NEW ARRIVAL & OLD GLORY

Lempheone Saysavank, a 4-year-old Laotlan boy, who attends nursery school at the Sanford Early Childhood Center, celebrates his first Flag Day in his new country with flags donated by Flagship Bank. He arrived in Sanford Nov. 7, 1980, with his parents Bounchanh and Somehay and a sister and brother. The family previously lived in a refugee camp in Thailand. The family is sponsored by Pat Southward of Lake Mary.

year-old boy trapped 200 feet underground in a narrow cartesian well Saturday but was unable to pull him out. He said the boy "really looked deed to me" and officials held out little hope the child would be brought out alive.

Rescuers then lowered another volunteer cave expert down the well. Officials said they hoped to attach a grappling device to the boy in an attempt to hoist him to the surface.

Cave explorer Donato Caruso, 25, dangled head first from a rope for two hours and 17 minutes in a desperate effort to free Alfredo Rampi, trapped for more than two days and three

"He was rigid and really looked dead to me," Caruso said after he was pulled from the well. "He didn't move a centimeter."

Caruso said he was willing to make another try at bringing the boy out, but workers nailed boards over the opening of the well as a safety precaution while officials decided on a new course of action.

Alfredo's mother Francesca sobbed uncontrollably when Caruso was pulled out of the well without her son, who has a heart condition. Italy's 84year-old president, Sandro Pertini, who kept a nightiong vigil at the well, sadly embraced the woman.

As Pertini left the scene, a group of women surrounded his limousine shouting,"Dead or alive, bring the boy out. Make more attempts because the mother wants her son,"

Officials said there probably would be a further attempt later in the day to bring up the boy. But Rome fire chief Elveno Pastorelli, the head of the rescue operations, made it clear he held little hopes Alfredo would be brought allve

"We have made every attempt possible or imaginable to bring him out alive. They were all in vain..., Pastorelli told reporters.

Six year old Alfredo, who tumbled into the 200 foot deep well Wednesday, had talking animatedly to rescuers above ground, but five hours before the latest rescue attempt he fell silent.

The slightly-built Caruso began his headlong descent into the cartesian well just after dawn and stayed underground longer than any of the five previous men who had attempted the

"He's not moving and he's stiff," Caruso called to his helpers as he reached the boy at the bottom of the muddy well shaft.

Caruso said he clamped a policestyle handcuff on the boy's hand, but the cuff slipped off when rescue workers pulled an attached rope to raise the child.

$373,000 For Sylvan Lake

Seminole Gets Park Grants

Seminole County has been awarded more than $373,000 in state and federal grants for the development of the 120acre Sylvan Lake Park off Lake Markham Road, north of Sylvan Lake Drive, U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum, R-

Altamonte Springs, announced. The grants have been approved by the Land and Water Conservation Fund through the U.S. Department of the Interior. The funding is to be administered through the state Department of Natural Resources.

The funding is to be used to develop a nature and outdoor recreation park for picnicking, nature study, fishing and swimming beach area, County Administrator Roger Neiswender said. Fourteen to fifteen acres of the park is already being developed by the county on the south side of the property into ball fields and active recreation facilities, cleared and a water plant is being built to serve the facility. The entire park is now fenced in, he said. The county's share of developing the facility is $177,931,

McCollum said in announcing the grant award. Construction on the nature portion will begin as soon as contracts are signed with the federal agency, Neiswender

This is the first time Seminole County has received sland and water conservation program grant.

"I'm delighted to hear that those of us in Seminole County will have a park like Sylvan Lake before long," McCollum said. "A recreation facility such as this will atract visitors in our area and will improve the quality of life for everyone in the county."

Neiswender, when notified of the award, said, "I'm delighted." - DUNNA ESTES

Murder In Seminole: Messy And Inelegant, But Rare

Herald Staff Writer

This spring, Sanford has been preoccupied with murder, obsessed by homicide. The Robert Preston Jr. murder trial, the replaying of the Tiffany Benthall case, the sentencing to the electric chair of brutal killer "Crazy Joa" Spaziano, have all combined to put murder on our minds.

We quaver with fear that we may be a homicide victim, an unlucky target of some psychopathic killer. If one judged from conversations about town and from reading the papers, Sanford would appear to be the murder capital of Florida. But alas, for all our illusions and civic pride, we have promoted murder all out of proportion and have sought to out-star Miami, No. 1 in per capita murder not only in the state, but in the entire country last year.

Imagination, nurtured by fear, has outrun the facts. Seminale County police recorded a total of only 16 murders in the past two years, and judging from the pace so far this year, 1961 looks to be an 8-homicide year. That works out to about ...Seminole homicides lack class, panache, and a distinguished cast of characters. There hasn't been a killing in recent memory that would have bestirred Sherlock Holmes or been worthy of the insights of Miss Marple.

one killing every month-and-a-half, not nearly enough to turn a profit for local funeral establishments.

Comparatively uncommon though they are, Seminola homicides are usually messy and inelegant. The most likely victim is a black male, done in by a friend or relative in his home. Killings, even those performed in affluent suburbs, are grungy and sleavy affairs.

Considering, moreover, the advanced technology of killing. our murderers operate in the Dark Ages, employing chiefly handguns, knives, and blunt instruments. Any oaf can pall a trigger. And where is the cunning in wielding a knife or baseball bat? There isn't a Borgia in the lot, let alone a skilled chemist or possoner. They are dullards, our killers, which explains in large part why they are so readily caught.

Let's face it, Seminole homicides lack class, panache, and a distinguished cast of characters. There hasn't been a killing in recent memory that would have bestirred Sherlock Holmes, or been worthy of the insights of Miss Marple.

Homicide in Florida is a mug's game. The cope say, for example, that the least likely victim to be murdered is an Asian girl between 4 and 10 years of age living in a small town in the Panhandle. Statistically, she is safest on a Thursday in

For Tiffany Benthall, the figures just didn't add up. The only number that was up was hers. She lived on Sanford's west side. She was black, She was two. It was a Wednesday in January

Tiffany had gone for a walk near her westside Sanford home with her mother's boyfriend - Bernard J. Beaton. Along the way, Tiffany became unruly and Beaton, in a drunken rage, struck the child in the stomach with a judo chop, then lossed her like a rag doll in the air. She landed on her head and died four hours later at Seminole Memorial Hospital.

It was a sudden, senseless crime. But then, so say police, are most homicides in Seminole County.

The Benthall death has been the only slaying recorded in Sanford so far this year. In the unincorporated area of the county, the number of murders stands at 1.

The cops say most of the killing goes on in Seminole's poorer sections, the city and county's underside that business has bypassed and tourists don't see. Slightly more than half of the victims are black, roughly five times their proportion in the population.

Said one investigator who requested anonymity, "As long as murder is confined to those we don't care about" - meaning lower-class blacks and whites -- "nobody is going to give a damn. Nothing will be done about it." Then there are those like detective Sgt. Bill Bernosky of the

Sanford Police Department who are of the opinion that nothing CAN be done about it. "It started with Cain and has been going downhill ever since," he says.

With a pecsimism born of 11 years on the force, Bernosky glamly claims "Leople are always going to kill. Gun control wouldn't help. Technology is such that we have college kids building atomic bombs. Hell, you can build a gun out of a piece Besides, Bernosky adds, "most of our killings are of the passion variety - wife kills husband, lover va. lover, friends killing each other over a quarter at the pool hall. The lack of a gun isn't going to be a major obstacle in a heat-of-the-moment situation. They'll always find something - a knife off the kitchen table, a candlestick, a pool cue." He sighs and repeats himself, "People are always going to kill.

"The only thing we can be grateful for around here is that we don't have much drug-related murder like in Miami, or gang fights with the indiscriminate killing of passersby and defenseless old folks like in New York," Bernosky says. Why do passions run so high. . . and so deadly? Cops aren't usually given to sociological analysis and psychological reference to the economy - how the poor and unskilled are constantly frustrated by their failure to get ahead. "Crime, even murder, is no big deal to them," says one probing, but when pressed, most will eventually make some detective. "They have very little to lose."

Investigators also point out that Seminole is still basically a small rural Southern county where many folks pack shotguns and rifles in their pickups and carry pistols, illegally, in bars. In addition, there is a strong macho sensibility here, they say, which adds to a tendency to respond to personal insult with quick violence. It is this very speed with which most murder is committed that is frequently the killer's undoing.

"Hornicide is not a rational thing," says sheriff's investigator Lt. George Hagood. "People don't stop and reflect on what they're doing. If they did we wouldn't have so much killing. It's just pick up a gun or a knife and POW! you have a corpse on your hands. Most of your killings occur at home or in a bar where there are witnesses - friends, customers, neighbors. Truly cold, calculated, premeditated murders are rare around here "

Hagood says homicide is a relatively easy crime to solve, usually much more so than say burglary or robbery.

"Burglary is one of the most common of serious crimes," he says, "It's not a crime of passion such as most murders, but a crime for profit. The burgiar commits his crime stealthily at night, alone and not before witnesses. He usually doesn't know

Although a murder case might be generally easier to crack than a break-in, the homicide gets much more attention. The reason is morbidly simple, according to Bernasky. "The public her a romance with murder. What else is as precious as human life?" he asks. "An auto accident can be more bizarre, but murder is the work of a deprayed mind, of a person who has willfully and wantonly taken a human life." That's a "pretty heavy load to carry around," Bernosky says, "and people often end up telling on themselves. Sometimes, a murderer will tell somebody what they have done in order to relieve themselves. Then, what you have to do is find that person."

Failing that, an appreciation for minute detail becomes the detective's greatest esset. "You can't disregard anything," See MURDER, Page 2A

Irish Elect IRA Convict To Seat In Parliament

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) - Irish voters have elected one of the nine IRA convicts who ran for a seat in Parliament, and Prime Minister Charles Haughey's government was going down to defeat as the final ballots were being counted Saturday.

Another IRA prisoner - a Maze prison hunger striker also was heading for a victory.

Final results for Ireland's Parliament were due Saturday for Thursday's general election, but Patrick Agnew, serving 16 years in Belfast's Maze prison for possessing explosives, topped the poll in winning one of four seats at stake in his native Louth county constitutency near the Northern Ireland border,

Agnew is not on hunger strike, but his election paralled that of Bobby Sands, elected to the British Parliament in April 25 days before he died of self-imposed starvation May 5, in the IRA's campaign to wrest political status from Britain. Also like Sands, Agenw will not be able to take his seat because he is a prisoner,

Maze prison hunger stelker Joe McDonnell, serving 14 years for firearms offences, was likely to win in the Cavan-Monaghan border district when counting, election observers said McDonnell is in the 36th day of a "fast to death" in the IRA's campaign to win political status from Treason Trial For Bani-Sadr?

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) - Iranian religious fundamentalists surrounded the office of embattled President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, chanting alogans and damanding that he be placed on trial for treason, witnesses said.

Bani-Sadr reportedly issued a statement Friday saying a coup attempt was in the making and appealed to the Iranian people for support, but the report could not be confirmed. Details of the message were not immediately available.

The demonstrators, supporters of the Islamic hard-liners who control parliament, surrounded the Tehran office building containing Banl-Sadr's office Friday, They chanted Islamic alogans and called for a treason urial for the president, witnesses said.

Premier Warns Poles

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) - Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski defended the tough Soviet warning letter sent to Poland this week and vowed more vigorus action against anti-Russian activity, saying he wouldn't let "madmen" set fire to "our home."

