Married in Jacksonville

A marriage in which a very cordial interest is felt is that of Mrs. Inez Savage Hill and Mr. Ernest Krupp, which occurred in Jacksonville at high noon Wednesday, at the home of the bride's parents in Springfield, Rev. M. B. Clonts officiating. The bride was attired in a handsome coat-suit of navy blue cloth and wore a chic hat of black velvet and ostrich tip. Mr. and Mrs. Krupp left immediately for Savannah from which place they will sail for New York, visiting Niagara Falls and other points of interest before returning to Jacksonville. Mr. and Mrs. Krupp are well known in Sanford and have many friends here who wish for them much happiness.

Joy Ride

Mrs. John T. Brady chaperoned a happy party of young people to the Wekiva Bridge Tuesday night. Going out in machines in the early evening, the young people enjoyed the picnic supper at the bridge and returned by moonlight. Those in the party were Misses Ruth McDaniel, Agnes Bothamly, Virginia Brady, Elizabeth Stafford, Dick Brown, G. W. Spencer, Jr., Edward Betts and Reginald Holly.

House Dance

Miss Margaret Wight was the charming young hostess at a small informal house dance Wednesday evening. Present were Mrs. Allen Jones, Miss Renie Murrell, Messrs. Tracy McCuller, Roy Chittenden and Mr. Younts.

Sunrise Launch Ride

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Brady have originated a new departure in boating parties that bids fair to become most popular. Wednesday morning at four thirty, with their guests Mr. and Mrs. George Fox and Miss Eva Martin, they left the dock for three enchanting hours on the lake and river, in Mr. Brady's racer, and returned at seven thirty with an appetite that added a keen enjoyment to the breakfast repast.

Straw Ride

Wednesday evening a gay party of girls and boys, chaperoned by Mrs. John T. Brady enjoyed a delightful straw ride to the hospitable home of Mrs. Walter Hand, where they were the guests of Miss Helen Hand. The air of gracious hospitality that pervades this charming home and the cordial welcome of its inmates always insures a happy time beneath its roof and this occasion was no exception to the rule. Those enjoying Miss Helen's hospitality were Mrs. Brady, Misses Frances Chappell, Clarice Hand, Virginia Brady, Ruth McDaniel, Agnes Bothamly, Elizabeth Stafford, Alice Caldwell, Ruth Hand; Alfred Robson, G. W. Spencer, Jr., Fred Wight, Robert Cobb, Reginald Holly, Edward Betts and Oliver Murrell.

Missionary Social

Mrs. Ray Butts was hostess to the Missionary Society of the Methodist church Thursday afternoon and a very delightful time was enjoyed by those present. The decorations were simple, cut flowers and ferns being used effectively.

In the flower guessing game, Mrs. Charlie Brown, for the penalty of winning, was made to read "Extracts from sick folks and flowers" and paid the penalty in a very delightful rendition of the reading.

Twenty guests were invited to enjoy Mrs. Butts' hospitality and the delicious refreshments served. Mrs. N. O. Thomson assisted in serving.

Book Circle Entertained

The members of the Book Circle and a few friends were delightfully entertained by Mrs. A. W. Fitts Thursday afternoon. Owing to the absence of many of the members the summer meetings have been very informal but most enjoyable. Mrs. Fitts is a gracious hostess, whose special affairs are always enjoyed by her guests. Present were Mesdames J. W. Dickins, Cruse Barnes, A. P. Connelly, R. C. Maxwell, D. L. Thrasher, C. R. Walker, R. A. Newman and John Bennett.

Children's Party

Vergie Horne Hyman was hostess at a jolly party last Thursday afternoon in honor of her sixth birthday. Pink and white decorations made a lovely background for the happy faces of the little ones as they joined in merry games. Delicious refreshments were served, consisting of ice cream, cake and candies. Many pretty birthday gifts attested the popularity of the little hostess. As night drew on the guests departed reluctantly, each wishing that every day was Vergie Horne's birthday.

Where Reform Must Begin.
The adult's habits, opinions and ideals are fixed; eternal truths may be shot at him or thrust into him, but he "holds the same opinion still." But the child's mind is plastic. The impressions it receives it will retain, and if they are economically sound, it will grow into an adult with altruistic principles holding due prominence. So we must start with the child in the home, the child in the street, the child in the school. This is where reform must begin.

ALLIES STANDING FIRM BEFORE PARIS

PRES. WILSON WILL REMAIN CANNOT LEAVE IMPORTANT BUSINESS FOR SPEAKING TOUR

Washington, Sept. 8.—President Wilson today announced he would not make a speaking tour during the coming campaign. He declared his intention of "staying on the job," because of the "unlooked for international situation."

The President made known his intentions in a letter to Representative Doremus of Michigan, Chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee, who had written him asking whether he would make a speaking campaign this fall. The correspondence was made public at the White House today.

"America is greater than any party," the President wrote.

"America cannot properly be served by any man who for a moment measures his interest against her advantage. The time has come for great things. These are days as big for the destiny of the United States as for the other nations of the world. A little wisdom, a little courage, a little self-forgetful devotion may under God turn that destiny this way or that. Great hearts, great natures will respond. Even little men will rejoice to be stimulated and guided and set an heroic example. Parties will fare well enough without nursing, if the men who lead them forget themselves to serve a cause, and set a great people forward on the path of liberty and peace."

Despite his determination to make no speeches, "Mr. Wilson will take occasion as opportunity offers to state and perhaps re-state to the country in the clearest and most convincing terms "I can command the things which the Democratic party has attempted to do."

The President asked that Congress "remain to do their work of necessary and pressing service and bring it to a successful conclusion." He said, however, that he saw nothing to keep Congress in session after the emergency work was finished.

Must Register Again

There having been some confusion as to the interpretation of the Bryan primary law, some explanations may be in order which may relieve many from the embarrassment of losing their vote through ignorance of the provisions of the new enactment relative to registration of voters. Under the Bryan primary act registrations of people who never voted in the state, and former voters here, are separated and there is a great distinction between the two.

For instance a man who registered for the last primary and whose name is not on the general registration books will have to register now in order to participate in the general election in November.

The primary registration under the Bryan act, in other words, has nothing whatsoever to do with the registration that is now going on the registration that is now going on for the November election.

It is very necessary that those who wish and intend to vote in November appear at the court house and register for said election.

RUSSIANS STILL DRIVING BACK

THE AUSTRIANS IN GALICIA

SENATORIAL SITUATION THERE WILL BE MANY CONTESTANTS FOR THE BIG PLUM

Washington, Sept. 8.—Not since the early days of the Wilson administration, where there were many large and important patronage jobs at stake, has there been anything here of so much interest to the members of the Florida delegation in Congress as the probability of Senator N. P. Bryan being appointed to the judgeship of the Fifth circuit, caused by the death of Judge D. D. Shelby.

Not only are the Floridians taking a deep interest in the situation but other members also are backing their various candidates, all of which makes something well worth watching.

It is believed here that if Gov. Park Trammell and former Gov. A. W. Gilchrist both get into the fight, provided Senator Bryan lands, and C. A. Carson and Congressman Sparkman also throw their hats into the ring, to say nothing of several other candidates who are reported as being desirous of coming to the senate, the race will equal in many respects that recently pulled off when Senator Fletcher was re-elected.

So many rumors have been current here about his running that today Congressman Frank Clark was asked the direct question of whether he would endeavor to come to the senate should Senator Bryan be pointed to the bench, to which he replied: "While it is true that I have received many letters and telegrams from strong friends all over the state asking me to enter the senatorial race and pledging support I think the time inadvisable to make any positive announcement in the matter. There is no vacancy yet, and (Continued On Page 5)

DEMOCRATS MAKE GOOD

ADMINISTRATION HAS MADE AMERICA LAND OF THE FREE

Bar Harbor, Me., Sept. 8.—Declaring that President Wilson and the Democratic Congress had kept all platform promises, Secretary of the Navy Daniels, in a campaign speech here tonight, added that the President had set America free to legislate without fear.

"Greater than the tariff law itself, greater than the currency law itself, greater than all the needed constructive legislation of the record making administration," says Mr. Daniels, "looms up this fact: That the people may legislate without any longer fearing that our business is going to be checked or our prosperity destroyed. The right to enact such laws as they conceive is best for them at last has been restored to them."

"Under Wilson, the ideals of Jefferson's first inaugural have been realized. Business no longer struggles government; privilege no longer holds it up on the highway and rifles its pockets."

Mr. Daniels took up legislative measures successfully urged by the administration and said: "Privilege has mobilized its lobby against them with the rapidity of the European corps. The propaganda of fear," he said, "was worked to the limit."

"Certainly whatever else can be said," declared Mr. Daniels, "no body can say that either the President or Congress has drawn down upon themselves that anathema 'the Almighty hates a quitter.' On the very night the President signed the tariff bill he said, 'we have only taken one step,' and summoned the Congress to go forward with the next step—the currency legislation. He did not pause a day or even think of quitting and that has been the record in every step of administrative policy since the fourth of March, 1913."

ALLIES CLAIM VICTORIES ALL ALONG THE LINE GERMANS RETIRING ON RIGHT FLANK

Washington Aug. 8—2 p. m. Report here that general engagement all along the lines of the allies and the Germans near the Paris borders. Official despatches contain no news other than that the Germans are making a wide circle from the Marne to the Seine and below it and above Paris while the third army corps was ordered to the left bank of the rivers. The Germans have destroyed the Belgian town of Dinat near Namur and Belgians are putting up a brave fight to keep the Germans out of Antwerp.

The engagements now in progress will decide the fate of Paris and may decide the fate of the armies of the allied forces.

Washington, Tuesday, 10 a. m.—Oscar Straus came here last night to confer with Bryan and the German Ambassador. It is believed that negotiations for peace are being continued. Germany considering France beaten, England and Russia receptive.

Paris, Tuesday, 10 a. m.—Fourth day of continuous fighting along hundred forty miles indicates allies success.

Petrograd, Tuesday, 10 a. m.—Galicia officially announced Austrian retreat continues, with enormous losses.

Paris, Tuesday, 10 a. m.—In the fighting which is going on today to the east and northeast of Paris, the German forces have their backs toward the capital. French troops are harassing their march. From time to time the Germans turn and engage the French at their back.

French shells fall continually in the German rear. Observers consider that it is obvious that the Germans could not attack Paris while the French armies were intact, and are continuing their wide turning movement under perilous circumstances.

Paris, France, Tuesday, 10 a. m.—It is estimated unofficially that nearly 1,000,000 troops are engaged in the fighting which is proceeding in the east of Paris today.

The German forces have fallen back before the offensive tactics of the allies on the line from Manteuil-Le-Haudouin to Verdun, the most interesting report contained in a despatch to the London Evening News from Boulogne, in which the French commander General Pau, is given as authority for the statement that the allies have won a victory at Proy-Sur-Oise, in which the Imperial Guard, under the Crown Prince of Germany, is alleged to have been annihilated by a British force.

OVERLAND DAY AT THE RACES

SANFORD OVERLANDS CLEANED UP THE THE BUNCH AT DAYTONA BEACH YESTERDAY

THEY WON FIVE OUT OF SIX RACES AND ALSO WON SIX CUPS OUT OF EIGHT OFFERED

Yesterday was an Overland day at the beach races, as the Overlands from Sanford cleaned them up, winning five out of six races and six out of eight cups.

Sanford was well represented in the races, there being Billy Hill with his Overland, Osborne Herndon with an Overland, Hal Wight's American and Frank Milteer's Buick. Wight and Milteer had trouble in the start off and did not get the money but Hill and Herndon wipe the rest of the bunch off the map.

The Hill car driven by Staten Fields won the five mile race in 4:28. The same car driven by Billy Hill won the ten and twenty mile races, the ten being made in 11:20. This car which is an ordinary runabout and had never been overhauled for racing purposes won four silver cups and Billy is being congratulated on all sides for allowing his car to be abused in this manner just to keep aloft the reputation of Sanford.

