn itself out.

Rish convicted in Small slaying

KANKAKEE, Ill. — The accused female accomplice in the abduction and slaying of media heir Stephen B. Small faces possible life imprisonment after being convicted of aggravated kidnapping and murder.

A jury deliberated an hour and 40 minutes Wednesday night before returning with the guilty verdicts against Nancy Rish. The testimony covered nine days.

Rish, 26, a one-time beautician from nearby Bourbonnais, could be sentenced to 20 years and life in prison. Chief prosecutor Michael Ficaro said prosecutors will seek life in prison without the possibility of parole.

Small, 40, great-grandson of former Illinois Gov. Len Small, was abducted from his Kankakee home the night of Sept. 2, 1987. His body was found two days later in a wooden box, buried under 5 feet of loose gravel and sand in Wickersham Hills southeast of Kankakee. The kidnapers demanded a $1 million ransom, which never was paid.

Slayings believed motivated by robbery

ROWLAND, N.C. — Authorities say the slaying of two Lumbee Indians found in separate rooms at a rundown motel appears to have nothing to do with Robeson County's notorious reputation for drug trafficking.

The bodies of Timothy Osendine, 23, and Roger Strickland, 20, were found Tuesday by a passerby who noticed a door ajar at the Rowland Motel. Each man had been shot once in the head with a .25-caliber pistol.

Osendine's body was found in a room behind the motel office. Strickland's body was found in Room 25, about 40 yards away. His throat had also been slashed.

Rowland Police Chief Daniel Bradsher said Wednesday robbery is the suspected motive in the slayings, although he did not rule out other factors. He said about $700 was believed taken from the motel office.

Police seek new leads in murder case

BUCKLAND, Mass. — Police, fruitless in attempts to track down an elusive suspect in last month's stabbing death of a female college student, sought a link between the missing man and a break-in in which the burglar appeared more interested in bagging food and clothing than guns or valuables.

The break-in at the Buckland home early this week prompted police to renew their search Wednesday for Mark Branch, 19, of Greenfield, who is wanted for questioning in the grisly mutilation murder of Greenfield Community College student Sharon Gregory, 18.

Gregory's body, "stabbed repeatedly in the back, face and head," according to police reports, was found in the bathroom of her Greenfield home Oct. 24 by her twin sister. Police have made no arrests in the case.

Authorities sought to determine a connection between last month's slaying and the break-in at a house about 3 miles from where the suspect's abandoned car was found in a wooded area last week.

Duke posts bond for Imelda Marcos

NEW YORK — Imelda Marcos wept when she learned tobacco heiress Doris Duke would post $5 million worth of bonds for her bail so the former Philippine first lady can remain free pending her racketeering trial.

U.S. District Judge John Keenan accepted the offer Wednesday by Duke to post more than $5 million in bail for Marcos, clearing the way for her to return to Hawaii and her ailing husband, deposed Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, once the legal paperwork is completed, federal officials said.

Charles Lallella, the assistant U.S. Attorney prosecuting the case, said the bond agreement had to be signed by Duke. Mrs. Marcos and representatives of the court and the U.S. attorney's office and it was "not likely" the arrangements would be completed before today.

Duke, a reclusive heiress once known as the "world's richest girl," will post the bail in the form of municipal bonds and is convinced Mrs. Marcos committed no crimes, said Duke's lawyer, Donald Robinson.

Janitor executed for 1975 murder

United Press International

HUNTSVILLE, Texas — A death row inmate, whose appeal stalled executions in Texas for months, silently stared at the ceiling as he was put to death early today by lethal injection for murdering a nurse.

Donald Gene Franklin, 37, went to his death impassively and silently. He had no response when asked if he had a final statement. Strapped to a gurney, he did not move as the lethal drugs were administered but he coughed several times and made a guttural noise before he was pronounced dead at 12:30 a.m.

Franklin was executed for the July 25, 1975, kidnap-slaying of Mary Margaret Moran, who was abducted from a parking lot at the San Antonio Veterans Administration hospital where she worked.

The woman was raped, stabbed several times and left for dead in a brushy field. Although he was arrested hours after the woman's abduction, Franklin refused to tell authorities where he had left Moran's body.

Moran was too weak to move as she laid nude atop a mound of fire ants for five days before being found by searchers. Doctors later said half the blood had drained from her body. Moran died the day after she was found.

"If there was ever a crime that sets out a death penalty it's this one," Attorney General Jim Mattox told reporters shortly before the execution.

