FRANK GODDARD: Sing praises to God, sing praises; sing praises unto our King, sing praises.—Psalm 98:1.

Someone plans a class on citizenship, military, not political.

Every man needs a few cents to keep himself from getting the idea that he is exceptional.

The Homestead Exemption Amendment is a subterfuge to facilitate the adoption of a sales tax.

Remember in these days before the New Deal when a college professor was a man who gave lectures in a class room.

One thing about appointing a board to settle a controversy, if necessary, you can always hit somebody with it.

You can find some of the people all of the time but all of the people some of the time but ever one in a while they'll demand a New Deal.

Recent pictures of Brown Hampton gamboling on the beaches indicate not only that crime does not pay, but also that it doesn't pay to keep an album.

Some people don't seem to know what "happy" is. Well, if they've ever been a little boy who got locked up in a closet for getting into a pickle barrel, they'd know what it isn't.

The Lake County Citizens say that the newspapers at least are not much concerned over these criminals who would abolish profits. They are about three years too late already with most of us.

When Hitler says the Nazi regime is going to last for a thousand years, he may mean that it will take Germany that long to get over it.

Frederick Roosevelt says he favors the driving power of the profit motive in business, but that old driving power has about run out of gas during the past few years.

Miss West wants an Indian for her next picture and she says she will send him back in good shape when she's finished with him. "And will his face be red?", asks the Miami Post.

"I attribute my success," says the head of an important industrial concern, "to long hours of hard work, an honest and conscientious application to the task assigned me, and by a friend who cushioned my side for $5,000."

The Sanford Herald advises voters who vote for a candidate in a vote for the National Guard, that they do not vote against it. Such selfish considerations frequently divide political issues and if only the home owners vote for the amendment it is deemed to defeat. In this case selfish motives might achieve a desirable result, as it is doubtful whether any home owners would receive the relief they anticipate from the change.

One of the principal arguments advanced by "silver money" advocates is that the value of silver is rising in this country. This is only a fallacy. It is estimated that a present of silver would be worth only 10 cents in this country.

Stalk The Poor

If opposition to the Homestead Exemption Amendment had to be based on the assumption that the home-owners are not oppressed with high taxation, we would be the last person in the world to oppose it. No one knows better than we do the burdens which the owners of houses, as well as of all forms of real estate, have been forced to carry during the past few years. They have seen taxes steadily mounting while incomes declined precipitately.

But the Homestead Exemption Amendment in no sense proposes tax reduction. It contemplates merely the transfer of taxes from one group of our citizens to another group. It would simply exempt the home-owners and tax the consumers. Just as much money will be required to run the city, county, and state governments, whether the Homestead Exemption Amendment carries or not. It is wholly a question of who is going to foot the bill.

It is our contention that the home-owners are better able to continue paying their share of the cost of government than are a great many of those who will be hit by the sales tax. The home-owners as a class are the wealthiest citizens we have. We say this without attempting to minimize the problems which many of them have borne during the past few years. But the fact remains that the first thing a person does as soon as he is financially able is to buy a home.

Therefore it must be apparent to everyone that those who do not own homes in large are the poorer people. They do not own homes because they cannot afford to. They are not now subject to the ad valorem tax on real estate because they are not fortunate enough, or wealthy enough, to own their homes. But if the home-owners are going to be exempted from taxation, and a sales tax is levied to make up for the resulting deficiency in revenues, then these poorer people who cannot afford the luxury of owning a home, would have to pay taxes so that the fortunate home-owner could escape.

What many of our home-owners are forgetting, we fear, is that nearly 500,000 people, or almost one-third of our people are on the relief rolls. Their individual incomes do not exceed a few dollars a week. There are probably another half million people in Florida whose family incomes do not exceed ten, fifteen, or twenty dollars a week. Very few of these people own their homes. But all of them, even those on relief, would have to pay their share of a sales tax.

It is often said that a sales tax is levied in proportion to a man's purchases. And it is said that no one, no matter how poor, should escape the necessity of contributing something toward the maintenance of his government. With this theory of taxation we cannot entirely agree. It may be true that a man who makes ten dollars a week, would have to pay only ten cents a week in taxes, if a ten percent sales tax were levied, but to him that represents two cups of coffee.