Osborne Herndon also covered himself with glory in his racing Overland and the rest of the field was so afraid of him that he was placed out of his class to start and won the races by superior work. O. M. Spicer drove his car in the first five mile race, winning easily. Osborne won the ten mile race and would have been the winner in the twenty mile event, but had the misfortune to suffer an accident to the machine at the very start, being ahead of the field when the accident to the machinery happened, putting the car out of the race.

The races were pulled off in fine shape and in the real racing events no accidents happened, but during the morning trials on the beach three cars came together in a peculiar accident and the drivers were hurt.

The cars were a Bradentown National, a Bradentown Buick and an Orlando E. M. F.

Watren, the driver of one of the Bradentown cars was seriously injured, but the later reports indicate that he will recover. The mechanics were injured but not seriously. The cars were a total wreck. It is not known just how the three cars became entangled but the wreck was a bad one and it is a miracle that more of the occupants of the big racers were not injured.

The Sanford contingent at the beach were most enthusiastic over the outcome of the races and have arrived home feeling that the old town was covered with glory in the many events.

There was one of the largest crowds at the beach that has ever been there and the people of Daytona, Daytona Beach and Seabreeze were there with the hospitality and the visitors were treated royally.

Warren Died This Morning

Will Warren, the young Bradentown man who was injured in the preliminary run on the beach yesterday morning, in which three cars collided, died at the Daytona hospital. Young Warren was a millionaire sportsman and had an aeroplane at the beach in which he expected to make several flights. His untimely end has cast a shadow over the otherwise perfect day at the beach.

GROWERS OF FLORIDA WILL INSIST ON F. O. B. MARKET

Last week a very important meeting was held in Ocala between the representatives of the Southern Express Company and the various transportation lines of this section.

The meeting was called by the Marion county board of trade, and its motive was to try to perfect a plan by which produce could be sent to the markets without having to deal with the commission men, who make it easier for the growers to sell their stuff but pocket an unduly large share of the profits.

In attendance on the meeting were representatives of the Southern express Company, the Atlantic Coast Line, the Seaboard, some other roads the transportation agent of the Jacksonville board of trade, and fifty or more leading shippers of the territory contiguous to Ocala, and a representative of the Florida Growers and Shippers League. J. M. Moffert of Ocala presided over the meeting, and J. D. Rooney acted as secretary.

The better part of the day was given to hearing the experiences of the shippers, all of whom are sore at the result of their work as returned to them by the commission men. One prominent grower told how he received only $116 for a $2,200 crop, and some told how their shipments had not even paid expenses.

That part of the state has been a good thing for the commission men for the last dozen years. They have made business good for the hotels but they have not paid the farmers in proportion, and not a few of them or their houses, have been more shameless pirates than Capt. (Continued On Page 5)

FLORIDA THE HAY STATE

NATAL GRASS PROVES A FINE SOUTHERN STOCK FOOD

Mr. W. T. Jamison, agent of the Southern Express Company was yesterday showing his friends a fine bale of Lake county hay, and the story he tells in connection with it is very interesting, as well as illustrative of the great agricultural possibilities of Florida.

The hay is natal grass and is some of the finest seen here of any kind. Mr. Jamison says it was grown on some of the poorest land in Florida and that two cuttings of a ton to the acre have already been made and another will be made in October. The land from which this hay came is located on a high-pine ridge, apparently of pure white sand. A good many years ago the owner planted an orange grove on it but the land was too dry or too poor for oranges and the trees all died. The field was forsaken and the natal grass took possession. The present owner recognized the possibilities of hay raising and last year scattered about two hundred pounds of fertilizer to the acre, with the result that the land is bringing him about one hundred dollars an acre from the annual hay crop.

Mr. Jamison contends that the agricultural possibilities of Florida are just beginning to be realized and that where a piece of land will not produce one crop there is always something that will grow profitably. He believes in hay and stock raising as money maker, and incidentally mentioned the fact that a Tampa wholesaler recently declared that the wholesale trade of Tampa handled fully a million dollars worth of hay annually, all shipped from other states.

Florida could easily keep this million dollars in the state and raise hay for shipment to other states by half way trying, is the contention of Mr. Jamison, who owns a good deal of land himself and is making it work for him.—Orlando Sentinel.

THEY WILL BE GOOD NOW

THE MEN WHO RAISED THE PRICE ON FOODS ARE INDICTED

Washington, Sept. 8.—Thirty one food dealers were indicted here today by a Federal grand jury under the Sherman law on counts charging price fixing. It was the first big development in the investigation the Department of Justice is conducting at the direction of President Wilson against food leaders who are alleged to have seized upon the European war as a pretext to increase the cost of living.

All the indicted men are local produce dealers or commission merchants. No nationally known firm was indicted.

At the Department of Justice it was said that Government agents working in many states for evidence of price fixing were expected to make reports soon which officials hoped would be the basis of other indictments: Attorney General Gregory said:

Insist on Jail Terms

"Under conditions now existing throughout the world, capitalization of misfortune and oppression of our own people by the arbitrary increase of the prices of foodstuffs are so peculiarly reprehensible that, whenever convictions can be obtained, the Government will insist upon sentences of imprisonment, no fine or no civil remedy will be deemed adequate. United States attorneys are being instructed promptly to ask for indictments whenever the facts will permit, to push these to an early trial and upon conviction to insist upon prison sentences."

It must, of course, be remembered that, without the District of Columbia only those agreements and commissions which affect directly interstate or foreign commerce can be reached. As to other matters, state statutes must be relied upon.

The men indicted here today are charged with having fixed prices "by ballots," "suggestions" or verbal agreement and to have circulated price list which completely eliminated a competitive market for foods that is alleged to be an unlawful restraint of trade prohibited by the Sherman anti-trust law between the states and in federal districts. The penalty on conviction is a year's imprisonment or a $5,000 fine or both.

Bench warrants were issued for all the indicted men and bail was given for their appearance in court.

The European War

Commonly called the "Great War" will be the special subject for reflection next Sunday evening at the Congregational service at 7:30. Excerpts from reports of special correspondents of a great weekly American magazine, also from Count J. H. von Bernstorff, the Imperial German Ambassador to America, giving his side of the German case. Besides some lessons for Americans in this time of crisis to consider will be drawn by the pastor. All are cordially welcomed.

BUYING FLORIDA CATTLE

Kissimmee, Sept. 8.—One of the largest cattle deals "pulled off" so some time was consummated this week when T. Price, buyer for the Armour Packing Co., received thirty three carloads of beef cattle from the leading cattle men of his vicinity. The first consignment was shipped Monday and consisted of eighteen carloads which were bled to Chicago; the remaining fifteen cars were shipped to St. Louis Tuesday.

The total consignment numbered 1,217 head and the average price received was twenty-five dollars per head. The dealers supplying the cattle were as follows: Carson Cattle Co., Leslie & Bass, Rull Bass, Ed. Whaley, Henry Bass, Henry Partin, L. M. Whitten, W. E. Smith, Ordis Bass, S. Partin and O. Bass. Mr. Price who is making Kissimmee his headquarters while looking after his firm's interests in this locality, expressed himself as confident that other large consignments would follow this unless the loss in shipping was greater than they anticipated.

FROM THE NATION'S CAPITAL

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON BY THE SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE HERALD

Washington, Sept. 3.—It was Tolstoi who promised the Armageddon, but in 1913 instead of 1914, and that out of it would come a man from the north, little known, who as a newspaper man, journalist and statesman would be the great central, dominating figure until 1925 when conditions would sweep him off the world's stage, and in the place of monarchies, principalities and powers would rise republics to welcome the birth of the twenty-first century. And who is this man that Tolstoi forecast in the now famous prophecy which the great teacher wrote for Czar Nicholas more than five years ago?

Albert of Belgium seems at this moment to fit into the prophecy like a glove upon a lady's hand, for Albert was not born to the expectation of kingship, he just "grew" into his present plans of the King of the Belgians and a mighty good king he is too.

Albert was born in 1875 and was well educated. He is a good engineer, an efficient amateur aviator, writes excellently and has been a corking good newspaper reporter in both Brussels and Antwerp. He worked at the business just as seriously as young men who don't happen to be princes, did police and happen to be princes, did police and "ship news" and, after a time, got the idea that he wanted to see the world a bit before settling down. And so he came to America, visiting New York, Washington and Chicago, and for a number of months lived in St. Paul. When he went home he wrote a "bully good" book about America, making it clear that about America, making it clear that our democratic sort of government was just about what the people needed.

Then he came to rule over the Belgians, and now he qualifies as Tolstoi's striking figure in this awful war of the nations. Perhaps others may outshine him later, but up to now he is easily the first in the world's thought.

Thirty thousand employees of one kind and another will be furloughed on October 1st, if the River and Harbor appropriation bill fails to pass. The bill fails to pass if the government exacts from those who have nothing to say as to which has the unqualified endorsement of the Corps of Engineers the U. S. Army, ninety-nine per cent of the items in the bill having been passed upon originally by this same efficient body of men who knew no politics, no favoritism, only duty to the country, the flag and the Corps to which they belong.

Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who is in charge of the River and Harbor bill in the Senate, has announced publicly that the bill will pass by October 1st, notwithstanding the obstructive tactics of Senator Burton of Ohio, aided and abetted by several other legislators from western states.

"Peace, peace and there is no peace!" On a balmy day in April of last year Congressman Richard Bartholdt of St. Louis, the most outspoken advocate of peace in either house of Congress, planted an oak tree along one of the sheltered pathways between the Capitol and the House Office building and dedicated it to the Hague tribunal and to world peace.

The tree grew apace, spreading its branches around and seeming to girdle the Capitol, looking forward toward the east. Lately, however, the leaves of this sturdy young oak have begun to turn yellow and sere, the branches have commenced to droop and now only one of its lithe young arms remains green. The tree is dying as the war rages, and there is no peace!

Washington has had an unprecedented summer in the matter of social atmosphere. Not that social affairs have continued with any formality, but those who constitute official society have remained valiant at their posts, in spite of heat and every alluring influence of seaside and mountain. This has made dinner parties, tea parties, luncheons and bridge parties possible. The argument is strong enough that, if one must dine, why dine alone? National legislation was responsible during the early summer for the detaining of Congress, now international calamities continue the delay. When Congress is detained here the diplomats for the most part feel obliged to remain. The more urgent and complicated conditions of the present have made it still more imperative for the representatives of foreign countries, European and otherwise, to remain or return to town at short intervals. Therefore, the residence districts are not dull, silent and deserted spots they usually are in summer, and the country clubs do a rushing business at the tea and dinner hours.

The war conditions are detaining in town not only the diplomats, but the higher officers of the army and navy. A peep on the roof garden of the army and navy club would make one think it was mid-season in Washington except for the weather. The Chevy Chase Club is much the same, and almost every night Ad-

Welsh and Ancient Britons.
All the histories agree that under the wars of practical extinction carried on by the invading hordes of northern Europe in Britain, only those of the ancient inhabitants escaped destruction who fled to or already lived in the mountain fastnesses of Wales. It does not appear to have suggested itself to anyone to doubt that modern Welsh is essentially the language of the ancient Britons, or that the Welsh are the descendants of those interesting people, who occupied the British Isles when they were termed the "end of the world (ultima thule)" by the old Roman writers, and were successfully invaded by Julius Caesar, B. C. 55. The Welsh were always recognized as good fighting men, as witness Fluellen in Shakespeare. Two famous regiments in the British army continue the traditions, "The Royal Welsh Fusiliers," who have been in every warlike affair of consequence in which Britain has been concerned since 1690, and "The Welsh Regiment," comprising the old Forty-first, the Sixty-ninth and the Royal Glamorgan militia.

BEEES AS WAR'S MESSENGERS

New Idea With Others Proves That Military Authorities Are Very Much on the Alert.

News that will be of interest to all army men has been received. The Hague has discovered a secret long cherished in the war department—the use of bees as messengers.