"This is a 13-year-old case. All the issues in this case have been heard, repeatedly heard," Mattox said.

Franklin, a former janitor, was the 28th person executed in Texas since the state resumed executions in 1982. Although Texas leads the nation in the number of executions carried out since the Supreme Court lifted its ban on capital punishment in 1976, Franklin was only the second Texas killer put to death this year.

There have been 102 people executed in the U.S. since 1976.

Supreme Court consideration of an issue raised in one of Franklin's appeals brought executions in Texas to a virtual standstill for most of 1987 and 1988.

City nixes plan to place needle site near school

United Press International

NEW YORK — City health officials backed down from plans to locate a needle-distribution program for drug addicts near an elementary school after angry parents complained about the program.

Instead, the Health Department will use a former storeroom in the agency's downtown headquarters to get the needle program off the ground next week, Commissioner Stephen Joseph said Wednesday.

Joseph said the Lower Manhattan District Health Center in Chelsea was dropped from the program in deference to a promise, made Tuesday night by Mayor Edward Koch, that none of the program's four sites would be within 1,000 feet of a school.

"At this point, the program will be kicked off at 125 Worth St.," Joseph told reporters.

Solidarity rejects round-table talks

WARSAW, Poland — The banned Solidarity trade union has rejected a government offer to begin delayed round-table talks on economic reforms, demanding that authorities first reverse a decision to close the Lenin shipyard in Gdansk.

The Solidarity rejection Wednesday followed a rally by thousands of shipyard workers in Gdansk and coincided with the arrival in Warsaw of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who extolled the benefits of a market-oriented economy.

Thatcher was to hold a second round of talks today with her Polish counterpart, Mieczyslaw Rakowski. She was also scheduled to meet with Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

A statement released Wednesday night by Solidarity spokesman Janusz Onyszkiewicz said planned government-opposition talks on economic reform were impossible under current conditions.

Progress being made in gulf talks

GENEVA — U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said today direct talks between Iran and Iraq were "a good sign" that progress was being made in Persian Gulf peace negotiations, despite open bickering by the two sides over POW repatriation.

The U.N. chief executive told reporters the continuation of face-to-face talks between Iranian and Iraqi military and legal experts meant his latest proposals on troop withdrawals and prisoner of war repatriation were being "discussed in detail."

Arriving at his office at U.N. European headquarters in the morning, Perez de Cuellar said he was personally in contact with the Iranian and Iraqi foreign ministers, and when necessary he would summon them or convene a full-plenary session.

On Wednesday, the third day of the third round of peace talks, Iraq and Iran accused each other of blocking the release of the estimated 100,000 POWs.

Withdrawal of troops to internationally recognized boundaries and POW repatriation are two of the cornerstones of U.N. Security Council Resolution 598, which both Iran and Iraq agreed to in accepting an Aug. 20 cease-fire.

Police ready for Seoul student attacks

SEOUL, South Korea — Police were placed on high alert Thursday to guard against threatened attacks by dissident students on the home of former President Chun Doo Hwan, officials reported.

Students held rallies on 36 university campuses Thursday morning to mark Students Day commemorating an uprising against Japanese colonial rulers in 1929, and planned to gather near Chun's house later in the day.

The government kept 21,000 police on alert in Seoul and said any student attempts to storm Chun's residence would be crushed. Police were monitoring student movements in large provincial cities as well, government officials said.

Leaders of the Seoul Area University Students Federation, an organization of hard-line dissident youths, said Chun and his wife Lee Soon-ja must be arrested and punished for corruption and abuse of power.

Israeli religious parties exercise new-found clout

United Press International

JERUSALEM — Emboldened by their surprise electoral gains, Israel's Orthodox religious parties are savoring their new political power and demanding that any new coalition government meet their requirements for a stricter Jewish state.

The leaders of the country's two major political parties began courting the religious factions Wednesday to see who would gain their favor in the formation of the nation's 23rd government.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres and their negotiating teams met separately throughout the day with the four Orthodox religious parties that made a surprisingly strong showing in parliamentary elections Tuesday.

More meetings were planned for today, including talks with smaller factions within the larger parties' respective right-wing and left-wing camps.

Analysts said Shamir's right-wing Likud appeared to have the best shot at winning the support of the religious parties and forming Israel's next government. But at least one religious party kept the door open to possible backing of the center-left Labor.

"All options are still open. We do not care about individual parties. We are all Jews," said Moshe Peretz.