It does not seem to us that a man who is on the relief roll, or who makes only ten or fifteen dollars a week should be taxed at all. Certainly he should not be taxed for the sole reason that others owning $5,000 homes may escape taxation. And yet if a sales tax is adopted as a substitute for the present tax on homes, and if food, clothing and other necessities are eliminated from it, then the levy on other things still subject to the tax, would necessarily be so high as to materially interfere with their sale. It must be remembered that if the homes are exempted from taxation, it will be necessary to raise $15,000,000 by some other means.

It seems to us to be fairly evident that the people who will be asked to make the sacrifices for the benefit of the home-owners are those very people who can least afford to do it.

The Saar Valley

We may have our political squabbles in this country and reports from the North indicate that in some sections certainly the coming November elections will include their full share of fireworks, but nowhere on this continent is there pending an election fraught with so much danger and fairly bursting with such political consequences as the plebiscite which will be held next January in the Saar Valley.

The Saar is a particularly rich district comprising only seven hundred square miles lying between France and Germany. Its chief value lies in the fact that it contains the richest coal deposits in Europe. More than 16,000,000,000 tons of coal are said to lie beneath the surface today after many millions have already been mined. The possession of this coal is of tremendous importance to both France and Germany.

Under the terms of the Versailles Treaty, the Saar Valley was placed under the rule and protection of the League of Nations for a period of fifteen years and the privileges of exploitation were given to France for this period. At the end of this time, that is, in January of 1935, an election is to be held in which the people of the valley themselves are to determine whether they prefer to become a part of France, of Germany, or remain permanently under the League of Nations.

Most of the people living in this district are German. Probably 95 percent of them, because of ties of blood or race, would normally prefer to belong to Germany. But many of these Germans, about 60 percent of them, are Catholics; some of them are Jews, socialists, pacifists, and others who under the Nazi regime in Germany have been severely persecuted. There naturally is considerable doubt whether these people, even though they are Germans, would like to place themselves under the political rule of Adolf Hitler.

But the Reichsleiter is making a powerful campaign in the Saar to win the election. As a political campaigner he is without equal. Not even Huey Long, with all his National Guardmen, has enjoyed such success at the polls. The League of Nations has been warned that Herr Hitler already has more than 11,000 camouflaged Storm Troopers in the Saar ready to spring into action in time to swing the election. These Storm Troopers will not be content with making speeches and casting their own votes. They will see to it that others vote right.

So it would not be surprising if the people of the Saar should vote to join Germany in spite of their fear and hatred of the German ruler. However, there is another situation in the Versailles Treaty which further complicates the situation. If the Saar should decide to become a part of Germany, the German government must pay France $2,000,000,000 gold marks as compensation for the coal mines.

In the present state of bankruptcy, Germany can't raise the money. It is very doubtful whether it could borrow such a sum, or borrow any sum at all. What may happen if the Saar votes for Germany, and Germany can't raise the money, is a question which is being asked by many.

CHURCH LOYALTY

By H. C. DUBOSE

Loyalty is one of the most appreciated and admired of human virtues. It always has a prominent place in any appraisal of human character. It is the measure of one's citizenship. It is the foundation of peace and contentment in any given home. It is absolutely essential in the representation of any interests that may be entrusted. Therefore, it is of tremendous importance that this trait of character be intensely cultivated.

If then it is fundamental and vital in human relations, of how much greater importance in spiritual relations. To whom are we most indebted and to whom the highest possible expression of loyalty should be given? What is the best available means of expressing this loyalty? Can you conceive of any better way than by regular and systematic attendance upon religious services held in a place of worship erected and dedicated to the sole purpose of worship, praise and honor to His name.

The month of October has been set aside by the religious forces of Sanford as a time when every person who is a member of a Christian church shall be requested to show their loyalty to God and His church by attending with regularity every service of the church during this period, with the sincere hope that it will become a fixed habit of each such worshiper and that thereby the Christian forces of our city will become a greater power in furthering the work of the Kingdom of God in this midst.

The case was sent back to the lower court with directions to conform to the supreme court's opinion.

They're Florida-bound again, the gyp artists who invade the state each year with their ideas and their questionable merchandise. Those seekers after an easy living or an expedient vocation while the wild winds howl across their summer territory that the first frost finds worked to death.