No longer will the aldo-de-camp spur his staggering horse through shot and shell to carry the message to the front. Instead, he will don his gloves and mask, and going to the portable beehive back of headquarters, seize one of the faithful little insects and send the well-trained messenger through the air.

Whoever possesses a receiving outfit can read the secrets of the wireless, one can cut the wires of the ordinary telegraph, and the pigeon does not always escape the bullet. Therefore, other means have been sought. In America the general staff dreams of using as a dispatch bearer—the bee!

The bee, like the carrier pigeon, guided by its marvelous instinct, returns to the hive from wherever he may be liberated. Any dispatches, which can be deciphered with the magnifying glass, can be attached to its breast.

But something better still has been found. By an ingenious process, the wings of the tiny insect are sensitized and by means of microscopic photography the message is imprinted thus doing away with all extra weight.

The secret is out, but all is not lost. Holland has not discovered the wonderful process by which to dispose of the flies that an up-to-date enemy would send to ruin the sensitized wings of the trained bees.

The details, of course, cannot be divulged. Suffice it to say that as soon as an enemy's firefly reaches the dark hive, where the bees are waiting to have their wings photographed, its presence is made known by the action of the metal selenium, which is sensitive to light, and the alarm is given to trained dragon flies, which speedily make away with the intruder.

TRUE FACTS ABOUT FLORIDA

FARMER WHO HAS MADE GOOD GIVES SOME REAL FACTS ABOUT THE GAME

THE MAN WHO WORKS CAN MAKE GOOD HERE

Recently the writer interviewed a native citizen of Florida with this purpose held uppermost in mind: Find out from somebody who knows general principles by which the northerner can safely be guided when he comes to Florida to engage in farming.

I sought a practical Florida farmer of forty years' experience in raising crops a man who has "made good" and whose judgment is mature. The following paragraph contains his ideas and suggestions just as they developed in our conversation.

"Tell your people," he said, "that farming in Florida has its share of work, as elsewhere. That's the first thing. Some northerners have an idea that you don't have to work here to make a success. There has been too much of this 'tickle the soil and it will laugh with harvest' advertising spread through the north. But this is true," he emphasized the "is" strongly. There is less back-breaking labor on a farm here than on a northern farm, because our soils are lighter, easier to work, and our land is more level and free from rocks."

"Do northerners, as a rule, make a success farming in Florida?" I asked.

"Yes, after they get started right," he replied. Evidently he noticed my unspoken inquiry and continued: "Some homeseekers come down here with lean purses and 'swelled heads.' They assume to know everything about farming, from their northern experience. They try to farm just as they did up north. They scorn our advice, adopt their own methods of planting and cultivation, and frequently fail to make a crop—except a crop of experience."

"The northern farmer in Florida should be an imitator, before trying to be a creator. Let him know that Florida has different soils, a different climate and different working conditions than in the north. If he will earnestly study Florida conditions and adapt his methods of farming to them, he will not put the cart before the horse as some do. This is just a word of caution. And while I am speaking of this, let me say further that it is not wise for a man to come down here with only his car fare, and expect to return the next summer in his own steam yacht, paid out of his first year's farm returns."

"Many northern settlers make the mistake of building expensive residences on their farms, when they cannot afford to tie up so much capital in that way. They might better put their money into more productive channels for a few years until they are thoroughly established. I advise caution in this particular.

"The best general advice I can give is this: Tell your readers that Florida is a good place to live, winter, spring, summer and fall. Tell them if they will work, if they will use judgment in getting acquainted with our condition; if they will first raise home necessities, before trying to feed New York city; if they will raise diversified crops instead of staking all their money on one; if, in addition to raising crops, they will raise chickens, keep a cow for milk and a few hogs for meat, they can make a success here easier than anywhere I know about in the world. In a nutshell, my advice is, provide food for the home table first, then sell the excess productions to somebody else. That's a safe rule for beginners in Florida, and those who follow it will not go far wrong."

"In a year's time they will be familiar enough with our climate, the farm soil and other matters, to branch out and go into raising crops on a larger scale. My success has been due, I believe, to my conservative methods. I have never been a plunger in my farming, and I manage to get along about as well as the average, I guess."

His farm certainly looked as if he was getting along all right. It was well fenced, and every field seemed to be in the pink of condition. The barn and nearby sheds were in good repair, and everything looked like prosperity in capital letters. I thanked him for the information he had given, and told him I proposed publishing the interview. Just before I left, he said:

"Maybe my remarks will discourage people from coming to Florida to farm. I hope not, though, for Florida needs good settlers, and she has the room for them, too. I know I'd rather live here than any place on earth, and I honestly believe Florida is the place for thousands of northern people who are struggling along up there with little hope of making more than a living."

"Then you recommend the northerners to come to Florida and live—you think a hard working level-headed man from the north can make good here, I asked.

"I certainly do," he said, "if he'll work—don't forget that."—Tippecanoe Council Fire.

KING GEORGE OF ENGLAND

his follies? She can decide if it is safe to take a chance in wedlock with the man who is open and aboveboard in all he says and does.

Few if any men have the wisdom of Solomon. Love is a corrector of follies. The good qualities of a lover should be found out, given credit. If only perfect men went to the altar nearly every girl would live and die a spinster.

NO NEED OF A WIFE.

Though cruel brief be Love's bright hour of song. Yet let him sing his full! For other hearts the echo shall prolong. When Love's own voice is still.

Whenever you hear a man say he has no need of a wife don't contradict him, but you may think as you please. Because he has a home and a father and mother anxious to gratify his every whim he thinks it will always last.

He is popular with the girls. The sweetest, most desirable welcome him warmly when he chooses to call. Bright eyes grow brighter and dimpled cheeks blush rosy at his whispered words. He thinks that's going to last, too. He finds girls soon tire of the fellows whose intentions are only to jolly them.

The man who has gone round quite a bit, always seeking fairer faces and new scenes, loses without realizing his greatest charm—the buoyancy of early manhood, so appealing to young women. He thinks the repartee which was so interesting to the dashing widow should amuse everyone else whom he meets. He dubs the girl stupid if she fails to have the widow's keen perception of the joke. He fairly lives at his club. The society of the half-fellows well-met will always be a pleasure that he can enjoy.

But, one by one, the happy-go-lucky club fellows drop out. He finds himself the last bachelor there. The men with lovely young daughters and marriageable young sisters have ceased inviting him to their homes for dinner because of his expressed views that he's not in need of a wife. He finds when the old folks leave him and gray hairs commence to thread their way among his dark locks—for old Father Time uses his scythe to some purpose, clipping him bald—and his evil genius, the gout, persists in visiting him twice a year, staying six months each time, rendering him well-near helpless, that there is a certain void in his life, a want up to that time that he never knew existed.

the need of a sympathetic companion. He knows at last there is no human being on earth so near and dear as a wife, some one to console him and help him laugh away dull care.

No man grows old so fast as the bachelor, who has frittered away his best years. He sees his comrades of other days with big, strong manly sons and loving daughters, who are frightened to death if father has a pain in his little finger. But the man who has no need of a wife all these years might have such a buzzing pain in his head that he nearly collapses and there would be no one interested save, perhaps, his niece, who, instead of asking, "How is poor uncle?" anxiously propound to each other the query, "I wonder how much he has saved up?" The man who has all his life declared that he was not in need of a wife at length is obliged to call in a nurse.

It's always the man who thinks he has no need for a wife who has the greatest need at last. If relatives could know of the ~~young man~~ of the young man of the family who was encouraged to believe he was better off without a wife, they would encourage single men who were healthy, strong, capable of taking care of a helpmeet, to wed young and have a happy home life, such as all men are entitled to enjoy.

Abolition of War.

On one occasion Mr. Mason came to Mr. Sumner's office and found him engaged in writing an address to be delivered before a peace society. After a little good-natured banter on the part of Mr. Mason and an equally good-natured defense of his views by Mr. Sumner, the former, rising to take his leave, said: "Well, Sumner, you may be right, but I should just as soon think of joining a society for the suppression of thunder and lightning as a society for the suppression of war." From Memoir of Jeremiah Mason, by G. S. Hillard.

An Aviator Saved Life.

At Berek-sur-Mer, near Boulogne, France, a few days ago, an invalid went for a drive in a little donkey cart, which stuck fast on the seashore and began to sink just as the tide was coming in. His plight was seen by an aviator, who succeeded in attracting the attention of a fisherman, who rescued the invalid.

HERBINE

For the Bowels

A Cure for Chronic Constipation, Torpid Liver and Irregular Bowel Movements.

Constipation is the most common disorder of the bowels. It affects both sexes and all ages but is more prevalent among women because their duties in the household require less physical exercise than the occupations of men; therefore women suffer most from its baneful effect. A constipated person is an easy victim when exposed to any serious disease—Pneumonia, Typhoid Fever, Malaria, Rheumatism, Small Pox, Yellow Fever and Bright's Disease gather their annual harvest of death among those who are habitually constipated. Even though they escape these diseases, such persons are always ailing more or less. They have headaches, bad digestion, dizziness, vertigo (blind staggers), sallow complexion, flatulence, loss of strength; and no energy at all. Herbine has a most admirable effect in the bowels; it is cooling, purifying and regulating. It puts a prompt check on biliousness, wind in the bowels, nervousness, heartburn, bad breath, low spirits, drowsiness in the daytime and nervous wakefulness at night.

Price 50c per Bottle.

For Weak Sight or Sore Eyes, use Stephens Eye Salve. It cures.

Laura Jean Libbey's Talks on Heart Topics

THE PRICE SHE PAYS.

They say our hands may grasp but joys destroyed. Youth has but dreams, and age an aching void. Whose dead-sea fruit, long, long ago has dried. Whose night with wild tempestuous storms a rife. And yet a little hope can brighten life.

Of course, it is the nature of young girls to wish to enjoy life. The girl who works hard all day long seems to be the most eager in her pursuit of pleasure.

Said one to the other, "Sadie, are you going out tonight?" The answer came promptly, "You must be crazy to ask such a question as that, Lida. I'd die of loneliness if I had to stay home an evening. I'm going to a dance." "I thought you went to one last night," remarked Lida. "I did, indeed!" returned the other. "As for that matter, I could go to a dance every evening in the week and stay until 3 o'clock in the morning and be here the next day."

"I couldn't do that," declared Lida. "I'd have such a headache I couldn't stand up." "I don't mind telling you I take a glass of wine between the dances if I feel real tired and it's getting awfully late," explained Sadie, lowering her voice to a whisper. "I go with a lively crowd and I can't do different from the others."

I went into the store yesterday. Sadie was not at her post. The girls behind the counter were talking in awed, low tones.

"Didn't you read about Sadie in this morning's paper?" said one to the other, adding excitedly: "It seems, she was found wandering on the street, and, oh! in such a state. They arrested her, and put her in a cell, charged as being a common drunk. Her folks sent her word she must never come there again. The manager sent her notice that she was discharged."

Every girl who reads this should beware of the lure of the dance, the midnight hour and wine. No working girl can afford to make such a demand upon her health and strength and be in a fit position to attend to the duties for which her employer is paying her. The road downhill is steep and slippery as a toboggan slide. The girl who respects herself advances. Every girl can make her own future either bright and prosperous or dark and disgraceful. When pleasure is healthful, it is recreation. Young girls are as weak as rosebuds swinging on a branch. A constant rough wind will shatter them. No girl can burn the candle at both ends and expect to prosper. "All work and no play makes Jill a dull girl." Yet if the girl who must earn her own bread does not look out for her own health and strength the price she pays will be to fall by the wayside.

TAKING A CHANCE ON HAPPINESS IN WEDLOCK.

Happy, happier far than thou. With the laurel on thy brow. Who that makes the humblest heart Lovely but to one on earth.

There are very few girls who are blessed with a model lover, a man who has no faults. From the time his visits indicate serious intentions, the family of his sweetheart begin to speculate as to what faults he may have. Love is blind, they concede, declaring among themselves that it is wisest and best to point out his shortcomings. Then she will not jump blindly into matrimony.