Those requirements include establishment of Jewish law as the legal foundation of Israel, such as mandatory observance of the Jewish Sabbath in a predominantly secular country, and stricter interpretation of who is a Jew.

"Israel is a Jewish community," Peretz said. "Jewish religion is not characterized by acts of worship. It is a whole life, from birth to death, morning and night. Every action has its place in Jewish religion."

Eitan Gilboa, a political science professor at Hebrew University, said the Orthodox parties can be expected to take full advantage of their new political clout.

Palestinian gets 25 years in hijack trial

United Press International

VALLETTA, Malta — A Palestinian who took part in the 1985 hijacking of an Egyptian jetliner received a maximum 25-year prison sentence for killing an American and an Israeli and wounding five other passengers.

"I see no reason to go below the maximum," Criminal Court Judge Wallace Gulla told Omar Mohammed Ali Rezaq, 24, Wednesday at the end of the two-day trial. But Gulla deducted the three years Rezaq has served while awaiting trial.

Rezaq, dressed in a dark suit and open-necked white shirt, stood motionless during the sentencing in a tightly guarded courtroom inside a military fortress.

Sixty people died during the hijacking, which began Nov. 24, 1985, on a flight from Athens to Cairo and ended the next day when an Egyptian commando unit stormed the plane at Luqa Airport in the bloodiest rescue in aviation history.

The dead included two other hijackers.

Rezaq pleaded guilty to seven counts of murder and attempted murder and Prosecutor Vincent Degaetano dropped two remaining counts of illegal entry into Maltese air space and possession of firearms.

Judicial officials said Rezaq could not be charged with hijacking because the jet was pirated over the Greek island of Milos.

Rezaq, who said he was born in the Sabra refugee camp in Beirut, testified he belonged to the "Egyptian Revolutionary Organization" made up of Arabs from Lebanon, Tunisia and Egypt.

The clandestine Abu Nidal Palestinian guerrilla organization claimed responsibility for the hijacking at the time.

Rezaq said the hijacking was "an act against Egypt's policy, which was destroying the future of the Palestinians." He said he shot the Israeli passengers "on principle" and the Americans because they were imperialists.

The slain passengers were Scarlet Maria Rogenkamp, 38, of Oceanside, Calif., a civilian employee of the U.S. Defense Department based in Greece, and Nitzan Mendelson, 23, a member of the Kibbutz Houlata in Israel's northern Galilee region.

They were shot at close range and hung to the tarmac during the 22 hours the jet sat on the runway at Luqa.

IN BRIEF

HOCKEY

Bruins rout Leafs, 7-2
 The Boston Bruins drew on last year's experience of playing in the Stanley Cup finals to take over the best record in the NHL.
 Keith Crowder and Cam Neely scored two goals each Wednesday night as the Bruins routed the Toronto Maple Leafs 7-2, stretching their unbeaten string to eight games.
 The victory gave the Bruins 19 points, two more than Toronto and the New York Rangers, which also lost Wednesday night. Boston is coming off a 4-0 defeat to Edmonton in last year's Stanley Cup finals, and has been able to carry over the success of last year.
 "The experience of going through four playoff rounds made us a better team," said Boston Coach Terry O'Reilly.

BASEBALL

Weiss AL's top rookie
 NEW YORK — Shortstop Walt Weiss, whose steady fielding helped Oakland win the pennant, Wednesday was named American League Rookie of the Year to give the Athletics the honor for the third straight season.
 Weiss follows slugging teammates Jose Canseco (1996) and Mark McGwire (1987) in winning the award given by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.
 Oakland becomes the first AL team to claim three straight top rookies since the league award began in 1949. The Los Angeles Dodgers, who beat the A's in the World Series, are only team to do better, gaining four straight from 1979-82.
 Unlike his Oakland predecessors, Weiss mainly won because of his glove, going 58 games without an error. He hit .250 with three home runs and 39 RBI to help Oakland post the best record in baseball at 104-54. He committed 15 errors in 147 games, but only one after July 8. His errorless streak ended Sept. 21.

TENNIS

Shriver, Evert breeze
 WORCESTER, Mass. — Defending champion Pam Shriver and second-seeded Chris Evert breezed to quick victories Wednesday in the opening round of the $300,000 Virginia Slims of New England tennis tournament.
 Shriver, seeded fourth, took just 55 minutes to eliminate Lella Meskhi of the Soviet Union, 6-1, 6-2. Earlier, Evert dispatched tour rookie Shaun Stafford 6-3, 7-5 in just over an hour.
 No. 3 seed Gabriela Sabatini, who won a silver medal for Argentina at the Olympics, eliminated Ann Henricksson, 6-1, 7-5.
 Also advancing were fifth-seeded Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia, No. 6 Natalia Zvereva of the Soviet Union and sixth-seeded Barbara Potter.
 Sukova defeated Mary Lou Daniels, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 and Zvereva stopped Iwona Kuczynska of Poland 6-4, 6-3. Potter eliminated Wendy White 6-4, 6-2.

