Detachment 8 Wins October Bomber Stream

Heavy Attack Squadron 11' Detachment 8 placed two flight crews among the top five to win the Henry Attack Wing 1 October Bomber . Stream.

The Detachment was followed by VAH-3, VAH-11 and VAH-7 in that order. The monthly competition involved three radar Bomb releases on training targets at Jacksonville and Statesboro, Ga., plus a closely-regulated navigational routs and time sched-

The winning flight crew was Detachment 8's Lt. Art Stallings, pilot, bombardlernavigator, First Class Aviation Jet Mechanic Clark D. Arrington, and third crewman Harry Hall, a second class aviation structural machinist. Arrington, Heavy Attack Wing 1's top bombardier in Fiscal 1963, teamed up with his pilot for 415 points of a possible 450. The winners flew an A-3B Skywarrior attack plane.

They were followed by VAH-3's Lt. Jerrold Chapdelaine and bombardier Lt. Nick Merge, who scored 360 points in an A-5A Vigilante.

Due to the hospitalization in Tallahassee of Bonnie's sixter, Mrs. A. O. Stoffer (Bonnie's grandmother) was in the receiving line for her mother. The grandmother and honoree were presented corsages of small yellow mums. Attached to the ribbons of the honoreg's corsage were a small wedding hand and wedding bell. She was also psesented a gift by the hostesses.

The bride's book, which the guests signed, was complimented by a manzanita branch set in a low, yellow heart-shaped basket filled with mums and fern. On the branches, intertwined with fern, hung Mrs. Pryor's baby ring, her mother's wedding ring, and her maternal grandmother's wedding band.

Refreshments of apple punch, mints, nuts and cookles were served from a table covered wth yellow nylon net over a yellow cloth. The centerpiece was a double wedding ring arrangement of fern and yellow mums flanked by tall yellow tapers in silver eandlesticks.

Invited guests included Mmes, Raymond Ball, George Stine, Joel Field, Hubert Smith, Carl Rabun, Everett, Harper, Anson Stoffer, H. E. Turner, Gary Hudgins, A. A. McClanahan, G. J. Asensio, James Pirotte.

Tomorrow's doctors and medical research scientists will more and more direct their skills toward conquering the diseases of old age. Aside from accidents, the perils of childhood have simply been rendered statistically insignificant.

Nixon's

Few seasoned political observers doubt that the presidential bug still is biting Richard M. Nixon, despite his most ardent protests of disinterest in the 1964 Republican nomination.

Both Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, the present front runner, and New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller are political realists - and they say they think Nixon is a candidate. Many another politician believes the same.

There can be no question that certain aspects of Nixon's situation "position" him for such considers-

He is the middle-road man always acceptable, on paper at least, to both conservative and liberal wings of his party. This would have been an immensely strong point for him had he won the California governorship last fall and gained that great power base.

Not having gained it, he moved to New York. He could not have hoped thereby to find a new power footing. What he did seek was a chance to get into the brighter spotlight which shines on politicians operating in the Washington-New York orbit.

This he has managed. The public prints are currently alive with accounts of Nixon's views and doings. He is getting talked about. He is trying to cast his influence over public discussion of the great issues and to affect the tone of his own party's efforts.

Yet it is one thing to say Nixon is interested and available, quite another to argue that the Republican party might nominate him in 1964.

In fact, if nobody - repeat, nobody - died before the age of 50, the average lifetime would rise by only 51/2 years, or only one-fourth the gain made since 1900.

Chances

Nothing in politics is so fixed or so scientific that one could fairly rule him out altogether. Convention deadlocks are extremely rare. But if the 1964 GOP convention at San Francisco got into some kind of stalemate, it might in its extremity turn to Nixon as a man palatable to all wings.

Nevertheless, the likelihood of this happening is not great. The basic reason is that a high proportion of GOP professionals are quite disenchanted with him.

Their recriminations against him for alleged political misjudgments in the 1960 campaign linger on and on. Some of this bitterness, it now appears existed covertly in the years up to and including 1960 - at a time when these professionals were publicly lauding Nixon.

The deep source of this attitude seems to be their inability to warm up to Nixon. In 1960 their disgruntlement was founded more practically in the fact that Nixon refused to listen to them but insisted on pursuing what they saw as an inflexible course toward defeat.

On top of all this lies wide conviction that, since he lost to President Kennedy in a year when maximum advantage appeared to rest with Nixon, the former vice president would only be beaten more easily another time. They have little taste for a Kennedy-Nixon rerun.

Surely Nixon's name will continue to be high in public notice in the big political months to come. But there is no evidence that it is high in either the hearts or the minds of Republican president-makers,

Cancer Society Launches Study In Seminole

colunteer researchers and cooperating families in Seminole County will participate in the fourth annual followup of the cancer prevention study being conducted by the American Cancer Society in Florida and in 25 other states

According to Mrs. Thomas . Largen, this cancer prevention study is the most omprehensive medical statis tical research project of its kind ever undertaken. There are 68,000 volunteer researchers surveying 1,078,000 men and women nationwide in this study.

By use of questionnaires, placed confidentially with selected families, the project traces men and women over a six-year study in searching for clues to cancer-causing factors in family and community environment.

Over 300 men and women volunteers are co-operating with 30 trained researchers in Seminole County to provide confidential data.