Jaruzelski's statements, which indicated he wanted to dampen anti-Soviet activity to avoid giving the Kremlin an excuse to invade, came Priday in a session of Parliament in which deputies also approved a major Cabinet shakeup prompted by the critical economic situation.

One deputy however, criticised the Soviet letter as being "one-sided" and ignoring the strengths of the reform movement. The session was televised live across the nation.

Shots Fired Near Queen

LONDON (UPI) - A man fired several "blank shota" a few feet from Queen Elizabeth Saturday as she rode on horseback at the traditional Trooping the Color ceremony near Buckingham palace.

No one was hurt and the man was dragged to the ground and arrested as police came running from all directions. Millions of television viewers witnessed the incident.

A police spokesman said several "blank shots" were fired from what he described as a "good replica" pistol.

The queen's black horse shied briefly as it turned off the Mall where the ceremony was being held. The queen, a practiced horsewoman, rode on apparently unperturbed.

... Murder In Seminole

Hagood says. "You don't know where it's going to fit into the puzzle until later."

A matchbook, coffee cups, position of the body, location of the crime scene, or the victim's lifestyle can be just a few of the crucial variables which must be fitted into the murder

Hagood points out, for example, that it was something as seemingly innocuous as a puble hair found in a belt buckle which led to the arrest and conviction earlier this week of Robert Preston Jr., for the savage slaying of an Altamonte Springs convenience store clerk nearly three and a half years

Perhaps the toughest homicide for police to solve is one in which drugs are somehow involved.

"No one wants to talk," explains sheriff's investigator Ron Gilbert, "Anybody that knows anything about it is either doing dope, selling it, smuggling, distributing. . . all of which obviously is illegal, and they don't want to put their hides on the line by cooperating."

Be that as it may, statistics say murder continues to be solved more readily than any other type of serious crime. In Seminole County, four out of five killings are cleared by arrest within a week, and nine out of 10 are eventually colved, generally through diligent police work, or luck, or both. A few cases each year, however, remain unsolved, but never forgotten. There is no statute of limitations on homicide.

Hagood is presently working on four such cases, but he refuses to discuss them.

"I don't want the bad guys to know I'm after them," he says. You can never tell when something will shake loose; someone wanting to get even will fink on a killer, or maybe we'll arrest some guy for burglary and he'll give us information on a murder hoping we'll given him a break."

Bernosky is not so reticent about discussing his unsolved homicides. He wants the bad guys to know "I'm out there looking," Unsolved cases which occupy Bernosky's spare momenta:

-Elizabeth Oliver Young, a 66-year-old retired school teacher, was found with her throat slit in the living room of her home at 1016 Locust Ave. There was no sign of a struggle and no evidence of burglary. She probably knew her attacker. Date: July 4, 1978.

-Christine Cincotti, 24, a Sanford 'street person,' was found nude in a patch of weeds off W. 11th Street on July 12, 1978,

-Carolyn Perry, 22. another 'street person,' was found in the same place roughly a year later on Aug. 22, 1977. She died of multiple stab wounds.

-Paul Rinson, 56, 1920 Summerlin Ave., was discovered in his home Nov. 29, 1979 by neighbors who had become concerned after not seeing him for several days. Cause of death:

multiple gunshot wounds. -George Hernadollar, 45, of Orlando, was gunned down at the Sanford Greyhound bus station June 27, 1975 while making a telephone call. He was shot several times with a .23-caliber pistol, a favorite weapon of organized crime assassins. That,

People are always going to kill. It started with Cain and has been going downhill ever since."

combined with the fact that a large sum of money was found in Hernadollar's Cadillac, led investigators to surmise the shooting was a drug-related 'hit.'

After reviewing his list, Bernosky paused to relect, "I never realized how many people die alone. Most of these did. Sometimes, two or three days pass before they're missed and found. Murder is usually a very lonely crime. You're shot, you fall, you bleed, you die."

Such penalve musings are out of character for most cons who, with practiced indifference, have come to view corpses not as people, but as hodies without personalities.

"It is difficult to treat a human form that once held life like a sack of grain," Bernosky says, "but you have to do it. You'd go mute otherwise."

Backsliding comes easy, however. To appraise the room whose four walls encompassed the life of an individual who has died violently yields an impression like a sledgehammer, he

"You'll pull open a drawer and find a handful of paper clips, a broken ballpoint pen or two, a crumpled photograph, or an

"You think, 'Is this the sum total of a person's existence?" He's not here to say, 'No, I was important; I had feelings, I loved, I was loved, I laughed, I accomplished."

Only his meager belongings remain to offer testimony to what he was and sometimes this testimony is too softly spoken to convince us. Death indeed is empty and lonely.

Boone appeared in ada for the mail order product, Acne-Statin, during 1977. The FTC said Boone received about 25 cents for every bottle of the treatment sold.

The agency alleged Boone and Karr Preventative Medical Products Inc., which made the product, falsely claimed it could cure sone and was effective in anti-bacterial treatment of the condition. As part of the settlement, the company was to set up a Atlanta Stakeout Sloppy?

ATLANTA (UPI) - The lucky break investigators have been seeking to crack the murders of 25 young blacks may have come and gone, botched by a "sloppy" police stakeout in which one of the officers reportedly fell asleep.

Authorities will not comment for the record on what happened at the South Cobb Parkway bridge in the predawn hours of May 22. But they make it clear that the events that brought Wayne Williams, a suspect in the case, to their attention may make it difficult ever to bring any charges against him.

"Sloppy police work," is the way one highly placed source described events of that night by the Chattahoochee River. "It wasn't a real amouth operation."

The society had used liquid nitrogen to freeze corpses with the notion that they could be reanimated in future years and "cured" of whatever had caused their deaths. Quarter-Penny Sales Tax Could Help Break Budget Deadlock

Every county's financial situation has been worsened by the recent increases in the homestead exemption. that cut substantially into property tax revenues and cuts in federal revenue sharing that are part of President Reagan's drive to balance the federal budget.

Ray Sitting, director of the Florida League of Citles, says municipal governments are getting a raw deal under the quarter-cent proposal, but he's not sure he can oppose the plan. Tve got to decide whether an inequitable share of something is better than nothing at all," Sittig said. Dunn agrees that cities aren't treated fairly by the funding formula, but he has a greater concern. "I don't think a quarter-penny comes anywhere dealing with a problem that is serious now, but will become critical later once the full impact of federal revenue sharing cuts is felt," the Daytona Beach lawyer says.

"And I'm alraid the Legislature is precluding itself, politically, from coming up with a fair, more effective solution later. We may be boxing ourselves into the position of having said, 'we have solved local governments' problems and that's it.."" Serious local prison problems aren't addressed by the quarter-cent

proposal. Graham recommended a $390 million state bond issue to build and expand local jails, but that proposal has been discarded by legislators as too expensive because the state would pay close to $1 billion paying off the $390 million in bonds.

As things stand now, cities and counties will have to continue to meet their road needs with their $100 million a year share of state gas tax revenues, and most officials admit the job can't be done without substantially more

Municipalities get $50 million a year for roads, but they having to spend another $150 million in local money and that doesn't include funds for mass transit, Sittig says.

'We're going to have to, at some point, completely reassess the extent to which state dollars are going to have to flow to local governments and I hope what we're about to do now won't keep us from doing what we must do later if we are to act responsibly," Dunn says.

The taxing package consists of a $7 a. year boost in the average family's property taxes, a gas tax hike not taking effect until 1983 and a plan letting county commissions raise the sales tax by a quarter-of-a-penny.

The proposal, which would generate $176 million a year, will be reviewed by the Senate Monday afternoon and by the House either Monday or Tuesday.

County commissions would be able, by a majority vote, to raise the sales tax within their country from four centaon the dollar to four-and-a-quarter cents and use the money for law enforcement.

Municipalities would also get money for law enforcement, but only a small share because of a complicated formula based on property tax and inventory tax collections, the bulk of which are taken in by the counties.

Several versions of a so called local option sales tax have been considered throughout the session. The handful of legislators trying to work out a deal on the budget concluded last week a quarter-cent plan was the only one that could be sold to rank-and-file legislators, if, in fact, it will fly because it would amount to the first major state tax increase since 1977.

Dunn has been pushing a countyoption penny increase with the $720 million which would be raised distributed between cities and counties on the basis of population as well as property taxes collected.

Gov. Bob Graham proposed a halfcent option, with half of the money going for law enforcement and half for transportation.

Woman Convicted In Child Beating Death

WOLF POINT, Mont. (UPI) - A fifth member of the River of Life Tabernacle has been convicted on a charge of deliberate hardeide for beating a 5-year-old boy because he had not learned to ride a bicycle.

Sherry Riley was accused of contributing to the January death of James Gill, whose body was found to have scores of scars when he was taken dead to a Poplar, Mont., hospital. The boy's parents and two other members of the religious group were previously convicted of deliberate homicide in his A jury that convicted Mrs. Riley on Friday acquitted her husband, Arthur. On Thursday their 9-year-old son testified that Mrs. Riley. had whipped James with an electrical cord while the group was in the state of Washington. Riley said the boy was beaten because he had not learned to ride a bicycle. When his acquittal was announced, Riley stood and had a bailiff undo his handcuffs. Mrs. Riley cried when her husband's verdict was read. She was later expressionless when her own conviction was announced.

The verdict was delivered after 34 hours of deliberation, Prosecutors admitted that not all the defendants participated in the beatings that finally killed the boy but said they had a part in the group's policy of harshly disciplining

Members of the River of Life Tabernacle began moving to northern Montana from Wapato, Wash,, late last year. The group's founder, James Delorme, was originally accused of deliberate homicide, but charges against him and his wife were dropped because of a lack of jurisdiction.

Delorme was an enrolled member of Montana's Fort Peck Indian Reservation tribes. He was believed to have returned to Washington.

The Rileys' five children remained in the custody of Roosevelt County, as do two of the three children of Norma Phillips who was cleared of charges on Thursday, District Judge James Sorte said there was no evidence that she even knew about James' beating.

The four convicted earlier for the youngster's death will be sentenced Thursday.

Abortion Hearing Clash

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Four liberal theologians preached in favor of abortions at a congressional hearing, drawing the wrath and anger of the panel's chairman. Sen. John P. East, R-N.C., accused them of failing to answer some of his questions Friday, while one of them shot back that he apparently did not listen to her response.

The theologians testified against a bill that would define life as starting at conception. This measure would effectively negate the 1973 Supreme Court decision that legalized abortions by giving unborn infants rights.

They maintained that in some cases abortions are morally permissible. But East protested they were "stripping away any notion of the right to life of the unborn." When I hear theologians giving no help or assistance in this area. I have to wonder if their theology is not as bad as their constitutonal law " East said "I don't think you heard anything I said in my testimony," said Rosemary Radford Ruether, a Catholic theologian at Garrett seminary of Evanton, Ill. "I did," East interrupted.

The so-called "human life" bill is this year's chief goal of anti-abortion groups.

The Senate judiciary separation of powers subcommittee began hearings on the measure in April. A final session is to be held next week.

Opposing the bill were Mrs. Reuther; William P. Thompson, stated clerk of the United Presbyterian Church; Paul D. Simmons, Christian ethicist at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky.; and Rabbi Henry Slegman, executive director of the American Jewish Congress.

Simmons, who fold of a girl impregnated by her grandfather and a seminary couple whose first two pregnancies resulted in deformities, resorted to questioning East.