Her father insinuates that a man's a sponge who comes calling on a girl Sunday afternoons and remains until the dinner bell rings, accepting her invitation to dine. Company dinners are more expensive than the plain, wholesome meals the family sits down to. Mother thinks daughter has made a happy choice of a suitor, insisting that not one young man in a hundred would be so considerate of her daughter as to provide a carriage when he takes her to the theater, even if it's only a few blocks off. And he dresses with such perfect taste, and sends her flowers every evening he does not come.

"That's sheer extravagance!" cuts in Uncle Ned. "It may do for a millionaire not knowing the need of money. It isn't the proper caper for a man who earns thirty per. or so. I'd think more of his counting his pennies if he thinks of marrying."

Aunt Ellen fears he's inclined to flirt. She has seen him walking with young ladies and each one he seemed to pay marked attention to. One or two of the girls she mistrusted to be dreadful coquettes. Her brother was of the opinion that he wasn't a stranger to the wine cup. He had run across him at a bar in a cafe! A chorus of "What took you there?" he silenced by a lame excuse—he stopped to buy a package of cigarettes! The way he looked from one to the other said plainer than words that he hoped the cigarette part would be believed. By the time the family sum up the lover's faults they made it appear that the girl would take a hazardous chance on matrimony if she married him.

There are maidens who accept these insinuations as truths. Other girls demand stronger proofs of the shortcomings of the man in whom they placed faith and love. She valiantly defends the absent one. If he visits her Sunday afternoons she knows he is with no one else. The hours are all too short. Manlike, he does not stop to consider the extra preparations for one more at the table. Didn't he bring a cane for father, a sewing basket for mother, an expensive pipe for Uncle Ned, a book for Aunt Ellen and a charm for brother Tom's watch chain? The cash for these peace offerings would more than set their table for a week.

Can he turn his head the other way, pass by his women friends, if they go in the same direction without a few words of pleasant greeting? I couldn't care for a man who would show discourtesy to my sex. As for extravagance, a lover should be pardoned for indulging the whim of a girl he loves once in a while, even if it is a strain on his pocketbook. Both understand tacitly that it will be trolley cars for them after marriage. Some men have but one fault. If it does not lead to excess it can be broken up, if his love for the girl who condemns it is of sufficient strength. What can be expected from the man who opposes

OPPORTUNITY FOR SOUTH

The opening of the Panama Canal, if no other outside influence prevailed, should do much to develop the commercial industry of the south...

At present the center of the cotton manufacturing is in the New England states, an unnatural geographical location...

In Florida there are two ports of the first class peculiarly well adapted to the economical handling of this manufacturing interest...

Developing the manufacturing interests of the south means, also, the development of a nearby market for Florida's winter gardens...

DOES "BOOZE" DEBAUCH?

John C. Trice, literary and publicity agent for the organized saloon interests of Florida, and who watches every opportunity to get a word in the newspapers of the state...

Mr. Trice quotes some scripture and asks our opinion concerning certain biblical statements. For instance he asks "Did Christ debase the minds or morals of the multitude when he furnished wine for the feast?"

Our answer, most naturally is "No," but not being a theologian, the editor of the News will have to be excused from an exegesis...

PANAMA PACIFIC PLUNKERS

The Ocala Star has been allowed to gaze upon one of the pewter pocket pieces or Panama Pacific punk plunks, that the Florida Commission is trying to sell...

The contest was to have started September 1st, but up to this writing there seems to have been a lot of lead not working that would do better service melted into linotype slugs...

The Ocala Star has this to say about those pewter plunks: "The Star thinks that the gentlemen who originated this scheme should be ashamed of themselves."

The coins are of the basest metal, the design on one side is ridiculous, the workmanship is crude and the whole thing has the look of a fake.

The idea probably started from the Columbian Exposition half dollar in 1893. This was a very pretty silver coin, issued by the government and worth its face value.

"But nobody will snap up the 'Florida dollar.' It's not fit for anything but to cut up into sinkers for lines to be used in catching catfish."

PROVING THE CITY MARKET

Perhaps increasing prices of foodstuffs may give an impetus to the City Market idea in Tampa, as it has in some other cities. For four years or more the Tribune has advocated such a market for this city...

In New York this week four city markets were opened. The stalls are free to every farmer who cares to bring his produce to market and to every pushcart man who cares to compete.

Buying with the market basket on their arms was not confined to the poorer women. In fact, according to the newspapers of the city, the women who made up the bulk of the buyers were well dressed and well informed on prices they had been paying.

LARGE PEACE PLAN

The New York Peace Society is organizing for the purpose of consolidating a public sentiment in support of any offer of mediation that may become acceptable to the powers of Europe which are at war.

It is recognized that an offer of mediation at this time is premature, but the plan of the society is not only to be ready with a splendid volume of public sentiment...

Remembering the feeling of France over the loss of her provinces, which is part of the cost of the present war, the hope of the society is to have all questions settled satisfactorily to those concerned...

THE NEWSPAPER SITUATION

That the cry of hard times is no myth is shown by the many newspaper failures throughout the state. Recent suspensions to mind being the Quincy Enterprise, the Hawthorne Herald, the Mulberry Herald, Bowling Green News, Plant City Arrow and the newspaper at Dade City.

Next Friday night the Commercial Club will have another important meeting and it is to be hoped that it will be well attended by the business men especially. Every citizen of Sanford is urged to come to the meeting...

The Pensacola News states that the man to be appointed to the short term of U. S. Senator is Arthur T. Williams, because he is the man who received the message from President Wilson that Senator Fletcher was a progressive.

The decision of the Florida commissioners to the San Francisco exposition to abandon the idea of an exhibit of our fruits and other products and confine their efforts to the erection of a suitable building...

Clarence Wood says it right out in print: "Bob Holly is the bald-headed liar of Florida while Willis Powell is the tallest hairy-headed liar of the state press."

And yet Clarence Woods is thinking about going to Kentucky and making "Prohibition speeches. A change of brands sometimes is good for a Florida editor."

D. W. Clark has resigned from the editorial tripod of the Apopka News and Charlie Barnes has taken his place. Both gentlemen have something nice to say of each other from which we infer that the transfer was a peaceful one...

Victor Starbuck of Orlando discounts the assertion that no man can do two things well, for not only is Victor a good lawyer but he is already on the road to fame through his poems that are published in all the big magazines.

THE HIGHER COST OF LIVING will always remain a problem to you if you do not at some time face the issue of making ends meet with the means at hand, but the problem will be SOLVED that day when you assert yourself master of the situation and say: "I will not spend more than I earn, but I will save for tomorrow regardless of the sacrifice."

WHERE IS HELL?

BY MAJ. F. W. BARBER

Since the advent of Christ we have been taught to believe that hell is the worst punishment that can be inflicted upon an erring people.

It may be so, but the hell of Europe casts a shadow of doubt. Men whose vocation in life is the redemption of souls are warning us against the terrors of hell.

Yet our brothers across the seas are plunged into a maelstrom of destruction which puts even hell itself to shame.

The hell of biblical conception is has the true artistic talent when it comes to writing poems and we are proud to have such a bright young man in our sister county...

It seems that the inquiry into the unwarranted increase in the price of foodstuffs under the cloak of war is hurting business. Therefore stop it, we suppose.

Florida papers are fighting against an effort to graft $250,000 from the state and citizens by contribution for a state exhibit at the San Francisco fair.

The tourists are coming to Florida this winter as never before, being barred from spending their money in Europe and it is up to us to see that they have the proper accommodations.

Billy Russell of the Palatka News would make an ideal U. S. Senator in case there is one appointed for the interim of two months.

About three times a day the editor of the Herald is asked what side he favors in the present unpleasantness in Europe.

With sugar at ten cents a pound and reports that it will go to fifteen cents a pound we rise to ask where is that bunch of sugar growers who were supposed to be operating in the Everglades about five years ago.

Business has resumed its accustomed speed in New York city. Ed Lambright of the Tampa Tribune is there on a visit.

Some men are born great, some achieve greatness and some belong to the Sanford Commercial Club and attend the meetings.

The county commissioners are meeting today, despite the fact that there is war in Europe.

pictured as a place of torment, inhabited by the souls of sinners to whom the gates of heaven are closed. The hell of Europe is a furnace of destruction for the good and the bad, the innocent and the guilty, for women and children and babes of a day.

As the devil wields his fork over the denizens of the fiery pit, so do the kings and emperors of Europe wield the sword of compulsion over the heads of their subjects and force them into the jaws of an earthly hell.

The patriotic spirit which permeates every human breast has taught us to respond to the call of country, whether that call be just or not.

And this national spirit has permitted the rulers of the old world to launch a contest of blood and iron and destruction which is shaking the very world to its foundation, and which may even yet involve every civilized nation of the globe.

Have we two hells? Or has the hell of tradition been transferred from the regions of Satan to the blood soaked battlefields of Europe?

We are solemnly warned to repent of our sins or suffer the eternal torments of hell.

But what of this hell on earth? What of the mighty engines of destruction which are devastating a fair land and sweeping a once enlightened people into the presence of their Maker?

What of the changing of an area of civilization into a congested mass of struggling snarling, destroying human beings bent solely upon the annihilation of one another?

What of the tremendous explosives hurled into cities and destroying soldiers and civilians alike?

What of the terrible bombs dropped from the war hounds of the air into the midst of innocent and helpless women and children, taking the lives which God bade men to protect and cherish?

What of the explosives lurking in the bosom of the seas and periling the existence of ships loaded with non-combatants?

What of the broken and grief stricken women and young girls who must toil in the fields that men may have bread while doing their utmost to obliterate the human race?

What of the widows and orphans who must suffer through life because war has robbed them of a protector?

What of the helpless babes who are dying of starvation because armies in the field must have the milk which otherwise would mean life to the little ones?

What of the maimed who must go through life warped and twisted with pain?

What of the gaping holes in human breasts, of limbs torn from their sockets, of mangled forms which even a merciful death refuses to release from their agonies?

What of the millions of aged and infirm independents who must face starvation before this hell has run its course?

What is hell? WHERE IS HELL? Whatever it is—wherever it may be—hell is hell, but this hell of Europe is one hell of a hell.

At An Early Date

A special from Washington to the Times-Union says:

"You may say the rivers and harbors bill will be taken up in the senate immediately and that I will do all I can to pass it."

This was the optimistic statement made by Senator D. U. Fletcher of Florida when discussing the rivers and harbors bill for the present year, which has been held up in the Senate for several months.

"There is nothing of more importance to our people at the present time," than the passage of this bill and you may say with all the emphasis you wish that I shall do my best to get it through immediately.

Unless it is South American trade, there is nothing that could so much affect the business and commercial interests of the state of Florida as the passage of this bill.

The Ananias Club

Concerning that celebrated short stretch of sand-oil road at Eustis whose merits and demerits all the good roads experts in the state are now discussing, Bob Holly of the Sanford Herald says that Editor Clarence Woods of the Eustis Lake Region "now takes it to his room and wraps the bed clothes around it to keep the dew off and twice a week has it shaved by the barber and over Sunday lays it away in moth balls."

This would indicate that the road in question was not even yet acclimated and Editor Woods, as the champion of the sand-oil road theory should stand sturdily forth in defense and make a few remarks in rebuttal. Lakeland Telegram.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman, for your introductory. As we are busy this week demonstrating to one hundred visiting Floridians the virtues of the Eustis sand-oil road, we shall not consume the time of the audience longer than to say that Bob Holly is the bald-headed liar in Florida, while Willis Powell is the tallest hairy-headed liar of the state press. Eustis Lake Region.

Missionaries to Florida

One would gather from reading the following item, clipped from a Kentucky newspaper, that Florida is a wild and wicked state.

"Missions in Florida" was the topic of study at the August monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church held yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the church. Additional interest was given to the subject by the presence of Prof. Will Jones, who for many years has resided in Florida, and who, from personal observations, was able to give an instructive talk on the conditions in that state, and the work being accomplished by the missionaries.