Leading our list that has come to our attention is the Walkathon organization, tent people with a catch proposition and as usual they are seeking organization opportunities in order that they can evade payment of the license and privilege taxes that are levied against legitimate enterprise. They'll divide their profits with those who will help them fleece the public. The statement "they'll divide" is used advisedly with the emphasis on the "they" which ordinarily means that the rosette picture painted by the advance man never attains the proportions he gives it. The worry is not theirs. They will here this week and gone next, to other territory where other good "picking" are to be found.

The walkathons, however, are only one of many. The next few days will see many strangers with little black bags roaming the streets. There will be conferences between these individuals and heads of various organizations as propositions are Declining to be drawn into a discussion of what agreements the President would seek from the two sides, officials said Mr. Roosevelt, at this time knew only the objective of his plan—a full and fair trial of existing voluntary agencies to insure a "peaceful operation of our essential enterprises."

One of the agencies, the National Labor Relations Board, yesterday lost its chairman, Lloyd K. Garrison. He submitted his resignation, effective next Tuesday, to return to his post as dean of the University of Wisconsin Law School. Mr. Roosevelt had expressed hope he would remain here. No intimation as to a successor was forthcoming at the White House.

Instead, he will meet with individual leaders from time to time, just as he has in the last several weeks, with no set time for any particular conference. The plan, broached by the President Sunday night, the White House emphasized, was not intended as a short cut for collective bargaining nor an interference in any way with the labor guaranteed clauses of the Recovery Act.

While officials stressed that part of the speech where the President said he would not see either group "personally," they said the weapons command

Washington Daybook

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Whatever the outcome of the November elections, a lot of new faces will be seen in the Seventy-fourth Congress. The House will be composed of 100 members, 43 Democrats and 57 Republicans. The Senate will be composed of 100 members, 43 Democrats and 57 Republicans.

Ambition accounts for a good many of the involuntary retirements. The House alone runs up into an unusually large figure. Between two scores and a dozen score members of the present House will not be back, due to death, desire or defeat. Before the clerk calls the next House to order to elect a new speaker and get going on the latest phase of the Roosevelt program, death and defeat are certain to make additional changes in House personnel.

Whether any of them are to get lame duck jobs under the Administration is a problem Postmaster General Farley must face eventually. That is where the record of party votes on Administration bills started by the late Speaker Rainey could come in handy. The idea of making such disciplinary use of it was undoubtedly in Rainey's mind. He was an old-fashioned Democrat in that respect. He believed in party discipline although occasionally a rebel himself.

What the election turn-over in the House may be is a matter of endless speculation in Washington. It never has been doubted that the Democrats were bound to lose a considerable number of the seats traditionally held by Republicans which they captured in the '32 conclusion.

Now that the primaries are over and afford some slim clue to what is in store in November, there is a tendency among both party workers and political observers to reduce estimates of what the Democratic House losses may be. In any event, no such reduction of the top-heavy Democratic vote in the present House is expected in the present House busy and contented proved at times a task beyond accomplishment. Men who had that experience agree with Vice President Garner's idea that a small party majority of 50 or 60 makes the best House and for the best legislation.

Incidentally, the Texas primaries played their part in paving the way to defeat of Garner's ambition to retire from public life at the end of his present term. He is the first vice president to become a national committeeman. There seem to be more than one use for this particular "spar tire" as Garner likes to describe his relationship to the government machine.

And that being true, coupled with the present cheerful Administration outlook toward election day, replacing Garner on the 1936 ticket becomes far less likely. Whatever his preference, he is likely to be drafted to run again.

Reformation Of Young Men Serving First Terms At Raiford Worries Officials

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Oct. 2.—(AP)—The problem of what to do in the reformation and rehabilitation of young men serving their first term in the state penitentiary is still worrying state cabinet members and prison officials.

for them, and money for a new prison would not be available without an appropriation by the legislature. A new plan now under consideration, as the first step in possible segregation calls for selection of 10 youths to be assigned to work in the prison system where they will not come in contact with the older prisoners. Such a plan was suggested by circuit Judge Hal W. Adams of Mayo, and was referred by the cabinet to L. F. Chapman, prison superintendent, for consideration.

Chapman told the cabinet segregation of some prisoners would be beneficial, but that he believed older convicts, instead of talking youths into more crime, had a steady influence on them and more than often convinced them that "crime doesn't pay." Chapman said older prisoners, who have served more than one term, frequently tell the youngsters to abandon crime "because you can't beat it." He said he had heard older men counseling the youngsters to "go straight when you get out of stir. Don't be a fool and wreck your life and your chances like I have."