BASKETBALL

Nets get Carroll from Rockets
 EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Joe Barry Carroll, a No. 1 draft choice eight years ago who failed to meet expectations, Wednesday was traded by the Houston Rockets with Lester Conner to the New Jersey Nets for Tony Brown, Frank Johnson, Lorenzo Romar and Tim McCormick.
 Carroll, a 7-foot-1 center, was selected out of Purdue in 1980 by the Golden State Warriors. He was named to the NBA rookie team in 1981 but led the Warriors to the playoffs just once.
 Last year he was traded to the Rockets as part of the Ralph Sampson deal and averaged a career-low 12.7 points a game for the season. Carroll came off the bench and backed up Akeem Olajuwon.
 Carroll's best season was 1982-83 when he averaged 24.1 points and 8.7 rebounds a game. He played the 1984-85 season in Italy.

'Noles zap Hornets

By CHUCK BURGESS

 KISSIMMEE — Seminole High unleashed a powerful offensive attack led by seniors Lia Long and Adrian Hillsman and took the sting out of the Lady Hornets of Bishop Moore, 15-8, 15-9 in the semifinals of the District 3A-6 volleyball tournament Wednesday night in front of 101 fans at Gateway High.
 The Lady Seminole's will face county rival Oviedo, who defeated the Lady Tigers of Jones, 15-8, 15-4 in the other semifinal, in tonight's dream final at 7 p.m. The Lady Lions are the favorites after defeating the Lady Seminole's.

 KISSIMMEE — Anna Hollis deflated Jones' hope of an upset with an effective floating serve to lead Oviedo to a 15-8, 15-4, victory Wednesday night in the District 3A-6 semifinals at Gateway High School.
 The Lady Lions improved to 20-2 overall this season and will face Seminole tonight at 7 in the deciding game. Oviedo has beaten the Lady Seminole's, who won 15-8, 15-9, over Bishop Moore, twice this season and know what to expect on the court tonight. Jones finished its season with a 9-10 record.

 Lake Howell's LeeAnn Trimble bumps a ball up to the setter during Wednesday's district match vs. Lyman. Trimble and the Lady Hawks put together two good games around one bad game and came away with the victory. Lake Howell now goes up against top seeded Lake Brantley in tonight's semifinals. Lady Rams top DeLand, end jinx

By CHRIS FISTER
 Herald sports editor
 ALTAMONTE — All the pre-tournament gossip had Lake Mary's Lady Rams as the top threat to defending champion Lake Brantley.
 Brantley was the furthest thing from coach Cindy Henry's mind on Wednesday, though. Henry, from past experience, definitely knows not to look ahead at district time.
 Up until Wednesday night, the Lady Rams had never won a match in a district tournament.
 "The jinx is finally over after eight years," Henry said after the Lady Rams' 15-3, 15-12 victory over DeLand. "I was hoping the girls wouldn't dwell on it and would just go out and play their game. No we can go on and look forward to the rest of the tournament."
 Lake Mary, 17-9 on the season, advances to the semifinals tonight at 5:45 against Spruce Creek's Lady Hawks. Spruce Creek struggled at times, but came away with a 15-11, 15-8 victory over Daytona Beach Mainland in Wednesday's second opening round match.
 In Wednesday's nightcap, Lake Mary unleashed a ferocious attack right from the start and DeLand's Lady Bulldogs could do nothing to stop it.
 Fueled by the sizzling spikes of Tammy Scott and Terri Peters and the superb sets of Lori Leckie and Melissa Mau, Lake Mary scored the first 13 points of the match and rolled to a 15-3 win in the opening game. Tara Calvin also added a couple kills and an ace serve in the rout.
 "We really looked great in the first game," said Henry, who has been the coach of the Lady Rams since the program started. "The passes, sets and hits were all on Terri (Peters) and Tammy (Scott) both had excellent games."
 Game two, though, was disturbing to Henry as the Lady Rams, who looked as good as any team that played Wednesday, shifted into low gear and DeLand built up a 6-2 lead behind the nice all-around effort of Renee Bellamy.
 DeLand took a 9-4 lead before Lake Mary got down to business. Calvin served three points to cut the lead to 9-7. Nina Lovestrand's kill gave Lake Mary a sideout and Lovestrand served a point to cut the lead to 9-8. Mau came up with a nice tip at the net to account for the eighth point.
 Peters kept DeLand from adding to the lead as she put down a kill for a sideout and Peters later served three points in a row for an 11-9 lead. Leckie had a nice play at the net for the 10th point while the other two serves were not returned.
 Lake Mary built up a 14-9 lead on the serve of Lisa Johnson and the Lady Rams had two match points but could not close out the Lady Bulldogs who pulled within 14-12 on two good plays at the net by Bellamy.
 After squandering one more match point, Lake Mary got a sideout and Peters served the final point.