Do we need missionaries in this state? Perhaps so in some of the wildest parts, but the railroads and the influx of settlers from other states are solving the problem.

It is odd, however, to think of Kentucky sending missionaries to Florida when this state is contributing money to maintain missionaries in Kentucky. It looks like it might be a good idea to let each state take care of its own affairs.—St. Petersburg Independent.

Washington Notes

Washington, Sept. 8.—If Senator Bryan is appointed a United States circuit judge, as now seems likely, he will give up patronage amounting to $11,380 a year which he now holds as a Senator. As a federal judge his sole patronage allowance will be $1,200 a year for a stenographer.

The persons holding places in connection with Senator Bryan's office, who stand to lose out if he is appointed a federal judge are:

W. T. Bauskett, Jacksonville, $2,500; J. L. Kelley, Marianna, $2,000; Miss Elsie Douglas, Jacksonville, $1,440; Harry Straight, $1,440; Julian Brown, Jacksonville, $1,440; Sam Fitts, Miami, $1,440; D. L. Yancy, Washington, $720; James McCobb of Sanford, Fla., is spending a few days at the national capital.

Free Trip to San Francisco The Florida Commissioners who are attempting to raise money for a Florida exhibit at the San Francisco exhibition have hit upon a novel scheme to collect the funds. A souvenir dollar has been coined the design of which is shown in the accompanying cuts. Young ladies are to sell these coins for a dollar each, and the greater part of the money received in this way will be profit. The young lady in each of the four Congressional districts who sell the largest number of these coins will be given a free trip to the exposition. For particulars all who desire to engrader, Secretary Florida Commission, Room 1308 Heard Building, Jacksonville, Florida.

We Feel the War

The Star has not been able to escape the general hardship. Yesterday the Antietam Mills, which have furnished it most of the paper it has used for the last eighteen years sent word that it could not send a consignment of paper ordered two weeks ago, and expected it every day for ten days. Neither can any be obtained from Jacksonville.

As we had on hand only paper enough for one issue of the weekly and three of the daily, we were obliged to cut the size of the editions down until we were sure of replenishing our depleted supply.

This is the reason why this week's paper is eight pages instead of twelve, and a large amount of reading matter set in small type. We hope it will not happen again, but as the days go on we find that ordinary calculations are often upset by unprecedented circumstances.—Ocala Star.

More Money for Revenue

Washington, Sept. 8.—Interest in war legislation overshadows everything else in Congress.

Administration leaders are moving cautiously, eager to submit within a few days a measure to assure $100,000,000 in additional revenue and also to avoid political pitfalls.

Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee have agreed that $75,000,000 can be procured through increased levies on beer, malt liquors, domestic wines, proprietary preparations, soft drinks and like commodities. In many other sources of internal revenue, however, leaders find themselves confronted either with economic or political objections.

The committee will resume deliberations Tuesday and endeavor to find $25,000,000 in revenue from a source of suggestions under consideration. Automobiles, amusement tickets, moving picture films, magazines and weekly publications, circulations, railroad transportation, gasoline, whiskey, and other distilled liquors, inheritance, incomes, tobacco and many other sources have been suggested.

Distilled liquors and tobacco are causing concern. Tobacco already is heavily burdened, and some of the Ways and Means Democrats insist that it will not be further considered.

Distilled liquors may be taxed slightly, though there is great opposition to this also. In any event, some party leaders assert, whiskeys will not be taxed more than fifteen cents a gallon. There is strong support in the committee for an increased income tax.

may be none, though it is quite probable that Senator Bryan will be successful. I am opposed to this advance movement towards securing a position—making a headlong rush for it—until there is a vacancy.

"Of course, under these circumstances I do not care to make any other statement than that I have the matter under advisement. Should a vacancy occur I will then most likely enter the contest, but until that contingency occurs I cannot say any more."

COMMISSION HAS CHANGED PLANS PANAMA EXPOSITION WILL HAVE SMALLER FLORIDA EXHIBIT DISPLAYED

After mature deliberations and a thorough canvas of the state the Florida Commission of the Panama Exposition have resolved upon the following:

Whereas, the members of this Commission, after a careful consideration of the matter of Florida's representation at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, in which there was given weight to the limit of time available for organizing and perfecting a complete and comprehensive exhibit of all of the products of the state, cost of collecting, preparing and establishing such exhibit and as well to the very general feeling which prevails that such an exhibit, if undertaken, should be most full and complete, are of the opinion, from their estimate of the situation that it will not be practicable to provide for such an exhibit and

Whereas, the members of this Commission have given careful study to the various phases of the project in hand and as a result of their deliberations and investigations they are of the opinion that this great Exposition in which some forty-two states of the Union and not less than thirty-seven foreign nations are to participate will afford a splendid medium for publicity in which this state with its wonderful record of commercial achievements, wealth of undeveloped resources and vast agricultural possibilities ought not to be without representation, and

Whereas, with these considerations in mind the Commission has evolved a plan which it believes will furnish creditable representation for the state and a valuable means for bringing Florida to the favorable attention of many thousands of tourists who will visit the Exposition next year, therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Commission will undertake the erection of a Florida building upon the ground already dedicated for that purpose, of such design as will do credit to the commonwealth and will provide therein such appointments as will afford a comfortable resting place and provide agreeable entertainment in the form of moving pictures representing in a comprehensive and interesting way the attractions and varied industries of the state, these pictures to be exhibited in a comfortable auditorium and to be accompanied with a well arranged lecture descriptive of the features presented on the screen. The building will also provide resting, reading and writing rooms for visitors and will contain a bureau of information where there will be available authentic information and complete statistical data covering all branches of the industrial and agricultural activities of Florida. It will be the duty of the agents in charge of this bureau of information to obtain the names and addresses of all visitors to the Florida building, together with some expression from them as to the matters in connection with this state in which they may be specially interested, and these names and this information will at the end of each week be sent to the various commercial organizations in the state. There will also be sent to the persons visiting the Florida building and whose addresses are thereby obtained an artistic, illustrated pamphlet dealing with the state as a whole and so prepared and arranged as to contain full and complete information as to what has and is being accomplished in Florida and giving some idea of her undeveloped resources. Through these agencies it is also prepared to bring to the attention of the thousands of travelers who will visit the Exposition, the attractions of Florida's numerous resorts, the value of her unequalled climate and the various conditions which contribute to make it the ideal location for winter homes and be it further

Resolved, that as a result of careful and mature consideration which has been given the proposal of having Florida represented at the Exposition it is the unanimous opinion of this Commission that the program as now outlined, if successfully carried out, will provide a means of obtaining valuable publicity for Florida and a novel method of advertising which will result greatly to her benefit and that the modified purpose of the Commission as expressed in these resolutions is one within its powers of accomplishment and well worth while and should commend itself to all citizens who have the welfare of Florida at heart and whose interest, cooperation and support we earnestly solicit.

twin Kidd. One leading shipper, and a perfectly responsible man, says he has documentary evidence that would send the representative of one house to jail if the state attorney would take it up.

The express and railroad men all show a strong disposition to cooperate with the growers, and it is believed that by the time next shipping season opens an organization will be perfected that will enable the growers to ship their stuff mostly in carload lots and market it on fair terms. This section hopes to be independent of the commission men, unless they will do as they do at Plant City, buy and pay on the spot.

They meet in Jacksonville today to perfect the organization. All the leading shippers are in attendance.

Money in Tomatoes

DeSoto county truckers need not hesitate one moment about going in good and strong on raising and shipping tomatoes, for there's good money in it. Take Sarasota, less than fifty miles away, realized $84,000 from 336 acres of 66,555 crates of tomatoes, last season. What Sarasota truckers have done DeSoto county truckers can also do.

The tomato crops is one of the most profitable crops grown in South Florida. The land never fails to bring forth plentifully, and shipments can be made at the time of year when the very best prices prevail up north. The soil in tributary to Arcadia is classed as being first class for tomatoes.

Sarasota is soon to plant celery, some 200 acres. Last year one man alone marketed 28,000 crates from thirty acres, from which he realized $1.11 per crate. Sarasota is also going strong on strawberries this year.

Arcadia truckers can make no better turn than to plant tomatoes, celery, strawberries, potatoes, beans, peas, eggplants, peppers, etc. It is certain that the price to be paid for these products this fall and winter will exceed the prices of last year.—Arcadia Enterprise.

Gordon Craig

Soldier of Fortune—By Randall Parrish

Copyright, 1912, by A. C. McClurg & Co.

SYNOPSIS

Gordon Craig is hired by two men, Vall and Neale, for $10,000 to go south and impersonate Philip Henley, ostensibly to save the estate for Henley, who, they say, is in prison. Craig is to take with him a woman to impersonate Mrs. Henley.

Suspected of burglary, Craig is cleared by a young woman wandering in the street. She is out of work and hungry. They talk in a restaurant.

She is an actress, deserted by her wealthy, drunken husband. She consents to go south with Craig.

Mrs. Bernard is a good woman and will play the part of Mrs. Henley to help Craig. They arrive at the rundown Henley plantation and are greeted by a rough looking overseer.

Coomba, the overseer, and a mysterious negro, Baline, seem to be the only persons on the plantation. Craig is awakened by a shot and finds a man murdered.

Broussard, a crook friend of Coomba, appears. Probing the murder, Craig finds the corpse missing. Mrs. Bernard tells Mrs. Henley she and Craig determine to fight for her missing husband's estate. She believes Henley dead.

Coomba denies Henley is dead and denies Craig, although the latter reveals Mrs. Henley's identity to the overseer. The latter says Henley himself put him in charge of the plantation.

Mrs. Henley and Craig find Philip Henley's seal ring in the garden. Exploring the house alone, Craig finds a secret basement room.

He is trapped and discovers two dead bodies. One is the missing corpse, and the other is Coomba. Craig is struck down and is made prisoner by a dark young man, another named Herman and Broussard. Mrs. Henley is also aboard.

Craig and the woman are taken aboard a yacht, which sells. The owner and master, the dark young man, calls himself Philip Henley. He tries to win Craig, and the latter feigns friendship for him in order to help the woman.

Mrs. Henley denies the man is her husband. She is locked up in a stateroom, and "Henley" produces papers which seemingly support his claim. Craig pretends to join in his filibustering expedition.

Craig plans to escape with Mrs. Henley in a small boat and provisions it secretly. Going to summon her, he finds her cabin unoccupied, but in good order.

"Henley" forces his attentions on Mrs. Henley, and Craig saves her, making the captain a prisoner in his own cabin. "Henley" man has orders from him not to disturb him. Craig lunches with Broussard.

The crooks, angry with "Henley," tell Craig that "Henley" is Philip Henley's half brother, son of Baline, and that Philip is dead. The half bred is trying to seize the estate. Craig prepares to leave the yacht.

At night Craig and Mrs. Henley embark in the small boat, taking to the gulf of Mexico. They decide Vall and Neale were two crooks trying to grab the Henley estate.

Masters must have struck me at almost the same instant my fist landed on Henley, for we went down together, his revolver discharging, the flying bullet gouging my left shoulder, burning the flesh like a red-hot wire. Yet I grappled him even as we crashed to the deck, but the fellow lay stunned, motionless as a dead man. Everything happened quicker than I can tell it; with such rapidity, indeed, that not a hand touched me. I could barely struggle up on one knee, dazed still by the stroke which had felled me, and glance about. When the bluejackets came tumbling over the rail and tumbled at the astounded crew of the Sea Gull. It was a swift, short fight, the assailants having every advantage. I saw the lieutenant, bare handed, dash into the group, striking out left and right, his men at his heels. There was a volley of oaths, a flood of falling bodies, a sharp command and the shrill pipe of a boatswain's whistle. Two men rushed forward, the first disappearing behind the chart house. The second encountered Broussard stepping off the bridge ladder and hurled the fellow to the deck with one blow of a sledge hammer flat. Scarcely pausing to see whether he was alive or not, the assailant ran on toward the forecastle.