"At what point in the continuum (of life) does the fetus have the same rights as the woman carrying the fetus - now is that your question, Mr. Chairman?" Simmons asked.

"I have stated it, Reverend, as well as I can," East replied. Thompson said the bill "would result in writing into law the most extreme position of one group of religious persons and the denial of views held with equal force by other religious per-

Rights Of Accused Getting Ridiculous

(Reprinted by permission of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers)

As far as we know, no judge has yet thrown out a case against a defendant because the police failed to wiggle their ears and balance on one foot while reciting the Miranda rule to the defendant. But we seem to be getting to that point.

A New York State Supreme Court judge has ruled as inaumissible the confession of a 16-yearold youth who, on the advice of his lawyer, had admitted to the Queens district attorney ... he ... participated in the murder of another youth.

...said the judge, "... Any lawyer worth his salt will tell the suspect in no uncertain terms to make no statement to police under any circumstances."
A competent lawyer, said the judge, would at least have pleabargained for a lesser charge in return for the confession.

Without the confession, says the D.A., it's doubtful if the case will go to trial.

A man comes in with his own lawyer, we read him his rights and with his lawyer present, he makes a statement. What else am I supposed to do to protect him? Give the man's lawyer a bar

Either that, or try wiggling your ears and balancing on one foot next time.

Don't Make South The Whipping Boy

(Reprinted by permission of the Wheeling, W.Va., Intelligencer)

There is no justification for the notion that the Voting Rights Act of 1965 should continue to apply to only selected states and areas of the nation. It is discriminatory and not consistent with the original purposes of the civil rights law for it to perpetuate the idea of assumed guilt.

The act at first applied to only a few states, mostly in the South, and later was broadened to include other portions of the United States. We never liked that approach; federal laws should apply equally to all states. The fact that school integration has been carried out more effectively in the South than in other areas should be sufficient cause to cease making that region the whipping boy of civil rights legislation.

The Voting Rights Act will expire next year, and Congress is debating whether to extend it. We're not sure that's necessary. But if ... (it) is extended, its scope should be expanded so that it applies equally to all 50 states.

Supreme Court Must Stay Coequal

... Unhappy with recent Supreme Court rulings on such emotion-saturated issues as abortion and prayer in public schools, ... (some Congressmen) are pushing bills that simply would declare such matters off limits to federal courts.

... Each of the 50 state legislatures, and each of the 50 state court systems, would in theory be freed to pass and interpret its own brand of law regulating abortions or whatever.

It involves the separation-of-powers principle at the heart of American government for two centuries. If Congress can declare one issue off limits to the federal courts, many legal scholars reason. then it could rule out judicial review of any issue.

... The court's role as a coequal branch of government would be eroded. No longer could the Supreme Court be held up as the final arbiter of difficult constitutional questions. Its ...balancewheel function would ...be supplanted by a legislative will that mirrored the popular majority of the hour.

... Trying to humble the Supreme Court in this fashion is no way to keep the branches of federal government in balance.

About this thing called the middle-aged spread...

Since when is that wad of fat hugging the middle of one's anatomy confined to middle age? From where I stand, age has nothing at all to do with one's build, obesely or petitely - period.

During my adulthood, for the most part, I have been alim. Well, not exactly. Skinny and scrawny are more like it.

People used to ask, "How do you stay so

Believe me, it wasn't easy. Although I smoked like a furnace in the dead of winter, I ate exactly what I wanted. The funny thing is, I never wanted much to eat. Cigarettes satisfied the appetite-maybe killed it-as well as absorbing all my energy.

Then came that day-the day I abandoned cigarettes, AGAIN.

It didn't take long to discover I had gained an ounce here-two ounces there, which eventually added up to a pound here, and several pounds

But I was tickled pink. My clothes were beginning to fit. The pants had no slack and the dresses didn't droop. The reflection in the mirror didn't lie. But I concluded I was getting stylishly stout or fashionably fat. Who wants to be lean and mean, anyhow?

Frankly, I think a bit of plump on the rump may be pleasing - but not if it won't fit into your

So what now? A new wardrobe? Forget it. With a grudge, I nudge and nudge, but the bulge won't budge.

As my grandaddy might put it, "The chickens always come home to roost." I call it eating crow

I used to posh-pooh the idea of people being on diets. So what? And who cares, anyhow? And now, look who's watching her food intake

But it's not really that bad. Are you what you eat? Don't look at me. I keep eating more-but enjoying it less. Nothing that I'm consuming these days seems to be sticking to

I mentioned to a friend that my husband and I devoured about $8 worth of fresh fruit one evening and were still scratching for snacks before curiew.

The expensive fruit didn't begin to do the job of a 25 cent chocolate-coated peanut butter cupwhich is a lot less trouble, too.

With just a little effort, I dropped five pounds and two inches-you guessed it, around the middle - in eight days.

And now my clothes fit.

But I'm still hungry.

Red Ink In Pension Fund

WASHINGTON (NEA) - After all the flap over the Reagan administration's proposed changes in Social Security, members of Congress and their high-level aides are afraid to bring up problems in another pension fund: their own.

The pension system for federal workers is in trouble - perhaps even worse trouble than Social Security. The system is under-funded to the time of almost a half-trillion dollars which can be made up only out of the taxpayers' pockets.

One estimate is that the military and civil service retirement programs are together committed to paying out in the future a staggering $416 billion more than they are to receive in employee contributions and in-

The system has grown almost incredibly over the years. Benefit payments increased more than 300 percent over the past decade. For every $7 that a federal employee now contributes to his retirement, the taxpayers contribute $30.

Between 1970 and 1980, the federal government's annual contributions to the system grew from $4.8 billion to $28.6 billion. Federal retirees now receive 5 cents out of every tax dollar. And the government's annual contribution to the system will exceed $50 billion by the end of the decade if growth continues at the current rate.

The reason for all of this is simple: Few retirement programs can match the lavishness of the federal system.

And the situation is getting worse. Today the federal government annually pays into its retirement programs an amount equal to 30 percent of the federal payroll. This contrasts with the 15 percent of payroll that most private employers contribute annually to their employees' pension funds. Nevertheless, the federal government is by putting in only 30 percent. Some have estimated that adequate funding of the retirement system would require a contribution of at least 48 percent of payroli; that amount would have to increase by several percentage points a year because of inflation.

So, what is to be done? The Carter administration proposed to make a modest start by cutting the cost-of-living adjustments to one year. The pensions of federal workers then would have lagged from six months to a year behind the rate of inflation.

But the federal-employee lobby showed its muscle. Organizations representing federal workers and retirees quickly amassed a million-dollar war chest and defeated the

JEFFREY HART

You Just Can't Say It

In a recent debate at Dartmouth, I made an assertion which seems to me self-evidently true - but which represented such an assault upon academic manners and assumptions that it led to demands that I be dismissed from my position as a tenured member of the faculty.

My debate was with another professor, Elise Boulding, who is a sociologist, a Quaker, and a pacifist. The outrageous thing I said was this:

I asserted, first of all, that the Soviet regime is self-evidently evil. That it is at war with its own people. That if, perchance, the Soviet cops went home and stayed there, we renaissance in Soviet life. Poets would come out of their cellars. Painters would exhibit their works. Literary and political journals would commence publishing. People would play Mick Jagger and the Beach Boys without fear of being sent to the Arctic Circle.

Thus, I asserted, the Soviet regime is selfevidently evil.

At the same time, I further asserted, the United States is - equally self-evidently - a virtuous polity. Thus, the United States is the most stable self-governing state in the history of the world. It has shown itself remarkably adaptive to changing conditions. Its citizens are free men and women

In comparison with the Soviet Union, this polity is self-evidently a virtuous one. These assertions did not seem to me to be intellectually surprising - but they caused complete consternation.

Professor Boulding, in her rejoinder, poopoohed them with the argument that all states should not make easy claims to moral virtue for any state. This led to the counter rejoinder that, yes, states are a mixture of good and evil, that yes, are a mixture of good and bad and that we

Hitler's Germany and Churchill's England were just such mixtures, and that the regime of Pol Pot and the Swiss regime were also such mixtures - and that, yes, it is so difficult to make moral distinctions where good and evil are so mixed.

But what do I next read in the student newspaper, but a letter from someone named Beth Dingman: "I would like to know how Dartmouth can take itself seriously as an institution of higher learning, with credibility among educated people, when it gives tenure to a professor who espouses such anti-intellectual, ethnocentric, narrow minded viewpoints." Jeffrey Hart "is obviously incapable of complex thought and has to reduce the world into simple-minded good and evil dichotomies."

Even my defenders were themselves defensive: "I agree with you that Professor Hart's views tend to be somewhat simplistic. but most certainly defend his right to express

With defenders like that, you don't need

However, the original assertions about the Soviet Union and the United States were, yes, simple, but also self-evidently true.

It is a curious thing that they caused any opposition at all. But it seems to be the case that tolerance of communism has become part of our intellecutal manners, to the extent that it suggests a capacity for "complex thought" to ignore the Gulag and the monstrous mess of the system that created it.

ROBERT WALTERS

CPSC — Marked For The Kill?

WASHINGTON (NEA) - One of the most productive and responsible federal regulatory agencies is in danger of becoming an innocent victim of an overzealous campaign to reduce government intrusion into the lives of the country's citizens.

Acting in the name of efficiency and economy, lobbyists representing the manufacturers of potentially hazardous and lethal - products are waging an intensive campaign to destroy the effectiveness of the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

After a shaky start in the mid-1970s, the CPSC has emerged in recent years as an especially valuable agency, acting judiciously yet firmly to reduce or eliminate the threat of injury and death posed by scores of unsafe products.

One example of the commission performing an invaluable public service occurred last year when the agency learned that at least seven infants had strangled to death when their necks became wedged in a dangerously designed crib headboard.

With an estimated 7,500 identical cribs in use by families throughout the country, the CPSC required the manufacturer to conduct a massive publicity campaign to warn parents of the serious danger,

In another case, the commission took similarly decisive action after receiving reports of 23 explosions - resulting in five deaths and 16 serious injuries - involving hot water heaters whose faulty design allowed liquid propane gas to escape.

In the eight years of its existence, the CPSC has ordered more than 1,000 recalls involving not only cribs and water heaters but also hair dryers, paint strippers, coffee pots, snowmobiles, toys and a host of other items.

The commission estimates that those recalls of more than 170 million potentially defective units may have prevented 1 million or more injuries during the past three years alone

In addition, the CPSC has promulgated mandatory rules to improve the design of entire product lines - including refuse bins, antennas for citizens band radios, power lawn mowers and gas-lired space heaters,

Working in cooperation with industry groups, the commission has helped to develop safer uniform design standards for bathtubs and showers, ladders, playpens, infant strollers, extension cords and Christmas tree

Finally, the commission recently has initiated investigations of chronic hazards products that appear to be harmless but are likely to produce long-term toxic or carcinogenic effects leading to cancer, birth defects, genetic damage, irreversible illness

Decimation or destruction of the commission will only deprive needed protection to consumers who already suffer approximately 28,000 deaths and 33 million injuries annually when dealing with the products under the CPSC's jurisdiction.

Hatch Puts A Lid On The Pushy

WASHINGTON -The heroes in the drama of government are sometimes damned by the press and public along with the rascals. But the honorable men and women in public life deserve to be noticed.

Such a legislator is Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a feisty lawyer, a former construction worker, a card-holding member of the AFI. CIO and an eratwhile bishop in the Mormon Church.