Ultra-light outfit a good buy

Many fishermen have a ton of rods and reels, but very few anglers own an ultra-light spinning outfit. You are missing out on a lot of fun and a lot of fish if you don't own one of these mighty rigs.
 First of all, you can absolutely kill the school bass with a tiny Rapala cast by an ultra-light spinning outfit. Many times school bass feed on tiny ditch minnows, and they will refuse to hit large lures. How many times have you pulled out your hair in frustration when bass were jumping all around your boat but refused to hit anything in your tackle box?
 You have to "match and hatch" in order to catch bass that are schooling and the tiny Rapala is just what they want in most situations. Simply cast it into the feeding action and twitch it on the top. This crippled action will draw some ferocious strikes from the gluttonous bass.
 Don't make the mistake of thinking that the small Rapala will attract only small bass. I have been pleasantly surprised on several occasions when a bass in the 8 to 10 pound range gulped down the tiny lure.
 Specks are a ball when caught on ultra-light tackle. Many times speck fishermen overpower these fish with heavy tackle and jerk them into the boat. Specks can put up a good account of themselves when caught on sealed-down spinning tackle. This light tackle and light line (4-6 pound test) will also handle beetle spins and other small speck lures much more easily than heavier tackle.

FISHING
JIM SHUPE

I have even used ultra-light spinning tackle with a great deal of success in salt water. If you have ever fished at night, sooner or later you will run across some trout feeding around bridge light or some other type of light. These trout are typically very finicky and will refuse all of your offerings. It can be very frustrating to see all of those tasty trout and not be able to put any into your ice chest.
 It may seem hard to believe, but the same tiny Rapala that is so deadly on the school bass is just as effective on trout that feed around lights at night. The trick is to anchor a cast away from the light as not to spook the trout. Then, armed with your tiny spinning outfit, cast the small Rapala past the trout and reel it slowly by them. One night I outlived my brother two to one, and he was using freeline live shrimp.
 Catch more fish and have fun in the process by adding an ultra-light

Ditka suffers mild heart attack

United Press International

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Chicago Bears Coach Mike Ditka suffered a mild heart attack Wednesday during his morning workout at training camp but is expected to make a full and swift recovery, doctors said.

"With his intestinal fortitude, he'll recover quickly," said Dr. Jay Alexander of Lake Forest Hospital. "We'll be watching him very closely."

Ditka, 49, is listed in serious but stable condition. Alexander said the coach is expected to remain in the intensive care unit five to seven days.

"The pump function of the heart is excellent, so that's an excellent sign," he said. "There were no signs of heart pump failure."

Asked if a complete recovery is anticipated, Alexander said, "Barring anything unforeseen, I expect he will."

Ditka was taken to the hospital by two assistant coaches after complaining of chest pain following his daily workout in the weight room at the Bears' training camp.

Alexander said Ditka helped his situation by coming to the emergency room quickly. Doctors immediately administered a medication to open clogged arteries. An electrocardiogram was performed to determine heart damage.

"If we had to characterize it, we would consider it a mildly small heart attack," Alexander said.

Bears owner Mike McCaskey said he talked with Ditka, who was conscious but in pain. McCaskey said he expects to name an acting coach within the next few days. In the meantime, offensive coordinator Ed Hughes and defensive coordinator Vince Tobin likely will handle coaching duties.

"Right now, we're primarily concerned with Mike's health and his care," McCaskey said. "There's a great sense of hope and relief this will be a short episode and Mike will be back and lead us on to a Super Bowl championship."

Said Tobin: "The emotional loss of Mike's leadership will be the hardest part to deal with. Right now, we're still in a state of shock. It's a real blow."