The whole affair was over in two minutes, the bluejackets circling out like a fan and pressing their enemy into a helpless mass against the rail. For a moment the fight was furious, every man for himself; then the lieutenant drove like a wedge into the bunch, and it was all over. "On to the bridge there, Coates, and hold up her head," sang out the officer. "Boatswain, take charge of these beauties and run them into the forecastle. Leave two men on guard and take a squint into the engine room. Report to me here."

He glanced toward me. "Say, what is the matter with you—shot? You're white as a sheet of paper, man."

"I got one on the head with a belaying pin from the heft of it. The bullet touched me—here. Lord, how it burns!"

"Who did the shooting?"

"Henley here." And I touched the fellow with my foot. "He fired just as I hit him."

"So that's the man?" he exclaimed. "We've done a good day's work."

Henley stirred as he spoke and opened his eyes, staring up into my face.

"I read it lastly and in silence handed it to her, watching her face as she read. It was a local item describing the finding of a dead body which could not be identified. The details of the man's appearance as well as the clothes worn were carefully depicted, evidently in hope some one might thus recognize the party. She remained with the bit of paper in her hands for what seemed a long while, while we waited. Then her eyes were slowly lifted to our faces.

"That was Philip Henley," she said soberly.

"Your husband, madam?" asked the lieutenant as I remained silent.

"Yes; legally my husband, although he had driven me from him by disaffection and neglect. I—I cannot tell you the wretched story now."

"Nor do I ask it," he hastened to assure her. "What is it, Madam?"

A bluejacket stood at the foot of the stairs, one hand lifted in salute.

"The Saline, sir, is alongside and halting us. The boatswain sent me, sir."

We followed the two on deck, and after one glance about I led her around the bulge of the cabin to the narrow deck space astern. The boat in which we had escaped had been hoisted into its davits, and we halted in its shadow. I could perceive the whiteness of the Saline's deck and the and then at the lieutenant's uniform. The sight of the latter perplexed him. "Who are you?" he asked angrily, making an effort to rise. "Where is Broussard?"

"Henley," I said, stepping in between them, "the game is up, and the best thing you can do now is to keep quiet. This gentleman is Lieutenant Hutton of the revenue cutter Saline; and his men have the crew of the Sea Gull under hatches forward. Give me back those papers."

He had the envelope still clasped in his left hand, and he glanced at it dully and then beyond me toward Hutton. Apparently his brain, yet numbed by the blow, failed to entirely comprehend. The lieutenant, however, was a man of action. With grip on his collar he jerked the wretch to his feet and held him there.

"Hand over those papers to Craig," he ordered shortly, "and be lively about it. I haven't anything to do with that affair, and I don't think you will have much more from now on. You are my prisoner, and you are good for a ten spot at least. Stand up, you coward." He forced him back against the rail and glanced about the deck. The boatswain was coming aft.

"Well, Sloan, how did you find things?"

"All serene, sir; the whole crew bottled up and mighty little fight left to them."

"The engine room?"

"The engineer was a bit ugly, sir, and had to be manhandled proper. He's 'ad in a coal bunker with a sore head, cussin' blue. But the assistant is a young fellow an' kin run the engines. I left him to charge with a couple of lads lookin' after him."

"Who has the wheel?"

"Bomers, sir."

"All right. Have steam kept up, and make the course south southeast. Here, take this man along also. He's the captain, but no better than the rest."

Henley stared back, with some crazy hope of resistance, but the great flat of the boatwain gripped his collar.

"Come on, you," he said, jerking him savagely. "Yer bloody pirate, unke another crack an' I'll lead yer one in to that Henley, sir?" of the lieutenant.

"Yes; ever hear of him?"

"Have I? Aye, many the time. He's wanted in Galveston, sir, for somethin' worse than runnin' arms—it was a knifin' job, sir."

"What became of the girl?"

"The steward took her below and locked her in before the fracas started. We went down the companion stairs together into a deserted cabin. No steward was in evidence, and, finding the captain's stateroom locked, the lieutenant kicked open the door and entered. I turned back, explored the passage and finally dragged Louis out from a dark corner of the pantry."

"Oh, Lor', Maha Craig," he whined. "Ah ain't done nuthin', deed Ah ain't, sah."

"You locked up the girl?"

"Ah just had to, sah. Captain Henley be just nat'rally skiln me alive, sah, if Ah don't. But Ah nebber hurt her nuffin'."

"Where is she?"

"In No. 5, sah; here—here am de key."

"All right, Louis, and I tossed him into one corner. "Now, listen; set that table and get some food on it quick. Make coffee, but don't wait for anything else."

"Yes, sah."

I crossed the cabin and inserted the key. As the door opened she stood there waiting, her hands held out.

"It—it is all over with? You have been successful?"

"Yes, don't worry," and I held her hands fast, looking into her eyes. "There can be no further trouble. Captain Henley and his crew are prisoners. The lieutenant is in Henley's cabin, going through the papers. He wants to have a full report ready when the Saline comes up. The three of us will breakfast together."

"You must permit me to wash the wound on your head first," she insisted. "The hair is all matted with blood. Please."

She ministered to me with womanly gentleness, parting the matted hair and cleansing the wound with water. While in no way serious it was an ugly bruise and required considerable attention. Sitting there on a stool while she worked, I could hear Louis bustling about in the cabin, but my mind was busy with a thousand matters requiring settlement. At last I refused to be ministered to any longer. As we entered the cabin the lieutenant stood in Henley's door.

"I was looking for you, Craig," he said, coming forward and bowing to my companion. "Here is a newspaper clipping which may be of interest. I found it on the deck."

I read it lastly and in silence handed it to her, watching her face as she read. It was a local item describing the finding of a dead body which could not be identified. The details of the man's appearance as well as the clothes worn were carefully depicted, evidently in hope some one might thus recognize the party. She remained with the bit of paper in her hands for what seemed a long while, while we waited. Then her eyes were slowly lifted to our faces.

"That was Philip Henley," she said soberly.

"Your husband, madam?" asked the lieutenant as I remained silent.

"Yes; legally my husband, although he had driven me from him by disaffection and neglect. I—I cannot tell you the wretched story now."

"Nor do I ask it," he hastened to assure her. "What is it, Madam?"

A bluejacket stood at the foot of the stairs, one hand lifted in salute.

"The Saline, sir, is alongside and halting us. The boatswain sent me, sir."

We followed the two on deck, and after one glance about I led her around the bulge of the cabin to the narrow deck space astern. The boat in which we had escaped had been hoisted into its davits, and we halted in its shadow. I could perceive the whiteness of the Saline's deck and the group of officers on the bridge. The captain, facing us, hollowed his hands. "What have you to report, Mr. Hutton?"

"The vessel is in our possession, sir, and the crew under guard below."

"Any injuries?"

"None serious, sir."

"And the captain—Henley—did you get him?"

"He's with the others."

"Better put the fellow in irons, Hutton. There are some serious charges against him, you know."

"What is to be our course, sir?"

"Pensacola. Don't wait for us."

"Aye, aye, sir. Shall I hold Craig and the lady?"

"Not on this case. We have all the evidence needed. If you take their addresses that will be all that is necessary. Pleasant voyage!"

He waved his hand and then, perceiving us as he turned away from the rail, lifted his cap in salute.

"It is all over now, dear," I whispered.

"Yes, but—but I do not feel as though I could ever forget that money."

"You will have no choice. The courts will decide that."

"I know what I would like to do with some of it."

"What?"

"Buy this—this boat."

"In memory?"

"You loved me then."

"And now and always. Do you know what is the first thing I shall do when we make Pensacola?"

"No."

I clasped the straying hand and drew her to me, looking down into her eyes.

"Telegraph my father I am coming home."

"Is that all?"

"And that I shall bring a wife with me. A right here I end my career as a soldier of fortune."

Under the protecting shadow of the boat our lips met.

THE END.

CHAPTER XVII

In Possession.

ONE of the hands flung the coil so that it fell at my feet, and I did as directed, as otherwise we would have been crushed under the vessel. As it drew taut the boat swung in gently against the side of the Sea Gull.

"Now, you thief," he screamed, "it's my turn to play faller. Come up, both of you."

"Just a moment, Captain Henley," I answered, rising to my feet. "If there is any one to be punished it is me; the one; this woman had nothing to do with it."

"That's for me to decide," he snarled, and whipped out a revolver. "I know how to handle both of you. Come, jump now, you dog, or you never will move again. Pass the girl up first, and be lively about it. Give them a hand there, Peters, and don't be too easy."

There was no excuse for delay; besides, those lads under the heavy canvas must be nearly smothered. With my arm about her I lifted her up to where Peters could reach down and grasp her hand, and then followed as quickly as possible. Henley had swung down to the deck and stood there, his arm grouped about him, the revolver still in his hand. One glance at his face told me he was insane from rage, thinking only of revenge.

"Take the woman below," he snapped, his cruel teeth gleaming. "She'll get her lesson. Here, Louis, don't you hear me? Lock her in, and bring me the key. I'll handle this sniveling thief first. So you couldn't run a boat, hey? Not so easy as it looked, was it, you dog? Thought you'd be gone this morning, didn't you? You'll find I'm not quite as easy as all that. Now you'll take your medicine!"

I still stood motionless, my back to the rail, letting him rave, but watching every movement. I remember the faces about me, fierce, scowling faces, of men wild to lay hold upon me at the first word of command. What did Henley mean to do? Kill me or give me over into the hands of those merciless devils? All I could read in his eyes was hatred, exaltation, consciousness of power.

"Hard luck, Craig—hey!" he began tauntingly. "Played with the wrong man, didn't you. Now I've got the girl just as I want her, and as for you—Lord! but I'll keep you to play with all the way to Honduras. It will be a pleasant voyage, my friend. Here, Masters, you and Peters stand by. Now, you robber, give me those papers."

I handed them out, watching closely. Peters stood at my right, one hand on my arm; the other fellow must have been behind me. Henley grasped the envelope, opening the flap to be sure of its contents. The movement caused him to lower the revolver and avert his gaze for just an instant. With one motion I lunged Peters aside and jammed a clinched fist into the captain's face.

GENERAL JOFFRE

COMMANDER OF FRENCH ARMY IN CAMPAIGN AGAINST GERMANY

BIG SHIP SUNK.

Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse Victim of British Guns.

Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, announced the sinking of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse in the house of commons. He said: "The admiralty has received intelligence that the German armed merchant cruiser Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, of 14,000 tons and armed with ten 4-inch guns, has been sunk by the H. M. S. High Flyer, off the west coast of Africa.

"This is the vessel which has been interfering with traffic between this country and the cape and is one of the very few German armed auxiliary cruisers which succeeded in getting to sea. The survivors were landed before the vessel sank. The High Flyer had one killed and one wounded."

Bibles For British Troops.

British naval and military associations are delivering Bibles to every man in the army and navy. They bear the following inscription written by Lord Roberts: "I ask you to put your trust in God. He will watch over you and strengthen you. You will find in this little book guidance when you are in health, comfort when you are in sickness and strength when you are in adversity."

EMERGENCY BILL.

Soft Drinks, Railroad and Theater Tickets May Be Taxed.

A stamp tax on soft drinks, as well as beer and patent medicines, is contemplated by members of the house ways and means committee, which is preparing an emergency internal revenue bill to offset treasury losses due to curtailment of imports. It is urged that soft drinks are as much luxuries as wines or beer and that an equitable distribution would be accomplished by this plan.

Another suggestion is a stamp-tax of 5 to 10 per cent on railroad tickets and admission to theaters, baseball parks and other licensed amusements. It is estimated that from $50,000,000 to $80,000,000 could be raised in this way.

The committee has not yet determined upon a complete taxation plan, but purposes to hasten its deliberations so a bill may be introduced soon after President Wilson addresses congress on the subject, which probably will be immediately upon his return from New Hampshire. Administration leaders are impressed with the necessity of quick action in order to disturb conditions at little as possible.