Against this attitude, he said, younger prisoners are inclined to brag to their fellow youths about their exploits, and about what they may do when they get out of prison.

"A boy is a greater influence for evil on another boy than is an older prisoner," Chapman said. "If complete segregation can be accomplished, I believe it would be beneficial; certainly I would be in favor of segregation of the boys from the confirmed criminals."

Chapman said prison officials of various states who attended a recent convention in Houston, Texas, were "about evenly divided on the benefits of segregation. Some felt that it had been a complete failure, others enthusiastically endorsed it, while others were only lukewarm in the proposition."

Indeterminate sentences, Chapman said, he believed, would have a good effect in improving prisoners on morals. Under this system, a prisoner would be sentenced to a minimum and maximum term, with his release after serving the minimum if his conduct in the prison warranted it. Otherwise, he would be required to serve the maximum term. Prison officials at the Houston convention, Chapman said, endorsed this system.

Johnson, advisor; William Burnett, Edwin Humphrey and James McDaniel, members of the Executive Committee. At the end of the meeting, the boys practiced their parts in the three act play, "The Green Hand," which will be staged at the school Oct. 11 for the benefit of the fund being raised to send the Chapter's livestock judging team to the national contest in Kansas City. Others attending the meeting were: E. D. Tyler, Boyd Coleman, Randall Priest, Steve Peters, W. R. Kendall, Herbert Stoothoff, John Jones, Frank Jones, Robert Kauer, and Ronald Muirhead.

In an effort to make it just as convenient as possible for the small army of men and women who depend upon the FERA every week, officials at the City Hall today announced a new type of service in their behalf. In future, a special man will be at the Fire Station every day, except Sunday, to hand out work cards to persons expecting them. This man will be there from 6 A. M. to 6 P. M. and from 9 A. M. until noon, and 3 P. M. to 6 P. M. in the afternoon. In the past, all workers could receive cards at the Fire Station only on Thursday. Any other days they had to go to the City Hall, and this proved to be very inconvenient. Workers are asked to spread this information among fellow workers as quickly as possible. FERA officials also have decided to give work cards to all women at the Mayfair Hotel every Thursday from 10:00 o'clock to 3:00 o'clock. This will prevent women from having to stand in line with men at the Fire Station, although women unable to be at the Fire Station on other days. No change has been made in the pay-off schedule.

Nine small growers of this county yesterday received Emergency Crop Loan funds totaling $1140 through the office of County Agent C. R. Dawson, agent for the Loan bureau, he announced today. More money is on the way, he added, and all successful applicants will be notified immediately when his check has arrived.

Twenty-six of the 30 members of the Medical Detachment of the United States National Guard were present at the Armory last night to hear their commanding officer, Captain A. W. Knox, deliver an hour-long illustrated lecture on "Compound Fractures and Their Treatment." Dozens of X-ray photographs were displayed to the men, and their interest in the subject was demonstrated by the numerous questions which they asked. Captain Knox revealed that his unit is the only one in Florida which was cited twice to Washington for its efficient work at the annual encampment this season.

Arriving in Sanford this week was Dr. F. L. Wellman, associate pathologist for the United States Department of Agriculture, and Mrs. Wellman. Dr. Wellman has spent the spring and summer in Washington where he has been engaged in writing up his last four years of research work in this county. He again will operate the green houses turned over to him by the city, he said, and he will continue his experiments on heat plants for mosaic, dread enemy of celery. Dr. Wellman expressed himself as "delighted" with the appointment of C. R. Dawson as County Agent, and he stated that he is working with Mr. Dawson on some clean-up campaigns which are essential to the eradication of mosaic and other diseases and pests.

PWA OFFICIALS EXPECT RETURN OF OVER BILLION

Sum Expected To Come From Outstanding Loans On Projects

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Government officials say they plan to get back $1,043,988,602 of the $3,700,000,000 Public Works money employed in the biggest spending and financing experiment in the nation's history.

Those who have watched the fund gush into 17,000 employment- jously voted to endorse the plans and offer any assistance possible. Rotarians also commended guard officers and men for their efficiency. Captain Washburn explained the organization of the three Guard units in Sanford, told how a $25,000 payroll is brought into the city annually, and explained the benefits which came to each man because of his enlistment as a Guardsman. The annual turnover in personnel approximates 30 percent of the enrollment, he said. Captain McRory explained the proposed Armory and how it is to be built. S. O. Shimboler officially welcomed J. L. Ingley, Jr., as the club's newest member. Guests included John Massek, president of the Apopka Rotary Club, and Asher Peter of Orlando.