Alexander could not say what may have caused the heart attack other than Ditka being a Type A personality, meaning he is frequently under stress and can become impatient and irritable.

Following hospitalization, Ditka likely will complete his recovery at home and continue an exercise program.

Alexander could not project a date for Ditka's actual return to work, or even whether the Hall of Famer would be allowed to watch the Bears play Sunday against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

"You have to balance the anxiety and stress level of not watching the game against watching it," Alexander said. McCaskey informed the players of Ditka's condition during a team meeting Wednesday morning.

"You know it's intense to be a coach, but you wouldn't think a heart attack could happen," tight end Emery Moorehead said. "I think everyone was shocked at first. We had our game plan (for Sunday). We want to have a big win on Sunday to show our support."

Ditka, a native of Alliquippa, Pa., became head coach of the Bears in 1982 after nine years as an assistant to Dallas Coach Tom Landry. He was Rookie of the Year and a three-time All-Pro with the Bears during his 12-year career, which included stints at Philadelphia and Dallas. He was the first tight end elected to the Hall of Fame.

Under Ditka, the Bears won their first Super Bowl title in 1986 following a 15-1 season. The Bears have won four straight NFC Central titles and currently lead the division with a 7-2 record.

"Certainly Mike is going to be in the back of our minds," safety Dave Duerson said of Sunday's game. "He is the reason we won a world championship in 1985. He brought his character and attitude to this ball club and the rest of the guys have simply mixed in that system and more or less cloned that attitude."

Testaverde to start for Bucs

United Press International

TAMPA — Vinny Testaverde, benched in favor of the NFL's oldest player last week, Wednesday was named Tampa Bay's starting quarterback against the Chicago Bears.

Coach Ray Perkins, calling Testaverde "our quarterback, pure and simple," announced the second-year pro would return to the starting lineup for Sunday's game at Soldier Field. Joe Ferguson, 38, played the entire game in last week's 17-14 loss to Miami, throwing for 291 yards and two touchdowns.

"It's not a matter of going back to Vinny — he's our quarterback," said Perkins, who had started Testaverde 12 consecutive games dating back to the final month of the 1987 season. "The thing that would have made it a real tough decision was if we had won last week."

Testaverde, the No. 1 pick in the 1987 NFL draft, threw 22 interceptions through the first half of the season. The 1986 Heisman Trophy winner was the NFL's lowest-ranked passer as Tampa Bay lost six of its first eight games. In his last start, a 49-20 home loss to Minnesota, Testaverde threw six interceptions and was booed loudly by a disgruntled Tampa Stadium crowd.

"I felt like it would be best to sit Vinny down in our last game," said Perkins, who almost lifted Testaverde after three quarters against the Vikings. "The primary reason for the change was to give him a rest. I think he's ready to go again. Joe did a real good job and I think he'd now feel more comfortable going into a game. He certainly satisfied me that he can do the job."

Mark Carrier, who caught nine Ferguson passes for 142 yards against the Dolphins, said Wednesday's announcement would not affect his preparation for the Bears.

"It makes no difference to me who starts," said the second-year wide receiver. "I didn't really think about it this week and I've got no control over it. I'm just gonna run my route."

FISHING FORECAST

Lemon Bluff Fish Camp reports good speck fishing on Lake Harney and in the river. Bream and specks are still good, and bass fishing is picking up a little.

Steve Gard at the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp reports that speck fishing is the thing to do. The specks are in Lake Monroe and around the pilings of the new bridge. The specks are also running big, with quite a few fish running over the one pound mark. Steve reports the bass fishing is on the slow side.

The snook are still strong at Sebastian Inlet. The word is out, so be prepared for some huge crowds on the weekend nights. Jugs are still catching most of the limesides, but lures and live bait will also work just fine. Most of the snook are being caught east of the bridge.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports good offshore fishing for dolphin and wahoo. Kings are also thick on inshore reefs. Bottom fishing has been good as grouper and snapper make their annual pilgrimage to shallower rock piles and reefs for the winter months. Inside the Port, bluefish and flounder have been providing most of the action. Trout and reds are still thick on the flats of the Banana and Indian Rivers. This is a good time of year to have some fun with topwater plugs. Gold or silver spoons will also work well. Bluefish, sheepshead, drum, whiting, flounder, and redfish are keeping anglers busy at the New Smyrna Jetties. A live shrimp on the bottom has a short life expectancy as fish are real thick. The calm waters on the north jetties is still the preferred fishing spot.