A doubling of the present tax on beer, it is estimated by treasury experts, would produce $65,000,000. Some committee members, however, feel that taxation of commodities other than beer and patent medicines would cause less popular friction.

Among the committee Democrats there has been some opposition to any war tax at all at this session, the contention being that there is plenty of available money for present needs.

AMERICAN TRADE.

United States Does Business of $1,303,000,000.

Trade of the United States with other American countries for the first year ended June 30, 1914, aggregated $1,303,000,000, and constituted 30 per cent of the entire commerce handled by domestic ports. Of this New World commerce, $1050,000,000 was with North America, and $247,000,000 with South America.

Imports from North American countries, valued at $427,000,000 were chiefly from Canada, Cuba, Mexico and Central American states, and the British West Indies. Exports to North American countries, $529,000,000 were chiefly to Canada, $345,000,000 to Cuba, $69,000,000 and Central America and Mexico, each about $30,000,000. The United States supplies in three ase of Canada, Central America and Cuba, more than all other parts of the world combined.

WAR BULLETINS.

German troops are reported as taking the offensive in Belgian Congo.

A dispatch from Tien-Tsin says Japanese troops have been landed at several points on the coast near Kiao-Chow.

The Norwegian steamer Gottfried has been blown up in the North sea by a floating mine. Eight members of her crew lost their lives.

It is stated that British marines have occupied Ostend to prevent the Germans from getting a foothold on the English channel.

A British official statement says that of the 1,200 men comprising the crews of the five German warships sunk off Heligoland, only 330 were saved.

A Berlin dispatch says the German army is energetically pressing the Russians in the neighborhood of Allenstein, East Prussia.

Secretary of State Bryan announced that Frederick Palmer, the American war correspondent, had been selected by the press associations of the United States to act as general press representative with the British army.

The United States has informed the powers of Europe of its intention to send the armored cruiser North Carolina to Turkey to carry gold for the relief of Americans, according to an announcement by the state department.

President Wilson issued a proclamation of neutrality recognizing that "a state of war unhappily exists between Japan and Austria-Hungary." It is similar to other proclamations previously issued.

Because of the non-payment of the war levy of $40,000,000 the Germans, it is said, threaten to seize the famous pictures and objects of art in the Brussels museums.

The Russian military attache at Paris is credited with the statement that additional Russian armies are about to invade western Prussia with the intention of marching on Berlin.

The situation is becoming more serious throughout the whole Balkan peninsula. All the Balkan states are getting ready to take part in the European conflict.

The crews of destroyers which have arrived in London say that at least eleven German vessels of various sizes were sunk in the engagement off Heligoland.

The French war office gave out the following official statement: "The Russian army has completely invested Komsberg and occupied Allenstein, both in East Prussia."

The French ministry of war announces that it has been decided to call out the class of 1914, which will give at least 200,000 additional troops, and also to call out the active reserve and the eldest classes of the territorial reserve.

The British official bureau repeats its statement that England has laid no mines in the North sea and adds: "England, therefore, cannot be charged with any injury up to the present caused by mine laying."

It is officially announced from Paris that the military governor has ordered all residents of the zone within action of the city's defending forts to evacuate and destroy their houses within four days from August 30.

The London Chronicle's Boulogne correspondent sends the personal story of a wounded soldier who has arrived there and who declared he was one of thirty survivors of a British company of 2,000 troops who were practically wiped out by the German artillery.

Refugees from the scene of fighting around Mons report that a German took a prominent part in directing the German artillery, says the London Times correspondent in Paris. Aeroplanes hovered over the British position and their pilot signaled the German batteries by means of a disc swung at the end of a line.

A London Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Rome says a St. Petersburg message states it is officially admitted the Russian capital that 8,000,000 r have been mobilized. These forces have been divided into four armies which are being sent into the field one after the other.

Poetic Shot at the Enemy.

A British shell sent screaming after a German warship in the North sea carried a verse written on it. It was inscribed after an exchange of courtesies between the British and German fleets shortly before the war. It goes: You gave us bacon and you gave us beer; You made us happy while we were here. And in return we'll send you this And hope to God it doesn't miss.

Country grub—that's what I like to the farm I'd like to hike.

In your joy. Oh, the canned stuff—Here in town is just a bluff. At a meal compared to what people in the country get. Everything has gone so high. Look like stars up in the sky. In the town's the place for style. But country grub beats it all. What can beat a good peach cobbler? Good hot gravy, turkey, gobbler. Blackberries a dozen ways. Jelly just like golden honey. Jeron cream and golden butter. Make a fellow fairly stouter. Just to try to let about it. Though I'd like to fairly about it. That's what I call loving—say. Take me back—oh—miles away. To the old home that I know. Long ago when skies were blue. When the world was bright with dreams.

City life ain't what it seems. I'd leave the swiftest city club. For just one day of country grub. —Exchange.

It would be a saving to them, as in the present plan they have to buy more fresh vegetables than they can use. TRICK LURES SOLDIERS ON.

Boer Subterfuge Helps the British in Clash With the Germans.

Wounded men in the hospitals of Boulogne relate these incidents of fighting between the British and Germans. One of the men told of a trick which the British learned in the Boer war: "The enemy before sending their infantry against our positions opened a hot artillery fire. Our artillery replied at first warmly, and then gun after gun of the British batteries went silent.

"What's up now? I asked a comrade. There were a few minutes more of artillery firing from the Germans, and then their infantry came on in solid formation. We received them with rifle fire. Still they came on, and still we mowed them down. They were getting closer, and we could plainly see the dense masses moving. Then suddenly the whole of our artillery opened fire.

"You see, the cunning had not been silenced at all, and it was a trick to draw the Germans on. They went down in whole fields, for our guns got them in open ground, and of course, they soon had enough. It was impossible for those behind to come on past the dead."

APPALLING DESTRUCTION.

Graphic Portrayal of Ruin Wrought at Liege and Vise.

A Reuter's dispatch from Ostend says a small party just returned from a visit to Liege describes the destruction wrought by the war as appalling.

"All along the road to Vise," said one of the party, "there was nothing to be seen but walls blackened by smoke, the remains of factories burned by fire, mounds of earth freshly dug—the sepulcher of the first Germans to fall.

"And then comes Vise. What a painful sight for those who knew the proud city, so typical of Walloon gayety, and now nothing but a mass of ruins, while many of the inhabitants lie all over the place, their chests riddled with bullets.

"At last we entered Liege. The inhabitants stood at the thresholds of their homes, silent and anxious, but afraid to speak. The streets in the middle of the town were a deplorable aspect. Many houses had been abandoned. Their doors and windows were shattered and their contents had been removed. Nobody but soldiers was to be seen."

GERMAN WAR AUTOS MARVELS.

Carry Scythas to Mow Down Fences and Hedges.

Stories were printed recently about the Germans having armored motor cars armed with machine guns, which tore through the lines of the French and Belgians and mowed down all before them.

Another story of the use of new war inventions is told by Arno Doeb, a correspondent of World's Work, who arrived in London from Brussels. He says the Germans are using auto trucks which are marvellous. Equipped with scythes, they mow right through wire fences and hedges if the roads and fields do not suit the drivers.

These trucks are said to be heavily armored, and they are able to resist anything except artillery fire. They enable the German forces to make forty miles a day. Their number seems to be unlimited.

Daytona Notes

Almost everybody in Sanford who owns an automobile and many others who do not spent Labor Day at Daytona Beach, enjoying the many attractions of that resort, to say nothing of the races. It was impossible to secure a complete list of those going over for the day as probably a third of Sanford's population must have been there, but among those who did go were Messrs. Geo. Speer and son, Vivian, Ed. Lane, Robt. Deane and Geo. Watson in the Speer car.

Saturday night Misses Lettie Caldwell and Adelaide Higgins motored over to the beach with friends from Orlando and were joined Monday by Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Caldwell, Misses Annie Lee and Alice Caldwell, Addie Neal, Eva Walker, Messrs. David and Weldman Caldwell and a number of others, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell.

Going over in the Turner car were Mr. and Mrs. Deane Turner and little Deane, Miss Martha Fox and Mr. F. M. Fox.

A jolly party of men folks were Dr. W. E. Householder, Messrs. Earnest and F. L. Householder and J. F. Karnatz in the Householder car.

Going over early Sunday a. m. with Reginald Holly were Mr. John T. Brady and young people, to join Mrs. Brady and the Higgins party. A congenial party of guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Thrasher were Messdames S. Puleston and R. A. Newman, Miss May Thrasher and Mr. Will Watson.

Hon. Forrest Lake and C. O. McLaughlin motored over together. Dr. and Mrs. O. J. Miller, Dr. and Mrs. Cecil Butt were another congenial party.

With Mr. W. P. Carter were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Abernathy and Mrs. Geo. Watson.

SANFORD'S BRICK ROADS

WORK IS HELD UP IN PART PENDING ACTION OF SUPREME COURT

Those sections of Sanford's brick roads which were laid under the ban of the injunction which was filed against the board of county commissioners by J. N. Whitner to prevent certain portions from being reduced in width and other portions being changed from alleged specific locations are coming in very fine shape and it will not be long until the residents of this section will be enabled to ride over as fine roads as exist in this or any other state.

The road has been laid on Bear-dall avenue from Celery avenue to Cameron City, a distance of three miles. A stretch seven and a half miles long has been completed from the city limits on the south of Robinson Springs, a point on the road to Longwood. The road from Monroe ferry to First street has been completed, the distance being two miles. As has also the road from Stenstrom's corner to Sylvan Lake on First street, a distance of two and three-quarter miles, making a total of sixteen miles that is now in actual use, the width of those various pieces being nine feet. There is left a stretch from the bridge on First street to Stenstrom's corner of two and a half miles to be built. The brick core on the ground for this road but it is covered by the Whitner injunction and cannot be built until the matter of widths has been adjudicated by the supreme court of Florida, to which court the case has been carried after passing through the courts of lesser degree at the instance of the complainant. The road from Tenth street out Park avenue, thence east on Hughey avenue to the road leading south, is also in controversy on account of both the width and location.

The paving of Celery avenue has also been held up on account of the width being reduced from 16 feet to 12 feet. The stretch from the beginning of Union avenue at the end of Second street and that part of Melonville avenue from Union avenue to Celery avenue is being held up on account of the width and controversy over the location, as is also that portion from Fourteenth street to the city limits on the road to Longwood.

The bonds have been sold for the construction of these roads and the contracts let and the brick are on the ground but the complainants have held up the matter because of the fact that the commissioners found they were unable to build the roads for the distances agreed upon when the bonds were voted as a very considerable advance had been made in the price of brick from the time the bonds were voted and by the time the commissioners were ready to begin work. The commissioners assumed that the taxpayers would rather have the roads run the entire distance voted and have the width reduced so as to enable them to run them these distances with the substance in hand and made all arrangements to go ahead with the work, when the injunction was clapped on them and their hands were held insofar as the roads which were to be reduced in width were concerned, so the matter gradually worked around in such way that the court finally decided that the 9-foot roads could be completed and this is being done.

The commissioners contend that they have the right to run the roads where they will serve the most people, as the residents of a certain area legally known as road and bridge district No. 1 of Seminole county have to pay their pro rata and the commissioners in attempting to place the roads where they would serve the greatest number decided to make some changes in the routes which would cut out certain stretches about some tracts of land that would be greatly enhanced in value by having these roads run by them as the roads now are. The roads are now per mile for a 14-foot width or $1,000 per foot per mile and this is where the hitch comes and is the cause of wonder to travelers who in passing through the county see long stretches of brick piles adorning the sides of the roads while they shamble along in their machines among the holes and ruts and the long piles of vitrified brick give them the adamant grin.

Mr. Allen will be here tonight to address to Commercial Club with a view of having Sanford represented in the tour.