Though an unabashed conservative in his political philosophy, his sense of person rectitude has made him just as tough on Republicans as on Democrats when he suspects wrongdoing by government officials.

But apparently two Senate colleagues, Roger Jepsen and Charles Grassley, Loth Iowa Republicans, had the impression that Hatch belonged to the "go-along-to-get-

According to my sources, it took a stormy face-to-face confrontation in Hatch's office to instruct the two senators from lows that Hatch won't back off an investigation merely as a senatorial courtesy. Here's what hap-

As a power on the Senate Judiciary Committee, Hatch has been looking into the case of Jack Nard, a Pittsburgh contractor who was involved in a civil suit with Armour Co. A Judiciary Committee staff report concluded that a federal judge may have been pressured politically to rule against Nard, and that the contractor's complaint to the Justice Department was ignored.

Hatch received a staff recommendation that one of the witnesses at the Judiciary Committee hearing on the Nard complaint be investigated for possible perjury. The witness wass Evan "Curly" Hultman, a former U.S. attorney from lows who directed the grand jury in the Nard case. Hultman is a political buddy of Jepsen and Grassley,

When they learned about the adverse staff recommendation, the two Iowa senators marched into Hatch's office to protest. "All hell broke loose," a source told my associates Jack Mitchell and Indy Badhwar. "Those two thought they could shout Orrin into dropping the case," a Hatch staffer reported, adding, "Boy, were they loud!"

But Hatch refused to be moved by the angry entreaties of the two lowans. He kept his temper, but informed Jepsen and Grassley firmly that his investigation into their pal Hultman would go forward.

Footnote: A spokesman for the lowa senators insisted they weren't trying to pressure Hatch into dropping the inrestigation of Hultman, but simply wanted to inform him that his staff had done some "sloppy homework," The spokesman said the lowans believe Hultman is an honest man who is being unjustly pilloried without adequate opportunity to defend himself.

WHO'LL. FIGHT DRUG PUSHERS?: One of the bitterest bureaucratic fights in Washington lately has been over the overlapping jurisdiction of agencies involved in the war against the drug smugglers. The Reagan administration so far has resisted suggestions that the troubled Drug Enforcement Administration be stripped of its

As early as the transition period, Reagan intimates were being briefed on the failures of the anti-drug program. William Casey, now CIA director, was given a particularly gloomy appraisal of DEA in an eyes-only transition document.

"The Drug Enforcement Administration is generally recognized as a failure," the paper stated. "Its basic approach — to stop drugs at the source - has not worked and cannot

The analysts recommended instead a sixpoint program that would, they claimed, save the government $200 million a yeaer - and be more effective against the narcotics traffickers. The suggestions included giving back to the Customs Service responsibility for antismuggling efforts employing the Internal Revenue Service to attack illicit drug profits through the tax laws and using diplomatic pressure on nations that produce drugs or are transit points in the international traffic.

Dozens of narcotics experts have reportedly been urging the administration to simply abolish the DEA and return its functions to the FBI, CIA, IRS and Customs. But high-level Justice Department officials inform me that there are no firm plans even to shake up the beleaguered drug agency.

Although DEA has had some spectacular successes in its covert operations and the seizure of millions of dollars' worth of narcotics, it has suffered recently from federal investigations, discrimination suits and poor

WATCH ON WASTE: There are "cola" fanciers in Congress who are costing the taxpayers muliions each year. This "cola" is not a soft drink, but COLA, an acronym for "cost-of-living allowance." To be fair to government employees stationed in such expensive locations as Alaska and Hawaii, Congress legislated cost-of-living allowances that supposedly bring their pay up to that of Washington, D.C. But unlike the Pentagon and State Department, which compute their COLA on the basis of take-home, or spendable, income, the other agencies use gross income as the yardstick. It's illogical because deductions for income taxes and pensions can't be spent in either Washington or Waikiki. It also costs the government an extra $23.2 million a year to compute the COLA based on gross income.

A New Era In Public Transportation Is Underway

On March 16th, a new era in public transportation got underway in Seminole County. Due to the persistence of County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff and the continued prodding of People's Transit Organization of Seminole County, the Orange-Seminole-Osceola Transportation authority (OSOTA) extended the existing bus service from Seminole Community College to Seminole Plaza in Casselberry. Existing service in the north and south ends of the county was connected. It became possible for residents of Sanford to go to work and shop in South Seminole and Orange counties. People living in South Seminole and Orlando now have access to the county seat in Sanford. We predict ridership will boom as a result of this connection.

We will do our part to help promote the service. We understand that local businesses will sponsor a "Nickel Days" promotion where it will cost only 5 cents to ride the bus in the near future

This route is a good beginning or "backbone artery" from which a viable public transit system can be built serving other areas of the county.

The Seminole County Planning Department is finishing up work on a Transit Management Plan for Seminole County. It will be presented to the Commission for comments and-or revisions and approval sometime soon. The North-South connector between the Sanford and South Seminole service. now established, was the first of several county-wide routes identified where transit service needed to be established. The report also identified area-wide, local and rural service areas. The plan will call for county funding of the countywide routes and discuss funding participation from the various city governments of the areawide and local routes under the Urban Mass Transportation Administration grant formula.

A Sales Tax Increase May Be In Seminole's Future

Do the people of Seminole County and Sturm, Sheriff John Polk, Altamonte taxes increased in the individual counties by one-half cent per $1?

The Geopolitical Importance Of The Sea

By WAYNE SCHROEDER Special to the Herald

Throughout the course of history, control of the seas has played an unportant role in determining both the outcome of military conflicts and the conduct of international relations. Seven-tenths of the world's surface is covered by water. It is estimated that some 90 percent of all international commerce today is transported over the oceans. For the Western world, it is imperative that the sea routes and ocean passageways which these cargoes must traverse be kept open.

For the U.S. and Western Europe, oil tankers transit from the Strails of Hormuz, go around the Cape of Good Hope below South Africa, and then pass on to their final destinations, either to the Caribbean or up to the North Atlantic and into the Baltic and North Seas. For Japan, the great industrial and commercial power of the western Pacific, its maritime commirce must pass through the Straits of Malacca, through the South China Sea and up to the Sea of Japan. Should these critical sea lines of communication (SLOCs) ever be severed in time of conflict, the West would find its industrial base severely impaired.

The domination of critical SLOCs is accomplished by the control of land areas which guard these sea routes and ocean passageways. These areas are known as "choke points."

Each of these critical "choke points" has a special significance in the realm of international commerce and geopolitics. The Straits of Hormuz serve as the oil artery of the West, from which the oil of the Persian Gulf must transit to the industrialized nations of the Western world. The Dardanelles and Bosporus is the main route from the Black Sea to the Mediterranean.

The Caribuean serves as the loading point for Western oil transfers to the U.S., as giant supertankers offload their oil at ports in the Bahamas, Trialded and the Virgin Islands for re-shipment to U.S. refineries and ports on the eastern seaboard and the Gulf of Mexico. The GIUK (Greenland-Iceland-United Kingdom) gap serves as a primary Soviet SSBN (designation for strategic missile-carrying submarine) exit. The Baltic Sea and its approaches are important staging areas for both Soviet and NATO naval operations in the North Atlantia. The South China Sea, which is currently being exposed to an increased Soviet naval presence, is the route through which commerce must pass to Japan.

Control of entire seas and oceanpassageways is also facilitated by the development of a basing infrastructure on the coasts of nations adjacent to these seas and oceans. One need only witness the U.S.-Soviet competition over obtaining access to naval and air basing facilities in the Indian Ocean and Persian Gulf to underscore this

In the past 15 years the geopolitics of this area has radically changed, in large measure due to the Soviet ability to obtain naval basing or anchorage rights at crucial locations in the region. The U.S.S.R. now has such rights at Aden in South Yemen, at the entrance to the Gulf of Aden and the Red Sea; in Ethiopia at Massawa, just above the Gulf of Aden and Djibouti; in Mozambique, guarding the Mozambique-Madagascar channel; in Angola, north of the Cape of Good Hope route; and also in Libya and Syria in the Mediterranean. Moreover, its occupation of Afghanistan places it only 400 miles from the Straits of Hormuz.

This shift in the geopolitical balance precipitated the U.S. negotiation of basing access agreements with the governments of Oman, Kenya and Somalia this past year. The major naval and air facilities to be available to the U.S. in these regions will include Masirah in Oman, Mombassa in Kenya and Magadishu and the Soviet-built facility at Berbera in Somalia.

Islands are also of critical geopolitical importance in the determination of geopolitical control of the seas and ocean-passageways. The U.S. maintains its naval beadquarters for the Pacific fleet at Pearl Harbor in Hawaii and has B-52 bombers stationed in Guarn. The U.S. also uses the base at Yokowika in Japan and depends upon the use of Subic Bay in the Philippine Islands for basing and logistics purposes in the Indian Ocean and the western Pacific. The U.S. is currently upgrading its naval and communications facilities at Diego Garcia on the Indian Ocean, and some Pentagon planners favor widening its runways to give it a B-52 landing capability. The Australian government has offered its naval base at Cockburn Sound for use by the U.S., but thus far the U.S. has not responded to the offer.

In the Atlantic, the Azores Islands were of critical geopolitical importance during the 1973 October War. The U.S. used the Azores to refuel its C-SA sircraft resupplying Israel during the war. Western control of the Azores is absolutely essential, for should these islands ever fall into pro-Soviet handswhich might very well have happened had Portugal gone Communist in 1975similar airlifts to the Middle East would be impossible. Western surveillance of Soviet submarines in the Atlantic would also have been cur-

The ocean floor is also of considerable geopolitical importance because of its oil and mineral wealth and strategic value. Certain offshore areas are rich in potential oil finds. The North Sea has become a very valuable oil source for the British. Both the U.S.S.R. and the People's Republic of China are attempting to develop their offshore oil potential (off Sakhalin Island and in Po Hal Bay) through the acquistition of Western offshore oil drilling technology. And of course, offshore oil production is extensive in the Persian Gulf. Venezuela and off Texas and Louisians in the Gulf of Mexico.

Most students of geopolitics would readily acknowledge the existence of offshore oil as one of the most important geographical attributes of the seas, and certainly one which has geopolitical ramifications. However, the ocean floor also has economically valuable minerals such as manganese nodules (composed of manganese, copper, cobait and nickel), phosphorites, tin and magnesium.

While active strategic uses of the seabed and ocean floor are regulated under a 1970 treaty, the seabed is used for passive defense purposes. The U.S. has emplaced sonar listening devices and hydrophones on the seabeds off its coasts in the passages near the GIUK Gap under the SOSUS (Sound System for Underwater Surveillance), PROJECT CEASAR and TASS (Towed Array Sensor System) programs. This is used for submarine detection purposes. Because of this important military use of the ocean floor, the U.S. has opposed the complete demilitarization of the seabed. The U.S. also uses the seabed to conduct naval research and to test non-nuclear

The seas are therefore important not just to the geographer, but also to the naval strategist, the economist, the marine biologist, the policy analyst, and the business executive. What happens on or near the seas will have the utmost importance for international politics during the next twenty years. For these reasons, it is advisable that both the scholar and the layman increase their knowledge of the political, economic and strategic importance of

Keep Cool This Summer

We know that winter chill can kill. But so can summer heat. Records for high-temperature days were set across the country in 1980. Dallas had a stretch of uninterrupted 100-degree weather from June 23 to Aug. 3. The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration estimated that the heat wave - which, of course, could be repeated in 1981 - caused $20 billion in property damage and more than 1,200 deaths.