Organization of a Geneva 4-H Club was practically effected in that town yesterday when 17 boys met with County Agent C. R. Dawson and indicated that they are anxious to become members of the national 4-H organization as one of its branches. Each boy will have a home project, it was stated, and all will have a group project of one-half acre in size, to be set out in vegetables. Proceeds from this garden will go into a fund which will pay for the annual trip to the 4-H Club camp at Camp McQuarrie in Ocala National Park. Boys who are anxious to become club members are: Robert LeFils, Mark Merritt, Dick Rudd, Wayne Geiger, Edwin Ballard, Martin Geiger, John Culpepper, Bernard LeFils, J. D. Rudd, M. K. Summersill, James Bennett, Sam Bush, Hugh Parrish, Edward Baxter, Melvin Harper, Claude Crews, and George Williams.

Remainder of the money was disbursed as outright grants, as part of the recovery campaign. Except for the railroad loans and a few millions for other private developments, such as limited dividend housing.

West Virginia's NRA Law Held Illegal

WELCH, W. Va., Oct. 2.—(AP)—West Virginia's NRA state enforcement law was held unconstitutional yesterday by Circuit Judge Howard in an opinion declaring the state has no valid right to exercise its police powers to enforce industrial codes. The court denied a petition for an injunction asked by Pro cutting Attorney Anderson of McDowell county to prevent C. G. Killom, a sawmill operator, from working his employees more than 40 hours a week and paying some of them less than the 28.5 cents an hour required under the lumber and timber products code.

... and while we're talking about cigarettes I don't suppose you were ever in a warehouse where they were storing bogsheads of tobacco. Anyway here's something interesting: Liggett & Myers, the people who make Chesterfields, have about 4 1/2 miles of storage warehouses where they age the tobacco. Down South where they grow tobacco folks say . . . It's no wonder so many people smoke Chesterfields. The tobaccos are mild and ripe to start with, and then they're aged the right way to make a milder, better-tasting cigarette.

INSULL JURY HEARS BASIS OF INDICTMENT

Defunct Company Was Set-Up To Unload Worthless Stocks, Attorney Charges

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—(A.P.)—Samuel Insull's stock sales in his ill-fated Corporation Securities Company were termed a "simple conspiracy to swindle, cheat, and defraud the public" by the government as it outlined the main fraud case against the former utilities executive today.

United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green, in a calm statement detailing what government investigators uncovered in Insull's financing, charged that the company was set up simply as a "dumping ground" for large quantities of stock acquired in market deals to boost the price of Insull stock.

Green declared that four of the 16 defendants on trial with Insull floated a huge issue of "Allotment certificates under the pretense they were letting their friends and customers in on an opportunity to make plenty of money."

A jury of twelve men—farmers, mechanics, and tradesmen—will hear the case in Detroit. (Continued on Page Six)

Cards Win Opener From Tigers, 8 To 3, As Defense Cracks

RETOIT, Oct. 4.—(A.P.)—The Cards won the opener from the Tigers 8 to 3, as the defense cracked in the first three innings, most of them the kind of mistakes that a sandlotter would have been ashamed of, enabled the National league champion to take quick command of the proceedings and then smash the remnants of Detroit's resistance with a powerful attack led by Joe Medwick, slugging outfielder who tied a world series record with four straight hits, including a home run.

HARD LANGUAGE PRESENT MONEY USED BY BUTLER POLICIES HELD CLEARED OFF AIR ONLY TEMPORARY

Former Marine Head's Fiery Talk Before Veterans Censored

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 4.—(A.P.)—The veterans of Foreign Wars yesterday approved Major Gen. Smedley D. Butler's ban on a nationwide radio hook up explaining that while his language was not objectionable to the veterans, "it may have been to a mixed radio audience."

The former head of the marines was cut off by a WBAF-NBC chain by station WAVE of Louisville after he had used the expression, "making fertilizer out of food," and other language in which Nat. Gen. Butler, manager of WAVE, took exception. WBAF-NBC issued a statement endorsing Lord's action. Lord said he had previously noted such expressions as "hell" and "lousy" and that he decided the languages violated federal radio regulations and that it had become necessary to cut the general off.