The case has been in the courts now for more than one year and from all surface indications there is no telling how long it will remain there. In the meantime the brick has been paid for, the interest on the bonds is piling up and the taxpayers are putting up the coin and the brick is on the ground taking a good rest while the wiseacres are pondering as to what the outcome will be.—T. TO RAISE THE INCOME TAX

THE GOVERNMENT WILL REQUIRE A LARGER TAX DURING THE WAR

Washington, Sept. 11.—One-third of the revenue required to make up the deficit of the U. S. Treasury through the falling off of customs receipts on account of the war will be made up through the extension of the income tax, according to prominent members of the ways and means committee of the house to night.

The present plan will increase the normal income tax from one to one and a half per cent, and reduce the exempted incomes from the present exemption of $3,000 for single men and $4,000 for married men to $2,000 for single men and to $3,000 for men with families.

It is expected that this plan will bring in revenue amounting to $10,000,000 to $12,000,000.

Various other commodities will be taxed with the working out of the plan of spreading the burden as evenly as possible.

The ways and means committee will meet tomorrow to complete the draft of the bill.

No Bread Famine in United States

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—There will be no bread famine in the United States this year. The largest wheat crop in history has just been harvested and according to the United States Department of Agriculture the total production is approximately 911,000,000 bushels, nearly 150,000 bushels more than any previous crop produced in the United States. We have at least 250,000,000 bushels of wheat which are not needed for consumption at home or for seed. The surplus production of the United States usually goes to Europe, but under present conditions, caused by the European war this cereal cannot cross the ocean. About 75,000,000 bushels have already been taken for export, but most of it is being held at the ports of departure.

Conditions across the water are not so encouraging. War in Europe tends to prevent the shipment of wheat from surplus European countries to those which need imports—for example—from Russia to France, and a famine there seems inevitable.

July Cotton Consumption

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—According to a report just issued by the Census Bureau there were 424,216 bales of cotton stored in independent warehouses in the United States on July 31, 1914, as compared with 381,739 bales on the same date a year previous. The July consumption by American mills was 448,269 or 14,000 bales less than that of July, 1913.

The manufacturing establishments of the United States had 904,414 bales on hand July 31, compared with 957,561 bales a year previous.

ALLIES NOW ON THE OFFENSIVE

HAVE SUCCEEDED IN PUSHING GERMANS BACK 37 MILES ON THE LEFT WING

RUSSIANS IN NORTH-EAST GERMANY ATTACKING KOENISBURG AND WILL DOUBLESS FORCE A SURRENDER SOON

London, Sept. 10.—The bombardment of Belgrade has been renewed with increased fury, according to a Nish dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company. Considerable damage has been done. The Serbians are replying to the Austrian fire.

London, Sept. 11.—3:20 a. m.—A dispatch to the Post from Copenhagen states that reports have been received there from Stettin that the Russians are bombarding Koenigsberg, the strong German fortress in East Prussia, and that part of the city is in flames.

Bordeaux, France, Sept. 10.—Minister of War Millerand has sent a circular note to the general commanding the several districts of France, ordering them to institute

Fighting Citrus Canker

Palatka, Fla., Sept. 11.—Prof. R. H. Roll, director of the experimental station at Gainesville, was in the city Monday on his way home from Dade county, and he declares that progress is being made there in fighting the citrus canker now in that section.

The disease has not shown itself amenable to treatment with insecticide or fungicides, and the only method of coping with the new and little known infection that has proven successful so far is the destruction of the diseased tree by means of fire and burying the ground around the tree. All the trees in the section were brought in from a vigorous search for all persons who have failed to respond to the order for military service as required.

London, Friday, 10 a. m.—Koenigsberg is being bombarded and in flames.

Paris, Friday, 10 a. m.—Sixths of Great Battle finds allies left wing still pushing Germans now more than thirty-seven miles. Both sides heavily reinforced.

London, Friday, 10 a. m.—Montenegro troops captured Foleha and with serbians have begun march to Sarajevo.

London, Friday, 10 a. m.—Squadrons sailing North Sea fail to find traces of German fleets, Scandinavian dispatches state latter steaming east for attacks on Russian ports.

Texas nursery stock

Several government and state officials are aiding in the work of destroying this new enemy. The war fare carried along down there in a systematic way by partitioning and weeding. Every tree is examined and when found infected the tree is cut down. The expenses of doing this are met by the state. Prof. Roll says the disease exists in several localities in Florida and strenuous measures are being used to eradicate it. None so far is known to exist in Putnam county, but it behooves growers everywhere to examine their trees. It is expected that some of the diseased trees will be found in Putnam county.

WAREHOUSES FOR FARM PRODUCTS

GIVING THE SOUTHERN FARMER AN OPPORTUNITY OF HOLDING HIS PRODUCTS FOR BETTER PRICES

Washington, Sept. 11.—In the larger events connected with the war in Europe the country is about to lose sight of the fact that the Congress of the United States is on the verge of passing a bill of tremendous interest to the farmers of the country, entitled "A national warehouse bill for agricultural purposes."

Representative Ralph W. Moss of Indiana, a farmer and a member of the house committee on agriculture, has for years been a pioneer in promoting legislation for the creation of warehouses throughout the country to be bonded and licensed by the government, in which the farmers may store their crops for anticipated rises in values while at the same time borrowing money on the strength of their warehouse receipts to tide them over until such time as they can realize advantageously on their crops.

The difficulty with the average farmer has been that he has been forced to sell his staple agricultural products when they were ready for the markets because he did not have the funds to continue farming operations. Thus grain has passed right from the harvests into the hands of the speculators who have reaped the benefits from increases in price. Under the Moss plan, which is at last certain to become a law, the farmer may deposit his crops and secure for it a warehouse receipt of such recognized standing that he will be able to use it as security in borrowing money. Meanwhile, the title to the crop will not pass out of his hands and when the price goes up the farmer can sell and get the profit that heretofore has gone to the speculator. Generally the European war is regarded and rightly so as a world calamity, but without it this legislation which is expected to so greatly improve the condition of the American farmers, would not have been possible. Cotton, an imperishable agricultural staple, has been marketed largely in Europe. That market has now been cut off. It is imperatively necessary that the farmers may warehouse their crops and secure warehouse receipts that will be recognized in borrowing money to tide them over for a future market. Representative Moss has secured a merger of his bill for the warehousing of grain with this measure for the relief of the cotton farmers and the combined and amalgamated bill is certain to pass Congress. Thus, growing out of war's exigencies, will come a permanent piece of legislation of the utmost importance as affecting the farmers of the United States, both north and south.

When asked to explain the purposes intended to be achieved by this new legislation, now on the high road to passage, Representative Moss said: "The present situation in the Cotton Belt proves conclusively that our present system of marketing agricultural products is radically defective. The stress of war has presented in only a more acute form a situation which the grain farmer has faced in the autumn of every good crop year. 'The present wheat crop is a good illustration of what is meant. We had a very large yield in the United States; the world at large had only a normal yield. Under these cir-

Fine Band Concert

The Sanford Band under the leadership of S. Maxwell gave a very fine concert in the park band stand last Tuesday night that was greatly enjoyed by a large number of Sanford people. A good program was rendered in full and for an hour or more the audience was treated to a varied musical program and one that demonstrated the ability not only of the members but of the leader. The Sanford Band is undoubtedly one of the best musical organizations in the state and is one of which all our citizens are very proud. Mr. Maxwell informs us that the band will give a concert every two weeks during the fall and winter months.

Large Audiences at Baptist Church

The large audiences continue to go to the Baptist church on Sunday nights. The music is especially fine. The sermons by Rev. George Hyman are instructive and interesting. The people have shown their pleasure at the services by taxing the capacity for the last seven Sunday evenings.

Mr. Hyman will speak on the subject "Spark Plugs" on next Sunday evening at 7:45. The large chorus will sing. The doors will be open at 7 o'clock.

A real welcome awaits you.

TO PRAY FOR PEACE IN EUROPE

PRESIDENT APPOINTS SUNDAY, OCTOBER 4th AS A DAY OF PRAYER

Washington, Sept. 11.—President Wilson has signed a proclamation calling on the people of the United States to pray for peace in Europe.

The president's proclamation set aside Sunday, October 4, as a day of prayer.

The president's proclamation follows:

Whereas great nations of the world have taken up arms against one another and war now draws millions of men into battle when the counsel of statesmen has not been able to save from this terrible sacrifice;

And whereas, in this as in all things, it is our privilege and duty to seek counsel and aid of Almighty God, humbling ourselves before Him, confessing our weakness, and trusting in His goodness;

And whereas, the especial wish and longing of the people of the United States, in prayer and counsel and all friendliness, to serve the cause of peace;

Therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do designate Sunday, the fourth day of October next, a day of prayer and supplication, and do request all God-fearing persons to repair on that day to their places of worship, there to unite their petitions to Almighty God, that overruling the counsel of men, setting straight the things they cannot govern or alter, taking pity on the nations now in the throes of conflict, in His mercy and goodness showing a way where men can see none, He vouchsafe His children healing peace again and restore once more that concord among men and nations without which there can be neither happiness nor true friendship nor any wholesome fruit of toil or thought in the world; praying also to this end that He forgive us our sins, our ignorance of His holy will, our willfulness and many errors, and lead us in the paths of obedience to places of vision and thoughts and counsels that purge and make wise.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this eighth day of September in the year of our Lord one thousand, nine hundred and fourteen and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirtieth.

Signed: WOODROW WILSON. By the President: William Jennings Bryan, Secretary of State.

With nearly all Europe engaged in the greatest war of the ages what becomes of the old argument that to be prepared for war is the best guarantee of peace? As a matter of fact a nation with a big armament and a little boy with a sharp knife are much alike. The consequences are sure to be disastrous in each case.

WILL ENFORCE THE GAME LAWS

THE STATE GAME WARDEN WILL PAY A VISIT TO EACH COUNTY

Tallahassee, Fla., Sept. 11.—When the correspondent called on State Game and Fish Commissioner E. Z. Jones at his new quarters in the capitol he found the official quickly making preparations for the opening of the hunting season, which is now only a few months off.

Mr. Jones stated that news had reached his office from citizens of some counties to the effect that they intend to hunt this season, without paying hunting licenses. Mr. Jones stated that it would be his purpose and endeavor to apprehend any persons who attempted to violate the fish and game laws; that in the counties from which such statements have come, special service men, in addition to the general wardens will be appointed with this end in view.

During this week Mr. Jones is visiting all the counties between here and Jacksonville, and on his return will visit the west Florida counties, calling on the county wardens, instructing them, and generally outlining the work under his administration for the coming season.

The laws creating the game and fish department of Florida provide that the commissioner shall have his office at the capital, or may have it at any other point in the state by consent of the governor. The duties of his office have been conducted from Jacksonville, for the greater convenience in being in touch with other departments of the government. Mr. Jones has just moved his office to Tallahassee and has an attractive suite of office rooms fixed up on the second floor of the capitol.

The first annual report of the commissioner has just been prepared, and presents some very interesting information in connection with the first year's administration of this department. This report shows that $4,844.00 was collected as fines entered against various persons for violating the game and fish laws, these fines ranging from $1 to $100. The sum of $45,825 was collected during the year for the sale of licenses. The largest receipts for any one county for Hillsborough was $4,222. The smallest amount for any one county was from Monroe county, $32. Office expenses and other disbursements for this department for the year were $18,677.61, leaving a balance to the credit of the department $27,146.64, $5,000 of which is retained under the terms of the law to the credit of the department for expenses, the balance, over $20,000, being turned in to the state treasury.

Billy Rowe's Buick

The Herald received the information that Frank Milteer had a car in the races, when in fact it was Billy Rowe's Buick and one upon which he had put much time and work to get it tuned up properly. Billy acted as mechanic and Stanley Walker drove the car and both of them were confident of winning when the gear was stripped while throwing it in high making it imperative to fall out. We make this correction because the boys who were behind the wheel are entitled to the credit of making a game effort to win a cup in the Buick car.