Most of the fatablies occurred among the elderly and the poor who couldn't afford air conditioning. The body temperatures of some of these heat-wave victims reached 106 degrees.

Many of them simply had not recognized the symptoms and taken the necessary precautions.

Heavy sweating isn't the only warning that the human body is being affected by the broiling sun and the summer heat. Other indicators are sudden and extreme fatigue, insomnia, a high pulse rate, labored breathing, flushed skin, muscle spasms, nausea and fainting.

Unfortunately, physiological responses slow down with age. The sensation of feeling hot (or cold) becomes less acute. The University of Texas Health Science Center in Dallas reports that people over age 60 suffer 60 percent to 70 percent of all heatstrokes - and 80 percent of all heatstroke deaths. This problem is exacerbated by fear of crime.Many elderly people are afraid to leave their homes. They keep their windows closed tightly, sometimes nailing them shut to keep out intruders. The hot sun and the heat fill their homes, and they become heatstroke statistics.

These are a few hints to fight off the While Sun Bank handles in excess of $5 million annually in foreign exchange transactions for foreign visitors, this figure is expected to double or triple once they learn they can bring local currency to Central Florida and receive fair exchange in U.S. dollars. Multi-lingual tellers are receiving special training on foreign currency and public relations.

Tax Workshops Offcred

Free tax workshops for new or recently established small business owners are held at the Orlando Internal Revenue Service office in Orlando at Room 398, Federal Building, 80 N. Hughey Ave., on the first and third Thursday of each month from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information cell 422-2550.

Electrical Training Course

The Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida is sponsoring a five-week pre-apprenticeship training course in the electrical trade from June 22-July 24. The program is a combination of classroom instruction and practical application with trainees receiving job placement assistance upon successful completion of the 200-hour course.

Applicants must be 18 years of age, a high school or GED graduate, in good health with own transportation and a desire for a career in the trade Interested individuals may apply at Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida, 626 N. Lake Formesa Drive, Orlando.

Eckerd Earnings Increase

CLEARWATER, Fla. - Jack Eckerd Corp. said today it achieved record operating results for the third quarter and the nine-month period ended May 2.

Sales for the quarter were $437.8 million, up 16.2 percent over sales of $376.7 million last year. Net earnings for the quarter were $18.9 million, up 17.6 percent over last year's $16.1 million. Earnings per share were 79 cents versus 68 cents, an increase of 16.2 percent. These earnings were calculated on the LJFO inventory accounting method.

Contest For Datsun Owners

More than two million Datsun owners nationwide are being urged to "Team Up With Datsun" this summer in a unique consumer direct mail and dealer parts and service program launched by Nissan U.S.A.

This is the first time a consumer merchandising and dealer promotion have been combined in a single campaign.

Former and current Datsun owners will be able to enter the sweepstakes and win a new 280-ZX Turbo or 210 Hatchback from Baird-Ray Datsun in Fern Park. "Instant" prizes include racing jackets and 'Team Up With Datsun" T-shirts.

Owners of 1968-1979 Datsuns will be notified by mail about the contest as well as receive coupons good for reduced prices on tune-ups, oil changes and brake jobs.

State Economy Climbs

Florida's economy climbged for the seventh straight month in February, according to the Florida Trendline, a composite business index prepared by Florida Trend magazine.

The Trendline, adjusted for seasonal and inflationary swings, was up 1.0 percent in February from January and 4.3 percent from the year before. Latest figures were released in the magazine's June Issue.

Florida Trend reported that services, real estate and manufacturing improved most rapidly during February, with strong gains in utilities and com-munications. Trade and construction were down modestly.

Davis Citrus Chairman

LAKELAND, Fla. - Joe L. Davis Sr., of Wauchula, is the new chairman of the Florida Citrus Commission, succeeding Arlen N. Jumper of Ocala, who held the position the past two years.

Davis, unanimously elected here June 3, by the other members of the Commission, is a grower member of the body representing Citrus District Six. Jumper is the grower representative from Citrus District Three. Elected again to the position of vice chairman was David O.Hamrick of Bradenton, an at-large growerhandler (processor) member.

And Showing Its Age

Interstate System 25 Years Old

Interstate highway system, marking its 25th birthday this July, has grown to nearly 40,000 miles in every state but Alaska since 1956.

But Interstate highways, after giving work to thousands, boosting the business of interstate commerce and making the three-day weekend vacation a reality, are in for some tough times.

Interstate pavement is crumbling. Insterstate bridges are deteriorating at a rapid rate. Heavy traffic volumes are causing unprecedented congestion. And the total system, first expected to be completed by 1969, won't be finished until the end of the decade, according to the latest federal estimates.

"There's no doubt the system built

And almost half of the Interstate travel in urban areas is conducted in bumper-to-bumper, congested "Not only is the system heavily used but it's simply getting old as well. Many stretches of early Interstates have passed their original design life expectancies. By the end of the 1980's nearly the entire wear and tear is one reason the system will be well beyond the normal life of a highway," Knight

Maintaining the system wasn't centage of "good"-rated pavement talked about much when the building slipped from 74 to 63 percent. Nearly started. Federal construction dollars poured out to states who are now in some stage of disrepair, accepted them after putting up only 10 percent of the total cost.

Now that maintenance is the priority, many states can't afford it. Federal repair dollars come only after a state provides 25 percent of the repair tab, a ratio many states say is too high.

Meanwhile, state transportation officials are left to do what they can in trying to keep the system operating.

Pennsylvania officials recently covered a stretch of Interstate 90 with gravel to fill growing potholes and help amouth the ride for motorists until repaying money was

Change Needed In Produce Transport

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. - "Florida produce transportation must evolve towards a more energy efficient and lower priced system for the Florida produce industry to remain competitive in the marketplace."

That is the overriding conclusion of a research report sponsored by Commissioner of Agriculture Doyle Conner under the Service Through Application of Research (STAR) Grants Program. Principal investigator of the transportation problem was Dr. Gary Long of the University of Florida Transportation Research Center.

In order to make the transportation of fresh vegetables and fruits to Eastern and Canadian market centers more efficient so as to retain a competitive advantage over produce originating in the West, the report heavily favors adoption of a rail-truck combination — the piggyback system.

The 275-page report examines the state of the system which moves perishable fruits and vegetables to market, dissects problems which tend to interfere with the orderly working of the system and comments on strategies to improve the system. Generally, it finds that the exempt trucking industry, which hauls 99 percent of Florida's fresh produce to market, has served the produce industry well. However, problems which were minor in the past now have become "major threats because they result in inefficiencies in fuel conservation and higher than necessary freight rates," the report says. The fact that Florida production seasonally coincides with national production and transportation needs often results in a shortage of trucks to transport fresh vegetables and fruit with a resulting loss of product, the study finds. Because trucks captured practical. 7 all the produce-hauling business while fuel prices were low, the railroads serving Florida lack refrigerated equipment to ease the shortages. The report notes that "competitive producing areas in the West are moving to more energy-efficient and less costly bimodal transportation systems. Unless Florida growers find similarly efficient modes of transportation, they are in danger of losing their longstanding competitive advantage in most of the major markets." The "bimodal" system refers to a combination of two systems - in this instance, rail and truck, or "piggyback" with the loaded produce trailer hauled long distances by rail, taken off a flatcar and pulled by a tractor to its destination. The "piggyback" method, the report suggests, is the most rational alternative to trucking as it combines the efficiencies of the long-haul rail movement with the flexibility of collection points at the journey's end. Another hybrid mode of transporting fresh produce called a road-railer, equipped with flanged wheels for railroads as well as highway wheels, is still undergoing testing.

of mixed cargo in Florida and delivery

The report includes a number of suggestions which would require government intervention; however, it noted that imposition of new regulations is contrary to current government policy, which is to de-regulate. The produce industry can effect some changes to remove certain inequities, such as paying the trucker for out-of-pocket expenses involved in loading and unloading, adjustment of truck rates to compensate truckers for multiple stops and waiting time, and adoption of standard package and pallet dimensions.

The report also calls for establishment of a grower information system so that production can be anticipated by area and time-span, a freight information system so truckers can find cargo more easily and smooth out the surpluses and shortages of trucks, and shuttling of commodities among markets so that truckers picking up mixed loads would not need to visit more than one loading point to secure the desired

Recommendations which would require governmental action would be to eliminate gate fees and loading charges at state farmers' markets, and impose the road users' tax on a graduated scale by the load. The road user tax based on weight would compensate the state for damage to the highway in proportion to the increased weight of the load, the report says.

Governmental actions are recommended, the report says, to "provide the catalyst" for development of and transition to more energy efficient and less costly transportation system for the produce industry.

Space Center Sets Record

For the fourth month Kennedy Space Center Tours has broken attendance records, reports H.B. Cham-bers, vice president and general manager, TWA Services, Inc., operators of the Kennedy Space Center Visitors Program.

April was 24.2 percent ahead of last year, with 158,951 taking the bus tour. Over 198,688 came to the Visitors

Chambers pointed out the record was broken set in 1979, even though the Visitors Center was closed two days due to the launch of Space Shuttle Columbia.

"This is the best January, February, March and April we have ever had," stated Chambers. Over $27,000 have been to the Kennedy Space Center Visitors Center so far this year.

The Kennedy Space Center Tours operates every day except certain manned launch days and Christmas Day. The Visitors Center, with a two-hour involvement time, is free.

Curseaholics Anonymous.. Ban Public Profanity

Paul White Jr. has a cure for cursing. He wants to make public profanity a felony.

White, 22, the founder of Curseaholics Anonymous, said Tuesday that Congress should pass a law banning public use of swear words. He estimates Americans utter 1 billion curse words daily, or more than 700,000

"Chronic curseaholics swear on impulse and cannot hold a conversation without cursing," said White, a salesman for a computerized automobile sales service. He defined curseaholics as "persons who normally swear out of thin air for no apparent reason."

"Once this organization gathers enough support, you will find us picketing the streets, the highways and a lot of state capitals," he said.

"We will constantly be getting aignatures on petitions and working toward the day when we can go to Washington and urge Congress to make it a felony to swear in public," he said.

Royal Snowdon Job

Buckingham Palace admitted today that Prince Charles stood on a box to tower over Lady Diana Spencer during photographs for the official wedding postage stamp, but loyally insisted he is really taller than she.

A palace spokesman explained that the Earl of Snowdon, who took the photo, had the problem of leaving a space in the upper right hand corner for the traditional silhouette of Queen Elizabeth, which goes on all stamps, and the price.

He solved it by having Charles stand on a box with Lady Diana resting her head on his chest. The queen's silhouette was placed directly opposite Charles' head, a symbolic reminder that he is heir to the throne.

The spokesman took the occasion to claim Prince Charles is 5-foot-11, 1 inch taller than his bride-to-be, and doesn't have to stand on a box in real life. The implication was that Lady Diana only looks taller when she wears heels, although she has mostly worn flat shoes since the engagement,

What Price Supports

The scene was London's biggest and grandest art auction house, but that wasn't Gainsborough's "The Blue Boy" that was going under the hammer, Instead It was Marilyn Monroe's pink mesh 36-D bra. The bra was snapped up for $1,040 at Sotheby Parke Bernet by an anonymous American bidder.

The entire transaction took only 40 seconds. It was probably a record price for auctioned underwear. Back in 1978 stripper Gypsy Rose Lee's mink G-string went to an anonymous London banker who phoned in a bid to New York's Plaza Art Gallery for $500. And that Gstring sported a mink head, complete with glass eyes, surrounded by mink tails. A belly dancer bought a gold sequinned G-string at the same auction for $400.

Penned Writers

Emily Harris has won a prize for writing about her adventures with then-fugitive Patricia Hearst, Mrs. Harris and her husband, William, were convicted of kidnapping, armed robbery and car theft after their Los Angeles spree with Miss Hearst.

The award comes from PEN, an international writers' association that hands out annual writing awards to inmates in U.S. prisons. Actorwriter-director Ossie Davis and ex-priest and political activist Daniel Berrigan will hand out PEN's Writing Awards for Prisoners tomorrow, Mrs. Harris's "On the Open Road," recalling how she and her husband were nabbed by the FBI in San Francisco after their travels with Miss Hearst, won third prize in the nonfliction category.

Ringo's Response

Former Beatle Ringo Starr isn't one to take "palimony" lying down. Apparently he's prepared to stand up and fight all the way to the California Supreme Court. Ringo, who recently married actress Barbara Bach, is being sued by his former live-in girlfriend, Nancy Andrews, for $5 million.

He went to Los Angeles Superior Court to say that Ms. Andrew's attorney, Marvin Mitchelson, had not served him properly. The court ruled he was properly served, and now Mitchelson says he understands Starr will appeal all the way to California's top court.

Her press release states that "Dorit Stevens is an exciting new face in town who can be as sultry as Sophia Loren, as sexy as Marilyn Monroe, and as brooding as Liv Ullmann."

Some Hollywood insiders say she's "the hottest and fastest rising new actress to hit the entertainment acene." Dorit may be all these things, but the big trick in Hollywood is to get noticed, to get past the receptionist and see the casting director. Dorit's publicity people erected a large billboard on Hollywood's Sunset Strip that shows the leggy, scantily-clad Dorit with her manager and a phone number.

Did it work? Dorit is now scheduled to star in a television sitcom pilot called "Some Comple."

Valedictorian Twins

The only difference between the Bye twins is that Kerri wants to be an attorney and Kathy wants to

The blande 17-year-old students finished their senior year with identical 4.0 grade averages. They officially graduated from high school Wednesday sharing valedictory honors. "I wouldn't have wanted it if it was just me," said Kathy, "We did it together. A couple of times I almost got a "B" and Kerri felt like at was her almost getting a "B" too,"

Added Kerry, "I sometimes felt sorry for our friends who had to study alone, I can't imagine studying without someone else there."

"A let of twins hate each other," said Kathy. "They don't appreciate what they have. I doubt that they can accomplish as much as they would if they worked

The identical twins say Kerri wants to be a lawyer and Kathy wants to marry one, but both girls plan to continue their college education together at UCLA, majoring in political science. "We have the same likes and interests and look for the same things in a school, so why go to different colleges just to separate?" asks Kerri.

Survivor Tells Of 'Human Guinea Pig' Experiment

DOMEST CONTROL OF THE PROPERTY OF THE RESERVE OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY

NOTASULGA, Ala. (UPI) — There was a confused and slightly embarassed smile on Charlie Pollard's face when he posed shirtless with seven other black men in a 1936 photo-

Today, a smile still comes easy to the 75-year-old retired farmer. But he's still unsure why he and 622 other black men were used as human guinea pigs in a government sponcored study on untreated syphilis.

Pollard, who lives with his wife in a small but neat brick house in rural east Alabama, likes to show visitors the faded photograph of himself and seven buddies who participated in the study.

And he's kept the "certificate of appreciation" he received from the U.S. Public Health Service.

"I'm not bitter," says the soft-spoken Pollard. "I just think they should have told me about it. They should have told me something."

Pollard is one of the few men who participated in the Tuskegee Syphilis Experiment who is still living.

One of the last chapters in the experiment may be closed soon when a federal judge decides whether to extend the sixyear nationwide search for the last seven men who may share in a $9 million settlement of the case.

The deadline has been extended numerous times since the settlement was reached in 1979

Connie Stevens is ready to make a comeback. "I've been out on the road for so long that the producers don't think of me anymore," she says. 'But I'm trying to jog their memories."

Connie's Comeback

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) - Picture Hollywood as a place where all the available actors are lined up, waiting for their time in the spotlight. And if one of the actors has to leave for any reason he loses his place in line and has to go to the end

Certainly, that's an over-simplification, but there's truth in it. And, says Connie Stevens, she has lost her place in line. Connie was, for a time, on her way to stardom. Warner Brothers, for whom she did the TV series, "Hawaiian Eye," had her under contract and alipped her into several movies, none of which were very good.

Still, she sang and danced and was certainly as goodlooking as a woman can be. So everybody figured she was going to make the world forget Monroe and Mansfield and Harlow and those other ladies.

She had her place in the line, and there were only a few ahead of her. But then she left and did Las Vegas and Lake Tahoe and all those other watering holes. She made a fortune, she says, but she was almost totally away from Hollywood for a decade.

"And I lost my place in line," she says. But now she has come back, and she's begun to elbow her way up, because she looks as gorgeous as ever and, she says, she is a better performer than she ever was. "I've been out on the road," she says, "for so long that the producers don't think of me any more. But I'm trying to jog their memories." She wants to come back, settle in, stay home more so her two daughters - Jolie is 13 and Tricia is 12 - can go to the fine -rivate school to which they were recently admitted.

Until now, the girls have always traveled with their mother, getting local tutors wherever they stopped. And the girls loved the life, and, apparently, thrived on it. When Jolie was four, she learned how to call for room service - pretzels and Fresca was her first order.

But they are fast approaching high school and Connie realizes they need something more than room service, nightclubs and tutors. They need the good old everyday life of girls and boys and dates and proms and education. She says she recently realized, for the first time, that her daughters are different from her, "I was thinking about their school," she says, "and I realized that they will be going to a school now with mostly affluent people's daughters. Until now, they were in a Catholic girls' school, and there was a cross-section of girls, but here they will all be affluent kids. "And it made me ralise that my daughters are rich kids. I was always a poor girl, and it gave me a start to realize that my daughters are rich."

They are Eddie Fisher's children, of course. And, Connie says, Fisher is not very visible in the girls' lives. She recognizes that he has his problems, and she says that the times he does spend with them are wonderful ones.

"Those times," she says, "are joys to them. He is their hero. And I like him very much, too. There is no bitterness between us at all." Jolie and Tricia are, then, half-eisters to Carrie and Todd Fisher, Eddie's children with Debbie Reynolds. They are good friends, although separated by 10 years. Connie herself has several other irons in the fire, besides the ones she has already mastered — music and acting. She has become a writer. She has written the treatment for a western — "War Shaman" — which is being considered as a mini-series.

And she has written other things, and she is continuing to

She might start while she's waiting in line.

The government agreed to settlement after the NAACP charged in a $1.8 billion suit in 1973 that federal and state agencies induced blacks to join the experiment in 1932 with offers of free medical treatment, food, rides, cash payments of $25 and cheap burials.

About 400 men were deliberately given no treatment to cure their disease even after penicillin was discovered as a cure in the 1950s. At least 28 died from the experiment, which was discontinued in 1972 after it was made public.

While medical journals made frequent mention of the study and its results over the years, there was no public outcry against it until it was revealed through news reports.

Pollard, who has a seventh grade education, still remembers the early morning trips to the nearby Shiloh School where he thought he was being treated for "bad blood" with shots, white pills and green liquid medicine.

"They told us we had to take some blood tests," he recalls. "Then they started putting some of the men out after the tests." "They didn't say what it was for and we never did ask any questions."

During the first couple of years, Pollard said he was treated weekly. Afterwards it was quarterly and then annually,

"We had to come in and take those shots. You couldn't eat anything before we took them. I'd always vomit when I got

"I'd have this feeling to come over me like you could smell the blood. Sometimes I'd have as many as three needles in my arm." Herman Shaw, 79, who now lives in Tallahassee, says he recalls the nurse or doctor would draw blood for tests, pat him on the back and say, "You're going to live to be 100." There were no whites in the experiment, said Pollard, because "I was told they'd get the best results from black men." Pollard's portion of the out-of-court settlement was $32,550. but he says participants weren't adequately compensated. "It wasn't enough," he says. "I always told them I thought we should have gotten at least $100,000,"

Pollard, who tends about a dozen cows on 80 acres of land, paid $8,000 for a new car, gave his wife $10,000, paid off a few debts and put the rest in the bank.

The task of locating participants in the experiment or their heirs fell to Tuskegee lawyer Fred Gray, a former state legislator who received more than $1 million in legal fees in the Gray says it's generally conceded the experiment provided no useful medical benefits.

"As far as making any contribution to the medical profession and learning anything they didn't already know, I would not think any good came out of it," he said.

Throw out the pitching records. Toss away the batting averages. Kiwanis didn't need either to win the second half championship in the Sanford Junior League.

With Kiwanis leading 3-1 Friday and batting in the bottom of the second inning, Knights of Columbus catcher Lee Frederick was ejected while disputing a call by the home plate umpire and Knights of Columbus had to forfeit because it didn't have a substitute.

"I'm not interested in Gerry Cooney," Holmes snorted Friday night after hammering 'Neon Leon' Spinks into submission at 2:34 of the third round of their World Boxing Council heavyweight championship fight. Del Williams, one of Spinks' three trainers, told Dale Williams to throw in the towel while Holmes was pounding lefts and rights into Spinks' face and body virtually unmolested.

The towel didn't stop the fight, I did," referee Richard Steele said of his decision to award the fight to the 31-yearold Easton, Pa., resident. Holmes has now won all 38 of his pro fights, 28 by knockout

The next stop for Holmes could be a multimillion-dollar payday with Cooney, provided the No. 1-ranked WBC contender defeats WBA heavyweight champion Mike Weaver when they fight later this Promoter Don King, who said in his hype for the Holmes-Spinks bout he had 117 million "reserved for Cooney," renewed his drive to bring the two top beavyweight names together by offering Cooney $5 million to fight Holmes.

"I signed a contract (to fight Cooney) months ago," Holmes said. "I'm not interested in Gerry Cooney - until he

"If he shows up now," Holmes said in the middle of a post-fight monologue,

"Gerry Cooney is a deformed kid with a left arm," Holmes said. "Cooney never fought anyone. He's a white hope. If he was black he'd be a nobody. You know it, I know it. We all know it.

"I say, get the man to sign a contract," Holmes said, "then I'll talk about him." Holmes, who entered his 10th title defense already angry at Spinks for an incident involving Holmes' wife last November, was livid in his corner following a nearly 30-second exchange with the challenger after the secondround bell. Early in the third and final round of the nationally televised fight, it appeared Spinks stepped into a solid Holmes right hand. He acted like he'd run into a hotel room door. At full speed

From that point on the fight was over. It just took a while for the previously

A flurry of left-right combinations to the head and body sank Spinks to the canvas for a count of nine. He rose staggering and bleeding from the face.

Michael Spinks, Leon's brother and a top-ranked light heavyweight, screamed and tried to climb into the ring to get the fight stopped but was restrained by the boxer's handlers. Spinks then lost the race between

The baseball strike - which took effect before Friday's scheduled 13 games will keep players off the diamond at least until early next week because the parties will not be called back to the bargaining table until Monday or Tuesday.

"I'll just go and pull my golf clubs out," she said.

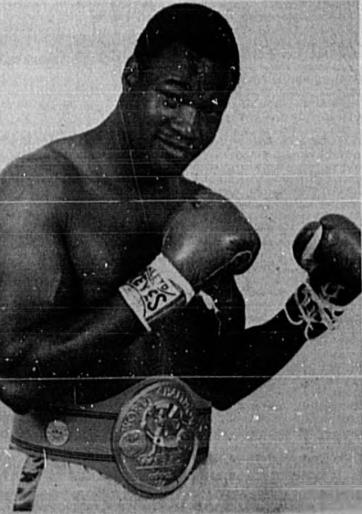

Last February, in accordance with the guidelines of the Basic Agreement ironed out in May, 1980, owners unilaterally imposed their own compensation clause in which a team losing a ranking free agent could select one of the signing club's top players. The signing team could 'protect" from 15 to 18 players in its organization, depending on the "quality" of the free agent.

but the players said this system would restrict the movement of free agents because teams would be less likely to sign marginal players if they were forced to give up their 16th or 19th best player as compensation. The players have proposed a "pool" concept in which every team drafting a free agent would designate as many as four players from its 40-man spring training roster for a compensation pool. The team losing a free agent then would be able to select a player from that pool. Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the owners - noise of whom have personally attended the latest round of talks - said the players' walkout is ill-advised.

Hagler Plans Painful Night For Antuofermo

"There will be no love lost in this fight with Antuofermo," said WBA-WBC middleweight boxing champion Marvin Hagler shortly before leaving for his Provincetown, Ma. training camp to get ready for his title defense against former middleweight titleholder Vito Antuofermo, "Although I'm going to destroy him, at the same time I'm giving him the opportunity to fight for the championship. I hope he appreciates it," crowed the champ.

The scheduled 15-round slugfest will be shown live on Home Box Office SATURDAY, JUNE 13 (9:00-11:00 pm, EDT) from the Boston Garden.

The two combatants have met before. Their roles were reversed then with Antuofermo as champion. On Nov. 30, 1979 thay fought to a draw. Many who saw the fight thought Hagler came out the winner and got a raw deal on the decision. Now the boxing pendulum has swung in the other direction and Hagler finds himself defending the crown Antuofermo once wore. It was Britain's Alan Minter who snatched the title from Antuofermo which paved the way for Hagler to put away Minter in three rounds with a knockout punch in London's Wembley Arena on Sept. 27; 1360.

"There will be no draw this time," the champ affirmed. "It will be very clear that I have won and painfully abvious to Hagler's comments on the fight came just after he had returned from a fourround exhibition fight in Bermuda. The bout was a benefit for the "Year Of The Handicapped" (the same cause for which Muhammad Ali boxed in an exhibition match in 1966).

Hagler, (51-2-2; 42 KOs), won the WBA-WBC middleweight championship from Britain's Alan Minter with a thirdround KO punch in London's Wembley Arena on Sept. 27, 1980. It was Minter who had taken the crown away from Antuofermo.

Hagler and Antuofermo met only once before, when Antuofermo was champ, fighting to a draw on Nov. 30, 1979 in Las Vegas. There were those who saw the fight and felt that Hagler was robbed of a win and the middleweight Antuofermo, (47-5-2; 20 KOs), was last in the ring against Mauricio Aldana in Chicago on April 3 of this year, winning in 10 rounds. Just five months before that fight, Antuofermo underwent facial surgery to shave down parts of a bone called the supraorbital ridge above his eyes. Throughout his boxing career Antuofermo had been plagued by constant cuts and heavy bleeding in the area around his eyes which impaired his sight.

Prior to the Aldana bout, he lost a rematch with Minter for the middleweight crown on June 28, 1980 in Vito Antuofermo, a former title holder, battled Marvin Hagler to a draw in their last clash in 1979.

Steinbrenner Miffed At Miller Miss Of Bargaining Session negotiator, for I believe I can respect and Mets, and George Foster, Bill Bonham and canceled.

UPI Sports Editor DETROIT (UPI) - George Steinbrenner has shown unusual talent for motivating his New York Yankees with an occasional verbal blast and perhaps he's hoping to get the baseball strike talks rolling by using the same technique His criticism Friday of Marvin Maler ranked among the most severe ever levelled at the executive director of the Players Steinbrenner, speaking from Chicago, said Miller had acted improperly in staying away.

"I've always been one owner who has praised and admired Marvin Miller and his great ability as a representative and admire an adversary like him," said the Vankee owner.

"But as a baseball owner who is totally interested in getting the game back together for the sake of the fans, I have to ask myself, 'What the hell is going on when I am told that the chief negotiator for the players is not concerned enough to be present at a key started. They are the real people involved and negotiating session with the owners and the federal mediator?""

Don Fehr and Peter Rose, the Players session with 10 players - Don Sutton, Joe Niekro and Bob Knepper, Houston; Bob

Paul Moskau, Cincinnati. Ray Grebey represented the owners.

Fehr, in explaining Miller's absence from the session, said: "Marvin Miller said he would not attend because he said the strike already had begun. The players are here to represent themselves because the strike has we feel they are capable of representing themselves."

Steinbrenner did not argue with that. But Association attorneys, attended Friday's the Yankee owner, who heads the American Shipbuilding Co. of Cleveland and Tampa, felt Miller should have been present at what Rusty Staub and John Stearns, New York regularly scheduled games actually were the players."

"It reminds me of a ship captain who has guided his ship across the ocean and just at the crucial time when the ship is approaching New York harbor and the strategic docking must take place, he turns over command of the ship to the crew," said Steinbrenner.

"It is inconceivable to me - and I feel I can speak from experience since in the past 20 years I have probably negotiated more labor contracts with more different unions than anyone else in baseball, including Marvin Miller — that the man who heads the players union chooses to absent himself from meetings at this crucial juncture with the silly Boone, Philadelphia; Phil Niekro, Atlanta; turned out to be the final session before statement that he's leaving it in the hands of

This symbol of American independence, her Liberty Bell, was cast in London and was rung for the first time upon the occasion of the first reading of the Declaration of Independence. Inscribed prophetically on the huge iron bell are these words:

"Proclaim Liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof."

50th Class Reunion

By DORES DIETRICH OURSELVES Editor

Henry H. Witte Jr. of Lake Mary, seems typical of a fellow who always has a good time-the "for he's a jolly good fellow" type.

And Friday, June 5 was no different for Henry and his Seminole High School classmates of 1931 who gathered at the Holiday Inn, Marina Isle, Sanford, for a golden celebration-the 50th SHS class reunion.

Henry, who was chairman of the event said, "Everybody including myself never had so much fun during the two hours before dinner. I never had so much fun IN MY LIFE!" He added, "You never saw so much gabbing, hugging and kissing in all your life."

Take 65 people, including 42 class members who have not seen each other for many years, and a lot of nostalgia can be stirred up. Memories. Oh, those wonderful memories of yesteryear.

The committee called a tie for two classmates who traveled the greatest distance: Ethel Gates Truex, Middletown, N.Y., and Ruth Martin Symonds, William-

"The longest continuous marriage" award also ended in a tie between Eurice Horton and Frances Lossing Wilson. Nellie Fryer of Sanford captured the title as the "alumnus with the greatest number of lineal grandchildren and great grandchildren."

The senior class president in 1931 was Jane Leroy Clayton of Sydney, Ohio. Mrs. Mae Fort, a favorite teacher who taught the class science in 1931, also attended the reunion feativities.

Table decorations were under the direction of Gertrude Vining Woods and Donald Anderson.

Adaptive Aquatics: Swimming For The Handicapped

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY Herald Staff Writer

From pre-schoolers to seniors and every age in between Red Cross swimming instructor Marion Eggers takes the awkward non-awimmer and creates aquatic grace and know-how in just a matter of weeks.

"Not only do I teach my students to swim, they learn what to do in case of emergencies," Marion said. "Water safety is very

Not unlike other swim instruction classes that have been developed, Mrs. Eggers caters to people of all sizes and

But a new concept has been developed for the handicapped called adaptive aquatics. "I guess it started back when public achools began on a large scale to push education and social acceptance for handicapped children," she said. "This mainstreaming started to create an awareness in the general population that a person's defect should be acrepted...that a handleapped person is not incapable of learning."

The instruction, then, becomes adaptive. Swimming is a kind of therapy for these students, Marion says. It's good for muscle toning and emotional stress.

Specially handicapped students often have more than one disability to contend with, but Mrs. Eggers says if there is some degree of mobility, she can teach the person to swim. "I'm certified in instructor training. And that means I teach the swim instructors to teach. So my years in the instructing field have helped me develop this adaptive concept." "I've taught the blind, the deaf, victims of cerebral palsy, Down's Syndrome, paraplegics, amputees, and just about everybody you can name," Marion said.

"The whole idea is that everyone can learn how to swim. Instruction must be tailored and adapted to meet the individual's needs."

"Many heart patients over the years have been in my water therapy sessions. It's good exercise without too much exer-"The same is true with empherema victims," she says. "The breathing gets better as the lungs become stronger." For seniors, swimming is ideal therapy, not only physically, but water relaxes stress for senior swimmers. "The bones are brittle at this stage of life. Swimming keeps the muscles vitally active. Besides getting a chance to enjoy the children, seniors get to commune with each other. Swim class is good social therapy more than anything," Marion Parents get involved with the adaptive aquatics program too! The official Red Cross card isn't issued to the student marking course completion unless the mother has gone through the basic water safety class.

"All students ages five and up learn mouth-to-mouth resustation," Mrs. Eggers says. "It's the most important part of learning to swirn.

"Many of the homes have swimming pools and moma don't generally worry because the neighborhood children are able to swim to some degree. But anything can happen, she said. Knowing what to do in case of emergency or accident can mean the difference in saving a life."

Besides working with individuals who are handicapped, idaptive squatics focuses a lot of its attention on the children n the pre-school years.

eveloped enough intellectually to know that the water can be ir more dangerous than it is fun, she says. "Just because they are drown-proof doesn't really mean rry much. Learning the proper techniques in swimming can salify the child to handle emergency situations in the water hen he gets to be a little older. More than anything else adaptive aquatics encompasses a eative variety of techniques in the total learning process. For instance, deaf children cannot respond to voice com-

Oh, To Be 100 Again

Dietrich

OURSELVES

"Oh, to be 100 again," might be some of the thoughts of Mrs. Priscilla Hodges of Chuluota, who celebrated her 104th birthday on June 6.

The festivities took place at Lakeview Nursing Center where Mrs. Hodges has been a resident for the past few

The honoree was honored by members of her family and her Sunday School class of the First Baptist Church of Chuluota. A sing-along was the order of the day when all gathered around the piano and sang Mrs. Hodges' favorite hymns. She sang right along, not missing a word.

Cake and ice cream were served. Mrs. Hodges was all dressed up in finery and jewelry and wore a white corsage, compliments of Lakeview.

Affectionally called Aunt Cilla, Mrs. Hodges was born in Chuluota and was away for a brief time only. She was married to the late Issac Hodges.

The couple had no children, but their nieces and nephews in the area include; Mrs. Margie Tillis, Sanford; Mrs. Evelyn Fore, Chuluota; Mrs. Verlie Hamil, Chuluota, Mrs. Hazel Webb, Jackonville; W.O. Jacobs, West Palm Beach; and O.M. Jacobs, Orlando.

Mrs. Hodges was a housewife and a devoted church worker. She taught a jurior Sunday school class for 25 years. A spokesman said about the 104-year-old Priscilla Hodges,

"She is always sweet, pleasant and always singing."

Congratulations are in order to Mr. and Mrs. H.W. Goodspeed who celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on June Harlow W. Goodspeed moved to Milton, Fla. in 1920 from Ohio. He met the former Alice Alday of Donalsonville, Ga., and they were married on June 11, 1921, in Pensacola. They moved to Sanford in July of that year.

Mr. Goodspeed retired in 1965 from the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. Mrs. Goodspeed worked at Ro-Jay in Sanford for

The couple have one daughter, Mrs. H. Wight Kirtley, who has just recently moved from Miami back to the area where her husband is pastor of the Community United Methodist Church, Casselberry.

On their 50th wedding anniversary, the Rev. and Mrs. Kirtley entertained her parents at a lavish celebration at the Sanford Woman's Club. About 400 friends and relatives attended the Sunday open house.

The Goodspeeds, who are members of the First United Methodist Church, Sanford, have four grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Debbie Griner Robinson depends on The Herald to keep up with what's going home in her hometown. But Debbie is in Torrejon, Spain, where her husband, First Lt. Dennis Robinson is stationed at Torrejon Air Base. They have lived there for six months.

Debbie will celebrate her 26th birthday Monday away from family and friends. Her mother, Wylene Griner said, "We miss celebrating this birthday with her."

But Debbie's family and friends want her to know they are thinking of her-on her big day.

Ruth Hall Bryant, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Virgil Bryant, received a B.A. degree from Southwestern At Memphis, during the college's commencement on June 5.

Robin Elizabeth Shafer received a B.A. degree in political science and international relations from Newcomb College of Tulane University during spring commencement ceremonies.

Anna Nichol's, daughter of Mrs. M.G. Nichols of Lake Monroe, has been named to the Dean's List at Shorter College,

Rome, Ga., for the second semester of the 1980-81 season. iams Earns Doctorate

Congratulations to Gregory Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie (Jeannette)

Gregory recently received his Juris Doctorate degree from Southern University, Baton Rouge, La.

The Williams motored to the graduation along with other family members, Mrs. Carolyn Graham, Derrick and Elaine Crumity, Mrs. Betty Robinson, Coppelia, Robyn and Michael Robinson.

MRS. ROY ALLAN JACKSON

Lesa Cook, R.A. Jackson Repeat Vows

Lesa Gayle Cook and Roy Allan Jackson were married June 13, at 10:30 a.m., at the First Presbyterian Church, Sanford. The Rev. Dr. Virgil Bryant performed the double ring ceremony

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Cook, 114 E. Airport Blvd., Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. and Mrs. Howard P. Jackson Jr., Birmingham, Ala.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a white Qiana gown fashinged along the empire silhouette. The lace yoke extended into cap sleeves. The controlled skirt gently swept into a chapel train.

A Juliet lace cap secured her fingertip lace-edged veil of illusion. She carried a cascade of white roses, miniature carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath showed with

Lee Hart of Huntsville, Ala., attended the bride as maid of honor. Shari Brodle of Longwood, was the matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Cindi Horton, Key West, and Katy Nesmith, Winter Park.

They were identical gowns of Emerald green Qiana styled with gathered shoulders and draped necklines. Each carried a nosegay of white spider mums, yellow miniature carnations and baby's breath.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Groomsmen were: Rodney Cook, brother of the bride, Sanford; and Edward Jackson and Jerry Jackson, brothers of the bridegroom, Birmingham. The reception was held at the Sanora Club, Sanford.

Following a Caribbean cruise, the newlyweds will make their home in Birmingham where the bride is a school teacher and the bridegroom is employed by Westinghouse

Victory For Conservatives

Southern Baptists Re-Elect Smith

Bailey Smith, an Oklahoma minister who set off a furor by saying God does not hear the prayers of Jews, was re-elected president of the Southern Baptist Church - the country's largest Protestant denomination.

Smith's decisive victory in Tuesday's election was viewed as a "lead us back into the mainstream triumph for the conservative faction within the 13.4 million-member church

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - The Rev. tending the three-day convention gave Smith 60 percent of the vote over Dr. Abner McCall, chancellor of Baylor University, who had been nominated by more moderate leaders of the denomination.

> McCall was nominated by his supporters as "a latter-day Lincoln who could unify this union" and of Baptist life." His supporters worried about what they see an an attempt by ultraconservatives who want to make belief in literal translation of the Bible a test of faith.

Smith, 42, of Del City, Okla, set off a storm of controversy during a Dallas political rally last year when he remarked, "God Almighty does not hear the prayer of a Jew." He has since apologized and entered into a program with the Anti-Defamation League aimed at fostering understanding between the

had enough publicity."

In his speech Tuesday, Smith denied that Baptists are in danger of splitting over whether the Bible can ever be in error. And he said he did not see McCall's challenge as an indication of disunity.

"Let's quit telling the world what we don't like about each other," Smith said. "Let's tell what we like about Jesus."

Southern Baptists generally have been content with the 1963 Baptist Faith and message statement as a backover and discuss that. That has summary of beliefs. Smith may have reassured moderates in his' address when he added:

"I don't think we can improve on our statement, which expresses adequately the Bible is truth without mixture of error."

Fundamentalist Baptists have argued that the original manuscripts of the Bible are without error, but moderates have said that reaffirming that is a misleading criterion for faithfulness since the books of the Bible are only available

Methodists Welcome New Associate Minister

The Rev. Richard S. Vitolo of Fort Lauderdale will assume his duties as new associate pastor of First United Methodist Church of Sanford this Sunday. The congregation will welcome him with a reception in Fellowship Hall hosted by the United Methodist Women at 12:15 p.m., following the morning service. The Rev. Leo King, senior pastor of the church, will be welcomed back for his ninth year in Sanford.

A recent graduate of Asbury Theological Seminary, Wilmore, Ky., with a Master of Divinity Degree, Vitolo has a Bachelor of Science Degree from Florida Southern College in Lakeland. He will give special attention to Youth and Young Adult work and will assist the senior pastor. He is single, and has had a variety of ministerial experiences. He has served as a hospital chaplain, a chemist, and hospital lab technician. He has organized coffee-houses and vacation Rible schools.

Old Gospel Songs Still Favorites

Whenever I want to do myself a favor (as long as everybody is out of the house), I open up the player plane and put on a roll of some old-time religious favorite and sing out to my heart's

I learned to love the old-time revival meeting songs like "Let the Lower Lights be Burning" or "Will the Circle be Unbroken" when I was a boy. Whenever we visited relatives or they came to our house, towards the end of the evening my father would sit down at the piano and start singing "Juanita" or "My Old Kentucky Home."

Everybody else would begin to gather 'round. The ladies would sing the melody. Uncle Ben sang whiskey tenor and those of us who couldn't carry a tune pretended we were Pretty soon somebody would break into "Bringing in the Sheaves" or "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder" and we would be off on a whole host of Gospel songs. The evening would always end up with, "God Be With You Till We Meet

My favorite pastime at a party or gathering today is to sing the old-time songs. Singing for me can be more of a religious experience than going through a ritual or hearing a sermon. I am drawn to those churches which sing Gospel songs rather than to those whose theological position may be closer to my way of thinking, but whose singing leaves me cold.

I have often said that if I am ever "born again," it will be as a result of listening to George Beverly Shea sing rather than of listening to some evangelist preach.

I am not alone in my tastes in music. A poll on the best-loved hymns today shows the top five to be: "How Great Thou Art," 'Old Rugged Cross," "Amazing Grace," "What A Friend We Have in Jesus" and "In the Garden."

A proposed new Lutheran hymnal raised the ire of many Lutherans because the committee in charge of the hymnal announced it planned to drop 35 old, familiar hymns. Meanwhile, a survey conducted by the Lutheran Church in America

Saints And Sinners

revealed that the two hymns receiving the largest number of votes by Lutheran congregations for inclusion in the new book were "How Great Thou Art" and "Amazing Grace."

As one stunned Lutheran commented, "Take that, Johann," Sebastian Bach!

All this fusa over what hymns to include in authorized hymnals is unnecessary. The solution is to let the music prospick whatever hymna they want for the church hymnals. Then let the congregations augment this hymnal by purchasing copies of "That Old-Time Religion," a Harper & Row paperback that contains 100 of the old favorites.

The answer, in other words, is two hymnals in every pew. Many of the most popular Gospel songs are in the Harper book along with some you may have never heard of - like 'Wicked Polly" and "Down in the Licensed Saloon."

"Wicked Polly" is supposed to be the true story of a girl from Kingston, R.1., who lived a frivolous life and died at an early age, "Down in the Licensed Saloon" is also known as, "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?"

You, of course, know where he was - "learning new vices all the night long, tempted to all that's sinful and wrong, listening to the harlot's foul song, down in the licensed saloon." I don't imagine many congregations will choose to sing of Wicked Polly or the Wandering Boy - but I've sung some worse songs in some churches,

BRIGHT NEW WINGS

The Youth Choir of Edenton Street United Methodist Church of Raleigh, N.C. will present concerts in Sanford on Monday at 7:30 p.m. at First United Methodist Church, 419 Park Ave., and Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at First Baptist Church, 519 Park Ave. The 44-voice choir will sing Buryl Red's arrangement of "Bright New Wings." Dean Barley from Sanford, Edenton Street youth director, will bring the group here. The concerts are open to the public.

SEMINARY GRADUATE

Jacqueline Thompson, daughter of Mrs. George Thompson, 105 Pine Lake Drive, Sanford, received the master of divinity degree from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., in the seminary's 147th commencement June 5. Miss Thompson holds a previous degree from University of Central Florida.

Livin' Ain't All That Easy

I'm appalled by the amount of strain just plain living today puts on some people. Some tolks can stand the strain of life, but an awful lot of others can't. All along the road of life there is the litter of the wrecks of human life. The routine of living is just too much for some. Some go down in youth; others in middle life and others in old age. It is sad but true that many people falter, fail, and fall.

Why? We can be reasonably sure that the amount of strain one person receives is not particularly different from another, even though it is quite human to think so. Generally, all of us are put to the same tests and temptations from the outside. Face two people with the same stumbling blocks, and one will let it stop him; divert him and turn him back; the other will find some way to overcome it. He will find some way to keep on keeping on. The difference seems to be, not what comes to a person from the outside, but what's on the inside.

A character out of fiction once said: "There ain't nothin' that walks that can lick us O'Haras: Not hard times, not high taxes nor even downright starvation. But we can be licked from the inside. What the world can't do, our own hearts can. That weakness that's in our hearts can lick us in the time it takes to bat your eye. Everybody's mainspring is different. Folks whose mainsprings are busted are better dead."

That's all very well, but what about the mainspring of your life? Surely it "ain't easy" getting from one end of a day to the other. But many have found that if the daybegins with the Lord and if it is given to Him. It stays in His hands and ends up the same place. When the grace of God gets a chance, and keeps on getting a chance of getting into your heart, nothing can weaken your inner life no matter what the outward circumstances may be.

Father's Day Program

The Greater St. Joseph AME Church, Sparr, will hold its annual Father's Day program, June 21, at 11 a.m. with the guest speaker the Rev. Abner Jackson Sr. of Sanford. At 3 p.m., the guest speaker will be Brother Roland V. Williams, vice-chairman of the Seminole County School Board, Music will be rendered by The Sanford Male Chorus. The Rev. Theima S. Young of Sanford is pastor.
